The title story of this collection suggests the delightful idea that a great storage warehouse may be a little social world in itself, a community made up of those who store or unstore goods according as they go to housekeeping, break up housekeeping, spend the winter abroad or go to the country for the summer. There are nineteen titles included in the table of contents, of these some refer to other short stories, some to poems, narratives in verse, and two to short plays.

+ A L A Bkl 12:482 Jl '16

"Reputations have waxed and waned, we have forgotten what we enthusiastically praised and honored yesterday, but Mr. Howells remains the unassailable and incomparable figure in our literature today. . . . Such a tale as 'The face at the window,' is as contemporaneous as Frost." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 750w

+ Ind 87:32 Jl 3 '16 40w

+ Lit D 52:1467 My 20 '16 130w

"The two longer stories, 'The daughter of the storage' and 'The critical bookstore,' are as perfect bits of quiet whimsy as even Mr. Howells has produced. The volume, we say again, is one to be genuinely cherished by readers who do not find every need of nature satisfied by the type of short fiction which 'O. Henry' and his idolaters have established as the ruling mode."

+ Nation 102:622 Je 8 '16 330w

"There is, in the entire contents of this unusual and stimulating book, an amount of philosophy, of insight and interpretation, a picturing of American thought and feeling which are not the less weighty and significant because Mr. Howells refuses to be either pedantic or longwinded. You will laugh a good deal in reading it, but you will learn a great deal too. Perhaps the most potent factor that attracts you in such a collection is the contact with a mind of the calibre of Mr. Howells."

+ N Y Times 21:117 Ap 2 '16 1950w

"The atmosphere of nearness and friendliness is there. Nearly all the stories raise questions which even Mr. Howells from his seventy-nine years of wisdom has not presumed to answer." R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 89:1315 Ap 15 '16 630w

+ Spec 117:20 Jl 1 '16 650w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 17 '16 290w

"Not Mr. Howells at his best. It is as if he felt that letters, like the democratic system, should always be giving equal chances, and as if in letters, as in life, there might be something supercilious in elimination. The verse is square, serviceable, and unpretentious, well suited to its themes."

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p286 Je 15 '16 500w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:322 J1 '16 60w

HOWELLS, WILLIAM DEAN. Leatherwood god. il *$1.35 (2c) Century 16-22401

A picture of Ohio in its early pioneer beginnings, a study in religious psychology and a humanly appealing story. The story, the date of which is about 1830, tells of the sudden appearance in Leatherwood, Ohio, of the man who claimed to be a god, of his rise and downfall, of the acceptance of his preposterous claims by the people, and of his half hypnotic belief in himself. Not every one in Leatherwood accepts Joseph Dykls as a god. Matthew Braille, the wise, humorous old judge, recognizes him as an impostor, Nancy Billings knows him for one, for Nancy is the wife he had deserted. Believing him dead, she has married Laban Billings, and it is about this situation that the human interest of the tale centers. The part relating to the "god" is based on fact.

- + A L A Bkl 13:176 Ja '17

- + Ath p596 D '16 60w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

- + Bookm 44:504 Ja '17 400w

"He reproduces the quaint Ohio dialect with no less skill than he makes use of the English language as it should be written." E. F. E.

- + Boston Transcript p8 N 1 '16 1450w

- + Cath World 104:397 D '16 100w

"A great book this."

- + Cleveland p142 D '16 90w (Reprinted from the English Outlook)

Reviewed by A. H. Quinn

- + Dial 61:534 D 14 '16 1100w

- + Ind 88:550 D 25 '16 180w

- + Lit D 54:52 Ja 13 '17 250w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

- + Nation 103:507 N 30 '16 80w

- N Y Br Lib News 3:151 O '16

- N Y Times 21:224 My 28 '16 370w

- + N Y Times 21:453 O 29 '16 930w

"In its way a triumph. Perhaps Mr. Howells has never written a more vital story."

- + No Am 204:938 D '16 720w

"The story is a radical departure from Mr. Howells's accustomed manner, but it still shows all his old skill in deft, sure portrait painting, and in the delineation of a score or more quaint, lovable and very human personalities." F: T. Cooper

- + Pub W 90:1403 O 21 '16 450w

- + R of Rs 54:678 D '16 130w

"Purely American in spirit and impulse."

- + Springfield Republican p6 N 20 '16 670w

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p548 N 16 '16 870w

- + Wis Lib Bull 12:453 D '16 40w

HOWELLS, WILLIAM DEAN. Years of my youth. *$2 (2½c) Harper 16-22770

Like Mr. Howells's new novel, this volume of reminiscences has Ohio for its scene. It begins with his childhood, but the incidents that made up "A boy's town" are passed over lightly. Youth with its ambitions and dreams are dealt with more fully and we see the author setting type, writing sketches for the Ohio Farmer and poems for the Atlantic Monthly, rejoicing equally over an acceptance by either. During the critical years preceding the civil war he was serving on the staff of the Ohio State Journal and taking a part in vital events. The autobiography is carried only to the time when Mr. Howells went abroad as consul at Venice, this step marking his departure from his native state.

- + A L A Bkl 13:173 Ja '17

- + Boston Transcript p5 D 6 '16 1700w

"A book of real charm, and, as well, a valuable addition to our social history."

- + Ind 89:153 Ja 22 '17 130w

- + Lit D 54:199 Ja 27 '17 550w

- + N Y Times 21:529 D 3 '16 1750w

- + R of Rs 55:99 Ja '17 120w

"On the political side there is much that is interesting about the old Whigs and Freesoilers, and an admirably dispassionate estimate of John Brown in which Mr. Howells revises the enthusiastic verdict of his youth. Of the charm of the book it is difficult to speak in overpraise."

- + Spec 117:834 D 30 '16 1150w

- + Springfield Republican p6 D 4 '16 1100w

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p585 D 7 '16 970w

HSU, MONGTON CHIH. Railway problems in China. (Columbia univ. studies in history, economics and public law) pa *$1.50 Longmans 385 15-15228

"The author in this report has traced the development of the various lines of railway in China and has called the attention of the reader to some of the problems which have presented themselves in the course of this development." (J Pol Econ). "The Chinese nation, in its railway building, has been driven by its inexperience and want of suitable business organization to rely upon the aid of foreigners, in many instances almost devoid of good faith. Mr. Hsu has well described his country's plight and the process by which competition among the foreigners and growth of knowledge and experience in China has begun to give some degree of relief." (Am Econ R)

"An especial advantage of this monograph over other books on the subject is the author's acquaintance with Chinese sources and, correspondingly, his ability to present sympathetically the Chinese view of the controversial points of which the subject in so large part consists." A. P. Winston

- + Am Econ R 6:121 Mr '16 150w

- J Pol Econ 24:206 F '16 270w

"No more interesting or dramatic story of railway building is to be found anywhere than that of China's six thousand miles of line, constructed in an atmosphere of diplomatic intrigue that has displayed at its worst the selfishness and greed of the predatory nations. Dr. Hsu has told his story vividly and well, giving his main attention to the international situation, but describing in detail the various railway undertakings, completed and projected."

- + Nation 101:441 O 7 '15 470w

HUARD, MME. FRANCES (WILSON). My home in the field of honour. il *$1.35 (2c) Doran 940.91 16-11986

The simple, direct narrative of an American woman which tells of her share in the events of the opening weeks of the great war. Mme. la Baronne Huard is the daughter of Francis Wilson the actor and the wife of Charles Huard the French painter. Her home, the Château de Villiers, is near the river Marne on the direct road from Metz to Paris. Vividly the reader lives with her through each succeeding event: the departure of her husband and the other men, the carrying on of the farm work secure in the knowledge that the French army is between her and the Germans, the feeding of the never ending line of refugees, the flight with and care for her own small party of boys, women and children, the arrival, when all seems hopeless, of the French army in motor busses from Paris, the return through the ruined and desolate countryside to the once beautiful château, left despoiled and unspeakably filthy by Von Kluck and his staff. The narrative ends with the establishing in the château of the hospital for French soldiers of which Mme. Huard has spoken in the United States.

- + A L A Bkl 13:25 O '16

"There is no attempt in this narrative for more than a simple description of the stirring days of which she writes. But Madame Huard has warm sympathies and a good sense of humor. From every point of view this book is interesting."

HUARD, MME. FRANCES—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 7 '16 250w

"What this American woman saw and experienced cannot be passed over lightly. Its significance should be grasped by every thinking woman, to the determined end of all such horrors."

+ Ind 87:130 Jl 24 '16 140w

+ Lit D 53:85 Jl 8 '16 210w

+ New Repub 8:172 S 16 '16 310w

"One cannot read this little book without discovering in the author's unpretentious account of what she did and how she did it facts that will make us proud that she is an American. Efficiency, courage, endurance, even cheerfulness, under horrible hardships and exhaustion, these she showed unconsciously and simply."

+ N Y Times 21:233 Je 4 '16 870w

"The author has made use of an uncommon literary gift to write a story of actual experiences that brings before us the fearfulness of war without any effect of melodrama or superfluity of horror, and that expresses real emotion with sincerity and with artistic restraint. When one remembers that the narrative is not fiction, but simple truth, one gasps."

+ No Am 204:161 Jl '16 330w

"The book is delightfully illustrated from sketches by the writer's husband."

+ R of Rs 54:116 Jl '16 230w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Jl 9 '16 420w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p371 Ag 3 '16 50w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:321 Jl '16 120w

HUBBARD, CHARLES HENRY. Hubbard's poultry secrets on mating, feeding and conditioning fancy poultry for the show room. il $2.50 (8c) Hubbard's poultry secrets, Lime Rock, Conn. 636.5 16-4086

The author has had considerable experience in breeding black Orpingtons and has worked out a system the success of which is attested by a long line of prize winners. "I adopted this system twelve years ago, and since then birds reared under it have never experienced defeat, and it is my belief that it will place the amateur on an equal footing with the professional. . . . I am giving the student of this system secrets that have never before been seen in print." (Intro.) The author advocates the one-man plant, a plant making a specialty of one breed and operated by one man. The book is illustrated and there is a chart for line breeding.

HUBBARD, CHARLES LINCOLN. Ventilation² hand book. il $2 Sheet metal pub. co., Tribune bldg., N. Y. 697 16-5346

"The principles and practice of ventilation as applied to furnace heating; ducts, flues and dampers for gravity heating; fans and fan work for ventilation and hot blast heating." (Subtitle) The material of the book, taken from a series of articles that appeared in Sheet Metal, is arranged in question and answer form. The author says, "Special care has been taken to keep all descriptions and mathematical work well within the understanding of the student and beginner."

A L A Bkl 13:107 D '16

+ Quar List New Tech Bks Ja '17 50w

St Louis 14:170 My '16

HUBBARD, G. E. From the Gulf to Ararat.² *10s 6d Blackwood 915

"Mr. Hubbard was secretary of the Delimitation commission, British and Russian, which was appointed in 1913 to settle the Turko-Persian frontier. It finished its work in well under 12 months; and Mr. Hubbard is here able to record its experiences and adventures. Although written before the war, the book has much interest from the fact that the route of the commission carried them over the scene of the campaigns of the present war."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16 50w

"The Oriental, if irritating to the western mind, is also amusing, and Mr. Hubbard's cheery record should impart a good deal of information without ever reaching the boredom which belongs to gazetteers and rows of facts and statistics. He has, indeed, some solid matter, but it is apt to his purpose, and the little incidents of the journey, together with the excellent illustrations, make attractive fare."

+ Sat R 122:463 N 11 '16 650w

Reviewed by the Earl of Cromer

+ Spec 117:344 S 23 '16 2550w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p324 Jl 6 '16 110w

"Mr. Hubbard tells the story of the commission's remarkable adventures with unfailing vivacity. Very few Englishmen have personal knowledge of this wild region, over part of which Turks and Russians and Kurds and Persians are now fighting. We can thoroughly commend Mr. Hubbard's book because it gives an admirable picture of one of the least-known theatres of the war."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p411 Ag 31 '16 870w

HUCKEL, OLIVER. Dreamer of dreams. il *$1.25 (2½c) Crowell 16-22169

A retelling of the life story of William Penn, based on a supposed journal kept by Gulielma Springett who became his wife and accompanied him to America. On his title page the author calls it "an authentic narrative, from the supposed journal of the fair Guli Springett, as found in an old oaken chest at Worminghurst, England." The journal relates the story of their courtship, marriage, and journey to America. Their daughter, Letitia Penn, is allowed to complete the story. The author's purpose has been to set forth the real man, "Will Penn, the Quaker" as distinguished from William Penn, the figure of history.

Ath p596 D '16 70w

+ Boston Transcript p7 O 21 '16 500w

"We have in agreeable form some such humanization of the saintly William Penn as was effected for Martin Luther in that classic of our childhood, the collective diary of the Schönberg-Cotta family. Contemporary portraits and prints have been put to good use in illustrating the book."

+ Dial 61:473 N 30 '16 160w

R of Rs 54:682 D '16 50w

"Dr. Huckel's story is told with a sentimental flow of praise which, while not unwelcome in itself, hardly does justice to the quaintness and force of the original."

+ — Springfield Republican p6 Ja 12 '17 200w

HUDDERS, EUGENE RUSSELL. Indexing and filing; a manual of standard practice. il *$3 Ronald 651 16-2143

The author, a public accountant, states in the preface that this volume "has been written with the idea of codifying the rules covering the indexing and filing of records such as would ordinarily be found in commercial organizations. Some of its chapters are applicable to the filing of professional, semi-professional and institutional records, but these cannot, on account of the limitations of space, be full, and it is the intention of the author to cover these more specifically in supplemental publications." Of the 29 chapters the first half discuss basic principles as applied to writing indexes, filing index cards and papers alphabetically, numerically, geographically, or by subject, the finding of lost papers, transferring, etc. The latter half of the book treats of catalog and pamphlet filing, sales and credit records; filing in the offices of architects, lawyers, etc., and other topics which are part of the business routine of every commercial house.

"Detailed and practical."

- + A L A Bkl 12:400 Je '16
- + Ann Am Acad 67:319 S '16 150w
- + Cleveland p58 My '16 10w

"It may be considered the latest word on the science of indexing and filing. Principles are laid down and sample documents illustrated by excellently clear sketches. The book should have practical value to business executives and to professional men."

- + Lit D 52:447 F 19 '16 130w
- + Pittsburgh 21:198 Ap '16 60w

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Adventures among birds. Il *$2.50 (3c) Kennerley 598.2 (Eng ed 15-26884)

The author is said to be but slightly known in America, altho a number of his books have been published here. He is an English naturalist, familiar with the wild life of countries so widely divergent as Argentina and England. John Galsworthy, in an introduction to one of his other books, speaks of him as "probably the most acute, broad-minded, and understanding observer of nature living." The present work is devoted chiefly to English birds. It is appropriately named "Adventures among birds," altho it is not a book for sportsmen. In its two dozen or more chapters are related personal experiences and friendships with birds. The author has a fondness for the wilder species, particularly the wild goose, considered by him one of the most intelligent and most interesting of birds.

- + Dial 59:577 D 9 '15 220w

"Mr. Hudson's present book abounds in good bird stories, some of which need all the weight of Mr. Galsworthy's voucher as to the accuracy of the author's observation."

- + N Y Times 21:104 Mr 19 '16 700w

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Birds and man. Il *$2.25 Knopf 598.2 W16-40

"A new edition of a work that has been out of print for some years but has been revised by the author, who has added some new chapters for this reappearance. . . . He does not tell of birds and plants as one who describes and lists, nor as one who interprets, nor as one who offers information. He watches these lower forms of life for the blessed joy he takes in observing them and writes about them that others may share that joy. . . . This is the third of Mr. Hudson's books to be put before American readers within the last year or two."—Bookm

"Mr. Hudson is in truth a very hard hitter, without fear or favour. Almost quixotic in his championship of the persecuted, frankly sentimental in his appreciation of the æsthetic, he is withal so shrewd and practical that he represents more than a voice crying in the wilderness. Even those whom he openly flouts can hardly fail to admire his single-hearted courage and the strength of his pleading."

- + Ath 1915,2:266 O 16 530w

"There have been few observers of nature who have written of what they have seen in a way to satisfy the mind in so many ways." F. F. Kelly

- + Bookm 43:547 Jl '16 350w

"In such entertaining chapters as Daws in the West-country especially 'The ecclesiastical daw,' Ravens in Somerset, Geese—an appreciation and a memory, one derives a patient and sympathetic study of the ways of those, to most of us bourgeois birds, against a background of delightful English towns and landscapes, painted with the breadth and skill of the true artist."

- + Nation 102:653 Je 15 '16 1350w
- + N Y Times 21:240 Je 11 '16 180w

"The world is divided into those to whom what Mr. Hudson calls 'the life and conversation of animals' is a matter of lively interest, and those for whom the animal world may be said hardly to exist. The latter half of the public will not care for Mr. Hudson's book, the former will be enchanted by it."

- + Spec 116:sup136 Ja 29 '16 1350w

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Green mansions. *$1.50 (1½c) Knopf 16-6821

A tale of the tropical forests of southern Venezuela. Its narrator is an Hispano-American who tells the story to an English friend as an episode of his youth. As a political outcast, after one of the revolutionary uprisings common to his country half a century ago, he has sought the solitudes of the forests. Here he lives a primitive life with the crude, superstitious native tribes and here he meets and loves Rima, a beautiful, mysterious girl, befriended by all birds and beasts and feared by the Indians, a "half angel and half bird" creature whose character is never quite explained. It is indeed a tale of unrealities that, under the hand of a master, become real. The story was first published in 1893 and is reissued now with an introduction by John Galsworthy.

- + A L A Bkl 12:482 Jl '16

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

- + Bookm 43:415 Je '16 670w
- + Boston Transcript p9 Mr 11 '16 700w

"Not only is the main idea so turned as to express most forcibly the spiritual conception with which he is deeply impressed, but each little incident is such as to give the indisputable feeling of reality." E. E. Hale

- + Dial 61:28 Je 22 '16 380w

- + Ind 86:183 My 1 '16 50w

"He has charged his story with an atmosphere and his reflections with an expressive beauty that are rare. That unity of tone in which Flaubert is almost the only adept among novelists is here sustained almost throughout. The spirit of the whole book is that of absolute remoteness from modern practical life. It has a style of its own, compacted of a quaint simplicity and a great sense of beauty."

- + Nation 102:544 My 18 '16 420w

"The book is rich in a strange beauty, but the narrative seems rather a slender, strong thread on which are strung gorgeous panoramas and prose poems of matchless, vibrant color. When Hudson describes a tree, the sap in it runs. His landscapes are not static glories; they have the brightness and beauty of birds, yet like them too, they are quick with life." Harold Stearns

- + New Repub 7:176 Je 17 '16 1500w

"The book is, of course, pure romance, but it is of a sort that reveals not only the author's mastery of the technique of his art, but the special knowledge that he has picked up as a naturalist wandering in the little-known places of South America."

- + N Y Times 21:98 Mr 19 '16 400w

"A sort of prose lyric lovely as the legend of 'Undine.'"

- + N Y Times 21:240 Je 11 '16 60w
- + R of Rs 53:758 Je '16 150w

"So pervasive is the element of mystery in it that one is almost ready to reconsider one's opinion that it is not destined for popularity. . . . The great merits of the book are its pure romantic feeling, and the simple poetry of its language."

- + Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 1400w

"A curious and not wholly pleasing though fascinating story."

- + W's Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 100w

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Purple land. *$1.50 Dutton 17-1333

"This new-old book, 'The purple land,' is, like 'Green mansions,' a story of adventure in South America; unlike the latter, however, it partakes so little of fairyland and is, ostensibly, so thoroughgoing a chronicle of real life that when first published, thirty-one years ago, it was reviewed in several instances under the classification 'Books of travel and geography.' . . . The reader follows the ragged hero through one adventure after another with an interest that intensifies as the latter nears the utterly simple goal toward which he is traveling amid perils of wilderness, of lawless settlement, and the typical South American revolution that is here

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY—Continued
portrayed with an intimate truthfulness rare among writers essaying the subject."—N Y Times

"One of his earliest books was a narrative of 'one Richard Lamb's adventures in the Banda Oriental, in South America, as told by himself,' and it was called 'The purple land that England lost,' this allusive title referring to the blood that had been shed on the soil of Uruguay and to the fact that it might easily at one time have become a part of the British empire. It was published in 1885."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 13 '16 1000w

"It is full of action, full of life and color, full of strange, picturesque people, and it is written with artistic simplicity and great charm."

+ Ind 87:315 Ag 28 '16 50w

"In the book is all the rare perception of natural life and beauty, so exquisitely recorded in 'Green mansions.' There is humor, too, which 'Green mansions' lacked. . . . Crass realistic love encounters—seemingly inevitable in a wild country—Hudson treats with the most consummate tact." H. S.

+ New Repub 8:198 S 23 '16 650w

"There are, undoubtedly, a number of actual travel experiences woven in the delicate web of Mr. Hudson's narrative; but it is no more a 'book of travel' for that reason than the adventures of 'Don Quixote' or 'Gil Blas.' This South American story, indeed, reveals a delightful kinship with both these chronicles of old Spain. As with them humor and wisdom are charmingly blended throughout its pages. There are episodes filled with simple pathos, others that rock with laughter."

+ N Y Times 21:276 J1 9 '16 930w

"His use of the English language is perfect."

+ N Y Times 21:575 D 31 '16 420w

+ R of Rs 54:346 S '16 150w

HUDSON, WILLIAM HENRY. Tales of the pampas. *$1.25 Knopf 16-21712

Five short stories of the Argentine, one of them told in verse, make up the contents of this volume by the English naturalist and story writer. He is primarily story teller in this book, but the naturalist is always close in the background to give a certain color and quality to the narrative. Another element that is prominent in the stories is the delicate suggestion of the supernatural. An appendix supplies a note to "El Ombú," the longest of the stories, giving facts about the English invasion of Argentina in 1807 on which the tale is based. "With exception of two stories this work appeared in 1902 under the title: El Ombú, and in 1909 under title: South American sketches." (L. C. card)

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 13 '16 350w

"Tragic or grewsome tales."

Cleveland p142 D '16 50w

"Mr. Hudson's language is frequently like John Bunyan's in its monosyllabic simplicity, but very imaginative in its total effect. The style can, however, in descriptive passages mount to the resonant power characteristic of the author's finest work."

+ Nation 104:78 Ja 18 '17 390w

"The technique is the deceptively simple method of story-within-story, relayed through many narrators. Instead of the favorite American method of illuminating dénouement. A thousand incompetent authors have employed this old-fashioned method of rambling narrative, only to reveal their hopeless mediocrity. But Hudson conquers by it."

+ New Repub 9:160 D 9 '16 450w

+ N Y Times 21:575 D 31 '16 450w

"Marvelous and thrilling tales of the South American pampas. They are less idealistic, but more exciting and adventurous, than 'Green mansions,' but absolutely unique in the field of short stories. Stevenson never wrote anything more mysterious or fascinating than these tales."

+ R of Rs 54:674 D '16 80w

"Unusually interesting, the whole has a certain element of weirdness, at times very pronounced, always accentuated by the peculiar style of the author. This style detracts from the reality of the tales and gives them almost the sound of by-gone romances grown yellow with age."

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 280w

HUEFFER, FORD MADOX. Between St. Dennis and St. George; a sketch of three civilisations. *$1 Doran 940.91 15-24484

"Mr. Ford Madox Hueffer's books are largely concerned with Mr. Ford Madox Hueffer, whatever their nominal subject may be. 'Between St. Dennis and St. George' is quite as autobiographical as the rest of them. . . . Of his 'three civilisations,' Mr. Hueffer uses our own chiefly by way of contrast to the Germans. . . . 'Between St. Dennis and St. George' was originally intended to be a counterblast to Mr. Shaw, Mr. Bertrand Russell, and the rest of them. Such matters have been relegated to appendixes because Mr. Hueffer dislikes denouncing his fellow-beings. However, there they are, and Mr. Shaw gets a sound trouncing."—Ath

A L A Bkl 12:332 Ap '16

"It is all very well for Mr. Hueffer to call his latest deliverance 'A sketch of three civilisations.' He has really given us the impressions of one highly civilized person as the war has played on his mind, with illustrative anecdotes sometimes serious, at other times whimsical. His style carries the reader along like a cork on a current; he has many good stories to tell, though they occasionally hang upon exiguous pegs, and he amuses by some grotesque phrase when he is most desperately in earnest."

+ Ath 1915,2:326 N 6 850w

Pittsburgh 21:128 Mr '16 90w

St Louis 14:40 F '16 20w

HUEFFER, FORD MADOX. Henry James; a critical study. fl *$2 (6½c) Dodd 813
(Eng ed A14-1595)

The author defines his attitude toward his subject in his opening paragraph: "Let me say at once that I regard the works of Mr. Henry James as those most worthy of attention by the critics—most worthy of attention of all the work that is to-day pouring from the groaning presses of continents. In saying this I conceal for the moment my private opinion. . . . that Mr. James is the greatest of all living writers and in consequence, for me, the greatest of living men." The contents consists of Introduction, chapters devoted to Subjects, Temperaments, and Methods, and Appendix. The Appendix gives comparative passages from the earlier editions of Mr. James's novels and from the same novels revised and amplified for the definitive edition.

+ A L A Bkl 13:112 D '16

"There is an unfortunate stridency about Mr. Hueffer's not undiscerning monograph. Aware, seemingly, that he is treading ground on which angels would not lightly venture, he has, perhaps, argued that the rusher-in must see to it that his want of embarrassment be energetically displayed. . . . There seems, indeed, no topic that Mr. Hueffer will not drag in by the ears for the exhibition of his own composure."

+ — Ath 1914,1:88 Ja 17 800w

"While the book is full of contradictions it has decided interest because it hits what it aims at: it is an impression of one of the greatest of impressionists." G: Middleton

+ Bookm 44:298 N '16 590w

"Any novelist might well pray to be spared from the humiliation of such exalted praise as leaps times without number from Mr. Hueffer's pen."

— Boston Transcript p8 O 21 '16 650w

"Mr. Ford Madox Hueffer's critical study, now first brought out in America, appeared in London early in 1914, and is reprinted apparently without change. It takes no account, therefore, of the important events of the last two years of Henry James's life, and it gains no advantage from the clearing and illumination of the critical view that comes with an author's death."

W: B. Cairns

+ — Dial 61:345, N 2 '16 670w

+ — N Y Times 21:385 O 1 '16 1350w

"Mr. Hueffer's book is mainly eulogy. . . . But it is not indiscriminate eulogy. Mr. Hueffer advances excellent reasons for the faith that is in him and proceeds very succinctly to analyze his author's qualities. The greatness of Mr. James is that of the historian—the historian of one, of two, and possibly of three or more civilisations."

+ Sat R 117:22 Ja 3 '14 430w

HUESTON, ETHEL. Prudence says so. il
*$1.25 (2c) Bobbs 16-16688

Prudence has left the parsonage but her influence remains. "Prudence says so" is a statement of final authority with Fairy, the twins and Connie. This second book about the parsonage family is made up of unrelated episodes in which one or more of the four lively girls figure. A wedding and two love affairs ending in happy engagements are among them.

+ Ind 88:402 D 4 '16 40w

+ N Y Times 21:336 Ag 27 '16 400w

Reviewed by R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 90:599 Ag 19 '16 350w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 31 '16 110w

HÜGEL, FRIEDRICH, freiherr von. German soul in its attitude towards ethics and Christianity, the state and war; two studies. $1 Dutton 193 War16-144

"Baron von Hügel wrote 'The German soul,' believing that his own German heritage of mental and spiritual qualities would enable him to understand the good in it, while his British qualities and long residence would keep his point of view objective and impartial. . . . He explains in his preface that the two papers which comprise his book are the result of his studies into the relations, 'in the actual nature of things,' between, in the first place, general ethics and Christianity, and then, and particularly, between such general ethics and Christianity on the one hand and the state and war on the other. He thinks that territorial expansion in Europe of any one race over another markedly different has become 'a moral wrong and a political mistake.' . . . His inquiry and argument throughout the two articles are on religio-philosophical lines and in a temper that is calm, gentle, kindly, and to the last degree objective and judicial."—N Y Times

"Analyzes the doctrines of Naumann, Troeltsch, and other thinkers. Revised from articles published in the Church Quarterly Review and the Quest."

+ A L A Bk1 13:119 D '16

+ Ind 88:27 O 2 '16 140w

+ Int J Ethics 27:257 Ja '17 460w

"Represents a half-German examination of the cultural phases and effects of the war from the viewpoint of a Catholic. . . . There is a long, comparative study of the 'German soul' and the 'British soul,' the virtues and defects of both nations, that is so searching, comprehensive, and utterly impartial, the sort of thing from which only can true illumination come, that it deserves the widest reading. It ought to be fruitful for Americans as guidance for the development of their own soul."

+ N Y Times 21:289 J1 23 '16 450w

"This is not a long or an elaborate book, but it takes us farther towards understanding the Germans than anything we have seen lately."

+ Sat R 122:67 J1 15 '16 1500w

"Will Germany ever get away from the spiritual effects of the terrible baptism of Bismarck? Baron von Hügel does not exactly answer our question, because whoever reads his book sees that it is to the reformation, not to modern events, that he traces this spirit of what Germany calls patriotism. It is to Luther he traces the subservience of conscience to race-worship. . . . Baron von Hügel's love of theology occasionally tempts him away from the main theme of his study. When thus specializing he becomes dull. With this reservation, we have nothing but praise for a book which is undoubtedly profound and conspicuously fair."

+ Spec 117:sup395 O 7 '16 1800w

"Though Protestant readers will not agree with all that the author has to say, they will appreciate the subtlety and quiet strength of his graciously meditative, idealistic mind."

+ Springfield Republican p6 J1 21 '16 950w

"The first part of this book is called Christianity in face of war; and it is really an examination of the German view, particularly of the view of Herr Naumann, that Christianity has no concern with the state. . . . It is one great merit of his book that a German could read it without being enraged by it. But he knows just where they have gone astray better than we can; and he tells us in his second study, on the German soul. He explains very clearly how the German comes to be so ridden by theory."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p222 My 11 '16 1600w

HUGHES, CHARLES EVANS. Addresses, 1906-1916. il $*1 (2c) Putnam 308 16-21137

To this second edition of Mr. Hughes's addresses the following important additions have been made: Telegram to the Republican convention in Chicago accepting the nomination, June 10, 1916; Formal address of acceptance delivered in Carnegie Hall, New York City, July 31, 1916; "Key-note" speech delivered at Youngstown, Ohio, September 5, 1908; Address before the New York bar association, January 14, 1916 on "Some aspects of the development of American law." A few of the earlier speeches included in the first edition, 1908, have been omitted and there is a new introduction by Jacob Gould Schurman.

+ Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 210w

HUGHES, RUPERT. Clipped wings; pub. serially as "The barge of dreams." il $*1.35 (1c) Harper 16-1399

A girl who has been brought up on the stage and whose genius for acting is an inheritance from a line of distinguished actors, marries at the very outset of her career and retires to private life. Her husband is the typical American business man who believes woman's place is the home, and the wife tries to fill the part she has accepted, devoting herself to husband and children. But she cannot be satisfied with a life of inactivity. A part in an amateur pageant awakens the old fire. Her husband sees that he has selfishly denied her the career that is her right and it is due to his determination that she returns to the stage, henceforth to divide her time between profession and home.

A L A Bk1 12:289 Mr '16

"The book is largely without the high spiritual values; one feels that the specialized histrionic impulse is its centre, rather than the human imagination and mind and will. But Sheila herself is true and fine." Wilson Follett

+ — Atlan 118:499 O '16 240w

"Although the story is of the sort that have their plots first and their characters evolved to suit the lines of the action, some of its people are clearly and vivaciously realized, and Mr. Hughes has contrived to make the reader feel the charm and genius of his heroine." F. F. Kelly

+ — Bookm 43:82 Mr '16 550w

"'Clipped wings' is an amazing concoction. In plot, in dialogue, in incident and most of all in Mr. Hughes's extraordinary English, it is a novel that is unvariedly unconventional. Whether the reader like or dislike it, he certainly cannot accuse the novelist of the unpardonable sin of the commonplace. With all its extravaganzas, with all its verbal offences, 'Clipped wings' never fails to hold the reader in its grip. . . . Out of his knowledge of the stage Mr. Hughes has written a story that is overburdened with truth. The regrettable part of it is, however, that he has written it as if he were constructing the plot and dialogue of a melodrama for a Bowery audience." E. F. Edgett

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Ja 15 '16 1550w

+ — Cleveland p17 Mr '16 90w

HUGHES, RUPERT—Continued

"The story has its evident purpose; it is, in a sense, a brief for the actor and his art. But it is not a book for the stage-struck. Mr. Hughes, from his long experience as a successful playwright, is unsparing in his emphasis upon the toils and troubles of theatrical life. In manner, the book has its traces of the popular playwright and magazine-writer; but it is a book of serious substance."

+ Nation 102:183 F 3 '16 580w

"Mr. Hughes handles the subject with skill and consistency. His work places him head and shoulders above the ranks—in the select school of sincere American novelists."

+ New Repub 6:274 Ap 8 '16 290w

+ — N Y Times 21:22 Ja 16 '16 750w

"It gives a vivid, interesting picture of the lives of the playfolk, the hard work, the ambitions and achievements and disappointments, the pettinesses and the heroisms. The weak spot in the book is the character of Sheila's husband, a person who would in real life have bored her to tears before they had been married three months. Taken as a whole, however, 'Clipped wings' is a well balanced, broad-minded and very interesting novel, and one which will probably arouse a good deal of discussion." L. M. Field

+ — Pub W 89:190 Ja 15 '16 400w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 30 '16 350w

"Worth reading not so much for its plot or its characters as for the wit and point of its style."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p155 Mr 30 '16 520w

"The descriptions of theatrical life are interesting and convincing—more so than the story. The caddish hero shows few qualities to warrant such devotion from a clever woman."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:146 Mr '16 50w

HUGHES, RUPERT. Thirteenth commandment.

il *$1.40 (1c) Harper 16-15151

When Daphne Kip of Cleveland goes to buy her trousseau in New York, she realizes for the first time how much work it costs a father or husband to dress a daughter or wife in the way she demands to be dressed. The knowledge is pressed home to her by the scene between her brother and his new wife after the latter had brought him into debt for an expensive and unnecessary gown. She determines to postpone her marriage until she can support herself and meets with the usual vicissitudes of a young, beautiful, untrained girl seeking work in New York. She fails on the stage and eventually opens a lingerie shop in which she makes a success. She renews her engagement—on the last page of the story—on condition that she may buy one half of her own wedding ring.

"While this may be as sincere a piece of work in the author's intention as 'Clipped wings,' it is far less sound in substance. One feels the action being contrived rather than developing, the figures being somewhat cavalierly put through their paces; and the author's voice is too insistent from the wings." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 44:65 S '16 580w

"Its somewhat mystifying title is early understood when we learn that Mr. Hughes's supplement to the decalogue is: 'Thou shalt not spend more than thou earnest.' A thousand amusing citations illuminative of Mr. Hughes's unrestraint in wit and wisdom might be made from the pages of his latest novel. That 'The thirteenth commandment' is up to date fiction of the strongest American quality there can be no doubt. But there is equally no doubt that it is as ephemeral as it is clever and entertaining." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p7 Ag 26 '16 650w

"There is no central point of interest, though the material is not lacking."

+ — Cath World 104:552 Ja '17 250w

"Her final success is as unethical as the 'thirteenth commandment'—'Thou shalt not spend more than thou earnest,' with no suggestion that the earning must be honest."

— Ind 88:33 O 2 '16 70w

— Nation 103:324 O 5 '16 410w

"'The thirteenth commandment' is a thoughtful novel."

+ N Y Times 21:290 Jl 23 '16 1200w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 17 '16 330w

HUGHES, THOMAS J. State socialism after the war; an exposition of complete state socialism, what it is; how it would work. *$1.50 (3c) Jacobs 335 16-21042

During the progress of the war, each of the countries involved has taken measures that come under the head of "State socialism." From these beginnings the author works out a complete system, assuming that at the close of the war steps were taken to establish a socialistic state in British East Africa where all theories on the subject could be put into practice. He describes systems of land tenure, housing, wages, etc., and shows how such a state would be but the practical application of the social teachings of Jesus.

N Y Br Lib News 3:186 D '16 50w

"Frankly one more utopia, appearing at a moment when utopias are at a discount. . . . It would be hard to say why Christians, social workers, socialists, workmen, employers of all kinds should not be interested in this book as its publishers think they will be." E. T. D.

+ Survey 37:344 D 23 '16 170w

HUGINS, ROLAND. Germany misjudged; an appeal to international good will in the interest of a lasting peace. *$1 (4½c) Open ct. 940.91 16-8948

The author writes as "one of those whose sympathy with Germany rests on rational rather than on emotional grounds." The book opens with a paper reprinted from the New York Times, "The myth of a demon enemy." The four that follow appeared first in the Open Court. In "An explanation to Germany" the author attempts to explain exactly the feeling that exists in America with regard to Belgium and the supposed tyrannical ambitions of Germany. He neither condemns nor upholds this feeling but presents it as a fact which Germany must take into consideration. In "A question for England" he asks "What are you fighting for? To avenge Belgium or to protect your own interests?" In the third chapter he deplores the Franco-Russian alliance, and in the final chapter considers "The attitude of America."

Am Pol Sci R 10:583 Ag '16 120w

Ind 86:552 Je 26 '16 100w

Lit D 52:1708 Je 10 '16 270w

"In making out his case for Germany, Mr. Hugins works over materials that have yielded much the same results at the hands of Lowes Dickinson, Brailsford, and Bernard Shaw. One may be fairly certain that this kind of verdict lies nearer to the judgment that history will pass upon the war than the various highly colored demonstrations of German lust for world dominion. . . . He is not so neutral as he appears to himself. In case of doubt he favors Germany, chiefly in reaction to the mass of writing on the subject, which favors the Allies even in cases where there is little doubt. But the defender of Germany, in face of the general detestation aroused by her conduct in this war, ought to seem entirely free from bias, if he wishes to be effective."

+ — New Repub 7:154 Je 10 '16 400w

"His positions are stated with moderation, and while he himself would be the first to admit that his views will find acceptance with only a minority of Americans, there is no reason why the majority would take offense at his manner of proposing them."

+ R of Rs 53:756 Je '16 100w

HUGINS, ROLAND. Possible peace; a forecast of world politics after the great war. *$1.25 (3½c) Century 327 16-23057

The author does not propose a "neat and facile scheme for insuring international peace." He says, "I have not attempted to minimize or slur the difficulties. My discussion does not disclose any sovereign remedy, any infallible program, for abolishing wars. It attempts a humbler task: to state clearly the nature of the problem; and its purpose will be achieved if it defines the international situation in accurate terms." He is non-partisan in his attitude toward the warring countries, holding that no one is alone to blame. And for the United States, he advocates a more definite foreign policy and preparedness for a possible war to the extent of a standing army of 400,000 and a navy second only to Great Britain.

"A close and well reasoned work, from the pacifist standpoint, upon the actual existing conditions in the world at large. If the work has any drawback at all, it is that it suggests peace, after ably outlining a condition in which peace cannot possibly exist permanently. . . . The best chapters in the work are those on 'The militaristic circle' and 'The profits of aggression.'" J. W.

+ — N Y Call p15 Ja 21 '17 230w

HUIDEKOPER, FREDERIC LOUIS. Military unpreparedness of the United States; with an introd. by Major Gen. Leonard Wood. maps $4 (2c) Macmillan 355.7 15-24525
For descriptive note see Annual for 1915.

"So far as it goes this sketch is sufficiently correct, but it does not go nearly far enough and always remains on the surface. Where we think the author falls short is in his apparent inability to relate American military efforts to the growth of industrialism and the development of the military art as a general matter during the nineteenth century. Mr. Huidekoper virtually ignores the lack of tactical science and of the education of the staff and higher command among the items making up the defencelessness of this country. Yet it is probably the gravest item. . . . We hope that the compilers of our school texts may turn to this book for a little of the guidance in military matters that they seriously need."

+ — Am Hist R 21:604 Ap '16 650w

+ A L A Bkl 12:265 Mr '16

Reviewed by Simeon Strunsky

+ — Bookm 42:729 F '16 1950w

Dial 60:217 Mr 2 '16 400w

"It is a pity that the author is not a master of a better and more attractive literary style, for the story that it has to tell is one which if invitingly told would reach a very large public."

+ — Educ R 51:418 Ap '16 150w

+ Ind 85:199 F 7 '16 450w

"The quotations from the writings of Washington are among the most able of any pleas ever made for a correct military policy. The enactments and discussions from 1902 to 1915 have had the fullest and most generous treatment, and most graphically show the gradual but lamentably slow progress of events toward a better understanding of the military needs of the country." C. E. L.

+ Journal of the Military Service Institute 58:310 Mr '16 670w

Lit D 53:312 Ag 5 '16 150w

"We make bold to say that no future writer of our country's history can afford to neglect this material addition to the subject, and that school-texts in particular should be overhauled in the light of Mr. Huidekoper's researches. And we say so much in full recognition of the fact that the author's main purpose is to clear the way for an advocacy of a policy which we are far from endorsing. The size of the book, 556 closely packed pages, should discourage no one; thoroughness of treatment calls for a fullness more than compensated if compensation be demanded, by clearness of statement, order of argument, and limpidity of style."

+ Nation 102:362 Mr 30 '16 550w

"The book contains much sound argument as well as many pertinent facts that are not elsewhere accessible to the majority of readers. No other work dealing with military preparedness in the United States is more informing in regard to the status and history of the army than this of Mr. Huidekoper's: no book designed for non-military readers discusses the broad questions of military policy so comprehensively and intelligibly."

+ No Am 203:458 Mr '16 1700w

+ R of Rs 53:115 Ja '16 100w

HULL, WILLIAM ISAAC. Preparedness; the American versus the military programme. $1.25 (1½c) Revell 355.7 16-15201

What degree of "preparedness" is necessary to insure safety? is the question asked in this book. The author examines in detail the plans of the national defense advocates and shows their inadequacy, making a particular point of the unpractical character of the kind of military training advocated for the public schools. He then proceeds to carry out the preparedness principle to logical extremes showing the amount of preparation that our immense area, our thousands of miles of seacoast and of international boundaries would necessitate. Opposed to this impossible program (impossible if American ideals of democracy are to be maintained), he presents his "American" program in which the American idea of a union of many states is applied to the international situation.

"While so many in the United States are working for the adoption of a new programme, which they believe will insure the protection of the nation in time of war, Professor Hull of Swarthmore has had the courage to take the opposite view and to write boldly of it."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 7 '16 310w

N Y Times 21:248 Je 18 '16 540w

R of Rs 54:115 Jl '16 90w

+ St Louis 14:382 N '16 50w

"Prof. Hull offers a program which is in perfect harmony with our national spirit."

+ Springfield Republican p8 N 24 '16 750w

HUMPHREY, A. W. International socialism and the war. 3s 6d P. S. King & son, London 335 15-5546

"A defense of the Socialists against the charge of apostasy which has been made because they are fighting each other in the various armies of Europe. The author says that they were never wholly pacifists. The concept of nationality has always had a place in their idea. The Socialist doctrine was that the proletariat was to get control within the different national units; then war would cease, but nations would continue. The protection of the nation against aggression was not precluded by such a doctrine. Mr. Humphrey shows in successive chapters on the German, Austrian, Italian, French, Russian, Belgian and British socialists' attitude towards the war, that all worked untiringly for peace and that all of those that finally fell in with the war party did so upon the conviction that their various governments were waging a defensive war."—Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by P. L. White

Ann Am Acad 64:251 Mr '16 250w

Hibbert J 13:674 Ap '15 90w

HUMPHREYS, MRS. ELIZA M. J. (GOLLAN) (MRS. DESMOND HUMPHREYS) (RITA, pseud.). Iron stair; a romance of Dartmoor. $1.35 (2c) Putnam 16-6438

It was a suggestion from his valet that took young Aubrey FitzJohn Derringham to the law courts. He was bored and Chaffey, looking about for something to interest him, hit upon the trial of Jessop vs. Gale, then in progress. Derringham hears sentence pronounced on young Geoffrey Gale and is convinced of his innocence. Later events, particularly his meeting with Geoffrey's cousin Renée Jessop, link him more closely with the case, and he is finally led to take a hand in the prisoner's escape from the Dartmoor prison and to shelter him from pursuit. The situation in which the characters are placed as a result of this act is peculiar, and one from which the author has some difficulty in extricating them.

"Improbable and strained as the action is at times, the story is much more skilfully written than the usual tale of its kind."

+ — Nation 102:313 Mr 16 '16 280w

HUMPHREYS, MRS. ELIZA M. J.—Continued

"Though not very credible and possessed of a somewhat preposterous heroine, the tale is ingenious and fairly entertaining."

+ — N Y Times 21:50 F 13 '16 300w

"Up to this point the story is well provided with a spirit of impending danger and excitement, together with interesting speculations on motives for crime, discussions of accessorial guilt under certain circumstances, and the evidence of need for radical prison reform. Beyond this point the author caters to the spirit of romance."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 27 '16 250w

HUNT, CLARA WHITEHILL. About Harriet. II *$1.25 (8c) Houghton 16-23621

Seven stories about the day by day doings of a little girl of four. The author, who is the superintendent of work with children in the Brooklyn public library, has planned the book to be read to or by children from three to nine years of age. The type is large and illustrations, in color, by Maginel Wright Enright are scattered through the text.

+ A L A Bkl 13:227 F '17

+ N Y Times 21:561 D 17 '16 70w

HUNT, EDWARD EYRE. War bread. II *$2 (3c) Holt 940.91 16-23465

The author was American delegate for relief in Belgium in charge of the province of Antwerp. He gives here his personal account of the relief work with chapters devoted to: A voyage in wartime; Berlin the terrible; The fall of Antwerp; Belgium as a German province; Starving Belgium; The Belgian national committee; Saving a nation; Diplomatic conquests; America and Belgium. Extracts from official reports, etc., are given in an appendix. There are character sketches of Brand Whitlock, Herbert C. Hoover, Cardinal Mercier and others, and touching expressions of gratitude from Belgian children are quoted. Parts of the book are reprinted from the Metropolitan, the Outlook, and other magazines.

"Well named, well written, and profoundly interesting." M. R. F. G.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 2 '16 850w

"The man who achieved the miracles of organization and diplomacy in Belgium was Herbert L. Hoover, an American mining engineer resident in London. Mr. Hunt wrote 'War bread' partly to answer the question, Who is Hoover? and he has succeeded very well in dramatizing an amazing talent. . . . Those who read 'War bread' will long remember, I think, this quiet and masterful man with a talent for big affairs. He is very nearly the best type that our industrial civilization has hitherto produced he expresses us infinitely better, for example, than our writers and our artists. Our eloquence still lies in appropriate action." G. E. Donlin

+ Dial 61:532 D 14 '16 1100w

+ Ind 88:551 D 25 '16 170w

"A mine of interesting information, presented always with sympathy and never sentimentally."

The most ignorant, or the most partisan, reader must feel the writer's fairness from beginning to end of the book."

+ N Y Times 21:567 D 24 '16 890w

+ R of Rs 55:109 Ja '17 30w

+ Springfield Republican p8 Ja 2 '17 120w

"A book which will live in English literature, both because of its historical value, and its gripping interest." H. F. Fox

+ Survey 37:469 Ja 20 '17 400w

HUNT, VIOLET, and HUEFFER, FORD MA-DOX. Zeppelin nights. *$1.25 (2c) Lane 16-2220

The atmosphere of London in its first Zeppelin haunted days is reproduced in the first few pages of this book. Drawn together by common tastes as well as by the knowledge of their common danger, a group of people fall into the habit of spending their evenings together. For entertainment one of them reads a series of stories he has written, drawn from the history of the past, but offering opportunity for analogies, if one desires to make them, to modern situations. A thread of narrative involving the author of the tales and the young widow who is hostess to the group binds the whole together.

+ Ath 1915,2:461 D 18 100w

"The tales are of many lands and many historic periods, and are almost bewildering in their variety. The writers have done their work admirably. We feel the tension of the listening group, listening, but with ears and eyes ever alert for the first sign of the murderous spectre of the night. The book is eloquent in its restraint, but on every page we hear the beating of the heart of England, almost as much when that page is concerned with Athens, B. C. 490 as with London, A. D. 1915—an artistic effect equally remarkable and original."

+ N Y Times 21:70 F 27 '16 310w

"Though the scheme is as old as the 'Decameron,' the work is strikingly original, ingeniously conceived and well written. While vivid with imagination, it is primarily for the thoughtful reader."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 380w

HURD, HENRY MILLS, and others. Institutional care of the insane in the United States and Canada. 4v II ea *$5 Johns Hopkins 362.2 (16-13857)

"The four volumes of this work, when completed, will comprise no less than a full set of separate histories of all the insane hospitals in the United States and Canada. The present volume, although it professes to deal only with the general history of institutional care of the insane on this continent, is, in reality, an exhaustive history of American psychiatry in all its phases, and is therefore likely to remain the authoritative work on the subject for an indefinite period." (Science) Volumes 2 and 3 are devoted to institutions of the United States, Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippine Islands and Porto Rico. Volume 4 covers the institutions of Canada and Newfoundland and contains biographies and an index.

"The editor, Dr. Hurd, prior to his election as superintendent of the Johns Hopkins hospital in 1889 and after, has had a long practical experience in institutional psychiatry, and there is probably no other authority in this country so well fitted for the difficult task delegated to him and his associates. . . . The book is well-illustrated and the style is charming in its simplicity, sobriety and its traces of delicate humor. A complete index to the whole work, which may be expected at the end of the fourth volume, will make it invaluable for ready reference." F. H. Garrison

+ Science n s 44:138 Jl 28 '16 1250w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by J. F. Gould

+ — Survey 37:497 Ja 27 '17 370w (Review of v 3)

HURGRONJE, CHRISTIAAN SNOUCK. Mohammedanism. (American lectures on the history of religions) *$1.50 (5c) Putnam 297 16-11051

Four scholarly lectures whose aim is to present in its broad aspects the problem of Mohammedanism. In order to do this the lecturer turns first to the origin of Islam, then traces its religious and its political development, and, finally, shows what relation it bears to modern thought. In this last phase of his discussion he contends that the matter of reconciling the new ideas which Islam wants with the old ones which it cannot dispense with must be left with the Mohammedans themselves; but that there is a work in which all constructive people may collaborate—namely, that of helping Islam in adapting its educational system to modern requirements and of giving the Mohammedans a good example by rejecting the detestable identification of power and right in politics.

"In view of the possible effects of the war upon the future of Mohammedanism, the volume appears at an opportune moment."

+ Ath p174 O '16 100w

"Much of the difficulty between Christianity and Mohammedanism will be done away with, when Christians give Islam careful study. . . . Professor Hurgronje has been for more than thirty years a student of Islamic culture, having even been a student at Mecca. He is therefore more keenly in touch with modern tendencies in Islam than are the majority of scholars." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Je 10 '16 650w

"Doubtless not intended to be a comprehensive study of Islam. . . . We therefore accept Professor Hurgronje's volume to be chiefly the Arabian conception and development of Mohammedanism, in which field the author displays accomplished learning, especially as to the religious aspects."

+ Ind 87:203 Ag 7 '16 110w

"Delivered in 1914 under the auspices of the American committee for lectures on the history of religions, they antedate the conflict of the last two years with the rapid developments which it has brought everywhere and not least in the world of Islam. . . . To the understanding of these Moslem developments this book forms an admirable introduction."

+ Nation 104:77 Ja 18 '17 1200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:93 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:331 Ag 27 '16 600w

"Professor Hurgronje's own experience has impressed him with the firm conviction that between Islam and the modern world an understanding is to be attained. All sympathizers with Mohammedans—and their name is legion in this country—will earnestly hope that Professor Hurgronje's forecast will turn out to be correct; but although it is with the utmost diffidence that I express even a shade of disagreement with so high an authority, I am bound to add that I do not feel as sanguine as he does. . . . My own view would be that the great obstacle to reconciliation between Islam and modernism is to be found in the immutability of the Shariat, the sacred law of Islam." [Earl of Cromer]

+ Spec 117:733 D 9 '16 2000w

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 8 '16 800w

"Islam, in its origin and development, is studied and interpreted on strictly 'scientific' methods, and the result is a cool, reasonable, and quite dispassionate view of the subject, sometimes humorous and a little cynical, which will commend itself to those who are content to leave out two factors in religion which may be of some importance—God and the human soul."

The Times [London] Lit Sup p509 O 26 '16 300w

HURLEY, EDWARD NASH. Awakening of business. *$2 (4c) Doubleday 380 16-24342

An argument for the reorganization of business on lines of cooperation in place of competition. "Even before the war it had become evident that we need in this country improved conditions in our manufacturing and merchandising concerns, more cooperation among business men, and a closer harmony between government and business," says the author. The war and conditions likely to follow it make reorganization even more imperative. Part 1, How business men can help themselves, is devoted to cooperation in business; part 2, Government and business, considers right and wrong methods of government supervision and regulation.

"The author of this book resigned last month from the Federal trade commission, of which he had been chairman. . . . He has a particularly suggestive chapter on 'The Sherman law from the standpoint of efficiency.'"

+ R of Rs 55:220 F '17 160w

HURST, FANNIE. Every soul hath its song. il *$1.30 (1c) Harper 16-20440

A new collection of short stories by the author of "Just around the corner," warm-hearted stories of shop girls, traveling salesmen, newcomers to America, and others who make up the varied population of a great city. The titles are: Sea gullibles; Rolling stock; Hochenheimer of Cincinnati; In memoriam; The Nth commandment; T. B.; Summer resources; Sob sister; The name and the game. The stories are reprinted from the Metropolitan, the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines. "T. B." was selected for reprint in O'Brien's "Best short stories of 1915."

+ A L A Bkl 13:176 Ja '17

"Here at last is a story writer who is bent on listening to the voices of America and interpreting them. . . . It is her greatest talent that she always gets under the oddities and reveals the character from the inside." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 6 '17 1050w

+ Cleveland p142 D '16 30w

"In 'Every soul hath its song' the author has placed herself among the great American writers of modern short stories."

+ N Y Times 21:483 N 12 '16 1100w

"Her characters are unusually true to life, and her plots are interesting. She is verbose, however, and her stories are drawn out to unnecessary lengths."

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 200w

HUSBAND, RICHARD WELLINGTON. Prosecution of Jesus; its date, history and legality. *$1.50 (2c) Princeton univ. press 232 16-23973

The author, professor of classical languages in Dartmouth college, was led to a study of this subject while investigating the history of criminal procedure in Roman provinces. "I soon became convinced," he says, "that the approach to the study of the trial of Jesus should be made through the Roman, and not, as is commonly done, through the Hebrew criminal law." The conclusions arrived at are also at variance with those commonly accepted. Contents: The problem; Legal rights of the Jews under Roman supremacy; The date of the trial; Jesus arrested by the Jewish authorities; The proceedings before the Sanhedrin; Criminal trials in the Roman provinces; The gospel text describing the hearing before the Sanhedrin; The criminal charge against Jesus; The trial in the Roman court. The book has a thirteen-page bibliography.

"Of the several books on the prosecution of Jesus which have appeared within the last decade this seems to be the most painstaking and thorough. . . . This view of the case, so contradictory of that generally held, will be sure to stir up hostile criticism, but the author argues all his points well and brings to bear on the question the results of very wide and deep research."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 20 '17 110w

HUSTON, ETHELYN LESLIE. Towers of Illum. *$1.35 (1c) Doran 16-20589

A story that takes as its motto a quotation from Ellen Key: "Irresponsible motherhood is always a sin, with or without marriage. Responsible motherhood is always sacred, with or without marriage." Herself the child of an unhappy marriage, June Ferriss refuses resolutely to marry any man for the home and comfort and security he may give her. More than one opportunity offers, but she puts them all aside, until, in a moment when she is weak and tired, she yields to one man's wooing. Shortly after, learning that the ceremony was illegal and the marriage therefore null, she refuses to renew the vows which she now feels were not honestly spoken and accepts for her child the stigma of birth out of wedlock. Later she meets the man for whom she has waited.

"An exciting story but unhealthy and unsatisfactory."

+ Lit D 53:1481 D 2 '16 220w

"Whether or not one agrees with the author's conclusions, and in spite of its obvious faults, the book is a conscientious study of certain important problems and as such deserves consideration."

+ N Y Times 21:402 O 8 '16 510w

HUTCHINS, B. LEIGH. Women in modern industry. $*1.75 Macmillan 331.4 (Eng ed 16-8351)

"The book does not attempt to cover the whole field of women's work, but deals with women workers of the industrial class, and their relation to trade unionism. It falls into two main sections: first, a historical sketch tracing the evolution of the conditions under which women work; and secondly, an account of the rise and development of trade unionism among women. It also includes an analysis of the statistics of the life and employment of women, and a valuable study of women's wages contributed by Mr. Mallon, secretary of the Anti-sweating league. The book concludes with a review of the effect of the war on women's work, and some practical recommendations arising therefrom."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"There are many controversial points connected with the effects of the industrial revolution on women's work, and in a book of this size they can not all be dealt with adequately; but Miss Hutchins' rare familiarity with the sources of English industrial and social history in the nineteenth century has made it possible for her to shed new light on many of these questions. The two chapters on 'women in trade unions' deal at some length with the United States and Germany as well as with England, but the section on the United States contains no new material for American students."—Edith Abbott

+ Am Econ R 6:399 Je '16 700w

"The chapter on 'Women in trade unions' is most valuable as showing how necessary it is that men and women should be members of the same union rather than of separate organizations; it also gives some idea of suitable openings for women. . . . We have but one comment to make on the useful particulars concerning women's wages which Mr. Mallon, the secretary of the Anti-sweating league, contributes to the second part of the book. To be really useful his tables need far more detail."

+ Ath p172 Ap '16 810w

Pittsburgh 21:106 Mr '16 60w

"Miss Hutchins shows that as the organization of women progresses, the tendency is for them to welcome the differentiation of their work from that of men, and to favour special legislation to meet their peculiar requirements. It is this wise sense of realities that gives this work its particular value. The one respect in which Miss Hutchins seems to be deserted by her usual sanity and lapses into sheer nonsense, is in her . . . exhortation to working-women to beware of 'middle-class' influences."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p200 Ap 27 '16 2000w

HUTCHINSON, WOODS. Community hygiene. (Woods Hutchinson health ser.) il *60c (1c) Houghton 614 16-6584

A book suitable for supplementary reading in the upper grades. The facts about public health and sanitation are simply presented. Dr. Hutchinson believes that these matters should be presented to children because they come within the child's everyday experience, because children are often the teachers of their parents, and because the children of today are the citizens of tomorrow. The well chosen illustrations — in which good conditions are featured more often than bad — add to the book's interest for children.

+ Ind 87:238 Ag 14 '16 20w

"The author makes his statements in a dogmatic manner which at times cannot be defended. . . . The etiology of infantile paralysis is more than questionable. . . . If children are to be taught about such things they should be told only what we positively know. . . . The book is a useful one and can be safely recommended." M. P. Ravenel, M. D.

+ — Survey 37:467 Ja 20 '17 440w

HUTTON, JEAN GERTRUDE. Things to make; a book on hand-work and service for girls and boys. il 50c Missionary education movement 790 16-18032

This little book has a preface addressed to parents and teachers on "The importance of the pupil's activity in religious education." One point stressed is the moral value of training which helps pupils to see "in what manner each may become a real producer, of real value to society, a sharer in the common labor of the world, for a common good." Another point made is that of the ethical value of making things for others. The things to make are simple, cardboard, egg shells and similar material being used. The directions are arranged in a sequence so that a year's work in handicraft is provided.

HUTTON, REV. JOHN ALEXANDER. Ancestral voices. $*1.50 (2½c) Doran 204

A book of essays growing out of present conditions in Europe. The author, a distinguished Glasgow preacher, takes his title from 'Kubla Khan': "Ancestral voices prophesying war." The thesis of the book is "that what we are beholding in this terrible time is a conflict between the ancestral voices of the soul and a merely rationalistic and temporary way of conceiving man's true function in the world." Contents: The twentieth century—so far; Is an age of faith returning? The cry for freedom—Nietzsche; The cry for control—Tractarianism; Tertium quid: the message of G. K. Chesterton; Five papers on "The sense of sin in great literature"; Is history repeating itself?—"Julian the Apostate": a parallel.

Springfield Republican p6 D 5 '16 270w

HYAMSON, ALBERT MONTEFIORE. Dictionary of universal biography of all ages and of all peoples. $*7.50 (1c) Dutton 920 16-9996

A volume of "one line" biographies. An attempt has been made, says the editor, to include "every man or woman, not still alive, who has achieved eminence or prominence, from the dawn of history until this day in the twentieth century. . . . The work covers all countries and all generations." Exact dates have been given when possible. In other cases historical period is indicated. A list of works consulted offers a guide to sources for fuller information.

Ath p40 Ja '16 50w

"In view of its extent the volume is remarkably accurate." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 13 '16 320w

"The size of the volume is excellently adapted to general desk use. To have brought so much information within so comparatively narrow a compass is an achievement little short of extraordinary."

+ Dial 60:479 My 11 '16 230w

"Invaluable for ready reference."

+ Ind 86:185 My 1 '16 60w

"There are other omissions, of course. Peter and Paul we find, but we look in vain for Matthew and Mark. Luke also is nowhere to be found. Even as Mr. Hyamson has omitted the name of Jesus Christ, so also has he omitted the name of one of his own faith—Shabbethai Zebi, the Jewish fanatic of the seventeenth century whose cult spread from Cairo to Avignon."

+ Lit D 53:1042 O 21 '16 450w

"It is estimated there are about 115,000 entries in the book. The author calls his work a biographical guide; used as such it will serve as a valuable reference book."

+ N Y Times 21:288 Jl 16 '16 160w

"It should be useful for bare reference, for it contains a vast number of names, though each entry is, admittedly, very meagre of information."

+ Sat R 121:308 Mr 25 '16 30w

Spec 116:472 Ap 8 '16 40w

"Of remarkable scope. The book is in reality a guide to the biographical works of all nations."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 3 '16 350w

"As to 'the dawn of history' he is rigid in excluding the legendary or quasi-legendary figures of classical and sacred literature. If he gives 41 Adams, but not the Adam, perhaps we cannot complain; but it is rather exacting not to recognize the Bible until the time of David and the Kings. We might have had Moses; and we might too, surely, have had Buddha. Undoubtedly such a book has its use; and a list of 'works consulted' which appears at the beginning will help the student to further information when he has identified a name that has puzzled him."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p34 Ja 20 '16 210w

HYDE, WILLIAM DE WITT. Gospel of good will as revealed in contemporary scriptures. *$1.50 (3c) Macmillan 248 16-7675

For the Lyman Beecher lectures on preaching delivered at the Yale school of religion for 1916, the author chose his texts from modern works, "not devotional, theological, evangelistic, or missionary books, but the secular literature that is saturated with the essential Christian spirit of good will." Among these books are Jerome K. Jerome's "Passing of the third floor back," Thomas Mott Osborne's "Within prison walls," John Masefield's "Widow in the Bye street" and "The everlasting mercy," Jacob Riis's "Making of an American," and Winston Churchill's "Inside of the cup."

A L A Bkl 12:401 Je '16

+ Bib World 48:246 O '16 330w

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 500w

"A lucid style, a sympathetic treatment of present tendencies, and a high ideal of Christian service make this a fascinating volume."

+ Ind 86:486 Je 19 '16 270w

"The central thought of the lectures is the power of intelligent sympathy. Various burning questions of the present day are discussed, all with President Hyde's accustomed frankness and vigor, and the volume appeals not only to preachers, but to all persons who are interested in the moral well being of society."

+ Nation 103:426 N 2 '16 260w

N Y Br Lib News 3:93 Je '16

Pittsburgh 22:53 Ja '17 40w

Pratt p8 O '16 40w

+ R of Rs 55:210 F '17 130w

"A book which any minister should be able to utilize profitably."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:450 D '16 60w

HYNDMAN, HENRY MAYERS. Future of democracy. *$1 Scribner 335 (Eng ed A16-744)

"Mr. Hyndman maintains that the element of nationality must always be taken into account in any attempt to reorganize the faculties of civilised men. Improved education, technical and physical, cheap transport, and a citizen army are other proposals for which he will get more sympathy than he would have done before the war. Lastly, and especially in view of the period succeeding the war, it will be well to reflect upon his blunt reminder, in the chapter on British trade: 'A nation which is organised for efficiency will always in the long run beat a nation which leaves things to chance, however imperfect and even detestable the government of the more efficient nation may be.'"—Hibbert J

"Partly reprinted from the Fortnightly Review and English Review."

+ A L A Bkl 12:453 Jl '16

Boston Transcript p5 Ap 26 '16 190w

+ Bull of the General Theological Seminary 2:131 My '16 400w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 14:439 Ja '16 120w

Ind 86:116 Ap 17 '16 190w

"The raison d'être of Mr. Hyndman's set of short essays is not clear. They are too vague to be helpful signposts for the future, and in spite of some significant and illuminating pieces of information they are in no sense an account of the conditions which led up to the war. The book is a snapshot: a somewhat blurred and undeveloped record of the state of England by the end of 1915. Herein lies its value, for Mr. Hyndman's treatment of the future is perfunctory and inadequate. But he bears witness to the general assault on our liberties, which is being pressed in the name of a War of liberation. Whether as a record or a warning, his book suffers from brevity, and lack of coherence and proportion and has certainly received a misleading title." F. W. S. Browne

+ Int J Ethics 26:432 Ap '16 730w

"Mr. Hyndman has no doubt whatever of the justice of the war, and this is interesting, as he is one of the most representative of British socialists. . . . He sees in it a chance for England to reorganize herself and her institutions on a socialistic basis, for that, he believes, is the only truly just and scientific system of organization. But he deplores the tendency toward state socialism, for his ideal is the co-operative commonwealth, and his chapter on the class-state bureaucracy with its summary of the extraordinary interference with the established order of things, and even with the institutions which are usually deemed the bulwarks of the British constitution, is especially well worth reading."

+ N Y Times 21:45 F 6 '16 350w

St Louis 14:183 My '16

"Not all the chapters of 'The future of democracy' are of equal interest or importance, but any student of contemporary thought will find it worth while, to give consideration to 'Social democracy and the war.' In this chapter Mr. Hyndman, the veteran English socialist, writing in conjunction with E. Belfort Bax, an eminent expounder of socialist theory, searchingly criticizes Marx's doctrine of the economic interpretation of history. Mr. Hyndman's book, for the rest, is partly a vigorous-minded Englishman's criticism of his government for its shortcomings since the beginning of hostilities, and partly a recital of arguments for socialism and prophecies for the future. He stands for national efficiency and for a recognition of the principles of nationality."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ja 27 '16 850w

I

INFORMATION annual 1915; a continuous cyclopedic and digest of current events. *$4 Bowker 031 (16-9777)

This is the first annual cumulation of the monthly numbers of Information. Information is the successor to the "Index to dates," which was originally a part of the American Library annual. The purpose of the publication is to give "a readable summary of the events of the day, compacted into the fewest possible words and complete in itself." The topics are arranged by subject in alphabetical order with a complete system of cross references. "The scheme of subject headings and the general editorship have been in the hands of Mr. Fremont Rider, and the primary work of compilation has been done chiefly by Miss Elizabeth Webb." (Foreword)

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 70w

"The section on the European war is, of course, the largest in the book, covering 109 pages, and some of the information here given is remarkably detailed; the text of the American notes to Germany, for instance, being furnished in full, while the German notes are adequately summarized."

+ Nation 102:572 My 25 '16 160w

"It is a readable summary of the events of the day, and as the specific date of each event is included, it is also an index to the daily press and other news periodicals."

+ Pittsburgh 21:228 My '16 60w

INGERSOLL, ROBERT STURGIS. Open that door! *$1 (4c) Lippincott 814 16-19986

A group of essays, most of them relating to the subject of books and reading as a means to fuller and richer life. "Literature is the key to the door of life for those who wish to open," says the author. Contents: Walled in; An open door; Reading fiction with an eye on life; History and your vote; Clío's vintage; The poet and the reader; The children of Pan; Men behind books; Keeping up with life.

INGERSOLL, ROBERT STURGIS—Continued

+ A L A Bkl 13:144 Ja '17

Boston Transcript p8 O 21 '16 60w

"Not a remarkable book but one with an important message so directly and modestly presented that it should have a considerable audience."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:407 N '16 100w

INGRAM, JOHN KELLS. History of political economy. *$1.75 Macmillan 330

(Eng ed 16-9394)

"Ingram's 'History of political economy' first appeared in the ninth edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica in 1885, and in revised form was published as a book in 1888. It has wielded a wide influence in economic study. The present edition is a reprint with an illuminating introduction by Professor Ely and a long, supplementary chapter by Professor Scott, reviewing the doctrines of the Austrian school as well as more recent developments in economic philosophy in Europe and the United States."

—Ann Am Acad

"The use of larger type has made the book more readable; the index has been revised and enlarged."

+ A L A Bkl 13:93 N '16

"Despite the handicaps incident to unavoidable proximities, personal and temporal, Professor Scott has sketched contemporary American thought with fairness and insight." R. C. McC.

+ Ann Am Acad 66:259 Jl '16 100w

"It is a question whether such a work as that of Ingram can be supplemented or brought to date. Unlike the usual history of the progress of a science, it was not written in order that readers might know the historical facts, but constituted a protest against the prevailing method of economic research. The historical data served merely as a vehicle for the argument. Moreover, Professor Scott apparently has little sympathy with Ingram's point of view. The works which Ingram would have appraised highest are handled by Scott in the most summary manner."

—Nation 102:sup498 My 4 '16 450w

"Like Adam Smith, Hume, and John Stuart Mill, Dr. Ingram handled economic questions as part of the problem of human progress. . . . His devotion to Comte's philosophy may have led him into error as a thinker, but it opened his mind as an economist, by making him regard the science practically, and from the point of view of its effect on the general welfare. It is this point of view that makes his history of the efforts of his predecessors especially valuable, and well worth re-reading in the light of present-day developments."

+ Spec 117:133 Jl 29 '16 430w

INTERNATIONAL crisis in its ethical and psychological aspects. *$1.15 Oxford 940.91

(Eng ed 16-5049)

"Six lectures which were delivered at Bedford college last spring, under the scheme for Imperial studies in the University of London. . . . The subjects and authors are 'The morality of strife in its relation to the war,' by Eleanor M. Sidgwick; 'Herd instinct and the war,' by Gilbert Murray; 'International morality; the United States of Europe,' by A. C. Bradley; 'The changing mind of a nation at war,' by L. P. Jacks; 'War and hatred,' by G. F. Stout; and 'Patriotism in the perfect state,' by B. Bosanquet." (Spec) The lectures by Professor Murray and Mr. Jacks were printed in the Atlantic Monthly in 1915.

"In all this there is much that is true and wise; but we are disappointed by the absence of any attempt to state, except in vague and general terms, the whole nature and extent of the evil of war." S. W.

+ Int J Ethics 26:143 O '15 400w

"Although most of the six authors are distinguished in the field of ethics or in that of psychology, few of them seem to have anything original to contribute on the ethical and psychological aspects of the war. That does not mean that the papers lack interest. Nearly all the papers show that unwillingness to exaggerate the virtues of one's own nation, and that calmly objective view and earnest desire to be fair in judging one's adversary, which are distinctively English. Mr. Bradley and Mr. Bosanquet both go out of their way to defend German philosophy. And Professor Stout devotes his lecture (which is easily the best of the six) to a very able analysis of the precept, 'Love your enemies.'"

+ Nation 101:626 N 25 '15 480w

St Louis 14:40 F '16 40w

+ Spec 115:307 S 4 '15 150w

INTERNATIONAL military digest annual; a review of the current literature of military science for 1915. *$2 (1/2c) Cumulative digest corporation, 241 W. 37th st., N. Y. 355 (16-9395)

This volume constitutes the first annual cumulation of the monthly issues of the International Military Digest. The aim of this publication is to present to its readers concise and readable summaries of all literature in the field of military science in our own and foreign languages. These are classified and arranged alphabetically, with a full system of cross references. The work is edited by Col. C. DeW. Willcox and Lieut.-Col. E. R. Stuart with the assistance of a staff of associate editors.

A L A Bkl 13:10 O '16

Ath p280 Je '16 40w

"Any new publication expects criticism where necessary, and it is necessary in this case. . . . It should be in every public and institutional library, for it is a veritable mine of information on military matters, and any regimental library which does not shelve it in future will have to be reckoned as absolutely obsolete for utilitarian purposes." B. M. H.

+ Library Association Record 5:223 My 15 '16 690w

"It is a valuable index to references on the European war."

+ Pittsburgh 21:305 Je '16 30w

St Louis 14:429 D '16

IRWIN, FLORENCE. Complete auction player. 2 il *$1.50 Putnam 795 16-22151

The author says, "At last, the great game of auction seems to have 'settled' and the time for a complete auction handbook has come. After years of experiment, of insistence on personal opinions, and of consequent chaotic confusion, a standard game has been reached. . . . I have endeavoured, in this book, to teach as concisely as possible all the essentials of a high-grade game, as well as to prepare a path for the feet of beginners." (Preface)

"Florence Irwin needs no introduction to lovers of auction. She has been a recognized and a much admired authority for many years, and while many who have followed her eagerly do not share her enthusiasm for 'nullos,' on which she was the first writer, any new book from her pen is studied with care and respected as an arbiter in matters in dispute."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 27 '16 180w

+ N Y Times 21:580 D 31 '16 90w

IRWIN, FLORENCE. Road to Mecca. *$1.35 (1 1/2c) Putnam 16-10877

The story of a woman's sordid climb from insignificance in a small town to prominence in New York and Newport society. The author's attitude toward her characters is cold and passionless. She is the impersonal analyst. She follows Nora Prentiss remorselessly, opening up to view her weaknesses and betraying personal feeling toward her with but an occasional shaft of satire. Nora attains Mecca and instead of exultation experiences cold terror: What is there left!

"Briefly, Miss Irwin has taken a Rupert Hughes plot and given us a simply built but well-told story, the repulsive details of which have been handled with better taste than Mr. Hughes sometimes uses. In "The road to Mecca" she has shown that she can write with authority, vigor, and even with power; when she writes a different and more human story we can judge if she also can write with charm."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 J1 5 '16 290w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale
Dial 61:95 Ag 15 '16 450w

"She has tried to picture conditions which are sordid, false, and vulgar, through which in passing the soul becomes soiled and bedraggled. The theme is purposeful, the treatment good, but, as a story, it is abhorrent."

+ — Lit D 53:76 J1 8 '16 250w

"There is nothing subtle about the book. The plot is obvious; the characters are obvious. But the artificiality, the metallic gleam, the loneliness and hopelessness of the heroine's attained ambition are realistically drawn."

+ — N Y Times 21:272 J1 2 '16 300w

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 16 '16 230w

"It may have its value as a satire, but it leaves, in its telling, a very disagreeable impression of hard vulgarity and mean ideals."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p467 S 28 '16 60w

IVES, SARAH NOBLE. Key to Betsy's heart. il *$1.25 (3c) Macmillan 16-18917

When Betsy came from her New Hampshire home to live with her Aunt Kate, she was a shy little girl with shabby clothes and exceedingly bad manners. Accustomed to hard work and unkind treatment, she did not respond readily to affection, but Vanart VI, a fox terrier, came into her life, broke down her reserve and forced her to love him openly. When Betsy's vagabond father tried to steal her away, Van helped her to escape and brought her back to the aunt and uncle to whom she at last opened her heart.

"Betsy's story is commonplace; she learns much in detail about hair brush and tooth brush, manners and morals, but the dog is interesting and makes the book readable for girls about ten or eleven."

+ A L A Bk 13:130 D '16

"Nobody who loves a dog could fail to wish that they might own just such a dog." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:407 D '16 120w

+ Ind 88:402 D 4 '16 40w

IYENAGA, TOYOKICHI, ed. Japan's real attitude toward America; a reply to Mr. George Bronson Rea's "Japan's place in the sun—the menace to America." *75c Putnam 327.52 16-10768

"Dr. Iyenaga's little book contains, besides material of his own, several chapters from other pens. It is largely devoted to repudiating the extremely bitter and harsh attacks upon Japan of an American who lived for some time in China and who is regarded as now engaged, on behalf of some official or unofficial Chinese interests, in trying to stir up feeling in the United States against Japan."—R of Rs

"This volume should be carefully studied if our readers care to discuss the Japanese case with knowledge of what their side of it is."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 250w

"The reply, though it seems convincing, leaves us rather unsatisfied. It has too much the tone and touch of an official apologia. It is over-discreet. It refutes too much. So hard does it strive to conceal a Japanese frown that it creates the illusion of a Japanese grin."

+ — New Repub 7:180 Je 17 '16 330w

N Y Br Lib News 3:88 Je '16

Pittsburgh 21:356 J1 '16

"Dr. Iyenaga is equally well known in Japan and the United States, and is an accredited spokesman for Japanese policies."

+ R of Rs 53:626 My '16 270w

J

JACKS, LAWRENCE PEARSCALL. From the human end. *$1.25 (3c) Holt 824

(Eng ed 16-17695)

In these essays the editor of the Hibbert Journal discusses a number of modern problems from the human, as opposed to the scientific, point of view. For scientific one might substitute German. Among the essays are "Am I my brother's keeper?" an attack on Kantian morality; "Organisation in Tartarus," a refutation of the theory that evil is unorganized, "The brain of fools," a denunciation of anti-intellectualism, and "The tyranny of mere things," an indictment of mechanical civilization, with particular reference to armaments. "Our drifting civilisation," reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly and "The peacefulness of being at war," reprinted from the New Republic, are among the remaining essays.

Reviewed by F. C. S. Schiller

+ Hibbert J 15:172 O '16 1350w

"Many of his observations are keen, many of his assumptions sound. . . . But we cannot help feeling that an advocate will in the end be more effective if he frankly acknowledges his allegiance, rather than maintaining an attitude of independence, and confessing a long series of identical conversions."

+ — New Repub 8:252 O 7 '16 160w

N Y Br Lib News 3:171 N '16

"The value of the volume is diminished by the overwhelming degree of his prejudice. . . . Mr. Jacks' method is more destructive than constructive."

+ — N Y Times 21:555 D 17 '16 640w

"Mr. Jacks' book possibly raises more questions than it settles, but the solidity of the author's spiritual instincts is not to be doubted because of the occasional airy iconoclasm of his speculations."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 550w

JACKS, LAWRENCE PEARSCALL. Philosophers in trouble. *$1.25 (3c) Holt

(Eng ed 16-17694)

The philosophers in trouble in these six tales are speculative thinkers who meet crises in which theories do not fit facts. "The chest of cedar" was published last year in the Atlantic Monthly. The other stories are: "Not convincing," the rejected article; "Bracketed first," The poor man's pig, A psychologist among the saints, A tragedy of parliament. Some of them have appeared in the Hibbert Journal and other English magazines.

"The public at large will not be interested in the book, and need not be. One must already be addicted to Mr. Jacks' work to care for these stories. . . . They are ephemera admirable as periodical literature but hardly worth gathering into a book."

+ — Dial 61:591 D 28 '16 230w

N Y Br Lib News 3:184 D '16

"Not since 'Philosophy four,' by Owen Wister, have we had such a keen and amusing satire on the impracticality of moral science."

+ — N Y Times 21:409 O 8 '16 1000w

"The satire of the self-seeking pastor in 'The chest of cedar' would alone make the volume worth reading. And so would the satire of intellectual shallowness in 'The poor man's pig,'"

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 70w

JACKSON, SIR THOMAS GRAHAM, bart. Gothic architecture in France, England, and Italy. 2v il *$14.50 Univ. of Chicago press 723.5 16-3630

"In these two volumes the author, treating a definite period of post-Roman architecture, gives us a continuation of the history of the art which he studied in a former work on Byzantine and Romanesque styles, published in 1913. The two separate publications synthesize

JACKSON, SIR T: G., bart.—Continued
for the student the idea of mediæval architecture from its origin in the decay of Roman art to its final stages in the sixteenth century."
—Boston Transcript

"Many readers will be interested in the light thrown on the personal characteristics of Gothic artists."

+ Ath p91 F '16 1950w

"The volumes contain nearly five hundred illustrations of every conceivable method, from diagrams to full-page reproductions in color of every feature of the various styles of Gothic architecture in the three countries treated."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 5 '16 880w

"The book shows the experience and mellowness of age without its dogmatism, and easily takes rank as the most important general work on the subject in English. The publishers have spared no pains to give the work a form which corresponds with the importance of the text."
Fiske Kimball

+ Dial 60:502 My 25 '16 1550w

"The work throughout is not only scholarly but controlled by a robust common sense, and the author appears everywhere an easy master of his theme. He makes no effort after the completeness of Mr. Francis Bond's well-known book, but is content to select for treatment such examples as are, in his own words, 'typical of the history and development of the art.' We miss, too, in his pages that note of passion, that intensely individual judgment which animated Professor Prior's book on English Gothic with a touch of genius, for Sir Thomas Jackson is always sober and self-controlled, and his balanced verdict on the aesthetic quality of Giotto's Campanile is a good specimen of his treatment of controversial questions."

+ Eng Hist R 31:478 J1 '16 2150w

"Perhaps the best book in English on its topic."

+ Ind 88:415 D 4 '16 400w

"The whole work shows an encyclopaedic knowledge of the remaining Gothic monuments throughout Europe, abundantly illustrated with carefully selected drawings, very largely from Sir Thomas's own hand. These are particularly worthy of notice, as in almost every case they are frank, accurate records of the work they illustrate. . . . The last, but by no means the least interesting feature of the work, which should be most convenient to any student of the style, is a 'table of dates,' in which the monuments of the style in France, England, and Italy are set down in chronological order in three parallel columns, keeping similar dates in each column opposite each other, and forming a most complete, and at the same time a very simple index to the whole Gothic expression in the architecture of these countries."

+ Journal of the American Institute of Architects 4:301 J1 '16 2100w

Library Association Record 18:122 Mr
'16 100w

+ Lit D 53:311 Ag 5 '16 550w

+ N Y Times 21:274 J1 9 '16 1050w

"Laymen will follow him with ease."

+ Sat R 121:377 Ap 15 '16 1600w

JACOBS, JOSEPH. Europa's fairy book. il
$1.25 (2c) Putnam 16-2959

Mr. Jacobs' idea in retelling these fairy tales has been to select those that are common to many countries and by a comparison of the various versions and an elimination of elements that seem to be purely local, to arrive at a version that is close to the original. Altho the stories, like his "English fairy tales" and "More English fairy tales," are told for children, this method of treatment and the notes provided at the end make the book of interest to folklorists. The pictures are by John D. Batten who illustrated the two earlier books.

"The result, together with the notes affixed, is extremely interesting to the student of folklore, but distinctly disappointing to the child who knows the more familiar versions."

+ A L A Bkl 12:435 Je '16

+ Ind 85:463 Mr 27 '16 70w

+ Nation 102:sup489 My 4 '16 120w

"The book is primarily for younger folk, but by students of folk-lore it should be welcomed."

+ Lit D 51:1379 D 11 '15 60w

"A brief preface and nearly fifty pages of notes with an introduction give ample proof of the scholarship, the wide and painstaking study and the literary acumen which went into the making of the volume. Mr. Batten's illustrations are delightfully quaint and spirited and so catch the spirit of the text, whether humorous, or tragic, as to prove him, at least in spirit, a folklorist as well as an artist. The partnership, as author and illustrator, between him and Dr. Jacobs has been a long one, for he has illustrated the entire series of fairy tales which
Dr. Jacobs has collected and edited."

+ N Y Times 21:45 F 6 '16 630w

"Every child or lover of childhood lore is deeply indebted to him."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 120w

JACOBUS, MELANCTHON WILLIAMS. Commentary on the Gospel according to Mark.
*75c Macmillan 226 15-19349

A new volume in the "Bible for home and school." An informing introduction throws light on the Gospel itself, discusses the tradition regarding the Gospel, the sources, relation of Mark to Matthew and Luke, the date of Mark, the historical value of Mark, the text, and closes with a tabulated analysis of the book of Mark, and a bibliography.

+ A L A Bkl 12:449 J1 '16

"Dr. Jacobus has conceived his task in a very intelligent and admirable way. His introduction is thorough and well balanced and his comment clear and stimulating. His acquaintance with the literature of his subject is large and at the same time his judgment is reasonably independent."

+ Bib World 48:60 J1 '16 420w

+ Boston Transcript p9 Mr 25 '16 180w

"These little books place at the disposal of the general reader the results of the best modern biblical scholars."

+ R of Rs 53:250 F '16 40w

"The explanations and comments are plain and practical, and the whole volume is pervaded with spiritual feeling as well as open and critical scholarship. It will rank as one of the best in the series."

+ Springfield Republican p17 D-18 '15 130w

JAMES, GEORGE WHARTON. Living the radiant life; a personal narrative. *$1 Radiant life press, Pasadena, Cal. 170 16-6448

"Living the radiant life' is, it is perhaps needless to say, a book written to convey a message to all mankind. This message is best explained by the author in his preface, as follows: 'My desire is to send forth a message that will bless body, mind and soul. . . . For he is thrice blessed who knows the joy of life in its three-fold manifestation, who has a body that is vigorous and healthy, a mind alert and active, quick to observe and reflect, to discern and classify and a soul whose emotions and aspirations are ever to help, encourage, comfort and purify humanity.'—Springfield Republican

"It would seem that none could read the brief essays which make up this little book without a stimulation of thought and purpose, so does it radiate optimism and helpfulness."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 3 '16 180w

Ind 87:103 J1 17 '16 30w

+ R of Rs 54:122 J1 '16 70w

Springfield Republican p13 Je 18 '16 140w

JAMES, GEORGE WHARTON. Quit your worrying! *$1 Radiant life press, Pasadena, Cal. 131 16-8357

"This book is written in a sensible, straightforward fashion and is plentifully sprinkled with touches of humor. It discusses the various causes of worry and gives suggestions for their banishment. You can't change a worrying person suddenly into a well-poised, serene person, but the author believes that with faith in God, trust, and naturalness, we can slough off worry like the dead skin of the serpent and find the way of highest achievement."—R of Rs

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 9 '16 160w

+ Ind 87:103 J1 17 '16 30w

+ R of Rs 54:122 J1 '16 90w

JAMES, WINIFRED LEWELLIN (MRS. HENRY DE JAN). Woman in the wilderness. *$2 (3c) Doran 918.6 (Eng ed 16-16343)

A series of letters written from Panama. The author writes as an English woman married to an American who has business interests in the tropics. They are stationed outside the Canal Zone but she gives an account of the passage of the first ship from ocean to ocean, marveling at the lack of ceremony which attended the event. The letters are written in 1914 and 1915 and there is some comment on the war.

+ A L A Bkl 13:217 F '17

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

Dial 61:24 Je 22 '16 170w

"The letters have clearly a documentary as well as a literary character. . . . The writer's style is colloquial in the best sense, the natural accent of a distinct and engaging personality. . . . Here is a woman of exceptional cleverness, with a humor too keen and rich to degenerate into that mere 'brightness,' that pert feminine facetiousness, which is the curse of most books of this sort."

+ Nation 103:223 S 7 '16 1500w

"She was blest with an abundant optimism, a rollicking good humor, that refused to be suppressed."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 17 '16 250w

JAMESON, MRS. ANNA BROWNELL (MURPHY). Anna Jameson: letters and friendships (1812-1860); ed. by Mrs. Steuart Erskine. 1l *$5 Dutton (Eng ed 16-3303)

"Mrs. Jameson's name is familiar to many who only know her as the author of six very useful volumes on the legendary history of the saints and its embodiment in art. She was really more remarkable as a letter-writer, and Mrs. Steuart Erskine has now enabled us to make acquaintance with her in this character." (Spec) "The correspondence gathered together by Mrs. Erskine reveals Mrs. Jameson's intimacy with many eminent people. Besides Lady Byron and Goethe's daughter-in-law, she was a friend of Samuel Rogers, Harriet Martineau, Maria Edgeworth, Harriet Grote, Barry Cornwall, Adelaide Ann Proctor and the Brownings." (Boston Transcript)

"Such a very full and picturesque life as Mrs. Jameson's deserves a more thorough and a more enduring record than is given by Mrs. Erskine, who offers in the letters, and the brief commentary by which they are linked, nothing more than fragmentary glimpses of her life and character. The reader must be content with it as a mere scrap-book of information about her." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 27 '16 710w

"It reveals the world of that day as seen through the eyes of an eager, hard-working, and high-minded gentlewoman."

+ Dial 61:143 S 7 '16 500w

N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:250 Je 18 '16 440w

"It is not in the letters to her friends that the charm of this volume consists so much as in the letters to her own family, which fill by far the larger part of its pages. In these Mrs. Jameson is seen at her best. Every incident of her daily life, whether in Germany, in Italy, or at home, is described with a literary skill that came to her by nature, and the result makes a very intimate and attractive picture."

+ Spec 116:49 Ja 8 '16 1150w

JANES, GEORGE MILTON. Control of strikes in American trade unions. (Johns Hopkins univ. studies in historical and political science) $1 Johns Hopkins 331.87 16-14673

"This study of the restraint and discipline with which trade unions use their most effective militant weapon, the strike, is of timely interest in view of the oft recurring conflicts of labor and capital in the present period of general business prosperity. A comprehensive investigation is made of the regulations and practices of national unions in the matter of strike control as disclosed in trade union documents, personal correspondence, and interviews. In his introduction the author indicates the close connection between the effectiveness of the strike and the growth of organization. . . . The growth of labor organization to their maturity makes for the efficient control of strikes."—Am Econ R

"The author has made an informative presentation of the regulative machinery of trade unions for the successful initiation and management of strikes. He fails, however, to present any conclusions concerning the social significance of complete control. . . . A summary or reasoned unifying of results is noticeably lacking; otherwise, this first survey of the field makes a substantial addition to the group of specialized studies of trade unionism made in recent years." F. E. Wolfe

+ Am Econ R 6:917 D '16 830w

N Y Br Lib News 3:153 O '16

JANSKY, CYRIL METHODIUS, and FABER, DANIEL CLEVELAND. Principles of the telephone; prepared in the Extension division of the University of Wisconsin. (Industrial education ser.) 3v v 1 il *$1.50 McGraw 654 (16-17109)

v 1 "This, the first volume of a forthcoming series by two professors in the University of Wisconsin, explains in simple language elementary electrical and magnetic principles, the properties of sound, and the construction and working of such apparatus as the subscriber ordinarily sees in his home or office. Something is also told about faults in substitution apparatus, protection of lines and instruments, installation practice, party lines, and intercommunicating systems."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

N Y Br Lib News 3:154 O '16

N Y P L New Tech Bks p11 N '16 70w

Pittsburgh 21:500 N '16

Pratt p19 Ja '17 20w

JASTROW, JOSEPH. Character and temperament. (Conduct of mind ser.) *$2.50 (1c) Appleton 136 15-19585

The subject of this book, the author says, is "the psychological sources of human quality." He has chosen the composite term "Character and temperament" for his title because it "reflects the two pervasive molding forces: that of native endowment, and that of acquired capacity in adaptation to circumstance." Pseudo-sciences, such as palmistry and astrology, have always made attempts to read and analyze character. Professor Jastrow considers the subject in the light of the science of psychology. Contents: The scientific approach; The sensibilities; The emotions and conduct; The higher stages of psychic control; Temperament and individual differences; Abnormal tendencies of mind; The psychology of group-traits; Character and the environment; The qualities of men. Notes on the chapters are given in an appendix.

+ A L A Bkl 12:260 Mr '16

Cleveland p3 F '16 60w

"The attentive reader will find that the book supplements the outline of general psychology in many important respects."

+ Dial 60:80 Ja 20 '16 620w

+ Educ R 52:207 S '16 40w

"Character and temperament" is saved by the personal wisdom of its author, his fertility

JASTROW, JOSEPH—Continued
in discovering relations and principles of organization, and his extra-psychological knowledge of the world and men. . . . The survey of character and temperament is probably not quite so readily intelligible to the layman as its author hopes. For use in classes or systematic reading courses, indeed, some time spent first on a selection of chapters from Galton and MacDougall would probably save time in the end and would certainly increase appreciation."
E: L. Thorndike

+ J Philos 14:24 Ja 4 '17 460w

"Nine chapters of minutely instructive information. While the book has evidently been written for the advanced student of psychology or ethics, there is no reason why it should not be used by the general reader, for the author has placed a multitude of interesting facts in one volume."

+ Springfield Republican p15 N 14 '15 190w

JEFFERS, JOHN ROBINSON. Californians.
$1.25 Macmillan 811 16-22565

In the first half of the book the author tells stories in verse that are as true to their California background as those of Robert Frost are to New England. The second part of the book is made up of Descriptive songs, also Californian in their setting.

N Y Br Lib News 3:181 D '16

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 18 '17 560w

JEFFERSON, CHARLES EDWARD. What the war is teaching. (Merrick lectures, 1916)
$1 (2½c) Revell 172.4 16-15126

A book presenting the lessons which a pacifist has drawn from the war. These lessons are summed up in chapters entitled: What war is; What is in man; The inexorableness of moral law; What armed peace leads to; The indispensableness of religion. The author answers the arguments of militarists, including the fundamental one, that government rests upon force, and protests against the course on which the United States seems about to embark. One of the lessons taught by the war is the futility of military preparedness as a means of preserving peace. The chapters were first delivered as lectures at Ohio Wesleyan university.

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16

N Y Times 21:289 J1 23 '16 630w

R of Rs 54:115 J1 '16 30w

Springfield Republican p10 Je 30 '16 300w

Survey 36:508 Ag 12 '16 140w

JEFFERY, JOSEPH ALEXANDER. Text-book of land drainage. (Rural text-book ser.) il
$1.25 Macmillan 631 16-13188

"A new volume in a series edited by Prof. L. H. Bailey. The author's preface expresses the belief that much of the ill-success in farming commonly laid to bad management, over-cropping, and loss of soil fertility is really due to ignorance of the principles of drainage. . . . After the opening chapters, which deal with the characteristics of soils and their physical interrelations, the volume confines itself to practical problems and methods of drainage. There is an appendix setting forth various experiments for laboratory practice."—Nation

Cleveland p113 Ag '16 20w

"There is a good chapter on drainage laws."

+ Ind 87:419 S 18 '16 30w

Nation 103:521 N 30 '16 140w

"This book, while intended primarily as a text-book for students is so simply written that the farmer may learn a great deal concerning soils and the relation of water to them, with practical information about reclamation, tilling, leveling, laying out, drainage of ground water supplies, relation of climate and drainage, and drainage laws, with an appendix describing interesting experiments for the laboratory. Author was formerly professor of soils in the Michigan agricultural college."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p9 N '16 90w

JEPSON, EDGAR. Alice Devine. *$1.25 (1½c) Bobbs 16-7664

At the death of his uncle, Lord Garthoyle falls heir to Garthoyle Gardens. Since this means a decided addition to his income the young man is ready to congratulate himself, but he finds that there are conditions. Garthoyle Gardens, a group of model houses, have been his uncle's pride. He has wished to transfer his interest in them to his nephew and has left them to him on condition that he manage them himself, act as his own house-agent. This book is made up of the amusing experiences encountered in the fulfillment of this duty. The first of them is an encounter with a charming young girl who is masquerading as a ghost. It is this girl, Alice Devine, and the mystery of her masquerade that give unity to a collection of more or less unrelated episodes.

"More than twenty years have been passed by Mr. Jepson in writing fiction. In his own way he is as original and as whimsical as are Sir James Barrie and W. W. Jacobs in theirs."
E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 6 '16 1350w

"It is a relief to turn from elaborated realism to the frank impossibilities of 'Alice Devine.' . . . [It is] quite absurd, and yet on such a framework Mr. Jepson manages to give more sense of actuality than in the piled-up and thorough-paced facts which we so often meet with elsewhere." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 60:474 My 11 '16 500w

+ Lit D 52:1466 My 20 '16 170w

"An amusing and cleverly written bit of light fiction, with an agreeable hero and some lifelike sketches of children."

+ N Y Times 21:118 Ap 2 '16 280w

Reviewed by F. H. Holly

+ Pub W 89:1025 Mr 18 '16 380w

"A perfect antidote for the blues."

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 21 '16 270w

JERROLD, CLARE. Widowhood of Queen Victoria. il *$3.75 (3c) Putnam 16-13386

This work completes a trilogy of volumes covering the reign of Victoria. "The early court of Queen Victoria" was published in 1912, "The married life of Queen Victoria" in 1913. In this volume the author's unsparing analysis of one whose "chief weakness lay in the rigidity of her will" is continued. Two things stand out in her treatment, first the extreme unpopularity of the queen, at least during the early years of this period of her reign, and second, her predilection for all things German.

"The present biographer, however, succeeds in reconciling, more than most of her predecessors, the difference between 'woman' and 'queen'; the provincial viewpoints of the one, the world-wide ambition of the other, the self-will of both. . . . Miss Jerrold has a friendly, intimate way of describing events and people which makes her books delightful reading."
F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 10 '16 1100w

Nation 103:39 J1 13 '16 930w

"Mercilessly frank study."

+ N Y Times 21:183 Ap 30 '16 1450w

Springfield Republican p13 My 21 '16 430w

JERROLD, LAURENCE. France; her people and her spirit. il *$3 (3c) Bobbs 16-22603

The author is an English journalist who has lived long in France and who loves it as foster sons so often come to love that country. His France is not limited to Paris, and it is particularly of the French spirit that he writes. The "spirit" which is manifesting itself in wartime is not new, he says; it has always existed, altho it has not been recognized by outsiders. Among the chapters are: 1871-1914; The land and the people; The French spirit; France among the nations; Government—authority; Government—Parliament; Government—organizations; France beyond the seas; Arms—in peace; Arms—in war; Churches; Earners; Owners; The soil. There are many illustrations, some in color.

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 25 '16 820w

"The particular chapter dealing with the military aspects of the opening campaign is defective, owing to its general statements and its too confined perspective."

+ Cath World 104:687 F '17 1150w

+ Ind 88:506 D 18 '16 50w

+ Lit D 53:1550 D 9 '16 140w

+ Nation 103:518 N 30 '16 50w

"He seems to possess an extraordinary insight into the French character and to write from abundance of understanding as well as from abundance of information."

+ N Y Times 21:512 N 26 '16 140w

Reviewed by M. K. Reely

Pub W 90:846 S 16 '16 850w

"Much of Mr. Jerrold's book, too, merely develops ideas already propounded by him in his work on 'France and the French.' . . . What we have not had before, and are glad to have, is the account of France finding herself during the interval between the retirement of M. Delcassé, at the instance of Prince von Bülow, and the 'coup d'Agadir.'"

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p506 O 26 '16 900w

JESSE, FRYNIWYO TENNYSON. Beggars on horseback. il $1.25 (1½c) Doran

A book of short stories that range from fantasy to realism. The scenes are also varied. Contents: A shepherdess of fauns; The ladder; The greatest gift; The mask; A garden enclosed; The man with two mouths; Why Senath married; The coffin ship.

"Inventiveness, ruled by a mind at once poetic and ardent in what the world calls actuality, gives definite artistic value to this volume of short stories. . . . In 'The greatest gift' and 'A garden enclosed' Miss Jesse is both at her best and weakest. The former, a tale of suicide for honour's sake, offends by artificiality yet it has impressive thought and gracious touches pleasing to a poetic taste."

+ Ath 1915,2:416 D 4 270w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 2 '16 250w

+ Ind 86:486 Je 19 '16 50w

"Strangely, the best of her stories are those which inspire a shuddering interest, a haunting horror, or those visualizing the basic principles of human passions and woman's psychology."

+ Lit D 52:1467 My 20 '16 120w

"These are very unpleasant stories. To say that they are effectively told is only to acknowledge the force of the disagreeable impression. The unpleasantness is of two distinct kinds; at least half of the stories have for their theme some abnormal strain of feminine eroticism—usually with an antiquarian cast. . . . Stark, staring ghastliness like this is fortunately a rare achievement."

— Nation 102:648 Je 15 '16 220w

"Of the eight stories by Lord Tennyson's grandniece collected in this volume four are tales of Cornwall and one of the sea, while the others have their scenes laid in France and Italy. These last are by far the poorest, for in them the author indulges in the full her fondness for a fanciful and quite unconvincing psychological analysis. Miss Jesse is at her best when she deals with grim situations. 'The coffin ship,' a merciless sketch of a sea captain, is an admirable bit of writing, logically developed, unmarred by sentimentality."

+ N Y Times 21:124 Ap 2 '16 330w

"The arrangement of this book is admirable. Indeed, all successful authors who collect and publish the short stories which they have written from time to time should print them, as Miss Jesse has done, in chronological order. . . . Those who admired Miss Jesse's last book will doubtless admire this; those who, like ourselves, find her views of humanity somewhat too artificial, will at least be amused by it."

+ Spec 116:54 Ja 8 '16 190w

JESSUP, WALTER ALBERT. Teaching staff. diagrs 25c (1c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-11277

The subjects covered in this report on the teaching staff of the Cleveland public schools include teachers' salaries, pension fund, sex of teachers, experience, married teachers, promotion, health of teachers, dismissal of teachers, substitutes. There are a number of interesting tables showing comparative salaries of teachers in Cleveland and other cities, comparative salaries of teachers and those engaged in other occupations and trades, etc.

Ind 87:348 S 4 '16 130w

Pittsburgh 21:363 J1 '16

JEVONS, HERBERT STANLEY. British coal trade. (National industries) il $2.25 Dutton (*6s Kegan Paul & co., London) 338.2 15-24075

"Professor Jevons, during his term of service at the University college of South Wales and Monmouthshire, has had ample opportunity of studying the subject in hand, and his new book takes into account practically every phase of the coal industry. The work represents a judicious division of attention between the technical or mechanical and the humane sides of the subject. Besides a detailed account of the geology of the coal areas and of the mining and marketing of the coal, the book contains a lengthy description of the actual life and working conditions of the miners, their wage difficulties, and their labor organizations. In the concluding chapters the writer indulges in some speculation regarding the future of the coal industry both from a national and from a world point of view."—J Pol Econ

"In placing an estimate on this book it should be borne in mind that it is not intended to be a scholarly treatise; there are practically no references to sources, and the author states that he has not been able to verify all his statements. It is admittedly a popular account yet as such it has distinct limitations. It is altogether too detailed and too lengthy (there are 800 pages, not counting the appendix) for a popular narrative." Eliot Jones

+ Am Econ R 6:363 Je '16 570w

"Written in a sober, understanding spirit, making no general accusations 'The British coal trade' should enable the public to realize the intricacies of the great industry with which it deals."

+ Ath 1915,2:221 O 2 1350w

"The book is well supplied with maps and illustrations. Extensive appendices have been added, including a fairly comprehensive bibliography." J. E. Moffat

+ J Pol Econ 24:306 Mr '16 950w

JOBLING, EDGAR. Catalysis and its industrial applications. (Text-books of chemical research and engineering) il $1 Blakiston 541 A16-770

"In Mr. Jobling's book much that is known of a rapidly developing subject has been brought together and described in a clear and interesting manner. In an introductory chapter he deals with the purely scientific aspects of catalysis and the characteristics of catalytic reactions, autocatalysis, pseudo-catalysis, etc. The rest of the book is concerned with the industrial applications of catalytic agents. . . . The book consists of a series of articles originally contributed to the Chemical World."—Nature

+ Cleveland p111 Ag '16 20w

+ Nature 96:673 F 17 '16 550w

"Good introduction to the subject."

+ Pittsburgh 21:348 J1 '16 20w

+ Pratt p17 O '16 30w

JOHNSON, EMORY RICHARD. Panama canal and commerce. il $2 Appleton 386 16-19231

"Professor Johnson discusses here the enormous value of this waterway to the commerce

JOHNSON, EMORY RICHARD—Continued
of our own country. Already so soon after the opening of the canal it has figured largely as a factor in world commerce, and its closing would mean a serious loss to every nation of the civilized world. In his book he discusses the commercial history of the canal, the schedule of the tonnage and tolls in force at the Isthmus, types of ships in use in canal commerce, canal routes, rate zones, and all the various other important problems which have gone hand in hand with the opening of the canal."—Boston Transcript

"Covers many of the topics treated in the author's report on 'Panama canal traffic and tolls' (Booklist, 9:307, Mr '13), but includes later information."

+ A L A Bkl 13:148 Ja '17

"The book is an intensely practical one, intended to give exact information to importers, traders people and exporters, as well as to the student of business."

+ Boston Transcript p7 O 28 '16 170w

+ Cleveland p152 D '16 20w

"There is no higher authority on the subject covered by this book than Professor Johnson. . . . Special interest attaches to the chapters on the Panama tolls and the Panama tonnage rules, for which the author was responsible."

+ Engin N 77:107 Ja 18 '17 640w

St Louis 15:11 Ja '17 40w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:451 D '16 50w

JOHNSON, EMORY RICHARD, and VAN METRE, THURMAN WILLIAM. Principles of railroad transportation. (Appleton's railway ser.) il $2.50 (1½c) Appleton 385 16-18783

A work based upon "American railway transportation." It is not a revision of that work however, having been entirely rewritten with much new material added. "The book is a study in railway economics, and is intended to be an introduction to the general subject of railroad transportation, a volume that may profitably precede or accompany a more special study of a particular branch of the railway service." (Chapter 1) The four parts of the book are devoted to: The American railroad system; The railroad service; The railroads and the public; The railroads and the state.

St Louis 14:430 D '16

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 29 '17 170w

JOHNSON, EMORY RICHARD, and others. History of domestic and foreign commerce of the United States; with an introd. note by H: W. Farnam. 2v pa $6 Carnegie inst. 381 16-680

"These two volumes cover but one division out of twelve in the general plan of the 'Contributions to American economic history,' by the Department of economics and sociology of the Carnegie institution of Washington. Their date of publication (1915) shows a lapse of thirteen years since the work was first outlined in 1902. . . . Volume 1, in three parts, treats of American commerce to 1789 (part 1), Internal commerce (part 2), and the Coastwise trade (part 3). . . . Volume 2 deals first with Foreign trade since 1789, which is disposed of in nine chapters, comprising 156 pages. . . . The concluding portion, part 3, dealing with Government aid and commercial policy, by Dr. D. S. Hanchett treats of federal regulation, the consular service, shipping and shipbuilding, rivers and harbors policy, and the tariff, concluding with a valuable bibliography of general references. The index, comprising twelve double-column pages, shows that few, if any, matters of primary interest have not received attention."—Am Hist R

"['Foreign trade since 1789'] by Professor G. G. Huebner, supplies the best connected account of our foreign trade that has been written." Clive Day

+ Am Econ R 6:635 S '16 1000w

"On the whole the American public is to be congratulated on this contribution. Its positive value to students of the subject will consist in laying the ground-work for specific studies. It will insure balance to specialization far more fully than has hitherto been possible in the prosecution of research of commercial lines. To the business interests it should supply the long-needed perspective, and it is hoped that no one will make more diligent use of these volumes than the members of Congress." J: F. Crowell

+ Am Hist R 22:382 Ja '17 850w

"The volumes are replete with references and footnotes, are carefully indexed, and contain ten well-chosen maps. A part of the work deserving special mention is that which includes, at the close of the second volume, the bibliographical notes and extensive classified bibliography. These will prove of inestimable value to students and investigators who wish to carry still further their researches into particular phases of our commercial history."

+ Nation 103:443 N 9 '16 1100w

JOHNSON, FANNY KEMBLE. Beloved son. il $1.35 (1c) Small 16-194.

The story of a beautiful affection between father and son. They are more like brothers than like father and son, and indeed the difference in their years is not great, only a matter of twenty or so. It early develops that a family weakness for drink, which has never touched the father, is fastening itself on the son, and the story is largely taken up with the efforts of the two to fight off the curse. Science fails and love fails, but in the end victory, growing out of the deep feeling of sympathy between the two, comes to crown their struggle.

+ A L A Bkl 13:176 Ja '17

"It is characterized by the same charm, and the same skill in handling her material which have been apparent in her magazine work. She has simply, we feel, grown to larger things, of which 'The beloved son' is the first flowering."

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '16 280w

Ind 88:126 O 16 '16 20w

+ N Y Call p14 Ja 21 '17 310w

"The book is a short story hammered and pulled out to novel size, with endless repetitions, a lack of variety, of incident, and of character development which make it tiresome. As a contribution to temperance literature, however, it may do some good."

— + N Y Times 21:403 O 8 '16 380w

+ — Springfield Republican p15 D 31 '16 220w

"Pleasing despite the theme, because of the setting and the relationship of father and son."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 40w

JOHNSON, GEORGE ELLSWORTH. Education through recreation. il 25c Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-2205

"This report under the direction of a member of the Division of education, Harvard university, finds that the Cleveland public schools are extraordinarily well equipped in plants and teaching force for the conduct and administration of recreation, but that its recreational facilities are only partly used. A large part of the report is devoted to constructive suggestions for increasing the influence of the schools on the out-of-door life of its children and youth."—Cleveland

Cleveland p8 F '16 60w

"The general impression made by the investigations carried on in Cleveland is that, while the children of Cleveland play in the usual fashion, they get relatively little encouragement and relatively little organization of their activities through the schools. Mr. Johnson has put forth a vigorous argument for a complete change in attitude on the part of the schools."

+ El School J 16:342 Mr '16 900w

Ind 86:28 Ap 3 '16 40w

N Y Br Lib News 3:94 Je '16

Pittsburgh 21:111 Mr '16

JOHNSON, OWEN MCMAHON. Spirit of France. il *$1.35 (3½c) Little 940.91 16-3455

The two nations, according to Mr. Johnson, that stand out after a year of war are Germany and France. On the one hand there is perfect mechanical preparation, on the other hand the moral strength of freemen. The strength of France is the weakness of England, the condition of the masses. In France there is enlightenment, richness, and consciousness of individual responsibility; in England, moral and economic poverty. There are chapters on: France consecrated to war; The profanation of Rheims; In the trenches; Arras under bombardment; Notre Dame de Lorette reconquered; A village in shreds; A visit to Joffre; The truth about France. The illustrations are from drawings by Walter Hale and photographs.

A L A Bkl 12:472 J1 '16

"Inspired and written with a fine swing and vigour. He tells of the heroism which animates the nation and above all of the fortitude of the women, ready to bear any burden and sacrifice."

+ Bookm 43:6 Mr '16 550w

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 5 '16 1250w

"His analysis of the spirit moving the French is clear and deep-sighted. It would seem, however, that his estimation of the force that socialism will exert after the war is unwarranted in fact."

+ Cath World 103:403 Je '16 220w

"The real spirit of France, Mr. Johnson would make us understand, considers the nation that is to be. 'Not even America so ardently loves and longs for peace as France,' he tells us—'peace for her children.'"

+ Lit D 52:916 Ap 1 '16 190w

"He is, perhaps, most successful in indicating the extraordinary mixture of town, trench, and morass which the trenches are. These are the new slants of vision afforded by the author, and here photographic cuts and Mr. Hale's excellent drawings ably abet his pen. For the rest, the book is not very different from its numerous class, and it would have been more gracious, and possibly more just, to eulogize the moral fortitude of France, without using England as foil."

+ Nation 102:315 Mr 16 '16 150w

"Barring some over-sentimentalized chapters at the beginning and a tendency in the earlier part of the book to be a spendthrift with adjectives, Mr. Johnson's volume is among the best of the many eyewitness books that the war has furnished."

+ N Y Times 21:75 Mr 5 '16 550w

"The charming dash and spirit, the life and vigor which have always characterized the work of Mr. Owen Johnson are to be found in this book also—as well as the faults of these qualities, snap judgments, blind enthusiasm, and the journalistic inclination to make the picture complete, whether it accord with the truth or not."

G. I. Colbron

+ Pub W 89:1032 Mr 18 '16 750w

+ R of Rs 53:380 Mr '16 70w

"Probably the most notable incident chronicled by Owen Johnson is his visit to Gen. Joffre. For the rest, one can say of Mr. Johnson's well-written book little more than that it is a satisfactory presentation of France at war as seen through one man's eyes. One's taste for the book depends wholly on whether he is or is not already glutted with the type."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 20 '16 290w

JOHNSON, OWEN MCMAHON. Woman gives; a story of regeneration. il *$1.40 (1c) Little 16-17413

A beautiful woman who stands ready to give everything for a man's regeneration is the heroine of this story of New York life. Inga Sonderson accomplishes the supposedly impossible; sets Dangerfield on his feet again; and then, her work done, moves on to another task, finding another man in need of her ministrations. A group of Bohemians, artists, artist's models, aspiring opera singers and the like, living on the top floor of a New York studio building are the minor characters who form the background for the story of Inga and Dangerfield.

"There is a growing tendency among moralists of Mr. Johnson's stamp to invest the oldest profession in the world with the status of a new occupation for women." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 44:185 O '16 290w

"At the same time it challenges and satisfies a goodly share of interest in its author's development as a novelist, for it reveals in him a sympathetic knowledge of varied human types, a considerable share of persuasive skill in realism, and a certain power in sustaining, with warmth and strength, the story of a mature and highly idealized love." F. I.

— Boston Transcript p8 S 13 '16 950w

"It does not ring true. . . . People may read it for amusement or for thrills but hardly for some real presentation (not to say interpretation) of the life either about us or anywhere else." E. E. Hale

— Dial 61:193 S 21 '16 600w

"The author of that flimsy and popular literary Broadway show, 'The Salamander,' could hardly be expected to stay his hand from further easy profits. The present story boastfully 'featured' in a malodorous monthly, has the same false glamour of white lights and nocturnal feasting, and sex experiment, and shoddy moralizing."

— Nation 103:377 O 19 '16 430w

"In the hands of a writer who was a literary artist, much might have been done with all this; in those of Mr. Johnson they compose a fairly interesting story, melodramatic, with the melodrama, not of life but of the moving-picture screen. . . . Always there is the lack of that magic touch which means vitality."

— N Y Times 21:341 S 3 '16 1050w

"If you want to know what the characters do, you'll have to read the book, for 458 pages of emotional heights and depths, excursions and alarms, climaxes, catastrophes and resolutions cannot be crowded into one short review."

M. A. Hopkins

— Pub W 90:602 Ag 19 '16 450w

JOHNSON, ROBERT UNDERWOOD. Poems of war and peace. $1 Bobbs 811 16-13358

Mr. Johnson's "Panama ode: Goethals of Panama" and a poem on "The corridors of Congress" reprinted from the North American Review for May, 1915, open this small volume. In the group of "Poems of the great war" there are several which attracted attention at the time of their magazine publication, among them the sonnet on Edith Cavell. A second group, "Poems chiefly of friendship or admiration," follows.

+ Cleveland p145 D '16 90w

+ Ind 87:201 Ag 7 '16 140w

"One of the most striking 'To the spirit of Byron' has Belgium for its theme. Byron himself would not disdain the authorship of lines at once so polished and so forceful, so graceful and so passionate."

+ Lit D 52:1716 Je 10 '16 450w

"The reality of the poet's gift seems unquestionable, and, if I were compelled to specify its differentia, I think that some such phrase as crispness in phiancy or precision in mellowness would be the quickest exit from my difficulty. Mr. Johnson is a point-maker; the separable, the emergent, phrase is normal in his craftsmanship." O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 103:607 D 28 '16 490w

N Y Br Lib News 3:158 O '16 50w

"What Mr. Johnson has to say in verse about such subjects as 'Embattled France,' 'The Peace palace at The Hague,' or 'Shakespeare' or 'Rheims' or 'The President' is well worth saying, and it is often said with surprising felicity. This poetry makes a direct and honest appeal to the mind and heart—not to the nerves—and aims at spiritual things through plain thoughts. . . . The intellectual and metrical soundness of these poems makes them welcome to all lovers of sincere poetic art."

JOHNSON, ROBERT UNDERWOOD—Cont.

+ No Am 204:151 J1 '16 190w

"This volume will meet with instant appreciation from all lovers of dignified poetry, serene in its idealism, gracious in its acceptance of life, and firm in the purpose to make the best of things as they are."

+ R of Rs 54:231 Ag '16 140w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:408 N '16 60w

JOHNSON, ROSWELL HILL, and HUNTLEY,
2 LOUIS GROW. Principles of oil and gas production. 11 *$3.75 Wiley 622.3 16-14650

"Limited chiefly to American conditions, this treatise by teachers in the University of Pittsburgh, discusses the best methods of locating and extracting, but has comparatively little to say on drilling practice. There are chapters on leasing and royalties, the management of wells, the condensation of gasoline, the natural gas industry, reports, valuation, markets and future supply. Chapter 22 devotes more than one hundred pages to descriptions of the oil and gas fields of North America."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

N Y Br Lib News 3:141 S '16

"Reviewed in Gas Age, Aug. 15, 1916, p. 169."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p15 Ag '16 110w

"Valuable and authoritative work by experienced oil geologists."

+ Pittsburgh 21:574 D '16 8w

JOHNSON, WILLIS FLETCHER. America's foreign relations. 2v 11 *$6 (2c) Century 327.73 16-9786

"The foreign relations of this country are the least generally known part of its history," says the author. It is this conviction that led him to undertake this work designed for the "average lay citizen." It has been his aim to write "a popular history in a worthy sense of that too often abused term, intended for popular perusal and accurate information upon topics which are among at once the most important and the most neglected or most misunderstood in all our national annals." (Preface) The first volume begins with "pre-natal" influences, the relations that existed between the nations that had claims to American soil, and covers the period down to the beginning of the civil war. The second volume carries the history thru the war and down to the present time. Various statistical data are given in appendixes, including the texts of important treaties.

"In general his attitude is judicial, his vision is broad and sympathetic, and his judgments mature and reasonable. . . . As is to be expected in a popular work, no authorities are given and it is not always easy to trace the sources of information. . . . There are errors of detail to be pointed out. . . . After all, the work is a readable and, in the main, a trustworthy popular account of American diplomatic history." J. S. Reeves

+ — Am Hist R 22:397 Ja '17 930w

"An account for the average lay reader, of the United States foreign relations from colonial times to 1912, by the professor of the history of American foreign relations in New York university. . . . Useful, but for the average library Fish's 'American diplomacy' (Booklist, 12:216, F '16) will be sufficient."

+ A L A Bkl 13:10 O '16

"A very real need is filled, and filled capably and interestingly, by this comprehensive work by the honorary professor of the history of American foreign relations in New York university. . . . No one who is interested in the history of our country will find a dull page in the entire two volumes."

+ Bookm 44:71 S '16 1050w

"A copious and painstaking historical work which is deserving of careful study. Statistical information is abundant in the book. Particularly is this true when the decade 1831-40 is presented in review. . . . Interesting as much of Mr. Johnson's work is in these volumes, he or his publishers are open to criticism for partial failure in method. A work of this pretension should have the advantage of more accessibility to the reader. Chapter headings are the only guides."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 My 20 '16 600w

+ Ind 88:243 N 6 '16 100w

"Within these self-imposed limitations Mr. Johnson has written a good book of its kind. For years a journalist and editorial writer on the New York Tribune, he knows how to write a book which is clear, vigorous, and readable. . . . On the other hand the uneven quality and value of different parts of the work betray the journalist and the lack of careful historical training and judgment."

+ — Nation 103:304 S 28 '16 950w

N Y Br Lib News 3:88 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:269 J1 2 '16 1150w

"It is written as simply as the nature of the subject matter permits. It is free from the forbidding jargon of diplomacy; it contains no pompous and mystifying generalizations. The book is popular, but it is thorough. In it, sound, uncontroversial discussion is joined with full information."

+ No. Am 203:922 Je '16 1050w

+ Pittsburgh 21:360 J1 '16 150w

+ Pratt p11 O '16 40w

"Not a technical treatise, but a popular history in the best sense."

+ R of Rs 53:754 Je '16 50w

"Among the subjects particularly well presented in this book are the establishment of neutrality, our early relations with the Orient, the Samoan condominium, and the annexation of Hawaii. Equally satisfactory is the treatment of the earlier negotiations regarding the Isthmian canal, but in the discussion of the later phases of that topic the author's attitude is more subjective and dogmatic. . . . In matters of fact, the statements of this book are, in the main, to be relied upon. Several of the dates are obviously misprints. The inclusion of Germany in the list of countries with which Mr. Bryan negotiated his arbitration treaties is a conspicuous error. There are a good index and convenient tables which add to the usefulness of this book for ready reference." D: J. Hill

+ — Yale R n s 6:185 O '16 1450w

JOHNSTON, MRS. ANNIE (FELLOWS). Georgiana of the rainbows. 11 *$1.25 Britton pub. 16-17421

"On her tenth birthday Georgiana had been presented with a prism, which surrounded everything seen through it with a halo of color. From this came the idea of her club, the members of which vowed to view their troubles through a rainbow. 'Put a rainbow 'round your troubles' was the motto." (Boston Transcript) "The story is of old Provincetown that still boasts its 'Town crier,' and a most dear old man he is—the real hero of the tale." (N Y Times)

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:408 D '16 60w

Boston Transcript p9 O 28 '16 350w

"An ingeniously constructed story, inspiring and engrossing, combining the lure of childhood with dramatic completeness."

+ Lit D 53:1478 D 2 '16 200w

"Nowhere, except in New England, is to be found the society Mrs. Johnston depicts, in which 'Earth's four distinctions fade away,' and everybody is respected and self-respecting according to character alone. The very soul of the place and its people—the distinctive flavor of both—permeates."

+ N Y Times 21:487 N 12 '16 370w

"Simply and pleasantly told in a way to interest old and young. Aside from the story it will appeal to many for its setting—Provincetown with its glinting blue sea, its white dunes, its dingy fishing craft, clumsy accommodation busses, its artists and gay summer folk." R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 90:840 S 16 '16 400w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 70w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

JOHNSTON, CHARLES HAVEN LADD. Our little Viking cousin of long ago. (Little cousins of long ago ser.) il 60c Page 16-14040

"Not less likeable than the other little cousins we have previously met from various lands the world over is young Bjarne Herjulfson, who sailed with Lief the Lucky to 'Vinland,' in the year one thousand. . . . What an adventurous part the two boys play in the discovery of North America. . . . how they help capture a pirate ship. . . . how they fought the Skrellings, and brought to naught a meeting of the captured pirates, and finally returned safely to Norway with their treasure, make a story that teaches incidentally much of the manners and customs of the Vikings."—Boston Transcript

"There is nothing specially inspiring or interesting but the material is not so easily accessible in other books. For the fifth grade."

A L A Bkl 13:131 D '16

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 23 '16 320w

JOHNSTON, GEORGE ALEXANDER. Introduction to ethics. *$1 Macmillan 170 A16-668

"In addition to his duties as university professor the author of this volume is lecturer in ethics in the Glasgow training college and his book is designed primarily for students in training colleges. . . . Three things characterize his method. In his attempt to secure simplicity and brevity he has avoided, as far as possible, all controversial details, endeavoring to state principles positively and clearly. Then he has attempted to approach ethics from the psychological standpoint. And finally, in dealing with the application of moral principles to the work of education he has contented himself with indicating broad effects and general lines of influence."—Boston Transcript

"The work is well suited for its purpose—a textbook for training schools. It is simple and direct in style. The author is master of his subject; and he has added references to larger work for those who wish to go more deeply into the subject."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 5 '16 270w

"It may safely be recommended to all students beginning ethics, and to many who have long passed that stage." C. D. Broad

+ Int J Ethics 26:561 Jl '16 1550w

"The book is designed for students in training colleges for teachers, and therefore it includes more or less that would be uninteresting, if not distasteful to the ordinary student. But it is full of solid matter, simply put."

+ Nation 102:sup486 My 4 '16 150w

"Mr. G. A. Johnston's very complete little volume, designed for those who will teach in elementary schools, aims very sensibly at a psychological answer to the instructional problem as it is presented to-day. Every moral influence of our civilisation is evaluated into simple terms by means of proved psychological conclusions." A. E. Crawley

+ Nature 96:535 Ja 13 '16 240w

Pittsburgh 21:100 Mr '16 60w

JOHNSTON, WILLIAM ALLEN. Deeds of daring and daring. il *$1.25 (1c) Wilde 600 A17-85

In the preface to these stories of structural steel workers, firemen, submarine sailors, deep sea divers and others the author points out that the lure of danger plays a great part in the choice of precarious occupations. The men of whom he writes are of the breed of the heroes of all time. The incidents described, he says, are true, "so far as any one could ascertain. . . . It is wholly unnecessary to stretch the truth at all to provide thrilling incidents in the lives of these men." The material of the book was first copyrighted by the New York Herald.

"Will not replace 'Careers of danger and daring' but planned like it."

+ A L A Bkl 13:182 Ja '17

+ Ind 88:405 D 4 '16 30w

+ Lit D 53:1563 D 9 '16 100w

JONES, CHESTER LLOYD. Caribbean interests of the United States. *$2.50 (2c) Appleton 917.29 16-18337

"The citizens of the United States do not recognize the importance of the Caribbean for their country," says the author, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin. And indeed it is to be doubted if many of us know that the United States has under its supervision in the Caribbean a population greater than that of the thirteen colonies at the time of the Declaration of independence, or that this region is one of our chief sources of raw material imports. The author's purpose is "to present in popular form a brief outline of the more important political and economic developments in these countries which have a bearing upon the foreign policy and commerce of the United States." Two of the chapters, "The international importance of the banana trade" and "Oil on the Caribbean" have appeared in the North American Review. The volume is provided with a folding map and there is a bibliography and an index.

"Much useful information is presented, largely through drafts on consular reports and reports of special agents of the Department of commerce. . . . The impression left by the book is of an effort to crowd too much into its pages. A number of quite inaccurate statements call for correction in a possible second edition." A. G. Robinson

+ Am Hist R 22:418 Ja '17 570w

+ A L A Bkl 13:169 Ja '17

Cleveland p152 D '16 40w

+ Ind 88:243 N 6 '16 60w

"One of the timely chapters describes the revolution in naval policy which the introduction of oil as fuel has initiated. There is no room for competition between navies burning coal and oil. In the future, oil fuel will be as essential a part of a navy's equipment as large-calibre guns. And the Caribbean region is potentially one of the world's chief sources of oil."

+ Nation 104:50 Ja 11 '17 650w

"Our purchase of the Danish West Indies. . . . gives especial timeliness and interest to this volume."

+ N Y Times 22:22 Ja 21 '17 700w

"Quite apart from political theory, however, Professor Jones' book is informing to business men. If one wants to know how the opening of the Panama canal will affect business conditions in one of the Leeward Islands or whether cane sugar is likely to be in the future the economic mainstay of Jamaica, one could hardly turn to a better source of facts than this treatise."

+ No Am 204:758 N '16 700w

Reviewed by H. J. Seligman

+ Pub W 90:2082 D 9 '16 520w

+ R of Rs 54:683 D '16 150w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 31 '16 230w

JONES, FORTIER. With Serbia into exile; an American's adventures with the army that cannot die. il *$1.60 (2c) Century 940.91 16-16536

Mr. Jones is a young American from Texas who was studying journalism at Columbia university when he impulsively decided to join a Serbian relief expedition. He writes of his relief work and of his adventures, in company with a party of English nurses, on the Serbian retreat. His admiration for the Serbs, a great people capable of splendid heroism and deathless devotion, is rivaled only by his respect for these English women. A point which he insists on making clear is that credit for stamping out typhus in Serbia should go to Russia.

+ A L A Bkl 13:76 N '16

"Mr. Jones's account gives the reader an insight into the forces that lie behind the news and give history meaning and color. It is unfortunate that the book was not provided with some sort of map. In every other respect it is to be most highly recommended." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 30 '16 1250w

JONES FORTIER—Continued
Cleveland p138 N '16 40wReviewed by Travis Hoke
+ Dial 61:189 S 21 '16 550w

"Some of his experiences seem incredible to us over here on 'the safe side,' but his sincerity is as convincing in his graphic descriptions as in his abundant facts."

+ Ind 88:330 N 20 '16 60w
+ Nation 103:328 O 5 '16 470wReviewed by Harold Stearns
+ New Repub 9:sup24 N 18 '16 300w

"Mr. Jones's account of that long agony is full of little stories and scenes that grip the heart."

+ N Y Times 21:330 Ag 27 '16 880w
+ R of Rs 54:572 N '16 40w
+ Springfield Republican p6 O 9 '16 900w

"It is an adventure which is producing a swarm of books. We have read most of them: and Mr. Fortier Jones's is the best which we have seen."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p2 Ja 4 '17 600w

JONES, FREDERICK ROBERTSON, comp. Digest of workmen's compensation laws in the United States and territories, with annotations. $2 Workmen's compensation publicity bureau 331.82

"The well-known 'Digest' compiled by Mr. Jones appears now in a fourth edition, revised to December 1, 1915, and including the amendments and new statutes of 1915. The form has not been changed; but the scope is extended, not only by the inclusion of the provisions of many new laws, but also by a fuller indication of the content of the various statutes and by a welcome and valuable citation of judicial interpretations down to October 1, 1915. The names and addresses of the several administrative and supervisory boards and officials are also given."

—Am Econ R

"For the insurance man, for whom primarily the digest is prepared, the compilation is of the highest value. Substantially all facts as to the statutes which he will wish to know are made easily accessible by the convenient arrangement of parallel and horizontal columns. It is not enough to say that this digest is a reliable handbook for all those interested in workmen's compensation insurance: it is practically indispensable for them. Both in comprehensiveness of scope and in the skill, care, and accuracy displayed in its preparation it is superior to any other work of its kind. To the general student of workmen's compensation the digest is, perhaps, not quite so satisfactory." W. C. Fisher
+ Am Econ R 6:434 Je '16 380w

JONES, J. H. Economics of war and conquest. *2s 6d P. S. King & son, London 172.4 (Eng ed War15-154)

"This work is designed as a scientific study of the contention of Norman Angell as set forth in 'The great illusion,' that under modern conditions a nation can gain no economic advantage through war. With keen analysis, the author points out the flaws in Mr. Angell's argument, and shows the gains that may accrue to a nation through the possession of a powerful armament, the imposition of an indemnity, or the annexation of colonies or contiguous territory. . . . As the whole, the work successfully supports the author's conclusion that while some economic gains may be achieved by means of a war of conquest, the money value of the expectation of such gain is considerably less than the money cost of such a war."—Ann Am Acad

"In view of the amount that has been written upon this subject by those without a knowledge of the principles of economics, a discussion by one who has such knowledge is particularly valuable." W. L. A.

+ Ann Am Acad 65:313 My '16 90w

"Mr. Jones writes not in order to glorify war, but that the cause of peace should not be propped up with false arguments. His commentary, short as it is, deals in parts with matters not specifically examined by Norman Angell, and is a thoughtful criticism of the theories popular among pacifists."

+ Ath 1915.2:43 J1 17 190w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley
Hibbert J 14:195 O '15 30wJORDAN, DAVID STARR. Ways to lasting peace. *$1 (2c) Bobbs 172.4 16-6035

This work represents "an effort to summarize the most important of the various propositions which have been made during the great war to secure lasting peace at the end of the conflict." These propositions include the platforms of such organizations as the Union of democratic control in Great Britain, and the League to enforce peace in America, and the resolutions and recommendations of various peace congresses. Contents: The present crisis; Democratic control of war; Women and war; Resolutions of congresses; Peace manifestoes; Individuals and peace; The case against war; World federation; Appendix; The [Ford] peace pilgrimage. The book is an amplification of Dr. Jordan's address to the World's peace congress, held at Berkeley, California, in October, 1915.

"Hardly represents Dr. Jordan's best. A gathering of many views without much consideration or analysis of the importance of those views."

+ — Advocate of Peace p120 Ap '16 100w
A L A Bkl 12:401 Je '16+ Boston Transcript p6 My 13 '16 110w
Ind 86:346 My 29 '16 50w

"After reading the volume through, one is obliged to say that it shows no feasible path to an end of the present struggle, though it is not without valuable suggestions for the remoter future. The many organizations and individuals whose plans and views the author records, with few exceptions, fail to realize the utter futility of any talk of peace that does not frankly recognize the great wrong of the Central Powers. . . . To talk as if peace were a mere matter of adjusting conflicting claims is to talk to the winds. The moral judgment of the outside world is that the presence of Germany's armies on any part of the soil which they now occupy outside the limits of the German empire is a moral wrong, and that no peace can have a satisfactory moral basis unless it shall be preceded by, or shall provide guarantees for, the return of those armies to their own land. In his theorizing Dr. Jordan does not ignore facts."

+ Nation 102:707 Je 29 '16 850w

"Dr. Jordan makes a notably concise, clear, and well-digested summary of all the important plans for lasting peace that have recently been set forward in all nations."

+ N Y Times 21:132 Ap 9 '16 400w

+ Pub W 89:1036 Mr 18 '16 220w

R of Rs 53:628 My '16 40w

St Louis 14:142 Ap '16

Springfield Republican p19 Mr 25 '16 250w

Reviewed by E. G. Balch

+ Survey 37:93 O 28 '16 40w

JORDAN, DAVID STARR. World peace and the college man. 50c (6c) Univ. of Pa. 172.4 16-6036

A lecture delivered at the University of Pennsylvania in November, 1915, as one of the George Dana Boardman lectures in Christian ethics. It is a plea to college men to undertake constructive work for peace in time of war. "In time of war, one should strike for peace." And the author defines what he means by peace: "I do not mean an indolent life, lost in gentle reveries. I mean hard daily work, and mutual understanding. . . . And I mean, too, a real conflict . . . a conflict against crime and disease and selfishness, and greediness and cruelties. There is much fighting to be done. Can we not combine to fight our common foes, instead of weakening each other against evil?"

Pittsburgh 21:229 My '16

JORDAN, ELIZABETH GARVER. Lovers' knots; the whimsical twists and tangles of a dozen youthful love affairs. il $1.25 (2c) Harper 16-21058

For the fourteen short stories reprinted here from Good Housekeeping, Harper's and other magazines, a fitting title has been chosen, for they belong, all of them, to the class known as "love stories." Contents: Man proposes; The young man in Peacock Alley; A game of tag; Mr. Brinkley to the rescue; The far-away road; Her man Friday; Philip's "furnis man"; A readjustment; The girl who loved Herbert; To meet Miss Pomeroy; Billy Bates, preferred; Thirty-three cents, plus; An interlude; Mr. Waldo amuses the baby.

"Easily the best work Miss Jordan has done since her volume 'Tales of the city room.'"
+ Ind 88:330 N 20 '16 30w

"The stories follow the stereotyped rules for the making of marshmallow fiction, and one or two are related in a rather bright way which renders them mildly amusing."

— + N Y Times 21:460 O 29 '16 260w

"Unusually good collection."

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 17 '16 200w

JORDAN, LOUIS HENRY. Comparative religion, its adjuncts and allies. $4 Oxford 290 A16-297

"Almost the whole of Mr. Jordan's volume is occupied by reviews of selected works, which have been contributed by the author during recent years to various periodicals. To each series of reviews is prefixed a brief introduction, indicating the relation of the subject to the main theme and the author's estimate of the value of the contribution which it makes to the elucidation of religion or comparative religion as a whole. Part 1 is 'Avenues of approach'; Part 2, 'The transition'; and these two parts comprise more than five-sixths of the entire work. Part 3 is a brief indication of the 'Restricted area' and 'Legitimate scope' of comparative religion, as the author conceives his subject."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"Perhaps the chief value of the book for the student of religion lies in the fact that it presents a select bibliography of the subject for the years 1910-14." F. A. S.

Am J Theol 21:157 Ja '17 250w

"Only for large or special libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 13:145 Ja '17

"If the advent of comparative religion is to be dated as far back as 1850, it has been completely transformed as a department of research within the last fifteen years. . . . While the book on one side is technical and bears a definite relation to the author's other writings, on another side it is complete in itself and should have a place in the library of every well-informed person."

+ Bib World 47:341 My '16 480w

"Useful merely from the standpoint of its special bibliography. It is of no value to the critical scholar, for it is too fulsome in praise of the most contradictory theories; too prejudiced against everything Christian; too replete with repetitions of every sort; too dogmatic in its attempt to define the scope of comparative religion."

— Cath World 103:827 S '16 620w

"In general the reader will find in this book a great deal of interesting and useful though rather varied information. It will enable him to realise the abundance of literature of a technical or expert character (in contrast to works of a purely devotional value), and it should assist him to form some idea of the nature of the field of religious research. He will observe the numerous lines of inquiry, the various types of research, and, in particular, the very serious differences of opinion and divergences of method." S. A. Cook

+ Hibbert J 15:168 O '16 2400w

"Here we touch one of Mr. Jordan's most conspicuous limitations—he is always essentially a theologian, as appears also in the not infrequent digressions in which he discusses the probable bearings of comparative religion on Christian theology and the feelings of Christian people. . . . The 'criticisms are almost uniformly benevolent, and not infrequently charitable with the charity that covers a multitude of sins.'

— Nation 102:571 My 25 '16 1350w

"There is manifest at times a haziness and generality of expression which suggests that the author is conscious of treading where only a specialist could move with sure step. It is the plan of the work that is at fault, and the attempt to sit in judgment in so many branches of scholarship and research."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p68 F 10 '16 1500w

JOWETT, JOHN HENRY. Whole armour of God. $1.25 Revell 252 16-20890

"Fifteen sermons by the Rev. Dr. John Henry Jowett are published in this volume. These sermons deal with the duties and equipment of the 'Christian soldier' and with his experiences in the field."—N Y Times

"Inspirational, practical, and popular."

+ A L A Bkl 13:198 F '17

Ind 88:166 O 23 '16 20w

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16

N Y Times 21:471 N 5 '16 40w

"The style is exceedingly lucid and pure; and the phrasing charmingly felicitous. Dr. Jowett's handling of his texts is what is known to preachers as expository; and the power of this method is finely illustrated by his results."

+ Springfield Republican p7 N 25 '16 110w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p492 O 12 '16 30w

JOY, MAURICE, ed. Irish rebellion of 1916 and its martyrs. il $2.50 Devin-Adair co. 941.5 16-20563

"The writers of this volume aim at giving Americans an inside Irish view of the late rebellion of 1916. The Irish republican brotherhood is shown to be a direct offshoot of the Young Ireland movement of 1848, which in turn was in direct succession to the movements of 1798 and 1803. . . . Part 1 treats of the present political alignment in Ireland, Catholic emancipation, and agrarian reform, Sinn Féin and Irish Ireland, Ulster's opposition to Home rule, the formation of the Irish volunteers and the Irish citizen army, the causes and history of the rebellion of 1916, England's cruel punishment of the rebels, the report of the Royal commission, and the history of the Irish republican brotherhood. Part 2 consists of a number of portraits of the men and women who made the rebellion possible and who suffered the death penalty in its cause."—Cath World

Cath World 104:693 F '17 330w

"Though the first part of this book is full of admirably arranged information about the causes and history of the rebellion, it is to the second part on 'personalities and ideals' that most readers will turn." Van Wyck Brooks

+ Dial 61:459 N 30 '16 150w

"The writing is fairly dispassionate. . . . The striking feature of these pages is the calm, unwavering belief in Irish independence, with which the best and most enlightened government by England would be inconsistent because it would be alien."

Nation 103:586 D 21 '16 1200w

St Louis 15:24 Ja '17

JOYCE, JAMES. Dubliners. $1.50 (2c) Huebsch

Three memories from childhood open the collection of Dublin stories. They record a boy's sensations and impressions on his first contacts with death and fear and mystery. There are fifteen selections in all, giving pictures from

JOYCE, JAMES—Continued

Dublin life, ironic, tragic and tender. They are written with an air of impersonal detachment and with little regard for plot, so that one may call them short stories or not as he chooses.

JUDD, CHARLES HUBBARD. Measuring the work of the public schools. diag 50c (1c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-4414

One of the larger volumes of the Cleveland educational survey. It is based on a series of tests given thruout the eight grades and the high schools of Cleveland, and consists of an analysis of these tests and a discussion of the problems which they brought to light. Contents: Problems exhibited by non-promotions; Observations in the schools; Tests and statistical studies; Tests of handwriting; Tests of spelling; Studies of arithmetic; Studies of reading; Kindergarten and primary grades; Relation between elementary schools and high schools; High schools. Some of the tests used are given in appendixes.

Cleveland p22 Mr '16 120w
El School J 16:344 Mr '16 1900w

"Contains conclusions that would probably apply to half the city school systems in the country."

+ Ind 86:346 My 29 '16 80w
Pittsburgh 21:236 My '16
St Louis 14:184 My '16

JUDGE, ARTHUR WILLIAM. Design of aero-planes. il *$3.50 Macmillan 629.1

"It presents in a simple yet brief form the principles underlying the design of aeroplanes from the standpoint of the mechanical engineer, and tabulates in a convenient form some of the data which experience has shown to be useful in design work. The author does not claim to treat every branch of the subject in full, and the frankness of this admission precludes criticism of what might by some be regarded as shortcomings. The book contains a great deal of information which the practical designer will find of service." Mechanical Engineer.—N Y P L New Tech Bks

Cleveland p111 Ag '16 50w

"So far as this book deals with details of experimental statistics, it fills a distinct want, and it is sure to receive favourable reviews in our engineering journals. But a great deal of the subject-matter is nothing more or less than boiled-down mathematics, and the process of boiling down has in some instances been conducted in rather an amateurish way; moreover, the book contains statements that are certainly misleading, if not worse, for they cannot be correct if read as they stand." G. H. B.

+ — Nature 98:45 S 21 '16 920w

N Y Br Lib News 3:125 Ag '16

"Reviewed in Aeronautics, July 19, 1916, p. 38, and Mechanical Engineer, June 30, 1916, p. 495."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p4 N '16 210w

JUDSON, KATHARINE BERRY. Early days in old Oregon. il *$1 (1½c) McClurg 979 16-14693

To the writing of this story for children, the author has brought the fruits of four years of special study. Three years were devoted to the collections of the Northwest and one year in London was given up to an examination of the Hudson's Bay company journals and other valuable material. "Simple as this book is," she says, "every statement is based on original authority. Comment on the British and American claims to the country is founded entirely upon sources." The story is written in interesting narrative style that will make pioneer days more real to the children of today. At the end there is "A brief summary of the history of the old Oregon country from original sources" which will be of value to the older student and teacher. There are also an annotated bibliography and an index.

A L A Bkl 13:88 N '16

+ Boston Transcript p7 Jl 15 '16 180w
+ Cleveland p158 D '16 20w

JUNG, CARL GUSTAV. Psychology of the unconscious; a study of the transformations and symbolism of the libido; a contribution to the history of the evolution of thought; auth. tr., with introd., by Beatrice M. Hinkle. *$4 Moffat 130 16-8826

"One of the principles established by Freud that perhaps astonished most of his readers is the one which sets forth that our most trivial impressions and experiences, even from earliest childhood, persist undying in the unconscious mind. In other words a man, though he may not know it in his conscious mind and memory, walks along the street today precisely the person that he was at the age of two—with all the memories of the age of two living and working in his depths. Jung, a pupil and follower of Freud, has carried this enormously further. Briefly put, his book, prodigiously packed with references to history, to literature, and mythology, sets out to prove that at least vestiges of the impressions and experiences and beliefs of ancient, and even of prehistoric, man have been handed down and persist in the unconscious mind of today."—Boston Transcript

"It is scarcely a book to win so wide a reading as that of Freud. The subject is far more abstract and farther removed from everyday experience. But to the scientist who has accepted the general principles of Freud, it will bring much new light. The danger is that its value may be obscured by the almost overwhelming sandstorm of facts which the author found necessary to the support of his tenets." B. K.

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 13 '16 1100w

"The courage to maintain the thesis and the erudition to carry through the exposition are the notable qualities of this remarkable book."

+ Dial 60:555 Je 8 '16 450w

"'Psychology of the unconscious' is the translator's title for 'Wandlungen und symbole der libido.' In this book Dr. Carl Jung, of Zurich, psychiatrist and psychologist of the Freudian school, presents some five hundred-odd pages of incoherence and obscenity in the form of a psycho-analytic interpretation of the experiences of a sentimental young American woman (published in a French journal of psychology), who wrote verses and believed herself to be inspired." Warner Fite

— Nation 103:127 Ag 10 '16 4200w

New Repub 6:21 My 6 '16 1350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:71 My '16

"There are books which none but a specialist should write about and perhaps none but a specialist should read. Such surely is Sigmund Freud's 'Studies in hysteria.' 'Psychology of the unconscious,' translated and introduced by Beatrice M. Hinkle of the neurological department of Cornell medical school, is of the same genre. . . . This review has not touched at all upon the main theme of Prof. Jung's book, namely, the Oedipus complex. The matter is so entirely pathological that the book belongs in the library of the pathologist, and not elsewhere."

N Y Sun p5 Je 11 '16 1800w

"Jung's book has deep interest, even when it does not convince, and it has great value for all of the already large, and steadily increasing, number of people who have accepted the Freudian psychology as a long step, probably the longest ever taken, toward an understanding of mental mysteries hitherto insoluble."

+ — N Y Times 21:217 My 21 '16 430w

St Louis 14:220 Je '16

"The translator of the book had a difficult task, and has generally succeeded in keeping the meaning and language clear through the very involved and abstruse discussions. Yet here and there she nods."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 18 '16 530w

"Dr. Hinkle has contributed an introduction which by itself is a good introduction to this whole romantic and practical subject." John Collier

Survey 37:497 Ja 27 '17 850w

JUSSERAND, JEAN ADRIEN ANTOINE JULES. With Americans of past and present days. *$1.50 (2c) Scribner 973 16-11605

A collection of historical and biographical studies bearing on the relations between our country and France. The first on "Rochambeau and the French in America" is based on unpublished documents. This is followed by papers and addresses on: Major L'Enfant and the federal city; Washington and the French; Abraham Lincoln; The Franklin medal; Horace Howard Furness; From war to peace. The last named is an address delivered before the American society for the judicial settlement of international disputes in 1910. The author has represented the French nation in Washington for the past thirteen years.

+ A L A Bkl 13:25 O '16

"In all these three hundred and fifty pages there is scarcely a sentence which betrays the writer as a foreigner. The style is always level; the meaning is always clear; the vocabulary is always ample and accurate." Brander Matthews

+ Bookm 43:589 Ag '16 1250w

"The author has been able to give added interest to his work by drawing upon some unpublished documents."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 350w

+ Cath World 103:688 Ag '16 190w

"It is representative of an admirable kind of scholarship that belongs peculiarly to France. It is sound, modest, and simple. Much knowledge was required to produce it, but little is required to understand it. In giving the volume to the public, M. Jusserand has rendered a service not only to America but to the cause of understanding and truth." R. W. Brown

+ Dial 61:138 S 7 '16 1850w

+ Ind 87:130 JI 24 '16 100w

+ Lit D 53:193 JI 22 '16 950w

+ Nation 103:109 Ag 3 '16 1600w

"One feels throughout M. Jusserand's book his pride in the free and sensitive French intelligence, with its fine indifference to the easily classified and its taste for appreciating the special. It is this intelligence which still believes there is a strong and essential solidarity between us and France, that each republic has much to gain from the other, nothing to lose, anywhere in the world." Edith Borie

+ New Repub 7:284 JI 15 '16 880w

+ N Y Times 21:209 My 21 '16 2150w

"There is so much more in these essays and addresses than historical learning, or amenity, or eloquence, that it is difficult to convey a just impression of the really great quality of the whole book without belying its modest scale and aim and the exquisitely simple style in which it is written. . . . The author is not merely a historian; he is what very few historians are—a thorough humanist."

+ No Am 204:143 JI '16 950w

+ Outlook 113:558 JI 5 '16 1900w

"Mr. Jusserand lays particular emphasis, for instance, on the little appreciated point that France helped us in our revolution because she loved liberty and not because she hated England. There was in France rather an Anglo mania than an Anglo phobia; and her engaging in our war is perhaps the most conspicuous case in all history of devotion to an ideal with the least admixture of interests possible to human affairs." Algernon Tassin

+ Pub W 90:605 Ag 19 '16 630w

+ R of Rs 54:347 S '16 100w

+ Spec 117:sup604 N 18 '16 1600w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p460 S 28 '16 920w

Reviewed by Barrett Wendell

+ Yale R ns 6:407 Ja '17 1350w

K

KAINS, MAURICE GRENVILLE. Plant propagation, greenhouse and nursery practice. il *$1.50 Judd 716 16-13187

"This attractively illustrated and carefully written treatise for nurserymen and other propagators, teachers, and students, and interested laymen, is from the experienced pen of the professor of horticulture in Pennsylvania state college. [It] brings together the latest information on all branches of practical and theoretical plant propagation, including chapters on nursery management, legislation affecting nursery stock, and suggested practicums for the teacher. Considerable attention has been given to the grafting theories of Lucien Daniel, many of which Professor Kains states have already been justified in practice. There are twelve tables giving cultural instruction for a large variety of seeds and plants."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

"Excellent for its exposition of modern nursery methods, replacing all other works except Bailey's 'Nursery-book.'"

+ A L A Bkl 13:208 F '17

"Books which have hitherto been available on crop propagation are now out of date and there has been a demand for a book which will describe these new advances. 'Plant propagation, greenhouse and nursery practice' meets this demand. . . . The volume is especially well illustrated."

Market Growers Journal 19:16 JI 1 '16 150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:95 Je '16

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p17 Ag '16 100w

KALAW, MAXIMO M. Case for the Filipinos; with introd. by Manuel L. Quezon. il *$1.50 (2c) Century 991.4 16-10882

The author of this book is a product of the American school system in the Philippines. He was a boy of school age at the time of the American occupation. He has passed thru the public schools and the University of the Philippines. In 1911 he came to Washington as secretary to the resident commissioner from the Philippines, Manuel L. Quezon and has studied law at Georgetown university. His purpose in this book is to present the case for Philippine independence from the point of view of the young Filipinos. He reviews the entire course of American-Filipino relations in chapters as follows: The birth of the Cuban republic; The acquisition of the Philippines; Refusals to disclose America's purpose; The protest of the Filipinos; President McKinley's instructions; Imperialism as the "paramount issue"; The struggle over a legislative assembly; Publicity campaign of the retentionists; The voice of the Filipino people; The Jones Philippine bill; The Clarke amendment.

+ A L A Bkl 13:25 O '16

"Mr. Kalaw's statements are made carefully, and his attitude while one of intense loyalty toward his own people is not extreme. He seeks in the best possible way to make clear to the American people that the Filipinos are anxious and able to govern themselves."

+ Boston Transcript p7 JI 22 '16 800w

"Every American who places principle before expediency should rejoice that such a book can emanate from one educated by Americans; in spite of his teachers, the author has caught our own belief in freedom."

+ Dial 61:68 JI 15 '16 450w

Ind 87:350 S 4 '16 50w

"An emotional plea rather than a piece of sober argument. . . . But it does succeed in telling much about the commercial aims of most retentionists, and about what the Jones bill would accomplish. Above all, it rises at times almost to eloquence."

+ Nation 103:88 JI 27 '16 320w

N Y Br Lib News 3:90 Je '16

KALAW, MAXIMO M.—Continued

"His account of Mr. Dean C. Worcester's publicity methods while commissioner and of the attitude of the people toward him when he returned to the islands as head of an industrial company throw much light upon the recent controversy between Mr. Worcester and Mr. W. Morgan Shuster. Mr. Kalaw has facts and documents with which to substantiate his arguments, and his book is one that no one can afford to miss who wishes to be well informed upon the relations between the Philippines and the United States."

+ N Y Times 21:262 Je 25 '16 520w

"Whatever may be our views regarding the wisdom of the Jones bill and the Clarke amendment, it is at least interesting and informing to have the Filipino point of view clearly stated."

+ R of Rs 53:755 Je '16 90w

"Well worth serious consideration and will probably greatly strengthen the cause."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 14 '17 210w

Wis Lib Bull 12:409 N '16 80w

KANE, WILLIAM R., comp. "1001 places to sell manuscripts"; the American writer's year book and directory to markets for manuscripts. $1.62 Editor co., Ridgewood, N. J. 655.5 15-21394

With each new edition of this useful guide the title becomes more of a literal misnomer. In this, the ninth edition, the number of places to sell manuscripts listed runs to over 4000. Trade, professional and standard publications are listed, as are book publishing houses, moving picture companies that buy scenarios, publishers of post cards, etc. These are arranged alphabetically and a subject index and index to magazines make the contents more readily accessible.

"A volume that is invaluable to literary workers. In fact nobody who writes to live, or who lives to write, can get along without it. We have tested '1001 places to sell manuscripts' here and there for accuracy, and find that it is as perfect as in humanly possible. Once in a while we may note a publication that is dead, once in a while we may discover an omission, but in view of the sudden changes taking place all the time in the publishing world, Mr. Kane has accomplished his work with exceptional skill." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 F 5 '16 380w

KAYE-SMITH, SHEILA. Sussex gorse; the story of a fight. *$1.50 Knopf

"Seventy years span the course of 'Sussex gorse.' At its beginning, its one dominant character is fifteen years of age. At its end he is eighty-five. Its action opens at Boarzell in Sussex, five miles from the seacoast town of Rye, in 1835. It closes at the same place in 1905. During that interval a new England of the twentieth century has grown out of the old England of the nineteenth century, but Reuben Backfield remains unchanged. . . . Nothing could change him, nothing could break down his indomitable will, neither praise nor blame could sway him from the single purpose of his life—the acquisition of Boarzell moor and its addition to the ancestral acres of his own Odiam farm. Three-quarters of a century were necessary to his task, but it was accomplished."—Boston Transcript

+ Ath p126 Mr '16 320w

"Although the story stretches over so long a time, its concentration in one scene and upon one single unchangeable personality, gives it all the inherent dramatic qualities of Greek tragedy. It deals with fate, and with a fate whose inevitability impresses the reader as forcibly as it controls the characters." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 9 '16 1400w

"It is a piece of history, as well as a powerful tale and events like the repeal of the Corn laws have due place in the perspective."

+ Library Association Record 18:176 Ap 15 '16 100w

"The question as to whether this story is really big and impressive or merely little and depressing must be decided with reference to its meaning."

No Am 204:943 D '16 730w

"Miss Kaye-Smith not only keeps in mind the politics and great events of the period but shows some special knowledge of things that affected Backfield so intimately as the laws of land tenure and the Sussex methods of farming. The gain in solidity and in verisimilitude is great. Reuben Backfield seems thoroughly 'real.' Yet there is no otiose imparting of information."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p106 Mr 2 '16 450w

KEABLE, ROBERT. City of the dawn. Il *$1.50 (3c) Dutton 276 16-8262

The author is an Anglican missionary in Mombasa, East Africa. His book is not confined to missionary labors however. He writes of the country, its people, its everyday life, its street scenes, of the influence of the East on a western mind, as well as of the encroachments of western civilization on the East. Arthur Christopher Benson in his introduction speaks of it as a "brilliant" book, "vivid, picturesque, impressive from end to end." He has always asked himself, he says, why descriptions of Christian mission work are generally dull, and commends Mr. Keable for his lack of that quality.

+ A L A Bkl 12:475 Jl '16

"Mr. Keable has the eye that sees, the mind that takes nothing for granted, and he has as well the English of the scholar and the poet. But the force and the appeal of his pages lie first in his absolute sincerity and frankness. In the priest is never lost the entirely human English gentleman, with all his fastidiousness, his sense of fitness and his sense of humor."

+ Ind 86:26 Ap 3 '16 220w

N Y Br Lib News 3:37 Mr '16

"The author portrays many interesting individuals in this strange part of the world where Arab, Hindu, Eurasian, African, and European live side by side."

+ N Y Times 21:151 Ap 16 '16 220w

"He sees and describes in prose that is almost poetic at times much that would escape the casual observer, and his optimism reveals lights in even the darkest pictures."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 5 '16 250w

KEARNEY, LILLIAN CECILIA. What every business man should know; a complete guide to business usages and requirements, with explanations of business terms and commercial forms. Il *$1.60 Stokes 658 16-20515

With a few minor changes this is a reprint of "What every business woman should know." The section on "Dress," for instance, has been rewritten but in all essential matters pertaining to business the two books are identical.

KEARNEY, LILLIAN CECILIA. What every business woman should know. Il *$1.60 Stokes 658 16-12743

This work, intended primarily for women, forms a useful handbook of business terms and practices, the use of which need not be limited to one sex or class. Using an alphabetical arrangement the author presents much useful information on matters indicated in her index under the general headings: Financial terms, Insurance terms, Legal terms, Printing and publishing terms, Railroad terms, Real estate terms, Steamship terms, and Miscellaneous terms.

"Does not at all take the place of Wilbur's 'Every-day business for women' (Booklist, 11: 471, Je '15) which is a continuous treatment and discusses business practices."

+ A L A Bkl 13:66 N '16

Boston Transcript p7 Jl 19 '16 520w

+ Ind 87:316 Ag 28 '16 50w

+ Pratt p24 O '16 20w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 130w

KEELER, HARRIET LOUISE. Our early wild flowers. il $1 Scribner 580 16-6461

"By early wild flowers is meant that group of herbaceous plants that finds its most congenial home in a region roughly defined as extending between parallels forty and fifty degrees of north latitude [southern Ohio to southern Canada] and westward from the Atlantic coast to the Mississippi valley at about meridian ninety-five degrees [west-central Minnesota]. . . . It is not meant that these plants are limited to this area, they frequently appear out of bounds, but this is their chosen habitat. The list includes those only that are habitually in bloom during the months of March, April, and May." (Intro.) In addition to the descriptive text there is a Glossary of botanical terms, Color key for identification of plants, Index of Latin names, Index of English names, and many illustrations, including color plates, drawings and photographs.

- + A L A Bkl 12:366 My '16
- + Dial 60:559 Je 8 '16 110w
- + Ind 86:74 Ap 10 '16 30w

"Comprehensive and authoritative."

- + Lit D 52:1710 Je 10 '16 190w

"These spring flowers number about 130, all but twenty of which are native. To each of them the author devotes a few pages, with a picture to help identification, some of these pictures being colored plates of rare beauty."

- + Nation 102:418 Ap 13 '16 330w
- + Pittsburgh 21:348 Jl '16 20w
- + R of Rs 53:509 Ap '16 70w

KEELER, HARRIET LOUISE, and WILD, LAURA HULDA. Ethical readings from the Bible. *40c Scribner 220.8 15-24501

"Feeling that there is a distinctive place, a distinctive need for the teaching of the ethical precepts of the Bible in our public schools, the compilers of this little book have gathered within it various excerpts which 'interpret themselves and are the common ground upon which all people of religious faith rest for their ethical ideals.' They hope withal that 'these selections may be used more widely than merely in our schools.'"

There is also a collection of prayers appropriate for especial occasions. The text used is in most cases that of the American revised version."—Boston Transcript

"A good collection for supplementary reading in schools."

- + A L A Bkl 12:355 My '16
- + Boston Transcript p24 Ja 12 '16 190w
- + Cleveland p4 F '16

"Particularly adapted for use in the opening exercises of a school."

- + Ind 87:257 Ag 14 '16 40w

KEITH, ARTHUR BERRIEDALE. Imperial unity and the dominions. *$4.15 (2c) Oxford 325.3 16-12260

A readjustment of the relationship between Great Britain and her self-governing colonies seems to be one of the probable outcomes of the war. Mr. Keith, who in 1911 published a work on "Responsible government in the dominions," considers the subject in this book. The ground of the earlier work is not gone over to any considerable extent, the subject matter of the new volume being drawn largely from the events of the past four years. Part 1 is devoted to The limitations of the autonomy of the dominions; part 2 to Possibilities of union. The author does not believe that the ideal of perfect unity is immediately attainable, but he outlines a plan, taking account among other things of the colonial demand for a voice in foreign policy, which he thinks will be a practical solution to the problem.

- + N Y Br Lib News 3:187 D '16 70w
- + St Louis 14:428 D '16 20w

"Professor Keith was formerly an official of the Colonial office, and it may be thought by some that his opinions are tainted to a rather excessive degree with the official spirit. But he writes with a very thorough knowledge of all the intricacies of colonial government. . . . His work is well worthy of the most serious attention. Both politicians and members of the general public will be able to form a very fair idea of the 'pros' and 'cons' of the whole question if they carefully study, on the one hand, the works of Mr. Curtis and Mr. Worsfold and, on the other, that of Professor Keith." [Earl of] Cromer

- + Spec 116:778 Je 24 '16 800w

"A book of the first importance for all who desire to understand the elements of the problem of British citizenship. . . . Here for the first time, so far as we know, is a comprehensive statement within a reasonable compass of the constitutional position as between Great Britain and the dominions. . . . In our opinion Dr. Keith is less reliable as a guide to the deductions which may justly be drawn from recent imperial history than as an exponent of the legal and constitutional meaning of that history."

- + — The Times [London] Lit Sup p195 Ap 27 '16 2050w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Hidden spring. il $1.25 (2c) Harper 16-8700

Owasco, a Michigan lumber town, was dominated by its millionaire lumberman, Quartus Hemby. He owned its bank, its stores, its industry, its courts, the fortunes and almost the souls of its citizens. The man who opposed him lost his chance of livelihood and often "by accident" his life. Into this backwater comes the young lawyer, Donald G. Keeth, a man of brains who so far has drifted with opportunity but in whom there is a "hidden spring" of latent energy. Thora Erickson helps him to find it when she challenges him to be a man, with courage to take the weaker side. Hemby unlocks it when he wantonly kicks Keeth's dog. Wheeler the woodsman, brings it to a current when he answers Keeth's statement "Two-thirds of Owasco's people are foreign. So long as they eat and sleep and have their bit of pleasure they don't care" with "The people—all of them—think right, and in the end they do right. What we need is somebody to tie to—and somebody to tie us together." Keeth leads the fight and the people vindicate their right to control their own courts, and homes, and lives.

"Published in the Delineator."

- + A L A Bkl 12:430 Je '16
- Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.
- + Bookm 43:539 Jl '16 250w
- + Boston Transcript p6 Ag 2 '16 150w

"The story is as exciting as it is improbable, but it is clean and fairly well written."

- + — Cath World 103:693 Ag '16 60w
- + N Y Times 21:303 Jl 30 '16 380w

"Mr. Kelland does some capable character drawing, evinces a pleasing humor, and develops an attractive romance."

- + Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 330w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:322 Jl '16 40w

KELLEY, JAMES PRENTICE. Workmanship in words. *$1 (2c) Little 808 16-20474

How beset with pitfalls is the path of him who has the temerity to use words! Even the layman who has no aspiration to appear in print cannot feel at ease; Mr. Kelley's book is addressed in part to him. "The whole discourse of this book," he says, "bears no less upon private communication than upon what is addressed to the public; and upon the spoken word as well as the written or printed page." Four short introductory chapters are followed by sections devoted to: Grammatical propriety; Clearness; Ease; Force. The whole book is enlivened with quotations (by way of bad examples) from distinguished men and women of letters, many of them contemporary.

- + A L A Bkl 13:152 Ja '17

"There is not a dull page in the book."

- + Cath World 104:412 D '16 150w
- + Cleveland p139 N '16 40w
- + Dial 61:355 N 2 '16 300w

KELLEY, JAMES PRENTICE—Continued

"Good-humored, vivacious, and somewhat scandalous book. . . . The company of sinners is so large and so fine that it is something of a distinction to be damned with them."

Nation 103:567 D 14 '16 330w

N Y Br Lib News 3:152 O '16

+ N Y Times 21:572 D 24 '16 70w

"His book is keenly and modestly written, and is precisely the sort of book that should be popular—or actively popularized in this age."

+ Springfield Republican p8 S 29 '16 520w

KELLOR, FRANCES ALICE. Straight America; a call to national service. (Our national problems) *50c (1½c) Macmillan 325.7

16-14647

Miss Kellor believes in preparedness in the military sense but in this book she is more concerned with the preparedness in citizenship on which military strength must be based. Because of her work with newcomers to America, she is at her best in discussing the problems of immigration and the Americanization of the immigrant. Contents: What is the matter with America? Americanism; The native American; American-made citizens; The popular vote; National unity.

"Miss Kellor's book is a curious compound. Parts of it read like an impassioned campaign speech for the Republican side of the political struggle in which we are now engaged. Also, on some of its pages, its point of view and its basis of fact are so distinctly and so limitedly of the Atlantic seaboard that there are a good many thousands of people in this country lacking in neither intelligence nor patriotism who would never consent to measure their Americanism by her yardstick." F. F. Kelly

+ — Bookm 44:70 S '16 400w

+ — Ind 88:506 D 18 '16 50w

"It is the ruling class which needs democratizing. Miss Kellor's program of Americanization can be realized only through a far more socialized conception of 'national unity.' Her 'Straight America' confuses two ideals. Her 'national unity' conflicts with her cooperative Americanism." R. S. B.

— + New Repub 8:197 S 23 '16 550w

"Every word of her drastic arraignment of the native American for his neglect of his duties to the immigrant is deserved, and her chapters on that subject ought to be read from every pulpit in the country and studied by every woman's club and public forum."

+ N Y Times 21:239 J1 23 '16 630w

Pittsburgh 21:508 N '16

"Miss Kellor's plain-speaking volume helps to clarify thought and to focus attention on the actual problems that confront us at the present time. The book is terse and readable; its logic cannot be gainsaid nor the forcefulness of its argument ignored."

+ R of Rs 54:326 S '16 790w

+ Special Libraries 7:163 N '16 110w

"Her statement of the case for military preparedness, for industrial mobilization, universal service and a settled international policy, is quite as sketchy as the most casual comment in a newspaper favoring these things might be. . . . 'Straight America' has all the faults of a book dashed off by a clever person in what was apparently a very great hurry. But it has the merits of that kind of a work as well. It has energy; and, whether you agree with Miss Kellor or not, she is often stimulating."

+ — Springfield Republican p6 Ag 21 '16 620w

Survey 36:528 Ag 19 '16 380w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p492 O 12 '16 80w

KELLY, ELEANOR MERCEIN. Kildares of Storm. il *$1.40 (1½c) Century 16-21973

Long before this story opens Kate Kildare of Storm had come to the grim old house in the foothills of the Kentucky mountains a bride. She had been a belle of the blue grass country below but had been carried away from her many admirers by the dashing, masterful Basil Kildare. She had passed thru her disillusionment, had borne two children, had learned to love another man than her husband, had seen Basil Kildare die and had watched her lover go from her condemned as his murderer. All this lies in the background when the big, splendid and impulsive mistress of Storm is introduced in the opening chapters of this story. Her two daughters, who have an inheritance from the Kildares of Storm, are on the verge of womanhood and while they are important in the development of the tale, it is the mother who is always the outstanding figure.

"A modern story of a modern woman who is so big in her character that we recognize her prototype in the leaders of every age of women, but who has sprung up and gained all her individualities out of the soil and the conditions in which she has lived." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p7 O 28 '16 970w

"A dramatic story well told, and told with an astonishing degree of respect for the intelligence and common sense of the reader. . . . The novel is swiftly moving, 'strong,' and if not very elevated, at least extremely good reading."

+ Dial 61:537 D 14 '16 250w

"The men, as so often in novels written by women, are either scoundrels or quixotic saints; but the three women are wonderfully alive. The vitality and force of these characters make the story noteworthy and give promise of greater achievement for the author."

+ Nation 104:134 F 1 '17 340w

KELLY, MARSHALL. Carlyle and the war. *$1 (1½c) Open ct. 940.91 16-6004

The author looks on Carlyle as England's greatest prophet and holds that had his teachings been followed Great Britain could not have been drawn into the war. He is a Briton and the book was written for Britons, altho he confesses that as the work progressed and he began to realize that he should have to look to America for a publisher he tended more and more to write for an American audience. France and England are declared the aggressors on the western front and other statements contrary to those held by the author's countrymen are supported. Consciously or unconsciously Mr. Kelly imitates Carlyle's style.

— Am Pol Sci R 10:582 Ag '16 150w

"A volume so pervasively reflecting such a spirit is thereby compromised in all fair and candid minds. There is no denying a frequent acuteness in Mr. Kelly's criticism of Britain, but the usual courtesies of debate are not observed and the careful reader will be doubtful of the value of the book from the first."

+ — Boston Transcript p7 Ap 15 '16 180w

— Boston Transcript p6 Je 10 '16 320w

"An attack of giddiness or vertigo is likely to be the result of any attempt to plough through the pages of 'Carlyle and the war.' 'The conclusion,' says the author, 'will be written if at all, after the war is over.' We beg him to forbear—unless in the interval, be it long or short, he has learned to use intelligible language. . . . The result has been the spoiling of what might otherwise have been a useful book. The general point of view from which the author surveys the world-tragedy of to-day is one that requires emphasis among English-speaking peoples."

+ — Dial 60:476 My 11 '16 500w

Ind 87:168 J1 31 '16 60w

"It is clear enough that Mr. Kelly is pro-German rather than pro-British—clear enough, that is, if one reads far enough, and close enough, to be sure what Carlyle always meant, or what Mr. Kelly thinks he meant, or what Mr. Kelly actually means himself. Some of his utterances are in plain English, which can not be mistaken."

— Lit D 52:980 Ap 8 '16 250w

"His attempt to yoke up Carlyle with the Germany of the world war would be a little more comprehensible if he did not ignore the fact that the Germany and the German character which he declares Carlyle knew, 'as no other Briton has ever known,' was not the Germany of the present and recent years. It was the old Germany of philosophy, literature, art, and music. The modern militaristic, industrial, and materialized Germany was beyond the furthest outskirts of his vision."

— N Y Times 21:192 My 7 '16 250w
R of Rs 53:628 My '16 40w

KELLY, ROBERT J. Jim—unclassified; a romance. *$1.35 (2c) Dodd 16-15150

Jim, who tells his own story, is an English lad, and it is the mystery of his parentage that puts him in the ranks of the unclassified. He never could believe that John Sturgess, the inn-keeper, was his father, and his likeness to the Lorrilow family, and the strange antipathy with which Lady Lorrilow regards him, add to the puzzle. Jim is adopted by a kind-hearted Irish doctor, becomes a painter of note, learns the secret of his ancestry, and marries the doctor's daughter who since his boyhood has been to him the little "princess."

"The story is for some elusive reason reminiscent of 'Oliver Twist.' Perhaps its sentimentality, perhaps the affectations of its style, serve to remind one of Dickens's more deplorable characteristics. Although Mr. Kelly's bombast is without much excuse, the plot does not lack ingenuity."

— Boston Transcript p9 S 30 '16 170w
+ N Y Times 21:380 S 24 '16 530w

"The situation is so transparently improbable that interest flags after the opening chapters."

— Springfield Republican p15 Ja 14 '17 220w

KELSEY, CARL. Physical basis of society. *$2 2 (2c) Appleton 304 17-274

The author is professor of sociology at the University of Pennsylvania and this book is an outgrowth of lectures he has been in the habit of giving to his classes preparatory to their work in sociology. The chapters take up: Earth and man; Mutual aid and the struggle for existence; The control of nature; The evolution of man; Heredity; Heredity and society; Race differences; Sex differences; The influences of society upon population; Social institutions; The nature of progress. The author has drawn freely on the work of other modern writers and he appends to each chapter a short list of references.

Boston Transcript p9 Ja 6 '17 470w

KELYNACK, THEOPHILUS NICHOLAS, ed. Drink problem of to-day in its medico-sociological aspects. *$2.50 Dutton 178 16-22006

"This book is a revised and enlarged version of 'The drink problem,' published in February, 1907. Mainly it is a new book, and it claims to be a pioneer work in many respects. There are fourteen articles and fourteen experts give in brief their views and convictions. Every one of them writes with a free hand on a definite subject, and is alone responsible for his paper; but there is a general aim, and it is observed fairly well. The aim is to present principles and to indicate laws governing the drink problem."—Sat R

Nature 98:247 N 30 '16 380w

"Even in the present book, a work mainly of science, there are a good many sentences that offend against discretion. . . . Some other passages in this book invite criticism, either from those who think historically or from those who expect scientific inquiry to turn hypotheses into theories by collecting and verifying enough evidence. But all the articles set thought in movement."

+ Sat R 121:615 Je 24 '16 1700w

"All the writers are agreed that indulgence in alcohol, even in moderation, is deleterious, and when carried to excess exceedingly harmful to the race, physically, mentally and spiritually. Dr. Sims Woodhead from the pathological standpoint, Dr. Claye Shaw from the psychological point of view, and Dr. Sullivan in his study of the relation of alcoholism to crime may be said to arrive at the conclusion expressed by Dr. Woodhead in his summing-up: 'Alcohol lowers vitality, impairs judgment, sterilizes initiative, absorbs wealth, vitiates morality, and in raising the morbidity-rate increases the death-rate.' Strong advocates as we are of prohibition during the war for the sake of national efficiency, we are naturally particularly interested to find our views confirmed, if not in actual words, in substance, by the various writers."

+ Spec 117:106 J1 22 '16 950w

"Although the book discusses British conditions, it contains a great amount of material that should be of value to American sociologists. The thoroughness and scientific restraint with which the various contributors present their conclusions constitute the book's solid claims on the attention of intelligent publicists."

+ Springfield Republican p8 N 23 '16 390w

"The several authors are mostly known by the energy with which, on all occasions, they have been accustomed to attribute the chief evils of the day to 'drink,' and they do not include any individual of such generally recognized scientific position as, for example, is conferred by the Fellowship of the Royal Society. . . . Of real 'inquiry,' or of that genuine endeavor to know all the conditions of the problem which would be the first step towards its solution, we can only say regretfully that we find no trace."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p242 My 25 '16 950w

KENDALL, CALVIN NOYES, and MIRICK, GEORGE ALONZO. How to teach the fundamental subjects. (Riverside textbooks in education) diags *$1.25 Houghton 371.3 15-23622

"Mr. C. N. Kendall and Mr. G. A. Mirick have long been associated in school work. They were in Indianapolis in the superintendent's office together and afterward in the state educational office of New Jersey." (El School J) "[Their book] gives the guiding principles for selecting material in the 'fundamental subjects' for the various grades of the elementary schools, and methods of dealing with the material selected. Devotes half of the space to English which is made to include reading, speaking, composition, grammar, spelling, penmanship; considers also mathematics, geography, civics and hygiene. Frequent reading lists." (A L A Bkl)

"Practical, definitely helpful book."

+ A L A Bkl 12:454 J1 '16

"Perhaps the most significant contribution of this book is the series of illuminating suggestions about organizing the geographical-historical group of subjects. In the chapter on English the authors have emphasized as perhaps the second most important of their contributions methods of cultivating silent reading as contrasted with oral reading. There is one insistent question which arises after one has read the book. Why distinguish as fundamental the subjects here discussed from the school subjects not mentioned?"

+ El School J 12:223 Ja '16 500w

Ind 87:349 S 4 '16 60w

KENDALL, OSWALD. Romance of the Martin Connor. il *$1.25 (1½c) Houghton 16-18912

The "Martin Connor" was a tramp steamer, the pride and joy of her owner, Captain Hawks. She was not lovely to the eye, but it was the captain's delight to spend sums on her up-keep that made her the soundest and best equipped of floating craft. The captain took equal pride in his crew and chose them with care, from Andrew Kinnaird McLushley, the Scotch engineer with a passion for the poetry of Felicia Hemans, down to little Twocents, the cabin boy. "Cert'nly Wilfred," the Cockney cook, was another gem of his kind. This is the story of the "Martin Connor's" cruise from Galveston to the headwaters of the Amazon, and of the strange and thrilling adventures that befel her and her crew. The story was published in the Youth's Companion in 1916.

+ A L A Bkl 13:124 D '16

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

KENDALL, OSWALD—Continued

"To anyone who likes stories of the sea, of adventure and of foreign shores, the adventures of the Martin Connor will prove red-blooded enough for the most exacting. The book is extremely well written, having more in common in point of style and general excellence with Stevenson's novels than with the contemporary tales of adventure. It is genuine romance." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 4 '16 950w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:351 N 2 '16 750w

"The description of rankly luxurious growths along the Amazon river, animals and inhabitants of this almost isolated country is fascinating."

+ Lit D 53:1040 O 21 '16 200w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 103:508 N 30 '16 90w

"We must admit that the name of Oswald Kendall is new to us; but we certainly do not intend to miss the pleasure of reading any of his future books."

+ N Y Times 21:484 N 12 '16 550w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 440w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 50w

KENISTON, JAMES MORTIMER. Kingdom of the mind; how to promote intelligent living and avert mental disaster. *$1.25 (3c) Putnam 613 16-23364

From his experience with the mentally afflicted (Dr. Keniston has been a member of the medical staff of the Connecticut hospital for the insane) the author has written this book which aims to help normal minded people to make the most of their mental abilities. The book is based on lectures delivered before the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations. It begins by emphasizing the relation between a sound body and a sound mind, considers the various mental powers, perception, memory, judgment, etc., and then devotes chapters to Sources of strength, Sources of weakness, Stability, Joy in life, and similar subjects.

KENNAN, GEORGE. Chicago and Alton case; a misunderstood transaction. priv ptd G: Kennan, 1038 5th av., N. Y. 385 16-3643

"In the 'Chicago and Alton case' George Kennan has reviewed the Interstate commerce commission's investigation of Mr. Harriman's reorganization of the Chicago and Alton railroad and the criticism that ran with and followed the investigation."—Ind

"It is a good comment on investigations and on critical methods, and a good defense of Mr. Harriman and his hundred financial associates who, with a widely approved scheme, improved the road greatly both physically and as an investment—tho it met misfortune later."

+ Ind 85:430 Mr 20 '16 80w

N Y Times 21:304 J1 30 '16 720w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 22 '16 250w

KENT, CHARLES FOSTER. Work and teachings of the Apostles. map *$1.25 Scribner 227 16-26370

This is the sixth and final volume of Professor Kent's "Historical Bible." In it he presents the "chronological synthesis of the material in the epistles and the Acts" which he considers "an indispensable prerequisite for the intelligent study of apostolic Christianity." The story from the Acts and the epistles is told as a continuous narrative with alternating paragraphs of commentary. The device of different type is used to prevent confusion. There is a folding map, a chronological chart, a bibliographical note, and suggested questions and subjects for special research.

"The point of view of present-day criticism is maintained unless it be in regard to the historical accuracy of Acts." J: P. Deane

+ Am J Theol 21:127 Ja '17 460w

+ A L A Bkl 12:450 J1 '16

"There is a splendid chapter on the 'Historical and religious background of the apostolic age.'"

... The book is very opportune and ought to be of very great service to teachers and advanced students in the Bible schools where the International lessons are being studied."

+ Bib World 48:311 N '16 180w

"We know of no work on the Bible that makes it appear such a vital force among men as does this series, and now that it is completed the student of the Scriptures can get from the constructive modern standpoint a systematic working knowledge of the entire biblical field."

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 6 '16 370w

+ Ind 86:554 Je 26 '16 40w

N Y Br Lib News 3:93 Je '16

"The book makes use of the best and most largely accepted of the critical results of modern study of the New Testament. It puts biblical discovery and research in the most accessible forms. Prof. Kent's explanations and comments are masterly and illuminating."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 130w

KENT, CHARLES FOSTER, and JENKS, JEREMIAH WHIPPLE. Testing of a nation's ideals. (Bible's message to modern life) *75c Scribner 221.9 15-14677

This volume follows "The twelve studies on the making of a nation" by the same authors published in 1913, and treats of 'Israel's history from the settlement to the Assyrian period.' "It contains twelve studies of political economy as exemplified by the Old Testament. They show the development of political unity and the building of the nation, the importance of personal character in a public official and leader, the emptiness of culture without religion, the importance of a sound financial policy, and other topics bearing on a nation's destiny." (Bib World) The book contains bibliographies.

+ Am J Theol 20:464 J1 '16 160w

+ A L A Bkl 12:213 F '16

"The book is remarkably clear and composed; there is none better for a Bible class of intelligent adults. A preacher might use it with advantage as the basis or framework of a series of evening addresses."

+ Bib World 46:318 N '15 80w

"Throughout there are references to modern books of political science and an application of Bible principles to present day problems."

+ Cleveland p5 F '16 40w

Pittsburgh 21:60 F '16 30w

"An interesting departure from the usual type of Bible-study outline."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:182 Ap '16 70w

KENT, ROBERT THURSTON. Power transmission by leather belting. (Wiley engineering ser.) il *$1.25 Wiley 621.8 16-14732

"Concurrently with the development of improved methods of production there has grown up an improved system of belting practice, which has kept pace with production. The literature of these improved belting methods is buried in transactions of engineering societies and in the files of technical journals. . . . The object of this book has been to gather together the best information on the new practice and compile it in a form that would be of the greatest service to the belt user."—Preface."—N. Y. P L New Tech Bks

Cleveland p150 D '16 20w

+ Engin N 76:944 N 16 '16 130w

"Reviewed in Machinery, Aug., 1916, p. 1108; in Practical Engineer, Chicago, Aug. 1, 1916, p. 682."

N Y P L New Tech Bks p12 Ag '16 130w

+ Pratt p20 O '16 20w

St Louis 15:13 Ja '17

KENT, WILLIAM. Mechanical engineers' pocket book; a reference-book of rules, tables, data, and formulae. il *$5 Wiley 621.08 15-27736

The 8th edition of this handbook was published in 1910. In this revision the author has again had the assistance of his son, Robert Thurston Kent. The preface states that the notable advances and changes of standard in engineering made in the years which have elapsed between the two editions have involved alterations in over 400 pages of the 8th edition and the addition of over 150 pages of new matter. The chapter on machine-shop practice has been rewritten and doubled in size. The subject of electrical engineering has been completely rewritten and brought into agreement with present practice. Of the many new tables added the editors name 18 as being in their judgment of special importance; these include Square roots of fifth powers, Analyses and heating values of coals, Electric resistance and conductivity of wires, Street railway installation, Illuminating data. The total number of pages in the volume is over 1,500, much of the matter in the earlier volumes having been condensed to provide for the insertion of new matter without the increasing of the book to unwieldy proportions.

+ A L A Bkl 12:302 Mr '16

"Professor Kent's handbook is one of the best known and most used reference books of its kind, a reputation gained by the extremely practical nature of the material it contains and its accuracy. . . . The most extensive revision of the handbook is found in the section devoted to electrical engineering. The author acknowledges the assistance in this work of David B. Rushmore, consulting engineer of the General electric company. . . . A slight type change has been made in the index which has greatly improved its service to the user of the book."

+ Elec World 67:108 Ja 8 '16 520w

"The first considerable changes are evident in notes on materials, where there are late data (1914-16) on refractories, steel products, roofing, etc.—notably the tables on pipe, sheets, wire, bolts and nuts. . . . A very respectable addition is made of motor sizes required for machine tools and woodworking machines and of shop power requirements. . . . There are minor places where the highly specialized searcher will find weakness and ancient flavor—to take a single example, records of centrifugal water-works pump operation that tread closely on the heels of the best engine figures are missing."

+ Engin N 75:748 Ap 20 '16 450w

"Reviewed in Mining & Scientific Press, Jan. 15, 1916; Gas Age, March 15, 1916; in Engineering & Mining Journal, March 18, 1916, p. 534; in Electrical Review and Western Electrician, May 6, 1916, p. 820; Power, May 21, 1916, p. 637; American Machinist, May 11, 1916, p. 835; Engineering News, April 20, 1916."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p14 My '16 130w

"The standard for mechanical engineers in America and probably the best known engineering work in existence. Among other books of this nature are: Haswell's 'Mechanics' and engineers' pocket-book,' Supplee's 'Mechanical engineers' reference book,' and Sames's 'Pocket-book of mechanical engineering,' in the last of which an effort has been made to select only the most important material, thus limiting the size to 'pocket' dimensions."

+ Pittsburgh 21:535 N '16 60w

KEPHART, HORACE. Camping and woodcraft; a handbook for vacation campers and for travelers in the wilderness. il *$1.50 (1c) Outing pub. 796 16-16134

v 1 Camping.

This is a revision of the author's "Book of camping and woodcraft," published in 1906. The original work was a pocket manual planned for those who go far into the wilderness and who must travel light. In the new edition account is taken of those vacation campers who plan summer outings nearer home. Outfitting, Light camp equipment, Camp making, The camp-fire, Clothing, Pests of the woods, are some of the subjects covered and eight chapters are devoted to Camp cookery.

A L A Bkl 13:93 N '16

N Y Br Lib News 3:155 O '16

+ N Y Times 21:472 N 5 '16 90w

"It is to the amateur, the 'tenderfoot,' the 'cheechako,' whose knowledge of camp literature is as slight as his canniness in woodcraft, that the volume will prove a veritable boon."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 24 '16 500w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:453 D '16 50w

KERFOOT, JOHN BARRETT. How to read. 2 *$1.25 (2½c) Houghton 028 16-22768

Nine essays selected from the "Talks on reading" that have been appearing in the Dellin-eator. Contents: Learning to read; Muckraking the dictionary; Watching the wheels go round; What's the use; A sense of direction; The world outside us and the world within; Intellectual digestion; How to read a novel; The cosmos à la carte.

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 18 '16 750w

"The book belongs on one's handiest reference shelf. Its assimilation requires, or, rather, deserves more than a single reading." H: Gollomb

+ N Y Call p15 Ja 28 '17 450w

R of Rs 55:213 F '17 150w

KEROFILAS, C. Eleftherios Venizelos, his life and work, with an introd. by M. Take Jonesco; tr. by Beatrice Barstow. *$1.25 (3½c) Dutton (Eng ed 15-25942)

The subject of this sketch is a contemporary Greek statesman, of whom his biographer says, "Carlyle would assuredly have included him among his 'Heroes.'" M. Venizelos, he continues, "is a rare type; a man who, finding his country in the throes of a military revolution, restored it and raised it to the highest triumphs of victory. . . . He found Greece small, misunderstood, humiliated; he made her great, twice victorious, covered with glory and confident in the future." The author recognizes the difficulties of writing the life of a contemporary, and says that this work makes no pretensions to being a complete history. He describes it as an "anecdotal work" which may have a value to the historian of the future as a corollary to other documents.

+ A L A Bkl 12:425 Je '16

"Unfortunately, it is, in many respects, not worthy of its subject. It appears to have been put together in haste; its chronology is somewhat confusing; and, while it tells us much about the politician and the statesman and his parliamentary and diplomatic triumphs, it fails to give any clear impression of the man himself. As an estimate of character, the brief introduction which M. Take Jonesco contributes is worth all the rest of the book taken together. But in spite of its shortcomings the book is well worth reading at the present time, and the reader will find it interesting enough throughout, though it lacks the touch of hero-worship that one expects to find in such a work."

+ — Ath 1915:2:347 N 13 380w

Boston Transcript p9 Mr 4 '16 480w

+ Cath World 103:403 Je '16 250w

+ Ind 88:329 N 20 '16 50w

+ Lit D 53:622 S 9 '16 160w

+ Nation 102:548 My 18 '16 350w

"The account of M. Venizelos's Cretan work is especially welcome. His activities since his coming to Athens in 1909, are more familiar."

+ N Y Times 21:137 Ap 9 '16 580w

"By far the best thing in this book is the introduction by the well-known Roumanian statesman, M. Take Jonesco. He praises M. Venizelos for the right reasons, and, as his own principles have always resembled those of M. Venizelos, he praises with the sympathy of perfect understanding. Not that Dr. Kerofilas praises M. Venizelos for wrong reasons, but he falls short by a long way of the art of biography. Still, his rather pedestrian performance is sure to interest English readers, for it supplies all the essential facts in M. Venizelos's remarkable career."

+ — Spec 115:579 O 30 '15 1350w

"The first book to appear in English which is concerned exclusively with his career. The account is unpretentious and anecdotal; Dr. Kerofilas is far too biased in favor of his subject to be regarded as a critical biographer. Hero worship is evident in his every line. The fact itself is notable; Dr. Kerofilas's adulation mirrors the attitude of the great majority of the Greek people."

KEROFILAS, C.—Continued

+ — Springfield Republican p15 Mr 5 '16 430w

KERR, S. PARNELL. What the Irish regiments have done; with a diary of a visit to the front by J. E. Redmond. *1s 6d T. Fisher Unwin, London 940.91 16-6518

"This little book owes its being to the fact that . . . the Irish people, both those at home and those who are fighting or getting ready to fight, resent aspersions upon Irish loyalty and Irish eagerness to do their share for the empire. The work gives a glimpse of how large and important that share has been and continues to be and more than a glimpse of the ardent, self-forgetting spirit in which it is being done. Mr. Redmond spent a week at the western battle front last November, and in some twenty pages gives in outline the story of his observations in the British, French, and Belgian lines."—N Y Times

N Y Br Lib News 3:120 Ag '16

"The little volume is one of the most interesting records of valor that the war has brought out. Mr. Kerr's labor of love is of distinct value, not only as a well-deserved tribute to the part the Irish soldiers are taking in the war, but also as a thrilling and inspiring witness to the dauntlessness of man's soul in the face of death."

+ N Y Times 21:119 Ap 2 '16 480w

"Mr. Kerr makes a frank and worthy appeal for national unity. He draws from this brief, still unfinished but glowing, record a moral for ourselves and all who are Irish, and he repeats the profession of faith that the unionists and nationalists who fought at Ypres and stormed the hill at Suva have sealed a new bond of patriotism."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p110 Mr 9 '16 520w

KERR, SOPHIE. Love at large; being the amusing chronicles of Julietta Carson. il *$1.25 (2c) Harper 16-6607

Short stories of married life reprinted from McClure's and Collier's. Julietta Carson, wife of Lonny Carson, is described by her author as "more of a Julietta than a Mrs. Carson—if you know what I mean." She and her husband belong to the prosperous suburbanite class. Julietta is a small, vivacious person, with a sense of humor, a temper and other human qualities. Lonny is the typically masculine, self-satisfied and not always astute husband who forms the proper background for a sparkling wife. The stories are: Green-eyes; The old-fashioned wife; The poor working-girl; Julietta-tired-of-her-husband; Eggs chipolata; Assisting George; The gayest woman in Marchmont; Julietta eats the canary; Lonny puts one over.

"The theme of one story 'The gayest woman in Marchmont' is unconventional and awakes sympathy for the woman who felt herself forced to take 'the easiest way.' A few libraries may not wish to use this."

+ — A L A Bk1 12:482 J1 '16

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:326 My '16 300w

"From first to last the 'adventures' of Julietta radiate not only the joy of living, but that sympathy which only married love can know."

+ Boston Transcript p6 J1 12 '16 230w

+ N Y Times 21:223 My 28 '16 270w

"The little rifts that occasionally disturb the most serene domestic atmosphere are made the subjects of a series of entertaining sketches. The book is light and sparkles with infectious humor. The outstanding element is healthful optimism."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 190w

"We find Julietta moderately amusing, though not nearly so amusing as the author thinks."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p251 My 25 '16 150w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:322 J1 '16 40w

KERRICK, HARRISON SUMMERS. Military and naval America. il *$2 (2c) Doubleday 355.7 16-21558

The author says, "As far as practical, the language of army and navy regulations, manuals, official and semi-official reports and publications has been used in order that this volume may be considered a compendium of trustworthy military and naval information." The author is a captain in the Coast artillery corps and his book has been prepared in the belief that "in the last analysis, the security of our homes, institutions, and constitution is contingent upon adequate military and naval power." (Foreword) The book has an introduction by Edmund J. James, president of the University of Illinois.

+ A L A Bk1 13:201 F '17

"A book which will answer, in brief form, practically all the questions being asked about the organization of the army and navy, and is recent enough to include a chapter on reorganization of the militia by the act of June 3, 1916, and also references to summer training camps for men and women. As footnotes to chapters, appear quotations on national defence excerpted from party platforms, and the speeches of President Wilson, C. E. Hughes and others. Unfortunately these quotations are not mentioned in the index, which will interfere with the book's usefulness for debate work."

+ Cleveland p148 D '16 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:186 D '16

+ N Y Times 21:580 D 31 '16 130w

+ R of Rs 54:684 D '16 50w

KEY, ELLEN KAROLINA SOFIA. War, peace, and the future; tr. by Hildegard Norberg. *$1.50 (2½c) Putnam 172.4 16-22189

In August, 1914, the following question was put to Ellen Key: "In what way can humanity prevent war? Is it, according to your opinion, possible, and if so by what means?" Her answer was: "The belief that we some day shall be able to prevent war is to me one with the belief in the possibility of making humanity really human." In this book, to which she gives the sub-title "A consideration of nationalism and internationalism, and of the relation of women to war," she undertakes to amplify the above reply by pointing out more specifically the ways in which the desired end may be attained. Education, the press, diplomacy and statesmanship are forces that must be coordinated in the interests of peace and the elimination of war. Many generations may pass before the end is realized, but Ellen Key's vision of it is none the less clear.

A L A Bk1 13:198 F '17

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 11 '16 970w

"The very lack of any conspicuous brilliance of style, the absence of any striking originality, the restraint from all attempts at smartness, give the work a solidity and persuasive value all its own. . . . There is a dominant tone of optimism, and a clear faith in the future, but no failure to perceive existing evils and deficiencies." T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 61:465 N 30 '16 710w

Lit D 53:1719 D 30 '16 340w

Nation 104:48 Ja 11 '17 250w

"Her book, with its mass of correlated detail, is an economic study informed with the deepest human sympathy and appreciation."

+ N Y Times 21:440 O 22 '16 1550w

"The convictions expressed in this book are far more clear-cut than usual in Ellen Key's writings." M. A. Hopkins

+ Pub W 90:1415 O 21 '16 620w

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 880w

"We have not found in this book nearly so illuminating an exposition of the inherent conflict of loyalties in the heart and mind of modern man as has been given us, for instance, by the late Professor Royce." Bruno Lasker

Survey 37:469 Ja 20 '17 540w

KEYSER, CASSIUS JACKSON. Human worth of rigorous thinking. *$1.75 (2c) Columbia univ. press 510.4 16-14063

Fifteen essays reprinted from various scientific and philosophical journals. The author is professor of mathematics at Columbia and his two essays, "Science and religion" and "The new infinite and the old theology," published separately, the first in 1914, the second in 1915, have already introduced him to readers as a philosophical thinker. The first essay, from which the title of the book is taken, considers the human value of mathematics, the author applying to this science Bertrand Russell's test: In what way does it contribute to the beauty of human existence? The essays that follow are all related. As the author says, "the title of the volume indicates its subject."

+ Ath p476 O '16 100w

"The essays themselves are excellent examples of rigorous thinking, and the thinking is as lucid as it is rigorous." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p6 J1 19 '16 400w

+ Cath World 104:116 O '16 70w

+ Dial 61:112 Ag 15 '16 70w

N Y Times 21:328 Ag 20 '16 60w

KIBLER, THOMAS LATIMER. Commodities' clause. $3 Byrne 385 16-4462

"Professor Kibler presents a brief but adequate history of the attempts of transportation companies in the United States to engage in the business of mining and manufacturing commodities to be transported by their own lines; and of the attempts to prevent such combination of interests. He takes a strong and effective stand against combinations of this kind."—Ann Am Acad

"This book evidences accuracy, thorough research, and painstaking labor in the gathering of material from the sources. It is not, however, without its faults. Distinctly less care has been shown in the utilization of the material collected than in its collection." Eliot Jones
+ — Am Econ R 6:628 S '16 450w

+ Ann Am Acad 67:303 S '16 60w

"The reader might be led by the title of this instructive work to conclude that it is a thoroughgoing technical treatise on the legal aspects of railroad reform legislation; but he will find rather an interesting story of the conditions which gave rise to the necessity for the enactment of the clause in question, and a vivid description of the various stages through which the act passed in the process of its making, due to the conflict of interests in Congress. Last of all but not least, Mr. Kibler shows in what respects the act is weak and has not served the purpose for which it was intended, and points out a remedial course of action."
+ J Pol Econ 24:830 O '16 260w

KIDDER, FRANK EUGENE. Architects' and builders' pocket-book. *$5 Wiley 690.2 15-28163

"In the seven years which have elapsed since the previous edition of Kidder's well-known pocketbook for architects and builders was issued, in 1908, many new developments in the field of building construction have taken place. The new sixteenth edition has therefore been entirely rewritten and reset by Professor Nolan and an able corps of thirteen associate editors, of whom nine are engineers. . . . The original arrangement in three main divisions has been retained: Part 1 on practical arithmetic, geometry and trigonometry; Part 2 on materials of construction, and strength and stability of structures, and Part 3 giving miscellaneous useful information. Part 1 has been checked and rearranged, the twenty-eight chapters of Part 2 have been entirely rewritten and one new chapter on reinforced-concrete mill and factory construction has been added by the associate editors, each chapter being signed by its author. Part 3 has been largely rewritten, and new matter has been added in the form of tables."—Engin Rec

A L A Bkl 12:303 Mr '16

Cleveland p9 F '16 10w

+ Engin N 75:941 My 18 '16 430w

"The text is reset in much improved form, so that it can be read more easily. Each paragraph has a black-face caption, greatly facilitating use of the book for reference, and many cross references are added for the same purpose. In its new form the book should prove most helpful to all engineers whose work is along lines of building construction."

+ Engin Rec 73:290 F 26 '16 530w

"Reviewed in Building Age, Jan., 1916."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p4 My '16 80w

KIDSON, FRANK, and NEAL, MARY C. S. English folk-song and dance. il *90c Putnam 784.4 15-18420

"It is only in recent years that with the active collection and study of European folk-lore the folk-song and folk-dance have begun to receive the attention which they deserve. . . . A summary of the progress already made and instructions to the collector were badly wanted. This has now been supplied in the present book which deals satisfactorily with the problem of the origin of folk-music and fully describes the methods of notation. The songs of the folk are classified under the heads of narrative ballads, love and mystic songs, pastorals, the songs of the poacher and the highwayman, the soldier and the sailor, the pressgang, hunting, sporting and labour songs, carols, singing games of children, the popular street ballad, and the broadside." (Nature) This part was written by Mr. Kidson; Part 2, dealing with the folk-dance, is by Miss Neal.

A L A Bkl 12:175 Ja '16

Cleveland p13 F '16 30w

"The manual is a good introduction to the subject, and the bibliography and illustrations leave little to be desired."

+ Nature 95:229 Ap 29 '15 320w

KILBOURNE, FREDERICK WILKINSON. Chronicles of the White mountains. il *$2 (2c) Houghton 974.22 16-11601

The author has sought to fill in a gap in the literature about the White mountains by providing "a systematic chronicle of events." He begins with Indian legend and history and continues with Early explorers, First settlements and settlers, and so on. There are also chapters on The poets and painters in the White mountains, The later scientific explorations of the mountains, as well as chapters that give valuable information for tourists. An end map gives considerable data as to roads, trails, etc.

+ A L A Bkl 13:25 O '16

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:549 J1 '16 200w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 10 '16 370w

"The book seems to be exactly the right one for White mountain visitors and intending visitors, as also for those who would like to be but cannot be visitors, to read and enjoy at this season or any season of the year."

+ Dial 61:145 S 7 '16 230w

Ind 86:402 Je 5 '16 50w

"More for reference than for continuous reading."

+ Lit D 53:475 Ag 26 '16 170w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:237 Je 11 '16 150w

Pittsburgh 21:355 J1 '16 20w

+ R of Rs 54:121 J1 '16 70w

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 26 '16 770w

"It will be welcomed by the readers who haunt, or have haunted these 'hills' but will have comparatively little value for the prospective visitor."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:320 J1 '16 70w

KILDUFF, EDWARD JONES. Private secretary; his duties and opportunities. il *$1.20 (2c) Century 652 16-17757

A book based on a series of lectures delivered at the New York university school of commerce,

KILDUFF, EDWARD JONES—Continued
accounts and finance. Its purpose is "to give to those persons who are seeking to prepare themselves to become private secretaries or assistants to employers in the business or professional field the information that they will need to have about their specific duties." (Preface) Contents: Introduction to private secretarial work; Learning the position; Managing callers; Handling correspondence; Points on letter writing; The mechanical make-up of the letter; Filing; Outlines and reports; Telephoning, telegraphing, and cabling; Sources of information; Editing, printing, and proofreading; Appointments, diaries, and accounts; Ethics and amenities; Systematizing the office. There are illustrations showing systems of filing, etc.

"Covering somewhat the same field as Spencer (Booklist, 12:413, Je '16) but with a higher type of position in mind and with more attention to details."

- + A L A Bkl 13:108 D '16
- + Cleveland p152 D '16 50w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:158 O '16
- + Pittsburgh 21:501 N '16 30w
- + St Louis 14:396 N '16 10w

KILMER, JOYCE. Circus, and other essays.
$1 (6c) Gomme 814 16-23794

Mr. Kilmer, who is known as poet and critic, appears in this little volume as essayist. He writes of: The circus; The abolition of poets; Noon-hour adventuring; Signs and symbols; The great nickel adventure; The urban chanticleer; Daily traveling; Incongruous New York; In memoriam: John Bunney; The day after Christmas. Most of these papers have appeared in the New York Times magazine.

- + N Y Times 22:16 Ja 14 '17 430w

"A sense of the eternal freshness of life, a return to a child's wonder at the whole moving, objective world is the essence of a delightful and companionable little brown book by Joyce Kilmer: 'The circus and other essays.'"

- + R of Rs 55:213 F '17 180w

KIMBALL, THEODORA. Classified selected list of references on city planning. pa 50c
National conference on city planning, 19
Congress st., Boston 710 15-8699

"The list consists of about one thousand references on city planning selected with a particular view to their technical value to those professionally engaged in problems of city planning. The references are arranged according to the city-planning collections of the Harvard school of landscape architecture. In this way Miss Kimball, who is the librarian of the school, makes a presentation of the literature of city planning in its fundamental relations. The titles refer to material which is useful and available, representative, well illustrated, or suggestive of further material or particular points of view."—Am J Soc

Reviewed by S. E. W. Bedford
+ Am J Soc 22:97 Jl '16 100w

KING, BASIL. Side of the angels. il $*1.35 (1c)
Harper 16-4427

The members of three old American families, the Mastermans, the Willoughbys and the Fays, are the actors in this new novel by the author of "The inner shrine." Of the three families, the Fays have gone down in the scale and are no longer in a class socially with the other two. Such, however, is the charm of Rosie Fay that she attracts not only Claude Masterman, the light and heedless younger brother, but Thorley, the older, as well. Thorley, who with his good intentions is always "on the side of the angels" in spite of his blunderings, has always meant, rather indefinitely, to marry Lois Willoughby. The tragedy and ultimate triumph of the story grow out of his efforts to set things right for everybody, Lois, his brother, and Rosie. What he learns from the experience is that his first duty is to set himself right.

A L A Bkl 12:339 Ap '16

Reviewed by Wilson Follett
Atlas 118:493 O '16 200w

"It is deadly serious—quite surprisingly deficient of humor. The author of 'The inner shrine,' has one of his favourite moral-emotional themes to deal with here, and develops it with a faithful and heavy hand." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 43:317 My '16 400w

"In all his descriptions of human relations, of family affairs, of the love of man for woman and of woman for man, Mr. King is vitally significant. He is much closer to reality than in any of the novels he has written since those that preceded 'The inner shrine.' Each character is distinctive, from the besotted Len Willoughby to the hapless Jasper Fay, and in their story we see worked out a plausible tragicomic drama of our modern American life. Mr. King is fortunate, and his readers are fortunate, too, in his style, for he uses the English language in all its purity. It is a pleasure to read 'The side of the angels' both for its matter and its manner." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 26 '16 1450w

"The things in the book that are good—and there are a number of them—come rather by the way. It seems as if his main conception were not so well-assured." E. E. Hale

— + Dial 60:336 Mr 30 '16 770w

"A decidedly dull story, greatly labored towards a didactic end. . . . It is not Mr. King's story, or his persons, or even his central idea, which wins him so large a constituency: it is his emotionalism, and his skill in playing upon (intellectually) middle-class sensibilities."

— Nation 102:621 My 11 '16 230w

"This novel is very long—too long, in fact—and it suffers from having been very obviously written primarily for serial publication. There is good stuff in it, however, and despite the melodrama which has been, so to speak, injected into it, an evident and praiseworthy intention seriously to study certain important questions of the day."

+ — N Y Times 21:73 Mr 5 '16 1100w

"There is food for thought in the change of our national attitude toward New England, as shown in our national fiction. . . . We give more attention now to Lawrence than to Andover Hill. And 'Salem' does not mean quite what it used to."

N Y Times 21:505 N 26 '16 190w

"A typical Basil King novel, a tense, clever, psychological study with a dash of melodrama." R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 89:641 F 19 '16 530w

+ R of Rs 53:636 My '16 80w

+ — Springfield Republican p15 Mr 5 '16 350w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:186 Ap '16 70w

KING, BERTHA PRATT. Worth of a girl.
$ (Worth while ser.) *25c (2½c) Crowell 177
16-17205

A vigorous plea for a commonsense education for girls. It is a protest against what might be called the "magazine cover" ideal of girlhood, a protest against rosy romanticism and a plea for honest reality. "The first object of education for boys and girls alike should be to prepare them to meet intelligently the actual problems of life," says the author. In the case of the girl this means training for motherhood and for useful life work. "That a girl should have an intellectual life, that she should have an interesting mind, that she should have her own career if she wants it, that a girl should be prepared for whatever work in life she desires, —this is recognizing the worth of a girl."

"A straight from the shoulder argument on training girls to be 'human beings.'"

+ Ind 88:553 D 25 '16 40w

St Louis 15:11 Ja '17

KING, CLYDE LYNDON. Lower living costs in cities; a constructive programme for urban efficiency. (National municipal league ser.) $1.50 (1c) Appleton 331.8 15-6039

For descriptive note see Annual for 1915.

"Persons seeing information regarding the archaic and wasteful methods which indubitably obtain in the production and distribution of perishable food-stuffs destined for the ultimate consumer of small quantities, will find the book suggestive; but critical students and responsible city officials may well hesitate to accept the engaging 'constructive programs' which make up fully one fifth of the text." E: M. Hartwell
— + Am Econ R 6:150 Mr '16 1200w.

KING, GRACE ELIZABETH. Pleasant ways of St. Médard. *$1.40 (1½c) Holt 16-16717

A picture of New Orleans in the days immediately following the civil war. The book is not a novel, for it has no connected story, neither do its chapters constitute short stories. It begins with the coming of the Talbot family to St. Médard, a parish lying south of New Orleans, in the opposite direction, we are told, from that in which the city was progressing. The father has just returned from the war, and the mother, with her children, from exile on a distant plantation. Brief and unforgettable glimpses are given of those days in exile. "It was all the fortunes of war," said Mrs. Talbot gently. "Madame," retorted Dr. Botot, "there are no fortunes of war for women and children. It is all misfortunes for them, they are the sufferers; and their war goes on after the peace, they will be still suffering for it, when the war is forgotten." But the story is not all of misfortune; there are bright colors in the picture.

+ A L A BkI 13:84 N '16

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 30 '16 250w

"The story might have been greatly improved had Miss King been fairer in her estimate of the nuns and priests who figure in her pages."
+ Cath World 104:394 D '16 160w

"Grace King really knows her New Orleans. She was born there, 'raised' there, and lives there now. She was an impressionable little girl when the city was captured by the Yankees, and she possessed exactly the right number of years to comprehend the horrors of the reconstruction régime. . . . This new book gives her a definite place as a literary artist. Literary artists are rarer than competent historians." W: L. Phelps

+ Dial 61:196 S 21 '16 550w

+ Ind 88:33 O 2 '16 40w

+ Lit D 53:1040 O 21 '16 110w

"The style is not free from traces of amateurishness; the reminiscence is occasionally a little garrulous, and the diction now and then a bit uncertain. The great merit of the book is its sincerity."

+ Nation 103:610 D 28 '16 400w

"Something of the era hitherto unvoiced breathes in this exquisite memorial."

+ New Repub 8:278 O 14 '16 320w

"Her work, which is not nearly so widely known as it should be, is among the best, in some of its features, that American writers have produced. . . . She is contemptuous of the artful aid of dramatic situations, the reader's suspense, and cumulative interest. But she can make a character alive in a single sentence. . . . And equally subtle and effective is her pen when it is busied with a social order, a community, a régime. That artistic insight and faculty have served her well in her historical books dealing with Louisiana and New Orleans."

+ N Y Times 21:336 Ag 27 '16 770w

"A romance of the spirit."

+ Outlook 114:520 N 1 '16 280w

"It is a book that compels attention and excites the admiration. Perhaps Mr. Garnett was not far wrong in calling it an American classic," though, of course, time alone can make a literary work a classic."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 600w

KINGSBURY, JOHN E. Telephone and telephone exchanges. 11 *$4 Longmans 654 16-6332

"An historical narrative of the invention and of its development. This narrative involves, however, full technical descriptions of the main mechanical features of the telephone, as well as a treatment of the commercial and political problems involved in it."—Spec

"If this book were seriously intended for sale in America, it would be carrying 'coals to Newcastle,' for it leans heavily on American publications for information. The work is voluminous and not particularly easy reading, since the author has proceeded largely on the scheme of presenting extracts from original papers rather than to digest them for his own story."
+ — Engin N 75:945 My 18 '16 200w

"The first book that pretends to give a comprehensive outline of the history of telephonic development. The author modestly disavows the title 'history' for his book. Nevertheless, a very large amount of historical research must have been carried on by him, in order to make up the interesting narrative contained in these pages. The chapter on the telephone and governments should be studied by those who, as outsiders in telephony, seek to form a just estimate of the relative advantages of governmental versus private-corporation administration. The author knows whereof he speaks." A. E. Kennelly

+ Science n s 43:603 Ap 28 '16 800w

Spec 115:796 D 4 '15 130w

KINGSLEY, CHARLES. Tutor's story. *$1.35 (1c) Dodd 16-15663

Among the manuscripts left by Charles Kingsley was one which it is surmised he turned down to write "Water babies." His daughter, Mrs. Mary St. Leger Harrison, has taken the chapters, sketches of chapters and brief sketches, worked them into shape and carried the tale to its logical end. It depicts English country life of the early thirties and has for its theme the saving of a profligate young nobleman thru the combined efforts of his devoted tutor and the woman who loved him. The spirit and setting are early-Victorian, the workmanship is thoroly modern.

+ A L A BkI 13:124 D '16

+ Ath p480 O '16 90w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:506 Ja '17 500w

"The completion of it by the novelist's daughter is a marvel of literary and artistic ingenuity. It reads as if it had come directly from Charles Kingsley's own pen. The style, the atmosphere, the characters, the incidents, the plot are all his. . . . There is no line of thought of the twentieth century in it." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '16 1450w

+ Cath World 104:397 D '16 180w

"The interest of the book lies in the characters of Hartover and his teacher and in the charm of English country life. The reader feels that Kingsley intended it as a leisurely story but Mrs. Harrison has developed the last part into a mystery tale."

Cleveland p127 N '16 80w

"A novel which never lags in interest, and more, a novel which will be remembered."

+ Dial 61:470 N 30 '16 200w

+ Ind 88:234 N 6 '16 130w

+ Nation 104:50 Ja 11 '17 370w

+ N Y Times 21:426 O 15 '16 880w

"Its sentimental value is undoubted, but of its literary value we cannot write with the same certainty. . . . In spite of its directness, its freshness and simplicity, and a certain vein of didacticism which proclaim it genuine Kingsley, it somehow fails in grip. For all the 'finish' Lucas Malet has put into it—and her work is so skilfully dovetailed that it is difficult to detect the interpolations and additions for which she is responsible—the novel remains unfinished."

+ — Sat R 122:sup6 O 14 '16 500w

KINGSLEY, CHARLES—Continued

- + Spec 117:659 N 25 '16 1100w
 + The Times [London] Lit Sup p474 O 5
 '16 700w

KINNE, HELEN, and COOLEY, ANNA MARIA.

- "Food and health; an elementary textbook of home making. (Home-making ser.) il
 *65c Macmillan 641 16-15934

A companion volume to "Clothing and health" by the same authors. It consists of twenty-nine lessons adapted for elementary and rural schools.

- + A L A Bkl 13:206 F '17
 N Y Br Lib News 3:155 O '16

"Designed for use in elementary schools, and seems to be of the 'supplementary reading type.' Where there is no opportunity for regular instruction and laboratory work in foods, and the teacher is not trained along that line, this book might fit nicely. But where any amount of time could be given to foods-instruction, this seems to be too popularly written—too much story—for practical use. The general plan of lessons, following the various meal-plans, would seem better adapted to a reading circle or girls' club; rather than to elementary school instruction." C. C. Creamer

School R 24:777 D '16 130w

KIPLING, RUDYARD. Kipling boy stories. (Ranally ser.) il *$1 (1½c) Rand 16-6058

This collection opens with the well known stories about children, His majesty the king, The drums of the fore and aft, Wee Willie Winkie, and others. In addition there are other tales to which the title "boy stories" is not so applicable, Bimi, The judgment of Dungara, His wedded wife, The strange ride of Morrowbie Jukes, among them. There are twenty-two stories in all with three poems in addition, Christmas in India, The ballad of East and West, and The ballad of the "Clampherdown." A glossary of Indian terms is provided at the end.

KIRK, HARRIS ELLIOTT. Religion of power. 2 (Sprunt lectures) *$1.50 (1c) Doran 230 16-22065

A series of lectures delivered at Union theological seminary, Richmond, Virginia. The author calls the work "A study of Christianity in relation to the quest for salvation in the Græco-Roman world, and its significance for the present age." It opens with an introductory lecture on The westward movement of Christianity. Part 1, The quest for safe conduct, consists of four lectures: The ritual quest for safe conduct; The ethical quest among the Greeks; The ethical quest among the Romans; The legal quest among the Jews. Part 2, The religion of power, has three chapters: Christianity as the religion of power; Christianity as a justifying power; Christianity as a constructive power. And there is a concluding chapter: The finality of Christianity.

N Y Br Lib News 3:188 D '16 60w

KIRKALDY, ADAM WILLIS, and EVANS, ALFRED DUDLEY. History and economics of transport. map *$3 Van Nostrand 380 A15-2108

"Designed as a textbook for the use of university students, 'The history and economics of transport' presents in as simple and brief a manner as possible the major facts in the history of the evolution of modern transport, and the concomitant evolution of the complex economic problems which today are of such vital moment in the development of trade and industry. After an introduction covering the early history of overland and canal transport, and the economic problems associated therewith, the material is treated under three heads in separate sections of the book: The railway in the United Kingdom and abroad; Railway and canal economics; Shipping and ocean transport."—Am Econ R

"The most interesting chapters are those dealing with railway economics. While it is written entirely from a British point of view, the subject-matter is so fundamental in character that the book throws much light on American conditions and would serve as an excellent reference text in courses on railway economics." James Bardin

+ Am Econ R 6:363 Je '16 300w

"The authors . . . have produced a well-balanced and satisfactory treatment of the subject, which will find many interested readers outside the class for which it was prepared, because it makes available the latest developments in England in the problems of management and regulation. Of most interest to American readers are the comments of the authors on questions of policy that touch our own problems." —

+ Nation 101:360 S 16 '15 1000w

"Remarkably well arranged; and for a book written primarily for students of transport in the newer universities and schools of economics in England, its comprehensiveness is equally remarkable. Well-ordered arrangement is also accompanied, as might be expected, with clearness of statement; and these features should help to make a reading constituency for the book far beyond the student body for which it is primarily intended. . . . The history of the railways of the United States is not detailed; and in a book intended for use in British universities it is remarkable that the railways of Canada are quite ignored. From the point of view of railway history, the chapter on government control is especially noteworthy." E. Porritt

+ Pol Sci Q 26:458 S '16 770w

"A highly successful attempt to produce a textbook for the student which shall also be of interest to the general reader, particularly to the business man. The book is evidently the outcome of years devoted to the accumulation of suitable material, as well as to its thoughtful sifting and arrangement in the shape best calculated to elucidate the general principles of the subject."

+ Spec 115:84 Jl 17 '15 270w

KIRKE, DOROTHEA. Domestic life in Rumania. il *$1.50 (3c) Lane 914.98 16-13385

Pictures of domestic life in Rumania are given in a series of letters written by an English girl, acting as 'lady nurse' in the family of a Jewish 'avocat,' to her cousin in England. Altho said to be based on the experiences of the author the letters are presented with a touch of fiction. They are written over the fictitious name of Millie Ormonde, who is supposed to have left England after refusing her cousin's proposal of marriage. This love affair, however, neither adds to nor detracts from the real interest of the book which lies in the glimpses of town and country life as seen thru English eyes.

"She possessed, moreover, unusual powers of observation, and a piquant manner of describing places, people and events which make her readers gratefully unconscious of the vast amount of practical information they are being told in their enjoyment of the telling. . . . The 'human' element of the book is not its least attraction."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 14 '16 360w

+ Cleveland p157 D '16 30w

"'Domestic life in Rumania,' is too broad a title for these experiences of an English woman in a wealthy Hebrew household in Bukarest. The book is much taken up with the Goldsmith's very questionable French governess and other matters not characteristic of Rumania alone."

— Ind 87:70 Jl 10 '16 40w

+ Lit D 53:622 S 9 '16 150w

"Fifteen minutes with an encyclopaedia would give one a more comprehensive idea of Rumania than is gained after reading this volume, and the exertion is hardly repaid by the glimpses of domestic life that one gets."

— Nation 102:713 Je 29 '16 170w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

"Bright, witty, vivid impressions that include an account of a journey to Constantinople and of holidays in Sinal in the Carpathians. The chapter that records the excursion to the Pestera monastery gives a delightful picture of the wild mountain life and the awe-inspiring beauty of this out-of-the-way corner of the earth."

+ R of Rs 54:120 J1 '16 130w

"Her letters never grow into learned essays, but keep with ease the conversational tone that we all enjoy by the fireside."

+ Sat R 121:284 Mr 18 '16 650w

"Very light and superficial, but naturally of interest to-day, and the reader can get a good deal of information as well as the 'atmosphere' that Miss Kirke is at pains to convey. The accounts are not flattering on the whole to the Roumanians; but it must be remembered that the writer did not see Bucharest or Sinaia from the home of a real Roumanian family."

— + Spec 116:443 Ap 1 '16 200w

+ — Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 150w

KIRKLAND, HENRY STUART. Expression in singing; a practical study of means and ends. *$1 (5½c) Badger, R: G. 784.9

16-14800

"I have always rebelled," says the author, "at the idea, sometimes expressed, that singing is only an accomplishment, a mere frill, requiring nothing but a good voice and a correct ear. I believe that the art of singing should be educative, in the highest sense, enlisting as it does all the mental faculties—especially those of imagination and feeling." He intends this work as "a practical text-book of the art of singing." Contents: Introduction; Ideals of things physical; Ideals of things mental; Means of communication; Quality; Color; Power; Meter; Emphasis; Articulation; Modes of vocalization; Song selection; Choral singing. The author is a teacher in the Philadelphia musical academy.

+ Cleveland p156 D '16 50w

"Mr. Kirkland was a pupil of the famous Garcia, and also of Dr. Vogt, who has taught the famous Mendelssohn choir of Toronto to sing with remarkable expression. He does not present a systematic treatise, yet there is much in his rambling talks that is worth reading and digesting. Of particular interest are his remarks on the proper interpretation of some of MacDowell's songs." H: T. Finck

+ Nation 103:91 J1 27 '16 180w

KIRKPATRICK, EDWIN ASBURY. Fundamentals of sociology. *$1.25 (2c) Houghton 301 16-6209

The author, a psychologist, has prepared a work on sociology which places special emphasis upon community and educational problems. He believes that sociology may be of as much importance to education as psychology and has prepared a course which he has given to students of education. On this course his book is based. He says, "No attempt has been made at completeness of treatment of any topic, but no effort has been spared to reveal the fundamental influences affecting group life and action in its earlier beginnings and in present-day life." Each chapter is followed by a small group of suggestions for further study or investigation and there is a bibliography of twelve pages at the close.

"The materials chosen are clearly conceived and excellently presented. Although 'no effort has been spared to reveal the fundamental influences affecting group life and action,' one cannot help wishing that teachers who go into sociology at all might go into it a little more deeply. . . . It is an excellent book with marked limitations." E: C. Hayes

+ — Am J Soc 22:404 N '16 350w

+ A L A Bkl 12:454 J1 '16

"It seems deliberately to pass over this deeper aspect of the subject. There can be no explanation tion of the overt activities of society, and of the changes they undergo in social evolution, without study of the modes of variation in those prevalent sentiments and ideas of which the overt activities are an expression, and of those types of causation by which prevalent sentiments and ideas are moulded. It is such knowledge alone that gives a basis for social control, and it is such knowledge that constitutes the chief contribution of sociology to education." E. C. H.

+ — Ann Am Acad 69:283 Ja '17 260w

+ Educ R 52:316 O '16 40w

"It is written clearly and simply, and is arranged and developed with much judgment. It is not utopian and it is not preachy. It ought to be useful as a textbook in elementary sociology, especially in schools where it is desirable to give only a brief amount of time to the subject; and it should attract the general reader. The bibliography is full as respects titles of works in English."

+ Nation 102:sup499 My 4 '16 330w

N Y Br Lib News 3:75 My '16

"The author is director of the child study department in the State normal school at Fitchburg, Mass."

St Louis 14:428 D '16 20w

KIRKPATRICK, EDWIN ASBURY. Use of money; how to save and how to spend. (Childhood and youth ser.) *$1 Bobbs 174 15-12845

"Professor Kirkpatrick has found a new and very interesting field for systematic education. As he points out in the preface, all children are called upon to assume certain grave personal and social responsibilities in connection with the use of money, but nowhere is there a school which thinks this subject one of enough importance to make it a topic of serious treatment. . . . The fact is that money is a social institution. Through its use the child is introduced to the broad organizations of civilization. In concrete ways in family life he must appreciate his responsibilities and the use of money in setting up these responsibilities. . . . He writes on 'Spending money,' 'Saving money,' 'Buying clothes,' 'Keeping accounts,' and numerous other topics which serve to illustrate his fundamental idea."—El School J

"A sensible, suggestive handling of a problem not often discussed, that of teaching children the value and use of money. Poorly indexed."

+ A L A Bkl 12:213 F '16

"A series of studies which will interest parents as well as teachers."

+ El School J 16:70 O '15 170w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:142 Mr '16 40w

KITSON, HARRY DEXTER. How to use your mind: a psychology of study; being a manual for the use of students and teachers in the administration of supervised study. il *$1 (3c) Lippincott 371.3 16-23542

A practical work addressed directly to the student, giving him simple and definite advice on how to form habits of study, how to listen to lectures, how to take notes, etc. It is addressed particularly to the college freshman who finds the transition from high school to college bewildering, and is designed for use in classes in methods of study. Contents: Intellectual problems of the college freshman; Note-taking; Brain action during study; Formation of study-habits; First aids to memory; Concentration of attention; How we reason; Expression as an aid in learning; The plateau of despond; Mental second-wind; Examinations; Bodily conditions for effective study. The author is an instructor of psychology in the University of Chicago.

"The book will be useful to elementary-school teachers, not so much because the advice which is given in the various chapters can be applied directly to elementary-school problems, but because it will establish that psychological point of view which is necessary if one is to study the needs of pupils of any age and grade."

+ El School J 17:303 Ja '17 240w

KITTREDGE, GEORGE LYMAN. Shakspeare.
*50c (6½c) Harvard univ. press 822.3
16-13359

A tercentenary address delivered by Professor Kittredge at Harvard on April 23, 1916. His primary purpose appears to be to rescue Shakespeare from his learned critics and commentators. More than one "scholarly" theory is scored, but of all methods of approaching Shakespeare "the most desperately wrong" according to Professor Kittredge is that of trying to discover the man's personality in his work.

+ Ind 88:126 O 16 '16 50w

+ Nation 102:625 Je 8 '16 350w

"Prof. Kittredge is a representative of the textual and analytical method of studying Shakespeare. Besides great erudition, he shows his qualification for his task in keen and vivid mind, not without a trace of sarcastic asperity, which, to say the least, makes him a doughty opponent when he is compelled to disagree with a fellow-critic or commentator."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Je 2 '16 330w

KLAPPER, PAUL. Teaching of English; teaching the art and the science of language. *$1.25 Appleton 808 15-8117

"Dr. Klapper's 'Teaching of English' carefully outlines a plan of oral and written work in English composition and grammar for both elementary and grammar grades. Many illustrations of the pupils' exercises show the aim and possibilities of the method."—Ind

"The work of a man who knows both the subject-matter and the theory and practise of classroom work."

+ Educ R 51:536 My '16 40w

+ Ind 87:350 S 4 '16 50w

+ Nation 101:332 S 9 '15 110w

KLEIN, WILLIAM LIVINGSTON. Why we punctuate; or, Reason versus rule in the use of marks. 2d ed *$1.25 (2c) Lancet pub. co., Minneapolis, Minn. 421 16-3481

An entirely revised and rewritten edition of a work published in 1896. The author says: "As the difficulties in punctuation arise largely from the subtle relations between groups of words into which all language, often the simplest, is divided, the study of punctuation becomes in reality the study of language." This is the idea that underlies his method of treatment. He does not treat each mark separately, as is usual in books of this kind, but deals thruout with groups of interrelated marks. Some of the subjects discussed are: The functions of marks and how performed; The fundamental purposes of punctuation; Punctuation by reason and convention; Close and open punctuation.

"The author, who is editor of the Journal-Lancet, Minneapolis, is an enthusiast for his subject and discusses in detail reasons for using the various marks of punctuation. In developing his idea he has been criticized for going too much into detail; however his effort is an interesting departure from the conventional method of handling the subject."

+ A L A BkI 12:492 JI '16

+ Ind 87:235 Ag 14 '16 30w

"Though it refines further than any but an enthusiast would care to follow, the method seems to be sound."

+ Nation 102:sup491 My 4 '16 50w

"In 1896, when the first edition was issued, the Review of Reviews stated that Mr. Klein's manual presented the best American usage of the day. The same praise is due the new edition, together with admiration for the author's new mode of treatment and his well-reasoned discussions."

+ R of Rs 53:509 Ap '16 150w

"Woolley's 'Handbook' is the extreme type of the dogmatic manual; perhaps the present text suffers in the other direction; that is, Mr. Klein's explanations go into too much detail."

+ School R 24:327 Ap '16 60w

"His numerous examples are well selected to illustrate the rules and the rules are in general satisfactorily explained. Mr. Klein enters into a certain amount of controversy and criticizes adversely some of the usages sanctioned by the University of Chicago 'Manual of style.' Discussion of these questions is to be welcomed, but Mr. Klein is not always a safe guide."

+ — Springfield Republican p17 Mr 2 '16 350w

KLICKMANN, FLORA (MRS. E. HENDERSON-SMITH), ed. Little girl's knitting and crochet book. 1l *75c Stokes 646 A16-1512

A book which will "show the little girl how to make pretty and useful things in knitting and crochet. She is taught how to do the simple stitches and easy patterns in small pieces of work that will not tire her." (Introd.) There are many illustrations.

+ A L A BkI 13:183 Ja '17

KLICKMANN, FLORA (MRS. E. HENDERSON-SMITH), ed. Modern knitting book. (Home art ser.) 1l *75c Stokes 646 A16-1290

"A book of ideas for knitted underwear, coats and wraps, caps and hoods, babies' and children's garments, socks and stockings, also new patterns in fancy knitting." (Subtitle) The book is very fully illustrated and is provided with an index.

"Presupposes a knowledge of the fundamental stitches and more valuable to the experienced knitter than Claydon (Booklist, 12:268, Mr '16) which begins with elementary directions for holding the work and making the stitches."

+ A L A BkI 13:67 N '16

N Y Br Lib News 3:61 Ap '16

"Illustrated manual, advertising the materials of a single manufacturer."

Pittsburgh 21:500 N '16 10w

Pratt p24 O '16

+ Spec 115:546 O 23 '15 70w

Wis Lib Bull 12:452 D '16 40w

KLINE, BURTON. Struck by lightning. *$1.30 (2c) Lane 16-8807

That a woman is either a dynamo or a thunderbolt is the theory on which this clever and satirical novel is built. To Worthington Fellowes; Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, Micheline Maquard comes as a thunderbolt, and his ambitions for the governorship, so carefully fostered by his two good friends, Aubrey Birney and Mrs. Bennington, are forgotten in the light of the blinding flash. Micheline lures him away in a canoe on the day he is to address a big labor meeting in Faneuil hall and to further assure his forgetfulness of time, quietly drops his watch overboard. That was only one of Micheline's little tricks. The author calls the story "the comedy of being a man." It might also be called "the comedy of living in Boston."

"I respect the book. Burton Kline can write. . . . There are pages in which he laughs spontaneously, which I consider an approach to mastery. . . . B. K. grew in his book. Toward the middle it began to carry him, and then he becomes very fine in spots. . . . The challenging and authoritative work in his book is the making of Micheline. She stays in the room after you put down the book." W. L. Comfort
+ Boston Transcript p4 My 17 '16 1550w

"There comes a time, about two-thirds of the way through the book, when the author apparently does not know what to do either with his plot or his people; from that point the tale limps along to its foreseen conclusion."

+ — N Y Times 21:253 Je 13 '16 310w

"Mr. Kline writes in a flippant, semisatirical mood, and is frequently epigrammatical at the expense not only of the lieutenant-governorship, but of Boston society and its customs and traditions. . . . The story is bright and readable, despite its being a bit too epigrammatically drawn out."

+ Spring'd Republican p17 My 7 '16 410w

"In neither of them is it possible to take much interest. A laboriously witty and pointed story, and a great deal of equally laborious philander-ing are the most conspicuous features of the story."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p478 O 5 '16 70w

KNIBBS, HENRY HERBERT. Riders of the stars. *$1 Houghton 811 16-20910

This is the author's second book of verse. "Songs of the outlands" was published in 1914. Like that volume the new book is made up of western verse, songs of the cow-puncher and range-rider. Some of them are reprinted from the Popular magazine, American magazine, the Country Gentleman, etc.

"The love of horses which is natural to a plainsman is given voice in a number of both tender and humorous verses. Altogether Mr. Knibbs' poems are full of vigor and glow, singing themselves in unaffected rhythm and rhyme." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '16 300w

+ Lit D 53:1257 N 11 '16 550w

N Y Br Lib News 3:181 D '16

KNIGHT, EDGAR WALLACE. Public school education in North Carolina. *$1.50 Houghton 379.756 16-21773

This book by the professor of education in Trinity college (North Carolina), is written in the belief that "a study of the educational conditions of the past will help teachers and educational administrators to a more satisfactory understanding of the present situation." He says further that "an effort has also been made to make clear the relation between social and economic forces and educational development; to show how the ideals of a people are reflected in their school system; and to suggest relations between present educational problems and current educational practices so many of which have been traditionally received."

+ Educ R 53:200 F '17 40w

KNIGHT, EDGAR WALLACE. Some principles of teaching as applied to the Sunday-school; with an introd. by Franklin N. Parker. *75c (1½c) Pilgrim press 268 15-24846

Knowledge of the Bible can no longer be looked on as the only essential in Sunday-school teaching, says the author. Familiarity with pedagogy and with child psychology must form part of the teacher's equipment. Some of the subjects discussed in the chapters of this book are: The need for trained teachers; Successful Sunday-school teaching; The qualifications and preparation of the teacher; Planning the lesson; Teaching the lesson; Attention and interest; The art of questioning; Using the pupil's memory; The teacher's personality; Jesus as a teacher.

"This book can be used in teacher-training classes or by individual workers, and will be of real value to either or both."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 22 '16 350w

KNIGHTLEY, LOUISA MARY (BOWATER) KNIGHTLEY, baroness. Journals of Lady Knightley of Fawsley, 1856-1884; ed. by Julia Cartwright (Mrs. Advy). ll $4.25 Dutton (Eng ed 16-13324)

"Still another picture of Victorian politics and society is afforded by Lady Knightley's 'Journals.' Life at Balmoral, Windsor, Osborne, and Frogmore is vividly described, and there is an account of the writer's journey to Berlin and Potsdam, and a visit to Silesia, in company with Princess Christian. Lady Knightley was greatly interested in all questions concerning the well-being of women, and her marriage to Sir Rainald Knightley, in 1869, gave her wide acquaintance with English party leaders."—R of Rs

"The book has genuine historical value, but it is also very interesting reading. . . . There are a number of good illustrations; and a very full index, a very reliable factor in a book of this sort."

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 20 '16 550w

"Agreeable but rather too numerous extracts from the journals and letters of a woman who had unusual opportunities for meeting the English royalty and celebrities during the latter half of the nineteenth century."

+ Ind 88:75 O 9 '16 40w

+ N Y Times 21:348 S 3 '16 830w

+ R of Rs 54:457 O '16 80w

KNIPE, MRS. EMILIE (BENSON), and KNIPE, ALDEN ARTHUR. Polly Trotter, patriot. ll $1.25 (1c) Macmillan 16-22754

Polly is fifteen years old when the news from Lexington is brought to New York. She sees her brother and her friend Roger Delancy leave home to join their armies, one the continentals, the other the British troops. Polly, who is left at home with her mother, regrets that a girl can have no opportunity to show her loyalty. But opportunity comes to Polly and she shows her patriotism in foiling a plot to take the life of Washington. Alexander Hamilton is a character in the story; so is Nathan Hale, and it is Hale's brave death that turns Polly's friend Roger to the side of the colonists.

A L A Bkl 13:183 Ja '17

+ Dial 61:547 D 14 '16 30w

+ Ind 88:404 D 4 '16 40w

+ Lit D 53:1563 D 9 '16 70w

KNOBLAUCH, EDWARD. My lady's dress; with an introd. by Frank Chouteau Brown. *75c (2c) Doubleday 812 16-2241

A play in three acts of three scenes each, built about the making of a woman's gown. The first scene of the first act serves as a prologue. In those that follow, the theatrical device of the "dream" is utilized to show the various human tragedies and comedies that have gone to the production of the fabric, the lace, the rose, the fur that make up the beautiful gown displayed in the first scene. The scenes range from the south of France to Siberia, from an East End tenement to the showrooms of a fashionable dressmaker. The final scene again connects the scattered threads, serving as an epilogue to bring the play to a close. The play is one of the series selected for publication by the Drama league.

+ A L A Bkl 13:20 O '16

"An interesting variation in play construction. The different scenes might be used separately as one act plays for adult amateurs."

+ Cleveland p19 Mr '16 60w

"This piece was acted with substantial success in New York and in London, and has literary qualities which entitle it to the more permanent record of type, but a perusal of it confirms the opinion that it is more theatrically ingenious than dramatically valuable."

+ Nation 104:27 Ja 4 '17 230w

Pratt p34 Ap '16

Springfield Republican p15 Ap 28 '16 140w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:145 Mr '16 50w

KNOEPEL, CHARLES EDWARD. Industrial preparedness. (Industrial management lib.) $1 Eng. mag. 16-13876

"The author of this book maintains that all our organization is inefficient and invites disaster. As an object lesson he describes the military and industrial system of Germany and shows how the same principles should be applied in the United States."—N Y Br Lib News

"Would be usable in debate work."

A L A Bkl 13:103 D '16

"Deals in cursory fashion with a number of engineering and economic questions which are now demanding public attention."

— Educ R 52:424 N '16 30w

"The grim ineptitudes of diplomacy, the butcheries of a helplessly unorganized international world, are all forgotten in the delights of modern alchemy and enchanted power. Those who are so eager to find in the present war the peril

KNOEPPPEL, CHARLES EDWARD—Continued
of science untempered by humanity should look at this book." Randolph Bourne

— New Repub 9:130 D 2 '16 680w

N Y Br Lib News 3:138 S '16 60w

R of Rs 54:685 D '16 40w

KNOTT, LAURA ANNA. Vesper talks to girls.
*$1.50 (3c) Houghton 177 16-6728

A series of talks given on Sunday afternoons to girls of secondary school age. The author says, "While hundreds of addresses to young women of college age have found their way into print, the books that deal with the problems and needs of younger girls and that look at life from their point of view are few." Among the subjects treated are: New starts in life; School friendships; The art of living with others; The uses of trouble; School spirit; The progress of woman; After graduation. The author is principal of Bradford academy.

"Have value chiefly because of the speaker's fine attitude towards life, an attitude conservative in some ways, progressive in many, and at once sympathetic, wholesome, stimulating."

+ A L A Bkl 12:450 J1 '16

Boston Transcript p7 Ap 1 '16 110w

+ Educ R 52:316 O '16 30w

"Miss Knott has dealt with girls so much that she knows just how to present her subject acceptably. Any one might read and profit by what she says in regard to living with others."

+ Lit D 52:1708 Je 10 '16 220w

St Louis 14:384 N '16 20w

KNOX, HELEN. Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker.
il $*1 (4c) Revell 16-15464

A sketch of the life of Mrs. Pennybacker, late president of the General federation of women's clubs, and an appreciation of her work as teacher, mother, club woman and public speaker. The impression given is of a life that has been singularly complete, animated from its beginning by a single purpose and a high ideal of service. Of particular interest is the chapter telling of the joint work of Mr. and Mrs. Pennybacker in building up the public school system of Texas.

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 6 '16 320w

+ Ind 88:75 O 9 '16 40w

N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:278 J1 9 '16 60w

+ R of Rs 54:347 S '16 170w

KOCOUREK, ALBERT, and WIGMORE, JOHN HENRY, comps. Primitive and ancient legal institutions. (Evolution of law, v. 2)
*$4 Little 340 15-16457

"This is the second volume of a series of three of which the first is 'Sources of ancient and primitive law.' . . . The readings are from many authors and are in part translated expressly for this volume. They are grouped under the general heads Introduction, Law and the state, Persons, Things, Procedure."—Int J Ethics

Am Hist R 21:872 J1 '16 100w (Review of v 1 and 2)

"This work cannot fail to give a new impulse to the comparative study of the genesis and development of juridical institutions. . . . It affords precious materials for every one of the group of 'social sciences.' Especially is a thorough study of such materials needed by American lawyers. The third volume on 'Formative influences of legal development,' will be eagerly awaited." G: E. Howard

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:392 My '16 880w (Review of v 1 and 2)

"The series is for the general reader and student of institutions as well as for the lawyer and is one of the agencies now making for a more scientific jurisprudence and for broader and more liberal legal ideas." J. H. T.

+ Int J Ethics 26:306 Ja '16 170w (Review of v 1-3)

KOOPMAN, HARRY LYMAN. Booklover and his books. $*2 (3½c) Boston bk. 010.4 17-661

"The booklover," says the author, "is distinguished from the reader as such by loving his books, and from the collector as such by reading them. He prizes not only the soul of the book, but also its body." Soul and body both are given consideration in these essays, and to the author, one feels, there is no sharp distinction between them; one is the expression of the other. There are twenty-four essays in the volume, written at different times in the leisure hours of a busy librarian, yet held together by one underlying theme: "the unity in diversity of the book and the federation of all who have to do with it." Some of the subjects are: Books and booklovers; Fitness in book design; Print as an interpreter of meaning; Favorite book sizes; The value of reading; Books as a librarian would like them.

KOREN, JOHN. Alcohol and society. $*1.25 (2c) Holt 178 16-14307

An expansion of articles that have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly. Mr. Koren discusses: Social aspects of drink; Drink reform in the United States; Government and prohibition; Drink reform in foreign countries; Constructive temperance reform. He takes a stand opposed to that of the Prohibition party and the Anti-saloon league minimizing the evil effects of alcohol and protesting against reform by means of "coercion."

A L A Bkl 13:6 O '16

"The book is altogether a stimulating one, and deserves to be read by everyone who is undertaking to estimate the value of the prohibition movement. It would be unfortunate, however, if its net results were to be the putting of a damper on the prohibition movement. While prohibition does not show an efficiency of a hundred per cent, it is nevertheless performing a valuable service for society which we can ill afford to lose."

+ Cath World 104:119 O '16 960w

"The summary of recent legislation in foreign lands is interesting."

+ Ind 87:103 J1 17 '16 30w

"Sane thinking on the question of prohibition should be assisted by the book of John Koren—long a special government investigator of liquor legislation abroad, and one of the Committee of fifty on temperance. Naturally the author strongly condemns intemperance; but his condemnation is nowhere better manifested than in his dissection of the extreme and mistaken efforts at reform that have constantly thwarted their own purpose. He treats with a proper contempt the experiments in legislation which foist prohibition by rural vote upon cities that will not enforce it; that pass binding laws in a wave of sadly temporal moral enthusiasm, and that antagonize the saloon into becoming a political force, corrupting executive and legislative chambers."

+ Nation 102:713 Je 29 '16 650w

"To the editor of the Nation: Sir: We, the undersigned members of the Unitarian temperance society, ask space in your columns to enter a protest against articles now flooding the press written apparently to keep intact the business of the breweries by constantly affirming that prohibition is always a failure and beer well-nigh harmless. Typical of such literature is 'Alcohol and society,' by John Koren, written originally for the Atlantic Monthly."

Nation 103:11 J1 6 '16 430w

N Y Br Lib News 3:108 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:315 Ag 13 '16 70w

+ R of Rs 54:113 J1 '16 50w

+ St Louis 14:426 D '16 10w

"He presents a scientific treatment of a great social problem. The vehemence of extremists on both sides has been avoided, and a real effort has been made to work out a scheme of social control. Mr. Koren has a broad sociological background that not all social writers possess."

+ Springfield Republican p6 J1 4 '16 520w

"Many authorities are quoted regarding the physiological effects of alcohol, but little evidence given, mostly the opinions of authorities who carry no more weight than others who entertain opposite views on evidence that is not given in the text for the reader's own judgment. This second- and third-hand disposition of extremely important aspects of the liquor question is less than a reader has a right to expect of the editor of the report of the Committee of fifty. . . . In short, we may say without exaggeration that the chief difference between Mr. Koren's book and the 1915 and 1916 year books of the United States brewers' association is the difference between octavo and duodecimo." E. L. Fisk, M. D.

— Survey 36:439 J1 22 '16 1300w

"They have awakened much discussion among thoughtful people who do not believe that enforced prohibition is the correct solution of the problem."

Wis Lib Bull 12:318 J1 '16 90w

KOROLENKO, VLADIMIR GALAKTIONOVITCH. Makar's dream and other stories; tr. from the Russian with an introd. by Marian Fell. il *$1.50 (2c) Duffield 16-6611

Four stories by a living Russian writer. The introduction says: "The writings of Vladimir Korolenko have been likened to 'a fresh breeze blowing through the heavy air of a hospital.' The hospital is the pessimistic literature of the modern Russian intellectuals; the fresh breeze is the voice of the simple-hearted children of 'Mother Russia.'" The four stories are Makar's dream; The murmuring forest; In bad company; The day of atonement. Korolenko was born in Little Russia and spent a term of exile in Siberia; both these regions, with their wide, open spaces and far-spreading forests, have had their influence on his work. The heaven of Makar's dream is a level Siberian plain.

+ Ath p433 S '16 170w

"True humor—the perception of the incongruity of things—is the element which distinguishes, above all others, the work of Korolenko. Four short stories, admirably translated by Marian Fell, constitute the first volume of his work to be published in English. He was repeatedly arrested for his advanced social doctrines, and was finally exiled for six years to eastern Siberia. Upon his release he published the story of 'Makar's dream.' The second story, 'The murmuring forest,' is a masterpiece of descriptive narrative of whose beauty and power no synopsis could convey the least idea. 'The day of atonement' is a delightful tale worthy of Boccaccio at his best."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 12 '16 750w

"Gorky's 'Confession' has neither the triteness of motive nor the touch of sentimentality that makes so popularly appealing Korolenko's pleas for social justice—'Makar's dream' and 'In bad company'; but it has a far larger canvas and a much wider range of thought than they."

Winifred Smith

Dial 61:267 O 5 '16 40w

+ Ind 86:550 Je 26 '16 80w

"In these we find originality of subject, a radiant style and lyric beauty, gripping charm and deep feeling, betraying the author's optimism and his sympathy with the 'eternally human,' and man's unquenchable desire for freedom and justice. 'In bad company' is the most convincing story of all, in which he draws a clear picture of his own father."

+ Lit D 52:1464 My 20 '16 300w

"They give vivid glimpses of the daily routine and the outlook, mental and moral alike, of certain classes of the Russian peasantry."

+ N Y Times 21:170 Ap 23 '16 530w

"Vladimir Korolenko was born in Little Russia in 1853, of mixed Polish and Cossack stock. The hardships of his early years have given him a profound sympathy with the struggling peasants. In 1895 he became editor of the magazine Russkoye Bogatstvo, and has continued in journalistic work until he is to-day one of the greatest publicists in Russia."

+ R of Rs 53:632 My '16 220w

+ Sat R 122:206 Ag 26 '16 190w

+ Springfield Republican p10 Je 30 '16 160w

"To find a parallel in English to 'Makar's dream' or 'The day of atonement' we should have to go back to our medieval writers, of the days when faith was simple and laughter was not divorced from religion."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p404 Ag 24 '16 480w

KRAPP, GEORGE PHILIP. Rise of English literary prose. *$1.75 Oxford 820.9 15-27987

"Professor Krapp's special studies, extending over a period of some twenty years, have well qualified him to write just such a book as this. It is a subject in which he has always been deeply interested, and every one of the nine chapters in this volume shows painstaking research as well as prolonged thought. . . . The scope of the work is correctly stated by its author: 'it begins with the latter half of the fourteenth century when the writing of prose first assumed importance in the life of the English people, and it ends with the first quarter of the seventeenth century, when practise and experiment had made of English prose, in the reigns of Elizabeth and James, a highly developed and efficient means of expression.'"—Educ R

"In his latest volume Professor Krapp of Columbia shows that he is more than a philologist and Anglo-Saxon scholar. 'The rise of English literary prose' establishes him as a literary historian of wide and accurate learning. . . . His method, except for separate chapters on Wycliffe and Bacon, is 'to summarize historically in six sections various genres or movements or groups such as the Courtly writers, the Modernists, History and antiquity, etc. There is surprisingly little technical discussion of style itself except in the chapter on Courtly writers. Many will feel that there is far too much biography and too much repetition of the ordinary facts easily accessible in the textbooks. These are, however, not vital objections. The volume throws light into many dark and unknown corners. The attitude of the author is broad and humane throughout. The style is always readable."

+ Dial 61:145 S 7 '16 250w

"The absence of personal bias, and the steady determination to present the facts one by one—both highly commendable features in historical study—make the book rather hard reading in long stretches; it is, I think, best for students of special periods. . . . While the index has not been forgotten, it should have been more ample, and certainly should have been analytical. . . . When so many writers are treated with so much detail, it is rather surprising that Malory's 'Morte d'Arthur,' one of the greatest works of prose in any literature, receives such scant comment. . . . The work as a whole must be classed among the more important of America's contributions to the historical study of literature. The third, fourth and fifth chapters are especially notable and valuable. To write such a book as this requires a high grade of scholarship. . . . It is a pity, when we remember the beautiful results attained by the Clarendon press in England, that the American branch of the Oxford press should have published a volume so distressingly heavy in ounces as this." W: L. Phelps

+ Educ R 52:197 S '16 500w

Reviewed by the Earl of Cromer

+ Spec 116:751 Je 17 '16 2050w

"If his faculty of criticism is not invariably pointed and suggestive, the honesty of his scholarship is never to be questioned. . . . As literary appreciation, the work has limitations. For one thing, the question of rhythm is not always fully considered. . . . Nevertheless, Prof. Krapp has produced a useful work of research which brings together a great number of instructive facts in compact form as no other work covering the same ground has done."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 13 '16 770w

KREADY, LAURA FRY. Study of fairy tales; with an introd. by H. Suzzallo. *$1.40 Houghton 372.6 16-22783

The author gives to children's literature a distinct place in the school curriculum. Literature, she says, should be taught in the kindergarten and elementary school as a distinct subject, accessory neither to reading nor to any other subject. In this book she deals with one branch of children's literature, the fairy tale. She considers: The worth of fairy tales; Principles of selection for fairy tales; The telling of fairy tales; The history of fairy tales; Classes of fairy tales; Sources of material for fairy tales. This final chapter contains a valuable bibliography and there are notes on some of the standard tales given in an appendix.

KREHBIEL, EDWARD BENJAMIN. Nationalism, war and society; with an introd. by Norman Angell. *$1.50 Macmillan 172.4 16-14344

In his treatment of the relation between nationalism and war the author has arranged his material in a series of outlines. In as condensed a form as possible he has presented both the militarist and the pacifist sides, with the purpose of refuting the former. The aim of the book, in his own words, is "the dissemination of ideas and ideals which shall make for a reduction of war." The book is made up of three parts: Nationalism, its character, fallacies and faults; Modern political and social changes and their reaction on national rivalries; Progressive forces, which seek to overcome the faults of nationalism and establish an order of things in agreement with the evolution of society. References for further reading are provided.

"The analysis is so thoroughly logical and so full where expansion is needed that a readable and lucid text has been produced. The argument grips the attention and sticks in the memory. . . . This work is the best aid for understanding the complex problems of war and peace, militarism and pacifism, which has yet appeared." G: E. Howard

+ Am Hist R 22:365 Ja '17 620w

Reviewed by K. F. Geiser

+ Ann Am Acad 69:238 Ja '17 70w

"The book's chief importance for American readers lies in the fact that it makes so clear and simple an exposition of some of the important questions concerned with American foreign policies and the American attitude toward Europe which we shall have to meet and decide at the close of the war." F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:630 Ag '16 400w

"The book is written in the form of an outline for study, and the excellent bibliographies which are given at the end of each chapter have mobilized practically the entire literature of inductive pacifism or the new science of internationalism."

Boston Transcript p9 S 13 '16 610w

"The lists of peace publications and societies are especially good."

+ Dial 61:359 N 2 '16 300w

"We hope that it will be widely used by school and college classes."

+ Educ R 52:530 D '16 50w

+ Ind 89:32 Ja 1 '17 80w

"Dr. Krehbiel hates war, yet he sets himself to the task of presenting its defenders' as well as his own, views. He has done his job well. It is so fair that the most imperialistic members of the Navy league could find in these pages the kernels for a dozen ponderous apologies. But they would have to close their minds and eyes to the other pages."

+ New Repub 8:251 O 7 '16 450w

"Mr. Krehbiel, who is professor of modern history in Stanford university, gives a very interesting synopsis of the development of the pacifist idea. His book is thoroughgoing in its presentation of facts and arguments, all of which are set forth not in the ordinary method but as if they were so many statements in the proof of a mathematical problem. This method makes the volume a model of compactness in which it would be difficult to find anywhere an unnecessary word."

+ N Y Times 21:301 J1 30 '16 750w

R of Rs 54:343 S '16 210w

+ Springfield Republican p8 N 2 '16 320w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p468 S 28 '16 140w

KREYMBORG, ALFRED. Mushrooms. $1.25 Knopf 811

"Like a 'Pied piper,' Alfred Kreymborg's new book of free verse forms, 'Mushrooms,' enters the Hamelin Town of poetry and presently all our traditions yield to the spell of his pipe and go scurrying like the rodents of that famous city. In 'Mushrooms,' the reader will find the very essence of the new school of ultra poetic expression. Mr. Kreymborg has fostered the rebellion on the part of certain younger poets in his magazine Others."

—R of Rs

"The extreme radicalism of his poems is so utilized as to express a will, and imagination, and emotional sensitiveness, seldom betrayed by bad taste, or wildly unreasonable deductions. He saves what would seem strained by another poet of his particular group, by a wholesome touch of grace. I have delighted in this book, and wherever I have not been able to accept the poet's philosophy I have at least recognized the fresh and inquiring impulse which prompted the utterance." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 20 '16 1450w

N Y Br Lib News 3:121 Ag '16

"The poetry of 'Mushrooms' will be strong meat to admirers of Keats and Shelley. It is daring, heavy with its own conceit, eccentric, definitely blasphemous against older ideas of the substance of the poetry, but withal a delight to truth lovers."

+ — R of Rs 54:233 Ag '16 250w

KREYMBORG, ALFRED, ed. Others. *$1.50 Knopf 811 16-10869

"An anthology of the new verse which contains contributions from fifty men and women who have deserted the old forms of poetry and are pioneering new paths. . . . 'Voyage à l'infini,' by Walter Conrad Arensberg; 'The dancer,' by Arthur Davison Ficke; 'The idiot,' by Horace Holley; 'Peter Quince at the clavier,' by Wallace Stevens; and 'Cinquaine,' by Adelaide Crapsey, are among the poems."—R of Rs

A L A Bkl 13:20 O '16

"A book the purchase of which I should unhesitatingly recommend to every librarian who includes among his purposes the enlivenment or the enlightenment of posterity. I doubt if a more notable curiosity enriches the museum of literature." O. W. Firkins

+ — Nation 104:44 Ja 11 '17 360w

Pratt p29 O '16

"Some of these paths end in blind alleys, a few descend into incomprehensible jungles of words wherein beauty is irretrievably lost, but many of the paths lead on to uplands where the spirit of youth sweeps the brain clear of the cobwebs of tradition. The reader will find much of this poetry 'queer,' and nearly all of it revolutionary, but there is a splendor in its newness and fine courage and bold rhythms."

+ — R of Rs 53:761 Je '16 280w

"Others' is the medium of the ultra-realists, the ultra-impressionists and the ultra-imagists. At present much of the new verse presents un-rhythmic jangle to the ear of the untrained reader and kaleidoscopic convulsions of nothingness to his mind."

— Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 570w

KROWS, ARTHUR EDWIN. Play production in America. il *$2 (2c) Holt 792 16-23425

The author's purpose, to tell what the theater is trying to do, and how it is trying to do it, is carried out in the eight progressive subdivisions of the book: The play is accepted; The director takes charge; The stage is made ready; Scenery, decoration, and costumes are prepared; Lighting and "effects" are "worked" by the stage crew; Managers begin their activities; The play is advertised and tickets are sold; And the theater is opened to audiences. The illustrations, many of which show the mechanical side of play producing, are interesting. There is a short bibliography at the close.

"The author, late of the staff of Winthrop Ames of the Little theater, New York, gives much live inside information."

+ A L A Bkl 13:208 F '17

"One of those rare books which are equally valuable to specialists and to the general public."

+ Outlook 115:209 Ja 31 '17 90w

Pittsburgh 22:36 Ja '17

KUHN, REV. ALBERT. Roma; ancient, subterranean, and modern Rome, in word and picture; with a preface by Cardinal Gibbons. il $10 Benziger 913.37 (13-24150)

Cardinal Gibbons says of this work: "It is deserving of a place in the library of every Catholic family, and should be in every Catholic institution of education or of charity. Non-Catholics, moreover, can read it with profit and delight, since it is thoroughly scientific and written in a broad and liberal spirit." The book is made up in three parts. Part 1, Ancient Rome, has again three subdivisions: Historical survey; Ancient Rome in her ruins; Ancient Rome in collections of works of art. Part 2, Subterranean Rome, has sections devoted to: The subterranean Christian burial-places; A visit to the catacombs; Art in the catacombs. Part 3 opens with an introduction devoted to a survey of modern Rome and then takes up in turn: The churches and shrines of Rome; The art collections; Palaces, institutions, public squares. There are 744 illustrations in the text, 48 full-page inserts, and 3 plans of Rome. No table of contents is provided but there is an index at the close, also a list of the illustrations.

"It is, of course, written from the Catholic standpoint, but that makes it all the more interesting to the non-Catholic reader. . . . All the pages devoted to the Vatican and the other ecclesiastical establishments have the accuracy of authority and are extremely interesting."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 27 '16 150w

"Except in cases of special effectiveness the author has ignored pictures made familiar in the myriad art-publications of the time, and has given the preference to those not widely known. To illustrate great moments of Roman history he has drawn upon the works of modern artists like Maccari, Cesari, Pio Josis, Michetti, Morelli, Favretto, Bartolini, etc. The book thus provides the average reader with the novel opportunity of comparing the work of recent artists with that of famous artists of the past."

+ Lit D 53:194 JI 22 '16 700w

"The book is written by a man who is one of the greatest living authorities on this subject, and has a most readable style."

+ N Y Times 21:512 N 26 '16 200w

KUMMER, FREDERIC ARNOLD, and JAMES, HENRY P. Second coming. *50c (5c) Dodd 940.91 16-9961

The European war is still in progress when this story opens on Christmas eve of some unnamed year. To little Noel Bonhomme, fingering his icy rifle, there appears suddenly the figure of Christ. To other men also He appears; last of all to the Kaiser. The conversation between these two with its ultimate influence takes up the greater part of the little book. The story is artfully contrived so that one can accept the "second coming" as a fact or as a vision appearing to the conscience of a guilty man.

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:630 Ag '16 150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:86 Je '16

"The authors have shown much ingenuity and literary skill in this colloquy in so neatly and aptly joining together in statement and reply the published sentiments of the German emperor and the preachings of Christ. The little book is impressive and touching, for it is written with the greatest simplicity and sincerity, its descriptions of battle scenes are realistic and its several little pathetic incidents that give a personal touch are appealing."

+ N Y Times 21:187 Ap 30 '16 380w

KUNZ, GEORGE FREDERICK. Ivory and the elephant in art, in archaeology, and in science. il $7.50 Doubleday 736 16-22408

"Dr. Kunz, gem expert for Tiffany & co., and author of so many standard works on precious stones, has gathered together in this sumptuous book not only a vast store of information about the history of carving in ivory but about elephant-hunting and the ivory industry in general. He tells the story of ivory-carving from the days of the Neanderthal man, . . . through classical antiquity and the Orient and the middle ages to our own day. . . . The book is illustrated with more than a hundred photographs."

—Lit D

Ind 88:414 D 4 16 120w

+ Lit D 53:1551 D 9 '16 150w

"It is a book of absorbing interest, and its format deserves special commendation; it is only fair to characterize it as a magnificent piece of book-making."

+ N Y Times 21:523 N 26 '16 110w

KUNZ, GEORGE FREDERICK. Shakespeare and precious stones. il $1.25 Lippincott 822.3 16-17098

A work "treating of the known references of precious stones in Shakespeare's works, with comments as to the origin of his material, the knowledge of the poet concerning precious stones, and references as to where the precious stones of his time came from." (Sub-title) The author is an authority on precious stones. He is also a student of Shakespeare. During the tercentenary celebration in New York he served as a member of various committees, and he is as well a member of several Shakespeare societies. He has drawn his material from early editions and he illustrates his work with facsimiles and copies of old prints.

"His lists of precious stones mentioned in the plays and poems of Shakespeare occupy the last twenty-eight pages of the volume. They give quotation and source under the name of each jewel, but unfortunately they are not alphabetically arranged." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ag 19 '16 530w

Ind 88:126 O 16 '16 60w

+ Ind Studio 59:96 O '16 370w

"Handsomely printed and embellished with excellent illustrations, only a few of which bear any relation to the subject. The letterpress, except as it occasionally touches on the history of the trade in jewels, a field in which the author has already written a number of volumes, is unimportant and in large part irrelevant."

+ Nation 103:469 N 16 '16 200w

+ N Y Times 21:526 N 26 '16 690w

+ Spec 117:sup608 N 18 '16 220w

"The present book cannot be considered to be of as great value as the two previous books of the author, 'The curious lore of precious stones' and 'The magic of jewels and charms.' This is undoubtedly due to the limited field the author has chosen. However, to those who are intensely interested in Shakespeare, the book will certainly appeal strongly."

+ Spring'd Republican p13 Ag 20 '16 250w

KUPRIN, ALEXANDER IVANOVICH. Duel. *$1.50 (1½) Macmillan W16-26

This work, newly translated from the Russian, suggests comparison with other stories of garrison life, particularly with two recent novels that pictured conditions in German frontier posts. There is the same revelation of petty jealousies, petty intrigues and petty tyranny. The young officer, Romashov, who is the central character, is a curious compound of vanity and humility. He has the habit, common to sentimental and imaginative young persons, of seeing himself in the third person. "The fair unknown's eyes rested with pleasure on the young warrior's tall well-formed figure," he would say to himself in passing a beautiful woman, and the next moment be overwhelmed with embarrassment. He falls romantically in love with the wife of a superior officer, a cold, calculating woman, not above trifling with a lover altho her one ambition is her husband's advancement. This affair leads in the end to the duel that results in Romashov's death.

KUPRIN, ALEXANDER IVANOVICH—Cont.

"When this novel was first published shortly after the Russo-Japanese war, it met with a warm reception on account of its alleged 'purpose'—that of demonstrating the inefficiency of the Russian military system. The author denied that he had wished to depict a system; he was interested only in the characters. The fact that Kuprin had held a commission in the Russian army for some seven years was naturally used as an argument against him. . . . 'The duel' is virtually a transcript of 'In honour's name,' which was published by Messrs. Everett in 1907, translated by Mr. W. F. Harvey."

+ Ath p187 Ap '16 550w

"He is unsparing enough; not the grimmest naturalist of them all, for example, has outdone his description of the drinking-bout, with its interlude of a riot in a brothel. But these matters are after all kept in their places. He does not moralise them at all. The quality which keeps the balance is nothing more or less than that humour which every race secretly believes to be its own personal property." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 48:417 Je '16 500w

"No better anti-militarist tract could be found than extracts from these grimy pages."

+ Ind 86:550 Je 26 '16 90w

"It isn't a 'nice' book, but it is virile, daring, and original, one discussing psychological conditions as seen from different view-points and especially dealing with the 'duel' and its value to the soldier and his condition. The book is more interesting than appealing."

+ — Lit D 53:77 J1 8 '16 210w

"The story is not 'pleasant,' these people, these events even, resemble those to which Slavic fancy has wonted us, but somehow in a humanized, intelligible form." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 102:569 My 25 '16 600w

"The book is, above all, a masterpiece of true realism. Its story has the dramatic power of the great Greek plays." L. S. F.

+ New Repub 9:sup9 N 18 '16 730w

"'The duel' of which it tells is both external and internal—fought 'in the wood called Oak-wood' and in the soul of Sub-lieutenant Romashov. . . . The general effect of the book is that of a gray, hopeless dreariness, a general slackness of mental and moral fibre, a sort of universal dry-rot."

+ — N Y Times 21:213 My 21 '16 550w

+ R of Rs 53:631 My '16 40w

Springfield Republican p10 Je 30 '16 100w

"Kuprin's powerful military novel, 'The duel,' was translated into English by W. F. Harvey, and published at London in 1907, with the poor title 'In honor's name.' So far as I can see, this is the same translation, with minor alterations, so I do not fully understand why the name of the translator was omitted." W. L. Phelps

Yale R ns 6:210 O '16 150w

KUPRIN, ALEXANDER IVANOVICH. River of life, and other stories; tr. from the Russian by S. Kotliansky and J. M. Murry. *$1.25 (2c) Luce, J. W. 16-6478

The author belongs to the modern school of Russian writers. He was born in 1870. He entered the Russian army in 1890 and served for seven years, resigning his commission to devote himself to literature. His first novel "The duel," gave a picture of Russian army life. One of the stories in this collection of four is also an echo of his soldier experience; "Captain Ribnikov" is a story of a Japanese spy. The title story is one of the grim and realistic variety of tales we have learned to accept as typical of Russian literature. It is the story of a student who engages a room in a boarding house, writes a farewell confession and commits suicide. "The outrage" is a brief sketch of a scene in court. "The witch" is the only one of the four with a rural setting. It is a story of the forest, somber and unhappy, but not sordid.

"The four tales exhibit the author as an able, but by no means inspired writer of short stories, with a very considerable range, an ironic humour, and a somewhat obvious artistry. With the last and longest tale, 'The witch,' readers may already be acquainted, as it was published separately in book-form by Messrs. Sisley in 1909 as 'Olessia.'"

+ — Ath p187 Ap '16 200w

"The grimmest of all gaunt realism stalks through the pages of Kuprin's stories of Russia. There can be no doubt that at least two of the stories in Kuprin's volumes must rank among the very best of Russian—or indeed of world-literature. . . . 'The river of life,' the story from which the book takes its name, may without much doubt be considered as the best and most characteristic of the tales in this volume. It is a piling up of horror such as few writers have ever succeeded in accomplishing. It is marvelously well done, and the total impression of the story is one not easily to be forgotten." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 5 '16 1100w

"Sex plays its frank part in them; but if they are not for the young person, they are not for the prurient grown-up either. The gross Anna Friedrichovna, her precociously sensual little daughter Aluchka, in 'The river of life,' the prostitute in 'Captain Ribnikov'—such figures as these are not moralized, or sentimentalized; they are simply humanized by the shaping hands of their interpreter." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 102:570 My 25 '16 190w

+ N Y Times 21:244 Je 11 '16 180w

"The genius of this brilliant novelist reaches its height in his magnificent short stories. He has been called a painter with words, so vividly does he convey the illusions of color, form and light, and his stormy descriptive passages are unexcelled among modern Russian writers."

+ R of Rs 53:631 My '16 80w

KUPRIN, ALEXANDER IVANOVICH. Slav soul, and other stories; with an introd. by Stephen Graham. *$1.50 (2½c) Putnam

16-17075

A volume of stories selected from the fourteen volumes of Kuprin's works by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Graham. "After Chekhov the most popular tale-writer in Russia is Kuprin," says Mr. Graham. "He is read by the great mass of the Russian reading public, and his works can be bought at any railway bookstall in the empire." In making their selection the editors have been guided by a desire, "to give what is beautiful, or in any case what is interesting but not ugly, in the living Russian literature of today." The first "A Slav soul" is little more than a character sketch; indeed many of the "stories" are not such in our understanding of the term. Two, "The elephant" and "The white poodle," are from a book designed for reading aloud to children.

"Most of the fifteen stories are concerned with the peasantry, 'the most enigmatical, the greatest, and 'the most abused people in the world.' They are as searching and as vivid as Mr. Kipling's stories, with which Mr. Graham compares them; they are dramatic, humorous, and told with the art of a first-class raconteur."

+ Ath p287 Je '16 150w

"It is hard to put complete faith in Mr. Graham's selective judgment, for the tales in the present collection are very uneven in quality. . . . Kuprin is most powerful when his emotions are touched. Senses of a very rare and acute order are the avenues to his genius. This is one reason why satire, the most purely intellectual of literary forms, is so blunt a weapon in his hand. We hope that more of his picturesque, dramatic, full-blooded tales may be translated, but there are reasons why Mr. Graham, expert Russianist as he is, is not the best editor for him that might be selected."

+ — N Y Times 21:553 D 17 '16 770w

"As Mr. Graham has delicately avoided not only darkest Russia, but also the great deal which he says Kuprin has written about the relationship of men and women, because 'his weakness is the subject of women,' we have a unique production—a Russian translation which will offend no one. Mr. Graham has allowed but one jarring note to creep in. 'Tempting providence' has an unhappy ending. With that one exception the collection has that atmosphere of happiness and good fortune which we cherish in books because we cannot always obtain it in life." M. A. Hopkins
+ Pub W 90:600 Ag 19 '16 630w

"Kuprin is, we learn, the most popular writer in Russia after Chekhov, and if the stories here translated by Mr. Graham and his wife are, as we suppose, fairly characteristic of his manner and choice of themes, he deserves his popularity."

+ Sat R 122:275 S 16 '16 630w

"Mr. Harold Williams, in the chapter on literature in his admirable 'Russia of the Russians,' places Kuprin among the realists. . . . Mr. Harold Williams may be right, and his novels of army life may represent his high-water mark of achievement, but if he is, then Kuprin is a very great writer, for while the soldiers' stories in this volume are remarkable, there are at least half-a-dozen others which bear the unmistakable impress of genius."

+ Spec 117:216 Ag 19 '16 1700w

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 13 '17 950w

"Meanness, selfishness, vulgarity, all the qualities which Fielding most hated, are hated also by this generous, hearty Russian. And tyranny of any sort . . . Kuprin attacks from many sides. He is no easy optimist."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p272 Je 8 '16 800w

KUSSY, NATHAN. The abyss. *$1.50 (1c) Macmillan 16-6059

This is the story of the making of a crook. It details horrors that are almost beyond belief, and there may be some comfort in the thought that the time of the story is set some years back, in the eighties. Mulberry Bend has somewhat changed character since then. It opens with early scenes in the life of a little Jewish boy who, in spite of poverty, is given something of a happy childhood thru the love and wisdom of his mother. Her death leaves him alone and he falls in with beggars and thieves and tramps. The best of his days thereafter are those spent on the road with hoboes, but he is arrested for vagrancy and the sixty days sentence remains a blot that cannot be wiped off the slate. He is thereafter branded. The detectives know him, and his sincere efforts to lead a decent life fail. The story ends with his return to his old haunts, determined on a life of crime. There is promise of two other books to follow, completing a trilogy.

"Mr. Kussy is a lawyer in Newark. 'The abyss' is his first book to be published. He spent five years on the writing of it. And it must be said that the quality of its work shows that it was neither conceived nor written in haste. In its workmanship and in its solid literary values it would be a credit to an author of long experience. It is a story to stir one's heart to its depths. By the bare truth and sheer compellingness of its simply told tale it makes the most damning indictment of modern civilisation that has come from the pen of poet, novelist, playwright or journalist." F. F. Kelly
+ Bookm 43:319 My '16 870w

"His plea is for the very reforms which have been the ideal at Sing Sing. Though Mr. Kussy's description applies to prisons of the early '80s, the elements of his argument are still applicable. In spite of this looseness of construction, the novel, somehow or other, 'carries.' It carries interest, a feeling of great sincerity, and an assurance of reality. A partiality for the goodness of the Hebrew race, and for the wickedness of most Gentiles, is apparent and is to be deplored; but otherwise there will be found but little of that exaggeration which is apt to mar Dickens's work. The author has worked with deep earnestness and with care.

We feel sure that he will be heard from again." R. M.

+ — Boston Transcript p24 Mr 15 '16 780w

"It rarely has the peculiar smell of the underworld; his people have had a bath and their clothes have been fumigated." E. E. Hale

+ — Dial 60:384 Ap 13 '16 260w

"There is real characterization here: the hero himself is a person to believe in and to follow with interest."

+ Nation 102:437 Ap 20 '16 650w

"An author's note on the last page informs us that this book is only the first of a trilogy which is to appear if the public shows sufficient interest in the hero to warrant the continuing of his story. And it is to be hoped that this interest may be shown, for the book is a careful, painstaking study of conditions in the underworld as they were during the '80s. The jail scenes, unspeakably dreadful though they are, are nevertheless no more dreadful than those which recent disclosures have revealed to us as actually taking place. There is thus no reason why this story should be regarded as exaggerated or sensational."

+ — N Y Times 21:82 Mr 12 '16 720w

"Mr. Kussy is not a born novelist. He handles his facts, his documents conscientiously, once or twice even without reticence, but his fiction is unconvincing. His hero is a puppet; the queer old lady is taken direct from Dickens; so is the philanthropic Jewish pawnbroker of a later episode. And so is the villainous keeper of the tramps' hang-out. But they lack the true Dickensian touch. And the epic sweep of 'Les misérables,' so unmistakably aimed at, is entirely missing. But considered not as fiction but as a survey, a chronicle of the underworld of thirty years ago, his first volume has value and interest."

+ — N Y Tribune p9 Mr 18 '16 600w

R of Rs 53:760 Je '16 30w

+ Spec 116:663 My 27 '16 850w

"The need, or value, of a story of this character is open to question, unless it be justified on literary grounds. As a means of stirring the public mind to the need for social reform, or for the purpose of accelerating any corrective movements, such fiction, in the past, has undoubtedly served a useful end. No such purpose seems to be the main intent here. The author has a story to tell, and he tells it in bald, realistic terms. He writes with spontaneity and flexibility—indeed, the story seems to tell itself. But, all the while the reader's subconscious mind is asking: 'What good purpose is served?'"

+ — Springfield Republican p17 Mr 12 '16 400w

"Mr. Kussy introduces a long procession of personages, clothing them after the fashion of Dickens with pronounced external characteristics, but not with the individuality which arouses the reader's love or hate. It is the episodes in which his power is disclosed most clearly."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p202 Ap 27 '16 580w

L

LABBERTON, J. H. Belgium and Germany: a Dutch view (De Belgische neutraliteit geschonden); tr. by W. E. Leonard. *$1 (3c) Open ct. 940.91 16-8947

The moral obligations of states is the subject of this Dutch writer's book. Unlike certain German apologists he does not argue that the state is above morality. States like individuals are subject to moral judgments; and on this basis he proceeds to vindicate Germany. "Germany was not longer bound by the treaty of 1839, if it can be established that a higher moral duty came into conflict with the duty of loyalty to her given promise." That there was such a higher duty, Professor Labberton affirms. His position is partly founded on the belief that Germany is a "moral genius" among nations; and genius has always created its own laws. It rests too on the Kantian principle that acts are neither moral nor immoral; only the will that directs the act has moral significance.

LABBERTON, J. H.—Continued

— Am Pol Sci R 10:582 Ag '16 250w

"It is perfectly his right and as he sees it his duty, perhaps, for Dr. Labberton to contribute his view of the 'truth'—it is done in most reserved and dignified language—but he cannot expect that a people and a civilization that find in the Lusitania atrocity alone a damnable outrage on all decency and right should not care to hearken to a man, however eminent, that pleads a brief for the authority and the race that placed that irremovable stain on the pages of the world's history."

— + Boston Transcript p4 My 31 '16 390w

"The author of this elaborate philosophic plea in defense of Germany's right to invade Belgium is a Dutch doctor of law and doctor of political economy from the University of Groningen, where he was a pupil of the distinguished Prof. Gerhardt Heymans. He is now an official of the Dutch government. Readers with a taste for Germany's metaphysical culture will find much to interest them in Dr. Labberton's timely study."

Lit D 53:85 Jl 8 '16 260w

R of Rs 53:756 Je '16 60w

LABOUR year book, 1916; issued under the auspices of the Parliamentary committee of the Trades union congress, the Executive committee of the Labour party, the Fabian research department. Il bds 1s; cl 2s 6d Publication committee, 1 Victoria st., London 331.8 16-7250

"The labour year book' tells the story of labour and the war. It gives 210 pages full of information, statistical, legal, theoretical, on the trade union movement of to-day. It leads us through veritable forests of information, duly indexed, of course, on the political labour movement, the co-operative movement, the international working-class movement, central and local government, and social insurance. A very special feature of 'The labour year book,' and one which contributes largely to its personal charm as apart from its public utility, is its sprinkling of special articles by experts and the exceedingly valuable bibliographies which accompany them."—Common Cause [London]

"A complete review of the labor movement in England for the year, with men like Arthur Henderson, M. P., J. A. Hobson, G. Bernard Shaw, Philip Snowden, M. P., and Sidney Webb among the contributors."

+ Advocate of Peace p120 Ap '16 70w

"Mr. Bernard Shaw, in his light-hearted introduction, urges his readers not to waste time in admiring what they find, but rather to complain of what they miss. We . . . [ask] that any future section on a rise or fall in prices may contain comparative figures, as far as these are available, for foreign countries, and in particular for Germany."

+ Common Cause [London] 7:584 F 11 '16 470w

"The article on labor and the war is not unduly partisan in character, and relates in a very clear-cut manner those movements in England growing out of the war which have most affected labor. Some very valuable documents are reproduced, otherwise inaccessible to readers in this country except in widely scattered form."

Leifur Magnusson

+ J Pol Econ 25:124 Ja '17 840w

LADD, GEORGE TRUMBULL. What may I hope? an inquiry into the sources and reasonableness of the hopes of humanity, especially the social and religious. *$1.50 Longmans 201 15-23605

"Professor Ladd has followed his inquiries into the possibilities of knowledge, moral values, and faith by a new volume, the last of the series, entitled 'What may I hope?' With deliberation and sound reasoning he outlines the essence and ground of hope, its practical use and value, and its objects in the moral and social realms, and points out the basis upon which humanity rises to the assurance of immortal life."—Ind

Cath World 103:408 Je '16 130w

+ Ind 85:318 F 23 '16 70w

"This, the last of the four essays which together sum up the mature views of the Yale philosopher, adds little to our knowledge of his doctrine, or to contemporary thought. Written in his unfailingly urbane and soothing style, it is more than commonly vague, strung-out, and commonplace."—Durant Drake

— + J Philos 13:585 O 12 '16 950w

Nation 102:312 Mr 16 '16 300w

"Taking as convenient starting points those ideas of knowledge, duty, belief and hope, which exist in every man's mind, Dr. Ladd analyzes them and traces them to their inner sources. In so doing he compels his readers to distinguish away the sophistries and obscurities which cling about the psychological or ethical notions of the untrained or lazy thinker."

+ No Am 202:941 D '15 780w

"Clearness and simplicity of style, qualities that stand out in all of Dr. Ladd's writings, are especially marked in this latest volume."

+ R of Rs 53:249 F '16 100w

"The outlook of the volume is that of a conservative optimist."

+ Springfield Republican p19 Ap 14 '16 600w

Reviewed by H. N. Gardiner

+ Yale R n s 5:392 Jl '16 400w

LADD, NIEL MORROW. How to make friends with birds. Il *$1 Doubleday 598.2 16-22586

The author, who is president of the Greenwich bird protective society, tells in this little book what to do to make one's home grounds attractive to bird life. He describes bird boxes, methods of winter feeding, and means of outwitting or exterminating bird enemies. There are many good illustrations, some in color, a bibliography and an index. The book is uniform in style with the "Tree guide," "Butterfly guide" and other useful little outdoor manuals.

N Y Br Lib News 3:190 D '16

LA FONTAINE, HENRI. Great solution, magnissima charta. $1.25 World peace foundation 341 16-14603

"The writer, who is a senator of Belgium, professor of international law and a recipient of the Nobel prize, has termed his volume of 175 pages an essay on evolutionary and constructive pacifism. He contends that institutions already realized or contemplated have in potency the ability to bring about substitution of a state of right for that state of war which men generally consider as natural and necessary in the relation between peoples. . . . For the conference of states, the author presents the new idea of combining diplomatic and parliamentary characteristics. He devotes a special chapter to an International council of conciliation. The three elements of a world organization for peace as the author conceives them are: The conference of states as an international legislature, the judiciary organization and the international administration."—Boston Transcript

"The plan contains a fundamental weakness in proposing to continue the fiction of the equality of states, by giving each state only one vote. A proposal that a majority of states may adopt a convention binding the majority, but not the opposing minority, is set forth as a novelty; whereas a majority or even a minority of states may now agree to any convention as between themselves."

— + Am Pol Sci R 10:760 N '16 160w

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 30 '16 370w

N Y Times 21:359 S 10 '16 120w

LAGERLÖF, SELMA OTTILIANA LOVISA. Emperor of Portugalia; tr. by Velma Swanson Howard. *$1.50 (2c) Doubleday 16-21127

To say that this is the story of the disintegration of the mind of an old peasant laborer is to give no idea of its quality. It is that, but it is also the story of the love of old Jan of Ruffluck for his daughter, Glory Goldie. Glory Goldie Sunnycastle he had named her, choosing the Sun herself for godmother. In her seventeenth year the girl, who had been in truth the sunlight of her parents' lives, left them to go to Stockholm. On the appointed day the money that was to make their home secure came to them, but Glory Goldie herself did not come. Then her letters ceased and in their place came strange rumors. Katrina, the mother, understood their significance, knew what it meant that her little girl went "dressed in satin." But to the father it only appeared that his little girl had become a great lady, an empress. Then must he not be an emperor? And as the Emperor of Portugalla, old Jan of Ruffluck thereafter walked abroad. The final return of Glory Goldie and her transfiguration bring a beautiful story to its close.

+ A L A Bkl 13:176 Ja '17

"It is doubtless only because we see Selma Lagerlöf against the background of the other great Scandinavian writers, with their unspeakably more relentless creeds, that she impresses us with her softness. . . . Here as elsewhere is a mystic sense of union between God and man in Miss Lagerlöf's work." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 2 '16 1600w

"The writer's pessimism is revolting. Outside of the story itself the characterization of the people of the small Swedish village is faithful and lifelike."

+ Cath World 104:697 F '17 130w

"Her books deal with what seems insignificant and trivial; yet their magic transmutes the trivial into the important. Perhaps that is because Miss Lagerlöf is herself and writes of what is to her, life. But to do that and to be interesting about it is one of the great things of modern literature." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:467 N 30 '16 370w

+ Ind 88:551 D 25 '16 50w

+ Lit D 54:83 Ja 13 '17 200w

"This has the peculiarly clear, child-hearted quality which has endeared the writer's work to a continually increasing number of readers."

+ Nation 104:106 Ja 25 '17 360w

"The very breath of life is in it, the beauty of great art, the unconsciousness of greatness."

+ N Y Times 21:438 O 22 '16 1000w

"The delusion is infinitely pathetic, and the old man an infinitely tragic figure. The story is told with a beautiful sincerity, and with the exquisite simplicity which is the final achievement of art."

+ Outlook 114:616 N 15 '16 190w

Reviewed by Philip Tillinghast

+ Pub W 90:2074 D 9 '16 540w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 7 '17 490w

LAIT, JACK. Beef, iron and wine. $1.25 (2c) Doubleday 16-19952

The author of this book is a man who has won some distinction by writing a short story a day for the Chicago Herald in addition to magazine work. He has been called "the human Arabian nights" because he has "one thousand and one ideas and rarely two alike." The stories collected in this book all have what is known as "human interest." They are about chorus girls and ex-convicts and taxi drivers and also about less conventional types, including an old man described as an "inspector of cigarette stubs and gatherer of biscuit boxes in a big park." The title, it may be unnecessary to state, is taken from the name of a popular tonic, which will indicate the effect the stories are expected to have on the reader.

A L A Bkl 13:222 F '17

"Perhaps the most interesting page in 'Beef, iron and wine' by Jack Lait, is the one devoted to the author's history." P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 44:276 N '16 130w

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 4 '16 180w

Cleveland p127 N '16 90w

"So like a volume of stories by O. Henry that the effect is positively uncanny. . . . Every story or sketch in this volume, with the exception of 'One touch of art,' is an amazingly clever and successful performance. Perhaps as Mr. Lait acquires more renown, he may abandon the imitative style he now employs and create a new epic of American nights entertainment. Whatever he does will be interesting."

+ Dial 61:538 D 14 '16 250w

"Now and then the 'United States' hurts ears and eyes and needs a dictionary, but the tales are live and human."

+ Ind 88:165 O 23 '16 40w

"Here is a name bidding cheaply for original appeal, a clumsy name and a humorless one, a name to frighten away the reader. Underneath it is work of extreme delicacy, of a fineness of texture and loveliness of conception reminiscent of some of Daudet's 'Lettres de mon moulin.'"

+ New Repub 9:132 D 2 '16 320w

+ N Y Times 21:577 D 31 '16 640w

LAMKIN, NINA B. Dances, drills and story-plays for every day and holidays. il 75c (5c) Denison 793 16-14016

A book of dances, drills and simple pantomimes suitable for school exhibitions and other entertainments where children take part. The costumes required are simple, and in an appendix the author tells where the appropriate music may be obtained. The author is director of the normal course in physical education at the Northwestern school of oratory, at Evanston, Ill.

"A useful little book for teachers and leaders of children's clubs."

+ Ind 88:34 O 2 '16 20w

+ N Y Times 21:392 O 1 '16 50w

+ R of Rs 54:678 D '16 50w

+ Springfield Republican p6 N 28 '16 180w

LA MOTTE, ELLEN N. Backwash of war. $1 (4c) Putnam 940.91 16-20883

An American hospital nurse writes of the human wreckage of the battlefield. "There are many people to write you of the noble side, the heroic side, the exalted side of war," says Miss La Motte, "I must write you of what I have seen, the other side, the backwash. Both are true." So she writes of "heroes," of Alexandre, Félix, Alphonse and Hippolyte. Each has been decorated with the "médaille militaire"; and one is selfish, one is vain, one is gluttonous, and another obscene. This is the other side of the medal. The sketches are entitled: Heroes, La patrie reconnaissante; The hole in the hedge; Alone; A Belgian civilian; The interval; Women and wives; Four la patrie; Locomotor ataxia; A surgical triumph; At the telephone; A citation; An incident.

A L A Bkl 13:215 F '17

Cleveland p159 D '16 50w

"The publisher contends that each [sketch] is 'faithfully true.' True, possibly, to a mind which perceives nothing but what is debased in human weakness and suffering. . . . Ellen N. La Motte has accomplished the limit of realism."

+ Ind 88:284 N 13 '16 110w

"Revolting—even sickening at times—Miss La Motte's book is evangelical. . . . It is, unconsciously, a stern, strong preaching against war."

+ N Y Times 21:432 O 15 '16 550w

"It isn't a great book, tho it is sincere and in places intensely dramatic and, if for no other reason than its sheer horror, never unarresting." Robert Lynd

+ Pub W 90:850 S 16 '16 470w

+ R of Rs 54:573 N '16 50w

"Exhibits with painful frankness the septic, gangrenous aspects of war, which are, after all, just as true as its inspiring, red-blooded side."

+ Springfield Republican p6 O 2 '16 150w

LANCASTER, SAMUEL CHRISTOPHER. Columbia, America's great highway through the Cascade mountains to the sea. il $2.50 S; C. Lancaster, Portland, Ore. 917.95 16-13326

The story of the Columbia river highway, completed in July 1915, told by the engineer

LANCASTER, SAMUEL CHRISTOPHER—Cont. who constructed it. "The book consists of alternate pages of printed matter and four-color reproductions of scenic photographs and portraits. The story of the highway relates the experiences of the explorers, and the early pioneers; describes the life of the Indians, the struggles of the missionaries, the fight for the land, the problem of transportation, and follows the evolution of the famous highway from the old Indian trail to the splendid paved road of the present day." (R of Rs)

"Thirty-one beautiful plates, by a new process of color photography, make 'The Columbia, America's great highway,' a notable little publication."

+ Ind 85:318 F 28 '16 60w
+ Ind 87:390 S 11 '16 80w

"A wonderful and beautiful book. Mr. Lancaster has glimpsed the fact that every historical road is a kind of epic poem. He has given us the epic of an old Oregon road."

+ R of Rs 53:251 F 16 220w

LANCHESTER, FREDERICK WILLIAM. Aircraft in warfare, the dawn of the fourth arm; with introd. preface by Maj.-Gen. Sir David Henderson. il *$4 Appleton 623.7 (Eng ed 16-9399)

"Mr. Lanchester is so well known as a scientific experimenter in aerodynamics that his book on the uses of aircraft in war will be read eagerly, as coming from one who speaks with authority. . . . Mr. Lanchester dismisses dirigible balloons without much attention. He admits the mischief they can do in favourable circumstances by night, but his business is to consider aircraft from the point of view of advancing the science of war and winning campaigns. In this respect he sees no future for the Zeppelins. . . . In the author's opinion, we have not yet enough aeroplanes to justify us in saying that the fourth arm has been created. But when it is created it will be so important, in his judgment, that nothing will be able to compensate us for the loss of the supremacy of the air."—Spec

A L A Bkl 13:67 N '16

"The book may be an excellent example of the way to combine the minimum of technical value with the maximum of commercial style in narration; but it has certainly no claim to be a standard work on so great a subject."

—Ath p202 Ap '16 1200w

Cleveland p107 Ag '16 20w

Library Association Record 18:173 Ap 15 '16 10w

"The preface by Lieut.-General Sir David Henderson at once arrests attention and has caused more comment than any other equally long section of the book." E. F. R.

+ Nature 97:403 Jl 13 '16 1200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:88 Je '16

"As an investigator of the scientific problems of aeronautics, Mr. Lanchester ranks high and there is probably no one better fitted to discuss the scope and limitations of military aeronautics."

+ Pittsburgh 21:350 Jl '16 70w

Spec 116:260 F 19 '16 1900w

LANE, RALPH NORMAN ANGELL (NORMAN ANGELL, pseud.). Dangers of half-preparedness; a plea for a declaration of American policy. *50c (2½c) Putnam 327.73 16-11990

The author's thesis was expressed in "The world's highway," the book which preceded this one: "A country can as little dispense with preparedness in policy as in arms." The preparedness that is now being advocated in this country is "half-preparedness" because it has to do with arms only. What the other half of preparedness should consist of is the subject of this book. It has been developed from an address delivered at Poll's theatre, Washington, on February 28th, 1916.

"A very sane bit of thinking on the subject of international relations. . . . The author's closing plea for a more earnest deliberation by the American people upon the future policies of their country is a very stirring one."

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:759 N '16 190w

+ Ind 87:350 S 4 '16 40w

"Though his argument hardly carries conviction throughout, Mr. Norman Angell's admonition to this country discusses a timely topic with some profit. . . . An instance of Mr. Angell's method is seen in his remarks on neutrality. . . . The suggestion has the author's usual concreteness and plausibility. Only when one applies it to the war does its speciousness appear."

+ — Nation 102:677 Je 22 '16 450w

"Preparedness for what? The question has never been put more eloquently or more impressively than by Mr. Norman Angell in this published address. It is done with skill and good humor and damaging logic unequalled, I believe, by any propagandist in the English-speaking world." W. L.

+ New Repub 7:152 Je 10 '16 1250w

N Y Times 21:248 Je 18 '16 240w

R of Rs 54:115 Jl '16 60w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ag 6 '16 90w

LANE-CLAYPON, JANET ELIZABETH. Milk and its hygienic relations. il *$2.50 Longmans 614.3 16-22120

An English work prepared under the direction of the Medical research committee of the National Insurance fund. It includes "an account of inquiries concerning the general composition and constituents of milk, its biological properties, its nutritive value in raw and cooked conditions, the alleged production of rickets by heated milk, the disease-producing organisms which milk may contain, the sources of contamination to which it is exposed, and the methods of protection against them; together with numerous references to original authorities in English, French, and German." (The Times [London] Lit Sup)

N Y Br Lib News 3:125 Ag '16

N Y Times 21:441 O 22 '16 70w

"Whether the reader is 'responsible for the formation of public opinion and for the determination of administrative action,' or for the health of individual children (and grown-up people as well), he will find here much that will be of interest and profit to him."

+ Spec 117:217 Ag 19 '16 120w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p288 Je 15 '16 80w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p291 Je 22 '16 850w

LANGE, FREDERICK WILLIAM THEODOR, and BERRY, W. T. Books on the great war; an annotated bibliography of literature issued during the European conflict; prefaces by R. A. Peddie. v 1-3 7s 6d Grafton & co. 016.9 16-1689

Volumes 1 to 3 of this valuable bibliography have been published as one book but have not been combined. Each volume retains its individual form. Volumes 1 and 2, previously published, have been revised. Volume 3, which brings the record down to July, 1915, follows an arrangement similar to that of the two preceding it, with books classified under Biography, International relations, Peace plans, Militarism, Causes of the war, War from the German point of view, etc. Personal reminiscences occupy a larger section than in the two earlier volumes. There is a collective Author and title index and a collective Subject index as well as special indexes for each volume.

LANIER, SIDNEY. Selections, prose and verse. *50c Scribner 811 16-5890

Twenty-three poems and nine prose selections have been chosen by Henry Lanier, the poet's son, and edited with notes for school use.

"One is at a loss to see precisely the reason for 'Selections' from Lanier as a text-book: His boys' books hardly need to be introduced to the college student, and his poetry and criticism is so sadly little, that to serve him up in fragments seems a needless indignity."

— Ind 87:232 Ag 14 '16 50w

"Some of the war sketches are especially interesting."

+ Nation 102:sup488 My 4 '16 40w

St Louis 14:185 My '16

"The poems are those most loved by Lanier readers, and the second group is well selected; 'Bob, the story of our mocking-bird' is probably the most familiar title. A fuller selection than 'The Lanier book' but less attractive in binding."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:226 My '16 60w

LAPP, JOHN A. Our America. il $*1.25 (1½c) Bobbs 353 16-18528

"This book is written to set forth the elementary facts of government in this country. It begins by a statement of the way people live in modern society; it discusses the needs and wants of people for food, clothing, shelter, property, education, enjoyment and liberty; it shows the necessity for common protection against harm; it shows how out of these needs and wants comes the necessity for government." (Introd.) Roads and streets, Health protection, Education, Some city problems, Some rural problems, Conservation, are some of the specific subjects taken up by the chapters. Each chapter is followed by Questions for investigation, Questions for debate, and advice as to Where to look for further information, and Where to write for further information. An appendix, prepared by Charles Kettleborough, gives an outline of the duties of various national, state and local officers.

N Y Br Lib News 3:153 O '16

"This book should be especially welcomed by progressive teachers who are ambitious to emphasize the vital processes of contemporary government."

+ Special Libraries 7:163 N '16 140w

LAPP, JOHN A., and MOTE, CARL HENRY. Learning to earn; a plea and a plan for vocational education; with introd. by W: C. Redfield. $*1.25 (1c) Bobbs 371.4 15-25556
For descriptive note see Annual for 1915.

"Presents the needs of educational reform and surveys the whole field of vocational education—industrial business, agricultural, domestic, vocational guidance—in a clear and readable but very general way. It will help to awaken the unformed public to present conditions."

+ A L A Bkl 12:266 Mr '16

+ Educ R 51:99 Je '16 50w

"There is an excellent chapter on the opportunities for the library to meet the vocational needs of today and tomorrow."

+ Ind 86:181 My 1 '16 350w

J Pol Econ 24:1023 D '16 170w

"A comprehensive survey of the facts and arguments bearing upon vocational education. The reader familiar with the literature of this subject will find nothing new, unless it be the rather extreme conception of the duties of the school and the responsibilities of the national treasury."

+ — Nation 102:sup486 My 4 '16 340w

"The book is altogether the most complete survey, chapter by chapter, of the many phases of the question of industry in education which exists. Would that consultation of its material might be obligatory for all editorial writers who have occasion to touch in our daily papers upon the reorganization of the public school system." J: Dewey

+ New Repub 6:159 Mr 11 '16 670w

N Y Br Lib News 3:29 F '16

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p26 F '16 220w

"The two authors of this book have had such practical experience with its theme as to give authority to whatever they say upon it. Mr. Lapp is a member of the Federal commission on vocational education and the author of the vocational education law of Indiana, while Mr. Mote is an investigator and expert in industrial questions and knows the field for which prospective workers must be trained."

+ N Y Times 21:119 Ap 2 '16 180w

"The volume presents a philosophy which is democratic, a program which is all-inclusive, and conclusions which are optimistic. The farm, shop, business, and home are discussed in their relations to the school, and it is shown where and how the school is to serve them. Perhaps the most original material is to be found in the chapters on 'Extension and correspondence work' and 'The library and the worker.'" F. M. Leavitt

+ School R 24:322 Ap '16 320w

Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 70w

Reviewed by W. M. Leiserson

+ Survey 36:462 Jl 29 '16 450w

LAPRADELLE, ALBERT GEOUFFRE DE, and COUDERT, FREDERIC RENÉ, comps. War letters from France. *50c Appleton 940.91 16-6086

"A collection of extracts from letters written from the French trenches and hospitals by officials and soldiers in the army and by citizens at home. They were private letters and revealed the thoughts and heart and soul of the person writing each one with the freedom and intimacy of personal correspondence."—N Y Times

"Nothing has hitherto come to hand which so impressively reveals the patriotic, liberty-loving spirit of the French citizen soldier."

+ Ind 86:552 Je 26 '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:70 My '16 20w

+ N Y Times 21:148 Ap 16 '16 100w

LAUGHLIN, CLARA ELIZABETH. Reminiscences of James Whitcomb Riley. il *75c (6c) Revel 17-303

Miss Laughlin's acquaintance with James Whitcomb Riley began at a meeting of the Western writers' association at Winona Lake, Indiana. She writes of this assemblage amusingly and tells how she escaped from a session to play mumbletypeg with the poet. The acquaintance deepened into friendship and she is generous with the rich store of memories that their years of association have left with her. "His was by far the richest personality I have ever known," she says. "Acquaintance with him is my supreme consolation for what would otherwise have been the irreparable loss of not having known Charles Lamb."

+ Dial 61:472 N 30 '16 180w

+ Ind 88:240 N 6 '16 50w

+ N Y Times 21:434 O 15 '16 740w

+ R of Rs 54:681 D '16 120w

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 200w

LAVEILLE, E. Life of Father de Smet; auth. tr. by Marian Lindsay; introd. by C: Copen. il $*2.75 Kenedy 16-2173

"The biographer had a vast amount of unpublished material to select from, and he has done his work with unusual intelligence and with an instinct for the vital quality, interestingness, which is as keen as a journalist's. Father de Smet was known as 'The apostle of the Rocky mountains.' He gained an extraordinary influence among the Indians, great numbers of whom he converted and among whom he was known as the 'Black Robe.' His word seems to have been law among the red men, and his great influence was used in the interest of the government more than once when by raising a finger he was able to prevent bloody insurrections."—Lit D

"Every American-Catholic or non-Catholic ought to read this entertaining life of Father de Smet, explorer, geographer, ethnologist, linguist, writer and missionary."

+ Cath World 102:841 Mr '16 130w

"Now available for the first time in English form in an excellent translation. In its original French form the book went into many editions. It was praised highly by the Paris journals. Much of the story is told in Father de Smet's own words, and these portions of the book have special charm for the reader—an unusual strain of eloquence and of genuine poetry."

LAVEILLE, E.—Continued

+ Lit D 52:726 Mr 18 '16 600w

LAW, REV. ROBERT. Grand adventure, and other sermons. $1.25 (2c) Doran 252

16-22425

A volume of sermons by Professor Law of Knox college, Toronto. Among the number are several preached during the past two years. These treat of some of the aspects and lessons of the war, but, the author says, the book is not specifically a volume of war-sermons. Among the subjects are: The law of non-resistance; The law of stewardship; Politics according to Christ; Strength and beauty; Providence in the fall of a sparrow; Cain and Christ; The grand adventure.

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. Amores. $1.50 Huebsch 821

16-19645

Poems that have much of the quality of "Sons and lovers." The love of son for mother is the theme of more than one of them, but the author's treatment of this relationship is not the usual one.

+ N Y Times 21:509 N 26 '16 30w

+ R of Rs 54:676 D '16 60w

"Mr. Lawrence's poems of passion are almost as outspoken as Whitman's, and with the same robust sincerity. . . . His attitude to life is that of a man of great vitality; but bitter experience; one whose great desires, left unsatisfied, lead to a half-concealed savagery. The breaks in the gloom and intervals between the storms, such as the purely tender poems of the mother and one or two of children, come as a surprise amid much that is turbulent and rebellious. So do the pure songs amid much that is strange and wilful in form. . . . In any case, we must be interested, sometimes charmed, sometimes repelled, but always forced to share the experience."

The Times [London] Lit Sup p379 Ag 10 '16 920w

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. Prussian officer, and other stories. $1.50 (2c) Huebsch

These are not, as one might suppose, stories of the war. The first two are stories of the German army, but they are primarily psychological studies. The first is a study of the relationship between an officer and his orderly. It is a morbid theme handled skillfully, an analysis of the physical attraction of one man for another disguised under brutality. Of the ten remaining stories, several have the familiar colliery district of the author's novels and plays for their setting.

"There is a certain sombre brutality in Mr. Lawrence's work recalling aspects of Zola's 'La terre,' or Huysmans's 'En rade,' or (to come to our own literature) Mr. James Joyce's 'Dubliners.' This last, indeed, furnishes a very fair parallel, except that Mr. Joyce adds the touch of far-sighted melancholy evident in the later school of Irish writing. Mr. Lawrence is more sensuous."

Ath 1915:1:68 Ja 23 280w

"There is little peace in this volume for the nervous reader, little good cheer for the purchaser of sweet and pleasant fiction. And I am by no means sure that there is enough genuine force here to atone for all the disagreeableness."

H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 44:645 F '17 420w

"What redeems his work is its transparent sincerity. Mr. Lawrence is no crude practitioner in the cult of the nasty. He takes no morbid delight in unpleasantness for unpleasantness' sake. There is no trace of that delight in raw material that marks the writer of the fleshly school. He is intensely in earnest. He has seen and felt at first hand, and in hot, glowing language he pours forth, as one under compulsion, the result of his experience."

+ — Sat R 119:42 Ja 9 '15 550w

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. Twilight in Italy. $1.50 (2½c) Huebsch 914.5

Some of the studies in this volume are reprinted from the English Review and the Westminster Gazette. It is a volume of sketches of travel in northern Italy, beginning with an account of the entrance to Italy by way of the Alps.

N Y Br Lib News 3:170 N '16 20w

Pittsburgh 21:582 D '16 30w

"An unusual travel book in that it gives the impressions made upon the mind of the author by men and women, rather than by art monuments or natural scenery."

R of Rs 55:218 F '17 60w

"Mr. Lawrence is a writer with some sense of style, and it is disappointing to see a good gift so mishandled. He uses soft and pretty mannerisms because he lets his thought drift, without care for precision or clean finish. He might have written a good book about Italy if he had been content to take things simply, and to see no more than he really saw. But he preferred the easier course of discovering the Infinite."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p284 Je 15 '16 530w

LAWRENCE, RALPH RESTIEAUX. Principles of alternating current machinery. (Electrical engineering texts) il $4.50 McGraw 621.3

16-21199

[A work] "based upon notes used by the author during several years' experience in teaching senior students in the Massachusetts institute of technology. [It] treats of principles underlying construction and operation, but is in no sense a work on design. Mathematical and vector treatment has been freely used as required."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

N Y Br Lib News 3:170 N '16

N Y P L New Tech Bks p11 N '16 50w

Pittsburgh 21:572 D '16 20w

St Louis 14:433 D '16 20w

LAWRENCE, ROBERT MEANS. Site of Saint Paul's cathedral, Boston and its neighborhood. il $3.50 (6c) Badger, R: G. 974.4

16-18626

The author says, "During a period of nearly two centuries, from the founding of Boston in the year 1630 to the erection of Saint Paul's church in 1820, the tract bounded by Tremont, Winter, West and Washington streets was open land, consisting of gardens and pastures, dotted here and there with wooden dwelling-houses, barns, sheds, trees and orchards. It is our object to give some information, derived from all available sources, regarding the owners and occupants of the land in that vicinity."

"Apparently this book is intended only for Episcopalians or those who make a study of cathedrals, whereas it is really a most interesting account of Tremont and other streets in the vicinity of St. Paul's." J. B. C.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '16 720w

+ Dial 61:475 N 30 '16 120w

+ Nation 103:519 N 30 '16 80w

"Dr. Lawrence's book, which is attractively illustrated, shows the result of much painstaking research."

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 11 '16 300w

LEA, FANNIE HEASLIP (MRS. HAMILTON POPE AGEE). Chloe Malone. il $1.35 (2c) Little 16-17422

A love story of New Orleans. It opens on the night that Chloe Malone, following in the steps of a line of French grandmothers, makes her debut at the old French opera. (It is an interesting New Orleans of which the author writes, one in which the old and the new meet, the French opera and the movies!) And Chloe Malone, inheritor of all the romance of the old, first meets the practical reality of the new in the person of Courtenay Wheeler, the entomologist who is more interested in the boll weevil than he is in her butterfly self. He tells her so, and Chloe, used to the adulation of men, is shocked broad awake. Not only does she begin to draw works on entomology from the public library, she begins also to look at the problem of marriage, which up to now had meant money, in a new light. And since money is offering itself in the form of a very personable young millionaire, Chloe has a difficult question to decide.

"Appeared in the Woman's Home Companion."
+ A L A Bkl 13:85 N '16

"In Chloe Malone the charm of the characters and the witchery of the atmosphere in which the author has surrounded them, transcends completely the importance of the plot, making it not so much inferior as unimportant." D. L. M.
+ Boston Transcript p8 S 16 '16 850w

+ N Y Times 21:356 S 10 '16 300w
+ Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 40w

LEACOCK, STEPHEN BUTLER. Essays and literary studies. *$1.25 (2c) Lane 824 16-8701

A collection of essays by the author of "Non-sense novels," "Literary lapses," etc. While they abound in touches of the author's characteristic humor, they are of more serious intent than some of his previous books. The titles are: The apology of a professor; The devil and the deep sea; Literature and education in America; American humour; The woman question; The lot of the schoolmaster; Fiction and reality; The amazing genius of O. Henry; A rehabilitation of Charles II.

+ A L A Bkl 12:467 J1 '16
+ Boston Transcript p7 Je 17 '16 1200w
Dial 60:510 My 25 '16 360w
+ Ind 86:455 Je 12 '16 270w

"To our mind the most admirable essay in the volume is that in which the author, talking on fiction and reality, defends Dickens from the cheap, though recurrent, charge of being the creator solely of caricatures. In the essay on American humour he himself qualifies as a humorist by not being able to say anything very enlightening on the subject: What humorist yet could explain the philosophy of his jokes? Mr. Leacock exhibits much good sense in touching on education, and especially that of the secondary school, in which he has had experience as a master."

+ Nation 102:546 My 18 '16 430w

"He is not the discoverer of the extravagances of the modern problem play, or the weaknesses of American school systems. But on the methods by which he presents these things to us, on the ways by which he makes us laugh and seriously remember, he has set his sign and seal as originator, and no one can take it from him."

+ N Y Times 21:242 Je 11 '16 500w
+ R of Rs 54:345 S '16 90w

+ Sat R 122:137 Ag 5 '16 830w

"The close correspondence of Mr. Leacock's criticisms to those of the American essayist, Mr. Paul Elmer More, in that remarkable volume, 'Aristocracy and justice,' is most interesting and significant. In temperament the two writers are widely different: their conclusions are almost invariably the same."

+ Spec 117:76 J1 15 '16 1900w

"He occasionally drops to seriousness and concentration. When he argues about the woman question, he makes one wish that he would lay aside his facetiousness oftener. There is good variety and plenty of mild entertainment in the volume. If Mr. Leacock writes for un-literary Americans, it should be said that he does not write for unintelligent ones."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 500w

"The half-serious, half-jesting 'Rehabilitation of Charles II' is brilliant. The whole book is as clever as can be. But the reader will be tempted to find more than a jest in the confession that neatly rounds off the paper on schoolmasters:—"The half-truth is to me a kind of mellow moonlight in which I love to dwell. One sees better in it."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p318 J1 6 '16 1250w

LEACOCK, STEPHEN BUTLER. Further foolishness; sketches and satires on the follies of the day. *$1.25 (2½c) Lane 827 16-26997

Peace, war and politics; Movies and motors, men and women; Follies in fiction; Timid thoughts on timely topics, make up the contents of this new book of humorous sketches. In the first section, Peace, war and politics, Mr. Leacock makes merry over the international situation, the Mexican disturbance and the dilemmas of the president. In the later parts of the book he exercises his gift of clever parody, satirizing the movie play, the modern short story, and the Russian novel.

+ A L A Bkl 13:176 Ja '17

"In all of them we find the ideas which have occurred, half formed, to us less-gifted folk. Here, they are developed, and played upon by the iridescent light of wit and fancy." E. L. P.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 23 '16 1000w
+ Dial 61:588 D 28 '16 160w

"Enough wise and kindly satire and enough gay burlesque to make us forget the humorless pages."

+ N Y Times 21:580 D 31 '16 200w

LEAF, WALTER. Homer and history; a contribution to Homeric study. *$3.75 Macmillan 883.1 16-7534

"This work, a companion to the same author's 'Troy' is based on a series of lectures prepared to be delivered on the Harris foundation at Northwestern university. The war prevented Dr. Leaf from visiting America. The book is now published with the hope that it may serve as a protest, faint and feeble enough, against the extinction of the intellectual interest in the flood of barbarous materialism which has been let loose upon Europe. . . . The author assumes the reality of the Trojan war with a setting in actual lands. This geography reflects the conditions existing near the end of the second millennium B. C. The Greek catalogue is so utterly out of harmony both with the rest of the 'Iliad' and the facts of history that it must be regarded as an addition by a later hand. . . . The Achaeans are regarded as a small organized band of invading conquerors who did not destroy but assimilated the civilization which they found in possession; hence there was no immediate break with the Minoan culture. . . . The author regards the wanderings of Odysseus as belonging to the regions of fancy. . . . Dr. Leaf does not scruple to identify Leukas with Ithaca, has no patience with the theory that many of the heroes were faded gods, regards Agamemnon as the actual leader of the city which dominated the heroic period, and regards both poems as the poetic description of historic facts, true in the main to the geographic settings."—Class J

"Its merit lies in a wealth of detail, often brilliant and convincing, always stimulating and suggestive; but which in the opinion of the reviewer needs rectification at many points." G. M. Bolling

+ Am Hist R 22:135 O '16 650w

"Dr. Leaf by no means confines himself to topography, and has an interesting discussion of the complex elements of Greek religion, which was a compromise between the gods and rites of the conquerors and the rural population."

+ Ath p19 Ja '16 1350w

"Mr. Leaf has produced, unquestionably, a work which will attract not only the scholar but the general reader. His enthusiasm for his favorite topic, fostered for a quarter of a century, has here reached its highest point of fervor. If this enthusiasm for the absolute reality of the Trojan war, including the circumstances and personages, be possibly a trifle too far drawn, he has without doubt plunged into scholarly research, in search of the absolute truth, to a much greater depth than any of his contemporaries." E. J. C.

LEAF, WALTER—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p24 F 16 '16 1350w

"Dr. Leaf has shown again what can be accomplished by a thorough knowledge of geography in explaining the origin of the Homeric poetry. The highest praise is to say that 'Homer and history' will enhance the reputation of the author of 'Troy.'" J. A. Scott

+ Class J 11:509 My '16 670w

"Few, if any, who are competent to judge will doubt the assertion that Leaf is the greatest Homeric scholar of his time. . . . It is curious that one of the few weak points in Dr. Leaf's knowledge of the country he describes in lectures intended to be delivered in America should be Corinth, which has been so extensively excavated by Americans . . . and Corinth is not an essential part of Dr. Leaf's argument in this truly important book."

+ Nation 103:543 D 7 '16 1250w

+ Nature 97:118 Ap 6 '16 650w

+ Sat R 121:17 Ja 1 '16 1200w

"He has such a wealth of knowledge, such a happy and often humorous pen, that nothing he writes can ever fail at once to please and to instruct."

+ Spec 116:553 Ap 29 '16 1950w

LEASK, GEORGE A. Heroes of the great war; or, Winning the Victoria cross. il $*1.50 (3c) Crowell 923

The author tells the stories of some of the men who have won the Victoria cross in the present war. Among the titles of the twenty and more stories are: Australia's first V. C.; The first airman to destroy a Zeppelin; The great deeds of Corporal Holmes at Le Cateau; The undying story of Captain F. O. Grenfell; The immortal deed of Sergeant O'Leary at Cuinchy; Ten heroes of Neuve Chapelle; Our Canadian V. C. heroes.

N Y Br Lib News 3:185 D '16

LEBLANC, MAURICE. Woman of mystery. il $*1.25 (1½c) Macaulay co. 16-15596

A sensational story of the war. On the day of his marriage, Paul Delrose sees for the first time a picture of his wife's mother and recognizes her as the woman who had murdered his father. Shocked and embittered by this discovery, he leaves at once to answer the call for mobilization. Thru the events that follow there moves the figure of the woman of mystery, evidently a German spy, and she too bears a striking resemblance to the woman of the picture. Elisabeth, the wife, who believes in her mother's innocence, remains in her chateau near the frontier. It is surrounded by German troops and she is abducted by one of the royal princes. Her rescue and the clearing away of the mystery complete the story.

"We must be willing to grant any or all impossible situations if we are to enjoy this particular brand of mystery story, for after all the mystery is interesting and well sustained." F. M. Holly

Pub W 90:842 S 16 '16 480w

LE BON, GUSTAVE. Psychology of the great war; tr. by E. Andrews. $*3 Macmillan 940.91 (Eng ed 16-23099)

"M. Le Bon's present book is concerned, as is of course obvious from the title, with the affective and emotional rather than the strategic side of the war. His theme is the preponderance of these—as he calls them—"mystic" elements over the rational bases of action in the present struggle. . . . His study of the causes, remote and direct, of the present war, his analysis of the 'wills of the three emperors,' are all fascinating reading."—N Y Times

"The psychology of the great war' is a big book—more than 450 pages. And it is full throughout of interesting analyses, hypotheses, records. It is an unusual and important book, that should have its place in the thinking man's war library. The reader may or may not agree with M. Le Bon's viewpoint, but his study of the war should include a knowledge of this book, and he cannot fail to find it interesting."

+ N Y Times 21:567 D 24 '16 720w

"The author seems in this to ignore, or to be ignorant of, the whole development of historical science (using the word historical in the widest sense) which has taken place during the last century and a half. . . . If the general purpose of the book is invalidated by these fundamental weaknesses, the execution is open also to serious criticism."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p598 D 14 '16 1700w

LEDoux, LOUIS VERNON. Story of Eleusis; a lyrical drama. $*1.25 Macmillan 812 16-22279

A poetic drama based on the story of Demeter and Persephone. "The five acts of the play deal with Persephone on Ætna, from whence she is stolen by Pluto and taken to Hades; with Demeter at a roadside well in Attica, with Demeter at Eleusis in the house Celeus, the king, during famine; with Persephone in Hades; and the temple at Eleusis where Persephone rejoins Demeter, and the promise of 'reawakened earth' for sowing and reaping is vouchsafed." (Boston Transcript)

"The argument of the play drawn from classical legend is too well known for comment. Mr. Ledoux's achievement is in the handling of the situations which tell the story, and in the superbly wrought verse, both in the speakers and the choruses. But more than this there is the symbolized mood of human aspiration which the story of Persephone so completely interprets." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 28 '16 1000w

N Y Br Lib News 3:185 D '16

+ N Y Times 21:508 N 26 '16 30w

"Mr. Ledoux has not been able to escape his modern education; he has not been able to become a Greek. . . . He has given us a volume of genuine melody, of rich thought, and of considerable dramatic possibility; it might well be enacted on a summer's day in an out-of-doors theater." N. H. Dole

+ — Poetry Review 2:9 N '16 1700w

LEDWIDGE, FRANCIS. Songs of the fields; with an introd. by Lord Dunsany. $*1.25 Duffield 821 (Eng ed 16-6166)

Lord Dunsany in his introduction writes, "I have looked for a poet amongst the Irish peasants because it seemed to me that almost only amongst them there was in daily use a diction worthy of poetry, as well as an imagination capable of dealing with the great and simple things that are a poet's wares." In Francis Ledwidge this poet seems to have appeared. "Of pure poetry," writes Lord Dunsany further, "there are two kinds, that which mirrors the beauty of the world in which our bodies are, and that which builds the more mysterious kingdoms where geography ends and fairyland begins. . . . Mr. Ledwidge gives us the first kind."

+ A L A Bkl 12:418 Je '16

"Hitherto, if this is the best he has yet rendered, he has chosen themes somewhat too easy for his strength. But we rather expect that a young author, whose native vision of things is so acute and so intellectual as the reader comes to perceive Mr. Ledwidge's to be—whose power of mere singing, too, is so real—will not always be content with making us see fragmentary glimpses, however charming, of wild land and water but will presently address himself to create a whole."

+ — Ath p72 F '16 160w

"His most conspicuous accomplishment is a fresh and felicitous phrasing. There is neither interpretation nor suggestion for form, color or spirit, just the pure essence of mood and enjoyment. He leaves pictures in the mind, sounds in the ear, and a fragrance runs coolingly up the nostrils as if one stood in his fields and woods. It is altogether a charming art." W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ja 29 '16 1250w

"His best verse is objective, and his lyrics are as simple in scheme as they are direct in thought. He is not a poet trying to share a peasant's experiences; he is a peasant with a poet's gift of utterance. There is only one modern poet of nature whose verse that of Francis Ledwidge closely resembles; that is the late Madison Cawein. . . . Lord Dunsany's introduction to this book is an extraordinarily sound and well-phrased piece of literary criticism."

+ N Y Times 21:25 Ja 23 '16 2150w

Pratt p32 Ap '16

"The story of his brave, adventurous life seems to be more a poem than his printed poetry." R: Le Gallienne

+ Pub W 89:1323 Ap 15 '16 170w

"One of the new authentic voices of Irish poetry."

+ R of Rs 53:375 Mr '16 150w

"They are the spontaneous expression of his simple love of the Irish fields, and the feeling of these songs is sincere enough to take us back from the present fields of war. They distil for us the peace we have almost forgotten, before the blackbird's song was heard against the bugles. Mr. Ledwidge was really happy in the fields, not with the happiness of an escaped townsman, but with the happiness of one who has never known or been broken to the town."

+ Sat R 120:sup O 16 '15 570w

+ Spec 116:691 Je 3 '16 280w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 380w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:408 N '16 50w

LEE, ERNEST MARKHAM. Story of symphony. (Music story ser.) Il *$1.25 Scribner 785 16-24102

"An attempt to trace the rise and development of the symphony as an art form. . . . Dr. Lee inquires for the reason of the supremacy of Beethoven. He finds that he was born at the right time, after the experimental work had been done by Haydn and Mozart, after its form was settled and completely understood. Consequently Beethoven was able to concentrate his thoughts upon the emotional contents of his music." (Springfield Republican) "Every one who reads his book will learn what a symphony is, how it comes to be what it is, and, broadly speaking, what are the lines of demarcation between it and the symphonic poem." (The Times [London] Lit Sup)

N Y Br Lib News 3:142 S '16

St Louis 14:399 N '16

"Dr. Lee's book is informing, but neither brilliant nor markedly original. Contemporary composers are rather inadequately treated, though Dr. Lee does the right thing in aiming to supply the uninitiated with the information which is most valuable in itself, and most necessary as a background for the adventuring ear and mind."

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 2 '16 350w

"Dr. Lee's life experience as a writer of notes for concert programmes has taught him what are the sort of facts that the casual concert-goer likes to be supplied with, and in the case of the most frequently performed symphonies, particularly those of Beethoven, he states these facts clearly and simply. . . . At the same time, we could wish that he had bestowed more attention on certain other and later types of the symphony which the concert goer must know and is beginning to know."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p255 Je 1 '16 600w

LEE, GERALD STANLEY. We. *$1.50 (1/2c) Doubleday 814 16-8945

A new and different kind of war book, called by its author: "A confession of faith for the American people during and after war. A study of the art of making things happen. A recommendation of the first person plural for men and nations." The author felt impelled to write a war book for the spectators, for those who are fighting the "real war" within themselves, a fight for their faith in human nature. "The thing that is going to count most in settling the present war is the theory of human nature each man in this world lives with while he watches it." Much of his book is devoted to Andrew Carnegie, and much to Colonel Roosevelt, and he has little more time for the peace propaganda of the first than for the war plans of the second. Like the nations of Europe Colonel Roosevelt has no means of expressing himself save by fighting. For one man in America Mr. Lee has a great deal of time and that man is Henry Ford, whose means of self expression in his factories in Detroit is an ideal he would have held up to the world as representative of America.

+ A L A Bkl 12:454 J1 '16

"I venture to pronounce it the most vividly American book of our generation." J. B. Kerfoot + Cleveland p72 Je '16 150w (Reprinted from Life)

+ Ind 87:166 J1 31 '16 400w

"America can express peace, bring peace to the world, and this is the author's wish. He has diagnosed the case, he is 'agin' preparedness of the orthodox, soldier kind. It's the world's business to defend a nation, not the nation's and Mr. Lee attempts to show how in over 700 pages of keen, funny, serious satire."

+ Lit D 52:1286 My 6 '16 350w

"There is nothing fantastic in the programme. It will be hard, however, for any hard-headed person to do full justice to a programme presented in Mr. Lee's literary style. He gushes, and slushes, and shrinks into epigram. . . . Mr. Lee's belief in collective miracles is his forte and his foible. It is his particular half-truth, and it leads him to represent the general complacency and inertia of America, our mere laziness, as a regenerative principle for a stricken world."

+ Nation 102:625 Je 8 '16 380w

"A masterpiece of inexpressibleness. Nothing is more irritating than to see good ideas mishandled. A good book could be made of the idea that a civilization of expressiveness, irony, candor, intelligence, would banish war and all the virus of social conflict. Mr. Lee chooses to smother such an idea in mushiness." Randolph Bourne

+ New Repub 7:282 J1 15 '16 1350w

+ Pittsburgh 21:360 J1 '16 50w

"Precious, wholesome, jolting, and whimsical book." Algernon Tassin

+ Pub W 89:1328 Ap 15 '16 750w

"A mental topic for conservative and radical alike."

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 28 '16 850w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p360 J1 27 '16 90w

"Mr. Lee has a peculiar wisdom and kindness; only we wish that he were not so conscious that it is peculiarly American and would not try to express it in what he takes to be an American manner. For a writer, if he is to say just what he has to say, must write like himself, not like his ideal of a representative of America. . . . Mr. Lee is not aware that he is talking very like a German professor. . . . The danger is in your belief in the superiority of your own nation."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p379 Ag 10 '16 1350w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:268 Je '16 70w

LEE, JENNETTE (BARBOUR PERRY) (MRS. GERALD STANLEY LEE). Symphony play. *$1 Scribner 812 16-6805

With the idea that a series of short plays might be "so related in color and tone and progressive meaning that together they would form a perfect whole." Mrs. Lee has written four one-act plays and arranged them to correspond with the four parts of a symphony. They are not related in characters or action. The "progressive meaning" might be interpreted as the unfolding and freeing of the spirit.

"Her characters are vaguely drawn personifications. In only one play, 'The brother,' where she has taken a leaf from the note book of the propagandist school does she show evidence of genuine dramatic feeling."

LEE, JENNETTE—Continued

— Boston Transcript p4 My 3 '16 320w

"As a demonstration of the possibilities of the symphonic form in drama, these little plays, perhaps, may fall a little short of their aim, but individually they exhibit notable perception, originality, earnestness, and literary and dramatic ability." J. R. Towse

+ — Nation 103:19 Jl 6 '16 1050w

"It is so essentially 'symbolic' that, for all its very real loveliness, we fear that the reader may sometimes be moved to impatience by wondering just what the author does mean."

+ — N Y Times 21:337 Ag 27 '16 650w

Springfield Republican p6 S 12 '16 440w

LEE, JENNETTE (BARBOUR PERRY) (MRS. GERALD STANLEY LEE). Unfinished portraits. il *$1.25 (4c) Scribner 16-26863

Both fact and fancy contribute to these stories of musicians and artists. "There was in Florence a lady" is the story of the painting of the Mona Lisa, suggesting an explanation of the baffling smile. "Thumbs and fugues" is a story of Bach; "A window of music," of Schubert; "Frederic Chopin—a record" gives extracts from Chopin's diary, or a supposed diary. "The man with the glove" has two heroes, Titian and Giorgione. In "The lost monogram," a story of Albrecht Dürer and one of his pictures, the time between his century and ours is spanned.

+ A L A Bkl 13:85 N '16

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '16 280w

+ Ind 88:165 O 23 '16 30w

"A sentimentality harmonizing best with the Bach incident vitiates in others the essence of reality. Faulty visual images contribute to the impression of artificiality."

— New Repub 9:222 D 23 '16 190w

+ N Y Times 22:8 Ja 7 '17 80w

+ Springfield Republican p13 N 5 '16 430w

"Of little interest to readers who do not know the lives and work of these men."

Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 30w

LEE, JOSEPH. Ballads of battle. il *$1.25
2 Dutton 821 16-23602

"Soldier, poet and artist, Corporal Joseph Lee acquires himself well of two of his three occupations in this little volume whose poems for the most part deal with the experiences and emotions of the soldier in his varied duties. In one of the poems, however, he wonders over that dual nature of man that impels him to be cruel and merciless as well as soft and tender—that enables him, in short, to be at the same time a soldier and a fellow-man."—Bookm

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 44:512 Ja '17 150w

"The spirit of Corporal Lee's verse is generous, alike to ally and foe, and at times he sounds a deeper note. Corporal Lee's spirited sketches and portraits add greatly to the attractiveness of his little volume."

+ Spec 117:sup391 O 7 '16 220w

"Because the poems are fresh from the firing line and because they were written with a depth of feeling that to some degree makes up what they lack in poetic imagery, and that atones for their frequent crudities, they will be found interesting."

+ — Springfield Republican p6 Ja 30 '17 300w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p191 Ap 20 '16 220w

LEE, SIR SIDNEY. Life of William Shakespeare. il *$2 (1c) Macmillan 822.3 16-1752

Sir Sidney Lee has rewritten his life of Shakespeare, published seventeen years ago, making use of the results of Shakespearean research since that time. The author says: "The whole has been drastically revised and greatly enlarged. . . . My endeavour has been to present in a just perspective all the trustworthy and relevant information about Shakespeare's life and work which has become available up to the present time. . . . The new documentary evidence, which scholars have lately discovered touching the intricate stage history of Shakespeare's era, has proved of especial service." (Preface) The new edition makes a volume of 758 pages, inclusive of the index.

+ A L A Bkl 12:303 Mr '16

"It is interesting to note that Sir Sidney has not abated one jot of his well-known doctrine as to the impersonal, derivative, and artificial nature of the sonnets. . . . We have not by any means adumbrated all the additions in Sir Sidney Lee's tremendous work. Enough to say that so wonderful a record of unwearied scholarship, free of superfluous pedantry, is a beacon and example to an age inclined to flout learning, and demand, not disinterested inquiry, but potted results."

+ Boston Transcript p26 Ja 5 '16 1500w
(Reprinted from The Nation [London])

"Sir Sidney wastes neither time nor energy on the elaborate critical paraphernalia with which many biographers fill out what would be otherwise meagre volumes. Every word with him counts." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 26 '16 1450w

"To reconstruct Shakespeare for us, his biographer must be not only a competent compiler of other men's work and a scholar, but must be richly endowed with the biographic imagination and a fine psychologic insight. Sir Sidney's book gives abundant evidence of the first two qualities, but not a trace of the second. The author's guiding principle seems to have been to include every fact that can in any way be brought into association with the poet. The result is a maze of shreds and patches without any sense of unity. It would be much nearer the truth to call this volume a dictionary or manual of Shakespeareana than 'A life of William Shakespeare.'" S. A. Tannenbaum

— Dial 60:536 Je 8 '16 4300w

+ Lit D 52:446 F 19 '16 170w

+ Nation 102:360 Mr 30 '16 1300w

"Perhaps the most welcome contribution made by Sir Sidney Lee to our knowledge of Shakespeare is the fruit of his painstaking investigation of a multitude of legal records bearing on Shakespeare's business and property transactions in Stratford-on-Avon."

+ N Y Times 21:21 Ja 16 '16 1650w

"Will doubtless be the definitive biography." Robert Lynd

+ Pub W 89:656 F 19 '16 850w

+ R of Rs 53:499 Ap '16 70w

"Sir Sidney Lee has devoted eighteen years of his life to a profound study of Elizabethan literature. It seems almost presumptuous to comment, even in a eulogistic strain, on such herculean literary labour. Yet it may be some gratification to the author to know that one who can scarcely boast that he has devoted as many days as Sir Sidney Lee has years to Shakespearean study, has been able to read the seven hundred and twenty closely printed pages of his work without for one moment feeling his interest flag." [Earl of] Cromer

+ Spec 116:160 Ja 29 '16 2150w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 30 '16 1850w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:146 Mr '16 40w

LEETE, FREDERICK DELAND. Church in the city. (Constructive church ser.) *$1 (1½c) Abingdon press 261 15-27774

"Bishop Leete has had first-hand experience with city churches, and in the course of some 300 pages he touches upon many of the problems, perhaps all the outstanding ones, of church administration in cities." (Springfield Republican) "Evidently much of the material has been used in public addresses." (Bib World)

"The chapters on the 'Institutional church' and on the 'Children of the town' are especially valuable." A. H.

+ Am J Theol 20:318 Ap '16 80w

"We wish that the great problem might have been handled with more specific and scientific care and with less rhetoric and generalization.

Chap. 7 is a study of 'Family and neighborhood churches' that is marked by discrimination and valuable suggestion. Another valuable chapter is 'The trend toward institutionalism.' Bishop Leete does real, constructive work in this particular study, and points out the peril of the institutional tendency unless it shall be directed and controlled in the right way. The concluding chapter, 'The city redeemed,' is a noble vision. The bibliography is disappointing for its slipshod work. The index is excellent. The subject must receive a less rhetorical and more scientific treatment than this before we have an adequate book."

+ — Bib World 47:198 Mr '16 350w

+ Ind 88:366 N 27 '16 150w

"The chapter on The church in the marketplace is full of hard common-sense. On the all-important problem of the children, he writes admirably, with full knowledge and perception. The book, while basing its appeal mainly upon religious and spiritual grounds, deals scientifically with hard facts and indisputable conditions, in which every good and intelligent citizen, whether connected or not with any religious association, has a direct personal interest. It is well worthy of study."

+ Nation 102:462 Ap 27 '16 1000w

"His point of view is not at all local or provincial: he has studied his theme in all the light available from the Christian world. He knows what all the denominations are doing, for example, for church endowment, and wherever concrete illustration is desirable he takes it from conspicuous churches of whatever name. It is a statesmanlike survey of the whole field of urban church life, its difficulties, its opportunities, spiritual, financial and otherwise. It is a book for laymen as well as ministers, rather more so, in fact; and there is much of suggestive value for church workers outside of city limits."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 13 '16 300w

LEFEVRE, EDWIN. Plunderers. il *$1.25 (1c) Harper 16-14092

A collection of four stories which deal with the manipulation of financiers and other rich men by the Plunderers, a band of daring criminals operating in New York. The schemes of these men are ingenious, their plans are minutely and well laid and invariably successful. The tales are entitled The pearls of the Princess Patricia, The panic of the lion, As proofs of Holy Writ, Cheap at a million.

"This is Mr. Lefevre's kind of thing, and he has never done it better." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:620 Ag '16 230w

"Mr. Lefevre dares quite fearlessly to depart from the theory upon which the majority of fiction is founded that right must inevitably triumph. He knows it is quite as true to life to assert that cleverness and force conquer, but he does not make a dreary thesis of it." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p7 J1 '16 800w

+ — Nation 103:261 S 14 '16 140w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16

"Deals in Wall street characters, and somewhat in Wall street atmosphere—but one does not have to be versed in the bewildering technique of 'The Street' to enjoy it. The stories are well told."

+ N Y Times 21:264 Je 25 '16 300w

"The stories proceed with a rapid action, and are tinged with satirical humor."

+ Springfield Republican p13 J1 2 '16 250w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p359 J1 27 '16 190w

LEFEVRE, EDWIN. Wall street stories. *$1 (2c) Harper 16-1481

These stories of high finance go back several years. Most of them have appeared in the magazines, McClure's, Munsey's, etc., in 1900 and 1901. Contents: The woman and her bonds; The break in turpentine; The tipster; A philanthropic whisper; The man who won; The lost opportunity; Pike's Peak or bust; A theological tipster.

"All intensely interesting. Bulls and bears, tipsters and financial giants are alike realistically pictured. Mr. Lefevre's stories impress the reader with the fearful human demoralization caused by speculation, but they also show the lighter and more humorous side of the great game." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p26 Ja 19 '16 600w

+ Ind 85:429 Mr 20 '16 40w

+ Lit D 52:721 Mr 18 '16 130w

"It is a pity that the same degree of precision which marks the handling of plot and character does not extend to such a matter as mere sentence structure."

+ — Nation 102:285 Mr 9 '16 190w

"To one who does not know the alphabet of 'the Street,' Mr. Lefevre's eight well-told stories hold very much that is incomprehensible. No one can fail to perceive the cleverness of the sketches, but they will be read with peculiar interest by those familiar with the men and methods of the Street, all the more if, as is hinted, certain well-known characters appear under thin disguises."

+ N Y Times 21:64 F 20 '16 170w

"The stories are so uniformly interesting that a unanimous verdict as to which is the best would not be easily reached. But 'The break in turpentine' perhaps best represents the author's characteristic work and style."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 23 '16 270w

LEGGE, EDWARD. Empress Eugénie and her son. il *$3 (3c) Dodd 16-22445

This is the third volume of a trilogy dealing with the Empress Eugénie. The first 'The Empress Eugénie, 1870-1910,' was published in 1910; the second, 'The comedy and tragedy of the second empire,' in 1911. The author's purpose in this third book, devoted to the relations of the Empress with her son, is to clear away some of the misconceptions that grew out of the misrepresentations of French journalism at the time of the prince's death.

Ath p374 Ag '16 210w

N Y Br Lib News 3:169 N '16

"Mr. Legge's third volume on the Empress Eugénie is even less coherent than the others, and may be described as a collection of odds and ends having some relation to the venerable lady, or to the Emperor whom she has survived so long, or to the Prince Imperial. . . . The portraits in the book are interesting."

+ — Spec 117:348 S 23 '16 110w

"Perhaps as Mr. Legge strays so seldom into the paths of serious history, it is unfair to challenge him on those subordinate branches of his subject. Most of his pages are occupied with tittle-tattle: and those who like that sort of thing will find a feast of it."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p341 J1 20 '16 630w

LEGGE, FRANCIS. Forerunners and rivals of Christianity; being studies in religious history from 330 B. C. to 330 A. D. 2v *$7.50 Putnam 209 (Eng ed 16-13343)

"Mr. Legge begins with Alexander as a forerunner of Christianity, since the marriage of Europe and Asia and the fusion of religions initiated by Alexander's conquests opened the era of general religious associations made up of individuals without regard to nationality or social rank. . . . In particular Mr. Legge gives a most interesting account of the Alexandrian fusion of Greek and Egyptian cults which was fostered by Ptolemy. The bulk of the work is devoted to the study of Gnosticism, Mithraism, and Manichaeism. The transition from paganism to the Gnosticism which attached itself to the Christian movement is here shown to begin with the teaching of Orphic circles, and it is by this construction of the process of religious development that Mr. Legge's book distinguishes itself, making intelligible the ideas and practices which pagans brought as the content of their lives to the portals of Christianity."—Am Hist R

"As for the cults considered, no writer in English has given us a treatment equal to this

LEGGE, FRANCIS—Continued

in erudition, and many things known only to the few are here brought to more general knowledge, as, for example, what has been learned about Manichaeism by recent discoveries of remains in Asia. . . . After his admirable constructive beginning Mr. Legge fails to maintain the impression of constructive insight, and the defect seems to be due to the fact that he is more familiar with the by-ways and hedges than with the main road. . . . These illustrations are symptoms of an insecurity of understanding which impairs the value of a work of great importance." F. A. Christie

+ — Am Hist R 22:137 O '16 950w

"Mr. Legge has read widely and accurately over the whole field, and on Egyptian religion (which affords the key to many of the most difficult problems) can speak with the authority of an expert. . . . Where the book falls short, to our mind, is in its handling of the larger problems to which the subject gives rise. Little attempt is made to determine the bearings of the alien religions on Christianity, or their connection with the general intellectual life of the age. . . . As a work of reference and suggestion his book will prove indispensable to all serious students of those religions whose importance for Christianity we are only beginning to realize." E. F. Scott

+ Am J Theol 20:602 O '16 1250w

"Mr. Legge's two volumes meet a real need. . . . Unfortunately, the reader must be cautioned against accepting without further investigation some of the author's conclusions which too often are stated as though they might represent the consensus of opinion when in reality they are quite unusual or even uncertain. Especially is this the case when modern authorities are cited." S. J. Case

+ — Bib World 48:374 D '16 750w

N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

"A rather external study of religions under the Roman empire. The intellectual side of religious belief—the profoundly interesting conflict within the domain of theology proper—does not occupy his attention. . . . And a protest must be entered against the almost violent anti-Semitism of the author. . . . The great interest of the book lies in its copious collection of new documents not before accessible to the ordinary student."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p101 Mr 2 '16 1700w

LE GOFFIC, CHARLES. Dixmude, the epic of the French marines (October 17-November 10, 1914); tr. by Florence Simmonds. (Soldiers' tales of the great war.) Il $1 Lippincott 940.91 (Eng ed 16-6717)

"The heroism of the French brigade of marines (Fusiliers marins), long concealed in official reports, now receives recognition in this connected narrative drawn from a variety of sources, chiefly private letters."—R of Rs

+ A L A Bk1 13:164 Ja '17

"It is too early to write the story of Dixmude in the romantic glow which will finally color it. The present version relates only facts, but it relates them so vividly that the reader must inevitably thrill at the splendid daring of these brave soldier-sailors of France."

+ Boston Transcript p22 J1 '16 300w

+ Lit D 53:752 S 23 '16 230w

+ Nation 103:402 O 26 '16 50w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 30w

LE GUINER, JEANNE. Letters from France; tr. by H. M. C. *$1 (5½c) Houghton 940.91 16-18765

The author of these letters is a Frenchwoman who had spent five years in America as a teacher. In 1914 she returned to her home to visit her people and to study at the Sorbonne. At the outbreak of the war she turned to relief work, but with true French practicality she followed the advice of her brothers to continue her studies in order that she might be better able to aid the family should they be killed or disabled. Between whiles, however, she has given herself devotedly, as have the other women of the country, to its service. Her letters cover the period between Sept. 23, 1914 and Dec. 31, 1915.

"The little volume describes the feelings which are moving France as a whole to her great effort. It is as the common voice of a nation that one likes to read it."

+ Boston Transcript p6 S 27 '16 360w

N Y Br Lib News 3:168 N '16

"An interesting contrast to the records of the hospital are the glimpses the writer gives of wartime activities in the Sorbonne—a human picture that is far less familiar to us in America than the wards of 'les ambulances.'"

+ N Y Times 21:404 O 8 '16 1050w

+ R of Rs 54:573 N '16 100w

"The method is photographic with little of the sense of artistic interpretation to be found in 'French perspectives' on the one hand, or 'Kitchener's mob' for a different example. This is one more war book too many."

— Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 320w

LEIPER, MACON ANDERSON. Language work in elementary schools. Il $1.25 (3c) Ginn 428 16-6773

A handbook for teachers. All of the eight grades are covered with a brief discussion of "Purposes and aims" for each and suggestions and outlines for lessons. A special section is devoted to Language work in rural schools. Selections for memorizing and several dramatized stories are given in appendixes.

LE PRINCE, JOSEPH ALBERT AUGUSTIN, and ORENSTEIN, A. J. Mosquito control in Panama. Il $2.50 (4c) Putnam 614.4 16-4601

The authors of this work were respectively chief and assistant chief sanitary inspector for the Isthmian canal commission. Mr. Le Prince had earlier been associated with General Gorgas in the cleaning up of Havana. In this book they give an account of the methods used in the eradication of malaria and yellow fever in Cuba and Panama. This achievement, as L. O. Howard, chief of the Bureau of entomology, says in his introduction "has been an object-lesson for the sanitarians of the world and has demonstrated the vitally important fact that it is possible for the white race to live healthfully in the tropics." It also made possible the building of the canal. There are 100 illustrations and a map, also an index.

+ A L A Bk1 12:411 Je '16

+ Ann Am Acad 66:264 J1 '16 110w

"Very useful to many engineers will be the line drawings showing such details as concrete linings for various kinds of ditches splash; walls at ditch junctions to prevent water from breaking over and forming small pools; eave-troughs, door screens, mosquito traps and various devices for studying the flight of mosquitoes."

+ Engin N 76:748 O 19 '16 330w

"The first part of the book is an exposition of the methods utilized in gaining control of the Anopheles in the preventive measures against malaria. These methods, as set down, form an invaluable guide for those interested in mosquito elimination—a text book compiled from actual experiences."

+ N Y Times 21:62 F 20 '16 400w

+ Spec 117:192 Ag 12 '16 130w

"General Gorgas himself, in 'Sanitation in Panama,' has told the story of the eradication of the pest; the present work is somewhat more technical and exhaustive, though there is necessarily some overlapping."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 17 '16 350w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p308 Je 29 '16 1550w

LERMONTOV, MIKHAIL YURYEVITCH. Hero of our time; tr. from the Russian by J. H. Wisdom and Marr Murray. *$1.40 Knopf 17-1334

"Mikhail Yurevich Lermontov was born in 1814, and after a stormy and romantic career was killed in a duel in 1841. Between the ages of eighteen and twenty-six he achieved fame as a poet equal to that of Pushkin, and in his single novel, 'A hero of our time,' gave promise of becoming a great prose fictionist. The scene of the tale is laid in the Caucasus, a region loved by Lermontov with the only lasting passion of his life. . . . Always, no matter what the incident in hand may be, we are conscious of the atmosphere of the Caucasus. Always there is suggested the majestic background to the isolated mountain fortresses and garrison towns in which the episodes of the novel take place, dwarfing the petty human passions of the characters. . . . Psychologically, 'A hero of our time' displays a curious division, almost a duality, in the author's temperament. He at once satirizes Byronic romanticism and is an example of it."—N Y Times

"Pechorin—an acidly drawn type of the worldly egoism developed in officer's barracks—is almost too utterly contemptible to be convincing." Winifred Smith

Dial 61:267 O 5 '16 60w
+ N Y Times 21:365 S 17 '16 850w
Springfield Republican p13 Mr 6 '16 250w

LERRIGO, CHARLES HENRY. Castle of cheer. il *$1.25 (2c) Revell 16-3230

"A tale of optimism" dedicated to the memory of Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, undaunted apostle of hope and cheer. The setting is a big sanitarium in the middle west whither an ailing young clergyman of Chicago is sent to fight off tubercular symptoms. Of the head nurse he writes to his mother: "You feel you trust her, she soothes you, she charms you, and you call her beautiful until you see her sister Gladys." Connected with this young woman is hinted a mystery which furnishes the slight plot. Romance is intermingled with the routine of the Castle of Cheer; but the main interest in the story is connected with the buoyancy and optimism which make salutary the atmosphere of the place.

"Those who remember this author's previous book will be pleased to find that the strong cheerful character of 'Doc' Williams again appears in this volume."

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 28 '16 80w

LESLIE, SHANE. End of a chapter. *$1.25 (3c) Scribner 914.2 16-9658

The author, a young Cambridge man (born in the eighties) writes in his preface: "It was while invalided in hospital during the great war that I began to record notes and souvenirs of the times and institutions under which I had lived, realising that I had witnessed the suicide of the civilisation called Christian and the travail of a new era to which no gods have been as yet rash enough to give their name, and remembering that with my friends and contemporaries, I shared the fortunes and misfortunes of being born at the end of a chapter in history." He writes of: Links with the past; Eton college; The dynasty of Hanover; Cambridge university; The religion of England; The politicians; Ireland and the Irish; An empire of sport and freedom; Society in decay; Post-Victorianism.

+ A L A Bkl 13:31 O '16

"We have been so well entertained that we do not dwell on Mr. Leslie's slips. Evidently he does not verify his references."

+ — Ath p418 S '16 550w
Ath p437 S '16 250w

"Whether temporary or permanent, there is evidence of pessimism in his book, a mental state which alone could lead a writer to declare that the war now raging is 'the suicide of the civilization called Christian.' . . . The author is a competent and readable maker of epigrams." H. S. K.

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ap 22 '16 680w
Dial 60:476 My 11 '16 220w

"For a young man of thirty, or thereabouts, to sit down to the writing of his reminiscences would seem too solemn a proceeding to be treated seriously, were it not for the circumstances of the time. . . . The first chapter, Links with the past, derives its interest from the fact that the youthful memoirist has drawn upon the reminiscences of his grandfather and grandmother. It is when the author writes of contemporary events and politics that one feels that his confidence is in inverse proportion to his years. . . . On the other hand some of his estimates are acute and probably sound, as those of George V, and of his prime minister, Herbert Asquith."

+ Nation 102:652 Je 15 '16 750w
N Y Br Lib News 3:87 Je '16
+ N Y Times 21:280 Jl 9 '16 320w

"Few books of seemingly desultory reminiscence and comment equal this of Mr. Shane Leslie's in a certain vitality of thought and pungency of expression. . . . It would be a mistake to read Mr. Leslie's book unhumorously, a greater mistake not to perceive its essential earnestness."

+ No Am 203:927 Je '16 550w
+ Pittsburgh 21:355 Jl 16 100w

"Mr. Leslie, in his less than 200 pages, is letting off verbal fireworks in a succession of short sentences all the time. Many of them are amusing, and a good proportion of them are new. . . . Mr. Leslie is still young enough to patronise everyone and everybody."

+ — Sat R 122:231 S 2 '16 330w

"Mr. Leslie has all the dogmatism and prejudice of youth, and his diatribes against our society, our church, and our institutions in general before the war will annoy those who take them too seriously."

+ — Spec 117:sup398 O 7 '16 240w

"It is the sincerity of Mr. Leslie's gayety and eagerness that makes his memoirs more than a bit of young man's passing swagger."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p403 Ag 24 '16 1450w
+ Wis Lib Bull 12:271 Je '16 110w

LETHBRIDGE, MRS. MARJORIE COLT (BYRNE), and LETHBRIDGE, ALAN BOURCHIER. Soul of the Russian. *$1.25 (2½c) Lane 914.7 16-22607

In "The new Russia," published last year, Mr. Lethbridge wrote of a journey thru Russia taken in company with his wife. To the present volume, both Mr. and Mrs. Lethbridge contribute sketches descriptive of Russian life and character. "These sketches are all short," they say in explanation. "There is, as a rule, no relation one to the other, and their separate perusal will only occupy a matter of minutes. But—and this is the end the authors hope to have attained—it is possible that they may whet the appetite of the reader to know more about Russia; and they may encourage enquiry and study; and they may be the seeds from which will arise a love for greatly misunderstood Russia, such as the authors have for her themselves." (Preface)

+ Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '16 550w
+ Lit D 53:1551 D 9 '16 220w
+ Nation 104:109 Ja 25 '17 130w

"It is a pleasant book for just such brief readings. It can hardly be said that it possesses what seems to us the compelling charm of Mr. Rothay Reynolds's book. Nor do we find the Russian soul revealed, as, for instance, Hugh Walpole, alone among English writers, manages to reveal it in a page, a paragraph, a mere phrase, in his latest novel, 'The dark forest.'"

+ N Y Times 21:533 D 3 '16 340w
R of Rs 54:571 N '16 70w

"This little book has a charm and aroma of its own. It is as though the writers have caught one of the great secrets of the Russian character—its simplicity, its directness, its warm and affectionate humanity, its naïveté. The writers have divested themselves of the predilections, prejudices, and patronage of the average Englishman, and have succeeded in transmitting to us at first hand a series of intimate pictures of Russian life and character."

+ Sat R 122:115 Jl 29 '16 500w

LETHBRIDGE, M. C. and A. B.—Continued

"Many of the sketches are reproduced from British periodicals—the Outlook, the Standard and the Evening Standard."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 100w

LETTERS from old-time Vassar, written by a student in 1869-70. (Old-time Vassar ser.)
$1 Vassar college, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
376.8 16-256

"This lively tribute to Vassar consists of a volume of letters written in the first years of the college. From these, we understand more of the college spirit, which was much the same in '69 as it is in '16; they had strict rules it is true, interminable 'Chapel,' and severe discipline. But rules can always be broken, and it is evident that there was plenty of fun. . . . The 'student,' whoever she was, was blessed with a sense of humor, and a determination to get all the enjoyment there was in life."—Boston Transcript

"Her letters are very human, very interesting."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 19 '16 130w

"More books such as these are needed in our libraries to vivify with personal recollection the annals that, read abstractly, tend to give a dreary and bare outline to a movement actually full of life and color."

+ Dial 60:428 Ap 27 '16 150w

+ Pittsburgh 21:363 JI '16 70w

"The writer of the letters is almost unvaryingly light and gay, but shows a trace now and then of serious moods."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 13 '16 150w

LEVERING, JULIA HENDERSON (MRS. MORTIMER LEVERING). Historic Indiana.
il $2.25 (1½c) Putnam 977.2 16-12568

The original edition of this book was reviewed in the Digest in 1909. The present edition, revised and enlarged, has been brought out in honor of the Indiana centennial. There are fifty-four illustrations.

"The author of this history has done her work with great thoroughness—at much length, to be sure, but in a way that never fags one's interest." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 10 '16 850w

LEVY, FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE, ed. Guide to the works of art in New York city. il pa 50c Florence N. Levy, 215 W. 57th st., N. Y. 16-14243

"Miss Levy prepared, last spring, for those who might visit New York for the annual meeting of the N. E. A., a little handbook entitled 'A guide to the works of art in New York city.' It is an illustrated pamphlet of sixty pages outlining four 'pilgrimages,' and serving as interpreter by the way. The work is done so well that the book has more than a passing value."—School Arts Magazine

Cleveland p134 N '16

N Y Br Lib News 3:121 Ag '16

+ School Arts Magazine 16:126 N '16 170w

LEWIS, A. G., ed. Sport, travel and adventure.
* il $3 (3c) Dodd 910

From many books of travel and adventure the editor has selected stirring stories or vivid descriptions and has assembled them in this volume. A number of the selections have been made from books that are now out of print or otherwise practically unavailable. In each case the words of the author are used but the editor has arranged the stories by subject with connecting paragraphs from his own pen. Contents: Hunting the lion; Among the Pygmies; The Arctic and the Antarctic; On the ocean wave; Adventure with buffalo; Among the cannibals; Native hunting methods; Marriage customs; Hunting the elephant; Climbing adventures; The explorers' Christmas; Adventure on the highway; Carnivals in many lands; Hunting the bear; Among the cowboys; Adventures in Tibet; Lost; Customs and superstitions; Camp fire yarns.

"A lively collection of traveller's tales. Satisfactory though the editor's selections are in the main, it is somewhat surprising to find many topics represented by writers that are by no means the ones first suggesting themselves as the likeliest to be quoted from. Arctic exploration, for instance, gives us not a line from Captain Peary's books; . . . and though forbidden Tibet is opened to our view, it is not by Mr. Henry Savage Landor."

+ — Dial 59:576 D 9 '15 170w

"An anthology of hairbreadth escapes."

Spec 115:796 D 4 '15 50w

LEWIS, CALVIN LESLIE. Handbook of American speech. il $30c Scott 803.5 16-8926

A text-book for classes in oral English. It is designed especially for beginning classes and untrained teachers. A manual giving directions for using the handbook has also been prepared for the teacher's use. The chapters take up: The organs used to produce speech; The elements of speech; Sounds combined into words; Words combined into sentences; Dialect speech; Speaking in public; Oral composition; Argument. Following these come Selections for practice, and there is a short bibliography at the close. The illustrations, showing the formation of the vowel and consonant sounds are interesting and should prove helpful in overcoming defects of speech. The author is professor of English in Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y.

Reviewed by Wallace Rice

— Dial 61:58 JI 15 '16 1200w

+ Ind 87:233 Ag 14 '16 90w

LEWIS, EDWARD. Edward Carpenter; an exposition and an appreciation. il $1.75 Macmillan (Eng ed 15-15967)

"Mr. Lewis's chapters naturally concern themselves to a great extent with 'Toward democracy,' its writer's most elaborate expression of his creed, and in form and substance an inevitable reminder of 'Leaves of grass.' But if its writer harked back to Whitman in this work, he anticipated another master, Professor Bergson, in some thoughts to which he gave utterance in a later important book, 'The art of creation.' These two works, with others of narrower scope, from the same pen, are made to illuminate the dozen chapters that set forth the doctrine of this remarkable teacher, while the opening and closing pages are given to more purely personal aspects of the man. The book is provided with portrait, index, and footnotes."—Dial

"We think that Mr. Lewis's volume, which we have read with great interest, is specially meant for those who are not yet familiar with Mr. Carpenter's work. If this is so, a bibliography of his writings would have added much to its usefulness."

+ Ath 1915:1:461 My 22 700w

"It is a warmly sympathetic treatment of its theme"

+ Dial 60:387 Ap 13 '16 250w

"The two men seem to be very like-minded, in spite of Carpenter's simplicity and Lewis's sophistication. The added sophistication, it must be said, is a source of weakness rather than of strength; and to many a reader Carpenter's 'Toward democracy' will be more persuasive than Mr. Lewis's redressing of its contents."

+ — Nation 102:289 Mr 9 '16 750w

Pittsburgh 21:229 My '16 90w

"Sometimes Mr. Lewis seems eager to defend Carpenter from the logical conclusions of a theory, but it can be said that he has done his work with sympathy and insight. Those who have no time to read Carpenter's works will find their substance well condensed here."

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 28 '15 300w

LEWIS, EDWIN HERBERT. Those about Trench. *$1.35 (1½c) Macmillan 16-4390

Halsted street, Chicago, is the scene of the greater part of this story. Here Dr. Isham Trench, a pediatrician of note, has gathered about him a queerly assorted group of young men. When he learns that the foreign students in the medical school, particularly the Asiatics, have difficulty in finding comfortable living quarters in the city he opens up his house to them. India, China, Persia, and Servia are represented in his household. And this little international group is shown, in a way that does not appear illogical, to have a connection with the event that precipitated the European war. But it is a novel of ideas rather than of action, and its underlying theme is religious. Dr. Trench himself is an agnostic, holding to a purely mechanistic theory of life, yet living according to the highest humanitarian and Christian ideals. Others views are represented by the various residents in his house and by Edith Bridgman, who sets out courageously to confound Dr. Trench and prove to him by her experiments in the laboratory that life is something more than a matter of chemistry.

A L A Bkl 12:340 Ap '16

Reviewed by Wilson Follett
 Atlan 118:494 O '16 80w

"In the portrayal of these young medical students, of such varying breed, Mr. Lewis has done some of the very best work of the story, work whose superior in recent fiction one would have to go far to find." F. F. Kelly

+ — Bookm 43:84 Mr '16 650w

"A new novelist has appeared who has at his command a most unusual wealth of material, which he wastes in an inconceivably reckless manner through lack of scheme and composition in his work. The author knows the East, understands its people, and is familiar with its customs. Trench and his Chicago are forgotten in the swiftly moving pageant as quickly as if they belonged to another world. This, one is sure, is the author's real story, for it is something which he understands, and in which he interests his readers." R. M.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 F 26 '16 370w

"One reads it with unflagging interest in what is going to happen next." E: E. Hale

+ — Dial 60:384 Ap 13 '16 1000w

"There are two love-stories worked into the plot, but they are elusive and unconvincing—remote, perhaps, is a better word—"

+ — Lit D 52:722 Mr 18 '16 250w

"Though full of faults, is also full of a kind of power: not the power of narrative, for Mr. Lewis's manner of telling his yarn is a constant provocation to profanity; but in part the power of effective phrase, and in part the greater power of creating character. The structure of the novel is nearly as bad as it could be."

+ — Nation 102:460 Ap 27 '16 700w

"Although lacking in literary merit, there are moments of unquestionable excitement in 'Those about Trench.' It illustrates the facility of some of our writers in gaining the effect of romance through sheer speed."

+ — New Repub 8:22 Ag 5 '16 900w

"In some of its phases the story is artificial, and its several parts do not always grow naturally and logically out of its theme. Sometimes its situations and developments are forced in order to work out the prearranged plot. And there are many things in it that make heavy drafts upon the reader's credulity. But offsetting these faults and making the book so unusual and individual that the reader would forgive an even greater measure of crudities are many characters original and striking and portrayed with fresh feeling and whimsical humor; adventures so foreign and richly colored as to give an Arabian nights flavor to parts of the tale, and a rich background of most modern thought, feeling, and scientific knowledge."

+ — N Y Times 21:66 F 27 '16 900w

"Lovers, strange Orientals, odd Americans, factory girls, are thrown together in a jumble that nearly strangles the story, but nevertheless the book is interesting and gives promise by its strong, vivid style."

+ — R of Rs 53:505 Ap '16 70w

"Edwin Herbert Lewis, a prominent Chicago educator and writer on educational topics, has written his first novel. It is a strikingly original piece of work, rich in fact, fiction, folklore and interesting allusions to the underlying impulses of the European war. Unfortunately, some of the subject matter is ill digested, while yet other portions of it ramify from the main thread of the story without contributing to its total artistic impression."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 Mr 5 '16 350w

"There is a hard, tense brilliance about it, an air of never being at a loss for some pointed incident or remark which is fatiguing without being in the least interesting; and a kind of an aggressively scientific obsession seems to dam up its flow of humanity."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p191 Ap 20 '16 280w

"The plot is chaotic, the Chicago part of the story mediocre and melodramatic. The average woman reader will not like it, but some men will."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:186 Ap '16 110w

LEWIS, J. SYDNEY. Old glass and how to collect it. il *$3 Lippincott 748
 (Eng ed 16-23957)

"This is a beautiful book of about two hundred pages, very fully illustrated, with a catalogue of thirty pages at the end, showing the latest prices of important pieces of glass sold by auction at recent sales." (Boston Transcript)
 "Mr. Lewis's book deals almost exclusively with English and Irish glass." (Ath)

+ — Ath p476 O '16 160w

"The general reader can enjoy a work so well written as this, by an author who knows his subject and often tells his own experiences, from which the amateur collector can learn much."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 D 16 '16 250w
 N Y Br Lib News 3:187 D '16

"Should be useful to collectors, especially in the notes on frauds and prices. . . . The illustrations are so very good that they will set some new collectors to work."

+ — Spec 117:556 N 4 '16 90w

LEWIS, MILES. Chapel: the story of a Welsh family. *$1.35 (1c) Doran 16-17185

Father and son are the two members of the Welsh family who engage the reader's attention. Josiah Chapel's wife, Gwen, dies on the day his son, Griff, is born. He looks on his loss as one more blow aimed at him by a malign fate. One failure after another follows in its train, but something indomitable in Josiah impels him to persist in his one ambition: to regain the honorable position once occupied by the Chapels in the community. This ambition takes the tangible form of regaining Wern, the ancestral home. But before it is realized young Griff comes forward, adopting the ambition for his own, but going about its accomplishment in his own manner, so that for many years the two men work at cross purposes, finding in the end, however, that their ways are one.

A L A Bkl 13:35 O '16

"Perhaps the most noteworthy thing about the story is the quiet certainty of its handling." H. W. Boynton

+ — Bookm 43:532 Jl '16 550w

"As a story of soul struggle, of family matters, of Welsh scenes and people, 'Chapel' has a distinction of its own. It has certain crudities of form and style, but it is the first novel of its writer, and they are minor faults compared in the light of the success of his achievement. Mr. Lewis has written a novel that makes him a marked man among young English writers of fiction." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p4 My 31 '16 1350w

+ — Ind 87:32 Jl 3 '16 50w

"Like Mr. De Morgan, the author does not label every line of argument he uses, but gives the reader credit for an intelligence which will understand."

+ — Lit D 53:76 Jl 8 '16 250w

LEWIS, MILES—Continued

"The minor figures are notable for their finished characterization: the book has dignity and solidity—a remarkable performance, whether or not as a 'first novel.'"

+ Nation 103:281 S 21 '16 380w

"An arresting first novel;—the work of a lover of his land employed as a schoolmaster. . . . But the book does not always come up to the author's idea for it. . . . Furthermore, though some narrowness and worldliness in the lives of the characters is intentional, there is a certain narrowness of treatment which is not intentional. . . . These are the defects of 'Chapel' without which it would be a great novel. It has many more virtues than defects." P. W. B.

+ New Repub 9:132 D 2 '16 500w

N Y Br Lib News 3:38 Mr '16

+ N Y Times 21:210 My 21 '16 660w

"One of the finest novels of the year—a brilliant success for a first novel."

+ R of Rs 54:234 Ag '16 200w

+ Spec 116:785 Je 24 '16 30w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 20 '16 550w

LEWIS, NELSON PETER. Planning of the modern city; a review of the principles governing city planning. il *$3.50 Wiley 710 16-14242

"The author is chief engineer of the board of estimate and apportionment of New York city, and he has written from the point of view of the engineer, rather than of the architect or the student of administration and social reform. . . . According to Mr. Lewis's definition, 'city planning is simply the exercise of such foresight as will promote the orderly and slightly development of a city and its environs along rational lines with due regard for health, amenity and convenience for its commercial and industrial advancement.' . . . Frequent reference is made to European experience as well as to that of many American cities and the book is illustrated with many maps, diagrams and views, all pertinent to the subject in hand."—Springfield Republican

"More comprehensive in scope than Robinson (Booklist, 8:267, F '12) and less expensive than Koester (Booklist, 11:64, O '14)."

+ A L A Bkl 13:110 D '16

Cleveland p134 N '16 30w

"In 'The planning of the modern city,' we have the first really American book on city planning written by an engineer for engineers. This does not mean that the volume will not be eminently useful to the architects and landscape architects from whose ranks most of the other books on city planning have come. It will be decidedly useful to them. It will also appeal to laymen."

+ Engin N 76:552 S 21 '16 490w

"This is no ordinary textbook. The pleasing style would keep the reader absorbed even if the real merit of the subject-matter were less. . . . The chapter on the street system, which contains 44 pages, is one of the best in the book. . . . The author is to be congratulated on having ably presented the engineering side of city planning, and the book deserves a wide circulation."

+ Engin Rec 74:748 O 14 '16 810w

"The book is especially a contribution to city-planning knowledge in that it contains mainly facts of American experience arranged for American practitioners. . . . It would seem that parts of the manuscript were prepared some little time before the book came off the press, and that in the process of careful verification which the book shows a few places were not kept quite up to date, such as in the chapter on 'Restrictions.' . . . Not only for the municipal engineer, but also for the student and practitioner of any other profession related to city planning, this book will serve as a store of information and a source of reference." Theodora Kimball

+ Landscape Architecture 7:49 O '16 770w

N Y Br Lib News 3:122 Ag '16 50w

"Reviewed in Municipal Engineers' Journal, Sept., 1916; in Canadian Engineer, Aug. 31, 1916."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p9 N '16 170w

+ N Y Times 21:472 N 5 '16 1000w

+ Springfield Republican p6 J1 10 '16 720w

LEWIS, WILLIAM CUDMORE MCCULLAGH. System of physical chemistry. (Text-books of physical chemistry) 2v il ea *$2.50 Longmans 541.3 A16-741

"The present work, which appears as the latest volume of Sir William Ramsay's series of textbooks, differs radically from its predecessors inasmuch as it essays to present the reader with a fairly comprehensive 'System of physical chemistry.' . . . The author is to be congratulated on this emphasising of the philosophical aspect of his subject, an aspect which is all too frequently ignored by the authors of scientific treatises. For practical purposes the work is divided into two volumes. Vol. 1 deals with the subject from the classical kinetic-molecular point of view. Vol. 2 is divided into two parts, part 1 being entitled 'Considerations based upon thermodynamics,' and part 2 'Considerations based upon thermodynamics and statistical mechanics.'"—Nature

"In its arrangement of matter, lucidity of style, and comprehensive unity of design it is destined to become the standard general treatise on the subject of physical chemistry for English speaking students." F. G. Donnan

+ Nature 98:25 S 14 '16 1250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:77 My '16 10w

"The plan of the book is an ambitious one; but the task was rather more than the author could handle. The treatment is essentially not critical and the reviewer finds the book much less interesting and inspiring than Mellor's 'Chemical statics and dynamics.'" W. D. Bancroft

+ Science n s 44:613 O 27 '16 320w

LEWISOHN, LUDWIG. Spirit of modern German literature. *$1 (5c) Huebsch 830 17-2716

The invitation to deliver these lectures at the University of Wisconsin was welcomed by the author as an opportunity "for recalling to the calmer and more reflective among us the true character of the clearest self-expression of modern Germany." Part 1, The search for reality, has chapters on: The nation and its literature; The novel of doctrinal naturalism; The naturalistic lyric; The drama of Hauptmann and Schnitzler; The novel of pure naturalism; Reality and the moral life. Part 2, The search for interpretation, is made up of the following chapters: The protest of personality: Friedrich Nietzsche; The struggle of personality for liberation; The expression of personality through beauty; The interpretative novel; The interpretative drama; Goethe and the spirit of modern Germany. All notes are relegated to a commentary at the end of the volume. A few translations from modern German lyrics add to the interest of the book for the English reader.

"He is frankly an admirer; he is vividly eulogistic, but his power of logical analysis does not often fail him. In his appraisals he is essentially just. Only here and there one might wish for a bit of restraint." D: Rosenstein

+ N Y Call p14 Ja 28 '17 460w

LIDDELL, DONALD M., comp. Metallurgists and chemists' handbook; a reference book of tables and data for the student and metallurgist. il *$4 McGraw 669 16-7926

"The data presented by Mr. Liddell have been selected in part as the result of experience with readers of the Engineering and Mining Journal. . . . There are first given tables of weights and measures, and mathematical quantities. Then there are statistics of the price and production of various metals. Physical constants of common metals, gases, chemicals, etc., are assembled in one section and followed by a summary of chemical laws and practices, and data therefor. There are also sections on sampling and assaying, ore dressing, cyanidation, general metallurgy, fuels and mechanical engineering."—Engin N

- + A L A Bkl 13:108 D '16
- "Contains some errors."
- + — Cleveland p115 Ag '16 10w
- + Engin N 76:311 Ag 17 '16 120w
- Pittsburgh 21:421 O '16

"Useful compilation of physical and chemical tables and other data conveniently arranged for quick reference."

- + Pratt p26 J1 '16 10w
- St Louis 14:230 Je '16

LINCOLN, CHARLES ZEBINA. Civil law and the church. *$5 Abingdon press 347 16-11178

"This volume is a desideratum. We know of no work which does for the clergyman, the lawyer and the churchman what it does. It is a cyclopædia of the principal judicial decisions rendered by the courts of Great Britain, Canada, and the United States, including federal and state courts, in which have been considered questions relating to distinctively religious matters, and also questions affecting local religious societies." (Boston Transcript) "Mr. Lincoln has adopted the traditional form of digests. Topics to the number of 145 have been selected and arranged alphabetically, from 'Actions' to 'Young men's Christian association.' Most of these topics are subdivided, the subdivisions also being arranged alphabetically. An index proves helpful in furthering the accessibility of the contents." (Dial)

"The work impresses one as thorough and able, and the plan is simple and most convenient." F. W. C.

- + Boston Transcript p9 My 6 '16 550w
- + Cleveland p107 Ag '16 30w

"Unquestionably the most complete and serviceable guide to modern case-law in English-speaking countries affecting the rights and liabilities of religious organizations."

- + Dial 61:358 N 2 '16 300w
- + Ind 88:166 O 23 '16 60w

LINCOLN, IGNATIUS TIMOTHY TRIBICH. Revelations of an international spy. il *$1.50 (2c) McBride 327 16-2386

The author of this work has figured prominently in newspaper stories since his arrest on August 4, 1915, on a warrant sworn out by the British vice-consul in New York. "I am not prompted to make these revelations out of spite or revenge," he says. "Weeks before any proceedings were brought against me, I had been actively engaged upon them. My desire is to bring home the guilt and responsibility for this war to its real authors." Chief of these is Sir Edward Grey. Contents: My secret service activities in the European capitals; Hidden diplomatic moves in many parts of the world; How I obtained the secrets of the French foreign office; Edward VII's intrigues for the isolation of Germany; An Abyssinian intrigue; The triple entente conspiracy; The dangerous ruse which won the confidence of the British foreign office; Spying and counter-spying—the sinister foundation of secret diplomacy.

"We don't say that these revelations are not true, but we reserve the right to regard them as the object of very reasonable suspicion."

- Bookm 43:9 Mr '16 190w

"A book of some timely interest, but no permanent value."

- Cleveland p46 Ap '16 90w

"Apart from their autobiographical interest, the 'revelations' have, as it appears to us, little importance."

- Ind 85:353 Mr 6 '16 700w

"The matter of the book is interesting, but the style is execrable."

- Lit D 52:1287 My 6 '16 280w
- N Y Times 21:45 F 6 '16 650w
- Springfield Republican p13 F 14 '16 1150w

LINCOLN, JOSEPH CROSBY (JOE LINCOLN, pseud.). Mary-'Gusta. il *$1.35 (1c) Appleton 16-21935

One of the author's characteristic Cape Cod stories. Mary-'Gusta is a little orphan girl who is taken in charge by her step-father's two old partners, Captain Shadrach Gould and Zoeth Hamilton. She makes one of a unique household of which these two, together with an old sea-cook, Isaiah Chase, are the members. The old men think they are taking care of the little girl, but as a matter of fact she mothers all three of them. The two partners keep a general store and all but ruin themselves and their business trying to give Mary-'Gusta advantages beyond their means. Fortunately she discovers their straits and comes home to manage affairs for them and prevent disaster.

- + A L A Bkl 13:177 Ja '17
- + Boston Transcript p6 N 11 '16 750w
- + N Y Times 21:490 N 19 '16 310w

"When he writes of Cape Cod folks Joseph C. Lincoln can always be depended on for a good story. He has told an unusually good one in 'Mary-'Gusta.'" M. K. Reely

- + Pub W 90:1407 O 21 '16 420w

"While this book is a little less spontaneous, perhaps, than either 'Cy Whittaker's place' or 'Cap'n Warren's wards,' it is, nevertheless, always delightful and entertaining to a high degree."

- + Springfield Republican p13 N 12 '16 370w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 50w

LINCOLN, NATALIE SUMNER. I spy. il *$1.30 Appleton 16-11588

"Here is a novel whose pregnant caption suits these parlous times. . . . It's all about a German spy plot to steal two American inventions deemed of inestimable value for war use. One is a camera for taking a map of the country from an airship. The other is a process for making glass armor—coats of mail of interwoven mica and glass that Mauser bullets cannot penetrate. Washington, D. C., is the locale. . . . Almost everybody turns out to be a bit of a spy, and the last unraveling chapter certainly carries the element of complete surprise."—N Y Times

- Boston Transcript p8 S 20 '16 160w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16
- N Y Times 21:290 J1 23 '16 160w

LINDSAY, NICHOLAS VACHEL. Handy guide for beggars, especially those of the poetic fraternity. *$1.25 (2c) Macmillan 917.3 16-23558

Like "Adventures while preaching the gospel of beauty" this is a record of the author's unconventional wanderings. "Being sundry explorations, made while afoot and penniless in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania" runs the subtitle. It is a strange and wonderful book, full of beauty and austerity, humor and human kindness. To read it is to have one's faith in essential goodness renewed.

- A L A Bkl 13:218 F '17

"Lindsay makes New Jersey no less poetic than Georgia. Democracy is not with him a phrase. It is something poignant of the people."

Of course Lindsay is too simple about books. He is not fair to the men who do not live among sense impressions. He is not fair to the men who give their lives to truth, the doctors, the men of letters, the lawyers, the men who strive for balance, the men who will not gamble their lives like the harvesters. He has crude gestures, this emerging poet of Illinois.

But not seldom he is at the heart of conviction and ecstasy and splendor." Francis Hackett

- + — New Repub 9:sup6 N 18 '16 2200w

"Now and again one is reminded of Lamb, and, in a certain austere joy of the road and of solitude, of Hazlitt, and—this to Mr. Lindsay's credit—of 'The adventures of Sinbad, the sailor.'" R of Rs 55:213 F '17 200w

LINDSAY, NICHOLAS VACHEL—Continued

"More books with the ring of originality of 'The handy guide,' its thorough good taste, sincerity and good sense would be welcome at this time."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 8 '17 400w

LINGARD, REV. JOHN, and BELLOC, HILAIRE. History of England, from the first invasion by the Romans to the accession of King George the Fifth. 11 11v $27.50 Catholic pub. soc. of Am. 942 16-85

"In these eleven volumes we have a reprint of Dr. Lingard's classic work, which covers the history of England from the time of Caesar's invasion down to the year 1689, supplemented by a narrative and critical survey by Mr. Belloc of the period extending from 1689 down to the death of King Edward VII. Dr. Lingard's history, the first three volumes of which had their original publication in 1819, is manifestly a part of the permanent literature of England; its usefulness has not diminished with its advancing years, and it seems no nearer desuetude than it was in 1854-5, when its author gave it his third and final revision."—N Y Times

"We regret that the eleventh volume is worthy neither of Mr. Belloc nor of Lingard. It is unsatisfactory in its diffuseness, its masses of generalizations, and its frequent omissions of relevant details. It is characteristic of the author's line of thought that he should only mention the Education act of 1870 in order to sneer at it, and that he should entirely omit the act of 1902."

— Ath 1915,1:356 Ap 17 450w (Review of v 11)

"At the outset the reader and the buyer must in justice be put on their guard. In the first ten of these volumes, Mr. Belloc has written nothing. They are simply a reprint of the fifth and best edition of 1850. There is no warning to the reader, who finds the old familiar title of the work changed, that here is no scholarly re-edition of one of the great English classics. Even the preliminary notice of the 1850 edition is printed just as it stood over a half century ago. And what is all the more striking in a work that claims to be a new edition, the old index of the 1850 edition is printed at the end of volume ten. . . . Perhaps the real value of volume 11 is the double introduction to part one (1689-1815) and to part two (1815-1910). His history is rather the story of the prime ministers than of the kings of England."

+ Cath World 102:535 Ja '16 1050w (Review of v 1-11)

"As might be expected of the author the continuation is written with a force and distinction which cannot fail to interest even those who may differ most from the opinions expressed. But history is a complex and not a simple thing; and when an author sets out to write a history with a simple proposition as his text, it is an inevitable result that he will put a strained interpretation on all that he has to describe, and see everywhere the working of a certain set of causes, to the exclusion of those which if not so concordant with his proposition were not the less genuine. Distortion runs as a continuous thread throughout his narrative. The volume is indeed throughout rather a lengthy piece of political pamphleteering than a true history." C. L. Kingsford

+ Eng Hist R 30:728 O '15 1050w (Review of v 11)

"It is a remarkable fact that although Dr. Lingard's history was written by a Catholic author, whose primary purpose was to present a record and an interpretation that would be satisfactory to Catholics, the result of his efforts was a work that was praised almost as much by Protestant critics as by those associated with the Catholic church."

+ N Y Times 20:163 Ap 25 '15 550w (Review of v 1-11)

"Mr. Belloc's contribution is full from end to end of statements that will be challenged by many of his readers, but the space at his disposal seldom allows him to do more than state his convictions and just indicate the methods by which he has arrived at them. The result is a volume of absolute novelty and extraordinary nary interest. His short account of the American war is an excellent example of his skill as a military historian."

+ Spec 114:sup564 Ap 24 '15 2100w (Review of v 11)

LIVING church annual and Churchman's almanac; a church cyclopedia and almanac, 1916 11 *75c Young ch. 283

The 1916 edition is the 35th year of the Living church annual, the 63d year of the Churchman's almanac, and the 8th year of their consolidation. It contains full information in regard to the Episcopal church in the United States—its kalendar, dioceses, parishes, bishops, clergy (by name), institutions, missions, etc. The Anglican episcopate is given, also much information of a cyclopedic character.

Ind 85:316 F 28 '16 30w

+ Springfield Republican p13 F 21 '16 80w

LIVINGSTON, ST. CLAIR, and STEEN-HANSEN, INGEBORG. Under three flags. *$1 Macmillan 940.91 16-14235

"A narrative of Red cross experiences in Belgium, France and Servia." (Springfield Republican) "There is no discussion of causes and no attempt to justify either side. In fairness to the joint authors, however, it must be said that the tenor of the work, the point of view and the very fibre of its construction is of such a character as to indicate that they are sure the allied cause needs no defence. . . . What these writers try to do is to visualize the individual, especially the soldier and generally the private soldier, swept inevitably into this environment of horror and carnage." (Boston Transcript)

"There is no monopoly of manhood in the forces of the Allies and the authors do not let their sentiments blind them to the acts of the German soldiers. Page after page tells of unpretentious daring and self-sacrifice. . . . It is passages like this that make us feel when we put the book aside that now we really know something of the war." S. L. C.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ag 12 '16 720w

"The book was frankly put together in haste and suffers somewhat from diffuseness in subject matter and lack of organization."

+ Nation 103:402 O 26 '16 50w

"Under three flags' is a disjointed and in some ways an unskillful book, yet it has twice the pull and interest possessed by the meagre glibness and hollow emotionalism of many of its competitors."

+ New Repub 8:171 S 16 '16 530w

N Y Br Lib News 3:120 Ag '16

"Miss Livingston and Miss Steen-Hansen—the former the grandniece of David Livingston, the latter a young Norwegian—are nurses from Johns Hopkins who were living in Paris when the war broke out. They at once enlisted in the army of the Red cross. . . . Although the circumstances of the volume's appearance have their own very real interest in our knowledge of the book, it is probably on the strength of its subject-matter alone that the little volume will take its place. For it is a very excellent book about the war."

+ N Y Times 21:440 O 22 '16 1200w

Pittsburgh 21:586 D '16 10w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 10w

"With more time spent over it, the book might have acquired more form. Its main point, however, is anecdote, and here it is certainly striking."

+ Sat R 122:164 Ag 12 '16 260w

"It will prove of interest to those who are concerned with the relief work of the European war. By far the most interesting section is that dealing with Servia."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Jl 27 '16 120w

LLOYD, EDWARD MOSTYN. Tom Anderson, dare-devil. 11 *$1.50 (1c) Houghton 16-22901

Stories of the revolution written for young people are based usually on the campaigns in the north. The hero of this story is a young

Virginian and the historic background is supplied by events in Virginia and the Carolinas. It is longer than most "juveniles" and somewhat more complicated in plot. There is no dearth of thrilling incident: Tom is captured by Tories, his skin is dyed, and as a half breed, he is sold into captivity in the West Indies. He escapes and returns to his happily reunited family after the war is over.

Lit D 54:83 Ja 13 '17 170w

LOCKE, SUMNER. Samaritan Mary. il *$1.25 (1½c) Holt 16-5619

The story opens with an automobile accident and the bringing of the two victims, the young man of the automobile and the girl of the vegetable cart, to the home of Mary Settler. Mary, known as Samaritan Mary for her good deeds, counts this the best piece of luck that has come her way for a long time and devotes herself happily to their care. A love story of course develops between the two young people and, since there are family affairs to complicate its course, the tale is pleasantly drawn out to the usual number of pages.

"Another story of the 'Count-your-blessings' sort, entertaining, harmless, romantic with much 'local character' and will appeal to many readers."

+ A L A Bkl 12:384 My '16

"It must be admitted that Samaritan Mary talks too much. Both she and the book would be more interesting if the author—after the usual manner of first-book authors—had not loved her too much to blue-pencil large portions of her talk." F. F. Kelly

+ — Bookm 43:326 My '16 350w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 30 '16 230w

"The phraseology in which Samaritan Mary and her familiars involve their rural philosophy is all too plainly a product of the fountain pen; certainly it never flowed from any human lips."

+ — Nation 103:13 Jl 6 '16 170w

"Mary is entertaining and likable, and the story that is evolved out of her Samaritanism is ingenious and interesting, notwithstanding its touches of artificiality."

+ — N Y Times 21:153 Ap 16 '16 280w

"The reader is surfeited with Mary's pungent sayings and colloquial witticisms, which it must be allowed, are generally diverting."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 Jl 2 '16 200w

LOCKE, WILLIAM JOHN. Viviette. il *$1 (3c) Lane 16-10123

Viviette is a girl of many lovers, but for the purpose of this story the number narrows down to two, the brothers, Austin and Dick Ware. Austin is the brilliant successful one of the two, Dick, hot tempered and passionate, is the failure. Viviette plays one off against the other and carries the flirtation to dangerous lengths. But in the end she makes her choice. The story was copyrighted by the Ainslee magazine company in 1910.

Cath World 103:692 Ag '16 110w

"Makes no attempt to redeem by novel situation or skillful characterization its trite triangle of two men and a flirt, who go thru all the usual motions in an exceedingly usual English country house, embellished by butlers and duels and ancestors and tea and all the rest."

— Ind 86:343 My 29 '16 70w

"Presumably there is no reason why Mr. Locke should not be frivolous and write a 'summer novel,' but his work seems like a case of misapplied genius."

+ — Lit D 52:1469 My 20 '16 220w

"This is advertised as 'a dramatic little story for summer reading.' . . . It must be admitted that Mr. Locke has done something this time which is sufficiently simple, not to say silly, for the emptiest hour and the emptiest head."

— Nation 102:622 Je 8 '16 330w

"The story is a light novelette, frankly, intended for summer reading. It is of course cleverly written and amusing enough, though it falls below this author's usual standards, and is without the sparkle and the delightful whimsicality which generally distinguish his work."

To speak truth, it is a rather conventional tale, with one or two fairly dramatic scenes. The tale moves swiftly and the episode of the duel is not without thrills."

+ — N Y Times 21:182 Ap 30 '16 770w

"The situation is elementary melodrama. The story's action is swift and dramatic, but it is hardly Locke at his best."

+ — Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 300w

LOCKE, WILLIAM JOHN. Wonderful year. *$1.40 (1½c) Lane 16-20111

The wonderful year is the year before the war. Martin Overshaw, an Englishman who has devoted the ten years of his adult life to teaching "examination French" to school boys, pays his first visit to France. From Paris he, who has never done an unconventional thing in his life, sets out on a bicycle trip thru provincial France with a young woman, Corinna Hastings. The instigator of this move is one Fortinbras, known as the "Marchand de bonheur." Fortinbras, who dispenses happiness at a fee of five francs, sends the two young people to his brother-in-law, an innkeeper in Brantôme. Here they find Félise, the innkeeper's niece, also Lucille Meriton, a meteoric American who starts Martin off on a voyage to Egypt and Hong-Kong. The end of Martin's year of adventure leads him to enlistment in the great war, and the end of the story takes him back to the little inn in Brantôme where he had left his heart.

"Published in Harper's Bazar."

+ A L A Bkl 13:125 D '16

+ Ath p534 N '16 1050w

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 44:269 N '16 810w

"He never asks to be taken seriously, yet in their way his stories and the men and women that people them are frequently more believable than those who throng the pages of the starkest realistic novel. . . . It is certainly a very real world into which Mr. Locke leads us in the last pages of 'The wonderful year.'" E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '16 1250w

— Cath World 104:398 D '16 130w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

Dial 61:313 O 19 '16 460w

+ Ind 88:235 N 6 '16 120w

"The book is worth reading, but Mr. Locke can do, and has done, better."

+ Lit D 53:1479 D 2 '16 180w

Nation 103:611 D 28 '16 150w

"The picture of French provincial life is the most capital thing Locke has ever done—its sturdiness and integrity, its passionate clinging to the soil, its artistic self-reliance."

+ New Repub 8:277 O 14 '16 350w

"From whatever point of view one may regard it—whether as a story, the analysis of one man's development, a picture of provincial life, or a glimpse of the spirit of a nation—'The wonderful year' is a notable novel."

+ N Y Times 21:400 O 8 '16 1150w

+ Outlook 114:616 N 15 '16 320w

"The philosophy of the book is sound, human and profitable rather than brilliant or fantastic."

Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 90:843 S 16 '16 600w

+ Sat R 122:sup5 D 9 '16 500w

"In the maturity of his art, the deftness and originality in portraiture of character, the ability to conceive and paint magic out-door scenes, this book transcends anything he has done since he forsook his early realism for the popular romance."

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 22 '16 520w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p524 N 2 '16 410w

"A diverting story, and decidedly Lockesian, but not equal to his early ones."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 110w

LOCKHART, CAROLINE. Man from the Bitter Roots. il *$1.25 Lippincott 15-24004
For descriptive note see Annual for 1915.

"Rather crude, but not too sentimental and often vigorously written."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:384 My '16

LOCKHART, CAROLINE—Continued

"Why is it that novelists are so unable to write good mining stories? We mean stories that not only have intrinsic interest, but also are convincing as to knowledge of technical conditions portrayed, as are Kipling's stories in other lines. 'The man from the Bitter Roots' began well and we were exhilarated with a newborn hope, but alas! it fizzled early and from our standpoint became humorous. The author was unusually venturesome in incorporating an engineer's report in detail, which was about the most humorous thing of all. However, Caroline Lockhart has considerable skill, and in her next attempt she would consult a mining engineer, she might do something worth while."

— Engineering and Mining Journal 101:493
Mr 11 '16 140w

LOCKWOOD, LAURA EMMA, ed. Sonnets, selected from English and American authors. (Riverside literature ser.) *35c Houghton 821.08 16-2243

A little volume of selected sonnets, for the student of poetry, representative of what the editor considers to be the best in sonnet writing from Wyatt to the present day. Only such sonnets have been included as have a clear theme, a definite something to say, and artistic development of the thought in musical, imaginative language. An instructive introduction precedes the collection in which the editor discusses the form and history of the sonnet.

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 6 '16 60w

St Louis 14:239 Je '16 30w

"Dr. Lockwood has chosen the poems both widely and wisely."

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 1 '16 220w

LODGE, SIR OLIVER JOSEPH. Raymond; or, Life and death. il *$3 Doran 134 17-213

"The volume may be regarded in its entirety as a memoir of the scientist's youngest son, . . . who fell in the attack on Hooze Hill, Sept. 14, 1915. But it is a memoir of an exceptional kind, inasmuch as it not only pictures him while alive and doing a man's work in the trenches, but also follows him beyond the grave, and by means of what his father regards as authentic messages represents him as a still living personality, exhibiting the same interest in, and affection for, his family that he felt in earth life."

— Boston Transcript

+ Ath p548 N '16 80w

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 10 '17 3600w

"It will probably be considered the most important psychological book since Myers's great work on 'Human personality'; and it is unique in the sense that it is the first large book of its kind to be published by a man of science of the first rank." J. A. H.

+ Nature 98:289 D 14 '16 400w

"A very interesting and, what is more, a very courageous book. . . . As a man of science should, he has given us quite simply and honestly what he believes to be the truth, and has thrown open all the phenomena he has collected to full investigation. It would be of little use in the narrow limits of a review to try to describe in detail any of the sittings at which Raymond Lodge appeared. All the present writer proposes to do is to say that he has studied the publications of the Psychological society for the last twenty years and is prepared to affirm that the identification evidence given here is among the clearest and best he has read."

+ Spec 117:629 N 18 '16 1950w

"The first portion of the book will be preferred by most readers."

+ Springfd Republican p6 Ja 15 '17 1100w

"We would urge every one to study its evidence in a spirit of close but unprejudiced criticism. . . . We hope not to be misunderstood in saying that one outstanding value in this record of apparent psychical communications is its charm. This charm, this element of deep and clear spiritual interest, does not act as a soporific to intellectual criticism. Rather it makes that criticism the keener."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p522 N 2 '16 1000w

LODGE, SIR OLIVER JOSEPH. War and after; short chapters on subjects of serious practical import for the average citizen in A. D. 1915 onwards. 5th ed *1s Methuen & co., London 940.91 16-762

"In the first section of his book Sir Oliver Lodge has borrowed from many authors in order to present a picture of 'The past.' The result is, to some extent, a patchwork; but the quotations are skilfully dovetailed into the text, so that the general effect is not so uncouth as might be feared. The second portion of the book, 'The present,' deals with problems such as those presented by aggressive and defensive wars, savagery, pacifism, material prosperity, and self-interest; and here the book has more direct bearing upon present-day affairs. The average reader will turn with most interest to the third section, 'The future,' and in it he will find much to stimulate thought."—Nature

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

Hibbert J 14:196 O '15 40w

"Most of his book is merely a rehash of what has been said much better by various previous writers—from whom he quotes extensively. But it would be unfair to Sir Oliver to imply that he merely reproduces other people's opinions, for he has views of his own. Among other subjects, he has views on the proper mental attitude towards the enemies of one's country."

+ Nation 101:626 N 25 '15 300w

"Apart altogether from its subject-matter, the volume is interesting as a revelation of the feelings of one of the older generation. He is plain-spoken in his indignation at the methods employed by the Germans in the campaign; but when he comes to the question of the settlement after the war, there appears, not too vaguely, the firm belief that madness will depart and leave us once more with the kindly Germans of his earlier recollections."

+ Nature 96:451 D 23 '15 600w

Pittsburgh 21:358 J1 '16 20w

"We have only praise for this readable volume, which will help many to understand how this war has emphasized the old truth that a nation can only prosper in the long run if it has kept in touch with its spiritual ideals."

+ Spec 115:545 O 23 '15 800w

LOISY, ALFRED FIRMIN, abbé. War and religion; tr. by Arthur Galton. pa *50c Longmans 940.91 (Eng ed 15-27894)

"It is M. Loisy's thesis that Christianity has little to offer the world of to-day, whether in war or in peace. For 'Christianity is not founded upon the notion of humanity, but upon the transcendental and unverifiable notion of a plan of eternal salvation devised by the Master of the universe for those whom he has willed to choose.' . . . That such a religion cannot give us the solution of our problems it is not difficult for the learned modernist to prove. In its place he points to the hope of a more generous and more genuinely human feeling, an enthusiasm for all humanity and a love of universal justice—an attitude of mind which in his opinion would be a new religion, but which we in this country are in the habit of considering the very essence of Christianity."—Nation

"His sharply cut contention is that patriotism and Christianity are opposed, and that patriotism is destined to supplant Christianity as a religious power. . . . Nothing conduces to clear thinking more than saving exactly what one means; M. Loisy is unmistakable."

+ Dial 60:379 Ap 13 '16 570w

"This revival of the religion of humanity, in a qualified and perhaps more spiritual form, will not seem very effectual to minds convinced by Dr. Inge's and Professor Taylor's demonstrations of the vanity of hope in the future of the human race. There are some striking reflections in M. Loisy's review of the history of the churches, and his criticism of the standpoint of the present pope is especially interesting in the analysis of the difference which may become incompatibility, between impartiality and neutrality." H. D. Oakeley

+ — Hibbert J 14:652 Ap '16 450w

Ind 86:346 My 29 '16 80w

"Perhaps the most striking thing about Alfred Loisy's 'The war and religion' is the contrast which it unwittingly points out between the French and the American views of what constitutes Christianity. . . . It is probable that most of M. Loisy's American readers will agree with him in his hopeless attitude towards an outgrown theology, just as they will heartily concur in his masterly criticism of the pope's politic neutrality; but they will hardly follow him in his conclusion that Christianity is helpless."

+ — Nation 102:262 Mr 2 '16 320w

N Y Br Lib News 3:39 Mr '16

"We have a great admiration for M. Loisy as a critic, and as a master of the French language; still more as a patient sufferer in the cause of freedom of thought; but he has never shown any special powers as a religious philosopher. . . . The political part of M. Loisy's book is exceedingly interesting. The analysis of the diplomatic correspondence preceding the declaration of war is a luminous piece of work, and the description of German aims and culture and of the religious apology for the war put forth by the professors is in a lively vein of satire. Occasionally there comes a pregnant sentence, which gives with great simplicity the innermost truth of a matter."

+ — Spec 116:385 Mr 18 '16 1150w

LOMBARD, FRANK ALANSON, tr. Imperial Japanese poems of the Meiji era. *$1.75 Putnam 895

These poems "have been translated by Frank Alanson Lombard, professor of English literature and education, Doshisha university. The 'tanka' are selected from many of those written by the sovereign of the Meiji era, and keep to the original syllabic structure of thirty-one syllables divided into lines of five, seven, five, seven, seven. The poems are crystallizations of the best thoughts of the period (1868 to 1912), gathered as it were in little flawless vases of jade."—R of Rs

"It is no small proof of sheer manhood in the Emperor Meiji (1868-1912) that his expressions of tenderness for his people, of concern for the poor, of reverence for duty, should make their genuineness felt through the multiplied barriers of lyricism, of translation, of imperial authorship, and of foreign auditory. In these days proofs that emperors are men are welcome." O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 103:59 JI 20 '16 100w

"The book is exquisitely bound, and illustrated with Japanese drawings."

+ R of Rs 53:123 Ja '16 170w

LOMBARD, FRANK ALANSON. Pre-Meiji education in Japan. Il *$2 (4c) Putnam 370.9 (Eng ed 16-8468)

A study of education in Japan before 1868. We are surprisingly ignorant of this period, familiarity with which is necessary to an understanding of modern Japan, says the author. Contents: The first intellectual awakening; The government system of education (662-1603); The government system of education (1603-1868); Individual effort in education; Literary culture and the education of women; Social education; Physical training and ethical culture; Foregleams of the second great awakening; Educational problems. A bibliography is appended and there is an index. The author is professor of English literature and education in Doshisha university.

Reviewed by Paul Monroe

+ Educ R 53:192 F '17 330w

"In the midst of the crowd of volumes that explain and do not explain Japan, it is pleasant to open so serene an essay as that on 'Pre-Meiji education in Japan' by F. A. Lombard, of Doshisha university. Here teachers, feminists and lovers of Japan will all find matter of interest, and in a book, moreover, that is a delight to hand and eye."

+ Ind 86:304 My 22 '16 60w

"Two of the most valuable books on Japan that have appeared within the past year or two come from the Doshisha [university], Harada's 'The faith of Japan,' and Gulick's 'The American Japanese problem'; and Professor Lombard's study makes a worthy third."

+ Nation 103:261 S 14 '16 1500w

"The book assumes perhaps more knowledge of Japanese history than the ordinary man can supply, but the picture it gives of a great and (to us) strange people is clear and of the deepest interest."

+ Spec 117:sup395 O 7 '16 280w

LONDON, JACK. Acorn-planter; a California forest play. *75c Macmillan 812 16-5611

Four of the characters of this drama, Red Cloud, the War chief, the Shaman, and the Dew-woman, symbolize the eternal figures of the philosopher, the soldier, the priest and the woman. The play itself is a contest between the War chief, who sings of war as the only way of life, and Red Cloud, who teaches that the way of life is the way of the "acorn-planter," and that "whoso slays one man slays the planter of many acorns." The drama is "planned to be sung by efficient singers accompanied by a capable orchestra."

"Plus appropriate music, it would make an effective production. It is good reading, too."

+ Ind 86:343 My 29 '16 70w

+ Nation 103:151 Ag 17 '16 260w

+ N Y Times 21:320 Ag 13 '16 310w

"A fine and a beautiful play—a call to the world of men to awaken and know that constructive effort is the highest duty man can realize."

+ R of Rs 53:634 My '16 240w

"The work is unmistakably intended as the libretto of a pageant, and as such might yield entirely satisfactory results, though as poetry it seldom rises above the trite."

+ — Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 70w

LONDON, JACK. Little lady of the big house. Il *$1.50 (1c) Macmillan 16-7918

A 250,000 acre ranch in the California foothills is minutely described, together with the agricultural methods of its owner. Dick Forrest is in every way a giant, learned alike in agriculture, literature and philosophy and adept at all manly occupations and sports. His wife Paula is a like marvel. They have been for twelve years happily married when Evan Graham comes to the ranch as a visitor. He is Dick's life-long friend, and he falls in love with Paula. Paula loves him in return, but at the same time retains her affection for her husband. The theme of the story seems to be the power of a woman to love two men at once. As is inevitable, there is a tragic ending.

"Published in the Cosmopolitan."

A L A Bkl 12:430 Je '16

— Ath p243 My '16 200w

"Reproduces merely the faucund—nay, glib—erotomania of three persons who 'fiddle harmonies on the strings of sensualism.'" Wilson Follett

— Atlan 118:495 O '16 130w

"This is the offence committed by Mr. London: that he has made his people lie throughout all the pages that lead to the end; that he has called them strong and made them weak."

— Boston Transcript p8 My 6 '16 1600w

"Interesting it certainly is not, after the first few pages."

— Dial 60:473 My 11 '16 850w

— Ind 86:305 My 22 '16 70w

Lit D 52:1461 My 20 '16 270w

"Though he write with the pen of Mr. R. W. Chambers, he remains himself. He does not achieve reality or sincerity in this performance, nor, despite faithful effort, does he attain the enervated voluptuousness of his model."

LONDON, JACK—Continued

— Nation 102:647 Je 15 '16 350w

"The problem finds its solution in tragedy—tragedy which a singular lack of discrimination on the part of the author steeps in bathos. It is unusual to find a novel by Mr. London so lacking in important incidents as is this story. There are many breezy and colorful descriptions of life and activities upon the ranch, and there are many, many pages of discussion . . . upon questions of philosophy, literature, agriculture, animal breeding, and life in general. In this new novel he finds agricultural methods a promising subject for reformatory zeal."

— + N Y Times 21:129 Ap 9 '16 880w

"The strain on the reader's sense of the probable is intense. But it is a brilliant novel, like its predecessors from the same pen."

— + R of Rs 53:760 Je '16 80w

— Spec 116:609 My 13 '16 20w

"The superman type of character, frequently found in Jack London's novels, runs riot in his latest book. This hero's powers of concentration were displayed when he accomplished in a week educational work to which a year is usually devoted. This story has singularly little action, and is discursive and chaotic. There are some brilliant descriptions of scenery, and vivid sketches of adventurous undertakings."

— + Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 370w

"Mr. London has written the efficient man's fairy tale, and if the efficient man would have no time to revel in it, we others can and do."

— + The Times [London] Lit Sup p202 Ap 27 '16 420w

LONDON, JACK. Turtles of Tasman. *$1.25 (2½c) Macmillan 16-18916

Eight of Jack London's recent short stories have been collected for this volume. The copyright dates, ranging over the past five years, show previous publication in magazine form. The stories are unrelated, but in a number of them the theme is suggestive of other works by the author. One, for instance, is a story with a bearing on prison reform, several are stories of Alaska, another goes back to prehistoric times. The titles are: By the turtles of Tasman; The eternity of forms; Told in the drooling ward; The hobo and the fairy; The prodigal father; The first poet; Finis; The end of the story.

— + A L A Bkl 13:177 Ja '17

"Nothing is more important to note than the soundness of the psychology of all these stories. They are made out of the deep fibre of humanity. By command over such material does Jack London hold his place in our literature. By command over that and over the knack of clearly flowing, acid-biting English that often takes rich color." W. A. M.

— + Boston Transcript p6 N 8 '16 530w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

— + Dial 61:353 N 2 '16 450w

— + Ind 88:330 N 20 '16 50w

"So well represents the author that it might form a fair basis for estimate of his strength and his weakness on the part of one who had read nothing else of his work. His pseudo-socialism is not expressed here, but the rest of him is."

Nation 104:19 Ja 4 '17 350w

"There are eight other stories: one, a preposterous bit of cave-man symbolism, 'The first poet,' another, a sharp picture of the feeble-minded in 'The drooling ward,' the inevitable technically clever monologue 'The eternity of forms,' a cheaply sentimental 'The hobo and the fairy,' a tangless O. Henry, 'The prodigal father,' and two really memorable stories of the north, 'Finis' and 'The end of the story.'"

— + New Repub 9:55 N 11 '16 370w

"Decidedly the best story in the book, as well as the one most characteristic of Mr. London is 'Finis.' . . . The very great difference in theme, type, and merit which renders it practically impossible to estimate or classify this collection as a whole makes it one which readers of widely varying tastes may take up, feeling quite sure that in it they will find at least one or two tales which will please them."

— + N Y Times 21:439 O 22 '16 990w

"Of the stories in this book, only one outside his forte is worthy of consideration, 'The prodigal father.' That is original. . . . The title story, 'The turtles of Tasman,' the purpose of which is to justify, whether to the world or himself, the author's roving life, is not a story but a sketch, and scarcely justifies its length or its use as the title story. The two other stories excuse the book."

— + Springfield Republican p13 O 22 '16 360w

LOON, HENDRIK WILLEM VAN. Golden book of the Dutch navigators. Il *$2.50 (4½c) Century 910.9 16-22152

In his introduction the author emphasizes the influence which the sea has had on the development of Holland, likening it to the influence of the free, unconquered west on early America. "The American who did not like his fate at home went 'West.' The Hollander who decided that he would be happier outside of the town limits of his native city went 'to sea.' . . . Remember this when you read Dutch history. It is an item of grave importance. It was always in the mind of the mighty potentate who happened to be the ruler and tax-gatherer of the country." In eleven chapters he tells the story of some of the adventurous navigators who essayed the conquest of the seas. Among these chapters are: Jan Huygen van Linschoten; The northeast passage; The tragedy of Spitzbergen; The first voyage to India—failure; The second voyage to India—success; Van Noort circumnavigates the world. The illustrations are from old prints.

"Informing accounts, told in the popular and readable style of the writer's earlier books on Dutch history."

— + A L A Bkl 13:169 Ja '17

— + Boston Transcript p8 O 14 '16 520w

— + Ind 88:505 D 18 '16 60w

— + Lit D 53:1559 D 9 '16 150w

— + N Y Times 21:523 N 26 '16 80w

LORIMER, NORMA OCTAVIA. God's carnival; a romance of Sicily. *$1.35 Brentano's

"Realistic tales of fighting there have been a-plenty, grim stories of actual warfare, of heroism on the field, and of heart-break at home, but this novel is more of the type made popular by Bulwer Lytton. It represents human character caught in the toils of great events which it is powerless to prevent or to change. More particularly, it is a story of Sicilian life, of the 'peaceful invasion' of Germany in Italy, first by tourists, then by agents, spies, and the press—of the marriage of a Sicilian with a fair-haired German girl, and of the conflicting race-loyalty in their son, which brings tragedy and disgrace upon the family."—Boston Transcript

"The author is evidently familiar with the simple life of Taormina as it existed some twenty years ago; she has viewed the changes produced by German penetration, she knows her people, too, externally, and she is well-versed in the documentary evidence which she uses in the exposition of German plotting in Italy. Unfortunately, she has tinged the whole with sentimentality."

— + Boston Transcript p8 O 21 '16 300w

"The author shows an intimate knowledge of the characters of the various nations. . . . For a book that is undoubtedly too long drawn out, there is a surprising lack of superfluous characters."

— + N Y Times 21:536 D 3 '16 420w

"While the scenes, taken separately, are clear and striking, they are too loosely connected to produce a cumulative effect."

— + The Times [London] Lit Sup p366 Ag 3 '16 580w

LOTI, PIERRE, pseud. Jerusalem; tr. from the French by W. P. Baines. Il *$2.50 (6c) McKay 915.6 16-17436

Like other descriptive works by M. Loti, this one, devoted to his impressions of Jerusalem, is highly subjective. He writes, he says, as one who "doomed to unbelief" yet came to the Holy Sepulchre with a heart full of prayer. There are no dates given to show the time of writing, but the preface suggests that it may have been the close of the last century. "Jérusalem, la Galilée, le Désert" was published in French in 1895. The 8 illustrations in color are by John Fulleylove, R. I.

LOVETT, ROBERT WILLIAMSON. Treatment of infantile paralysis. il *$1.75 Blakiston 616.8 16-16094

"The author is professor of orthopedic surgery in Harvard medical school and surgeon to the Children's hospital in Boston, and his work is based largely on his own experience. It is Dr. Lovett's opinion that muscle training is the most important of the early therapeutic measures to be used in infantile paralysis and his book emphasizes that form of treatment."—N Y Times

+ A L A Bkl 13:155 Ja '17
N Y Times 21:395 O 1 '16 80w

LOWE, JOHN ADAMS. Books and libraries, a manual of instruction in their use for colleges. (Useful reference ser.) pa *50c Boston bk. 028 16-23474

"Mr. Lowe who was formerly librarian of Williams college has brought together here a series of lectures given by him to undergraduate students when he was there. He designed to make the students intelligent and independent users of the books of the library by acquainting them with library machinery. The chapter headings: the card catalog, classification, arrangement of books on the shelves, indexes, references books, etc., show the practical subjects treated."—Public Libraries

"The publication is designed to be put into the hands of students entering college that they may more intelligently use the library and its resources. It meets this particular need as no other teaching outline hitherto in print has done."

+ Bull of Bibliography 9:87 O '16 110w

"The chief defect of all these manuals is their lack of perspective. They do not select for special emphasis those problems in the use of books and in the mastering of library practise which cause the greatest difficulty." D. F. Lockwood

+ Educ R 53:181 F '17 1100w

+ Public Libraries 22:36 Ja '17 150w

LOWELL, AMY. Men, women and ghosts. *$1.25 Macmillan 811 16-21745

The author says, "This is a book of stories. For that reason I have excluded all purely lyrical poems. But the word 'stories' has been stretched to its fullest application. It includes both narrative poems, properly so called; tales divided into scenes; and a few pieces of less obvious story-telling import in which one might say that the dramatis personæ are air, clouds, trees, houses, streets, and such like things." The poems of the book are arranged in groups as Figurines in old Saxe; Bronze tablets; War pictures; The overgrown pasture; Clocks tick a century; Towns in colour. Among the innovations in the book are attempts to express movement by the rhythms of "vers libre." "A Roxbury garden," for instance, represents an "attempt to give the circular movement of a hoop bowling along the ground, and the up and down, elliptical curve of a flying shuttlecock."

"One may look around and examine all the other poetry in English that has lately, with new formulas, departed from traditional modes of expression, and find nothing exactly like the art in Miss Lowell's 'Men, women and ghosts.' 'The Allies,' I believe, stands with Massfield's 'August, 1914,' at the head of all poems inspired by the war." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 21 '16 1400w

"One cannot help feeling, as one reads, that Miss Lowell, exhilarated by former successes, has come to write too much and too rapidly." W: A. Bradley

+ Dial 61:529 D 14 '16 720w

"As for the war, she writes much more successfully of the Napoleonic era than of our own, but 'Patterns,' the poem with which the book opens, is a superb vignette of the eternal tragedy of the woman left at home."

+ Ind 88:536 D 25 '16 500w

"A book greatly and strenuously imagined. Now and then, indeed, one glimpses its strenuousness as a fault, the Puritan fault of overconscience applied to the pagan task of extracting beauty to its last drop from reluctant matter. . . . In the three volumes of verse that Miss Lowell has offered us, there is visible a steady progression."

+ N Y Times 22:1 Ja 7 '17 1050w

"Remarkable for the revelation of her attitude toward the universe, which is that of a faithful photographer. . . . An egocentric imagination controls the poetry, but for study of prose rhythms, vers libre, and other experimentation in poetry, one cannot do better than to read Miss Lowell's book."

R of Rs 54:674 D '16 170w

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 26 '16 460w
The Times [London] Lit Sup p627 D 21 '16 150w

LOWELL, AMY. Six French poets; studies in contemporary literature. il *$2.50 Macmillan 841 15-25731

For descriptive note see Annual for 1915.

"Abundant quotations, translations of which are given in the appendix, and bibliography (21p.)."

+ A L A Bkl 12:276 Mr '16

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 42:723 F '16 290w

"She interprets these kindred souls with an affectionate enthusiasm from which, alas, the rein of judgment sometimes slips, and which thereupon runs riot. . . . Most assuredly intolerance, extravagance and a senseless scattering of reckless superlatives will not make for their quicker appreciation."

+ Cath World 103:257 My '16 600w

"She fails to establish her case for three reasons: because she does not succeed in dignifying the philosophy of the artists she treats; because she furnishes us with no adequate background of the poetic tradition with which the vers libristes broke; and because her presentation is trivial and vapid, expressed in language which is intended to be captivating, but which causes in the reader the pain induced by a perfervid and too often slipshod style. We may have our own opinion of the enduring quality of this sort of poetry; but that is beside the purpose. Our protest is against Miss Lowell's treatment of it, and our regret is that such a new and attractive subject should have fallen to the lot of such unscientific and uncritical appreciation." W. W. Comfort

+ Dial 60:203 Mr 2 '16 2050w

+ Ind 85:391 Mr 13 '16 80w

"The volume as a whole is a notable instance of eager and generous self-subordination. This is a world of reckonings, however, and this frank and natural book has paid for its charm in its lack of authority." O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 102:669 Je 22 '16 1200w

"Here is a book about which I cannot be dispassionate. It has given me too many kinds of pleasure: the almost religious pleasure of seeing French literature coming into its own in America; the emotional and sensuous pleasure of rereading six poets whom I have long known and loved; finally the intellectual pleasure of agreeing with Miss Lowell, and disagreeing with her. To dispose at once of my most fundamental difference, I must lament that she has chosen to lead us to the fountains of modern French poetry by means of lectures. In the long quotations Miss Lowell set herself a monumental task of which she has acquitted herself nobly. May we not hope for a series of literary essays to supplement this volume which by its nature is more or less of a handbook? I want more of the poetic analysis that is the imagist's most original contribution." E. S. Sergeant

LOWELL, AMY—Continued

+ New Repub 6:135 Mr 4 '16 1600w

+ No Am 203:299 F '16 800w

"It would be disagreeably obvious to call Miss Lowell's prose 'poetic.' Its style conceals style; its sculptural simplicity has the regnant beauty of 'line.' Always she aims at the presentation of the dominant attitude of each of her poets. To do this she artfully associates the man with the outer symbols of his soul. With De Regnier it is the 'onyx pillars'; with Jammes, the scent of newly mown hay and the sentimental 'little flower-box'; . . . with Verhaeren,—after all other symbols,—the terror of the night wind sweeping over the great plains of Flanders. She achieves chiseled imagery, the reflection in the mirror of words, of the clear, bright flame of immortal genius."

+ R of Rs 53:247 F '16 210w

Reviewed by C: C. Clarke

+ — Yale R n s 5:642 Ap '16 580w

LOWNDES, MRS. MARIE ADELAIDE (BELLOC) (MRS. FREDERIC SAWREY-LOWNDES). Good old Anna. *$1.35 (1½c) Doran (Eng ed 15-26848)

Set in an English cathedral town this story deals informally with the problems which a group of naturalized Germans had to meet during the early months of the present European conflict. There is Fritz Frühling, barber and hairdresser, a socialist, who, not in sympathy with the militarism of the Kaiser, is content that his son is a sergeant in the British army. There is Hegner, a prosperous merchant, who represents the dangerous class of aliens, and who as secret agent gets English news into Germany. And, most prominent of the group, there is "good old Anna," the faithful servant of an English canon's widow, who all unwittingly is drawn into the secret agent's net. Around the English widow and her daughter the main fabric of the story is woven, brightened by their romances and strengthened by their cheerful philosophy.

A L A Bkl 13:35 O '16

"Mrs. Belloc Lowndes's sort of thing—an odd blend of sensational incident and the ladylike manner." H. W. Boynton

+ — Bookm 44:259 N '16 370w

"Aside from being a particularly good and well told story, 'Good old Anna' presents a study of the localized possibilities and methods of international spying that is of peculiar interest."

+ N Y Times 21:273 Jl 9 '16 1000w

"It is an engrossing and in some respects a painful story, but it is unhappily too well justified by its correspondence with fact to expose the author to the charge of exaggeration or animosity. Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes holds no brief for Germans, naturalized or otherwise, but she does not write vindictively. The study of Anna Bauer is detached and dispassionate."

+ Spec 115:885 D 18 '15 850w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Jl 9 '16 300w

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 70w

LOYSON, PAUL HYACINTHE. Apostle; tr. by Barrett H. Clark. (Drama league ser. of plays) *75c (6½c) Doubleday 842 16-7221

"The plays of Paul Hyacinthe Loyson," says Professor Baker in his introduction, "are studies in tragedy resulting, not, as we are accustomed to expect, from folly and unreason, but from proper self-respect and reason." The tragedy in this play rises when a father, in pursuing the course of honor and uprightness that has been his life's ideal, is forced to expose the dishonor of his son. The conflict between church and state in France supplies the motif of the play.

"The author is a son of Père Hyacinthe Loyson, who seceded from the Catholic church and became a leader in advanced French religious thought."

Cleveland p68 Je '16 80w

"'The apostle' is a good play, but it is a play dealing with French politics—about the last thing in which the average American reader can be induced to take any interest." H. E. Woodbridge

+ Dial 62:68 Ja 25 '17 330w

R of Rs 53:763 Je '16 160w

Springf'd Republican p15 Ap 28 '16 100w

LUCAS, EDWARD VERRALL. Cloud and silver. *$1.25 (3c) Doran 824 16-22096

Mr. Lucas discloses the silver lining to the clouds of wartime. The first part of the book is made up of little sketches of scenes and experiences in France. One of them, an essay on "Laughter in the trenches" tries to analyze "the careless facetiousness of the British soldier in the firing line." In the group of various essays that follows, Mr. Lucas writes on such subjects as: Of bareheadedness; Of being somebody else; Of persons that we envy; Of the best stories; Of slang—English and American. A series of sketches called "Once upon a time," and "In a new medium," an account of an attempt at making a phonograph record, complete the book's contents.

+ A L A Bkl 13:161 Ja '17

Ath p431 S '16 90w

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 18 '16 400w

+ Ind 88:466 D 11 '16 70w

"A charming book; but its charm has flowered from the soil of a keen human vision."

+ N Y Times 21:478 N 12 '16 620w

+ Sat R 122:254 S 9 '16 830w

+ Spec 117:448 O 14 '16 240w

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 380w

"His is a happy temperament, and he makes his readers happy."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p427 S 7 '16 1150w

LUCAS, EDWARD VERRALL. More wanderings in London (Eng title, London revisited). Il *$2 (2½c) Doran 914.21 16-22601

"This book is a companion to 'A wanderer in London,' published in 1906, and supplements it."

"More wanderings in London" contains certain matter of interest omitted from the earlier book, such as descriptions of some minor museums, or touched there too lightly, and extends the range to Hampton Court. It also gives complete lists of the open-air statues of London and of those houses that are marked with tablets." (Preface) The wanderings begin at Bowchurch in Cheapside. After that there are chapters on: The city's pictures; A medley of churches; The Royal mint and New Scotland Yard; Holland House and Sydney Smith, etc. The author says "I offer no apology for the digressive character of the pages that follow. London was made for digression."

+ A L A Bkl 13:170 Ja '17

"The topics dealt with are handled with a lightness of touch which errs on the side of excess and will fail to satisfy the enthusiastic student of the less-familiar features of the great city."

+ — Ath p599 D '16 50w

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 8 '16 650w

+ Cath World 104:550 Ja '17 60w

+ Dial 61:477 N 30 '16 130w

+ Int Studio 60:159 Ja '17 190w

"Like the author's other books of this type, it is to some extent a guide, an entertaining and chatty sort of guide which will endear itself particularly to stay-at-homes."

"Whatever the merits of its content, this book will be read largely for the charm of its telling. The humor which one expects from the author of 'The slow coach' and 'Anne's terrible good nature' shines into the dark corners of the dulllest of museums." R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 90:2076 O 9 '16 470w

+ Sat R 122:462 N 11 '16 1500w

+ Spec 117:769 D 16 '16 1550w

+ Springfield Republican p8 D 12 '16 650w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p528 N 2
 '16 150w
 + The Times [London] Lit Sup p535 N 9
 '16 720w

LUCAS, EDWARD VERRALL. Vermilion box.
 *$1.35 (2c) Doran 16-22300

Three generations and many temperaments and points of view are represented in the letters that make up this war time story. Mr. Richard Haven, "a bachelor on the brink of fifty," with his brothers and sisters and friends are of the second or middle generation. It is they who organize committees, assemble relief supplies and do all those things which stay at homes may do. They also think about the war, some of them, and ponder its ethical aspects. Mrs. Haven, Richard's mother, belongs to the earlier generation which is puzzled by the war and the many nephews, nieces and younger friends belong to the young generation which is engaged in war's actual business. One friend of Mr. Haven's, a Unitarian clergyman in Brooklyn, adds an occasional American letter to the collection.

+ A L A Bkl 13:222 F '17

"The horrors of the war are visible only at a distance through others' eyes."

Ath p481 O '16 140w

"The book gives almost as strong an impression as 'Mr. Britling' did, of contact with the real English people as the great crisis has found and developed them." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:646 F '17 550w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:536 D 14 '16 470w

"Perhaps the most delightful of the lighter volumes inspired by the war that have come to us."

+ Nation 103:542 D 7 '16 500w

"We soon know the family so well that we recognize the writers as though we saw their handwriting. Even their telegrams take on a personal quality. May we not call this genius, or very near it? . . . Just as Mr. Britling is Wells at his most Wellsian, so is the 'Uncle Richard' of these letters Mr. Lucas at his most attractive best."

+ N Y Times 21:480 N 12 '16 680w

"We have seldom come across a modern book in which there are more people of all ages whom we should like to meet, or which more often moves the springs of tears and laughter."

+ Spec 117:479 O 21 '16 920w

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 180w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p488 O 12
 '16 320w

LUCCOCK, HALFORD E. Fares, please! and other essays on practical themes. *75c (2c)
 Abingdon press 240 16-7026

There are here thirty-eight talks which the author says "try to speak a common language of faith and hope." The titles are purposely catchy, the subject-matter is inspirational or provocative, anecdote and quotations are used to enforce common sense advice.

"They are too brisk and pointed and purposeful to be properly called essays. But there is much good sense and good feeling in them. They might have attained more dignity as literature if the writer had been less consciously intent upon the purveying of moral stimulants."

+ Nation 102:417 Ap 13 '16 140w

"The themes are out of the ordinary and the treatment is more so. Mr. Luccock is to be thanked for sharing his ideas with the public."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 2 '16 200w

LUCKIESH, MARION. Color and its applications. il *$3 Van Nostrand 535 16-1960

"Into the engaging fields of color and of color phenomena in vision Mr. Luckiesh's book lights new paths. . . . Considerations of theory and analysis of the pure physics and physiology of problems in light and color provide the groundwork of the subject, but the needs of the lighting practitioner are also satisfyingly met with an array of methods, experience data, formulas, curves and records, all ready for practical use."—Elec World

+ A L A Bkl 12:411 Je '16

"While the handling is such as to make the volume of perhaps greatest practical utility to the illuminating engineer . . . its pages present an array of observations of phenomena, physical facts, data, etc., which will interest any scientific reader or student, and particularly the physicist. In view of the original work set forth, the chapters on the production of artificial daylight and the use of color in lighting interiors, canvases and specially prepared compositions will be read with particular interest."

+ Elec World 67:612 Mr 11 '16 250w

"A very useful general treatise on colour which includes 130 well-selected diagrams, curves, and tables, so that for very many purposes the book will be found sufficient in itself. But at the end of every section references are given to other text-books and to original papers to facilitate a more extended study." C. J.

+ Nature 98:366 Ja 11 '17 480w

LUCY, SIR HENRY WILLIAM (TOBY, M. P.). Nearing Jordan. il *$3 Dutton 16-17473

"'Nearing Jordan' is the title bestowed by Sir Henry Lucy on the third and last volume of his entertaining reminiscences, the publication of which began seven years ago as 'Sixty years in the wilderness.'" (R of Rs) "This volume is made up of anecdotes and sketches of public men whom Sir Henry knew more or less intimately, and covers approximately the last two decades of the nineteenth century. While the author has most to say about parliamentary leaders and statesmen, he also has included several interesting chapters on 'captains of the Boer war,' prominent men of letters, and the great leaders in English art." (Dial)

"The whole is done in the inimitable style of the man who Balfour once said has 'the secret of making even the House of Commons amusing.'" + Dial 61:217 S 21 '16 250w

+ Ind 88:235 N 6 '16 220w

"Perhaps no living English journalist has had better opportunities for observing politics and social life in many countries than has Sir Henry Lucy. . . . The chapters on 'Mr. Punch's young men' throw many interesting sidelights on literary and journalistic London of the last century."

+ R of Rs 54:457 O '16 100w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p271 Je 8
 '16 1700w

LUHRMANN, ADELE. Curious case of Marie Dupont. il *$1.35 (2c) Century 16-16390

Just as the mystery of Marie Dupont seems about to be explained, the reader finds that it has only begun. Hugh Senior, her guardian, tells all that he knows of her, and that proves to be nothing at all. At least it appears as nothing to Guy Amarinth, the half-hearted lover, who insists on knowing all. Marie is a girl with a French name who claims to be English, lives in America and dances like a Russian. She herself can add nothing to the solution of the mystery, for the memory of a period of her life has been blotted out. She remembers only her childhood and the immediate past. Bit by bit the story is pieced together from extraneous sources, but the mystery remains until the sudden return of memory, under the tension of a dramatic situation, provides the key. The story was published as a serial in the Associated Sunday magazines in 1915.

+ A L A Bkl 13:85 N '16

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 44:277 N '16 430w

"As a whole, it is a good mystery tale, with some richness of background and not so entirely lacking in atmosphere as mystery tales too often are."

+ N Y Times 21:335 Ag 27 '16 400w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 50w

LUTYENS, ENGELBERT. Letters of Captain Engelbert Lutyens; ed. by Sir Lees Knowles. il $3 Lane 16-2399

Captain Engelbert Lutyens served as orderly officer at Longwood, St. Helena, from February 10, 1820 to April 15, 1821. Of the 200 pages that make up this book, 132 are given up to his letters, written during those fourteen months. The remainder of the volume is devoted to an account by Sir Lees Knowles of "The case, or 'affair' of Captain Engelbert Lutyens" and to letters relating the death of Napoleon written by Duncan Darroch, a fellow officer of Captain Lutyens. The "case," or "affair," referred to had to do with the acceptance of a gift from Napoleon to the 20th regiment of a "Life of Marlborough."

+ Ath p20 Ja '16 570w

"The author has not been scrupulous in giving credit for the sources of his information. Indeed, this handsome book bears many marks of careless editing. . . . To those who are not particularly interested in Captain Lutyens, the great value of the compilation lies in the glimpses it gives of the man about whom everything in the island revolved, and these are many. In the matter of typography, illustrations, both 'plain and colored' and in paper and binding, the book is all that could be asked." G. H. S.

+ — Boston Transcript p22 F 9 '16 1250w

+ Dial 60:477 My 11 '16 270w

"The testimony contained in this correspondence weighs heavily against the recent attempts to rehabilitate Lowe."

+ Lit D 52:721 Mr 18 '16 750w

Nation 102:288 Mr 9 '16 220w

"The present book, in its appeal to Napoleonists, will win at once a great success. It is uncommonly fascinating. We have fought against the influence of it, and have been defeated. . . . The third section—the death of Napoleon—is perhaps the most memorable: it contains astonishingly vivid letters written from St. Helena by a young Scotch officer, Ensign Duncan Darroch, a sensitive and clever fellow of one-and-twenty."

+ Sat R 120:543 D 4 '15 1250w

"The letters have apparently lain unpublished hitherto in the British museum. For making them known in good form, with portraits, interesting old views, and a map of the island, we must thank Sir Lees Knowles, whose action is certainly public-spirited. The notes that he supplies are sometimes useful, but do not show him as a practised editor who knows how to weigh authorities, or even to name them."

+ — Spec 116:388 Mr 8 '16 260w

"Capt. Lutyens's letters are, in most cases, brief, narrating, in minute but unemotional and generally colorless terms, the daily occupations attending the routine of his detail. Separately, they are of minor value, but as arranged by Sir Lees, they offer a continuous and illuminating report of what came under the writer's eye at Longwood for the 14 months preceding the emperor's death."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 20 '16 850w

LUTZ, MRS. GRACE (LIVINGSTON) HILL. Finding of Jasper Holt. il $1.25 (2c) Lipincott 16-12235

A swift-moving melodramatic tale, the subject-matter of which includes the manipulation of stolen papers, the rescue of a beautiful girl from a burning railroad wreck, the loyalty under trial of Jean, the New England heroine, to Jasper Holt, the much misunderstood western hero, the saving of a little child by Jasper and the coming of Jean to his succor when his brave act had brought him to the gates of death. The tale ends with marriage and happiness.

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.
Bookm 44:278 N '16 130w

"The story is particularly satisfying. It reminds me one of the stories of old-time chivalry when knighthood fought in tourney for ladies' favor."

+ Lit D 53:75 Ji 8 '16 200w

"The author is compelled completely to discard probabilities in blazing a pathway for the romance."

— Springfield Republican p15 Jl 16 '16 300w

"A quite unreal and over-sentimental tale; but one cannot quite resist its very early Victorian naïveté."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p347 Jl 20 '16 450w

LUTZ, MRS. GRACE (LIVINGSTON) HILL. 2 Voice in the wilderness. il $1.30 (1c) Harper 16-18483

Margaret Earle, an eastern girl, goes to Arizona to teach school. Her first experience in the new country is a thrilling adventure. Thinking she has reached her destination, she steps off the train. It moves on, leaving her alone in the darkness by a lonely desert water tank. After an unpleasant encounter with one man, she is rescued by another, young Lance Gardley, like herself an easterner. Out of this meeting grows the romance of the story, but it is concerned also with Margaret's interest in her school and in the religious life of the community.

The characters are lay figures in the development of the story and the 'moral.' But the incident is interesting, and the movement of the story is not without merit. As a record of happenings, and as a pleasant little love story, 'A voice in the wilderness' is readable."

+ — N Y Times 21:467 N 5 '16 130w

LYLE, MARIUS. Unhappy in thy daring. $1.35 (1c) Putnam 16-11228

A story with an Irish setting in which the characters are two half-sisters and the husband of one of them. Shelagh Lynch is a beautiful girl, fond of society and passionately fond of riding. Hester, her younger half-sister, while unattractive in person is superior in mentality. She is however unscrupulous and uses her cleverness to win the interest of Rupert Standish, her sister's husband. Their common intellectual interests draw them together and while Shelagh is recovering from a hunting-field accident, husband and sister do not scruple to deceive her and betray her trust. Hester pays the price for her villainy, but Rupert, for whom the author seems to have a feeling of tender regard, goes unscathed, accepting his wife's forgiveness as only his honest due.

"There are passages which violate, I do not say morals, but taste; they present ignoble things in a vulgar way." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 44:645 F '17 580w

Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '17 130w

"A study in morbid psychology, a woman near of kin to a hobgoblin, she is none the less protected from the book, a creature vividly alive."

Nation 103:543 D 7 '16 350w

"The story is very detailed—far too much so for its matter. It touches on many subjects, as the love for and power of money; the sex question; the Irish land tangle; but having touched them it leaves them. In spite of some situations of interest and suspense, the characters are for the most part unreal."

— N Y Times 21:283 Jl 16 '16 250w

"There are interesting pictures of Irish country life and society, together with brief but interesting allusions to the superstitions associated with the dwellings of the old families. The plot, which tends to the tragic, is strongly developed, though without arousing tragic emotion."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 Je 25 '16 200w

LYLE, WILLIAM THOMAS. Parks and park engineering. il $1.25 Wiley 711 16-8236

"Professor Lyle has done well to expand his park lectures to students of municipal engineering and publish them in book form. . . . The book opens with a few pages on the desirability and classification of parks, how to set the getting of them in motion, and the necessary topographical and hydrographical surveys. The author next considers the design of underdrains, sewers, paths, drives and other engineering features. The choice between day labor and contract work, together with contract letting and supervision, is next taken up. Finally there is a chapter on construction."—Engin N

+ A L A Bkl 13:159 Ja '17

Cleveland p113 Ag '16 20w

"The book fulfills the author's purpose so well that it is to be hoped he will soon have an opportunity to enlarge it, particularly along lines of engineering design and construction that have been modified to meet park-work needs." E: Godfrey

+ Engin N 76:313 Ag 17 '16 200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:95 Je '16

Pittsburgh 21:407 O '16 40w

"The author is professor of municipal engineering at Lafayette college, Easton, Pa."

St Louis 15:16 Ja '17 10w

LYNCH, JOHN GILBERT BOHUN. Com-
2 plete gentleman. *$1.35 (1c) Doran

16-11965

The hero of this story is a man who ordered his life according to a pattern. He created an ideal of what a perfect gentleman should be and set himself to attain it. For one thing a gentleman must have money, and lacking it himself, Henry Wedlaw married a girl who had it. She was a fresh, wholesome girl, not at all inclined to follow a pattern, for, even in the eighteen-nineties, the time of the story, she was something of a new woman. Henry is the hero of the tale, but its real interest centers about Dolly who, in the disillusionment of her marriage, makes one slip from virtue, for which she is not called on to pay till long afterwards.

N Y Br Lib News 3:184 D '16

"The story is vigorously written, but to the non-British reader the extended detail seems trivial and is not always entertaining."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 14 '17 350w

"The big scenes are admirably written. . . . But while the theme is the law of Nemesis, the writer is at such pains to express modern doubts about the infallibility of laws and principles and so forth, that the thread is difficult to follow."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p164 Ap 6 '16 600w

LYND, SYLVIA. Chorus; a tale of love and folly. *$1.35 (1½c) Dutton

An English country house, the home of Anthony Hamel, is the scene of this novel. Anthony Hamel is an artist and craftsman, a man of great personal charm, who gathers about him a host of admirers and co-workers, the 'chorus' of the story. One of them is Hilda Concannon, a metal worker serving an apprenticeship in his studio. The Hamels keep open house and Hilda's unknown little friend, Nelly Hayes, a girl she has picked up in a London boarding-house, is accepted by the group without much question. She is petted and patronized by the women, made love to by the men. Nelly is sixteen, but she is sex-lure incarnate, and it is only the intervention of chance that saves Anthony from a mad indiscretion. Ironically enough Anthony, at the end, is returned to his admiring circle, while Nelly is left to go the way for which, perhaps, she was predestined.

"In dealing with the subtler emotions Miss Lynd has a delicacy and firmness of touch which are often lacking in more experienced writers. It is this quality which makes the book entirely worth while for the sophisticated reader who enjoys playing with two-edged tools. The novel is marred in the end by the author's whimsical indifference to all demands of plot."

+ Dial 61:197 S 21 '16 250w

"The chorus' is a modern, detached, spade-speaking affair. . . . The story as a whole does not rise above its own cleverness. It is the first novel of a writer who is frankly of the post-Wellsian order. She is more concerned with seeing life sharply and objectively than with seeing it steadily and whole."

+ Nation 103:351 O 2 '16 330w

"It is in the ending of the novel that Miss Lynd proves herself an artist. It is unusual and poignantly true to real life. We close the book with a dull heartache because things are as they are, but there is a quiet joy in realizing that we have found a novel of startling power."

+ N Y Times 21:356 S 10 '16 280w

"A book of rare literary merit, conceived and developed with skill, but artistry cannot save its subject matter from a lack of significance."

+ Springfield Republican p13 S 24 '16 580w

LYNDE, FRANCIS. After the manner of men. il *$1.35 (3c) Scribner 16-17656

Mr. Lynde, who has written many stories of the West, chooses the Cumberland mountains as the setting for this new novel. Here Vance Tregarvon comes to take charge of a mine which is one of his few family possessions. Back at home, we are given to understand, there is an Elizabeth to whom he is engaged, but when on the day of his arrival in the mountains he is made the target for Miss Richardia Birrell's rifle practice, we foresee that Elizabeth's interests are to be endangered. Miss Richardia is a teacher in a near-by woman's college and the young mine owner sees much of her. Fortunately the tie with Elizabeth proves to be a formal one, a family-arranged affair. Fortunately, too, Elizabeth has always been more than half in love with Tregarvon's friend, Carfax. Tregarvon's efforts to hold and develop his mine against the opposition of a consolidated coal company is the other element of interest in the book.

"Fairly interesting but by no means necessary."

A L A Bkl 13:222 F '17

Reviewed by E: E. Hale

Dial 61:269 O 5 '16 280w

"The story moves at a lively pace, and in some respects inferior to 'The city of numbered days' and 'The honorable Senator Sagebrush,' it is quite unlike either in theme. An entertaining novel with plenty of incident and an easy graphic style."

+ N Y Times 21:374 S 24 '16 320w

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 280w

Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 40w

LYON, WALTER HASTINGS. Corporation
2 finance; pt. 2, Distributing securities, reorganization. *$2 (3c) Houghton 338.8 16-20595

"Capitalization: a book on corporation finance" was published in 1912. This book is brought out as part 2 of the same work. "The new volume deals more especially with two topics, the distribution of corporate securities and the financial side of corporate reorganizations. It also presents some discussion of the disposition made of corporate income." (Preface)

N Y Br Lib News 3:189 D '16 30w

LYONS, A. NEIL (ALBERT MICHAEL NEIL). Moby lane and thereabouts. *$1.25 (2c) Lane 16-5198

A book of soldier stories by the author published last year revealed his deft skill in characterization and his ability to present types. The same qualities are evident in this volume of short stories and character sketches in which little bits of English rural and village life are presented.

"He knows his villagers, and describes them vividly and often in inspired phrases. The first chapter is exceptionally good, and another 'Be-friending her ladyship,' deserves to be framed and presented free to all district visitors, especially those of moderately exalted rank."

+ Ath p38 Ja '16 110w

"Mr. Lyons considers them short stories, although they seem more in the nature of anecdotes. Most of these stories have no plots, or very weak plots, and they do not have very much local color of Sussex. However, Mr. Lyons draws his characters clearly, and portrays many types of country folk. The best of these stories is 'A toy tragedy.'

LYONS, A. NEIL—Continued

+ — Boston Transcript p7 F 19 '16 300w

"The spoil-sport is his pet aversion, and there are certainly moments when one suspects that he has no use for the accuracy that spoils a good story. No wise reader, however, will blame him for his jolly exaggerations and his cunning arrangement of facts. This volume of sketches of the countryside, with all its touches of comedy and tragedy, is full of sympathy and understanding, and can be read with just appreciation in more than one mood. . . . Mr. Neil Lyons is a socialist but his socialism scarcely prospers in Sussex, and he does not scruple to tell a good story at the expense of some who preach it."

+ Sat R 121:90 Ja 22 '16 730w

"There is, all through the book, a freshness of outlook which is infectious, an incisive, humorous style, above all a keen plunging into the middle of things."

+ Spec 116:229 F 12 '16 200w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 5 '16 330w

M

MABIE, EDWARD CHARLES, ed. University debaters' annual; constructive and rebuttal speeches delivered in debates of American colleges and universities during the college year 1915-1916. *$1.80 (1½c) Wilson, H. W. 808.5

This is the second volume in the series of yearbooks of college debating. These volumes "afford a permanent record of the work of debaters in American colleges and universities. They also afford specimen material for use of students of debate and argumentation." (Preface) The subjects of the debates included in this year's annual are: International police to enforce treaties and preserve peace; Preparedness; Compulsory military service; Federal ownership of telegraph and telephone; City manager plan of government; National prohibition; Restriction of immigration by the literacy test; Compulsory industrial insurance. These debates, each with its brief and bibliography, are also printed separately.

+ A L A Bkl 13:105 D '16

Wis Lib Bull 12:450 D '16 40w

MCANDREW, WILLIAM. Public and its school; a statement of the means of finding what the intelligent public expects of children and how a school system may be managed to deliver the goods. (School efficiency monographs) il pa 50c World bk. co. 371 16-15755

"The World book company has reprinted a report prepared by Mr. William McAndrew, associate superintendent of public schools in New York city. The publishers have enlivened this school report with some little drawings which add to the humor and readability of the book. . . . The argument is an argument for improvement of children, improvement of teachers, improvement of principals and all school officers through a steady effort on the part of everyone to promote efficiency. . . . Among the items which are clearly presented in this book, the argument for more efficiency on the part of school principals is the most impressive."—El School J

"No clearer argument has ever been presented than that which appears in this little book for efficiency standards in the school."

+ El School J 17:229 D '16 830w

N Y Br Lib News 3:158 O '16

MCARTHUR, PETER. In pastures green. *$1.75 Dutton 630.4 16-8538

"In his preface the author says that the brief essays in this book were written for the Toronto Globe and Farmers' Advocate. 'The man who wishes to learn the human side of farming may find something to interest him, but the man who consults these pages for scientific information does so at his peril.' The author says that he has never described any farm work that he did not do and no incident was recorded that did not happen. . . . The author deals with all kinds of farm work at different seasons of the year and has given his writings the form of a journal, by months and days, beginning with January, and making a volume of 361 pages. There is a good index, which is quite as readable as other parts of the book."—Boston Transcript

"A readable book; an interesting book. Is there a dull page in it? Not for one who loves the farm, the country, all living things, and the world of thought."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 29 '16 270w

"Though written in a racy and humorous style, the book contains a vast amount of information which will prove of interest and value to a wide circle of readers. 'Back to the land' is the author's text, and his experiences, as here related, will undoubtedly be helpful to others who are thinking of going back to the land." F. C.

+ Nature 96:535 Ja 13 '16 170w

+ N Y Times 21:348 S 3 '16 750w

"Every page of the book shows how much joy a farmer can get out of things, if he has imagination and can reap a harvest of dreams along with his wheat and apples."

+ R of Rs 53:372 Mr '16 180w

MACAULEY, WARD. Reclaiming the ballot. *75c (4c) Duffield 324 16-14343

The author shows the simplicity with which election returns can be falsified. He points out the futility of the short ballot, direct primary and other reforms while interested politicians are allowed to manipulate the vote to suit their own purposes. Methods of campaigning also come in for condemnation. Under the present system men are elected who are good campaigners; it does not follow that they will be good office holders. But the little book is constructive as well, indicating the fundamental reforms needed. There is a final chapter on The precinct civic center.

+ A L A Bkl 13:149 Ja '17

Cleveland p107 Ag '16 40w

Springfield Republican p15 Jl 16 '16 430w

MCBAIN, HOWARD LEE. Law and the practice of municipal home rule. *$5 (2c) Columbia univ. press 352 16-8498

There are now twelve states in which certain or all cities are granted the power to frame and adopt their own charters, says the author. Court decisions growing out of this departure in constitutional government have given rise to a new branch of law, and one of the purposes of this work is to present a review and critical analysis of the legal aspects of the question. The primary purpose however is to deal with the practical problems of home rule. "The effort has been made to study the cases not only for the legal principles declared but also in the light of the practices both of cities in the making of charters and of legislatures in the enactment of laws. In other words, in so far as is possible, the attempt has been made to set forth the net governmental results of home rule in the states in which it has been put into operation." (Preface)

"By far the most complete and comprehensive study of municipal home rule in the United States that has yet appeared. . . . There is no question that within a decade municipal home rule provisions will be inserted in nearly all of the 36 state constitutions that do not now have them. In helping to avoid the legal and practical difficulties encountered in the states that already have these provisions this volume should prove of great service. As a careful and painstaking study of an important subject in public law' it is a valuable contribution to the literature on the subject." H. G. James

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:601 Ag '16 450w

"In the Municipal reference library only."
Cleveland p108 Ag '16 100w

"Unless we greatly mistake this book is likely to be for some time to come the final word on the subject of which it treats so exhaustively."

+ Educ R 52:204 S '16 80w

"The volume is well planned; the materials have been gathered with intelligence, as well as with industry, and the conclusions are stated judiciously, without any attempt to point a moral or to further a cause. To members of constitutional conventions, to city attorneys in all of these twelve home-rule states, and to students of political science in general the book will prove of great value."

+ Nation 103:160 Ag 17 '16 330w

MACBRYNE, LEWIS EDWARD, and RAMSAY, JAMES P. One more chance; an experiment in human salvage. (Welfare ser.) *$1.50 (2c) Small 364 16-12257

A series of true stories drawn from the experiences of the second of the two authors, Mr. Ramsay, a probation officer in Massachusetts. All of the stories do not end happily; yet on the whole it is a hopeful book and a valuable contribution to the literature of prison reform and its related subjects. Some of the chapter headings will indicate the types of cases treated: The problem of the rich man's son; The slum as a breeding-place for crime; The spirit of wanderlust that leads to crime; The trail of crime in the wake of the liquor traffic; How probation aids the deserted wife; Probation for the man who has killed his fellow; Probation no longer an experiment.

+ A L A Bkl 13:11 O '16

"Mr. Ramsay's book reads like fiction; the accounts of individual criminals, with their confessions and their subsequent careers, are some of the most vivid stories ever written. And they are true; nothing is changed except the names of the offenders. As a living document of human endeavor, and failure, and success, it will be found of absorbing interest." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ap 22 '16 480w

"The whole of Scotland now enjoys the benefits, economic and moral, resulting from the introduction, largely through Mr. Ramsay's efforts, of a system modelled after that here referred to."

+ Dial 61:70 JI 15 '16 270w

+ Ind 88:35 O 2 '16 40w

N Y Br Lib News 3:90 Je '16

"Will interest a wider circle than professional penologists and sociologists and will explain how the Massachusetts officers of the law can safely substitute probation for prisoners in more than half the convictions that come before them."

+ N Y Times 21:304 JI 30 '16 320w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:450 D '16 50w

MACBRIDE, THOMAS HUSTON. On the campus. *$1.25 Torch press 814 16-14335

A book of essays and addresses by the president of the State University of Iowa. "These addresses, fourteen in number, treat of educational questions and topics in natural science, six of them having to do with plant life, if we include in the six an admirable literary-botanical dissertation on 'The botany of Shakespeare' and one on 'The folk-lore of plants.' Literary allusions are not lacking in other parts of the book and occasional apt quotations from the poets give charm and variety to the discourse."

—Dial

"Of particular interest just now is an address before the Contemporary club of Davenport, Ia., in 1899, on 'The botany of Shakespeare.' The subject has been more extensively, but not more interestingly, treated. Each one of these essays or addresses is worthy of permanent preservation, and there is not a dry page among the 262 in the volume."

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 16 '16 140w

+ Dial 61:216 S 21 '16 280w

"Shrewd good sense flavored with a charming academic grace of phrase."

+ Springfield Republican p8 S 14 '16 300w

MCCABE, JOSEPH. Crises in the history of the papacy. *$2.50 (2c) Putnam 282 16-5965

The author presents "a study of twenty famous popes whose careers and whose influence were important in the development of the church and in the history of the world." His idea has been to give "a view of the papacy in the essential lines of its development" by selecting for treatment the men who have most influenced its course. "The evolution of the papacy," he says, "has not, like the evolution of life in general, been continuous. It has had periods of stagnation and moments of rapid progress or decay." The figures he has chosen are those associated with the periods of advance. The periods which lie between have been covered by brief accounts so that the continuous study of the papacy as a whole may be complete. The first chapter deals with St. Callistus and the early struggle. The record is carried down to Leo XIII.

"Not a notably learned book and not so unbiased as the preface would lead one to expect, but better, perhaps, for general readers than the fuller and more scholarly works."

+ A L A Bkl 12:402 Je '16

"Mr. McCabe's four hundred pages only briefly summarize so tremendous a history, but they have a wide mission in telling briefly and vividly the most thrilling events of the long papal story." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p7 JI 12 '16 1100w

"A Catholic might have written with more unction, but we find no hostility in the attitude of the historian, who some two decades since left the priesthood of the Roman church for a world of freer thought."

+ Ind 87:168 JI 31 '16 150w

"The author's lack of personal sympathy with the great institution he is trying to deal with is obvious, and must be taken for granted in any judgment of his work. For the spirit and temper of the book we have only praise. It is noticeably free from vituperation; it refers liberally to the sources of its statements, and these are very largely the writings of defenders of the institution here under criticism. The work shows wide reading and careful selection. It should have a function in giving to intelligent but not professionally informed readers one side of the perpetually renewed discussion as to the nature and mission of the Roman system."

+ Nation 103:42 JI 13 '16 400w

N Y Times 21:179 Ap 23 '16 140w

"The author has not only presented, within bounds, a complete picture of the development of the papacy by the interesting device he has chosen, but he has also done careful work on original and conflicting evidence, and where the necessary condensation would allow, has presented the reader with the contradictory documents." Algernon Tassin

+ Pub W 89:1034 Mr 18 '16 800w

R of Rs 53:500 Ap '16 20w

"He writes in a capable, readable way, and though a rationalist who has not in other works disguised his views on the Roman church, he makes a successful effort to preserve throughout his narrative the aloofness of the impartial historian."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p203 Ap 27 '16 90w

MCCABE, JOSEPH. Tyranny of shams. *$1.50 (2c) Dodd 304 16-22762

The author is an English lecturer and writer whose published works cover the fields of religion, history, science and philosophy. In the present book he attacks certain traditions and prejudices which are hindering human progress. He is a champion of revolt. "The story of man," he says, "is a long story of the tyranny of consecrated shams, with occasional intervals of rebellion and advance to a higher stage."

MCCABE, JOSEPH—Continued

Contents: The philosophy of revolt; The military sham; The follies of sham patriotism; Political shams; The distribution of wealth; Idols of the home; The future of woman; Shams of the school; The education of the adult; The clerical sham.

"With all its shortcomings, it is a remarkably stimulating volume." . . . Enough has been said to indicate the somewhat careless ease with which Mr. McCabe overrides difficulties which all ages have tried in vain to solve. Yet his volume is instinct with a vigorous desire to alleviate misery, and contains just condemnation of the selfish policy of laissez faire, particularly of the militaristic sham."

+ — Nation 103:490 N 23 '16 480w

N Y Br Lib News 3:153 O '16 90w

Pratt p10 Ja '17

"Joseph McCabe, once a Franciscan monk, now writer, philosopher, and ultramodernist, has written one of the most stimulating books of the year. . . . It reflects the truth that moves the practical world of unselfish effort today, no matter what name this truth goes by."

+ R of Rs 55:213 F '17 100w

MCCALL, SAMUEL WALKER. Liberty of citizenship. (Yale lectures on the responsibilities of citizenship) *$1.15 (5c) Yale univ. press 323 15-18617

The general subject of these essays as stated in the preface is "the encroachments of the law upon the liberty of the individual and the necessity of maintaining the largest attainable measure of freedom." Contents: Nature of citizenship; Influence of private enterprise upon progress; Racial sources of our liberty; The liberty of the individual under our constitution.

"Not important for the average library."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:318 Ap '16

"The lectures of Governor McCall exhibit the traditional attitude of the old-time individualist. In opposing state socialism, he assumes that because public ownership, as thus far adopted, has not been a success in this country, its further extension would be still more disastrous. He assumes, without proof, a necessary incompatibility between individualism and collectivism. In discussing the constitution, he adopts, in the main, the traditional laudatory, uncritical view. These lectures, however, are well worth a circulation wider than the audiences to which they were originally delivered." J. M. Mathews

+ — Am Pol Sci R 10:199 F '16 80w

"That one may be a good legislator without being equal to the demands of a course of lectures upon government is demonstrated by the little volume into which have been put the Yale lectures on the responsibilities of citizenship given by Samuel W. McCall, now Gov. McCall. His opening words were ominous. . . . This feeling of an outworn theme apparently weighed upon him throughout, with the result of a triteness happily wanting in his political speeches."

— Nation 102:200 F 17 '16 320w

MCCARDELL, ROY LARCOM. Diamond from the sky. il *$1.35 (1c) Dillingham 16-8229

A story retold from a sensational film play. The diamond from the sky, said to have been discovered in a meteorite, is in the possession of the Stanleys of Virginia. The diamond must always pass to the eldest male heir, and Colonel Stanley has no son. In hatred of his cousin, who will next inherit the precious stone, he buys the new born child of wandering gypsies, substituting the boy for his own small daughter. This is the starting point of a thrilling tale in which a contest for an English title plays a part.

"It was doubtless a success on the films. As a novel—a supposedly literary effort—it is crude rubbish."

— Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 220w

"Were it not so badly written it is possible that those who like plenty of incidents in a story and are not particular as to their plausibility, might enjoy the tale, though it is difficult to believe that even the most credulous and simple-minded could contrive to swallow such a mixture of coincidences and improbabilities."

— N Y Times 21:114 Mr 26 '16 130w

"This novelization of a $10,000 prize moving picture play in we don't know how many reels is of interest because its technique is not that of the novel but of the photo-drama. Mr. McCardell suits his style to his violent material."

— N Y Tribune p9 Mr 18 '16 300w

"A sensational romantic novel that will hold the reader spellbound from the first chapter to the last. Freshly phrased, vigorous, picturesque, and intensely dramatic."

+ — R of Rs 54:125 Jl '16 20w

MCCARTHY, CHARLES, and others. Elementary civics. il 75c Thompson, Brown & co. 353 16-21155

"We have not attempted to carry out any stereotyped idea of a text book in civics," say the authors. "Our aim has been to give the child of the upper grammar grades such an understanding of his relation to other people as will make him a good citizen. That understanding can come only with a knowledge of the difficulties the human race has had in learning to live and work together." The chapter headings show how this idea has been carried out: Living together; How England worked out representative government for the world; The industrial revolution and the ballot; Why we vote in parties; From the cave dweller to modern Boston; How the city does its work; How the city pays its bills; The city's health; The city beautiful; How the state does its work; How the United States does its work; Justice; Education; Efficiency; Organized efforts for a higher civilization. Much interesting material, including a bibliography, is given in an appendix.

+ Ind 87:231 Ag 14 '16 50w

"The youngster who reads this book will get even more from the pictures with which the book is well supplied, and which are for the most part well chosen and instructive. But he will not get from it any material appreciation of what our real political problems are, or have been, or are likely to be. The book is so intent upon dragging into its pages everything picturesque or striking that it omits most of the things which are fundamentally important."

+ — Nation 103:425 N 2 '16 300w

"Several of the new text-books of civics and economics, while intended for school use, have taken a form that should attract to them many adult readers. This is true of 'Elementary civics,' by Dr. Charles McCarthy, the Wisconsin legislative reference librarian, assisted by Miss Flora Swan and Miss Jennie McMullin. . . . It would be a good thing if the campaign committees this year would see that copies of this book were placed in the hands of 'first voters.'"

+ R of Rs 54:456 O '16 200w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 130w

MCCARTHY, DENIS ALOYSIUS. Heart songs and home songs. *$1 Little 811 16-18314

This is the author's third book of verse. It follows "A round of rimes" and "Voices from Erin," both published several years ago. Among the poems are: "America first," "America to her children, The land where hate should die, The bells of Christmas, When Ireland's dream comes true, and Spring on Boston common. Many of them are reprinted from the Youth's Companion, the Congregationalist, the Catholic World, and other periodicals.

"A word must be said for Mr. McCarthy's child verses. He has a knack in these that is quite captivating." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 30 '16 1350w

"Only one Irish-born could write 'The little town of Garrick,' 'St. Brigid' and 'Ballyknockin,' or that delightful skit, 'The Leprechaun.' His patriotic poems—'America first,' 'The dream of Columbus' and 'The land where hate should die'—should be memorized by every American boy and girl."

+ Cath World 104:262 N '16 90w

"There is much lovely music in his 'Heart songs and home songs' and there is something more important—a rich and passionate humanity."

+ Lit D 53:759 S 23 '16 750w

+ N Y Times 21:538 D 3 '16 350w

MCCARTHY, JUSTIN HUNTLY. In spacious times. *$1.35 (1c) Lane 16-22552

A story of the 'spacious times of great Elizabeth. It is a story of the later days of her reign and begins with the return to England of Captain Hercules Flood, who had sailed with Drake, and his meeting with fair Clarendra Constant. That Clarendra was the affianced bride of Lord Godalming, one of the oldest and most respected of the queen's courtiers, did not deter her from a flirtation with Captain Hercules. But Hercules is a simple, honest straightforward man, who, when he sees thru her little play, reverts to simple measures. He takes Clarendra captive and holds her a prisoner in his castle on the moors, and all that follows is quite in accord with all the traditions of romantic fiction.

"Hardly more than a costume romance, but it is a good one." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:505 Ja '17 470w

"Though it will scarcely rank with Mr. McCarthy's best work, is sufficiently lively and amusing."

+ — N Y Times 21:566 D 24 '16 420w

"At this kind of story Mr. McCarthy is an adept who has at the moment but few equals."

The Times [London] Lit Sup p467 S 28 '16 120w

MACCAS, LÉON. German barbarism; a neutral's indictment; with preface by Paul Girard. *$1 Doran 940.91 (Eng ed 16-15270)

"The author of this volume, a Greek and a doctor of law, adds another detailed picture of the cruelties committed by Germany. . . . He considers outrages on neutrals, the use of prohibited instruments of war, and the ill-treatment of prisoners, as well as the outrages for which the Germans have had and seized an ample chance in Belgium."—Sat R

Sat R 122:186 Ag 19 '16 160w

"Well reasoned and carefully prepared indictment against the methods adopted by the German army."

+ Spec 117:15 Jl 1 '16 50w

MCCLELLAN, GEORGE BRINTON. Heel of war. *$1 (4c) Dillingham 940.91 16-8949

A book made up of papers reprinted from the Sunday magazine section of the New York Times. The author made a journey of several months thru the warring countries (except Russia, England, the Balkan states, and Austria) and his articles, written on the spot, attempt to give a neutral and unbiased picture of conditions in the countries involved. Actual scenes of warfare are not described. Contents: Economic condition of Germany; Germans confident of victory; Belgium under German rule; Louvain; France sacrifices to win; Disaffection with Viviani ministry; Italy's attitude toward the war; Goliotti and the Italian government. The author, who is the son of General McClellan of the civil war, has served as member of Congress, as mayor of New York and is now professor of economic history at Princeton.

"We have no wish to quarrel with Mr. McClellan, but we must regard 'The heel of war' as an astonishing book, callous and in exceedingly bad taste. To be pro-German as much as he pleases is his right. But when he writes, almost with a sneer, of anguished Louvain, and of the sufferings of Belgium, ruthlessly invaded, it rather grates upon the nerves. Then some of his statements are so absurd that it is waste of time to consider them seriously."

— Bookm 43:4 Mr '16 220w

"His wide acquaintance with public men, added to his equipment as a publicist and historian, has resulted in a highly instructive account, at first hand, of important phases of the war. His object has been to present an account of things as he saw them in the warring countries. If we accept Mr. McClellan's story, much of what we have been reading in the newspapers is a parcel of lies."

Lit D 52:1283 My 6 '16 200w

N Y Times 21:45 F 6 '16 350w

Pratt p44 Ap '16 20w

R of Rs 53:380 Mr '16 100w

"It is surprising that a professor in Princeton university should have been willing to publish a book whose only effect can be to supply fresh material to the discredited German propaganda. Perhaps a professor of economics is not expected to shine as a historian."

— Springfield Republican p19 Ap 14 '16 250w

MCCLELLAN, GEORGE MARION. Path of dreams. $1.50 Morton 811 16-9044

The work of a negro engaged in educational work in the South. The poems express longings for the freedom of his race and a note of optimism is generally uppermost, as the following stanza from "Daybreak" shows:

"Oh! men of my race, awake! arise!
Our morning's in the air,
There's scarlet all along the skies,
Our day breaks everywhere."

"The strength of feeling and yet the restraint with which he writes of the negro in such poems as 'The feet of Judas,' and 'Decoration day' makes for noble verse."

+ Ind 86:555 Je 26 '16 60w

"The poems are simple, but rhythmic, and easy reading although a slight license the author takes with the meter detracts at times from perfection of construction."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 20 '16 200w

MCCLURE, ARCHIBALD. Leadership of the New America; racial and religious. il *$1.25 (2c) Doran 325.7 17-2030

In this work the author has made a study of an important phase of the immigration problem, the position and influence of foreign-born leaders. The investigation was carried out in several large cities, including Chicago, Cleveland and New York, and in such industrial communities as the mining districts of Pennsylvania. It was also extended to the Pacific coast with its oriental problem. Data was gathered concerning sixteen nationalities, representative of the "new" immigration from southern Europe. The types of leaders include priests, newspaper editors, socialists, I. W. W. leaders, saloon keepers, business men and others. One chapter, and not a long one, is given to Some American efforts at immigrant leadership. The work was carried out under a fellowship held in the McCormick theological seminary and one of the author's aims in undertaking it was to determine the type of training that should be given to men of the Protestant church who are to work among immigrants.

Boston Transcript p8 Ja 6 '17 500w

MCCONNELL, REV. SAMUEL DAVIS. History of the American Episcopal church. il *$1.50 (1c) Young ch. 283 16-14820

In this tenth edition of Dr. McConnell's work the history of the American Episcopal church is carried down to the year 1915. In the original and the later editions it was carried only to the close of the civil war.

"The work is, in fact, much more than the history of one American denomination."

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 11 '16 390w

"The book is rather the work of a devotee than of an objective historian."

Ind 88:552 D 25 '16 60w

"It is reasonable praise to say that no history of a single church or denomination is more readable, more generally informing, more closely connected with life."

+ No Am 204:763 N '16 500w

St Louis 14:385 N '16

"His book is spirited and essentially readable,"

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 500w

MCCOY, SAMUEL. Tippecanoe. il $*1.25 (2c)
Bobbs 16-6763

A story of the eventful year that preceded the outbreak of the war of 1812. David Lawrence has come to Corydon, Indiana, to take up a new life; but one thing he has brought with him from the old, a hatred for the man who was responsible for his father's death. He has no reason to love England, the land that had allowed his father to be unjustly condemned to the gallows. He throws in his fortunes wholeheartedly with those of the new country but by an ironical turn of fate the suspicion that he is a spy in the English service falls on him. What hurts him most is that Antoinette O'Bannon should be the one to voice the suspicion. He leaves Corydon, joins the militia at Vincennes, fights with Harrison at Tippecanoe, rescues Toinette from Indian captivity, and when he meets his enemy face to face wins his greatest victory in sparing the man's life. The book is more than a stirring tale of frontier life, it is a sincere attempt to show the cost at which the foundations of the republic were laid.

"The romance that grew up slowly and with many interruptions between David Lawrence and Toinette O'Bannon, is one of compelling charm. There is skill in the telling of the story and the author has taken pains to give a faithful local coloring to his scene."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 12 '16 130w

MCCULLOCH, JAMES EDWARD, ed. New chivalry—health. il $2 (1c) Southern sociological congress 614 15-25707

The proceedings of the Southern sociological congress, held in Houston, Texas, May 3-11, 1915. The conservation of health was the general subject for discussion. Seventy-one addresses are included, arranged under the headings: Preliminary; The cost of preventable disease; Some causes of ill health; The health of mothers; The health of children; Mental hygiene; The health of criminals; Means of promoting health; The health of negroes; The church and the conservation of health.

N Y Br Lib News 3:30 F '16

MCCULLOUGH, ERNEST. Practical surveying for surveyors' assistants, vocational, and high schools. il $*2 Van Nostrand 526.9 15-18605

"The purpose of this book, the author says in his preface, is to meet the needs of students whose mathematical preparation does not extend beyond simple arithmetic. It is intended to be used as a text in high schools or vocational schools and for self-tutored men who wish to become surveyors." (Engin N) "Eight chapters constitute the main text divisions and are as follows: Introductory, chain surveying, leveling, compass surveying, trigonometry, transit surveying, surveying law and practice, and engineering surveying. An appendix on 'The essentials of algebra' concludes the book. Naturally the subject matter has been restricted to plane surveying." (Engin Rec)

A L A Bkl 12:270 Mr '16

"This is not in any sense a reference book. It is suitable only for those with little surveying experience and small mathematical knowledge, being an elementary parallel of Tracy or Johnson; but it is very thorough in its field. No one who is starting out to learn surveying will make a mistake in choosing this book as a guide." A. W. Bedell

+ Engin N 74:1176 D 16 '15 440w

"That there is a real need for a book of this kind seems manifest to one who has attempted to teach students having such limited preparation. That a man of the author's attainments has written such a book with evident care should insure for it a cordial reception. Throughout there is a fine understanding of the beginner's needs." A. F. Comstock

+ Engin Rec 72:550 O 30 '15 250w

"Its large size (401 pages) is due partly to the presence of a great number of illustrations, but is mainly due to the necessity of explaining many simple mathematical and other ideas that the properly trained engineer acquires in high school or in college. Most of the explanations are rather 'practical' than scientific."

+ Nation 102:175 F 10 '16 120w

N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

MCCUTCHEON, GEORGE BARR. From the house-tops. il $*1.40 (1c) Dodd 16-18026

This story opens with a startling situation: beautiful Anne Tresslyn has broken her engagement with young Dr. Braden Thorpe and is about to marry his grandfather, Mr. Templeton Thorpe. She is honest in saying that she is marrying for money. The object of the prospective bridegroom is not so clear, for he is clearly not the type of doddering old man who falls in love with youth and beauty. The marriage is carried out and the crucial situation of the story comes later. Young Dr. Thorpe, who has earned some notoriety by advocating euthanasia, returns from Europe to find his grandfather suffering terribly from malignant disease. He begs for relief and Braden faces the problem of granting his request. The decision materially affects the course of the remainder of the story.

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

Bookm 44:272 N '16 370w

"The story seems completely a manufactured one."

— Boston Transcript p6 N 11 '16 230w

+ Cleveland p127 N '16 70w

"Its most disappointing feature is that it disillusion; leaves one sadder and more pessimistic than he was when he began it. Living even temporarily with a bunch of selfish, superficial and haphazard people is an unpleasant experience."

— N Y Times 21:566 D 24 '16 380w

MCCUTCHEON, GEORGE BARR. Light that lies. il $*1 (4c) Dodd 16-9065

There are those to whom the idea of women serving as jurors is repugnant; women are sentimental and would be swayed by their emotions. This is a story of twelve good men and true, twelve staunch, hard-headed, unemotional beings, and one lovely girl who sat appealingly by the side of her aged grandparent during the course of the trial. It is more particularly the story of one of the twelve, young Mr. Sampson, who had hitherto cleverly managed to avoid jury duty. But this time, when the eyes of Miss Alexandra Hildebrand had once caught his, he was lost, and he found himself in consequence serving as no. 3 in the jury box. The story is carried up to the moment of verdict and to an amusing and unexpected climax that came after.

"Whether we take the story seriously or as a joke, it is equally unconvincing. . . . As it is, what there is to the story might be told in less than one-quarter of its present space. A sense of humor is a valuable asset for a novelist to possess. Mr. McCutcheon, in 'The light that lies' at least, seems not to have a glimmer of it." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p5 My 3 '16 470w

+ Cleveland p72 Je '16 100w

+ Ind 86:405 Je 5 '16 40w

"An uncommonly good long short story, or 'novelette,' Mr. McCutcheon is not always master of a pure English style, but he always knows what he is about. And that is not to bamboozle his public into thinking it is getting 'literatooor' or anything else that it doesn't really hanker for. It is to give that public a perfectly clean-cut article of its kind, a tale in which things happen excitingly to an appointed but often unexpected end."

+ Nation 102:622 Je 8 '16 230w

"It is a gay little story, light as a bit of thistledown, and with an amusing surprise for its climax. The sketch of feminine influence in the courtroom is entertaining, and in short a lazy hour or two may be agreeably spent in the company of Mr. McCutcheon's latest romance."

+ N Y Times 21:170 Ap 23 '16 350w

"While the tale is of the proportions of a short story, Mr. McCutcheon injects enough of humor, surprise and the dramatic to make it notable in its way and very entertaining."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 300w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:272 Je '16 60w

MACDONAGH, MICHAEL. Irish at the front; with an introd. by John Redmond. *75c (1½c) Doran. 940.91 16-10885

"Ireland is represented in the fighting forces of the British empire by fifty-four regiments of infantry and cavalry, while in addition she has raised two yeomanry regiments, the South Irish horse, the first of the auxiliary forces to come under fire, and the North Irish horse. In England there are two predominantly Irish territorial battalions, the London Irish rifles and the Liverpool Irish. . . . Mr MacDonagh has covered the entire fighting line, whether in Belgium, France or the Dardanelles, and in telling of the heroism of the soldiers he has not forgotten the chaplains who went with the men into action. . . . Two chapters are devoted to the deeds which have brought to Irish soldiers eighteen of the eighty Victoria crosses awarded during the war (at all events up to the time of writing the book)."—Springfield Republican

N Y Br Lib News 3:89 Je '16

Pittsburgh 21:586 D '16 30w

Pratt p35 O '16 30w

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 9 '16 520w

"In a vivid and earnest popular style Mr. MacDonagh puts flesh and blood on the dry bones of the official dispatches by drawing on regimental records and the narratives of officers and men. The letters of Irish soldiers give a lively impression of battle scenes, and add greatly to the spirit of the volume; but many of the most striking testimonies to the achievements of the Irish regiments come from comrades who are not Irish."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p146 Mr 30 '16 430w

MACDONAGH, THOMAS. Literature in Ireland. il *$2.75 (6c) Stokes 821 (Eng ed 16-21126)

A posthumous work by one of the condemned leaders of the recent Irish revolt. Mr. MacDonagh writes of literature in Ireland, omitting from his study those Irish writers who have emigrated to England. He sums up his purpose: "to show the value of the old literature, the prospects of the new," or as he states it again, "These studies are a first attempt to find standards for criticism in Irish and Anglo-Irish literature, more especially in Anglo-Irish poetry." Of particular interest is his discussion of what he terms the "Irish mode" in poetry and the last fifty pages of the book are devoted to selections from Irish poetry that illustrate his meaning.

+ A L A Bkl 13:112 D '16

"Contemporary criticism has produced few books more profoundly suggestive than this." Van Wyck Brooks

+ Dial 61:459 N 30 '16 430w

+ Ind 89:196 Ja 29 '17 250w

"Composed of studies which MacDonagh delivered as lectures to the students of University college, Dublin."

+ N Y Times 21:462 O 29 '16 980w

+ R of Rs 54:566 N '16 190w

"This volume is not only written with eloquence and charm of expression, but it is probably the most critical estimate of the Celtic renaissance in Ireland that has been written, so to speak, from the inside."

+ Spec 117:239 Ag 26 '16 2100w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p367 Ag 3 '16 950w

MACDONAGH, THOMAS. Poetical works. il *$1.75 Stokes 821

In the introduction, written for the Irish edition, James Stephens says, "Here are his collected poems. It is yet too early for anything in the nature of literary criticism. Recollection is too recent, his death too tragic to permit it. I will only say to his countrymen: Here are the poems of a good man, and if, outside of rebellion and violence, you wish to know what his thoughts were like, you will find all his thoughts here; and here, more truly expressed than his public actions could tell it, you will find exactly what kind of man he was."

The Times [London] Lit Sup p583 D 7 '16 400w

MACDONALD, DONALD FRANCIS. Some engineering problems of the Panama canal in their relation to geology and topography. il pa 45c Supt. of doc. 626.9 16-26025

"Discusses, from the viewpoint of the mining geologist, engineering problems, the general geology of the Canal Zone, stability of the Isthmus, geology in relation to engineering slides, Culebra Cut, earthquakes, and cost of construction. Twenty-nine fine plates and folding map. Published with the approval of the governor of the Canal Zone." (A L A Bkl) This was issued as Bulletin 86 of the Bureau of mines.

A L A Bkl 12:440 Je '16

"Finely illustrated from photographs. There is a bibliography on slides. The cost is only 45 cents from the Superintendent of documents. Many a library has paid much more money for much less valuable material on Panama."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:222 My '16 100w

MCDONALD, ETTA AUSTIN (BLAISDELL)
" (MRS. JAMES RICHARD MCDONALD).
Chandra in India. il *50c (2c) Little 16-17496

The fourteenth volume in the "Little people everywhere" series is a story of India. Chandra is a peasant lad of the gardener caste who takes his flowers to the temple as a gift to the gods, asking in return that he may be allowed to work in one of the great gardens of his country. Other characters in the story are a young Indian prince and the son of an English official.

+ A L A Bkl 13:133 Ja '17

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 150w

MACDONALD, EVERETT. Red debt; echoes from Kentucky. il *$1.25 (1c) Dillingham 16-25095

The usual ingredients found in stories of the mountain whites are here,—the family feud, the moonshiner's distillery, sturdy, stubborn members of the warring factions, the traitor, "the revenuer," the stalwart hero and the gentle, brave-hearted heroine who is sent away to school and comes out unspoiled but vastly improved. There is atmosphere, showing somewhat of the grandeur of the Kentucky highlands, and there is more than the usual force in depicting the habits and hatreds of the mountaineers who are slowly being won from their savagery.

"The author knows the creeds of these mountaineers, the insulation of their proud spirits with their own particular faiths; he feels their rights and their wrongs and their passionate love of kith and kin. Splendid descriptions of the wild beauty of the Kentucky highlands add glory to this poignant chronicle."

+ R of Rs 54:124 Jl '16 120w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 110w

MACDONALD, JOHN RONALD MORETON. History of France. 3v maps *$6 Macmillan 944 16-6324

"A history of France," in three volumes, is a well-written popular history of the older type. That is to say, the trend of events is not regarded so much as the resultant of social and economic forces, but treated rather as incidental to the achievements of prominent personalities, royal or other." (Ind) "The author has begun in the dim ages before the Romans overran Gaul, and has carried his history down to the close of the Franco-Prussian war, and he has managed at the same time to be interesting and to give his readers a full summary of the thousand conflicts through which the French people have passed." (N Y Times)

MACDONALD, J. R. M.—Continued

"One thing is clear at the outset. We have to do with another history of France written from the point of view of stiff British conservatism. The space assigned to the various periods is judicious. Some of the summaries in the first two volumes are excellent for their concision and clearness, as, for instance, those describing the Merovingian monarchy, Charlemagne, Louis XI, Sully, Richelieu, and Mazarin. The treatment of the renaissance is a brief and inadequate presentation of a significant phase of French development. The treatment of the reformation is almost entirely political and military, yet the French reformation was much more than a political movement conducive to civil wars. It is when he reaches the revolution, however, that the author becomes a particularly unsafe guide. . . . So much for the prevailing note of this account of the modern history of France. Moreover that account contains many errors of fact." C: D. Hazen
— + Am Hist R 21:573 Ap '16 1050w

"From a disciple of Acton, we expect a book of well-ordered method, and we are gratified in such matters as the citation of authorities to each chapter, maps, and index. But the author's experience in history must have convinced him that it is not within the competence of one man to produce a really satisfactory history of France in all its phases from the time of Cæsar to that of Gambetta. . . . Not only in his battles is Napoleon well portrayed, and the twenty-eight pages on the Franco-German war strike us as a particularly succinct and useful narrative. . . . We should like to give one or two of Mr. Macdonald's character sketches, if space allowed. He has the dramatic gift."
+ — Ath p70 F '16 1600w

"The author's explanation of social affairs is much clearer and more interesting for the late Roman and mediæval periods than for modern times. His treatment there is also more sympathetic. His description of the French revolution is done in the same depreciatory spirit which characterized the chapters which he contributed to the eighth volume of the 'Cambridge modern history.' Many statements of fact must be questioned."

— + Dial 61:111 Ag 15 '16 520w

"A careful and in many respects skilful summary that should prove valuable to those who desire an English manual of French history. . . . By far the best portion of his book deals with the period between 1789 and 1815, which is only just touched upon by Kitchin. . . . Mr. Macdonald is unsatisfactory in his treatment of church affairs. . . . The question of religious education, which so acutely divided modern France, is inadequately treated." W. D. Green
+ — Eng Hist R 31:475 Jl '16 1600w

+ Ind 84:444 D 13 '15 90w

"He is old-fashioned enough, we are glad to note, to give a considerable amount of military history. . . . Yet he also is fairly adequate in his description of French institutions and their development. . . . The author sums up well the significance of a statesman or a period. His style is brisk, at times almost overstepping the bounds of good taste."

+ — Nation 103:241 S 7 '16 460w

+ N Y Times 21:29 Ja 23 '16 2800w

+ Pittsburgh 21:128 Mr '16 40w

"He has the command of an excellent narrative style; he never drops into 'text-book English,' and he retains his interest and his freshness throughout the whole of his long story."
+ Spec 116:114 Ja 22 '16 1350w

MACDONALD, MINA. Some experiences in Hungary, August 1914 to January 1915. il *$1.25 Longmans 940.91 16-14316

"When the war was so suddenly thrust upon Europe, Miss Macdonald was acting as companion to the two daughters of an Hungarian magnate. . . . The book is a diary covering the months of August 1914 to January 1915, and it contains many things of the greatest interest.

Those who have been curious to know just what the different peoples of the highly heterogeneous Austrian-Hungarian empire think of the war will receive much light from this book. . . . The author's position put her somewhat upon her mettle, and this sharpened her wits. So her experiences are not devoid of humor."—Boston Transcript

+ Boston Transcript p7 S 23 '16 430w

+ Ind 88:284 N 13 '16 140w

N Y Br Lib News 3:125 Ag '16

"War books are usually depressing. But this one is not. It is a human document, not so much concerned with horrors as with human foibles. . . . But it is more than this. It is a revelation of the Hungarian attitude."

+ N Y Times 21:404 O 8 '16 530w

+ Sat R 122:328 S 30 '16 220w

"A light, rather superficial, pleasant enough volume."

+ Spec 117:sup398 O 7 '16 250w

MACE, WILLIAM HARRISON. Washington, a Virginia cavalier. (Little lives of great men) il 35c Rand 16-4589

The author's aim is to introduce Washington to children as "the plain, simple-minded, dignified man, whom relatives, neighbors, and friends all loved."

"Numerous illustrations, some rather quaint."

+ A L A Bkl 12:435 Je '16

"A sympathetic, brief account. For fifth and sixth grade children."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:147 Mr '16 20w

MC FALL, ROBERT JAMES. Railway monopoly and rate regulation. (Columbia univ. studies in history, economics and public law) pa *$2 Longmans 385 16-3645

"The author undertakes a study of the theory involved in what railway commissioners understand as the cost-of-service principle in rate regulation. He states that the object of governmental regulation is to reduce railway rates to the level of cost; because, since a railway enterprise is a monopoly, competition may not be relied upon to force rates to this cost-of-service level. . . . In the conclusion the hope is expressed that we may keep railway rates down as far as the ability of the roads to supply the service will allow, but it is conceded that it may be necessary for the rates to be raised from time to time." (J Pol Econ) The book is made up of four chapters: Regulation of whole-rate systems; Valuation as a criterion of railway ability; The fair return; Regulation of particular rates.

"Of value because of its constructive suggestions and because of the admirable spirit in which it is written. At the very outset he gets at the heart of the railroad problem." E. J. Rich

+ Am Econ R 6:897 D '16 830w

"The most valuable and interesting portion of this study is that dealing with valuation of railway property. The author's conclusions as to the value to be attributed to a railroad in considering the question of a 'fair return' seem eminently sound." T. W. V. M.

Ann Am Acad 67:303 S '16 240w

"Another elaborate work published by a university without an index."

Ath p427 S '16 50w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 26 '16 150w

+ Engin N 76:121 Jl 20 '16 180w

J Pol Econ 24:733 Jl '16 330w

"The thesis, though somewhat rambling and diffuse, gathers together in convenient form much of present discussion. Yet it fails to measure up to expectations, and throws little new light on the problem. To one who has followed the current discussion of recent years it tells a familiar story."

+ — Nation 103:65 Jl 20 '16 420w

N Y Br Lib News 3:40 Mr '16

R of Rs 53:379 Mr '16 40w

MACFARLAND, CHARLES STEDMAN, ed. Churches of the Federal council. *$1 Revell 230 16-10845

This volume "contains thirty articles, each written by a representative of one of the thirty Christian denominations included in the council, and each descriptive of the body to which it relates. An additional chapter, written by Mr. Macfarland, gives an account of the origin and development of the council. It is Mr. Macfarland's judgment that those who read the matter he has assembled will be impressed with the essential unity of the organizations associated in the Federal council in respect to their practical aims and ideals."—N Y Times

"If there is any particular criticism to be made of the work as a whole, it is that because of the interest in showing the general comity in spirit, there is a lack of sharply defined statement as to the most characteristic theological views. This is less true, however, of those bodies which have confessional basis. The volume will be a handy volume of reference, and it is of particular value in showing how these denominations are tending to recognize the common divisor of a generic gospel."

+ Bib World 48:127 Ag '16 130w

N Y Times 21:288 J1 16 '16 100w

MC FARLANE, ARTHUR EMERSON. Behind the bolted door? il *$1.35 (2c) Dodd 16-6718

There are many pleasant elements in this story of the gruesome murder of Mrs. Fisher. They are introduced into it by the presence of the two attractive young people from Hudson Street settlement, Walter Willings and Daphne Hope. They had been the means of interesting the wealthy Mrs. Fisher in the work of the settlement, and had been looking forward to a big contribution to their pet activities. It was this that brought Willings to call at her apartment at the very time of the murder. The suspicion against him is easily cleared away but in the efforts that follow to unravel the mystery he and Daphne become the right-hand assistants of Dr. Laneham in his exposition of crime detection by psychoanalysis.

A L A Bkl 12:482 J1 '16

"He will be an exceptionally discerning reader who is able to forestall the author's revelation of the truth. But the tale does not have to depend solely on the twists and surprises of its plot. Dr. Laneham and his friend, the Judge, are neatly sketched characters, and a couple of attractive young people add an enjoyable bit of love interest to an unusually interesting and satisfying mystery story."

+ N Y Times 21:94 Mr 19 '16 370w

"It is a bustling story and it improves as it goes on; but it would be more intelligible, though less clever, if there were less slang. The New York police apparently talk no other language, and judges of the Court of appeal—Bishy has been one—are not above it."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p382 Ag 10 '16 130w

* "That according to a physicist it is impossible will not lessen its interest for the novel reader."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:272 Je '16 60w

MACFARLANE, PETER CLARK. Held to answer. il *$1.35 (1c) Little 16-26140

The story of a strong man's progress thru varying stages of development. John Hampstead is first a clerk in a railroad office, painstaking and plodding, but slated for success. In leaving this post, when success is already in sight, to go on the stage he follows an idealistic impulse; for he has the missionary temperament and it is the opportunity for influence offered by the theater which appeals to him. Later this passion for doing good finds a more direct outlet in a small mission church which he builds up and makes a power for good. Here, however, his work and his good name are imperilled by the return of the beautiful actress who had for a time held him in her spell. Moved by pique or spite, this woman turns suspicion against him, and his willingness to sacrifice himself to save another's good name almost leads to his undoing. He is saved by the honest confession of one of his parishioners and set free to continue his good work and to marry the girl he loves.

"John Hampstead overcomes all obstacles, even the almost insurmountable obstacle of a jealous woman's scheme for vengeance. Such a great and good man as he has rarely if ever graced the pages of fiction. In virtue, in honor, in capacity for self-sacrifice he has no rival either in the novel or in life. In fact it is to be hoped that we shall not look upon his like again. . . . When Mr. Macfarlane speaks, the whole super-sensitive world of novel-readers must listen. He has met Harold Bell Wright with his own weapons, and he has proved himself not his master but his equal. Hereafter it is Peter Clark Macfarlane who will share with Harold Bell Wright the honor of the mastership of the 'big emotional American novel.'"

— Boston Transcript p23 F 9 '16 600w

"As autobiography, the book is marked with a certain crude vigor, the expression of an immense moral complacency. Where it ceases to be autobiography, it becomes melodrama. There are hints here and there of true local color and atmosphere, notably in the picture of the little 'Christian chapel,' with its wretched squabbles and almost touchingly helpless humanity. But the figures of the story, though many of them doubtless drawn from life, are ill-drawn. In short, as fiction, this can only be disposed of under that heading of 'quack novel' which Mr. Owen Wister the other day invented for our convenience."

— Nation 102:225 F 24 '16 190w

N Y Times 21:42 F 6 '16 400w

"The trial scene is one of the most dramatic and the life of John Hampstead, popular preacher, before and after he underwent the fires of malevolent publicity, one of the best bits of writing that has appeared in some time. The book is uneven, and it has its crudities. But it has ideas and plenty of them, and the story never flags. Many 'finished' writers could do with more of Mr. Macfarlane's vigor." E. P. Wyckoff

+ Pub W 89:642 F 19 '16 600w

"The story is quite devoid of psychological study, sermonizing or problems. It is a sketch of a big, crude, forceful man, written in large perspective, with a few dramatic, and unfortunately, with several glaringly melodramatic, touches."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 13 '16 580w

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p347 J1 20 '16 160w

MC FEE, WILLIAM. Casuals of the sea, the voyage of a soul. *$1.50 (1c) Doubleday 17-702

"Casuals of the sea" is the story of a North London family. Its members are numbered among "those poor casuals of the way-worn earth" to whom the author dedicates his book. The first of the three parts is the story of the family, with aimless struggles and unguided endeavors. The second is the story of Minnie, who chooses with open eyes the path the end whereof is said to be death, but which in Minnie's case leads to respectable marriage and material comfort. The third part is the story of Hannibal, the youngest of the Gooderiches, who drifts to sea and finds in its greatness and wonder some satisfaction for the inarticulate emotions that surge within him.

+ A L A Bkl 13:222 F '17

+ Ath p38 Ja '16 40w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:181 O '16 780w

"It is of the servants, the tradesmen, the workmen, the seafaring men, their wives, their children and their families that Mr. McFee deals. These are the people and the limitations of his world and he easily and skilfully lifts from them the veil of an obscurity and mystery that has long enshrouded them." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 6 '16 1150w

McFEE, WILLIAM—Continued

"The scenes at sea are immensely interesting, but not so much so (in my mind) as the career of Minnie which precedes it. . . . Mr. McFee is just as interesting to me when he writes about advertising as when he writes of the sea,—perhaps more. It is his quality that is really the thing." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 61:195 S 21 '16 200w

"It is not an entirely pleasant book. Some of it is delightfully humorous, some of it is calmly sordid, all of it is convincing and interesting."

+ Ind 88:234 N 6 '16 160w

"Mr. McFee is not a Gorky. He is much more a disciple of Arnold Bennett. He has a hard brightness which illumines the path he is traveling. One luxuriant emotion he has, the love of the sea. . . . 'Casuals of the sea' was written for the most valid possible reason—to reproduce human destinies sincerely. Its sincerity is profound. . . . It is a book that despite its faults and immaturities is the work of a creator. It goes into the highest category of the novel."

F. H.

+ New Repub 8:227 S 30 '16 1450w

"Studies of the inarticulate, of that tragedy which springs from an inability for self-expression, have been made of late by more than one writer. Mr. McFee has done this study of his very dextrously, with infinite care and an abundance of delicate, sure psychological analysis. . . . This book is primarily a brain production. . . . His novel excites one's interest and admiration, but seldom, if ever, touches one's feelings."

+ N Y Times 21:341 S 3 '16 1300w

"The book is memorable if only for these finely done pages of life at sea—everyday life of the men in engine-room and forecabin of a freighter. McFee has lived his life there and old McAndrew need pray no more for 'a man like Robbie Burns to sing the song of steam.'" Robert Lynd

+ Pub W 90:839 S 16 '16 600w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 330w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 80w

MACGILL, PATRICK. Amateur army. il *1s

Herbert Jenkins, London 940.91 War15-97

"This little book is a collection of short sketches of the army in training. We are able quietly to follow the making of a soldier from the moment when he is enlisted and billeted to the moment when he entrains for an unknown destination. Rifleman MacGill allows his experiences to speak for themselves."—Sat R

"The author of 'The children of the dead end' and 'The rat-pit' does not prove nearly so entertaining when he avowedly writes of his own experience as he did in his fiction."

+ Ath 1915,1:402 My 1 140w

+ Sat R 119:456 My 1 '15 650w

"Mr. MacGill has a lively pen and the happy gift of vivid description. Within the compass of little more than a hundred pages he covers all the essential points that come within the notice of a soldier rapidly training for war."

+ Spec 115:51 J1 10 '15 370w

MACGILL, PATRICK. Great push; an episode of the great war. *$1.25 (2½c) Doran

16-15690

"The justice of the cause which endeavours to achieve its object by the murdering and maiming of mankind is apt to be doubted by a man who has come through a bayonet charge. The dead lying on the fields seem to ask, 'Why has this been done to us? Why have you done it, brothers?' There is none of the glory of war in this description of the charge at Loos. The author acted as a stretcher bearer, and those who pick up the wreckage can have no illusions about war. He says, 'Practically the whole book was written in the scene of action, and the chapter dealing with our night at Les Brebis, prior to the Big push, was written in the trench between midnight and dawn of September 25th; the concluding chapter in the hospital at Versailles two days after I had been wounded at Loos.'"

"Graphic and very depressing."

+ A L A Bkl 13:215 F '17

"Next to picturing his fellows in the grasp of the war-machine, what lies on Mr. MacGill's mind is the 'monstrous futility' of it all, as he calls it. . . . Mr. MacGill's book is naturally painful rather than pleasant, and it is inspiring reading only as it depicts gallant men meeting hard conditions with smiles and fortitude; but it is—and this is all he intended or hoped for—a gripping revelation of war's dark secrets." F. I.

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 23 '16 1050w

+ Cath World 104:256 N '16 190w

Reviewed by Travis Hoke

+ Dial 61:190 S 21 '16 260w

+ Ind 88:72 O 9 '16 100w

"There was humor in the first book, rough horseplay, jokes. Here there is none. The day has gone for that. Death stands too close and too terrible."

+ N Y Times 21:323 Ag 20 '16 900w

+ R of Rs 54:460 O '16 90w

"This book impresses upon the reader, as few others appearing thus far have done, the frightful sacrifices of human life, the suffering, bravery, and fortitude which are the daily round of the European battlefields."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 3 '16 630w

"Mr. MacGill saw horrible things and he makes us see them also, so that we cannot dismiss his narrative as overcharged and cleanse our minds that way."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p302 Je 29 '16 350w

MACGILL, PATRICK. Red horizon. *$1.25 (2c) Doran

16-7234

In "The amateur army" the author wrote of the whipping into shape of raw troops in the training camps. This book continues the story and carries those troops into action, beginning with the embarkation and departure from England. Some of the chapter headings will indicate the nature of the contents: The night before the trenches; First blood; Blood and iron—and death, Terrors of the night; A field of battle; The reaction; Everyday life at the front; Souvenir hunters; The women of France.

+ A L A Bkl 12:472 J1 '16

+ Ath p119 Mr '16 250w

"All the courage, all the cowardice, all the fear, all the terror, all the humor of the soldier's life at the front are disclosed by Mr. MacGill. It shows clearly the skill with which a keen observer and a skillful master of language may turn life into literature." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 29 '16 1750w

"A somewhat hastily written but effective narrative of the every day facts of war; horror, humor, pathos and courage strangely mingled."

+ Ind 87:33 J1 3 '16 50w

"Told with the author's well-known verve and force."

+ Library Association Record 18:126 Mr '16 30w

"No more unsparing picture of life and death in the trenches has been painted. The physical torment and squalor and the long-drawn nervous strain of this new warfare are poignantly brought home. Yet the atmosphere of the book as a whole reminds one that this is a war of young men, to whom even horror is an adventure not to be despised."

+ Nation 102:708 Je 29 '16 280w

"You feel that your own friends are dying, and that the little white cross 'somewhere in France' that marks the spot where Merwin lies marks for you a personal loss. If you read the book you will feel the war at last, however far away and impossible it may have seemed to you, and you will be glad to have felt it, even though you may sicken at what war is. For the men who fight it are wonderful."

+ N Y Times 21:81 Ap 30 '16 1650w

"For sheer descriptive accuracy and the gripping qualities of actualities, it is unequalled."

+ R of Rs 53:753 Je '16 450w

"Is Bill the cockney a soldier in the London Irish? or is he the quintessence of cockney humour and irony and courage? In either case he is a breathing character that Dickens would have loved. All the other characters are alive, but Bill lives with a vigour that cannot come from his narrow, street-bred chest. He is the genius of cockneyism. . . . An atmosphere of British inconsequence lingers over many pages. Our national character seems ashamed of its undercurrents and proud of its superficial oddities."

+ — Sat R 121:138 F 5 '16 630w

+ Spec 116:504 Ap 15 '16 6w

Springfield Republican p6 J1 31 '16 820w

"Many of the sketches could hardly be bettered in unforced descriptive power."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p65 F 10 '16 400w

Wis Lib Bull 12:270 Je '16 70w

MCGUIRE, JAMES K. What could Germany do for Ireland? with introd. by T. Addis Emmet. $1 Wolfe Tone co., N. Y. 941.5 16-2148

"The purpose of Mr. McGuire's new book, as well as of his former one, 'The King, the Kaiser, and Irish freedom,' is to set forth his thesis that the triumph of Germany is for the best interests of Irish nationality. Ireland, the writer holds, is in exactly the same position politically as are other small states of Europe. The proposed revival of Poland as a nation under the auspices of this far-successful Germany he cites as a striking instance for comparison. The author paints a glowing picture of what Ireland might become as an independent nation. He hopes for this from the defeat of England and her consequent relegation to a place of secondary influence as a world-power."—Lit D

Lit D 52:1288 My 6 '16 300w

St Louis 14:142 Ap '16 20w

MACHAR, JAN SVATOPLUK. Magdalen; auth. tr. by Leo Wiener. (Slavic translations) *$1.25 (3c) Kennerley 16-15316

A translation of a Bohemian work that appeared in 1894. The original is in verse and altho the English version has been put into prose, some of the qualities of the verse form are retained. The theme is the old one of the prostitute who attempts to return to a life of respectability. A sentimental and impulsive young man conceives the idea of rescuing the girl. He takes her from the house in which he has first met her to the home of an old aunt, and then immediately tires of the experiment. The two women however take it with deep seriousness. Lucy finds happiness with the kindly old gentlewoman, but in the end is forced by the narrowness and vulgarity of conventional society, and by an act of her rescuer himself, to give up. She faces suicide first, but failing in that goes back to her old ways.

"The strength of the book is not in the vague and sketchy portrait of the heroine, but in the picture of the world of petty interests and raging hatreds into which she is set free."

+ Nation 103:516 N 30 '16 260w

"Everything modern is here—even the psychology of the unconscious. But the really interesting thing about the book is its essential difference from the products of the young Englishmen. It is nowhere solemn, everywhere satirical, and often witty. The tragedy, the author sees, is made almost comic by the worthlessness of the sanction which the heroine fails to achieve."

+ New Repub 8:201 S 23 '16 350w

"The characters are drawn with cruel truth. All stand forth in stark realism such as only the Slav can achieve."

+ N Y Times 21:371 S 17 '16 300w

MACHARG, WILLIAM, and BALMER, EDWIN. Blind man's eyes. il *$1.35 (1c) Little 16-7232

About half the action of this story takes place on a transcontinental train between Seattle and Chicago. Shortly before, the country had been startled by the murder of Gabriel Warden, a Pacific coast financier. A new sensation is provided by the attempted murder, on board the train, of Basil Saintoine, a blind lawyer of national repute. Saintoine is accompanied by his daughter and his secretary, who serve as his "eyes." All his professional correspondence must be known to one of them. The train is snowbound in the Rockies and there is no chance for the criminal to escape. Suspicion falls on a young man who gives the name of Philip Eaton. But Saintoine refuses to turn him over to the police. He takes Eaton to his own home on the shore of Lake Michigan and keeps him there under close surveillance, and it is there that the remainder of the story is worked out.

+ A L A Bkl 12:430 Je '16

"For a story written for no other purpose than to entertain, without a trace in it of character study, or of psychological insight, 'The blind man's eyes' has exceptional distinction. It is, of course, intended exclusively for readers who like stories of its sensational kind, yet at the same time there is no reason why those who are in search of the literary best, those who await eagerly the latest novel from Mrs. Wharton or Eden Phillpotts or H. G. Wells, should not turn to it by way of diversion."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 470w

"I have read no better detective story for a good while." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 60:424 Ap 27 '16 1000w

"There are too many wheels within wheels, and the length of the book makes the complex machinery fatiguing to watch. Nevertheless, as it stands the story is an uncommonly good one."

+ — N Y Times 21:124 Ap 2 '16 420w

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 23 '16 220w

"The merit lies in the telling, in the gradual unfolding of the mystery and of the character of the principal actors. This is done with great skill and a delicate touch."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p378 Ag 10 '16 430w

"A sensational story and almost continuously disagreeable."

— Wis Lib Bull 12:227 My '16 90w

MACKAY, CONSTANCE D'ARCY. Forest princess, and other masques. *$1.35 Holt 812 16-21580

"This volume contains six masques designed for community use. Some can be produced out of doors, and others are especially adapted for indoor production. Notes on masque music, masque costumes, and the revival of the masque are also included." (Preface) There are six masques: The forest princess; The gift of time (a Christmas masque); A masque of conservation; The masque of Pomona; A masque of Christmas; The sun goddess (a masque of old Japan). Some of these have already been produced, the first one at Mt. Holyoke college. No charge is made for amateur production provided due credit is given to author and publisher.

St Louis 14:438 D '16

MACKAY, CONSTANCE D'ARCY. Memorial day pageant. pa 25c Harper 792.6 16-6614

"A pageant for communities and schools, which is arranged for either indoor or outdoor production. Gives specific stage directions, directions for costumes with reference to places where illustrations may be found, the music which is to be used, with the places where it may be obtained."—A L A Bkl

A L A Bkl 12:415 Je '16

"Its moral seems rather thinly sugar coated, but the idea of a definite program for Decoration day is most valuable."

+ — Ind 86:144 Ap 24 '16 50w

+ R of Rs 53:635 My '16 40w

"Preferably for outdoor production." K. B. E.

+ St Louis 14:237 Je '16 10w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

MACKAY, HELEN GANSEVOORT (EDWARDS) (MRS. ARCHIBALD K. MACKAY). London, one November. *$1.25 Duffield 811

Impressions of London and of Paris in wartime find expression in the verses of this book. Mrs. Mackay weaves her own verse forms to fit the substance of her thought. "Strangely enough the poems have no sentiment of patriotism, real or assumed; the note of national interests in either case is entirely absent as cause or purpose for singing. Something larger, more permanent, more affecting stirs in her lines." (Boston Transcript)

"She makes London speak in its river, bridges, parks, streets, winds and shadows, as few have made her speak under the shadow of this war. It is a low, quiet, earnest voice, sharp and bitter with realities, but aching with love, glowing with faith and courage." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 11 '16 1300w

— Springfield Republican p6 Ag 25 '16 200w

MACKAYE, PERCY (WALLACE). Caliban by the yellow sands. 1l *$1.25 Doubleday 812 16-9151

This is the masque prepared by Percy MacKaye for the Shakespeare tercentenary celebration and presented in the stadium of the College of the city of New York in May of 1916. The theme of the masque is the slow education of mankind by means of cooperative art. The idea by which the theme is worked out is taken from Prospero's words to Ariel, "It was mine art . . . that made gape the pine and let thee out." "It was mine art," says the author, "is the text of this masque." He continues: "The art of Prospero I have conceived as the art of Shakespeare in its universal scope: that many-visioned art of the theatre which, age after age, has come to liberate the imprisoned imagination of mankind. . . . Caliban, in this masque, is that passionate child-curious part of us all [whether as individuals or as races], grovelling close to its aboriginal origins, yet groping and staggering . . . toward that serener plane of pity and love, reason and disciplined will, where Miranda and Prospero commune with Ariel and his spirits." (Preface)

+ A L A Bkl 12:465 JI '16

Boston Transcript p9 Ap 29 '16 1150w

"One cannot help wondering what Shakespeare would think of it. Probably he would have liked to see the pageant; but I am confident that nothing would have induced him to read the book. . . . It is only fair to add that Mr. MacKaye has been more successful in the details of his work than in its main outlines; much of his verse is graceful and attractive." H. C. Woodbridge

— + Dial 61:22 Je 22 '16 600w

"The book of the masque is illustrated with cuts of scenes designed by the distinguished Viennese artist, Joseph Urban, and by Robert E. Jones, who designed the admirable settings for Granville Barker's production of 'The man who married a dumb wife.'" + Ind 53:762 Je '16 550w

"Here is unity, indeed, that unity of poet and playwright, that delicate interplay of artistry, that perfect balance of conception and execution, which marks the finding of the one inevitable medium. It must be remembered also that from the very first Mr. MacKaye has recognized that the genesis of all art is in the social structure of the day. This fact has played no small part in his development and achievement. Perhaps more than any other one thing it is his perfect recognition of this, and his ability to act upon his knowledge, which stamps him as almost unique among the literary men of his generation." E. H. Bierstadt

+ N Y Call p15 My 21 '16 870w

N Y Times 21:277 JI 9 '16 270w

"The masque, considered as a poem, would seem to suffer somewhat from didacticism. From another point of view the book will be of interest to many—those who are following the development of community play, especially such play in the field of dramatic art. Mr. MacKaye's preface, in which he elaborates upon his purpose and the difficulties to be met, and the appendix containing directions for the production of the masque, will be read carefully by all who have grasped the significance of the groping toward community play that is one phase of the growing social consciousness."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 23 '16 750w

MACKAYE, PERCY (WALLACE). Poems and plays. 2v *$3.50; ea *$2 Macmillan 811 16-8472

All of Mr. MacKaye's work in verse to date is included in the first volume, Poems. In addition to those previously published in book form there is a group of "new poems for the present hour." The volume of plays includes five dramas selected as representative: The Canterbury pilgrims; Jeanne d'Arc; Sappho and Phaon; The scarecrow; Mater.

A L A Bkl 13:21 O '16

"My last word, however, should not be analytic but tributary—a word of homage for that distinguished and charming life-work, of which the two volumes I have here inadequately reviewed are in part the embodiment, in part the prophecy." O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 103:562 D 14 '16 2250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:87 Je '16

"Mr. MacKaye has what may be called a personal mind, not a general one. . . . Of the five plays in the present volume, two—'Jeanne d'Arc' and 'Sappho and Phaon'—come close to greatness. The former especially is as moving and beautiful a drama as has yet been written in this country. 'Sappho and Phaon' suffers from a lack of the simplicity of form so conspicuous in 'Jeanne d'Arc.' . . . 'Mater,' the only drama of contemporary life in the book, is a flat failure. The clever, mercurial Mater and her humorless offspring, the touch of politics and social 'uplift' of the modern play, call for powers of observation and generalization in which Mr. MacKaye is wanting."

+ — N Y Times 21:277 JI 9 '16 530w

"Mr. MacKaye seeks, we should say, for the picturesque word and phrase, but, when he has got it, he does not build it successfully into his fabric. His quick-coming images are a little too much for him, and his lines, to our ear, have a way of jolting. His verse is deficient in naturalness. In his shorter and simpler pieces Mr. MacKaye does better than in his elaborate commemorative odes. There is much here of deft mosaic."

+ — Sat R 122:19 JI 1 '16 400w

The Times [London:] Lit Sup p310 Je 29 '16 120w

MACKENZIE, CAMERON. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce. 1l *$1.35 (1½c) Dodd 16-9064

Janet and Butler Pierce are happily married young people who are quite content with a modest salary and an attractive little suburban home until the success of a friend of Butler's gives Janet the idea that her husband should begin to advance in the world. Butler hesitates; he realizes that he has not the aggressive powers needed in business, but Janet, with the resistless driving power possessed by women, pushes him on. All their small capital is invested and Butler does his best to enter the "big game" but he is not fitted for it. The very qualities of gentleness and boyishness that make him lovable, also make him unfit for that kind of success. The enterprise fails, and after days of bitterness and misunderstanding there is a happy return to the common level. The story ran as a serial in McClure's magazine, 1915-16.

"The conjugal misunderstandings are palpably trumped-up and the personae too immature for interest." Wilson Follett

— Atlan 118:493 O '16 180w

"The book is a good picture, too, of contemporary life in and about New York. It is a charming comedy of manners that just escapes tragedy here and there and ends upon a wholesome hopeful note into which the author puts some interesting philosophy about the beneficial results of the pounding and squeezing life does to youth." F. F. Kelly

- + Bookm 43:322 My '16 330w
- + Boston Transcript p4 My 3 '16 800w
- + Lit D 52:1464 My 20 '16 190w

"Some of the business scenes are not uninteresting, and one might have some small sympathy for the husband were he ever real."

- N Y Times 21:208 My 14 '16 320w

"Intellectual honesty on the part of an author toward his characters and his problem is rare enough to deserve commendation. I think we find it in this book." M. K. Reely

- + Pub W 89:1321 Ap 15 '16 520w
- + Springfield Republican p15 S 17 '16 220w

MACKENZIE, DONALD A. Indian fairy stories. il *3s 6d Blackie & son, London

"With the exception of one or two tales of wonder and imagination [these stories] belong more correctly to the category of fable or parable. Human wisdom and experience are conveyed to the mind of the youthful hearer through the medium of the animal kingdom, in which the lion represents, as in Aesop, the king of beasts; the tiger, ferocity; the jackal cunning and treachery; while the crow is the embodiment of common sense and is usually selected as the pointer of the moral. The tales are rich in pithy sayings."—Ath

- + Ath 1915,2:481 D 25 110w

"[The stories] have the true oriental atmosphere. The illustrations by Mr. Maxwell Armfield are very satisfactorily decorative without colour, except in the frontispiece."

- + Spec 115:838 D 11 '15 70w

MACKENZIE, JEAN KENYON. Black sheep. il *$1.50 (2½c) Houghton 266 16-12240

Letters home written by a missionary who during the years from 1904 to 1913 had a share in the work of civilizing the black inhabitants of sections of West Africa. With a remarkable aloofness from the irritation of insects, continual clamor and danger of disease, the author writes calmly, even poetically, of the people with their small advantages and large potentialities, until the reader feels the thrill of the big humanity that makes all the world kin. The letters furnish the sophomore theme writer an excellent illustration of simple, strong sentences with a predominance of Anglo Saxon words.

- + A L A Bkl 13:30 O '16

"These letters, already partly known to readers of the Atlantic and Woman's Work, have the naturalness, the brightness, the frequent touch of feminine wit and playful humor, that made so readable the 'Letters of a woman homesteader' by a writer of similar powers of observation and description."

- + Dial 61:109 Ag 15 '16 300w

"Her letters have a remarkable degree of literary excellence, an originality and fineness of phrasing, almost a rhythm, but they are curiously impersonal, curiously undetailed. The book has a strangely illusive quality. It rouses interest but does not quite satisfy it."

- + Ind 87:31 Jl 3 '16 160w
- + Lit D 53:1338 N 18 '16 150w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:91 Je '16

"An event among the books of the year."

- + N Y Times 21:339 Ag 27 '16 480w
- Pittsburgh 21:356 Jl '16 40w

"She has written of her life in Africa and of the people there with rare understanding and sympathy; also with color and a vivid sense of the beauty of tropical landscape and the picturesqueness of the natives. The author has the gift of getting under the skin of the African nature, of literally 'seeing black.'"

- + R of Rs 54:120 Jl '16 200w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:321 Jl '16 70w

"Among books of the day and the hour, books upsetting, and depressing, and revolutionary, and reactionary, this one is remarkable for its tonic quality. . . . It comes with a simple sanity of appeal that is reassuring." M. A. Jordan

- + Yale R ns 6:433 Ja '17 1300w

MACKIE, ROBERT LAIRD. Scotland. (Great nations ser.) il *$3 (1c) Stokes 941 17-2681

The full title reads: "Scotland, an account of her triumphs and defeats, her manners, institutions and achievements in art and literature from earliest times to the death of Scott." As the author states his purpose it has been "to provide a short, well-balanced, and well-proportioned introduction to the history of Scotland. . . . To be impartial without being dull, to deal as faithfully with Queen Mary as with John Knox, to mete out equal justice to Highlander and Lowlander, Catholic and Reformer, Jacobite and Hanoverian." There are sixty-five full-page illustrations.

- + Lit D 54:206 Ja 27 '17 80w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:187 D '16

"Perhaps the author's attempt to be impartial has resulted in making certain parts of the story somewhat flat and dull, but the book is at any rate comprehensive, and the numerous illustrations are well selected and well printed."

- + N Y Times 21:512 N 26 '16 80w

"Obviously the product of careful research and independent thinking. The mediæval chapters are excellent, there is no false sentiment in the chapter on Mary Queen of Scots, and there is comparatively little bias in the treatment of the seventeenth-century religious problems or of the Highland question. Mr. Mackie gives due prominence to social history, and his photographic illustrations are remarkably good."

- + Spec 117:480 O 21 '16 100w

"The best part of the book is the account of the reformation, but Mr. Mackie is everywhere adequate and competent."

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p620 D 21 '16 410w

MCLAREN, AMY. Heir of Duncarron (Eng title, Donald's trust). il *$1.35 (2½c) Putnam 16-5896

Duncarron, the family estate of the Graemes, has been leased for many years to a wealthy English family. The owner with his young daughter has lived abroad. The story opens with his death and the return of his daughter, Mary Graeme, to the home from which she has been an exile. She is welcomed and given a home in the factor's lodge and in short order a pretty love affair develops between the beautiful, lonely girl and the young tenant of her estate, Gerald Mason. Mary learns that her father's extravagances have left her heavily in debt and she is faced with the necessity of selling Duncarron. Pride holds her for a time from yielding to her lover's desire for a speedy marriage as a means of settling the difficulty, but that is overcome and all ends happily.

"The story is pleasantly told, and reproduces sympathetically a picturesque environment."

- + Boston Transcript p7 Ap 8 '16 260w
- + N Y Times 21:236 Je 4 '16 100w
- + Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 230w

MCLAREN, JANE MINERVA, and HARVEY, EDITH MARY. Hänsel and Gretel. il *$1 Stokes 812 15-19090

A play for little children adapted from Humperdinck's opera. Directions for costumes, etc., and music for the songs and dances are provided.

"Expensive but good for the librarian to know about."

- + A L A Bkl 12:435 Je '16

MCLAREN, WALTER WALLACE. Political history of Japan during the Meiji era, 1867-1912. *$3.75 Scribner 952 16-23816

"Mr. McLaren, who as 'sometime professor of politics in Kelogijuku, Tokyo,' here sets out to find an explanation of some of the perplexities of recent Japanese policy 'by reviewing her

MCLAREN, WALTER WALLACE—Continued
modern political history, describing her system of government, and explaining her national ambitions.' He holds that to the masses 'expansion on the continent of Asia is the first, last, and only object of foreign policy'; and in his preface he says:—'My main criticism of the [Japanese] system is directed against the appalling lack of principle displayed not only in connexion with their domestic but also their foreign policy. That there is a tendency toward an increase rather than a diminution of unprincipled action, and that a remedy will not be found except in an abatement of the intense chauvinism of the race, especially of the ruling military caste, is my settled conviction.'—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"Ever since September, 1914, Japan's action as a member of the Entente Allies has been shrouded in mystery. The author is well equipped to supply the information essential to the formation of accurate judgments as to the meaning of this ambiguous policy." F. B. N.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 23 '16 770w

St Louis 14:405 N '16

Spec 117:293 S 9 '16 280w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p370 Ag 3 '16 140w

"As his book is by no means free from patent inaccuracies and omissions we are not disposed to accept either his facts or his comments without any reservation. . . . Mr. McLaren's book is unrelieved by one single flash of humour or by one paragraph of bright or eloquent language, and the reading of it has been a dreary task which we fear few, other than the most painstaking students of modern Japan, will care to undertake. It may be useful as a work of reference, but even here its potential value is marred by a glaringly imperfect index."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p399 Ag 24 '16 2650w

MCLAURIN, KATE L. Least resistance. *$1.25 (1c) Doran 16-9545

Evelyn Lane of this story was a woman who was out of place on the stage. A cottage with a garden would have been the one right setting for her and a husband and a baby or two her fitting preoccupations. But an early and romantic marriage with a handsome actor attached her irrevocably to theatrical life, for after her separation from him she continued to act because it was the one thing she knew how to do. In a half dozen or so years she runs the whole gamut of theatrical experiences—stock work, vaudeville, long periods of unemployment, one-night stands, and finally Broadway success, won in the way which is said to be open to young and beautiful girls of elastic virtue. The path of least resistance seemed to be the inevitable one, even at the end when she lays down her weary body and slips away out of the world, she seems to be following it.

"The story is told from an intimate feminine viewpoint; it is obviously written out of its author's close acquaintance with the stage, and while its defects are many, it never falls for a moment to hold the continuous attention of the reader. It introduces many people, both of and apart from the stage, and each and every one of them is a very plausible human being. . . . It need be taken neither as a lesson, nor as a warning, but simply as a record of life." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 24 '16 450w

Ind 86:304 My 22 '16 80w

"The descriptions of stage life are fairly entertaining, though they lack the vivid, human quality, the mixture of fun and pathos, possessed for instance by Leonard Merrick's tales of the theatre. But for the care with which it has been done, the avoidance of yellow journalism, and the conscientiously portrayed heroine, the novel deserves commendation."

+ N Y Times 21:179 Ap 23 '16 420w

"Miss McLaurin tells her unpleasant story in a straightforward manner, which is free from the objectionable realism inherent in the subject, and with a minimum of the crudities generally found in first novels."

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 4 '16 230w

MACLEAN, ANNIE MARION. Women workers and society. (National social science ser.) *50c (2c) McClurg 331.4 16-23073

This study of women workers is limited to the groups engaged in industrial, clerical and mercantile pursuits, the occupations in which overwork and underpay are most common. Part 1, which deals with working conditions, has chapters on: Women toilers old and new; Industry and the home; Women and industrial conflicts. Part 2 is devoted to remedial measures and has chapters on: Legislative and other aids to the needs of women workers; Health and housing; Education and recreation for toilers; The socialization of industry.

"Superficial in many respects and contains much that is obvious to those who are awake to the problems; but the book will be useful because of the scanty material on women workers and because of its simple, popular presentation, which recommends it to those with a beginning interest in the subject."

+ A L A Bkl 13:201 F '17

MCLEAN, ROBERT, and WILLIAMS, GRACE
PETRIE. Old Spain in new America. (Interdenominational home mission study course) il *50c (1c) Assn. press 266 16-13985

A work designed as a text book for mission study classes. It has been prepared for the Council of women for home missions, a federation of the home missions boards of sixteen denominations. The scope of the home mission field includes all people under the protection of the United States. Cuba and Porto Rico are accordingly included in this study. Contents: Spain in America; Following the cross; Redeeming the southwest; Cuba para Cristo; Our new possessions; A new era.

Cleveland p106 Ag '16 10w

N Y Br Lib News 3:123 Ag '16 10w

Pratt p9 O '16

MCLEOD, IRENE RUTHERFORD. Swords for life. *$1 Huebsch 821 16-16936

The second volume by the young English poet whose 'Songs to save a soul' was welcomed last year. "There is less in this book of the mere recording of moods. There is now conviction and purpose behind most of the poems; and the fine poem on a lady playing Beethoven and the ardent profession of faith called 'Night speaks' prove that the increasing depth does nothing to clog the old passion and intensity." The Times [London] Lit Sup Another of the poems, "One mother," will rank as one of the most poignant expressions of woman's attitude toward war.

"Her second book has not achieved maturity, and the least successful poems in it suggest that she is making a transition from spontaneous youth to artistic and conscious mastery, for they are too conscious, too 'literary.' But in this book are lines and poems better than those she gave us a year ago."

+ Ind 89:153 Ja 22 '17 80w

"Lyrics of even more passion and intensity than those of the first collection, 'Songs to save a soul.' They are beautiful and rare and full of the desire and vigor of youth."

+ R of Rs 54:675 D '16 60w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p323 Jl 6 '16 100w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p341 Jl 20 '16 320w

MACLEVY, MAX. Tobacco habit easily conquered. il *$1.25 (5c) Albro soc., 181 Lexington av., N. Y. 178 16-10774

The author describes the system which he uses in curing those who are addicted to the excessive use of tobacco. The main body of the book consists of twenty chapters each of which contains a "dictum" to be followed. Many of these are only maxims of good health and right living. Indeed self control and habits of clean living appear to be the secrets of the system. There are in addition miscellaneous chapters, one addressed to women who use tobacco, one to boys who smoke, and one entitled Looking backward, to be read by the man who has given up the habit of tobacco using. An appendix gives statistical evidence of the harmful effects of tobacco.

"The appendix and the two chapters preceding would give real value to the book, even if the twenty dicta were worthless."

+ Lit D 53:756 S 23 '16 140w

MCMANIS, JOHN T. Ella Flagg Young and a half-century of the Chicago public schools. Il *$1.25 McClurg 16-20504

"Naturally it is the public work rather than the private and personal life of Mrs. Young that fills the bulk of the book. She is absorbed in her work and shrinks from being made the theme of a detailed biographical study. Yet her personality shines in Mr. McManis's pages, at the same time that her service to education is fully recognized."—Dial

+ A L A Bkl 13:121 D '16

"Few biographies, as brief as this, are as comprehensive. Few personalities, through description, are made as living as this. . . . And as no story of her life would be complete which neglected the social and educational history of her time, her present biographer gives it briefly, showing clearly how, through this wonderful half-century, the 'world of childhood' gained 'an importance commensurate with its value to the state.'" F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 28 '16 600w

+ Dial 61:472 N 30 '16 210w

+ Ind 89:72 Ja 8 '17 270w

N Y Br Lib News 3:182 D '16

"Every library will do good service in placing this book among the first offered to the young women and particularly to those who are teachers, in its neighborhood."

+ Public Libraries 22:37 Ja '17 290w

MCNAIR, WILSON. Blood and iron; impressions from the front in France and Flanders. Il *$2 Dutton 340.91 (Eng ed 16-7951)

"The intention of Mr. McNair in writing this book was not to add one more to the numerous set 'histories of the war' now available, but to present a subjective record of the emotions awakened in himself and others who were witnesses of some of its great events." (The Times [London] Lit Sup) "He was in Brussels when Liège was fighting and falling and the army of field-gray uniforms began to submerge Belgium. Many graphic and thrilling descriptions have been written of the oncoming of that reign of terror and horror . . . but among them all Mr. McNair's stands out prominently because of his endeavor to make his readers understand the emotions of the people. . . . Afterward he takes up the coming to France of the British expeditionary force, tells of the retreat from Mons, the battle of the Marne, the feeling in Paris, the battle of Ypres, and various phases of the conflict during the first winter of the war." (N Y Times)

N Y Br Lib News 3:137 S '16

"Mr. McNair has written an interesting and valuable book, although he sometimes detracts from its worth by the high emotional pitch which he not only maintains throughout, but allows to grow higher and more tense as he proceeds. It is difficult, of course, to refrain from doing this when all the experiences with which he deals are tense and sombre and thrilling. Nevertheless, it is a mistake artistically, because thereby he misses some of the effects which he wishes to produce upon the distant reader, surrounded by different scenes and interests."

+ N Y Times 21:330 Ag 27 '16 650w

"In Mr. McNair's hands the events of the first nine months in the west fall into a simple and coherent story, and what his narrative lacks in military detail is far more than compensated by its intense human interest."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p123 Mr 16 '16 970w

MACNAMARA, RACHEL SWETE. Drifting waters. Il *$1.35 (1c) Putnam 15-27926

Because her own married life has been unhappy, Margaret Tudor retires from the world and brings up her daughter Anne in strict seclusion. Anne is seventeen when her father's people, the Tudors, appear to claim her, and on a visit to her aunt's home she has her first taste of the society of other young people. This visit is the beginning of Anne's love affair, but her mother's selfishness and perversity prevent it from following a normal course and lead Anne into deception. On the day that Richard Assheton leaves England the two are married, and the marriage is kept secret. After her mother's death Anne goes out to Egypt to join her young husband, and finds that the circumstances of their marriage have made necessary an unhappy period of adjustment before right relations are established between them.

"The romance in the lives of Anne Tudor and Richard Assheton is of absorbing interest, and doubt regarding the outcome of their clandestine marriage is well concealed until near the end of the book. . . . Richard Assheton is a sentimental fiction hero rather than a flesh and blood man."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Mr 25 '16 300w

"Were ever two people so utterly imbecile? So impossibly blind? Yes, there have been plenty of people like that, in print, at least. They have figured in two very recent stories, 'Where the path breaks' and 'Fulfillment.' They are, indeed, among the standard personæ of sentimental fiction." H. W. Boynton

— Nation 102:520 My 11 '16 300w

"To tell the truth, we are somewhat impatient of the misunderstandings, which might just as well have been cleared up first as last. But we have a sense of ingratitude in quarreling at all with a story so delightful and wrought with such a delicately perfect art. It is more than a passing pleasure; it is a possession."

+ N Y Times 21:124 Ap 2 '16 380w

"This story of a girl's adolescence and marriage is rather self-conscious, but it is well-written."

+ Spec 116:263 F 19 '16 15w

Springfield Republican p13 O 8 '16 270w

MACNAUGHTAN, SARAH. Some elderly people and their young friends. *$1.35 Dutton (Eng ed 15-16442)

"It is said that love is the thing that makes the whole world kin. Age and circumstance do not seem to constitute an exception to the rule. In 'Some elderly people and their young friends' Cupid's manipulations never seemed more strange nor persistent. Mr. Macpherson and Miss Crawley and Clemmie and Bobby are shining examples of his curious arts. The author has, in fact, developed her sentiment, at the expense of satire, for while the story at times verges on modern movements, it keeps clear of serious problems."—Springfield Republican

"It is no easy matter to play two generations against each other and keep the balance so well that the reader feels sympathy with each generation. This is what is accomplished here."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 10 '16 400w

"If one likes skilful character drawing, pleasant comedy, clever, almost too clever, talk, and truthfully and amusingly depicted contrasts of two generations, read 'Some elderly people and their young friends,' which takes one into the pleasant, easy, English social life beloved of the novelist of manners."

+ Ind 86:66 Ap 10 '16 50w

"S. Macnaughtan's quiet stories run evenly until something happens. Customarily, this occurs once only in the course of the book, but whenever it does come the effect is slightly incongruous."

+ Nation 102:648 Je 15 '16 330w

"While the book is without plot, strong objective, or compelling interest it is pleasant and wholesome reading for diversion. The characters are agreeable, if lightly, sketched."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 2 '16 110w

MACNAUGHTAN, SARAH. Woman's diary of the war. il $*1 Dutton 940.91

(Eng ed A17-5)

"Miss Macnaughtan, a novelist, joined the Red cross at the beginning of the war, went through the siege and evacuation of Antwerp, and was with her unit at Furnes and La Panne. Hers is the intimate view of the behind-the-lines phase of the war, the contact with suffering without the opportunity for counter-aggression. In attractively simple language she describes the handling of the wounded and the cheerful persistence with which the nurses 'did their bit.'"—Dial

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 18 '16 260w

"There is not a little humor in the book and a great deal of earnestness." Travis Hope

+ Dial 61:190 S 21 '16 150w

+ Ind 88:415 D 4 '16 80w

"Her descriptions, made with the simplicity and effectiveness of the trained artist in words, are always impressive."

+ N Y Times 21:345 S 3 '16 330w

+ R of Rs 54:461 O '16 60w

MCPHERSON, LOGAN GRANT. How the world makes its living. $*2 (2c) Century 330 16-23074

The author, who is a practical business man with a long experience in railroad as well as author of several books on railway economics, has attempted in this book "to outline the evolution of the institution of property, the related phenomena of money, capital, rent, interest, wages prices and profit; and to trace their significance." Throught the work the idea of interdependence is made prominent. "Economics," says the author, "is sometimes designated as the science which treats of how the world makes a living. Characteristic of the present age is the increasing degree to which in 'making a living,' the efforts of the individuals of all nations have come to be interwoven."

"Treats most of the topics covered in works on economics, accurately, and in a commendably simple, lucid, and untechnical fashion."

+ A L A Bkl 12:201 F '17

St Louis 15:8 Ja '17

MACPHERSON, STEWART. Musical education of the child; some thoughts and suggestions for teachers, parents and schools. (Joseph Williams ser. of hand-books on music) *80c (3c) Boston music co. 780.7 16-13849

A little book dealing with the general musical education of the child rather than with specialized music study. It is an English work but much of what the author has to say will apply to our own public school music. Music is considered as a school subject having an educational value equal to that of other subjects in the curriculum. The book consists of three parts: Some aims in modern musical education; Appreciative music study: its meaning and its value; The music-teacher: his aims and ideals.

"Not a text book of musical instruction, but suggestions to parents and teachers on the best methods of developing musical appreciation in the child. The author believes that it is more important that children learn to like good music than to execute it."

Cleveland p149 D '16 30w

Reviewed by H: T. Finck

+ Nation 103:92 J1 27 '16 140w

MCSPADDEN, JOSEPH WALKER. Famous painters of America. il $*2.50 (3c) Dodd 759.1 16-19979

To this second edition three artists are added: John W. Alexander, J. Alden Weir, and Childe Hassam, with additional illustrations from the work of each.

"No technical jargon irritates the general reader in these anecdotal pages, where lively dialogue and amusing incident engage the attention without necessarily evoking troublesome queries as to the authenticity of it all."

+ Dial 61:477 N 30 '16 180w

"No other popular work gives as full accounts of these artists' lives."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:452 D '16 50w

MACY, JOHN ALBERT. Socialism in America. (American books) $*1 (2c) Doubleday 335 16-2145

In his preface the author states: "I am a member of the Socialist party and of the Industrial workers of the world, but I have no official position in either. I express only my own opinions or the opinions of others which happen to appeal to me. This book is an informal sketch of the socialist movement intended for readers who know little about the subject. Most of the arguments are on one side or another of questions on which socialists disagree among themselves." Among the chapters are Socialists and the war; The origin of socialism; Economic classes; Program of the Socialist party; The older trade unions; Industrial workers of the world; Internationalism and militarism.

"Allowance must be made for a certain penchant inseparable from the author's membership in the Socialist party and I. W. W. This done, the book is a good, clear, readable and up-to-date survey for small libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 12:319 Ap '16

"The author states in his preface that this book is 'intended for readers who know little about the subject.' It will probably not reach this class because it presupposes throughout an acquaintance with the terminology of socialism and with the history of the labor movement that the average reader unfortunately does not possess. It should, however, serve an equally valuable end. It should clarify the thinking of many radicals and cause the various groups to draw sharper lines of demarcation. A chapter analyzing the older trade unions and another criticizing and explaining the platform of the Socialist party, clause by clause, are particularly suggestive and helpful." A. F.

+ Ann Am Acad 66:264 J1 '16 100w

"In no sense a history of the movements but a live comment on the distinctive thought of each. Written thoughtfully and with clarity, brevity and force but will be considered radical by many."

+ Cleveland p37 Ap '16 40w

"The distinguishing feature of the book is an insistent emphasis upon the essentially international character of socialism. Apart from this note, which arises out of the war, and which, according to Mr. Macy, puts before us socialism stripped of non-essentials, the book is a good summary of American socialism. It is written in a terse and vigorous style. It points out the differences between the various socialistic parties in America, and touches somewhat upon the aims and methods of the labor organizations."

+ J Pol Econ 24:623 Je '16 190w

N Y Br Lib News 3:40 Mr '16 60w

N Y Times 21:153 Ap 16 '16 50w

"This book is readable because the author does not obtrude propaganda into his exposition of the status of socialism in this country."

+ R of Rs 53:508 Ap '16 150w

St Louis 14:183 My '16 20w

"Mr. Macy's book, aided by a lucid and racy style, is exceedingly readable. He is well posted on the history of the socialist movement, its personalities, its policies and its problems. If the reader is careful to distinguish his statements of fact from his caustic and rather cynical criticism and allow for a tendency to exaggerate, a remarkably clear and essentially accurate presentation of socialism in America is uncovered. If this separation is not made the book is still illuminating—of a typical representative of the latter-day individualistic and egoistic wing of the Socialist party."

+ Springfield Republican p12 Ja 23 '16 970w

"A good survey for the small library, giving origin and history briefly, and presenting the trade unions, the I. W. W., etc."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:143 Mr '16 60w

MADDEN, DODGSON HAMILTON. Shakespeare and his fellows. *$2 Dutton 822.3

(Eng ed 16-17366)

"In a volume of six essays under the collective title of 'Shakespeare and his fellows,' the Right Hon. D. H. Madden, vice chancellor of the University of Dublin, makes 'an attempt to decipher the man and his nature.' Spenser, Ben Jonson and Marlowe are selected by him as the leaders among Shakespeare's 'fellows,' and to these he adds others whose connection with the stage either as actors or writers brought them into professional and personal associations with their master. His book therefore becomes a miscellany of Shakespeareana into which is gathered an assortment of well-arranged facts and conjectures regarding Shakespeare's contact with men and life during the years when he was a definite factor in the theatrical world of London."—Boston Transcript

"Nothing new in the way of fact is revealed, or is, indeed, to be expected, but the writer's judicious use of quotation and easy, pleasant style make the book eminently agreeable. Here and there more pertinent detail might have been added, and, if a second edition is called for a few slips should be corrected."

+ Ath p285 Je '16 120w

Boston Transcript p9 Ag 5 '16 470w

"The merit of Dr. Madden's work lies in its brevity and simplicity of style. It does not get beyond 241 pages of excellent print, and it is essentially readable."

+ Sat R 121:614 Je 24 '16 1000w

"A book on Shakespeare by the author of 'The diary of Master William Silence' is sure to be printed more than once. Readers will know that, whatever portion of the vast Shakespearean field that author should choose to till, they would find the work done with the charm of a true man of letters, and the acute caution of one used to the handling of evidence. And it happens that Mr. Justice Madden has hit upon an idea, which, so far as we know, no other tercentenary publication has attacked."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p235 My 18 '16 1400w

MADÉLIN, LOUIS. French revolution: tr. from the French. *$2.50 (1c) Putnam 944.04
16-20286

This work belongs to a series of monographs, treating of "The national history of France," one of which, "The century of the renaissance" by L. Batiffol, made its appearance in English earlier in the year. The present work has been crowned by the French academy and awarded the Gobert prize. In the preface the author speaks of its limitations. He has attempted neither a school textbook nor a learned work. Investigation of the period of the revolution, he says, has only begun, "but a consideration of what has already been laid before the inquirer leads me to the conviction that I am justified in setting forth, as a temporary measure, the points of which we are already in possession." An introduction is devoted to the France of 1789, and the four parts of the book take up: The constituent assembly; The legislative assembly; The national assembly; The executive directory. Sources and bibliographical references are given at the end of each chapter.

A L A Bkl 13:164 Ja '17

"The translation is well done; and the reader will be greatly helped by the full and numerous bibliographies."

+ Ath p485 O '16 90w

"The winning of the grand prix Gobert of the French academy by this volume places its author in the same class with Albert Sorel, Albert Vandal, Thureau-Dangin and Henri Welschinger."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '17 420w

N Y Br Lib News 3:157 O '16

+ R of Rs 54:571 N '16 80w

"He has absorbed a whole library in the preparation for his task, and yet his book is as dramatic and readable as Michelet's or Carlyle's. He corrects many a misapprehension, disposes of many an old error; nevertheless, he makes the story as thrilling as ever. . . . By far the best short history of the revolution, from its outset to the establishment of Bonaparte as First Consul, that has yet been written."

+ Spec 117:sup681 D 2 '16 1200w

"M. Madelin has avoided the extreme views of partisan writers and has also refrained from the horrors of the Terror."

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 1 '16 220w

"M. Madelin's book is an interesting and racy one, when all reservations have been made. In its translation the reader will probably find it the most vivid narrative of the revolution in English, with the exception of Mr. Belloc's books, which has been written since Carlyle; and he will also find that M. Madelin's way of treating his story and Mr. Belloc's make a telling contrast."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p508 O 26 '16 1700w

"MADEMOISELLE Miss." il 50c (4c) Butterfield 940.91
16-17132

A little volume made up of the letters written by an American nurse stationed in a French field hospital near the Marne. Dr. Cabot who writes an introduction says, "I find in these letters some fragment of true atonement for the huge sin and blunder of the war." Their publication "without the writer's knowledge" is in the interest of the American fund for the French wounded.

+ A L A Bkl 13:215 F '17

"The letters not only serve to record the outward aspect of various grim dramas of the hospital; they are written with such sympathy for the inner meanings, and with such a considerable degree of literary skill, that they reveal well some of the spiritual dramas with which the great struggle is crowded—and incidentally of the personality of the author-nurse herself." F. I.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 16 '16 570w

+ R of Rs 54:573 N '16 90w

MAETERLINCK, MAURICE. Wrack of the storm; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. *$1.50 (3½c) Dodd 940.91
16-19648

This volume contains all the essays and speeches published or delivered by M. Maeterlinck since the beginning of the war. They are arranged chronologically, and as the translator says, "they throw an interesting light upon the successive phases of the author's psychology during the titanic and hideous struggle that has affected the mental attitude of us all." Maeterlinck himself says: "The reader taking up this volume will, for the first time in the work of one who hitherto had cursed no man, find words of hatred and malediction. . . . I tried to lift myself above the fray; but, the higher I rose, the more I saw of the madness and horror of it, of the justice of one cause and the infamy of the other."

A L A Bkl 13:116 D '16

Ath p478 O '16 40w

"Of course the primary interest of a collection of papers like this is the light it throws on the mental and spiritual reactions of such a man in such a tremendous crisis of humanity." R. T. P.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 7 '16 1100w

+ Dial 61:356 N 2 '16 530w

Nation 103:591 D 21 '16 730w

New Repub 8:273 O 14 '16 1700w

+ N Y Times 21:437 O 22 '16 400w

+ No Am 205:143 Ja '17 500w

"One feels that in the coming years, from a clearer vantage-ground, Maeterlinck will give us another book, a final, all encompassing book, to which the one of today is but a prelude." F. T. Cooper

Pub W 90:1420 O 21 '16 550w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p455 S 21 '16 50w

MAETERLINCK, MAURICE—Continued

"Never has M. Maeterlinck written more beautifully than in the little paper called 'In memoriam.' . . . Here is our consoler at his greatest, lifting us above the battle into his own realm of love and life."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p462 S 28 '16 1200w

MAHER, RICHARD AUMERLE. Shepherd of the North. *$1.35 (2c) Macmillan 16-5616

The central character of this story is a big-hearted Catholic bishop who is indeed a shepherd to the people of the Adirondack hills where the scenes are laid. It is while he is on a visit to a French-Canadian village on the remote borders of his parish that Ruth Lansing comes under his protection. Her father, altho he is a Protestant, is willing to leave his daughter to the care of the good bishop. Ruth is placed in a convent and, surrounded by the all-pervasive Catholic influence, becomes a ready convert. Her boy lover, Jeffrey Whiting, is less easily persuaded and it is only after his soul has been tried that he finds comfort in the Catholic faith. Much of the action of the story is concerned with a fight between the hill people, led by Jeffrey, and a powerful railroad corporation that attempts to get possession of their land.

+ A L A Bkl 12:430 Je '16

Ath p243 My '16 50w

Reviewed by Wilson Follett

+ Atlant 118:494 O '16 80w

Boston Transcript p7 S 16 '16 180w

+ Cath World 103:256 My '16 370w

"A rather forceful plea for the Catholic church. The hero, a Catholic bishop, is fairly well done, but the other characters are uninteresting."

+ Ind 86:220 My 8 '16 60w

"The reader will occasionally protest at the reasoning resorted to, unless he has implicit faith in the power of the Roman Catholic church and the inviolability of the secrets of the confessional, as that is the key-note of the book's meaning."

+ Lit D 52:1105 Ap 15 '16 240w

"The story-teller writes out of a devout belief in the power of the Roman faith, and the reader is now and then dangerously near the feeling that he is being lured into the reading of a tract. But the book fairly escapes this; as a whole, it is written with dignity of mood and of manner."

+ Nation 103:13 Jl 6 '16 400w

"A pleasant, entirely conventional little story. The description of the forest fire, although much too long, is occasionally vivid, and the bishop's character is nicely drawn, in spite of the fact that in order to make his intervention uniformly successful the long arm of coincidence is strained to the breaking point."

+ N Y Times 21:114 Mr 26 '16 270w

R of Rs 53:635 My '16 150w

+ Sat R 122:139 Ag 5 '16 80w

+ Spec 116:555 Ap 29 '16 1100w

"It is the author's obvious purpose to show that the Roman Catholic church is the most satisfactory refuge for a troubled conscience. At any rate, the young man takes his troubles to the bishop, and eventually becomes a convert. A young woman, another convert, is the other half to the fluctuating romance. The moral problem alone lends some interest to an otherwise tepid narrative."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 230w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 70w

MAITRA, HARENDRANATH. Hinduism: the world-ideal; with an introd. by G. K. Chesterton. *$1.25 (5c) Dodd 294 16-15729

"India looks within; the West without" says the author in expressing the distinction between eastern and western civilization, and he goes on to point out that the Great Teacher of the West has said that the kingdom of God is not without, but within. His purpose in this book is "to present India as she has gradually evolved, that she may be better understood by the West."

He writes of: The stream of Indian thought; Hindu religious faiths; Caste; The four Ashramas; Kings and peasants; The Hindu woman; The key-note of humanity.

"An idealized study of Hindu thought as it expresses itself in Indian civilization. One would not go to the book for facts about Hinduism, but for a subjective, inside view of the religion, by a Hindu who appreciates its spiritual and human significance and its distinction from western modes of thought."

A L A Bkl 13:102 D '16

"Few in the West will accept all that the author brings together to make up his Hinduism, nor will they consider his ideal adequate; but the insistence upon spiritual culture is a message as worthy as it is timely, and many in the West will be glad to understand Hinduism at its best." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 2 '16 600w

"The defence of the caste system and of the Hindu treatment of women are aspects of the subject most interestingly discussed."

+ Cleveland p147 D '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16 20w

+ R of Rs 55:104 Ja '17 50w

St Louis 14:427 D '16

MALLET, CHRISTIAN. Impressions and experiences of a French trooper, 1914-1915. Il *$1 (3c) Dutton 940.91 16-11065

War from the inside which is a record of reactions to the stimuli of the early months of the conflict, and of the losing of individuality that it might be found in the passionate solidarity of the French nation. The narrative is valuable not so much as a picture of active service in the retreat from Belgium, the battle of the Marne and the attack at Loos as a portrayal of the undaunted spirit of patriotism which suffering and privation cannot quench when the honor of a nation is at stake.

+ Ath p292 Je '16 20w

+ Cath World 103:693 Ag '16 80w

"Present at the battle of Loos, he leaves nothing to the imagination in describing that ghastly field."

+ Ind 87:130 Jl 24 '16 150w

+ Lit D 53:313 Ag 5 '16 430w

+ Nation 103:158 Ag 17 '16 210w

N Y Br Lib News 3:91 Je '16

"The real thing" in experience and description of war. . . . Perhaps the most striking, continued impression the reader gets is that of the utter overwhelming of the individual. . . . M. Mallet is entirely frank. When he was afraid he says so and when superstitious panic gripped his nerves he does not attempt to explain or excuse. In his unvarnished account of his sensations and emotions on various occasions the psychologist will find rich material and the ordinary reader highly interesting passages."

+ N Y Times 21:248 Je 18 '16 470w

+ R of Rs 54:116 Jl '16 50w

"The fog of war covers his eyes, but every now and again there comes a rift and with it a Rembrandt vision. A vein of poetry runs through M. Mallet's pages; it connects impressions which seem to be set down just as they forced themselves upon his mind; it makes visible the terror of beaten men, and it reveals at the same time the spirit which enabled these men to return victoriously into the fight."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p281 Je 15 '16 830w

MALOT, HECTOR HENRI. Nobody's boy; tr. by Florence Crewe-Jones. Il *$1.25 Cupples & L. 16-17657

A translation of "Sans famille," a French classic used in schools and colleges. "Remi, the walf, is bought from his foster parents by Vitalis, now a strolling street performer, but once a singer of repute, in order to make him a part of a wandering show from which his master ekes out a precarious living. After a long series of hardships and thrilling adventures the boy gains a clew to his parentage, and at last finds his real mother, and his hard existence comes to an end, and there is joy and happiness in the companionship of faithful friends." (Springfield Republican)

"Florence Crewe-Jones, the translator, has retold the touching story in admirable English of a high literary quality and withal of a lucid simplicity. It could not have been better done." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:402 D '16 200w

+ Dial 61:479 N 30 '16 90w

N Y Br Lib News 3:152 O '16

"The art of the story is more impeccable before the child's fortune brightens, then things happen like a fairy tale. . . . The book is, none the less, to be commended to young and old, for its charm of style, its human interest, and its ennobling ideals."

+ N Y Times 21:527 N 26 '16 300w

Reviewed by R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 90:1408 O 21 '16 280w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 160w

MANIATES, BELLE KANARIS. Mildew manse. il $1 (2c) Little 16-1107

Mildew manse is a tumble-down house overrun with a happy-go-lucky family of children. Their name is Hazard, but the popular nickname for them is Haphazard, which suits them admirably from grandmother down to the twins. The story is told by the young girl who comes to live with them as a boarder. She is as light-hearted as they, but is a little more practical, and she helps to straighten out some of the family affairs. Mildew manse is covered with mortgages, first, second, blanket, and perhaps other varieties, and one of the amusing incidents of the story comes when the mortgage is foreclosed and the house sold without warning. Fortunately the new owner wants the land, not the house, and the Hazards are permitted to move it off to some lots which it is their luck to own, they continuing to live in the house during the process of moving. Three love stories add to the sentimental interest of the book.

"A series of sprightly letters, which readers, sentimentally inclined and not over insistent on probabilities, will enjoy."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:384 My '16

"She writes delightful letters to Daddy; letters filled with entertaining accounts of the doings of the Haphazard family and herself. There are little lessons in contentment as well as efficiency, and through all of them run several attractive love stories."

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ja 1 '16 300w

"A book which will while away a sunny hour with the least possible exertion on the part of the reader."

+ Ind 86:66 Ap 10 '16 150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:27 F '16

"'Mildew manse' is a pleasant rose-colored little story, written with a certain effect of youth and high spirits that is rather attractive."

+ N Y Times 21:5 Ja 2 '16 350w

"The form in which the story is told is not altogether satisfactory, as the letters grow rather thin toward the end."

— + Springfield Republican p15 Ja 23 '16 200w

MANLY, HAROLD PHILLIPS. Oxy-acetylene welding and cutting. il $1 Drake, F. J. 665.8 16-5348

"As a practical treatment of the several processes of welding this book is applicable to the needs of the workman. Because of its small size and the large number of subjects treated, the subject matter is brief and to the point; but not inadequate. Besides a thorough treatment of practical welding, the reader will find here for easy reference practical information on metals; alloys; gas generation, handling and use; welding instruments, parts and appliances; and other miscellaneous but useful data. The large number of illustrations employed have been carefully chosen and add materially to the value of the book."—Elec World

"A practical handbook, more inclusive than Swingle, and intended to replace it."

+ A L A Bkl 13:67 N '16

+ Cleveland p116 Ag '16 10w

+ Elec World 67:1116 My 13 '16 100w

"Written for the mechanic, but of such merit and service as to be worthy of a place in the library of many technically trained men."

+ Engin N 75:1135 Je 15 '16 100w

N Y Br Lib News 3:59 Ap '16

"A practical handbook fairly well illustrated."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p15 My '16 90w

+ Pittsburgh 21:353 Jl '16 10w

+ St Louis 14:435 D '16 10w

MANN, MARGARET. Subject headings for use in dictionary catalogs of juvenile books. $1.50 A. L. A. 025.3 16-3935

In her preface Miss Mann makes acknowledgment to Miss Elva S. Smith for her "valuable assistance in my attempt to correlate the work of the cataloger and the children's librarian." She states that in this work the subjects and references are those used in the dictionary catalog of juvenile books in the Carnegie library of Pittsburgh (of which she is chief cataloger), but the style and form have been made consistent with the A. L. A. list (prepared by Miss Mary J. Briggs), thus allowing additions to be taken from that volume without loss of uniformity. The opening pages explain and emphasize the principles involved in cataloging for children and contain Suggestions for handling subjects. Then follows a subdivision of those subjects into: Stories; Poetry with Holidays; Amusements; Science with Useful arts; Biography, History and Geography. Explanatory notes accompany each division. The List of subject headings occupies some 80 pages, blank pages being as usual left for additional entries. The work may be found especially useful in small public libraries and school libraries. It is less exhaustive and less expensive than the large A. L. A. list.

Pittsburgh 21:184 Ap '16

MANNERS, J. HARTLEY. Wreckage; with a preface by C. B. Towns. $1 Dodd 812 16-7527

One of the two leading characters in this three-act play is a young doctor who is devoting himself to the eradication of the drug evil, the other is one of his patients, a wreck, seemingly beyond all human aid. In the course of the drama it is revealed that the patient is the doctor's father, lost sight of for many years. Blame for the widespread evil is laid at the door of the medical profession but the author looks to the same source for its cure. The message of the play is a hopeful one, for the patient is cured and restored to manhood.

A L A Bkl 13:21 O '16

"Mr. Manners has made a mistake in departing from his earlier style of playwriting, and in joining the Brieux school of sociological drama. In 'Peg o' my heart,' still more in his shorter plays, 'Just as well' and 'Happiness,' he proved himself to be a real dramatist imbued with the instincts and the manner of the stage. In 'Wreckage' he deals not only with a far different subject but does it in a far inferior manner. 'Wreckage' is not a work of art; although dramatic in spots the progress of the plot and the suspense are not of dramatic but of sociological origin and interest. Even at that, his argument has been greatly weakened by the passage of the law restricting the use of drugs to doctors, limiting the amounts obtainable to individual cases and prohibiting the use of morphine by nurses except in special doses prescribed by the physician."

— + Boston Transcript p4 My 24 '16 250w

"The rôle of the modern physician in freeing the people from crime is a little overdone at times and most people would find Dr. Lanfear's speeches too long and too technical."

+ — Cath World 103:264 My '16 100w

"In so far as it exposes and assails a notorious and frightful social evil, it is entitled to respect as a serious drama, but it is lacking in sobriety, reflection and solidity. It suggests the plea of an adroit counsel, crammed by a special solicitor, rather than of a reformer sure of all his details." J. R. T.

MANNERS, J. HARTLEY—Continued

+ — Nation 103:381 O 19 '16 570w
N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

"A powerful drama of deep feeling and appalling significance. There are few people in the cast, no more than half a dozen of consequence, and the play is written with full measure of that skill and knowledge of the craft that Mr. Manners has shown heretofore in his well-known comedies. Probably no professional purveyor of plays could be induced to present 'Wreckage,' but any private association that would put it before the public would be doing a great service."

+ N Y Times 21:196 My 7 '16 480w

"His raw material comes from authentic sources. . . . It is a book of no special literary charm—but you can't lay it down till you have finished it!" G. S.

+ — Survey 36:590 S 9 '16 200w

MANNING, WILLIAM RAY. Early diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico. $2.25 (2c) Johns Hopkins 327.73 16-5716

A volume dealing with the diplomatic relations between our country and Mexico before 1830. This early period, the author says, has been given slight attention, students having passed over it in their interest in the period immediately preceding the break with Mexico. Some of the matters that come under consideration are the establishment of a permanent representative of Mexico in Washington, the reception of the first United States minister in Mexico, British influence in Mexico, the opening of the Santa Fé trail, commercial controversies, Texas and the boundary issue and the recall of Poinsett. The volume is made up of the Albert Shaw lectures on diplomatic history delivered at Johns Hopkins university in 1913. The author devotes fourteen pages to comments on authorities.

"Those who may venture to peruse this volume may as well be warned at the outset that its pages are as dry, and its contents as 'scientific' as any treatise on chemistry. But if Professor Manning fails to charm by the form in which he tells his story, he makes ample amends to those who have the courage and endurance to follow the tale to its conclusion. . . . The whole work exhibits abundant evidence of long-continued and fruitful researches among the archives in Washington and Mexico." G. L. Rives

+ Am Hist R 21:825 Jl '16 750w

+ A L A Bkl 13:149 Ja '17

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 6 '16 440w

Cleveland p107 Ag '16 30w

"The book rests on a very extensive study of diplomatic documents, but it would have gained by a more concise and unified treatment." E. A. B.

+ — Eng Hist R 21:673 O '16 250w

"The author brings out a great many facts that help to an understanding of subsequent relations between the two countries."

+ N Y Times 21:187 Ap 30 '16 70w

Pittsburgh 21:300 Je '16

+ R of Rs 53:501 Ap '16 150w

MARCHANT, JAMES. Alfred Russel Wallace; letters and reminiscences. Il $5 (3c) Harper 16-14317

"Mr. Marchant's volumes of letters and reminiscences are devoted largely to the intimacy that grew up between Darwin and Wallace." (N Y Times) "In addition to the Darwin letters and a few, mainly of domestic interest, in the first volume, Mr. Marchant prints in the second volume about eighty pages of correspondence relating to geographical distribution and other biological questions. This latter correspondence ranges over nearly half a century, but the correspondents are not very numerous, the names of Lyell, Hooker, Herbert Spencer, Professor Meldola, and Professor Poulton being those which occur most frequently." (The Times [London] Lit Sup) Parts 4-7 of the one-volume American edition contain letters grouped under Home life; Social and political views; Astronomy and spiritualism; Characteristics. The appendix consists of lists of Wallace's writings. The English edition is in two volumes.

+ A L A Bkl 13:32 O '16

Ath p295 Je '16 1850w

Boston Transcript p7 Jl 15 '16 800w

"It is by no means a mere abstract of the autobiography; it not only covers the last years of Wallace's life, subsequent to the publication of the larger work, but includes many new letters of great interest belonging to the earlier periods." T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 61:134 S 7 '16 1200w

+ Ind 88:164 O 23 '16 370w

+ Lit D 53:619 S 9 '16 650w

+ Nation 103:206 Ag 31 '16 320w

"He has made a selection from several thousands of letters, and has bound these together with a sympathetic and well-written biographical commentary. We wish, indeed, that there had been more commentary and fewer letters, for some of these seem to us quite trivial, and others lose in effect because their significance is not adequately indicated."

+ — Nature 97:337 Je 22 '16 950w

Reviewed by R. H. Lowie

+ New Repub 9:sup14 N 18 '16 1500w

"James Marchant's two-volume biography of the late Alfred Russel Wallace has just made its appearance in London, where it is attracting the attention due to the season's most important publication of the kind."

+ N Y Times 21:224 My 28 '16 400w

"Some of the most interesting of Mr. Marchant's pages are those in which he makes accessible the proceedings of the Linnaean society at its celebration in 1908 of the semi-centennial of the meeting at which was announced the co-discovery of the famous theory by Darwin and Wallace."

+ N Y Times 21:257 Je 25 '16 1850w

+ No Am 204:626 O '16 1200w

+ R of Rs 54:457 O '16 200w

"Mr. James Marchant has done his compilation as a thorough devotee, and not as a critic."

+ Sat R 121:442 My 6 '16 1650w

Springfield Republican p5 Jl 18 '16 550w

"The chief value of the book lies in the documents which are printed in it. Regarded as a biography, it invites comparison with Wallace's autobiography 'My life,' and does not show to any great advantage. There is little or no attempt at a critical study or estimate of Wallace's work."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p211 My 4 '16 2100w

MARCOSSON, ISAAC FREDERICK, and FROHMAN, DANIEL. Charles Frohman, manager and man. Il $2 (2c) Harper 792 16-22355

This biography, prefaced by an appreciation from the pen of James M. Barrie, is unusually rich in anecdote and story. Charles Frohman had a ready wit that found an outlet even in his telegrams, and his biographers have preserved many instances of it. Among the chapter headings are: Early hardships on the road; Picturesque days as minstrel manager; In the New York theatrical whirlpool; "Shenandoah" and the first stock company; John Drew and the Empire theater; Maude Adams as star; The rise of Ethel Barrymore; The conquest of the London stage.

+ A L A Bkl 13:159 Ja '17

+ Ath p599 D '16 50w

"Told directly, simply, yet affectionately." Stanhope Searles

+ Bookm 44:306 N '16 1000w

+ Dial 61:541 D 14 '16 210w

Lit D 53:1551 D 9 '16 140w

"A quite uncritical biography. . . . There is no line or word in it that might not have been issued by Mr. Frohman's own press agent during his life-time. . . . In this Barrie appreciation . . . there is more illumination of Frohman than in all the 400 or more pages for which it now serves as foreword."

+ N Y Times 21:527 N 26 '16 630w

"Splendid portraits add to the lasting value of the work, and a running stream of Frohman's own humor enhances the reader's enjoyment."

Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 90:2085 D 9 '16 800w

R of Rs 54:678 D '16 190w

"As for his services to the drama, the biographers, enthusiastic and eulogistic as they are, cannot convince us that they were of special value. Mr. Frohman had no great love for the 'high brow' drama, and had 'what was little less than a contempt for the avowedly academic.' This being so, we wish the authors had told us something more of Mr. Frohman's famous repertory experiment in London in 1910, and the impression it made upon him."

Spec 118:23 Ja 6 '17 300w

"The biography shows some evidence of rather hasty preparation of a great store of material. The style here and there rather suggests the flamboyant press notice, and perspective is not always observed in estimating the work of popular actors and actresses. Nevertheless the story is exceedingly interesting."

+ Springfield Republican p13 N 19 '16 650w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p547 N 16 '16 1050w

MARDEN, ORISON SWETT. Making life a masterpiece. *$1 (1½c) Crowell 174 16-11609

A volume of essays in the author's familiar hopeful vein. He writes of: Making life a masterpiece; Practical dreamers: Where your opportunity is; The triumph of common virtues; Masterfulness and physical vigor; Curing the curse of indecision; Unlocking your possibilities, etc.

A L A Bkl 13:146 Ja '17

"Like other books from the same pen, it brims over with optimism. . . . Mr. Marden teaches many a plain, common truth in simple but effective epigram."

+ Lit D 53:419 Ag 19 '16 130w

N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

Pittsburgh 21:449 O '16

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 9 '16 200w

MARDEN, ORISON SWETT. Victorious attitude. (Marden efficiency books) *$1 (1c) Crowell 170 16-9671

A victorious attitude is half the secret of success. Look successful and confident and sure of yourself and your way will be made easy. Look like a failure and you will fail. This is the message of Mr. Marden's first essay. Others follow in the same encouraging, optimistic vein. Some of the titles are: Making dreams come true; Attracting the poorhouse; The suggestion of inferiority; The triumph of health ideals; Preparing the mind for sleep; How to stay young; Our oneness with infinite life.

+ Ath p473 O '16 80w

"All must admit its high sincerity, and feel the uplift of the optimism and altruism which underlie each paragraph. The essence of its teaching is that phase of mental science, which to-day called 'New thought' is historically as old as the theories of Plato."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 120w

Ind 86:29 Ap 3 '16 30w

"Practical and breezy."

+ N Y Times 21:236 Je 4 '16 60w

+ Spec 117:632 N 18 '16 140w

"There are many people in every community who need just such encouragement to constructive thinking. There is a certain jauntiness and polished diffuseness to his style that carries the reader along page after page."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 150w

MARDEN, ORISON SWETT, and MACGRAIL, JOSEPH FRANCIS. Selling things. *$1 (1½c) Crowell 658 16-15138

This book by Mr. Marden has been prepared with the assistance of Joseph F. MacGrail, instructor in salesmanship and efficiency for many large sales and industrial organizations. Among the subjects considered are: The man who can sell things; Training the salesman; Making a favorable impression; The ability to talk well; How to get attention; Tact as a friend-winner and business-getter; The force of cheerful expectancy.

Ind 88:331 N 20 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:136 S '16

+ R of Rs 54:572 N '16 70w

MARGUERITTE, PAUL, and MARGUERITTE, VICTOR. Strasbourg; an episode of the Franco-German war; tr. by S. G. Tallentyre. *$1.35 Dutton (Eng ed A16-116)

"This fine and terrible story of the Franco-Prussian war is one of the four episodes which form 'Les braves gens.'" (Spec) "It depicts in the story of two Strasbourg families not only the trials of the siege of Strasbourg by the Germans in 1870, but also the rending of ancient ties, the shattering of old ideals, the bitter sacrifices made for the sake of two contrasted forms of loyalty to France." (Ath)

"The translation was undertaken at the instance of Mr. Stanley J. Weyman, who regards the story as mirroring with felicity the homely life in the old frontier province of Alsace—of which Strasbourg was the key—the falling stroke of war, and the tragic severance of the province from the body of France in 1871."

+ Ath 1915,2:247 O 9 130w

"Written many years before the outbreak of the present war, the book has just been translated into English by S. G. Tallentyre. The tale is terrible yet beautiful in its portrayal of courage and hopeless patriotism."

+ Ind 86:30 Ap 3 '16 70w

+ Nation 102:622 Je 8 '16 300w

N Y Br Lib News 3:27 F '16

+ Spec 115:796 D 4 '15 30w

MARK, HARRY THISELTON. Factors in conduct. *3s 6d T. Fisner Unwin, London 170 (Eng ed 15-16798)

"As a companion volume to the author's 'The unfolding of personality,' the discussion passes on from a psychological view of behavior there presented to an ethical and metaphysical view. The real aim of the book is to reaffirm the spiritualistic interpretation of the universe in modern philosophy. The author seems to identify himself with both schools now emphasizing features of Bergson's and again those of Hegel's argument."—Boston Transcript

"The importance of the work lies in its specific prophecies. The evolutionist will modify the future conception of sin but the intuitionist will also leave his work. Through psychology we shall correct our mistaken views of the relation between our personality and that of God."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 8 '16 150w

Pittsburgh 21:100 Mr '16 60w

+ Sat R 119:428 Ap 24 '15 1550w

"The faults of the book are those which are common to almost all work of this kind: there is a tendency to involved sentences which arrive at no very evident goal and an extravagant love of Latin words. If Professor Mark had not, by their use, produced a book full of care and interest, we would plead for a holiday for all such words as 'personality' and 'atmosphere'; for they are sadly over-worked."

+ Spec 115:514 O 16 '15 170w

MARKS, LIONEL SIMEON, ed. Mechanical engineers' handbook. il *$5 McGraw 621.3 16-12915

"Although this handbook is based upon the well-known German standard work by Hütte, in only a few of the more theoretical sections

MARKS, LIONEL SIMEON, ed.—Continued
is the original text followed at all closely. The greater part of the book, especially that dealing with engineering practice, is wholly new, and is contributed by specialists of this country, who cover their particular fields in contributions to each of the fifteen main sections into which the book is divided.—Engin Rec

"It includes some material not found in Kent (9th ed. Booklist, 12:302, Mr '16), the treatment in some portions is more detailed."

+ A L A Bkl 13:108 D '16

+ Cleveland p150 D '16 30w

Engin N 76:747 O 19 '16 1200w

"It undoubtedly presents the most comprehensive and authoritative data on all subjects connected with the work of mechanical engineering in condensed, tabular form, put in excellent shape typographically, and with especially careful attention to details, such as references and listed notation in mathematical discussions. A very comprehensive index occupies 56 pages."

+ Engin Rec 74:209 Ag 12 '16 400w

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 J1 '16

"Well provided with illustrations and bibliographical references. A mine of information for the engineer or the technical librarian. . . . Reviewed in Gas Engineer, July, 1916; in Canadian Engineer, June 29, 1916; in Mining and Scientific Press, July 15, 1916; in American Machinist, July 13, 1916, p. 87; in Foundry, Aug., 1916, p. 331; in Gas Age, Aug. 1, 1916, p. 118."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p13 Ag '16 110w

+ Pittsburgh 21:535 N '16 40w

+ Pratt p18 O '16 30w

MARQUIS, DON (ROBERT PERRY). Cruise of the Jasper B. *$1.30 (2c) Appleton 16-10724

The Jasper B. never got outside the little canal on the south shore of Long Island where Cleggett first found her, but it is doubtful if even the China seas to which he had designed to sail her could have abounded more plentifully in adventure. Clement J. Cleggett had been a drab-colored copy reader on a New York morning paper up to the time when Uncle Tom's legacy fell into his hands. The telegram announcing the good news came to him while he sat at his desk pursuing his routine duties. He became a changed man at once, rose, told the managing editor what he thought of him, and went forth into a new world. The discovery of the Jasper B. lying derelict on the south shore of Long Island is the first step in a series of fantastic adventures involving gunmen, anarchist poets, militant suffragettes, famous detectives, Flatbush spinsters and the English aristocracy.

"Utter and amusing nonsense and to be taken as such."

+ A L A Bkl 13:85 N '16

"The adventures of Cleggett have a delightfully Stocktonian flavour." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:620 Ag '16 270w

"The story seems to be a curious mixture of a romance of Dumas and a detective story of Conan Doyle. The ending is perhaps the most amusing part of the book."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ag 19 '16 300w

"The plot while wildly bizarre, is woven with much technical skill and no little aplomb. Its very improbability is a compelling feature of the book."

+ Ind 87:33 J1 3 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:86 Je '16

"Although the novel is not entirely without amusing moments, it is a structure which wobbles badly, making the reader feel, with some exasperation, that the author does not—to use a slangy but expressive phrase—know where he is at. There is an attempt at character-drawing in the sketch of Cleggett, but the other people in the book are all conventional farce-comedy types."

— N Y Times 21:283 J1 16 '16 620w

"Delicious burlesque on familiar types of the story of adventure and mystery."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 170w

MARQUIS, DON (ROBERT PERRY). Hermione and her little group of serious thinkers. *$1.25 Appleton 817 16-19828

"The superficial type of woman who thinks herself a serious thinker was discovered and 'exposed' long ago by Molière in a delightful comedy. Her latest discoverer and inquisitor—in a very different vein—is the sarcastic and sprightly Don Marquis. We may laugh at Hermione and her little group of serious thinkers, where we would not dare to let the corners of our eyes twitch at real Hermiones under pain of everlasting banishment from their fad-filled 'salons.'"—Springfield Republican

"Good satire and good fun to read aloud here and there."

+ A L A Bkl 13:125 D '16

+ Nation 103:468 N 16 '16 270w

"This is very clever. But has not the author failed to realize that the very trait in Hermione at which he would have us smile, the shallowness that is so easily plumbed and so soon results in boredom, is also an argument against 188 pages? Hermione is interesting—for a time. But a book-length Hermione is too much."

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 29 '16 400w

MARRIOTT, CHARLES. Davenport. *$1.35 (1½c) Lane 16-14843

A study of dual personality as found in Harry Belsire, the awkward, and, in some respects, commonplace son of a Gloucestershire clergyman. The action takes place in London where the young man is employed by a photographer. The time is 1908-1914. Harry expresses the second half of his nature in writings which he signs with the name of Davenport, and Davenport is described by one of the characters, as "a composite of what we all feel before God and are afraid or incapable of saying." Nevertheless Harry believes Davenport to be a separate entity and a friend. The two personalities are united partly through use of the planchette, partly through hypnotism just before the war. Belsire accepts the facts. He offers himself at the war office as interpreter and is killed at the battle of the Marne.

+ Ath 1915,2:243 O 9 400w

+ Bookm 44:64 S '16 650w

+ Boston Transcript p6 J1 19 '16 1500w

+ Ind 87:315 Ag 23 '16 40w

"Perhaps the most remarkable book he has written, though this, with 'The intruding angel' and 'Now' in mind, is a bold estimate. At any rate, it is one of his very best. Not only is the story of a strongly compelling character with its slow piling up of incident, its steadily increasing tension, but the art, the wit, the exquisite touches by which, in a stabbing flash, you get a deep insight into the very substance of his men and women, these express the height of his power as a writer. . . . It has a love story of singular sweetness, though all that is usually put into a relation of love is left out."

+ N Y Times 21:281 J1 16 '16 1500w

+ Outlook 114:615 N 15 '16 130w

"A remarkable work, one that for charm and suggestiveness can hardly be surpassed."

+ R of Rs 54:346 S '16 220w

"Mr. Marriott handles a strange theme with sanity and direction. But this is not to say that his book fails to hold the reader. It is rich in surprise and suspense, in curiously minute observation, in quiet irony and friendly detachment."

+ Spec 116:23 Ja 1 '16 930w

"It is a strikingly conceived story that has many phases out of the ordinary, as its literary character. But the average reader bent upon following the narrative, is likely to find his interest lagging during the author's frequent digressions."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 13 '16 470w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 90w

MARRIOTT, JOHN ARTHUR RANSOME, and ROBERTSON, CHARLES GRANT. Evolution of Prussia, the making of an empire. maps *$1.75 Oxford 943 15-25722

"Messrs. Marriott and Grant Robertson describe their volume as 'a preliminary attempt to fill a conspicuous and somewhat discreditable gap in our historical literature.' Excellent biographies and monographs on special periods exist, but they are not aware of any work which fulfils the purpose they have had in view—viz., to set forth 'the rise and development of Brandenburg-Prussia and the later Prussianization of Germany under the Hohenzollerns as a connected whole and with due regard to the claims of historical scholarship.'"—Spec

"This is the first of a series of 'Histories of the belligerents' planned by the Clarendon press. The volume ought to prove a useful introduction to the study of Prussian-German history—a field where short works in English are scarce—and it affords a good brief background to one aspect of the present war. It is more concise and interpretative than Henderson's 'Short history,' more consistent and readable than the piecemeal chapters in the 'Cambridge modern history,' and more extensive in treatment than Priest's 'Germany since 1740.'" S. B. Fay
+ Am Hist R 21:799 J1 '16 700w

+ A L A Bkl 12:378 My '16

"We call special attention to the chapter on 'The remaking of Prussia' while that on the Congress of Vienna is most relevant to the problems of to-morrow. But when all is said, most readers will find their chief interest in those chapters which come into close relation with affairs of to-day and here many things are admirably said. Two examples of the conspicuous fairness of the authors are their tribute to the traditional religious tolerance of the Hohenzollerns, and their treatment of the first Emperor William."

+ Ath p69 F '16 1700w

"They have produced a book well arranged on the general lines indicated long since by Droysen and now enlarged by a further section, and, apart from a few excrescences that cannot be left wholly unnoticed, attractively written. A certain inequality of treatment was, in the nature of the case unavoidable. . . . Although fault might be found with more than one statement in this volume as too sweeping it is only just to say that a tolerably close testing of the accuracy of this volume in points of detail has given very satisfactory results." A. W. Ward
+ Eng Hist R 31:325 Ap '16 700w

"A valuable book in a time of need. No other English treatment of the subject shows equal learning and philosophic insight. Especially good are the chapters on Frederick the Great and the remaking of Prussia under Stein, 1807-1815. Indeed we may wait long before the appearance of another book which presents so well within three hundred pages the origin and growth of Prussia down to 1848. The maps amply fulfil their purpose, 'the elucidation of the text'; the bibliographical references are usually well chosen and the index is very carefully prepared."

+ Nation 102:260 Mr 2 '16 630w

"The authors of this book are unafraid. Not only do they write as scientific historians, without prejudice and with searching penetration, but they understand the growing organism whose evolution they relate and explain."

+ Sat R 120:497 N 20 '15 1550w

"Criticism is not wanting, but the tone of the work is so dispassionate and the recognition of the great qualities of our enemies so unstinted, that it forms an admirable illustration of the right way of applying the maxim fas est et ab hoste doceri to historical investigation."

+ Spec 115:793 D 4 '15 1250w

MARSHALL, ARCHIBALD. Watermeads. *$1.50 (1c) Dodd 16-19459

A quiet story of an English country house. Watermeads, the home of the Conways, is a delightful old house, but the Conways have no money to keep it in repair. Valuable family portraits are sacrificed to keep things going. Nevertheless the atmosphere of Watermeads is one of warmth, hospitality and happiness. Readers of other novels by the author need not be told how well he does a thing of this kind. There are three youthful love stories to give the book brightness, but its outstanding feature is the character of Sydney Conway, who, having spoiled his prospects in life by an unsuitable marriage, bears with the foibles of his wife with unvarying tact, patience and humour.

+ A L A Bkl 13:125 D '16

Ath p481 O '16 90w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

Bookm 44:389 D '16 660w

"His principal purpose is to show in story form the social relations of certain groups of people, to explain their ways of life, to analyze their motives, both individual and collective, and to emphasize the fact that they are part of the wonderfully intricate English social system which is the outgrowth of centuries. . . . Again has Mr. Marshall made it evident that he is a master of the novel that takes the form of a family chronicle." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 7 '16 1300w

+ Cleveland p128 N '16 60w

"I have read all his novels, and have never finished one without wishing it were longer, without wishing that we could follow his people farther. To read his books is exactly like entering into intimate relations with people whom we should like to know in real life—not at all because of their social position, but because of their real worth. . . . All of Mr. Marshall's novels in their quiet, artistic beauty are really an attack on that citadel of stupidity—Prejudice." W. L. Phelps

+ Dial 61:197 S 21 '16 700w

+ Ind 88:464 D 11 '16 140w

"It is difficult to think of Mr. Marshall except as a sort of reincarnation of Trollope. Not only the point of view, but the very gait and gesture of the master appear again here."

+ Nation 103:565 D 14 '16 340w

"There is the book's distinction. Mr. Marshall has the gift of transmuting the commonplace into literature."

+ New Repub 8:334 O 28 '16 350w

+ N Y Times 21:530 D 3 '16 650w

"If Mr. Marshall intends to give a series of stories to the inhabitants of 'Watermeads,' the readers who want to hear more of their adventures will request the author to remove Mrs. Conway, by demise or other disaster, from the next and all subsequent novels. To speak quite frankly, this lady is a bore."

+ Spec 118:23 Ja 6 '17 130w

"A book to be placed on the shelf and read again and again."

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 29 '16 580w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p512 O 26 '16 270w

MARTIN, ARTHUR ANDERSON. Surgeon in khaki. il *$3 Longmans 16-6326

"Dr. Arthur Anderson Martin brings home vividly to his readers what the early days in France meant to the British troops. A surgeon from New Zealand, he volunteered for service and was sent out with the first reinforcements to the 'contemptible little army.' He describes the landing at Le Havre and the confusion that reigned there, then the hasty change of base to St. Nazaire . . . and the battles of the Marne and the Aisne. Next he tells of the daring manoeuvre which brought the British army from the centre to the left flank of the allied armies, and the dash north to establish communication with the Belgians resting on the sea."—N Y Times

+ Ind 85:283 F 21 '16 100w

+ Lit D 52:736 Mr 18 '16 200w

"He has plenty of adventures to tell and he brings out clearly the privations of the front and the tremendous difficulties under which the surgeons and ambulances have to work. But his book is more than a lively narrative. As an experienced surgeon in civil life, he saw a good deal to criticize in the way in which the Army medical service was run, and he has not feared to point out the defects."

MARTIN, ARTHUR ANDERSON—Continued

+ N Y Times 21:37 Ja 30 '16 400w

Pittsburgh 21:298 Je '16 80w

"Dr. Martin writes with photographic brilliance, and his disconnected notes of 'things seen' are exceedingly readable. The book is full of picturesque detail as well as of medical notes, which should be of great value to professional readers. It is one of the best books that we have read about the fighting with which it deals."

+ Spec 115:sup604 N 6 '15 220w

MARTIN, GEOFFREY. Modern chemistry and its wonders; a popular account of some of the more remarkable recent advances in chemical science for general readers. il $2 Van Nostrand 540 A16-216

"We have here a well-illustrated volume of 350 pages, and not at all resembling a science primer, whose opening pages are entitled 'The wonderland of modern chemistry.' Surely an alluring title! Following are chapters on 'The romance of some simple nitrogen compounds,' 'The romance of explosives,' 'The romance of the hydrocarbons,' 'The romance of sugar,' 'The romance of alcohol,' 'The romance of coal tar,' and 'The romance of common salt.' Other chapter headings are less fascinating, as 'The mystery of the periodic law' and 'The radio elements and the periodic law.' There are illustrations in abundance."—Boston Transcript

"Supplements the author's 'Triumphs and wonders of modern chemistry' and is very different in content and treatment from Sadler's 'Chemistry of familiar things.'"

+ A L A Bkl 12:45 Jl '16 (Reprinted from Wis Lib Bull)

"The author does not hesitate to run counter to the prejudices of professional scientists against popular books of science. He urges that such books serve a most worthy purpose and carry to the masses an idea of the great importance of science to the state. . . . In how far the author has succeeded is well illustrated in the romance of sugar."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 26 '16 350w

+ Nature 97:257 My 25 '16 200w

MARTIN, GEORGE MADDEN (MRS. ATTWOOD R. MARTIN). Emmy Lou's road to grace; being a little pilgrim's progress. il $1.30 Appleton 16-20436

"Emmy Lou has come back, not in some grown up form in which her readers would scarcely recognize her, but as the same child, slow, faithful, always endeavoring, whom we met in her schooldays. These new stories are intended to supplement the old stories. It is the same child meeting other problems than those of the schoolroom. . . . In this book the author, while not departing from her premise that the methods of teaching which she showed us were wrong for the average child, has extended her premise to reveal how difficult is the pathway of such a child, because of the fact that not only at school but also at home she must meet so many, many things which she does not understand."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 13:177 Ja '17

+ Boston Transcript p7 O 21 '16 1050w

"To most persons, not only birth but maturity is a 'forgetting.' It is a rare soul and now and then who goes on remembering. Kenneth Grahame does, and Mark Twain and Booth Tarkington. So does George Madden Martin." A. H. Rice

+ N Y Times 21:462 O 29 '16 320w

"Has all of Mrs. Martin's earlier book's charming ingenuousness, delicate humor and sympathetic understanding of a little girl's mind and heart." R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 90:338 S 16 '16 680w

"A real contribution to the science of religious education."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 9 '16 160w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 80w

MARTIN, GEORGE MADDEN (MRS. ATTWOOD R. MARTIN). Warwickshire lad. il $1 Appleton 16-6289

"With light touch the author has sketched a number of incidents that might have belonged, but probably did not, to Shakespeare's biography from the age of five up to 18, when he went to London to earn his living, and, as it happened, his unfading laurels."—Springfield Republican

+ A L A Bkl 13:228 F '17

"One might reasonably expect from the author of 'Selina' and 'Emmy Lou,' if not subtle suggestions of future greatness, at least some points of characterization that would outline a distinctive personality instead of the commonplace and abundant type which she presents under the name of Will Shakespeare. The tone of the book is pleasant, however; it is presented in attractive form and is prettily illustrated."

+ Cath World 103:400 Je '16 110w

"It has no plot, is rather a biography in story guise, but makes life in Stratford and in the Shakespeare household very real."

+ Ind 86:144 Ap 24 '16 40w

"Brief though the little tale is—it has only a hundred wide-margined pages—the author contrives to give also an outstanding portrayal in bold, simple lines of the characters of both of Shakespeare's parents."

+ N Y Times 21:199 My 7 '16 200w

+ R of Rs 54:347 S '16 100w

"They are juvenile stories, if you please, but are quite as good for older people with young hearts. The decadent family fortunes are apparent and Ann Hathaway is here in as attractive a light as ever anyone has sketched her."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 190w

Wis Lib Bull 12:187 Ap '16 30w

MARTIN, HELEN REIMENSNYDER (MRS. FREDERIC C. MARTIN). Her husband's purse. il $1.35 (1½c) Doubleday 16-6759

One of Mrs. Martin's characteristic stories of the Pennsylvania Dutch. Margaret Berkeley, a gently-bred southern girl, marries Daniel Leltzel of New Munich, Pa. He is a distinguished lawyer and a rich man, but his ideas of the position of women are those of the middle ages. There has been nothing in Margaret's experience to prepare her for his home, his sisters, and for New Munich, generally, but she makes the best of it. She is a woman of spirit and is not at all cowed by her husband's domineering methods. When later circumstances conspire to give her an independent income, her position in her husband's family is altered. The whole story is a plea for the economic independence of women.

"The husband and sisters are almost too mean to be true."

+ A L A Bkl 12:431 Je '16

"A satire, without bitterness and full of human interest."

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 27 '16 230w

"As a story the book is very entertaining. It will also make a successful play. As a study of what might have been a great character, a needed inspiration to the young people of our day, it falls short."

+ Cath World 104:121 O '16 660w

"Daniel Leltzel is a caricature of the stage niggard, an utterly unreal bogey of a man; and it is impossible to retain sympathy for a heroine who could endure him for a minute."

+ Nation 102:544 My 18 '16 320w

"The book is amusing, and the characters of Daniel's sisters and of Mrs. Congressman Ockreider are neatly drawn."

+ N Y Times 21:118 Ap 2 '16 400w

Reviewed by M. K. Reely

Pub W 89:1028 Mr 13 '16 400w

Wis Lib Bull 12:322 Jl '16 50w

MARTIN, JOHN, and MARTIN, PRESTONIA MANN (MRS. JOHN MARTIN). Feminism; its fallacies and follies. $1.50 (2c) Dodd 396 16-9391

In part 1 of this volume Mr. Martin develops a doctrine of "humanism," which he opposes to

"feminism" as he understands it. "Feminism is individualistic; humanism is social. Feminism is female anarchism; it would cut woman loose from the family. . . . Humanism would cherish the family and attack the poverty, the weakness, the vice which undermine the family. As the key word of feminism is independence, the keyword of humanism is social obligation." Mrs. Martin, who writes Book 2, has no definite constructive program; her position is "anti." It is based on the belief that "it is a necessary condition for the survival of our race that the love of children be kept alive in woman's breast," and she attacks woman suffrage and all other movements in which she sees a menace to a natural (but apparently shallow rooted) instinct. The four articles by Mr. Martin that appeared recently in the Survey are incorporated in Book 1.

A L A Bkl 12:455 J1 '16

— Boston Transcript p4 My 17 '16 1200w

Cath World 103:701 Ag '16 50w

+ — Cleveland p133 N '16 70w

"Take a baker's dozen blatant ills of the sweated trades, add to them the vagaries of extremists among feminists, throw in greed and commercialism, infant mortality, prostitution, graft at the polls, and the passing of the home for full measure, call it feminism, then wonder why your cake is dough; and withal you have the mental process revealed by Mr. and Mrs. John Martin in their volume on 'Feminism.'"

— Dial 60:557 Je 8 '16 400w

"A curious compound of sane judgment and willful misapprehension of their subject. . . . We have no criticism to offer upon many of these incisive and suggestive pages. There is much hard sense in them. The reader may be trusted to sift the wheat from the chaff."

— + Ind 86:302 My 22 '16 450w

"No one could speak of woman with more respect and appreciation than Mr. Martin, but he shows up the fallacies and follies of the ultrafeminists and has much to offer that would enlighten the impulsive sentimentalist. Mrs. Martin's conclusions are, mainly, the same as her husband's, but she reaches them in a lighter vein, tho they are no less seriously meant. Both make a strong plea for sanity and deliberation and are worth careful consideration."

+ Lit D 52:1713 Je 10 '16 150w

"Unless minds meet there cannot be discussion, and the Martins have not given us minds to meet. What Shaw said of the British public is true of the Martins. 'They are everywhere united by the bond of their common nonsense, their invincible determination to tell and be told lies about everything, and their power of dealing acquiescently and successfully with facts whilst keeping them, like disaffected slaves, rigidly in their proper place; that is, outside the moral consciousness.'"

— New Repub 6:322 Ap 22 '16 1750w

"Too argumentative to take rank as a sociological study. The extremist doctrines of the feminists are largely repudiated by responsible suffragists already. . . . Mr. Martin's part of the book is frank and intelligent, and his plain-speaking will be of some service in counterbalancing the teachings of misguided individuals among the feminists. Mrs. Martin writes gracefully, and touches on many problems of the home, such as servants and governesses. The two authors are not suffragists."

— + Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 480w

"Mrs. Martin's half of the book is entertaining, often unwittingly, and contains some constructive ideas; as a whole, however it places women on an unwarranted low mental level and does not count on any advance in their intelligence. The chapter 'Votes for women' does not add anything of value to the negative side of the question."

— + Wis Lib Bull 12:263 Je '16 120w

MARTIN, MARCUS J. Wireless transmission of photographs. il $1 Marconi pub. 778 (Eng ed 16-17752)

"This book is intended largely as a guide for experimenters who wish to work on the transmission of pictures by radio. The author helps the inventor by outlining the most important steps in the development to date. A moderate knowledge of radio-telegraphic technology is assumed on the part of the reader, though many of the principles are partially explained in the course of describing the radio-photographic system. . . . There are five chapters, successively on introductory topics, transmitters, receiving apparatus, synchronizing and driving mechanisms, and the telephotograph, which is a system devised by the author. Appendices on the characteristics of selenium and on the production of metal prints for radio transmission of photographs occupy the last fifteen pages of the book. The illustrations are nearly all diagrammatic."—Elec World

+ Army and Navy Journal 53:1513 J1 22 '16 30w

"A number of misprints or technical errors occur, such as the reference, on page 29, to a mercury interrupter giving 70,000 breaks per second. . . . The volume appears to be a good summary of certain experiments, and is undoubtedly interesting. The general tone is rather too optimistic."

+ — Elec World 67:1484 Je 24 '16 270w

"The book is useful as giving a general survey of the present state of the problem and some guide towards future experimentation. It should be remarked, incidentally, that the sensitiveness of the Einthoven galvanometer is greatly understated." E. E. F.

— + Nature 97:258 My 25 '16 400w

+ N Y Times 21:293 J1 23 '16 40w

"A book for readers having a thorough knowledge of wireless transmission. Well illustrated and written in a clear and interesting manner." E. W. B.

+ St Louis 15:14 Ja '17 20w

MARTINDALE, CYRIL CHARLIE. Life of Monsignor Robert Hugh Benson. 2v il *$5 Longmans 16-11068

"The official biography of Robert Hugh Benson is a work of formidable proportions. . . . It is not—like so many biographies of men of letters—a mere chronological record padded with excerpts from diaries and letters. It is a most elaborate life story, dealing not only with actions, but with the motives of actions, dealing not only with Robert Hugh Benson's reactions to the world, but with (if the phrase may be used) the world's reactions to Robert Hugh Benson."—N Y Times

+ A L A Bkl 13:81 O '16

"A book about a celibate, but not a book without a heroine—this is one of the many amusing and contradictory things we encounter in this full biography of Monsignor Benson. That the heroine is his own mother, and that, moreover, she is of the class most of all disdained by De Quincey—bishops' wives—adds to the pleasure of the reader's recognition of her."

+ Ath p274 Je '16 1150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

"Perhaps the main reason why Monsignor Benson's life is now so interesting to all the world is that it was so intensely interesting to himself. . . . He was, above all, interested in America."

+ N Y Times 21:201 My 14 '16 1900w

"Hugh Benson requires an interpreter of the most sensitive insight to display his nature to the world in all its infinite variety. Such a one has been found for him in Father Martindale, a man of keen judgment and extraordinarily broadminded charity, a man who is able to speak the truth without harshness and to discuss religious difficulties with a gentle decision which can offend no one. Condensed from Outlook (London), 1916."

+ Pittsburgh 21:422 O '16 110w

"For several reasons one is inclined to say that the most delightful section of this book is the one dealing with Hugh Benson's childhood. Father Martindale understands boys in a very rare and peculiar way. . . . This is Hugh Benson as he lived. . . . All his nobility of purpose, all his faithful service, all his unselfishness, find a place in these volumes. His letters make a great part of the record, and for the rest he could have asked no better biographer than Father Martindale, a writer whose work on its literary merit, deserves a circle of readers much wider than it has yet gained."

MARTINDALE, CYRIL CHARLIE—Continued

+ Sat R 121:590 Je 17 '16 1450w

"The ordinary reader will find much to appreciate. Even the clumsiness of the author's style cannot disguise his obvious desire to be fair to the church out of which his 'convert' had passed, and it may be at once acknowledged that, while this large memoir is undoubtedly a tract, it is a well-mannered tract."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p198 Ap 27 '16 870w

MARVIN, DWIGHT EDWARDS, comp. Curiosities in proverbs. *$1.75 Putnam 398.9 16-4877

Proverbs about proverbs, Singular proverbs, Obscure proverbs, Bible proverbs, Christmas and Easter proverbs, Weather proverbs, Wit and humour in proverbs and Rhyming proverbs are some of the classes into which the compiler groups the interesting material of his book. He says: "No attempt has been made to add another collection of proverbs to the large number that have been prepared by students of antiquity, but rather to take advantage of their researches and select and classify a sufficient number of authenticated adages, maxims, aphorisms, phrases, and other popular dicta, to show the forms and grouping to which the common sayings of men are liable, and to add thereto such explanations, notes, and quotations as may be useful or interesting." (Introd.)

"Reference books so largely contain the easily accessible to the neglect of the exceptional, that such a volume as 'Curiosities in proverbs' deserves a prominent place in the library of every reader and literary worker. Into it Dwight Edwards Marvin has gathered a 'collection of unusual adages, maxims, aphorisms, phrases and other popular dicta from many lands' and he has classified, arranged and annotated them in a manner that, with an index, makes any one of them easily available." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 F 19 '16 550w

+ Dial 61:32 Je 22 '16 60w

N Y Times 21:203 My 14 '16 30w

+ R of Rs 55:214 F '17 60w

+ Spec 117:347 S 23 '16 730w

"It seems a big task to have dug up from some 70 languages—even in translation—this great mass of proverbial sayings. . . . A generous index helps the student, while the chapter classification by subjects proves diverting for the casual user of the volume."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 230w

MARVIN, ELEANOR. Mary Allen. il *$1.25 (3c) Doubleday 16-6761

Mary Allen's winter in a New York art school is described in this story for girls. There is little plot; the story is concerned with Mary's pleasures and friendships and with a prize competition in which she is successful, winning a scholarship that means a year of study in Paris.

"The story is like many put together for girls of the boarding-school age—neither stirring nor harmful. If the saying be founded on fact, 'Tell me what you read, and I will tell you what you are,' perfect and inexpressive gentility alone could be deduced from a continued curriculum of 'Mary Allen' and its kind."

+ — Boston Transcript p25 Mr 29 '16 130w

"A rather pretty, very conventional little story for girls."

+ N Y Times 21:199 My 7 '16 190w

MARY BLANCHE, SISTER. Idyls and sketches. *$1 Kenedy 814 16-10480

"One of the first of American critics to write appreciatively and understandingly of Francis Thompson was a religious—Sister M. Blanche of the Sisters of the Holy Cross. At a time when his first book was being rather timorously praised, she contributed to the pages of Ave Maria a review, in which she unhesitatingly called him 'a great poet,' and selected for especial praise those poems which we now find to have best stood the test of the years. Sister M. Blanche's study of Francis Thompson is reprinted in her 'Idyls and sketches.' The book contains several other literary essays of distinction, those on 'Brands of humor' and 'The humorist of Sunnyside' being particularly good. There are also some twenty essays on miscellaneous subjects."—N Y Times

+ Cath World 103:826 S '16 60w

"She attempts, in prose, much the same task as the late John Banister Tabb attempted in verse. The result is a book of undeniable charm."

+ N Y Times 21:369 S 17 '16 180w

MARZIALS, ADA M. Stories for the story hour from January to December. il *$1.25 (2½c) Dodd A16-1511

This is a book of original stories, not a compilation of old ones. The author, who is English and evidently a teacher of small children, has worked them out in her own experience with the little people. She says, "The stories in this book are what the children call 'treat' stories—that is to say, they do not aim at teaching, but merely at the deepening of sympathy between teacher and taught, and for the pure enjoyment of both parties. Nearly all were suggested by some particular occasion." Some were suggested by old proverbs or rimes, the first, for instance, from the saying, "The year does nothing else but open and shut"; the second from "Cobber! Cobber! mend my shoe; Get it done by half-past two." They are arranged to follow the months of the year.

+ A L A Bkl 13:184 Ja '17

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:405 D '16 70w

+ N Y Times 21:572 D 24 '16 40w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p286 Je 15 '16 70w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Captain Margaret. *$1.35 (1c) Macmillan A16-802

This early story by Masefield is a tale of the sea and of a ship, the Broken Heart. Her captain, Charles Margaret, is a dreamer and an idealist who sets out to found an English colony on the isthmus of Darien; for at the time of the story the new world in the West still offers to men a wide field for adventure. Captain Margaret has loved and loved vainly. He has chosen this undertaking as a means of forgetting, but by strange chance Olivia, the lady of his love, and her newly wedded husband become passengers on his ship. Tom Stukeley, the husband, is a fugitive from justice; this his wife does not know and the men of the Broken Heart contrive to keep it from her knowledge. Their devotion to her even prompts them to swallow insults from Stukeley, who from the beginning threatens disaster to the voyage, inciting the men to mutiny and at the last turning traitor. Olivia and Captain Margaret alike meet disaster in the voyage. For Olivia's faith in her husband is wrecked and Captain Margaret's expedition fails, but, Stukeley having met his just end, there is promise of happiness to come out of their failure.

+ A L A Bkl 12:483 Jl '16

"It is nothing better than a romantic 'thriller' in the conventional sense, Masefield's name may carry it into many hands, but no admirer of his will read it without disappointment." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 43:414 Je '16 330w

"Being by Mr. Masefield, the book is full of feeling for the beauty and the brutality of life, and the beauty also of sea and land. It is not an ordinary story of adventure, or an ordinary story of realism. It is were either, I should pick flaws in both. But as it is no ordinary story, but instead a poet's story, I think the best thing to do is to try to look at the thing as he looks at it." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 60:509 My 25 '16 510w

+ Ind 87:32 J1 3 '16 40w

"A tale of adventurous life at sea, well told and quite exciting."

+ Lit D 52:1464 My 20 '16 200w

"Did the author of 'The widow in the Bye street' write this romance with his tongue in his cheek, simply saying to himself that it was good enough for that kind of thing, and not worth bothering too much about, or did he try to do something sincere in its kind—and fail?"

— Nation 102:481 My 4 '16 400w

"Every realistic touch—there are none will deny that Masefield knows the sea—perfects a mirror of physical reality upon which is cast the image of the soul of man questing after the ideal."

+ R of Rs 53:635 My '16 310w

+ Springf'd Republican p13 Ag 27 '16 400w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Gallipoli. il *$1.25 (3c) Macmillan 940.91 16-21990

"A clear and connected account of the Dardanelles campaign, from the landings at Cape Helles to the final evacuation in January last. The campaign is referred to as 'a great human effort, which came, more than once, very near to triumph, achieved the impossible many times, and failed, in the end, as many great deeds of arms have failed, from something which had nothing to do with arms nor with the men who bore them.' This failure the author regards as the 'second grand event' of the war, after Belgium's answer to the German ultimatum."—Ath

+ A L A Bkl 13:165 Ja '17

Ath p439 S '16 110w

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 25 '16 340w

+ Nation 103:514 N 30 '16 1050w

"John Masefield himself was at Gallipoli though he does not say so. . . . The strength of this book is not its argument against the blunders of the military command or of that thing called the High Direction, but its recital of a human story, its close and pathetic drama, its color and its 'brio' and its breathlessness, its mourning pages of disaster and death." F. H.

+ New Repub 9:22 N 4 '16 2150w

"Literature so magnificent, so heroic, so heart-breaking that it sends us back to the Greek epics for comparison."

+ N Y Times 21:454 O 29 '16 2500w

R of Rs 54:684 D '16 110w

"Only 183 pages in all, but it is packed with memorable things."

+ Sat R 122:301 S 23 '16 910w

"Mr. Masefield has written much in prose and verse of high quality, but he has never written anything worthier of unreserved admiration than this little book on Gallipoli. . . . The story has been told before, but never with such a concentration on the essentials, with so vivid a realization of the horrors and splendors of the struggle."

+ Spec 117:415 O 7 '16 2700w

"It is a narrative wherein the writer submerges himself for the sake of the story—which is good reportorial style, the style in which the gospels were written."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 N 27 '16 310w

"A volume that can safely be taken as an accurate survey of the 'Glorious failure.' Compared with other recent books on the peninsular campaign of 1915 it is in a class by itself. . . . He answers the critics once and for all."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p435 S 14 '16 770w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Good Friday, and other poems. *$1.25 Macmillan 821 16-3298

The dramatic poem, "Good Friday," and a group of sonnets make up this volume. In the first the story of the crucifixion is simply told, with close adherence to the Bible narrative.

Jesus himself does not appear. The chief characters are Pilate, his wife Procula, who pleads for the release of Jesus, Joseph, who asks for his body, and the madman, whose prophetic song closes the play.

A L A Bkl 12:373 My '16

"Do not rest the comparison upon the dramatic poem 'Good Friday,' or else you might say, 'This is certainly very much better than "Philip the king," sounder than but not so brilliant as "The daffodil fields," but a good reach below "Dauber," "The everlasting mercy," and "The widow in the Bye street." But take the sixty-odd sonnets that make the 'other poems' in the book, and you will be bound to say that it is a new Masefield soaring. This new figure that we see is all spirit, pure spirit. The trammels of earthliness are swept away, the elements of all his former familiar kinships and traditions are dissolved into a kind of solution for which there is no term to call it by, other than spiritual beauty." W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p25 F 16 '16 1900w

"The closing note—as has sometimes happened before in his work—is vague and over-lyrical. The poem is so intensely human that the highly poetized distillation of the sacrifice-theme into a sort of beauty-worship is quite inadequate."

+ — Ind 86:66 Ap 10 '16 700w

"The play's totality is ineffective; its power is episodic." O. W. Firkins

+ — Nation 103:58 J1 20 '16 520w

"This is, it may be seen, a perfectly reverent, restrained, and sympathetic treatment of the story. With such a theme, it could scarcely fail to be dramatic; it is also poetic, with the poetry which comes from the simple statement of nobly emotional ideas. Mr. Masefield has never written with more dignity, nor with more artistry. . . . Those who turn to Mr. Masefield's sonnets in search of a philosophy of life will be disappointed, as all deserve to be who go to the poets with any purpose so absurd. But those who go in quest of Beauty will find her—and what higher praise than this can be given to any poetry? Here is beauty of impression and beauty of expression, beauty of thought and beauty of phrase."

+ N Y Times 21:41 F 6 '16 2000w

"The grandeur of the subject is so far relied upon to speak for itself that the impressiveness of the poem as a poem becomes to a certain extent fictitious."

+ — Am No 203:631 Ap '16 450w

"What little the book contains of the Masefield we first knew, is in this drama. The sonnets are technically very lovely. They all express a mood, and some of them express nothing more. They show exclusively the poet's melancholy and his thoughtfulness—that is, they give his reaction to life, suspending for the moment his extraordinary gift for presenting life itself." J: Erskine

+ Poetry Review 1:44 J1 '16 1000w

"Mr. Masefield, in 'Good Friday and other poems,' has added one more harmless unnecessary example to the dreary section of sacred drama. He certainly works with a sad sincerity, and is, generally speaking, a painfully serious poet. He is, all the same, an honest servant of 'Beauty,' whom one is bound to respect." R: Le Gallienne

+ — Pub W 89:1323 Ap 15 '16 200w

"One goes to Masefield's poetry not alone for its beauty, but for moral comfort as well. He has seen life and he knows the hearts of men."

+ R of Rs 53:376 Mr '16 270w

+ Springf'd Republican p17 Mr 12 '16 1300w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Salt-water poems and ballads. il *$2 Macmillan 821 16-21741

In this volume the publishers have aimed to bring out a complete edition of Mr. Masefield's sea poems. "Salt-water ballads" is reprinted as the first of the three parts of the book. Part 2, Sea pictures, is made up of three selections, from "Philip the King," "Dauber," and "Biography." The third part, Salt-water poems, contains among others two hitherto unpublished pieces, "The ship and her makers," and "The

MASEFIELD, JOHN—Continued

New Bedford whaler." There are many illustrations in color and in black and white by Charles Pears.

- + Dial 61:480 N 30 '16 80w
- + Nation 103:519 N 30 '16 30w
- + N Y Times 21:512 N 26 '16 120w
- + R of Rs 54:675 D '16 70w

MASON, DANIEL GREGORY, and MASON, MARY L. Appreciation of music; biographical sections by Mary L. Mason. v 2 $1.50
Gray, H. W. 780.92 16-5907

v 2 Great modern composers.

"Volume 2 of 'The appreciation of music' is a reprint of fifteen interesting essays contributed originally to the New Music Review. Each is devoted to one of the 19th-century composers generally thought of and referred to as 'great,' Berlioz, Schubert, Liszt, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Tchaikowsky and Debussy being examples. Music is taken up at the point where Beethoven left it and is brought, in a representative way, down to the present day."—Springfield Republican

"Printed with very wide margins and no index."

- A L A Bkl 13:17 O '16
- + Ind 88:368 N 27 '16 50w

"Besides giving a brief biographic sketch of each of these masters, Schubert, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Berlioz, Liszt, Chopin, Grieg, Dvorák, Saint-Saëns, Franck, Tchaikovsky, Brahms, Strauss, Debussy, the author records his opinion as to his achievements and concludes with an analysis of one or more of his best works, calling attention to the less obvious beauties in them. Usually these opinions are sane and free from bias. . . . The chapter on Grieg is a great improvement over that on the same composer in an earlier volume by Professor Mason; but he still places a great deal too much emphasis on this master's nationalism." H. T. Finck

- + Nation 103:45 J1 13 '16 620w
- Pratt p27 O '16 30w

"The book can be seen to combine features that are of interest both to the dilettante, reading for information and pleasure, and to the amateur and professional musician, who can make use of the more technical of the writer's passages."

- + Springfield Republican p17 My 12 '16 420w

MASON, GRACE SARTWELL, and HILLIARD, JOHN NORTHERN. Golden hope. il *$1.35
Appleton 16-9547

The "golden hope" to some men in this story of the West meant gold, to others, more far-sighted, it meant irrigation. Erich Wheat was one of the latter, but David Mariner, whose wife has persuaded him to come West in the hope that the new country would make a man of him is fascinated by the lure of gold. As the story develops Kate Mariner's loyalty to her worthless husband is in conflict with her growing love for Wheat.

- A L A Bkl 12:483 J1 '16

"The plot of 'The golden hope' is not so different from that of many other stories, but the important aspect of the novel lies in the fact that the author has been able to put into it so much of the lure of the West."

- + Boston Transcript p6 J1 1 '16 490w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:86 Je '16

"A story of the West, but unlike many stories of particular scenic localities. It is dominated by character and not by scenery. A novel of action, rather than one of psychology, the plot nevertheless develops from the characters of very real people—a rare combination."

- + N Y Times 21:210 My 21 '16 500w
- Wis Lib Bull 12:323 J1 '16 50w

MASSART, JEAN. Belgians under the German eagle *$3.50 Dutton 940.91 (Eng ed 16-15266)

"Bernard Miall has translated this book by Jean Massart, vice director of the class of sciences in the Royal academy of Belgium. Written between Aug. 4, 1914, and Aug. 15, 1915, it describes the fate of Belgium during the first year of German domination, and shows how far from the truth are the German allegations that Belgium is reconciled. The author's indictment is substantiated throughout with reports and proclamations issued by the enemy."—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p8 Je 24 '16 80w

- Ind 88:284 N 13 '16 160w
- + Lit D 53:1722 D 30 '16 380w

"A tale of oppression and horror which it is still difficult to believe of any race on the globe. By comparison, the Bryce report seems tame." Harold Stearns

- New Repub 9:sup24 N 18 '16 420w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:155 O '16

"An arresting, convincing, appalling book."

- + N Y Times 21:497 N 19 '16 930w
- R of Rs 54:573 N '16 100w

"The sources quoted are exclusively of German origin or censorship. The restraint with which the facts are presented makes the book notable." J. M. S.

- + St Louis 14:382 N '16 30w

"It is well that these things should be made fully known to the public. If anything can increase the stern resolve to stop such a nation from doing such wrong in the future, it is the perusal of a book like M. Massart's. The quotations from well-known German newspapers are particularly enlightening."

- + Sat R 122:186 Ag 19 '16 250w

"M. Massart is a new and independent witness. He tells us what he knows at first hand. He cites German placards, proclamations, books, diaries, and newspapers, and gives us a sober account, from which we cannot withhold our credence, of the military and administrative procedure of the German army in Belgium during the first year of the war."

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p291 Je 22 '16 1350w

MASTERS, EDGAR LEE. Great valley. *$1.50
Macmillan 811 16-22862

The early poems of this book tell the story of Chicago, the story of its marvelous growth as vigorous old men and women, who live close up to the century mark and remember back to the early days of Fort Dearborn, have seen it. And towering among all the figures in the book is Lincoln.

- A L A Bkl 13:210 F '17

"Not that there do not occur flashes of the power and penetration, couped with the harsh felicities of word and phrase, that made of the 'Spoon River anthology,' with all its obvious crudities, a really notable performance. But they are relatively few, and largely lost in the welter of words." W. A. Bradley

- Dial 61:528 D 14 '16 690w

"As a whole Masters is probably more depressing than any poet of equal power in American letters, but it would be unfair to ignore the poems which strike a different note."

- Ind 88:533 D 25 '16 600w

"We discover a thinner psychology and monotonous sameness in many of these recent poems. They frequently lack the fire and beauty and tone of his second volume."

- N Y Times 22:1 Ja 7 '17 540w

"You may reject the author as a poet if you do not appreciate free verse and still find keen zest in the material of this book. It is American—in the main—with some few exceptions that had wisely been omitted—and it spades deep into the soil of our constructive nationalism that has been almost forgotten by the younger generation."

- + R of Rs 54:674 D '16 180w

MASTERS, EDGAR LEE. Songs and satires. *$1.25 Macmillan 811 16-6693

In his second volume Mr. Masters offers a variety of poems to meet many tastes. It is perhaps "The cocked hat," a long disquisition on Bryan and his position in politics since 1896 that is most reminiscent of "Spoon river." "So we grew together" is another long poem in free verse; "All life in a life" is a narrative interpretation of the life of Jesus of Nazareth written in rhymed verse. "The Loop" gives a night picture of Chicago. In addition to these there are other stories in verse and a number of lyrics, and the older forms of poetry are further represented by two ballads on Arthurian themes.

A L A Bkl 12:418 Je '16

"Mr. Masters has not, apparently, any definite theory of poetry, classical or romantic; he is a medley of conflicting influences, and is as ready to imitate William Morris and Browning, as Walt Whitman, Longfellow, or Mrs. Hemans. Some of the pieces are quite comically bad. . . . Yet behind all this absurdity there is some of the original force which made 'Spoon river anthology' a notable book."

— + Ath p529 N '16 160w

Reviewed by R. M. Alden

— + Dial 61:64 J1 15 '16 570w

"Mr. Masters in satirical mood ranges from bitterness and harshness to a rather unexpectedly exalted melancholy. And occasionally he strikes a really high imaginative note. But the book as a whole is undisciplined, uneven, and scattering."

— + Ind 87:28 J1 3 '16 250w

"Those who savored just the novelty in 'Spoon River' will undoubtedly deem 'Songs and satires' flat. . . . Because Mr. Masters is a deep poetic spirit, one of the greatest in the America of our times, it would be an immense pity if the absence of a certain special excitement should keep the readers of 'Songs and satires' from finding the treasures inside. . . . Mr. Masters is a man of forty or so, sceptical, unsentimental, unloyal, deharmonized. Against faith in anything but a vague 'radicalism' and the evidence of his senses he reacts vigorously. He writes of men de facto with a strong refusal to explain them or at any rate explain them away. The exciting thing, however, is to discover how a world so remorseless and harsh can sing to the ear of this poet, how phenomena so little ameliorated can be so rich in communicable feeling." F. H.

— + New Repub 6:354 Ap 29 '16 2300w

"The thing that holds and interests us in Masters is the fact that he has imagination. No one else is doing what he does. In his poems on love he fails to create a sense of passionate feeling, but in his speculations on life, his interpretations of human beings, and his musings on faith and the ultimate meaning behind the many meanings, he reveals a mind of singular sincerity and power."

— + N Y Times 21:220 My 21 '16 950w

"In the main it has distinction and insight, and some of the poems show the pure vein of genius that blazed out in the former book. For the rest it seems experimental in a large measure—a groping along divers paths of poesy. Mr. Masters is decidedly best at portraiture."

— + R of Rs 53:632 My '16 180w

"Although the poetical content of the poems as a whole is not striking, the volume is well worth reading, especially for anyone who wishes to follow the metamorphosis which poetry, alas! seems to be undergoing."

— + Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 800w
The Times [London] Lit Sup p451 S 21 '16 2100w

"A curious and disappointing mixture of discordant styles and ideas. . . . Much of the writing lacks the breath of life. . . . Two poems, in the writer's earlier manner, stand out above all the rest and give the book its value. 'Silence' is deep and moving in its thought; 'The cocked hat' is a shrewd picture of Bryan, a fine character study in the author's keenest style." E: B. Reed

— + Yale R ns 6:417 Ja '17 340w

MATHER, FRANK JEWETT, Jr. Estimates in art. il *$1.50 (2½c) Scribner 759 16-9283

A collection of Mr. Mather's recent essays on art, some of them reprinted from the Nation, the Atlantic Monthly and other periodicals.

Contents: Claude Lorrain: teacher; Sandro Botticelli; El Greco; Goya and his art; Rembrandt after three centuries, 1906; Vermeer of Delft; The painting of Sorolla; Eugène Carrière; Watts and his art; John La Farge—an appreciation; Far Eastern painting. There are ten illustrations.

+ A L A Bkl 12:465 J1 '16

"Professor Mather deserves credit and attention, alike for his soundness of judgment, his acumen, and his clearness of expression. His book of essays includes criticism of the artists of many countries, and is therefore of interest to a wide audience, although its appeal is by no means popular. With the criticism of El Greco, Sorolla and Carrière, he contributes lively food for thought." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 19 '16 730w

Reviewed by Norman Foerster

+ Dial 61:105 Ag 15 '16 970w

+ Ind 88:241 N 6 '16 70w

"His criticism of one and all is not sentimental, after the manner of Pater, nor scientific in any Morellian fashion, but is a happy combination of poetic feeling, catholic taste, and practical clear-headed judgment. The artist, the art student and the general public may one and all find themselves enriched by the discovery of principles in art criticism that are not the mere whim of the critic. Perhaps, however, the greatest value of this book is that it rouses even sluggish souls to keener and finer appreciation."

+ Nation 102:551 My 18 '16 1950w

"One of the books about pictures that holds truth with sincere and scrupulous devotion."

+ N Y Times 21:274 J1 9 '16 200w

"In particular, the splendid descriptions of Goya's paintings, the chapter on Watts, the tribute to La Farge, and the analysis of the psychology of Chinese landscape painting contribute to render this book a most valuable contribution to the literature of art."

+ R of Rs 53:763 Je '16 120w

"The volume is not for the reader who is striving to learn the first principles of the art which made these men famous. The greater the previous knowledge the greater will be the enjoyment gained from the book."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 23 '16 270w

MATHESON, C. M. Generation between. *$1.35 Brentano's

"Thomasine, Mrs. Matheson's heroine, is a personification of rebellion and unrest. An only girl in a family of slender means, she deeply resents that she must give up plans upon which her heart is set, standing aside that her younger brothers may be fitted for their careers. Failing the larger opportunity she regards as her right, she marks out her own path. . . . She is not concerned with the larger aims of woman, only that she, Thomasine, may 'seize with both hands all the joy in life.' Of course, she brings down storms upon her head; and then, with characteristic impetuosity, she throws off the shackles of wifehood and motherhood, and seeks a colony of women, founded by a woman with the purpose of developing a nation within the nation, where women with no thought of rivalry with men should fulfill 'a magnificent ideal, which ideal would in time become the standard of the world.'"—N Y Times

"An English writer who can create a character fundamentally Tolstoyan is rare. Thomasine Latimer is more Russian than English; her keen enjoyment of life, her young insolence, her pride in her power over people, . . . her sense of well-being—these are what Tolstoy loved to describe in his young girls. . . . The initial problem is clearly analyzed, the characters well drawn. The mistake comes in attempting any solution."

+ — Boston Transcript p20 D 29 '15 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:38 Mr '16

"The charm and potency of the book lie, however, in its portrayal of the Thomasine in revolt. The author depicts her and her surroundings with wonderful originality and freshness. Then, like Frankenstein, finding her very much on her creator's hands, she does not quite know what to do with her, and attempts in vain to solve the problem so clearly and forcibly stated. There the story breaks down."

MATHESON, C. M.—Continued

+ — N Y Times 21:43 F 6 '16 1050w

MATHEWSON, CHRISTOPHER. First base Faulkner. il $1.25 (2c) Dodd 16-9067

This is the third of Christy Mathewson's series of stories for boys. Joe Faulkner comes to Amesville, Ohio, to live with his Aunt Sarah. His father's death has left his mother and him without means of support. His mother finds a paying position in Columbus and Joe, altho he at first wants to go to work too, is persuaded that it will be better to accept Aunt Sarah's hospitality and finish his high school course. But, with the manliness that is characteristic of Mr. Mathewson's young heroes, he refuses to be dependent and starts out to pay his own way. His success in carrying out this plan holds a place in the story of equal importance with his baseball triumphs.

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 23 '16 250w

+ St Louis 14:407 N '16 10w

Wis Lib Bull 12:229 My '16 20w

MATTESON, EMMA B., and NEWLANDS, ETHEL M. Laboratory manual of foods and cookery. il $1.50 Macmillan 641 16-15080

"A work designed as a textbook for the study of cookery through experimental work on the chemical, physical, bacteriological and biological properties of foods. The authors have based their work upon personal experiences in teaching, and have intended to make so clear the principles of cookery that the student will be enabled to eventually work without recipes or to develop her own. But they have realized also that such a degree of proficiency will best be reached by practice with tried recipes and for this reason this manual contains several hundred such recipes."—Springfield Republican

Cleveland p14 Ag '16 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:126 Ag '16

+ N Y Times 21:343 S 3 '16 100w

"Another valuable point is the list of reference books given at the end of each chapter, while the book is well illustrated."

+ Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '16 210w

Reviewed by W. S. Gibbs

+ Survey 37:342 D 23 '16 240w

MATTHEWS, BRANDER. Book about the theater. il $2.50 (3c) Scribner 792 16-21742

A collection of unrelated essays, many of them devoted to "the subordinate subdivisions of the art of the stage." Among the titles are: The show business; The limitations of the stage; A moral from a toy theater; Why five acts? Women dramatists; The evolution of scene-painting; The poetry of the dance; The ideal of the acrobat; The decline and fall of negro-minstrelsy. Some of these papers are reprinted from magazines.

+ A L A Bkl 13:159 Ja '17

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 14 '16 1000w

"Professor Matthews' criticisms are constructive, his style, as always, entertaining and his information wide and authoritative."

+ Cleveland p146 D '16 40w

+ Ind 88:235 N 6 '16 330w

"He exhibits, even more than usually, the unacademic breadth of his interest." Algernon Tassin

+ Pub W 90:1416 O 21 '16 670w

+ R of Rs 54:676 D '16 120w

+ Springf'd Republican p8 N 17 '16 330w

MATTHEWS, BRANDER, ed. Chief European dramatists. $2.75 Houghton 808.2 16-11170

The editor's object has been to select a group of dramas which would "illustrate and illuminate the developments of dramatic literature from the Greek of the fifth century B. C. to the Scandinavian of the end of the nineteenth century A. D." The volume opens with the "Agamemnon" of Aeschylus and closes with Ibsen's "A doll's house." Between these two come plays by Calderon, Corneille, Molière, Racine, Lessing, Goethe, Schiller and others. In all there are twenty-one plays drawn from the literature of Greece, Rome, Spain, France, Italy, Germany, Denmark, and Norway. The volume is provided with notes and a bibliography.

A L A Bkl 12:468 Jl '16

"The volume is intended primarily as a textbook for a general college course in the drama, and as such it might very properly have had a little fuller critical apparatus. What there is of such apparatus is contained in three rather scanty appendices. The notes on the authors are extremely compressed, and those on the text are just enough to suggest the place of the plays in the development of the drama. The reading-list on the dramatists is so meagre as to be practically valueless."

+ — Dial 61:31 Je 22 '16 230w

N Y Times 21:259 Je 25 '16 320w

Pittsburgh 21:341 Jl '16 120w

Pratt p30 O '16

Springfield Republican p8 Je 23 '16 220w

"Too expensive for smaller libraries, but a good volume for any library serving students or intellectual readers."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:319 Jl '16 70w

MATTHEWS, BRANDER. Shakspeare as a playwright. University ed il $2 Scribner 822.3

A reprint of a work published in 1913. "The edition of 1913 has been altered but little except where Prof. Matthews has seen fit to expand the thought." (Springfield Republican)

A L A Bkl 12:394 My '16

"The work is a very valuable hand-book of Shakespearean knowledge in that it is comprehensive and nowhere dogmatic."

+ Springf'd Republican p17 My 23 '16 180w

MATTHEWS, BRANDER, and THORNDIKE, ASHLEY HORACE, eds. Shaksperian studies. $2.25 (1½c) Columbia univ. press 822.3 16-10365

Eighteen contributions to the Shakespeare tercentenary celebration from members of the faculty of Columbia university. The editors say "No effort has been made to conform them to a general plan or to harmonize conflicting opinions." The volume opens with a sonnet, "Shakspeare dead," by Jefferson Butler Fletcher. Among the papers that follow are: Shaksperian stage traditions, by Brander Matthews; Shakspeare in the schools, by Franklin Thomas Baker; Some textual notes on "Pericles," by William Peterfield Trent; The restoration of Shakspeare's personality, by William Tenney Brewster; and "A midsummer night's dream" on the New York stage, by George C. D. Odell.

"The lack of an index is an extraordinary defect in a work of this size and importance."

+ Ath p595 D '16 40w

"Perhaps the most significant essay of all is Professor Odell's study of 'A midsummer night's dream' on the New York stage." No small amount of light is thrown into the corners of Shakespearean research by the writers of these essays. Their volume is to be commended for its sturdy vigor and its shrewdness of insight. Scarcely a page of it fails to say something new upon a time-worn theme."

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 10 '16 870w

"We commend this volume to all lovers of Shakespeare. They will find many things to agree with, many things to argue about, and many things to reject with scorn. But the essays are all carefully written, and well thought out."

+ Cath World 104:261 N '16 250w

"We have an excellent character-study in Professor Cunliffe's article on Henry V as prince and king, an interpretation of 'Romeo and Juliet' from the pen of Professor Erskine which goes to the heart of Shakespeare's great love-tragedy, and a well-considered defence by Professor Wright of the poet's alleged inconsistency in characterization."

+ Nation 103:40 J1 13 '16 1450w

"If our American celebration had brought us nothing except this book from Columbia university, it would still have been of great and permanent value. Professor Thorndike's essay on 'Shakespeare as a debtor' is a piece of scholarly and interesting research into the question of the dramatist's literary indebtedness. It is a fresh and invigorating bit of reading."

+ N Y Times 21:212 My 21 '16 850w

"One of the most interesting of the papers is that on 'Shaksperian stage traditions,' by Professor Brander Matthews, in which he urges that 'we need to have in black-and-white the whole body of stage-traditions.'"

+ Spec 117:808 D 23 '16 450w

MAUPASSANT, HENRI RENÉ ALBERT GUY

DE. Yvette; tr. from the French by Mrs. John Galsworthy. *$1.35 (2½c) Knopf (*2s 6d Duckworth, London) 16-6394

"Yvette," a novelette of something over 100 pages, and ten shorter stories make up this collection of newly translated tales from the works of Maupassant. Austerity, courage and honesty are the outstanding qualities of his work, as summed up by Joseph Conrad in the introduction. He is pronounced an intensely national writer, wholly French in "his logic, in his clearness, in his æsthetic and moral conceptions." He is universally renowned, but not universally popular. "What is wanting to his universal success is the mediocrity of an obvious and appealing tenderness." The stories following "Yvette" are: Mademoiselle Fifi; Two friends; A duel; Old mother Savage; Miss Harriet; The umbrella; The piece of string; Queen Hortense; At sea; A sale.

"Mrs. Galsworthy's discriminating and delightful translation of the eleven stories in this volume is alone sufficient warrant for their republication, but to this is added the nine-page preface by Joseph Conrad, which in terse phrase and admiring spirit discusses the qualities of de Maupassant's art."

+ N Y Times 20:530 D 26 '15 180w

Reviewed by W: S. Sparrow

Sat R 120:85 J1 24 '15 1500w

MAUREL, ANDRÉ. Month in Rome; auth.

English ed.; tr. by Helen Gerard. il *$1.75 (2c) Putnam 914.56 16-11739

"Fresh,—naïve, if you will,—impressions of the tourist of average culture and unlimited interest, the well-intentioned traveller who sees what he sees and thinks and feels without premeditation, a book that the hurried visitor may thumb as he walks about, in the hope of finding therein expressed some of his own rapid sensations." (Preface) There are thirty "walks" planned, one for each day of the month. Places of historic and artistic interest are included which belong to the foundation of every well-read and cultured man's education. Ground plans of the city and numerous illustrations from photographs increase the value of the work as a guide book.

"Written on same plan as his 'Little cities of Italy.'"

+ A L A Bkl 13:170 Ja '17

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 1 '16 230w

+ Cleveland p118 Ag '16 30w

"A sentimental guide book—sentimental in the good sense. Facts it contains in abundance, but no one should look to it as a substitute for the practical guide-book."

+ Dial 61:273 O 5 '16 320w

"It is his distinction to have done justice to Rome of the baroque and modern periods. . . . Its chief appeal may well be to those who long ago cast their copper in the Fountain of Trevi. To those who know their Rome it will not fail to rekindle great memories."

+ Nation 102:678 Je 22 '16 150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

"The reader of M. Maurel's book will have open before him long avenues leading to treasures of which the guide-books never speak."

+ R of Rs 54:120 J1 '16 60w

MAURICE, ARTHUR BARTLETT. New York of the novelists. il *$2 (4c) Dodd 917.471 16-22308

In 1899 Mr. Maurice wrote a series of articles on "New York in fiction." They were issued in book form but the work has long been out of print. He says, "Though little more than seventeen years have passed the New York of the novelists to-day offers fully three times as much as it did then. Hence this new pilgrimage, in which the writer has attempted to show the rapidly changing city, both as it appeared then, and as it is seen now by the novelists of the new generation." The book consists of five parts; The cañons of the money grubbers; The mysterious East Side; The remnants of Bohemia; The heart of new Arabia; Tea, tango, and toper land; The city remote and the city beyond. There are many illustrations from photographs and drawings. The author was editor of the Bookman.

+ A L A Bkl 13:170 Ja '17

"Quite the most appealing feature of Mr. Maurice's volume is an exceptional series of old-fashioned wood-cut illustrations of New York houses and street scenes." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 4 '16 550w

+ Dial 61:474 N 30 '16 150w

+ Ind 88:409 D 4 '16 100w

"The zest with which Mr. Maurice follows his clues and the relish with which he reports on them put him in the class with that most delectable of English 'city-wanderers,' Mr. E. V. Lucas."

+ Lit D 53:1552 D 9 '16 430w

R of Rs 54:681 D '16 50w

MAXCY, CARROLL LEWIS. Brief. *$1.25 (1c) Houghton 808.5 16-8925

A handbook for students. The author believes in brief-making as a means of developing logical methods of thought. His discussion of the argumentative brief is followed by examples of argumentative and legal briefs, and by examples of faulty briefing. The remainder of the book, about one half, consists of selections for briefing.

+ Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:88 Je '16

Pittsburgh 22:52 Ja '17 10w

Pratt p30 O '16 40w

+ Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '16 70w

MAXIM, HUDSON, ed. Leading opinions both for and against national defense. *50c Hearst's int. lib. 355.7 16-11152

"This book places the essentials of the reasons and arguments of the pacifists and the martialists side by side so that the people may examine and appraise according to evidence on both sides of the question. Henry Ford, Nicholas Murray Butler, Theodore Roosevelt, W. J. Bryan, Hon. Claude Kitchin, Hamilton Holt, Rev. William Carter, and many other prominent men are represented in the volume."

—R of Rs

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16

Pratt p13 O '16

+ R of Rs 54:461 O '16 70w

MAYNARD, WINIFRED, pseud. Book of * Winifred Maynard. *$1 Putnam 821 16-21260

A note says, "The author of this book, who is now dead, was a real woman, although Winifred Maynard was not her real name. These poems of hers, covering a period of thirteen years in her life (from seventeen to thirty), were written for herself, and shown to very few people. With one exception, they have been arranged in the exact order of their composition."

MAYNARD, WINIFRED, pseud.—Continued
This arrangement is wise, for by means of it one follows the deepening and intensifying of emotion. The headings chosen for the three sections: Asleep, Dreaming, Awake, are also significant.

"Whoever is responsible for their publication has done a wise thing." W. S. B.
+ Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '16 1600w
+ N Y Br Lib News 3:181 D '16

"They are the actual stuff of life, and their very imperfections of expression make them the more convincing and illuminating." R. T. Pearl
+ Poetry Review 2:27 D '16 820w
+ R of Rs 54:568 N '16 70w

MAYO, LAWRENCE SHAW. Jeffery Amherst: a biography. il *$2 Longmans 16-8369

"Jeffery Amherst's name is inseparably connected with events which preceded the American revolution. He was the hero of Louisburg in 1758, the capture of which made him commander-in-chief of all the British forces employed in North America. . . . His conquest of Canada, by the capture of Montreal, linked his memory forever with those 'lands to the north of us.' His military operations throughout all the Champlain country are a part of the history which Ticonderoga and Crown Point have made immortal in border-annals." (Lit D) "The recent opening of many archives alike in the old world and the new has thrown a flood of new light upon his campaigns. In the present volume Mr. Mayo has applied himself to the study of these copious materials with industry, discretion, and judgment." (The Times [London] Lit Sup)

"The volume is well written and entertaining, but it does not contribute much to our knowledge of Amherst or to the history of the period covered. A more careful examination of colonial records would have improved the past which treats of the general's dealings with the colonists. The book will be valued most by the casual reader." E. I. McCormac
+ Am Hist R 22:171 O '16 850w

"Of the style of the book we may judge from the fact that the word 'disgruntled' occurs no less than three times; and invidious comparisons between Amherst and Wolfe, at the expense of the latter do not lead to a more favourable judgement. It is only fair, however, to add that the work shows evidence of the careful use of numerous authorities." H. E. E.
Eng Hist R 21:669 O '16 270w

"This biography covers a wide range of historic interest, and well commemorates a man who did much to shape conditions out of which our nation was evolved."

+ Lit D 52:980 Ap 8 '16 260w

+ Nation 103:264 S 14 '16 220w

+ N Y Times 21:278 J1 9 '16 50w

+ Pittsburgh D 21:579 D '16 50w

Pratt p38 O '16 20w

+ Spring'd Republican p6 J1 24 '16 1250w

"A biography which, though a little lacking in intimacy of personal characterization, and written in no very distinguished style, is nevertheless a painstaking and attractive record of a very remarkable career. In our judgment it fails to solve the real enigma of Amherst's career, which consists in the remarkable contrast between the two periods of his life, that which ended in 1763, and that which followed it until the end of his life in 1797."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p233 My 18 '16 1150w

MEACHAM, ALLEN. Belle Jones; a story of fulfillment. *50c Dutton 16-21971

"Belle Jones was the plain and uninteresting little daughter of a drunken father and a miserable mother, who died practically over her wash-tub when Belle was still a child. And Belle lived all her life in poverty in the town where she was born, caring for her worthless father, struggling to an independent but meagre livelihood as a dressmaker, never marrying, never gaining the riches or the love that she had longed for as a child. Yet the book bears the subtitle, 'A story of fulfillment,' and the little narrative is the record of how Belle's real longings actually 'came true.'"—N Y Times

"A more delightful, inspiring, and helpful little book it would be hard to find."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 10 '17 90w

+ Cath World 104:556 Ja '17 190w

N Y Br Lib News 3:184 D '16

"Told simply, without sentimentality or affectation, and worthy of praise as a good story of its kind."

+ N Y Times 21:566 D 24 '16 250w

"It is a good tonic for us to get hold of a book that is so interesting that we cannot lay it down and so much above the ordinary level of life that we have to stand on tip-toe to reach up to it. Such a book is 'Belle Jones.'"

+ Spring'd Republican p6 Ja 29 '17 260w

MEAD, DANIEL WEBSTER. Water power engineering; the theory, investigation and development of water powers. 2d ed il *$5 McGraw 621.2 15-20130

"A new edition of a work published in 1908. 'There are some differences between this and the first edition. . . . The chapter on hydraulics has been omitted as being not simple enough for the beginner and not complete enough for the hydraulic engineer, although some of the same matter has been included in other chapters. The chapters on rainfall, meteorology and related topics have been omitted, but the preface contains an announcement of the author's intention to cover these subjects in a separate volume on hydrology. This volume is printed on thinner paper and the book is somewhat thinner than the first edition although it contains some sixty pages more. The lists of references to other literature have been extended and made more useful by adding references to recent literature and eliminating references to foreign works not generally accessible.'"—Engin Rec

A L A Bk1 12:394 My '16

"The book is still unprepossessing in its make-up. . . . Chapter bibliographies have been brought up to date more nearly—though there still are some instances of haphazard accumulation. The author's historical notes on water-power and waterwheels, particularly the latter, will appeal to anyone who has had to search for such material."

+ Engin N 75:944 My 18 '16 420w

"As to its scope, the book may be said to be the most satisfactory work published on this important branch of engineering. Such details of design and construction as the author seriously essays to cover are treated thoroughly, and include the features that usually receive the most consideration at the hands of the majority of hydraulic engineers. Some of these have been rather exhaustively treated at the expense of certain others that many engineers would consider equally important. For example the design of large conduits, large curved draft tubes, low-head concrete scroll cases, large head gates, trash racks and trash-disposal apparatus, and the testing of turbines in place, are subjects which many readers will wish might have been treated more fully." D. R. Cooper

+ Engin Rec 73:56 Ja 8 '16 1000w

MEARNS, HUGHES. Richard Richard. il *$1.35 Penn 16-13971

"Traveling on the same steamship, the Victoria, two passengers meet, the man 'stony broke,' the maid well-to-do. In a spirit of mischief, they go ashore for a day's sightseeing after the man has confessed his impecuniosity. Under the names of 'Richard Richard' and 'Jerry,' these two become friends, and Richard proceeds to charm Jerry's mother by sympathy in her psychological beliefs and by his deep interest in Jerry's alcoholic and neurotic brother Walter. . . . Walter's regeneration is the main theme, . . . but the final dénouement is Richard's identity and his application of his once-disdained millions to the rehabilitation of 'Red Jacket,' the tottering estate."—Lit D

"A delightful compound of psychotherapy and high spirits. . . . There are moments when it suggests Locke, and others when it outdoes Mr. Dooley. . . . There are bits of acute analysis throughout."

+ Dial 61:538 D 14 '16 110w

"The author uses melodrama easily and holds the attention of the reader by witty turns of speech and brilliant comments which reflect deep thought and progressive ideas."

+ Lit D 53:1339 N 18 '16 210w

"The story is written in brisk, comedy style that bubbles and froths over the deep and serious places where possible tragedy lurks. There is much conversation. Nearly all the story, indeed, is told in the talk between its characters, and a great deal of it is clever, some even sparkling."

+ N Y Times 21:336 Ag 27 '16 470w

St Louis 14:402 N '16

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 310w

MEARS, MADGE. Sheltered sex. *$1.25 (2c) Lane 16-16528

This story of an English girl's revolt against respectability, is amusing in the way it has of turning social conventions round about and showing them from a new point of view. When Ruth Charlton leaves home for London and freedom, she goes in company with a young skating-rink instructor, Jolivard. Their relation is purely impersonal, but in the complications and misunderstandings that result from it, Jolivard is the one who is "compromised." And far from finding herself an outcast because of the false position in which she is placed, Ruth is taken in and given shelter because of it. Jolivard is injured in a railroad accident, and feeling herself responsible in a way for the physical injury as well as for his damaged reputation, Ruth stands by him. Their alliance is highly unconventional in that it is not at all what the world takes such unions to be, but in course of time, circumstances and their own personal inclinations unite to make it permanent.

"By no means dull, the book is enlivened by many a clever turn or phrase and by a sardonic sense of humor which might be better employed."

— Boston Transcript p9 S 30 '16 380w

"The author has with some skill given a convincing picture of middle class conditions in England."

+ N Y Times 21:352 S 10 '16 340w

Spec 117:135 J1 29 '16 30w

MEGRAW, HERBERT ASHTON. Flotation process. il *$2.50 McGraw 622.7 16-21732

"Concise, well arranged information gathered by the author in practice and consultation. The aim has been to simplify as much as possible and to eliminate speculation, 'retaining only those parts that have been definitely proved correct, or can show a reasonable basis for their inclusion.' Chapter 2 covers the patent record of the subject."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

N Y Br Lib News 3:170 N '16

"Reviewed in Metallurgical and Chemical Engineering, Nov. 1, 1916; Canadian Mining Journal, Oct. 1, 1916."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p18 N '16 190w

"Compilation of patent and journal literature. Not extensive, but of present (1916) value by reason of the importance of the subject, and the lack of information concerning it."

+ Pittsburgh 21:574 D '16 28w

"The author is a member of the editorial staff of the Engineering and Mining Journal."

St Louis 14:433 D '16 15w

MEIGS, CORNELIA. Master Simon's garden. il *$1.25 (1c) Macmillan 16-21393

In telling the story of the garden planted by Master Simon Radpath on his first arrival in

New England, the author has attempted to give something of a panoramic picture of American history from the founding of the first colonies to the close of the revolution. There are two distinct stories in the book. Of the first Margaret, daughter of Master Simon is the heroine. With her father she shared the danger of persecution by the stern Puritan neighbors who looked askance on the bright flowered garden and who, when they learned that it had sheltered a Jesuit, were ready to wreak their wrath on the two who had helped him escape. But Margaret lived to marry and to pass the garden on to her children who in turn passed it on to children's children, one of whom is hero of the second story. The book is meant for young people but it may be that the length of time covered, the number of characters and the style will make it a little puzzling except to those who are older and well versed in American history.

+ A L A Bkl 13:184 Ja '17

+ Dial 61:547 D 14 '16 50w

+ Ind 88:402 D 4 '16 30w

+ Lit D 53:1563 D 9 '16 100w

+ Nation 103:519 N 30 '16 30w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 9 '16 180w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p626 D 21 '16 30w

MEIGS, CORNELIA. Steadfast princess. *50c Macmillan 812 16-3112

This two-act play won the Drama league prize, offered for the best play for children submitted in 1915. The princess of the title has been brought up in the home of a toymaker. The two acts show her first in his humble home, dreaming of the prince who may come to claim her, and second as a reigning princess, looking back longingly to the happy days when she helped with the toys and trying to hold fast to the Toymaster's ideals of truth and steadfastness. In this act the fairy-tale prince of her dream becomes a reality.

"Simple in spirit and often poetic, above the average in idea, treatment and style."

+ A L A Bkl 12:389 My '16

"Contains many pretty fancies, owes a good deal to Hans Andersen, and would, we think, act well."

+ Ath p239 My '16 50w

"There is a certain dignity of utterance. It is written in blank verse and to the ear of the reader is sometimes stilted. What strikes us particularly as we read the play is the way in which it is fitted for presentation by children. In the matter of its simple characterization and the types of its plot it well fulfils its intention."

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 26 '16 200w

"A play of exceptional literary quality, and one that can be easily staged and adapted to amateur production in private houses."

+ R of Rs 53:377 Mr '16 50w

St Louis 14:172 Ap '16

"Fairy stories in the form of plays or tableaux for children are not uncommon but few of them can be recommended as highly as 'The steadfast princess.'"

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 90w

"Could be used for a Christmas play, because of the first act in the toy master's cottage."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:187 Ap '16 30w

MEINECKE, FRIEDRICH. Warfare of a nation (Die deutsche erhebung von 1914); tr. by J. A. Spaulding. $1 Davis press, Graphic arts bldg., Worcester, Mass. 940.91 16-3923

"'The warfare of a nation' by Frederick Meinecke, professor of history in the University of Berlin, regarded by some as the foremost living German historian in the field of modern German history, contains a number of essays and lectures written during the first three months of the war. The work, unlike other German discussions which aim to present the economic issues of the great war, treats the historical connections of the present struggle with the past 100 years of Germany's social and political development, and discusses the relation of national civilization to German militarism and the charges of cruelty brought against Germany by the Allies.—Springfield Republican

MEINECKE, FRIEDRICH—Continued

"Rather pathetic in its would-be high seriousness, in its assumption of dignity, most of all in its genuine sincerity, is this little volume of German assertiveness."

+ Boston Transcript p7 F 12 '16 270w

"The subject matter is treated with restraint, a fact which places the book above the average of propagandist literature."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Je 2 '16 140w

MELBERG, PETER L. How to sell real estate; or, The realty business. *$2.50 (4c) Realty book co., 5905 Euclid av., Cleveland, O. 333

This is a reprint of a book first published in 1909 by the author. The author plans to define simply and clearly the general principles of real estate dealing, as shown in methods used for 25 years in the central west. Legal forms in use in the business are appended. In a popular yet practical way he treats of how to sell real estate, trades or exchanges, advertising, agents' commissions, partnership, banks as borrowers and as lenders, corporations, contracts, etc., etc. He believes that the information contained will be of value both to the intending specialist and the general public.

MELONEY, WILLIAM BROWN. Heritage of Tyre. (Our national problems) il *50c (2c) Macmillan 387 16-10946

In the interests of preparedness Mr. Meloney exhorts America to recover her sea heritage with its "purple-blooded, iron-corpuscled tribe of seagoers." The American people who revolutionized the science of ship-building, created steam navigation and screw propulsion, invented the iron clad and contrived the machine gun have now become "a bandlerog people." The writer says that in this hour of humiliation an opportunity born of half the world at war has come to America to atone for her sea folly. Mr. Meloney urges in the interests of maritime efficiency that Congress do two things: (1) Repeal the La Follette-Alexander seamen's law and restore the status quo ante bellum; (2) Create a separate department to be known as the department of marine and to be administered by a commission or board of five or seven experts.

+ A L A Bkl 13:149 Ja '17

"In terse, striking, forceful language, the author of this most valuable little volume shows us the greatest weakness America has, and the most ominous danger such weakness involves. Mr. Meloney's final appeal to America to recognize her heritage of Tyre is sincere and powerful enough to shake this country from its sluggish sleep." D. F. G.

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 14 '16 430w

Cleveland p114 Ag '16 20w

Ind 87:350 S 4 '16 50w

"For the general reader who wishes to familiarize himself with the necessary data as the basis of an intelligent judgment regarding the much-discussed question of the merchant marine, it would be difficult to find a better brief presentation of the facts."

+ Nation 103:134 Ag 10 '16 1150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 Jl '16

"If any one thinks the shipping question which plays such a prominent part in current politics and legislation, is uninteresting he can hardly remain of that opinion after reading Mr. Meloney's spirited book. There is hardly a dull page in it, and there is a surprising amount of information for so small a volume."

+ N Y Times 21:262 Je 25 '16 750w

+ R of Rs 54:121 Jl '16 20w

+ Springf'd Republican p15 Jl 30 '16 870w

MENDEL, LAFAYETTE BENEDICT. Changes in the food supply and their relation to nutrition. *50c (5c) Yale univ. press 613.2 16-2940

In this little book Professor Mendel of the Sheffield scientific school considers such matters as food production, food preservation, the influence of transportation facilities on food supply, customs in diet, and the changing industrial and social conditions as they affect foods. The essay was written for the second Pan-American scientific congress held in Washington in December, 1915.

+ A L A Bkl 13:16 O '16

"An exceedingly interesting and stimulating presentation of modern thought on the problems of nutrition and food economics." C. L. Alsberg

+ Cleveland p152 D '16 50w (Reprinted from the Journal of the American Chemical Society)

+ Ind 87:103 Jl 17 '16 30w

St Louis 14:191 My '16

"An interesting and suggestive study of our changed economic conditions and their effect on the people."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 130w

MERENESS, NEWTON DENNISON, ed. Travels in the American colonies, 1690-1783; ed. under the auspices of the National society of the Colonial dames of America. *$3 (1c) Macmillan 973.2 16-9410

A collection of eighteen hitherto unpublished manuscripts descriptive of travel in colonial days. They record experiences in travel along the Atlantic slope from Georgia to New York; from Albany to Niagara Falls, Quebec, Hartford and Boston; thru the Great Lakes from Detroit to Chicago; up the Mississippi from New Orleans to St. Louis; down the Ohio and the Mississippi from Pittsburgh to New Orleans; and thru the territory of the Indian tribes of the Tennessee into the backwoods of Pennsylvania and North Carolina. Interesting sidelights are furnished on the fauna and flora of the country, topography, climate and soil, as well as on the more important matters of colonial life with its freedom and its terrors.

"I do not know of any single series of texts that makes so lavish a contribution to our knowledge of the personal and social side of colonial history, as do these narratives. They have a unique value to the scholar, and though a perusal of them is no task for a summer afternoon, some of them are certain to interest the general reader. . . . The one thing that every one using this book will miss is a map." C: M. Andrews

+ Am Hist R 22:168 O '16 690w

+ Cleveland p157 D '16 50w

Nation 103:569 D 14 '16 220w

N Y Br Lib News 3:91 Je '16

+ R of Rs 54:121 Jl '16 100w

Spec 117:240 Ag 26 '16 750w

"To any but a very close specialist this historical appeal must probably be limited. . . . With the exception of Lord Adam Gordon, however 'polite' many of these diarists may have been, they were not embarked upon 'polite' travels and had no intentions of amusing anyone. The result of their united pens is a book both dull and delightful."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p341 Jl 20 '16 1250w

MERINGTON, MARGUERITE. Fairy tale plays. il *$1.50 Duffield 812 16-23141

Three familiar tales, Little Red Riding Hood, Cinderella and Bluebeard, have been made into two- and three-act plays. The author has taken some liberties with the original stories. In the Red Riding Hood play, for instance, several new characters are introduced, among them Silver Locks, Goody Two Shoes, and Little Tom Thumb. A fee is charged for stage use and application must be made to the publishers.

N Y Times 21:561 D 17 '16 50w

MERRIMAN, MANSFIELD, ed. American civil engineers' pocket book, 3d ed il *$5 Wiley 620.8 16-6734

"There has been added in the new edition an entirely new section treating 'Harbor and river works' in six chapters, covering 96 pages. . . . Frederick R. Harris, of the Corps of civil engineers, U. S. navy, who has recently been appointed chief of the Bureau of yards and docks, was selected to write the new section. He has presented a most satisfactory treatment of the subject, including good descriptions and illustrations of typical examples in the six chapters on harbors, rivers, quays, landing piers, wet and dry docks, ferries and special works. . . . The third edition is also improved by many minor changes; the index has been revised and reset, and the new book contains 41 articles, 31 tables, 103 cuts and 120 pages more than the second edition."—Engin Rec

A L A Bkl 12:493 J1 '16

+ Engin N 75:938 My 18 '16 300w

"The new edition will undoubtedly increase the popularity of this work as the most comprehensive reference book for civil engineers."

+ Engin Rec 73:841 Je 24 '16 300w

+ Pittsburgh 21:533 N '16 60w

St Louis 14:433 D '16

MERWIN, SAMUEL. Trufflers. il *$1.35 (1½c) Bobbs 16-21399

The scene of this story is Greenwich Village, that part of New York city which poses as the Latin quarter of America. When Peter Ericson Mann writes his play, "The truffler" he thinks he is drawing a picture of Sue Wilde, the typical bachelor girl of the village, who has forsaken duty in pursuit of freedom and enjoyment. Henry Bates, known as the "Worm," gives him the idea, having culled it from a volume of Fabre, and Peter, smarting over a rebuff from Sue, puts her into his play. There is a time when Peter appears to be the hero of the story, but as it develops the Worm emerges, and at the same time it becomes apparent that Peter, in the "Truffler," has without knowing it, drawn a satiric picture of himself, and that furthermore Henry Bates probably knew it all the time.

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:392 D '16 580w

"Here is a straightforward story with very few airs and graces, and absolutely no attempt to imitate its European forbears. It gives the public very honestly what the public wants. The taste of that public may not be of the highest, it has not had much training in literature; but it is not going to let itself be bored, and it is not going to mistake chronicle for plot."

+ — Dial 61:399 N 16 '16 430w

+ Ind 88:330 N 20 '16 40w

"It is in many ways a much better novel than 'The honey bee,' clearer in thought, less drawn out, more—only the despised cliché will serve—convincing. A thoroughly worth while book, sane, unprejudiced, spiced with humor, holding one's interest from the first page to the last—a novel which can not only be read, but even re-read with pleasure and profit."

+ N Y Times 21:460 O 29 '16 1150w

"One of the most entertaining American novels that has come out in a good while, besides containing a good deal of food for thought, expressed and implied." E. P. Wyckoff

+ Pub W 90:1413 O 21 '16 500w

"The story is rather loosely put together and lacks much of the force and dramatic element of the 'Honey bee,' but it has a pleasant vein of humor, and the characters are well drawn."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 N 5 '16 470w

MEYER, EDUARD. England; its political organization and development and the war against Germany; tr. by Helene S. White. *$1.50 (2c) Ritter & co. 942 16-20564

The author of this book is professor of history in the University of Berlin. He was exchange professor at Harvard in 1909-10. The work was completed in January, 1915. The publishers say, "While we fully realize that English history is a familiar subject to most American readers, we are equally convinced that there are many among them who will follow with interest a portrayal of England's development as a state, as it appears to a German historian, an outsider of marked ability, who judges it from the German standpoint, whereas the Americans, who, as a whole, are readers of English literature only, have practically received their impressions of England and the English people exclusively from English sources." This sums up the book's chief value: it shows what Germany thinks about England.

"In the main the chapters devoted to England's political organization and development are not devoid of accurate treatment. But it is in deduction from his facts that Dr. Meyer wanders into a region of imagination."

— + Ind 89:31 Ja 1 '17 170w

"It is really too bad that vituperation of this kind mars what starts out as such a straightforward presentment of national belief."

— + N Y Times 21:493 N 19 '16 770w

MEYER, HERMANN HENRY BERNARD. Brief guide to the literature of Shakespeare. pa 50c A. L. A. 822.3 16-1878

"Excellent bibliography of editions of Shakespeare's plays, guides to study, sources, criticism, selected biographical works, books on Shakespeare's environment, on the music of Shakespeare, of stories and plays about him, and on costumes and pageants."—Wis Lib Bull

A L A Bkl 12:311 Ap '16

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:145 Mr '16 30w

MEYNELL, VIOLA. Narcissus. *$1.35 (1c) Putnam

Miss Meynell's story is a study of two brothers, bound together by ties of affection but held wide apart by differences in temperament. And this fundamental difference in character determines their destiny. What Victor passionately desires, Jimmy easily obtains. The lure and glamor of sex, which ensnare Victor, have no hold over Jimmy. And in the end Imogen, so idolatrously beloved by Victor, turns to Jimmy, finding in his calm self-sufficiency a satisfaction Victor's devotion could not supply.

"From the author of 'Lot Barrow' and 'Modern lovers' nothing may be looked for but work which is very modern in substance and distinguished in manner. She is the daughter of Alice and Wilfrid Meynell; but she is post-Victorian, perhaps a little too consciously so."

H. W. Boynton

— + Bookm 43:533 J1 '16 480w

"There is a finished but rather pale irony about this story which will not endear it either to the reader who is looking for something pleasant or to the reader who is looking for something strong."

— + Nation 102:708 Je 29 '16 550w

"The tone is so adequately maintained that every variation of light and shade tells at its true value. Which, of course, implies that the little novel is a work of art. It escapes being a work of great art by the absence of anything like sympathy of a profound and unifying sort. At its most searching moments it remains critical. It is, however, so rationally and constructively critical that one looks forward with keen expectation to some future work in which the author will come closer to the quick of human nature."

+ N Y Times 21:272 J1 2 '16 190w

+ R of Rs 54:235 Ag '16 20w

MEYNELL, WILFRID. Halt! Who's there?
(Eng title, Who goes there?). *75c (4½c)
Putnam 16-12236

A companion volume to "Aunt Sarah and the war." Much of it is made up of extracts from the diary of Pauline Vandeleur, the heroine of that story, who is now a nurse in a London hospital; and there is, too, a final note from the pen of the late Captain Tudor on "This England," written in the trenches.

"Like its predecessor, it is distinguished by its pathos, wit, and fragrant charm. The author knows the world of to-day well, and, if he were not an idealist, could be an effective satirist."

+ Ath p197 Ap '16 80w

"The book is, until you definitely lay aside the hope of a coherent and progressive story, something of a disappointment. When once you are adjusted to its disjointed miscellaneousness, however, the inevitable appeal of the fundamental theme of the book shines through even Mr. Meynell's rather over-literary style."

+ — Boston Transcript p7 Je 21 '16 500w

+ Ind 87:348 S 4 '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 Jl '16

R of Rs 54:117 Je '16 20w

"The exploitation for literary purposes of the poignant emotions of the war (of which this book is an example) is being very much overdone. . . . It is a pity that all this literary attitudinising should spoil what there is good in the book; some of it would appeal to all who are interested in Ireland's share in the war."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p155 Mr 30 '16 130w

MEZ, JOHN RICHARD, comp. Peace literature of the war: material for the study of international polity. pa gratis Am. assn. for international conciliation 172.4 16-26414

John Mez has compiled a new list of books and pamphlets published during the war. The list is annotated and the names of the new peace organizations that have been called forth by the war is appended.

A L A Bkl 12:400 Je '16

Ind 85:284 F 21 '16 50w

MICHEL, ROBERT. Political parties; tr. by Eden and Cedar Paul. *$3.50 Hearst's int. lib. 329 16-2000

"The author is professor of political economy and statistics in the University of Basle, and this work was first published in German, later in Italian, French and Japanese. Professor Michels has found that there is a three-fold root of oligarchy in party life. The psychology of the individual, the psychology of the crowd, and the social necessity of party organization constitute this unfailing germ of oligarchy. And he firmly believes that democracy, as an intellectual theory and a practical movement, has today entered upon a critical phase, from which it will be extremely difficult to discover an exit. The author does not concern himself with histories of political parties, but has set himself to consider the analysis of the nature of party, a field which he says has hardly been touched."—Boston Transcript

"The book's most serious defect consists in the subordination of everything to the proving of the author's thesis. . . . Since so much depends upon the meaning of democracy it is unfortunate that the author could not have presented his conception in clearer terms. He appears throughout to be laboring to prove the impossibility of an abstraction. . . . The translation is written in a labored style. The book is overburdened with footnotes; and the index is quite inadequate, containing references to names of persons only. . . . Its truly significant contribution to the literature of the subject, however, lies in its searching criticism of the organization and control of so-called democratic parties." E. D. Dickinson

+ — Am J Soc 22:108 Jl '16 500w

A L A Bkl 12:360 My '16

"The facts, arguments, and ideas that the author brings to his work are significant whether or not mistaken. The book as a whole may be considered as an attempt to make a cross-section study of the actual social forces at work in the organization, three million strong, of the Socialist party of Germany. The author makes his study from a hypercritical point of view, and the spirit of his book is invidious. This is its chief defect. But students of social psychology or students of the forces really at work in actual government will find the volume illuminating and charged in every page with human interest and informing facts." C. L. King

+ — Ann Am Acad 66:269 Jl '16 550w

"Occupied largely with generalizations, the author's study of the United States government has been neither careful nor comprehensive." H. S. K.

— Boston Transcript p20 D 29 '15 950w

"Professor Michels has simply given us the scientific proof of a social theory divined by Renan and more recently sketched by Émile Faguet. . . . It is a book of which the importance lies in the evidence collected and the general truth of its thesis. We criticise its implied conceptions of progressive political organisation only because it is so easy for the obsolete and the obscurantists to shake men's faith in new systems because they are not perfect; and we can foresee exactly the same evidence and the same general thesis being used to support a most sinister reaction." C. D. Burns

+ Int J Ethics 27:259 Ja '17 470w

Library Association Record 18:171 Ap 5 '16 40w

Reviewed by M. R. Cohen

+ — New Repub 8:303 O 21 '16 2200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:24 F '16

St Louis 14:45 F '16

+ — Springfield Republican p17 Mr 2 '16 200w

"The title 'Political parties' is, indeed, to a certain extent misleading, for it is not concerned with political parties in general, but almost exclusively with the socialist organizations which, on the continent at least, may be taken to represent the embattled 'democracy,' as opposed to the parties of the aristocracy and bourgeoisie. It is this fact which gives the book its peculiar value."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p290 Je 22 '16 1850w

MIDDLETON, GEORGE. Road together: a contemporary drama in four acts. *$1 Holt 812 16-19831

That the bonds which tend to make marriage indissoluble are forged by the countless little acts and contacts that make up the daily round of living together is the theme of this play. Wallace and Dora Kent have come to the point of divorce. An old lover from out Dora's past has returned and Wallace has confessed his love for another woman. But at the moment of parting each realizes that the separation is impossible. Their ten years of marriage has created an interdependence that is stronger than the mere tie of sex.

+ A L A Bkl 13:210 F '17

"All the characters seem to talk from the top layers of their minds. They become human only when it is necessary to further the plot a little, human in a humdrum sort of way. . . . His study of a group of individuals is not 'dedicated' to a thesis, it is submerged by it." H. S.

+ — New Repub 8:275 O 14 '16 630w

+ R of Rs 54:677 D '16 160w

"He has handled the theme with commendable delicacy."

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 8 '16 300w

MIKELS, ROSA M. R., ed. Short stories for high schools; ed. with introd. and notes. *90c Scribner 808.3 15-20913

"A distinguishing feature is the fact that, of the twenty-one stories, the majority are still protected by copyright. . . . The arrangement of these specimens is from simple adventure to subtle study of character, the latter presumably only for the more brilliant of the high-school age. Short prefatory notes point out the distinctive features of each selection."—Nation

"Good collection for reading, as well as for high-school courses, for which it is designed. Many of the stories are perennial demands in libraries, as Van Dyke's 'First Christmas tree,' Davis' 'Gallegher,' Clemens' 'Jumping frog,' Stockton's 'Lady or the tiger' and Page's 'Marse Chan.' Of the twenty-one authors represented, all but three are American."

+ A L A Bkl 12:374 My '16 (Reprinted from Wis Lib Bull)

+ Ind 87:234 Ag 14 '16 70w

+ Nation 102:sup490 My 4 '16 130w

MILLARD, THOMAS FRANKLIN FAIRFAX. Our Eastern question: America's contact with the Orient and the trend of relations with China and Japan. il *$3 (2c) Century 327 16-16589

The author has been for the last five years editor of the China Press (Shanghai). His purpose in writing this book has been "to extract the more pertinent and significant matters from the tremendous and complex movement of political and economic and sociological forces in the Orient, with intent to expose their directing and controlling elements and tendencies, and with especial attention to their application to America." (Introd.) Contents: A shift of policies; The revolution in China; Reconstruction in China [two chapters]; Japan's seizure of Kiaochow; Japan's aggressions in China [four chapters]; China's struggle for stability; International publicity and the Far East; Japan's modern world policy; Japan and Great Britain; Japan and the United States [three chapters]; Conditions affecting America's security; The measure of sufficiency in national preparedness; America and China; Need for a positive American policy. Various documents and international agreements are quoted in appendices.

+ A L A Bkl 13:165 Ja '17

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 23 '16 550w

"The book is especially valuable for the appendices which contain texts of all the treaties, notes, agreements and proclamations issued in connection with the events narrated."

+ Cleveland p131 N '16 50w

Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 180w

"We should not venture to say that Mr. Millard's attitude is essentially unfair toward the Japanese, but it is so uniformly and universally unkind and severe as to give the impression of a personal prejudice. . . . It would be foolish to deny the force of much of the evidence which Mr. Millard marshals."

— + N Y Times 21:367 S 17 '16 1100w

+ No Am 204:624 O '16 1250w

— + Springf'd Republican p15 S 17 '16 610w

MILLE, PIERRE. Louise and Barnavaux; tr. from the French by Bérengère Drillien. il *$1.25 (3c) Lane 16-13513

A handful of stories which portray the French colonial soldier type. The slight incidents upon which they rest grow out of the irregular romance of the soldier and the girl with the "gaze of a man, frank, free and determined, but with little of innocence and nothing of submission about it." Nemesis lays hand upon Barnavaux, touching him at his one point of pride. He gets leave of absence to go home to attend the funeral of his illegitimate child. Upon his return to the barracks he is ordered to the cells "for taking advantage of the captain, by asking and obtaining leave to attend the funeral of his son, the said son being only an illegitimate child." So is relinquished the hope of promotion.

"These stories are fresh, interesting, and life-like; also they have the merit of showing certain aspects of French military and colonial life quite unknown to the average reader. But we cannot agree with those who compare M. Pierre Milles to Mr. Kipling."

+ Ath p243 My '16 42w

"The scenes and characters to which we are introduced through him are too frequently shocking and repulsive, though it must be said, in fairness, that the tone is robust, and has none of the subtle perniciousness conspicuous in French fiction of late. . . . [It has] so many objectionable features that it is unacceptable for Catholic reading, and cannot but be distasteful to any normally sensitive reader."

— Cath World 104:110 O '16 280w

"He fell upon varied experiences, many of them pretty sordid. Far too much so for the average Anglo-Saxon reader."

— + N Y Times 21:272 Jl 2 '16 250w

"The French colonial soldier Barnavaux, now in the semi-domesticated phase has become tiresome. He does not live any more. His amorous adventures in Tonkin and Madagascar are faintly unpleasant, and a faint unpleasantness is the least pleasant of all. It is not because the commercial loves and transient affections of the soldier and the heroes of his tales are in themselves repellent, but because they are unreal and unjustified. Barnavaux himself does not exist."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p202 Ap 27 '16 520w

MILLER, ALICE (DUE) (MRS. HENRY WISE MILLER). Come out of the kitchen! il *$1.25 (2½c) Century 16-10120

When Burton Crane rented the Revelly place for the hunting season, it was with the understanding that servants were to be included in the equipment of the house. Four servants, highly recommended by their late employers the "Crosslett-Billingtons" are at once brought forward by the all-persuasive agent and the lease is signed. Long before Crane learns that there are no "Crosslett-Billingtons," he discovers peculiarities in his staff, of servants. Smithfield, the butler, it is true, is the very perfection of butlerhood. And Jane-Ellen the cook, in spite of her exquisite daintiness and amazing beauty, can cook. But Lily, the housemaid preserves a haughty demeanor that Mrs. Falkener, Crane's possible mother-in-law, finds insufferable. She is even thought guilty of purposely pricking Mrs. Falkener with a pin. And Brindlebury, the general utility boy, decidedly doesn't know his place. The reader will guess the secret long before Crane does, but this will not detract from his interest in the merry comedy of the man who fell in love with his cook.

+ A L A Bkl 12:431 Je '16

"All improbable, not to say impossible, but Mrs. Miller gets some amusement out of rather childish extravagance." P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ — Bookm 53:538 Jl '16 190w

"Not a romance, but an extravaganza. A pleasing interlude among the many ferociously serious pieces of fiction of the year." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 60:507 My 25 '16 590w

+ Lit D 53:75 Jl 8 '16 200w

"Its mirth-provoking quality is essentially that of true stage comedy."

+ Nation 103:110 Ag 3 '16 160w

"Has excellent dramatic material in it." M. G. S.

+ N Y Call p14 My 21 '16 120w

"Mr. Meylan's smart and fetching illustrations, of which there are a dozen, deserve commendation."

+ N Y Times 21:272 Jl 2 '16 380w

+ R of Rs 54:235 Ag '16 80w

"The story is light, and the absurdities developing keep the reader in high good humor throughout."

+ Springf'd Republican p13 My 21 '16 330w

"A very pretty bit of lively comedy, good reading for all ages."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:227 My '16 40w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

MILLER, DAYTON CLARENCE. Science of musical sounds. il *$2.50 (4½c) Macmillan 534.3 16-9561

Eight lectures on "Sound analysis" rewritten for presentation in book form. They give the results of the author's study in the field of sound and of sound waves in air. Chapters: Sound waves, simple harmonic motion, noise and tone; Characteristics of tones; Methods of recording and photographing sound waves; Analysis and synthesis of harmonic curves; Influence of horn and diaphragm on sound waves; Correcting and interpreting sound analyses; Tone qualities of musical instruments; Physical characteristics of the vowels; Synthetic vowels and words, relations of the art and science of music.

+ A L A Bkl 13:16 O '16

"Not only do the experiments of Professor Miller have interest for scientists and musicians, but there is also the wide range of readers, not strictly speaking musicians or scientists, who will find in his study subject matter for thought. He gives here the results of his years of study and elaborate research."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 24 '16 250w
Cleveland p135 N '16 60w

"The Lowell lectures for 1914. . . . There is to-day no greater authority on the relations between music and acoustics than Professor Miller. . . . While he has often given his results to learned societies, this is his first popular exposition of the subject."

+ Nation 104:23 Ja 4 '17 180w

"The work includes a valuable bibliographic appendix of more than a hundred references. The type and illustrations are large and clear, and the book should prove welcome to a wide circle of readers and find an honoured place in every acoustical library." E. H. B.

+ Nature 97:519 Ag 24 '16 320w

N Y Br Lib News 3:78 My '16 20w

"The only chapter that might seem formidable to the beginner is the one on the analysis and synthesis of harmonic waves, higher mathematics having, however, been sparingly introduced. . . . Provided with annotated, references and many attractive illustrations."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p18 Ag '16 150w

+ N Y Times 21:333 Ag 27 '16 50w

"Non-technical, but accurate, and may be accepted as the latest authority on this phase of sound investigation. Certain work on recording and photographing sound waves is entirely new and made possible only by the apparatus devised by the author."

+ Pittsburgh 21:491 N '16 100w

+ R of Rs 54:346 S '16 150w

Spec 117:242 Ag 26 '16 100w

"The volume brings credit to all concerned. . . . But the writer, in his preface, states that he has designed his book for the 'general public.' It is with some regret that we feel that—unless the 'general public' on the other side is some centuries in advance of the one we know here—the book is unlikely to fill the gap which has been agape so many years and should have been filled so long ago."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p317 Jl 6 '16 950w

MILLER, EDWIN LILLIE. Practical English composition. 4 bks bk 1-3 ea *35c Houghton 808 (15-22220)

A series of four small volumes designed for use in composition classes in the 8th, 9th or 10th school years. "In each volume will be found some exercises that involve each of the four forms of discourse; but emphasis is placed in Books 1 and 2 on description and narration, in Book 3 on exposition, and in Book 4 on argumentation. Similarly, while stress is laid in Book 1 on letterwriting, in Book 2 on journalism, in Book 3 on literary effect, and in Book 4 on the civic aspects of composition, all these phases of the subject receive attention in each volume." (Preface) Oral and written work are both provided for and emphasis is placed on the gathering and organizing of material.

+ Dial 61:32 Je 22 '16 180w (Review of bk 2)

"Three small volumes (one for each of the first three years in the high school), upon which it would be very hard to improve. Attractive in appearance, compactly phrased, full of humor, never getting far away from good literature, giving specific, interesting problems and sensible directions for solving them, these books emphasize all the legitimate attractions of the subject and omit senseless formalities."

+ Nation 102:sup490 My 4 '16 120w (Review of bks 1-3)

MILLER, GEORGE ABRAM. Historical introduction to mathematical literature. diags *$1.60 Macmillan 510 16-3615

"Prof. G. A. Miller's work is a valuable contribution to the growing body of literature that aims at giving orientation in the general field of modern mathematics rather than mastery of a single branch of the science. Its 300 pages . . . present with laudable regard to perspective a large amount of information respecting mathematical literature in general, certain historical questions, and fundamental developments in arithmetic, geometry, and algebra." (Nation) "Brief sketches of twenty-five leading mathematicians are given in one of the chapters." (Science)

"Annotated bibliography (15p.). Of interest to all teachers of mathematics."

+ A L A Bkl 12:460 Jl '16

+ Cleveland p38 Ap '16 20w

Ind 87:242 Ag 12 '16 40w

"A specially noteworthy feature of the work is a chapter of over fifty pages giving an account of twenty-five of the most eminent mathematicians ranging in time from Euclid to Henri Poincaré."

+ Nation 102:sup500 My 4 '16 120w

N Y Br Lib News 3:45 Mr '16

"Excellent non-technical guide to the literature of mathematics."

+ Pittsburgh 21:492 N '16 20w

"This valuable work is decidedly unique. It is not a history of mathematics, yet contains much accurate historical information. It is not a bibliography of mathematics, yet it says much about books, journals and dictionaries. It is not a volume on mathematical recreations, yet is most interesting reading." Florian Cajori

+ Science n s 43:713 My 19 '16 500w

"Chapter 2 (42 pages) presents a large amount of interesting information respecting types of recent literature, societies, international congresses, periodicals, works of reference, mathematical tables and collected works. A valuable chapter (22 pages) on algebra is historically rich in its handling of the fundamental theorem of algebra, the notion of determinant, numerical equations, domains of rationality, the beginnings of invariant theory, and the tale of the binomial theorem." C. J. Keyser

+ Science n s 44:27 Jl 7 '16 900w

MILLER, HERBERT ADOLPHUS. School and the immigrant. 25c (1½c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-11597

This report points out that Cleveland is one of the "foreign" cities of the United States. Of the fifty cities having a population of over 100,000, only seven have a larger proportion of foreign inhabitants. The report shows what the Cleveland schools are doing toward the Americanization of this group. Contents: Cleveland as a foreign city; School children from non-English-speaking homes; Efforts of national groups to preserve their languages; Characteristics of national groups; Problem of education for the foreign children; The adult immigrant and the school.

+ Ind 87:349 S 4 '16 50w

Pittsburgh 21:363 Jl '16

+ R of Rs 54:119 Jl '16 80w

St Louis 15:10 Ja '17

MILLER, LUCIUS HOPKINS. Bergson and religion. *$1.50 (3c) Holt 194 16-14467

The author's method is to take up by one the outstanding features of the Bergsonian philosophy and consider them in the light of their bearing on religious belief. What would be the religious result of the complete acceptance of the philosophy, he asks. There are six chapters: Preliminary observations; Bergson the protestant; How do we know reality? Creative evolution; Intuition and the primacy of spirit; Individual freedom; Immortality. His conclusions are to the effect that there is no incompatibility between Bergson's philosophy and religion; on the other hand there is much in the philosophy that should prove revitalizing to religious belief.

+ A L A BkI 13:198 F '17

"The book will be helpful to those seeking to know something of the relation of Bergson's philosophy to Christianity. It is trustworthy, as the author shows no desire to make Bergson's philosophy more Christian than the facts justify." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Je 17 '16 450w
Ind 88:31 O 2 '16 250w

"Since Professor Miller's exegesis of Bergson is extremely easy-going, his philosophical acumen slight, and his logical methods far from rigorous, he experiences little difficulty in achieving the reconciliation which the reader from the outset perceives to be foreordained. . . . The style of the book is that of the popular sermonizer, at once rhetorical and slipshod."

— Nation 103:328 O 5 '16 230w
N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

+ R of Rs 54:344 S '16 160w

"The author is assistant professor of Biblical instruction at Princeton."
St Louis 15:6 Ja '17

MILLER, MARION MILLS. American debate. 2v ea *$2 Putnam 342.7 16-21138

A two volume work presenting "a history of political and economic controversy in the United States, with critical digests of leading debates." The first volume is devoted to Colonial, state and national rights, 1761-1861, the second to The land and slavery questions, 1607-1860. The first volume thus deals with political controversies, the second with economic. "Abstracts of great debates, with verbatim quotations of the most significant passages in the speeches, form the nuclei of the book. These are introduced by recitals of the events leading up to the debates and expositions of the issues involved, and are accompanied by a running critical comment by the author upon the conduct of the argument and the ability of the debaters, which is occasionally enforced and supplemented by opinions, chiefly contemporaneous, of other critics." (Preface) In 1913 the author edited a work in fourteen volumes on "Great debates in American history."

"A careful examination of these two volumes leaves much doubt as to their practical usefulness. . . . Positive errors of statement are few and relatively unimportant. One looks in vain, however, for evidence that the historical literature of the last twenty-five years has been much used." W: MacDonald

+ Am Hist R 22:399 Ja '17 580w
+ Educ R 53:201 F '17 80w

"We cannot think that Marion M. Miller's 'American debate' will be likely to serve any very useful historical purpose. . . . The scheme is large, but the result is disappointing. . . . With all possible allowance for the right of an author to select his topics, the fragmentary character of Mr. Miller's work is at once apparent."

— Nation 103:469 N 16 '16 430w

N Y Br Lib News 3:138 S '16 20w

"Mr. Miller has not brought to light anything previously hidden to historians but he has arranged familiar material in an interesting and useful fashion. . . . It is to be hoped that Mr. Miller will carry his work further and deal with the period from 1860 to the present."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:666 D '16 200w

"The author's method has resulted in bringing to light and arranging in convenient form a great deal of important material that might otherwise have remained buried in government documents."

+ R of Rs 54:570 N '16 140w

MILLER, WARREN HASTINGS. Boys' book of hunting and fishing; practical camping-out, game-fishing, and wing-shooting; foreword by Dan Beard. il *$1.25 (2c) Doran 799 16-13667

A first-rate manual on the science and art of the woodsman. It tells the boy of twelve to eighteen years of age "how to start right in learning these fine arts of the outdoors, and how to get tackle and equipment which will not be out of reach of a young fellow's pocketbook." It is the account of how an expert hunter and fisher taught his son the lore of the woods, and, incidentally, it is valuable for every man's son. It points the way to a maximum of pleasure at a minimum cost. A closing chapter gives an older camper the benefit of experience in making permanent summer camps.

+ A L A BkI 13:40 O '16

"Thorough practical."

+ Ind 88:406 D 4 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:108 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:333 Ag 27 '16 60w

"The author is editor of Field and Stream." G. S. C.

+ St Louis 14:407 N '16 70w

"Any boy will understand the book. It is written by a man who has certainly been a boy himself, and one who has a boy of his own. It is not a book of dry instructions. Mr. Miller has given logical reasons for the methods and equipment which he recommends."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 18 '16 190w

MILLIQUID, MAURICE. Ruling caste and frenzied trade in Germany; with an introd. by Sir F: Pollock. *$1 (3c) Houghton 940.91 (Eng ed 16-6168)

The author writes as a neutral, believing it the duty of neutrals "to join in a minute investigation of the history of the crisis, and to bring to the task, not cold indifference, but impartial judgment, exact analysis and scientific precision." His examination of the causes back of the war follows two lines. First he makes an analysis of the psychology of caste and the reasons for its power over the masses as a means of explaining the enthusiasm with which the German people as a whole rose to support a war forced upon them by a small upper class. Next he studies the economic causes in a section on "Germany's aims at conquest by trade and by war." In this section he considers: Reasons for Germany's action; The ends in view; The means employed; Germany's financial system; The obstacles in her path; Why Germany was alarmed.

A L A BkI 13:116 D '16

"While it is an important work, original in its conception and vigorous in argument, one cannot but feel that the author, though logical enough in his conclusions, has reasoned from premises that are not always substantiated."

. . . In the opinion of the reviewer the work is open to two fundamental criticisms. In the first place, the economic development of Germany at home and abroad is described as something wholly sinister and underhanded and unlike that of any other nation; in the second place, the author fails to show just how a war, even if successful, would, in the opinion of Germany, rehabilitate the waning fortunes of the ruling class, which in his opinion does not consist merely of a chosen few but includes the great middle class as well." K. F. Geiser

+ Ann Am Acad 69:287 Ja '17 280w

"Economic students will scarcely question the substantial accuracy of M. Millioud's observa-

MILLIoud, MAURICE—Continued
 tions as they touch the state of German business enterprise in the years immediately preceding the war." Thorstein Veblen

+ J Pol Econ 24:1019 D '16 400w

Lit D 52:1708 Je 10 '16 170w

"To some the surprising thing is not to be found in what the author of this work says, but in the fact that he should be practically the first to say it in the clear and precise terms of the economic thinker. . . . Professor Millioud's discussion of these methods inevitably leads him to a discussion of German banking. We can recall no one who has handled this subject with such deftness and insight as the author of the present work."

+ Nation 103:37 J1 13 '16 1750w

"Of admirably calm and judicial temper."

+ N Y Times 21:205 My 14 '16 270w

R of Rs 53:756 Je '16 70w

"M. Maurice Millioud is professor of sociology at Lausanne."

+ Sat R 121:209 F 26 '16 1700w

Spec 116:635 My 20 '16 380w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p62 F 10 '16 1250w

MILLS, ENOS ABIJAH. Story of Scotch. II
 *50c (6c) Houghton 636.7 16-18586

The author says: "Scotch and I were companions through eight years. Winter and summer we explored the rugged mountains of the Continental divide. Often we were cold; more often we were hungry. Together we fought our way through blizzards and forest fires. Never did he complain and at all times he showed remarkable intelligence and absolute fidelity." He has written of this loyal collie in his books, "Wild life on the Rockies" and "The spell of the Rockies," and in an article contributed to Country Life in America. These sketches, with some new matter in addition, are brought together in this book to tell the complete story of Scotch's life. There are eight illustrations from photographs.

+ A L A Bkl 13:177 Ja '17

"It is a moving little story. . . . From it also comes a breath of the air sweeping over the snowy summit of Long's Peak, bringing with it a sense of invigoration and blessed aloofness."

+ Boston Transcript p5 N 22 '16 220w

"Tragic only in its ending is this canine biography; the life as a whole of the devoted collie was a bright and rather joyously eventful one."

+ Dial 61:480 N 30 '16 190w

"Those who have read 'Bob, son of Battle,' and 'Greyfriar's Bobby' will not put 'The story of Scotch' in that same class of beloved dog stories. But it is a sincere little book."

+ N Y Times 21:487 N 12 '16 80w

"A delightful dog story which has the additional merit of being true." J. M. S.

+ St Louis 14:393 N 16 12w

+ Springfield Republican p7 N 25 '16 110w

"Good enough to stand beside John Muir's 'Stickeen.'"

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 40w

MILNE, JAMES. News from "Somewhere." II
 *$1.50 (4c) Putnam 940.91 16-9040

A series of sketches written as the war progressed from August, 1914 to September, 1915. The book is made up, to quote the author's words, of "things seen, heard and thought during travels at home, on sea and over-sea, in the war-time which we call 'Armageddon.'" Some of these things of which he writes are: The new London; A khaki countryside; Booking to battle; Beyond the firing line; The road to France; As the French see us; The red edge of war; The faith within us.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 3 '16 110w

"The sketches are slight enough, but they have a certain value as throwing sidelights on the great struggle, and the historian at some future date may be glad of just such color as they give to the big events of the period. Now they come as a welcome relief from the ordinary run of war books."

+ N Y Times 21:119 Ap 2 '16 180w

"Markedly successful in rendering the moods and emotions of ordinary people in whom this tremendous catastrophe has revealed unsuspected depths of fortitude and resolution."

+ Pratt p44 Ap '16 24w (Reprinted from Nation [London])

"To all who love the Scot and Scotland it will be very welcome. The style is delightful, having the quality of ease and being full of word pictures."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 140w

MINITER, MRS. EDITH MAY (DOWE). Our Natupski neighbors. *$1.35 (1c) Holt 16-21054

The Natupskis, from Poland, settle in West Holly, Massachusetts, having bought the Judson Buckland farm for two hundred dollars down and a large mortgage. The Natupskis bring West Holly its first experience of the immigration problem and the story is developed with considerable humor at the expense of both alien and American. The second part of the book has to do with the development of the Natupski children, who all, in one way or another, become Americanized. And while Statia Natupski learns American ways from Nancy Slocumb, Nancy and her husband, Abner, and the others learn that the Polanders have something to teach them.

+ A L A Bkl 13:177 Ja '17

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:394 D '16 450w

Boston Transcript p8 O 25 '16 400w

"A human document that readers will not soon forget."

+ Ind 88:466 D 11 '16 60w

"It is a book of extravagant humor dealing with a very real substance." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 103:507 N 30 '16 130w

"A book of really original flavor."

+ Nation 103:565 D 14 '16 270w

"The book will furnish amusement for the lover of sober fun and food for the thoughtful." G. H. H.

+ N Y Call p14 D 24 '16 480w

"The difficulties inherent in the management of so many characters have been too much for the author, and the people become marionettes. The book has scarcely any plot, and is, in fact, an extremely interesting document on the Polish immigrant in New England, covered with an extremely thin coating of fiction."

+ N Y Times 22:13 Ja 14 '17 270w

"The book is one to command the attention of the discriminating."

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 640w

MITCHELL, DAVID. Schools and classes for exceptional children. 25c (1c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-5598

The author of this section of the Cleveland education survey report is professor of psychology in the University of Pennsylvania. "Cleveland," he says in introduction, "has been a pioneer in providing advantages for children who did not fit into the regular grades. In more than one instance this city had the first class of a type in the country." Contents: Provision for exceptional children in Cleveland; Why we have special classes; The socially competent; The socially incompetent; The selection of feeble-minded children; What should be done for the feeble-minded; Summary and recommendations.

Cleveland p22 Mr '16 40w

Ind 88:34 O 2 '16 60w

Pittsburgh 21:236 My '16

MITCHELL, EDWIN VALENTINE. Hospitals and the law. $1.75 Rebman 362 16-247

"The work considers only the general propositions of law relating to various kinds of health institutions and is intended primarily for those who are professionally or otherwise interested in such establishments. The author lays particular stress on the corporate rights of health institutions, because the majority of such institutions in America are organized as corporations, especially where the object sought is wholly or in part charitable. The author discusses the rights and responsibilities of hospitals, the legal status of officials and attendants, the law regarding the administration and regulation, the foundation and organization of health institutions and the rights invested in them to procure remuneration for services rendered and funds for general support. A chapter is also devoted to the law regulating military and naval hospitals."—Springfield Republican

"Copious citation of court cases involving duties and responsibilities attaching to hospitals and their officials and attendants make this an interesting as well as a valuable brief summary."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Ja 12 '16 210w

"In addition to being well adapted as a reference work for officials connected with health institutions, it should prove an invaluable text book for medical students and undergraduate nurses."

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 11 '16 220w

MITCHELL, RUTH COMFORT (MRS. WILLIAM SANBORN YOUNG). Night court and other verse. *$1 Century 811 16-22204

The title poem "The night court" originally appeared in the Century. Other notable poems in the collection are, "The vinegar man," "The old maid," "He went for a soldier," "The sin eater," "The subway," and "Barbara," and the book is concluded with a little play, "The sweetmeat game," with the scene laid in Chinatown, San Francisco. The book has one quality of Americanism, small as it is, it is not sectional. The author seems to have known both the east and the west of our country, and she can voice the spirit of either.

+ A L A Bkl 13:211 F '17

"Her highest poetic quality is a little difficult to describe because it is at once both literal and symbolic. There is no one among our poets with quite her power of compressing the abstract and expanding the concrete within the same emotional furnace." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 14 '16 1600w

+ Lit D 54:138 Ja 20 '17 470w

"It is good to come across real stuff—to find a woman who is a poet, and who can put into a fit form the poetry that inspires her."

+ N Y Times 21:485 N 12 '16 670w

"Her poems may stir us to approval or to condemnation; the point is, that they stir us. As nearly as I can define her power, it lies in the fact that she herself feels life too keenly to leave her readers indifferent." A. J. Burr

+ Poetry Review 2:25 D '16 1300w

"The woman's reaction toward social conditions is strongly expressed in vigorous, often picturesque verse. In quieter mood are the poems which sing the beauties of foreign sights and sounds."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:408 N '16 60w

MITCHELL, SUSAN L. George Moore. (Irishmen of to-day) *$1 (3½c) Dodd

Miss Mitchell, who is one of the younger Irish poets associated with the Irish literary revival, writes entertainingly of George Moore, the man, the literary artist and the Irishman. Women, she thinks, are less offended than are men at Mr. Moore's disregard of conventions. There is something of the naughty boy about him that wins forgiveness. "Is there a little devil in Mr. Moore that makes him want to annoy? Most of us owned one in our early days, but grown-up obligations made us put the chain on him. Mr. Moore has never grown up."

"This study brings the reader into almost personal contact with Moore and his Irish friends. The author is appreciative of Moore's fine qualities, but realizes also the faults of taste and limitations of the man."

+ A L A Bkl 13:219 F '17

"Miss Mitchell, in spite of an occasional tendency to linguistic cleverness, is a very sound critic so far as Mr. George Moore is concerned. She understands his preoccupation with 'the scaffolding of life,' and his excessive and even self-sacrificing love of his literary art; and she is able, therefore, to reconcile the man (whom she knows and reads accurately) with his books—a feat that seems to be beyond the power of most people."

+ Ath p484 O '16 150w

"Its brevity embodies the soul of its humor."

E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 30 '16 950w

"She has a good deal of shrewd criticism; and she has an intimate and entertaining literary manner."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p491 O 12 '16 140w

MLYNARSKI, FELIX JOHN. Problems of the coming peace. 75c (1½c) Polish book importing co., 83 2d av., N. Y. 940.91 16-12893

The only basis for permanent peace is justice. Terms of peace in which advantage goes to the physical victor in war, only generate hatred, bitterness and desire for revenge which sooner or later lead to another war. It is from this standpoint that the author, whose nation is one that has suffered injustice, approaches the question of the settlement of the problems of the warring nations. He discusses: The Turkish question; The part of Austria-Hungary; The future of Warsaw; The causes of the war; The peace tribunal. The author was a delegate of the Polish Supreme national committee to America.

N Y Br Lib News 3:26 F '16 20w

"Unfortunately the book is little more than a tirade against Russia, and the solutions of the author may in places bear revision."

— Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 200w

MODERN essays. *$1.40 Longmans 824

"Although three of its pages are devoted to 'Books in wartime,' the collection of 'Modern essays' reprinted from the editorial columns of the London Times is agreeably and intentionally free from matter of only ephemeral significance. As Professor J. W. Mackail says in introducing the book, 'the "third leaders" in The Times of which this volume is a selection are meant . . . to turn the reader from affairs and interests of the moment to a consideration "of man, of nature, and of human life" in their larger, more permanent aspect.' " (Dial) "Some of the titles indicate the scope of the collection: 'Of understanding others,' 'On giving advice,' 'Meanness and its motive,' 'The efficient manner,' 'Two kinds of optimism,' 'The rod and the child,' 'Children in war time.' " (Boston Transcript)

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 5 '16 170w

+ Cath World 104:262 N '16 210w

"Occasional classical allusions or quotations betray, most welcome, the university man behind the pen. It is a book for the odd moments of leisure, not for continuous reading."

+ Dial 60:221 Mr 2 '16 290w

"A collection of sometimes wise, sometimes witty and always pleasant papers from the editorial columns of the London Times."

+ Ind 86:185 My 1 '16 50w

"One of the brightest of these little essays attempts to destroy that popular hero of press and forum, the Plain man. There are such men. In fact, we may say that it was a group of Plain men who wrote these eighty-two essays for the Times. They take a topic from the news, but they carry it into the still water, apart from the heady current of events. They feel deeply, but their feelings are disciplined and sobered by a general and relatively impersonal consideration 'of man, of nature, and of human life.' One hears the conscience of the Plain man speaking in the essay on 'Children in wartime.'"

+ Nation 102:285 Mr 9 '16 580w

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

MODERN Germany in relation to the great war, by various German writers; tr. by W: W. Whitelock. *$2 (1c) Kennerley 940.91 16-14354

This book is a translation of "Deutschland und der Weltkrieg," published in Germany in 1915. The chapters were completed, for the most part, in March, 1915, before Italy had seceded from the Triple alliance. It is a presentation of the civilization or Kultur of Germany and Austria, made through a collection of essays written by professors in German and Austrian universities, many of them past or present servants of the state, or by government officials. "The war is of secondary importance to the general purpose of the book, which is to reveal and express Germany to the world in terms of German civilization and German social vision." (Introd.) Contents: Germany's position in the world; Germany's allies; Our enemies' policy of force; The causes and the outbreak of the war; The spirit of the war. A great many footnotes in the original book have been omitted from this American edition and there are a few other differences, among them the addition of later information on Germany's economic position.

A L A Bkl 13:165 Ja '17

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 140w

"The book constitutes the most pro-German argument that has yet been presented to the American public."

Dial 61:217 S 21 '16 260w

Ind 88:26 O 2 '16 150w

"One of the complaints most frequently made by Germans is that Americans have not the means of judging Germany fairly. . . . With the issue of the present closely printed volume the complaint might well cease. We now have in English Germany's most authoritative word."

+ Lit D 53:195 Jl 22 '16 280w

"The value of the book is to be found in the lucid presentation it makes of the German conception of German civilization, ideals, achievements, and humanity. Germany pictures Germany in the essays of these university professors, and the picture is interesting and important."

+ N Y Times 21:261 Je 25 '16 400w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 80w

MOFFETT, CLEVELAND (LANGSTON). Conquest of America; a romance of disaster and victory, U. S. A., 1921, A. D., based on extracts from the diary of James E. Langston. il *$1.50 (2c) Doran 16-10122

The war for which America is now getting ready to prepare comes in the year 1921. The attacking power is Germany with the crown prince in command. America is totally unprepared to resist but these words from the lips of the crown prince, standing with bared head and with tears streaming down his face (p303), indicate the outcome, "I yield," he said in broken tones. "I can not stand out any longer. I will do as you wish, sir." "To the victors belong the spoils" is General Wood's generous and patriotic reply. The story is a plea "for adequate military protection for the United States."

"Of course, for the purposes of general and popular consumption the author did not dare to end his story in any other way; but it is gravely to be doubted whether any veteran army, once securely established on these shores, could be gotten rid of by such spontaneous, overnight work as he employs for the ends of his plot. Our great inventors are great men, but they are not—the opinions of those opponents of adequate armaments notwithstanding—wizards of super-human power."

— Army and Navy Journal 53:1184 My 13 '16 230w

"Avowedly fiction, but fiction of too possible a sort to be exactly enjoyable. . . . If his fiction be fanciful—perhaps sensational—his reasoning is sound. It is a book for Americans to read, and ponder."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 10 '16 400w

"As full of thrills as the most excitable and fearful patriot need ask. Really we have here a sort of elite directory of 'the military heart of America,' and if all the prominent Americans named in the tale, as hostages or otherwise, get about the business of preparedness, this invasion will never be."

— + Ind 86:252 My 15 '16 160w

Nation 102:437 Ap 20 '16 600w

"Not much more is required of such a book than a knack of narrative and a certain plausibility, and Mr. Moffett possesses these, but he has committed one very grave fault. He has introduced as one of the chief characters an American naval officer who betrays his country at the crisis of her existence for the sake of a foreign adventuress. . . . It is readable enough, but it might be suggested that in a book of such evident purpose as this it is somewhat illogical to show the enemy overthrown by the chances of invention; for to dispel reliance on such chances as these is the true aim of the apostles of preparedness."

— + N Y Times 21:148 Ap 16 '16 300w

R of Rs 53:757 Je '16 150w

"Granting Mr. Moffett's preposterous premises, the narrative is rather vividly worked out. It is time that the hysteria of 'preparedness' literature subsided."

— + Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 210w

MOLESWORTH, MRS. MARY LOUISA (STEWART) (ENNIS GRAHAM, pseud.). Edmée. il *$1.25 Macmillan

"Mrs. Molesworth is a veteran in the art of story telling. A host of what are now middle-aged readers enjoyed in Victorian nurseries 'Carrots; just a little boy.' The story of 'Edmée' was first published under the title of 'The little old portrait.' . . . The portrait was that of a little girl, the great-grandmother of a young Edmée, and the story is told as a special treat to her and her brothers." (Sat R) "Mrs. Molesworth makes the time of the French revolution very clear. Not neglecting the fearfulness of that dreadful period she has managed to keep the book from abounding in grisly horror. She shows that, no matter how awful conditions may be, life still goes on and rays of sunshine flicker through the gloom." (N Y Times)

"A charming little book, which can be read with interest by 'grownups.' Mrs. Molesworth is to be congratulated on 'Edmée,'—for it is no small feat to accomplish a historical background and an entertaining story told in fine simplicity."

+ N Y Times 22:5 Ja 7 '17 240w

+ Sat R 122:sup6 D 9 '16 250w

MONROE, ANNE SHANNON. Happy Valley. il *$1.80 (2c) McClurg 16-11579

A story of modern pioneer life in Oregon, life hard but successful. Billy Brent, an eastern boy of good family but with an inherited craving for drink, is disowned by his grandfather and takes up an Oregon claim. He falls in with old Mr. and Mrs. Clark who have pioneered in several states, gains courage and self-restraint, marries Susie, the daughter of these helpful people, and settles down to ranch life.

"It moves slowly as the work of the pioneers themselves and really gives much more of an idea of the life, while it may not be as thrilling as other western stories."

+ A L A Bkl 13:35 O '16

"The spirit of the book is one of fine exhilaration bred by arduous labor, by love of wide horizons, and the indomitable will of man's finest instincts. It is certain to please those readers who seek entertainment, rather than literature, in their lighter reading."

+ Dial 61:108 Ag 15 '16 180w

+ N Y Times 21:264 Je 25 '16 250w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 40w

MONTGOMERY, EDWARD GERRARD. Pro-ductive farm crops. (Lippincott's farm manuals) il *$1.75 Lippincott 633 16-6340

A book designed for use by students having some practical knowledge of crop production and by farmers as a work of reference. "The author has endeavored to develop the fundamental principles of crop production, as demonstrated by practical experience." (Preface) All farm crops are treated, including corn, wheat and other small grains, cotton, flax, potatoes, the forage crops, root crops, and tobacco. The author is professor of farm crops in Cornell university.

"One of the best treatises in print, designed for classroom use. It is too technical and detailed for the average farmer, but would be a good book for library reference in communities where the farmers use the library for such aid. Excellent illustrative material and index."

+ A L A Bkl 12:460 J1 '16 (Reprinted from Wis Lib Bull)

+ Cleveland p113 Ag '16 20w

N Y Br Lib News 3:47 Mr '16

Pittsburgh 21:499 N '16 20w

MONTGOMERY, MRS. GRACE GREENWOOD CHANDLER. Modern auction in ten lessons. il *$1.25 Scribner 795 16-906

"No new or startling theories are advanced in 'Modern auction,' but the whole attention is devoted to outlining a sound basis for play that should prove especially attractive to those who desire to learn definite rules. The subjects taken up include the declaration as made by each of the four players, the way to count a hand for an original bid and for the assistance it will give to one's partner's bid, doubling, leads and discards, and the play of the hands. The various laws of auction are included in the volume."—Springfield Republican

N Y Br Lib News 3:44 Mr '16

"In the form of questions and answers with a list of laws approved and adopted by the Whist club, New York, 1915." G. A. T.

+ St Louis 14:237 Je '16 20w

"The modifications of the game since the issuance of the new count are gone into carefully, and the book presents in convenient and compact form the accepted methods for playing the game to win the largest possible number of rubbers. The question and answer style is used throughout. Nullo, to many people a fascinating count, are not mentioned in the book."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 23 '16 190w

MONTGOMERY, ROBERT HIESTER. Auditing, theory and practice. $5 Ronald 657 16-5971

"The most important feature of the second edition of 'Auditing, theory and practice' which distinguishes it from the edition of 1912 is the appendix of about one hundred pages dealing with the federal income tax. . . . This appendix supersedes the chapter on 'The federal tax on corporations' which appeared in the first edition. The chapters on 'The auditor's qualifications,' 'The auditor's duties,' and 'Ethical duties and legislation,' and the collection of C. P. A. examination questions are also omitted. The chapter on 'Liabilities of auditors' of the first edition is summarized in the second edition in a few paragraphs upon the legal responsibility of auditors. . . . A few unimportant changes in the order of chapters and sections and a few minor additions, including the fuller treatment of systems of internal check preparation of charts, and statements required by banks, and the insertion in the chapters on balance-sheet audits of brief discussions on partnerships and acceptances, have also been made."—J Pol Econ

"Through the use of thinner paper and flexible leather binding, the new edition is much less cumbersome than the old."

+ A L A Bkl 12:493 J1 '16

"In this revised edition Mr. Montgomery, by keeping his material 'down to the minute,' still retains his preëminence as an authority on the subject of auditing in this country." E. P. M.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:306 S '16 170w

"Because of its clear exposition and its admirable blending of the presentation of advanced auditing theory and practical suggestions, this book continues to occupy in America the highest place among general treatises upon the subject of auditing."

+ J Pol Econ 24:734 J1 '16 280w

MONYPENNY, WILLIAM FLAVELLE, and BUCKLE, GEORGE EARLE, eds. Life of Benjamin Disraeli, earl of Beaconsfield. 4v il *$3 Macmillan (10-25373)
v 4 1855-1868.

The biography begun by W. F. Monypenny is being continued by Mr. Buckle. "The fourth volume of the life of Disraeli gives us an opportunity of judging him during a long period as one of the principal men in opposition, when he was not actually the leader of the Opposition. True, in this period Disraeli was also in office—he was twice chancellor of the exchequer, and at the end climbed to 'the top of the greasy pole,' as he called it, and succeeded Lord Derby as prime minister. Nevertheless he is seen mainly and characteristically as a member of the Opposition from 1855 to 1868." (Spec) "On the human and social and literary side of Disraeli we do not get much that is novel. There are a few good anecdotes and a sprinkling of clever sayings." (Nation)

"Its fascination will carry its great volume and its personal and political detail. . . . But there is one other reason for its distinction. It is more than a life of Disraeli. From 1858 the book tells the story of the life of Mrs. Disraeli; and Mr. Buckle, largely by the extent to which he has drawn upon letters, has given us an admirable picture of the home life of the Disraelis and of Mrs. Disraeli's part in her husband's political career." E. Porritt

+ Am Hist R 22:374 Ja '17 1700w

A L A Bkl 13:80 N '16

Ath p271 Je '16 1100w

+ Ind 89:114 Ja 15 '17 400w

+ Lit D 53:615 S 9 '16 1050w

"This volume could have been greatly cut down without injury. Mr. Buckle seems to forget that it is a life of Disraeli which he is writing, not a history of his times. . . . What is new in the account here given is the evidence that Queen Victoria strongly desired a liberal enlargement of the franchise. Letters from her printed in this volume, show that she feared something like a revolution if a generous reform bill were not passed. On this point Mr. Buckle gives us many more documents than did John Morley in his life of Gladstone."

+ Nation 103:83 J1 27 '16 1000w

"Mr. Buckle has provided the studies from which a portrait may ultimately be drawn. His work lacks finish and delicacy; and it must be regretfully admitted that he is hardly a man of ideas. Yet each volume of his work grows more arresting—the Sphinx somehow comes to solve his own riddle and the less we find ourselves baffled by the enigma of his personality the more lovable and significant does he become." H. J. Laski

New Repub 9:sup30 N 18 '16 1200w

"One of the most interesting features of this biography is the extracts from Disraeli's letters."

+ N Y Times 21:293 J1 23 '16 1800w

+ R of Rs 54:347 S '16 260w

Reviewed by A. A. Baumann

+ Sat R 121:492 My 20 '16 1300w

+ Spec 116:606 My 13 '16 3500w

+ Springf'd Republican p13 N 12 '16 2050w

MOON, FREDERICK FRANKLIN. Book of forestry. il *$1.75 Appleton 634.9 16-22882

A book written in the interest of forest preservation. Part 1 is devoted to a discussion of forests and forestry, with chapters on: What is forestry? What the forests do for us; Saving Uncle Sam's biggest bank account; Properties of wood and their uses; The life of a forester; How the forest is guarded, etc. Part 2 is devoted to Trees and shrubs and their identification. This part of the book, as the author points out, will be of value to nature students or to Boy scouts who are working for merit badges in forestry. The author is professor of forest engineering at New York state college of forestry at Syracuse.

MOON, FREDERICK FRANKLIN—Continued

+ Quar List New Tech Bks Ja '17
St Louis 15:14 Ja '17

MOONEY, MARGARET S., tr. Rosary of mystery plays. 75c Mrs. M. S. Mooney, 618 Clinton av., Albany, N. Y. 822.1

"In this interesting volume, Mrs. Mooney has translated fifteen plays from the celebrated York cycle of mysteries, as performed by the various crafts guilds during the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. The scenes selected illustrate with naive mediæval realism the joyful, sorrowful and glorious mysteries of the Holy Rosary. Over and above this they illustrate for the student of literature the development of modern drama out of the liturgical offices of the church, while providing the student of human nature with a very valuable insight into the mediæval temper toward both divine and secular things."—Cath World

"A few of the subjects embodied in this 'rosary' of mystery plays may be considered too sacred for performances outside the cloister; but there seems absolutely no reason why, under the auspices of Catholic college or convent, many of them should not be most successfully impersonated—possibly in celebration of the various feasts which they commemorate. Didactic as it is, and 'edifying as it is,' this old religious drama carries an inalienably human appeal—an appeal never fully realized until it is acted. But even the reader of these York plays will be richly repaid."

+ Cath World 102:685 F '16 300w

"Done with reverence and comprehension."
+ N Y Times 21:278 J1 9 '16 240w

MOORE, GEORGE. Brook Kerith; a Syrian story. $1.50 (1c) Macmillan 16-16521

The first half of Mr. Moore's story of the life of Jesus of Nazareth is the story of Joseph of Arimathea. In the account of Joseph's boyhood and youth, he has given a wonderful picture of a little Galilean village and of the life of the time. Early in his young manhood Joseph falls under the spell of the new prophet of Nazareth and desires to follow him as a disciple, but moved by his father's distress, he promises not to see Jesus again during his father's life-time. He keeps the promise, goes to Jerusalem, prospers in business and wins favor with Pilate. When he next sees Jesus it is from the foot of the cross. His friendship with Pilate wins him the desired permission to take away the body, and he is alone with Jesus when he recovers from the swoon that had overcome him on the cross. Shortly thereafter Joseph drops out of the narrative and the story follows the peaceful life of Jesus as a member of the community of Essenes beside the brook Kerith. A dramatic meeting with Paul occupies the closing chapters and the book ends with their parting, Paul continuing on his way preaching his doctrine of the risen Christ.

"One may question his taste—and Moore has frequently merited that censure. Yet in the last analysis he must be measured by his aim and treatment. . . . Not once does he descend to the vulgar sensationalism with which his radical juxtaposition of ideas and characters might have been treated. In fact nothing he has written has such sustained beauty and dignity. His limpid style flows with a quiet persistency. Seldom does heresy go so unopplied." G: Middleton

+ Bookm 44:75 S '16 1250w

"The mystical quality of every element in his story is admirably suggested by Mr. Moore. He vitalizes Jesus, Paul, Joseph and all his characters, but they are not seen in the glaring light of the present. They emerge as dim figures out of a marvellous and mysterious past. By this method he makes them all the more real." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 30 '16 1550w

Reviewed by E: Garnett

+ Dial 61:191 S 21 '16 1850w

"To those who, without accepting all the traditional views of the Bible and the life of Jesus, preserve a profound admiration and reverence for the founder of Christianity and for the poetic truth and beauty of the Scripture, 'The brook Kerith' can hardly fail to appear a licentious and ignoble travesty. . . . For ourselves we shall only hint at a doubt whether Mr. Moore, though he be the greatest master of English since Thackeray, writes well enough to say what he says in 'The brook Kerith.'" — Nation 103:375 O 19 '16 2100w

"Where one was most afraid that the book might fail one finds its greatest originality, in the imaginative energy and delicacy of its design. George Moore has disappointed all our fears." Q. K.

+ New Repub 8:196 S 23 '16 1450w

"There is not a character in the book that is really memorable; there is not even a memorable saying. But although the story fails to create character and fails to give a new revelation of life, it is something to hold and to read again. 'The brook Kerith' is certainly a departure. With it, it would seem, George Moore brings out a new narrative style."

+ N Y Times 21:329 Ag 27 '16 2100w

"Mr. Moore is at pains to tell us in a preface that it has been his purpose to demolish the 'fond and sentimental' Jesus of the Italian renaissance. . . . But even if he had demolished anything more veritable and influential than a man of straw, his substitution would be rejected by everyone who has felt deeply the true quality of the Biblical Jesus. . . . A Jesus robbed of divinity is not intolerable. A Jesus robbed of nobility is. 'The brook Kerith' is in no way surprising. It is a consummate piece of art; and it is also precisely the sort of thing one would have expected to result from Mr. Moore's eighteen years of contact with Mary Hunter's Bible." Lawrence Gilman

— No Am 204:931 D '16 2500w

Pub W 90:338 S 16 '16 480w

"The characterization of the Essene monks, of Jesus' disciples, the cunning of the colloquial interpretation of sacred events, the convincing picture of life in Jerusalem, and the masterly portrait of Paul from a literary point of view will atone for Moore's Jesus of Nazareth."

+ R of Rs 54:566 N '16 160w

"Mr. Moore leaves us not even the Perfect Man, the ideal figure and pattern for our example upheld for our admiration by many who deny his deity. He gives us a pallid, invertebrate figure, whose magnetism, although he writes about it, he has utterly failed to convey. . . . We turn from it with relief to the simple, forcible Gospel narrative which no man's hand has yet been successful in improving. But even though we consider that Mr. Moore has failed in his purpose of presenting a plausible theory of the story that transformed the world, his book is not to be dismissed lightly as a thing of no value. Viewed without prejudice—and we feel the difficulty of escaping prejudice—it is a noteworthy work of imaginative art, which deserves to be read for its own sake, and, as such, can stand, without apology, on its own merits."

+ Sat R 122:228 S 2 '16 1100w

"The art with which this Irish master of English words achieves his iconoclastic purpose reminds the reader of the musical prose of the author's earlier tale, 'The lake.'" —

Spring'd Republican p15 S 17 '16 980w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p418 Ag 3 '16 40w

"It is the beauty of the book that remains in our memory, and for that reason alone no one can honestly be shocked by it."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p438 S 14 '16 1150w

MOORE, GEORGE. Muslin. *$1.35 Brentano's

"This story was originally published as 'A drama in muslin,' [1886] a title which Mr. Moore, in the delightful preface to this new edition, tells us 'had long seemed the vulgar one among the titles of my many books.' . . . The book immediately preceded 'The confessions of a young man,' which was followed by 'Spring days.' As Moore remarks, the young man who wrote these books must have died in the pages of the last one, for no trace of him is left in 'Esther Waters,' and indeed it is difficult to find the George Moore we know best even hinted at in 'Muslin.' . . . The book is delightful reading. Its picture of Irish society in the troubled days of the Land league, when violently dead landlords were a momentary occurrence, a society bothered about its rents, but otherwise untouched by the least conception of the tragic drama playing itself out in the suffering country, is as clear as it is witty."—N Y Times

"Probably most of us will keep the book because of the preface, for in this, as in his other prefaces to this new edition, Mr. Moore creates an intimate and confidential atmosphere that is rarely pleasing, and which has the same quality that pervades the volumes of 'Hail and farewell.' . . . The value as well as the interest in 'Muslin' lies in its clever study of the shallow group about Alice, rather than in Alice herself. Brentano's deserves thanks for the reprint of these novels, which have for long been too difficult to come by. But one must regret that a little more care is not exercised in the proof-reading."

+ N Y Times 21:13 Ja 9 '16 900w

MOORE, LESLIE. Wiser folly. Il *$1.25 (2c) Putnam 16-6439

An old English castle is the center about which this story moves. It is the home of the Delanceys, and at the time of the story the head of the family is Lady Mary, a fine old gentlewoman who is holding the estate for her small grandson. But a claimant for the place appears, an American who has lived long in Africa, and whose claim to descent from an older branch of the family seems well founded. The plot of the story is concerned with the influences that lead him to give up his rights. Lady Mary's granddaughter, Rosamund, and two young men, one of them engaged in restoring the mural decorations of the village church, also have a part in the story.

Boston Transcript p6 N 11 '16 250w

"The artist is a little boring with his karma, and the piety pervading the story is sometimes almost too mystic to follow, but the novel is a delightful one, with a distinctive quality of its own—a wholesome, sunny, thoroughly companionable romance, which we lay aside with the feeling of having kept good company."

+ N Y Times 21:253 Je 18 '16 280w

"In 'The wiser folly' Leslie Moore employs some of the whimsicalities that made her first story, 'The peacock feather,' so delightful. But while that tale was spontaneous, and moved with a natural charm, the overworking of the same atmosphere and type of character lend this story a formal and somewhat strained tone. Miss Moore is, however, a graceful, if light, romancer, and her stories invariably betray a kindly philosophy—a devotion to the golden rule."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 Ap 2 '16 230w

MORDAUNT, ELINOR, pseud. (MRS. EVELYN M. [CLOWES] WIEHE). Family. *$1.35 (1c) Lane 15-7737

A story of one of those large Victorian families, the passing of which is sometimes considered a matter for regret. Eleven of the Hebbertons children lived to reach maturity. Several others had died in infancy, including Cynthia who had preceded the rest "as a sort of experiment, for at that time nobody greatly expected a first child to live." The Hebbertons are the children of a hard-riding, hard-drinking English squire and of a mother who only on very rare occasions flashes forth as an individual, as a personality apart from the bearer of many children. Perhaps the author did not mean to imply that the large family was a failure as an institution, but one and all the young Hebbertons make failures of their lives, and in one case at least, that of Sebastian, the failure is a direct result of misunderstanding and false training. But whether the story has a purpose or not, it is a fascinating study of the ideals and customs of a period.

+ Ath 1915,1:190 F 27 440w

"No reader can possibly call this either a 'glad' or a 'joyous' story. But it is interesting, stimulating in its suggestiveness, and in its universal appeal. . . . As a matter of honest fact the whole story comes dangerously near being the actual truth. And truth, being stranger than fiction, rarely gets its deserts in the modern novel. Mrs. Mordaunt is to be congratulated on writing a story that is artistic, fearless and convincing, containing no sugar-coated pills for a saccharine-minded public."

+ Boston Transcript p6 J1 1 '16 280w

Dial 61:65 J1 15 '16 650w

+ Nation 103:231 S 21 '16 320w

"It is life, but life in one of its grayest, least hopeful aspects. The web of tradition and conventions and habits and evasions, of silences and denials, in which the unfortunate Hebbertons were enmeshed like so many flies, yet without whose support they were unable to manage, is exceedingly well pictured."

+ N Y Times 21:253 Je 25 '16 700w

"She has sketched her individuals brilliantly, without a trace of caricature, and yet has avoided individualism; she has kept clear of vagueness and melodrama and the many dangers which attend original writing, and she steers us, without bewilderment and with sympathy, to the last barren failure of the family."

+ Spec 114:448 Mr 27 '15 270w

"In its broader aspect the story is an analysis of the causes of the modern democratic movement in Great Britain, and in all respects it is highly interesting."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ag 6 '16 400w

MORGAN, ALEXANDER. Education and social progress. *$1.20 Longmans 370 16-10363

"Dr. Morgan is principal of the Provincial training school in Edinburgh and his earlier works along the same lines as are touched upon in this book have attracted attention. He begins here with a consideration of imperfect remedies of social diseases which have been moving all ranks and conditions of men. He says that society has as yet seriously tried but two remedies—a deterrence and relief 'and the result has been a complete failure to remove, or even greatly lessen, our social ills.' . . . How pragmatism has entered the field of education and how it is proclaiming a new message to teachers is set forth in this book. . . . The author notes a lack in educative systems of social and recreative activities for the young after they leave school. He would have a recognition of the natural desire for play and social intercourse among young men and women and that this should be utilized for educative purposes."—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p6 J1 19 '16 350w

Ind 86:553 Je 26 '16 130w

Ind 87:348 S 4 '16 40w

"Dr. Morgan has a clear conception of some of the problems that will at once confront the United Kingdom in the new era that will begin at the end of the war. He writes of these problems and their origin with clearness and force; and it is the admitted existence of these after-the-war problems in Great Britain that gives 'Education and social progress' its interest for American students who are awaiting the new Britain that will issue from the great war."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:656 D '16 250w

Reviewed by E. J. Hutchinson

Survey 37:437 Ja 13 '17 240w

MORGAN, ANGELA. Imprisoned splendor. *$1.35 Baker 16-97

"The book comprises seven stories, drawn from different phases of economic, cosmopolitan and domestic life. The title is taken from the first of the group, which, however, is by no means the most interesting. It is a dramatic little tale of a young woman writer, as yet unrecognized, who refuses to surrender faith in her star in the face of privation and heart-breaking discouragement. Perhaps the strongest story of the collection is 'What shall we do with mother?'—Springfield Republican

MORGAN, ANGELA—Continued

"Vivid, true to possibilities, very serious and well written, but needing the lightness that comes with a touch of humor."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:431 Je '16

"The book should find satisfied readers and prove a real help among the enormous number of workers who are dissatisfied or discouraged."

+ Boston Transcript p26 Ja 19 '16 210w

Nation 102:482 My 4 '16 180w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 23 '16 260w

MORGAN, JOHN HARTMAN. German atrocities; an official investigation. *$1 Dutton 940.91 16-10731

This volume forms a supplement to the report of the Bryce commission of which the author was a member. Part 2 of the book was published in the June, 1915, issue of the Nineteenth Century and After. To this is added new documentary evidence, hitherto unpublished. The book also contains the first critical analysis of the German "White book" to be printed in English. A review of the book by Viscount Bryce which appeared in the Westminster Gazette for March 20, 1916, is printed in an appendix.

"A more forceful argument for the total abolishment of alcoholic liquors could hardly be discovered than in 'German atrocities.'"

Otherwise while the evidence in this volume contributes to what we have already learned, we are not convinced that the whole German people are comprehensively guilty."

Ind 87:280 Ag 21 '16 100w

"I cannot," he says, 'avoid the conclusion that the whole people is infected with a kind of moral distemper.' Lord Bryce does not agree with Mr. Morgan in his conclusion, which indicts the German people as a whole, and thinks that the actions of the German army will be condemned by the people when these have an opportunity to learn the truth."

+ N Y Times 21:266 Jl 2 '16 400w

R of Rs 54:117 Jl '16 20w

"The methods of inquiry in Professor Morgan's new book are as careful and as thorough as the Bryce methods. This patient and scrupulous regard for truth turns a book of evidence into a verdict passed."

+ Sat R 121:282 Mr 18 '16 1150w

"In spite of the horror of the book before us, we most earnestly hope that our politicians, our clergymen of all denominations, and our publicists—especially those who are inclined to take the line, most honourable in itself if it were backed up by facts, that the Germans cannot be as bad as they are painted, and that they need, as it were, protection against prejudice—will buy Professor Morgan's book and read it carefully. Let them begin with the new documentary evidence at the end. After they have read this, let them turn to the introduction, because that introduction places the facts in their true perspective, both historically and in relation to what have hitherto been regarded as the universally accepted doctrines of international law."

+ Spec 116:430 Ap 1 '16 2150w

"It is indeed a fearful indictment that Professor Morgan marshals; and in the first and introductory part of his book he extends the scope of it, and lays it against the German people and not only against the military. Whether this indictment will ultimately be found to lie against the whole people time, 'that old common arbitrator,' will show."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p146 Mr 30 '16 600w

MORGAN, JOHN HARTMAN. Leaves from a field note-book. *$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 940.91 War16-64

"This book is an unofficial outcome of the writer's experiences during the five months he was attached to the General headquarters staff as Home office commissioner with the British expeditionary force [in France]. His official duties during that period involved daily visits to the headquarters of almost every corps, division, and brigade in the field, and took him on one or two occasions to the batteries and into the trenches. . . . The characters portrayed and the events narrated in these pages are true in substance and in fact." (Preface) The stories and sketches are reprinted from the Nineteenth Century and After, the Westminster Gazette, and one, "Stoke's act," from Blackwood's magazine.

+ A L A Bkl 13:26 O '16

"A good sub-title for the book would be the humors of heroism."

+ Nation 103:113 Ag 3 '16 140w

"War dramas in one act, we might call them, for quarter-hours of leisure."

+ N Y Times 21:261 Je 25 '16 100w

"Every page is alive not merely with observation, but with that instinctive choice of essentials which painters, far more often than writers, regard as vital memory studies from the life. Thirty brief chapters make this book as wonderful as a month of thirty days in this war of thronged braveries. The noblest paper in this book is 'Bobs Bahadur,' relating a visit that Lord Roberts paid to an Indian hospital ship four or five days before he died. It would make the fortune of any book."

+ Sat R 121:258 Mr 11 '16 1700w

"Professor J. H. Morgan's excellent work during the war in making known the details of German barbarities, and in translating the German War book—that doctrine of necessity as preached by the German general staff—is well known. We did not appreciate fully that he had so happy a touch in describing his experiences at the front in sketches—a form which tells us true tales in the manner of fiction. But the proof is here."

+ Spec 116:385 Mr 18 '16 430w

"The more insignificant the individual soldier has seemed to become in the growing masses of modern armies, the more overwhelming appears to be the part played by the artillery and other mechanical accessories of latter-day warfare, the more triumphantly does the spirit of the private soldier assert itself as the one supreme and decisive factor in the struggle. It is this fine spirit that forms the refrain of Mr. J. H. Morgan's 'Leaves from a field note-book.'"

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p116 Mr 9 '16 570w

MORGAN, THOMAS HUNT, and others. Mechanism of Mendelian heredity. il *$3 Holt 575.1 15-19207

"The well-printed and handsomely illustrated volume is intended primarily for the student of genetics, and the various chapter-headings—such as Mendelian segregation and the chromosomes, Types of Mendelian heredity, Linkage, Sex inheritance, The chromosomes as bearers of heredity-material, Multiple allelomorphs, and the like—appeal mainly to the specialist in Mendelian heredity." (Nation) "The book concludes with an Appendix dealing with methods of breeding Drosophila, and a Bibliography of nineteen pages." (Ath)

"The work, which is a careful and efficient study of a difficult problem, endeavours to prove that the chromosome may be used to explain the mechanism of Mendelian heredity."

+ Ath p143 Mr 16 580w

"The old ideas that sex was determined by the mental attitude of the mother before the birth of her child, by food, or by any attributes of the environment, such as are produced by wars or famine, receive no support from modern students of genetics. All experimental data at present available point to the falsity of such conceptions, and show that sex is a Mendelian character, determined at fertilization, and the evidence which the authors have submitted under this head is particularly valuable and conclusive."

+ Nation 102:318 Mr 16 '16 3150w

"Whether the theory advocated by Prof. Morgan prove to be well founded or not, there can be no doubt that he has given us a most interesting and stimulating book. Not only does it give a clear and well-illustrated account of one of the most important groups of facts relating to heredity yet elucidated by the experimental method, but at the same time it offers the most successful attempt so far made to relate these facts to our knowledge of cellular anatomy."

+ Nature 97:117 Ap 6 '16 1100w

"Confronted with a theory of so much novelty and importance, the reader's first desire is to examine the details of the evidence from which it has been deduced. A serious charge lies against the book inasmuch as the material for such an examination is not contained in it."

To some it may seem that the disposition of this article is towards undue scepticism. Let it then be explicitly said that not even the most sceptical of readers can go through the 'Drosophila' work unmoved by a sense of admiration for the zeal and penetration with which it has been conducted, and for the great extension of genetic knowledge to which it has led—greater far than has been made in any one line of work since Mendel's own experiments."

W. Bateson

+ Science ns 44:536 O 13 '16 4500w

"Professor Morgan, and three fellow-workers at Columbia university have prepared a book which may be readily understood. They have tried to separate those questions that are significant from those that are special or merely technical. The result, which is very successful, corresponds in a general way to Professor Punnett's well-known 'Mendelism.'"

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p100 Mr 2 '16 1200w

MORLAIE, EDWARD. Soldier of the Legion. il *$1 (6½c) Houghton 940.91 16-14231

Experiences of an American member of the famous Foreign legion of France during the battle of La Champagne. It is a graphic account of the sort of action that becomes the true patriot with the spirit that delights in peril. "He tells the story of those last days of September and of the part the Legion had in the brilliant but bloody offensive with an intimacy, a detail, and a singularly simple and graphic quality that seem to set the reader down in the midst of the chaffing, battling men and carry him across the zones of hell into the German trenches." (N Y Times)

"Articles reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly."

+ A L A Bkl 13:26 O '16

"So far the war has produced no more striking document than Edward Morlaie's 'A soldier of the Legion.'"

+ Bookm 43:470 Jl '16 700w

"Whatever may be the historical merits of the little narrative or the personal merits of its author,—opinions differ on both points,—the book certainly steers clear of the moralistic comment now so wearisome to every reader of war 'impressions.'"

+ Dial 61:271 O 5 '16 240w

Ind 87:280 Ag 21 '16 200w

+ Lit D 53:622 S 9 '16 170w

+ Nation 103:357 O 12 '16 300w

"There are pages in it that will make the civilian shudder, but it is one of the books about the war that no one can afford to miss who wants to know what war is like to the man who does the fighting. Of the section that the author commanded, numbering sixty men, twelve survive, most of them wounded. The regiment, similarly cut to pieces throughout its lines, ceased to exist last October."

+ N Y Times 21:247 Je 18 '16 350w

+ R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 90w

"A tragic but stirring story of peril and bravery, which differs from any other the war has brought forth."

+ Wls Lib Bull 12:321 Jl '16 90w

MORRIS, EDWIN BATEMAN. Our Miss York. il *$1.25 Penn 16-5581

"The problem which the modern business woman must face, in choosing between her profession and marriage, is the subject of a cleverly told story. When Margaret York realized that she must earn her living, she had decided to make a success of it. . . . Then came David Bruce, whose character was the very opposite of her own. Success repelled him; once let him become proficient in any line, and his interest flagged immediately. Engineering, painting and aviation had each run their way, when Margaret York appeared on the horizon. Then the necessity arose either to equal and exceed her salary, or to become a part of her household impedimenta. For her, too, there was the question of giving up her profession with all that it meant to her, or renouncing all opportunity for a home of her own."—Boston Transcript

"Machine made but readable enough for those who wish a pleasant hour or two."

+ A L A Bkl 12:341 Ap '16

"It is the very problem that presents itself to hundreds of women, and the author shows a clear understanding of the difficulties. The characters are drawn to the life."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 8 '16 320w

+ R of Rs 54:125 Jl '16 90w

"The story is developed with an almost complete absence of the author's usual semi-facitious air; yet, save for a suggestion of underlying seriousness, it is not a sternly purposeful tale."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 170w

"A fairly interesting story with the usual romantic ending."

+ Wls Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 30w

MORRIS, GOUVERNEUR. We three. il *$1.35 (2c) Appleton 16-7500

A story of husband, wife and the other man. The husband is the typical hard working, indulgent American husband. The wife is the typical light-minded social butterfly. The other man is the idle drifter, content on his father's millions to lead an aimless life. They belong to the set that wavers back and forth between Aiken, Palm Beach and Newport. From the first of these loafers' paradises the busy husband is called to New York leaving his wife to see too much of the other man. He returns to meet the statement that she no longer loves him. He is willing to give her a divorce but imposes a condition, and long before the condition is fulfilled Lucy has decided to remain his wife. The fact that the European war broke out just then and that her husband's business happened to be cartridges may have influenced her decision.

"'We three,' however, is not a great novel. It is not great because it does not plumb the depths of humanity that it describes. It says that those depths exist in the hearts of its characters, but it fails to make poignant the depths for its readers. It is a polished tale by a practiced hand. It touches upon our emotions. It is, as aforesaid, logical. It is also clever. It accomplishes exactly what it sets out to do. Perhaps that is why it gives the impression of strength." W. A. M.

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ap 19 '16 1500w

"A psychological novel, a novel of character analysis rather than of plot or fancy. Like most of the other characters in the book John Fulton is a conventional type rather than an individual, but there are moments when he becomes quite real."

+ N Y Times 21:129 Ap 9 '16 650w

"Situations not unlike the one employed here have been often treated solemnly by novelists. Mr. Morris's tone may not improperly be regarded as satirical. He has written a 'society' novel that deals in a common sense manner with its problems."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 170w

MORRIS, WILLIAM. Stories from The earthly paradise. il *$1.50 Longmans 291 A16-299

"Mr. C. S. Evans has chosen ten out of the twenty-four stories in William Morris's poem and has re-told them in prose for young people." (Spec) "He hopes, he says, that the book will be read not only for the value of the tales themselves, but as an introduction to the works of Morris, England's aesthetic and many-sided poet."

MORRIS, WILLIAM—Continued

There is a colored frontispiece and other illustrations in black and white." (N Y Times)

A L A Bkl 12:339 My '16
Ind 84:403 D 6 '15 50w

"The opening tale here presented, 'Atalanta's race,' is one which any youngster would thoroughly enjoy. The illustrations are in imitation of old woodcuts. The cover-design is most attractive."

+ Lit D 51:1372 D 11 '15 100w
+ N Y Times 20:468 N 28 '15 130w

"Mr. C. S. Evans has done his work very successfully. The stories are told with that simplicity and poetic feeling which are essential to the proper telling of all legends and fairy-tales, and they will appeal, we suspect, quite as much, if not more, to children of an older growth—as is often the case with fairy-stories—than to the boys and girls for whom they are ostensibly written. The book is attractively illustrated. As it is stated to be for young people, a preface written in a style far beyond the comprehension of its intended readers seems to us rather out of place."

+ Spec 116:sup142 Ja 29 '16 140w

MORRISON, CHARLES EDWARD, and BRODIE, ORRIN LAWRENCE. Masonry dam design, including high masonry dams. 2d ed il *$2.50 Wiley 627.8 16-7035

"The first edition of this book contained just 100 pages and appeared in 1910. It was entitled 'High masonry dam design,' and its cost was $1.50. . . . In the new edition, which comprises nearly three times the number of pages of the first edition, the authors have added chapters on overfall and arched dams and supplied an appendix illustrating the evolution of the masonry dam. Consequently the scope of the book has been extended so that it now covers almost completely the design of masonry dams, including high dams. Chapters 1 to 5 inclusive, with the exception of minor changes, are identical with the contents of the first edition, while the remainder is new matter. . . . Some of the longer derivations of formulas have been placed at the end of the book in the form of an appendix. The first of these contains the derivation of the cantilever equations and the other the movements and stresses in an arch subjected to a uniform radial load."—Engin Rec

+ A L A Bkl 12:493 J1 '16

"The first edition has already been accepted as a standard of succinctness and completeness. The second adds very valuable material."

+ Engin N 75:942 My 18 '16 110w

"The authors have succeeded in producing an up-to-date treatise on masonry dam design that will be appreciated not only as a text book for students but as a reference book for designers of dams." A. G. Hillberg

+ Engin Rec 74:88 J1 15 '16 400w

"Also reviewed in Canadian Engineer, June 29, 1916, p. 686."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p8 Ag '16 200w

MORSE, JOHN. In the Russian ranks. *$1.50 Knopf 940.91 (Eng ed 15-25723)

"Mr. Morse, who is, on his own confession, a grey-haired veteran, was staying with a German friend in East-Prussia when war broke out. . . . When the crisis became acute, and it seemed that he was too late to escape from Germany, he was sent off by night across the Russian frontier on foot and carrying only a few of his belongings. His German friends helped him so far as they could. At Kalisch he was an eyewitness of ghastly brutalities by the Germans. He states with the emphasis of reiteration that those things happened before any overt acts of war had occurred. . . . He gradually earned the confidence of the Russian officers, and found himself taking part in the fighting as a cadet with a battery. . . . The ensuing narrative is an amazing story of rapid fluctuations of fortune between the opposing armies."—Spec

Boston Transcript p8 O 16 '15 70w

"Whoever needs more proofs as to German methods of warfare will find them in plenty in Mr. Morse's account of his observations and experiences. What he saw turned him from a friendly and admiring visitor of their land to a stern and merciless judge whose heart is filled with hate and contempt. There are also many interesting accounts of the operations and life of the Russian troops, of their methods of warfare, and their characteristics. As he had spent eight years in the English army and had been all his life a devoted student of military matters, he writes with expert knowledge."

+ N Y Times 21:216 My 21 '16 680w

R of Rs 54:117 J1 '16 300w

"His appeal is the modest one of the plain man with the plain story to tell, and he tells it with a vividness and an artlessness worthy of a Defoe. Through him the name of Englishman will stand firmer in Russia, firmer in the world. From his modest, manly journal we get the picture of a determined fighter, and a man not merely brave but tender."

+ Sat R 121:64 Ja 15 '16 1300w

"Tolstoy's pictures of human suffering at Sebastopol, or Dostoevsky's accounts of Siberian prisons, do not haunt one much more than episodes in this book. All the time and everywhere we are given detailed accounts of shocking misery, ghastly wounds, pillage, murder, and brutality."

+ Spec 115:710 N 20 '15 1600w

"A story that is as graphic a description of modern war as has ever been written."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 470w

MOSES, BELLE. Paul Revere, the torch bearer of the revolution. il *$1.35 Appleton 16-22316

"Of all the revolutionary heroes none except Washington is more widely known than Paul Revere. Yet the only thing for which he is known is the 'midnight ride' made famous by Longfellow's poem. But this volume gives an account of his services to the patriots in which we find many things more remarkable than the midnight ride and of greater value to our cause."—Springfield Republican

+ Lit D 53:1563 D 9 '16 180w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 9 '16 200w

MOSES, MONTROSE JONAS. Life of Heinrich Conried. il *$2.50 (3c) Crowell 16-20328

Mr. Moses has written the life story of Heinrich Conried, late director of the Metropolitan opera house. Conried came to America as manager of a small German theater, and the story follows his rise to prominence. "It is the idealism of Heinrich Conried," says his biographer, "which is the fundamental note of the man. I insist on this, despite the fact that the bulk of private papers in my possession show him in a business light." The chapters into which the biography is divided are: Conried's early years; In New York under Adolf Neuendorff; The Irving Place theatre; Heinrich Conried and the university; Directorate of the Metropolitan opera house; Criticisms against Conried; An impression of Conried; The season of 1906-07; The end of Mr. Conried's régime; Heinrich Conried, the man.

A L A Bkl 13:160 Ja '17

"Eighteen portraits are inserted, but no index puts the finishing touch to the well-made volume."

Dial 61:471 N 30 '16 200w

+ Ind 88:238 N 6 '16 220w

+ Lit D 53:1552 D 9 '16 430w

N Y Br Lib News 3:157 O '16

R of Rs 54:570 N '16 70w

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 650w

MOSHER, JOSEPH ALBERT. Essentials of effective gesture, for students of public speaking. *$1 (2½c) Macmillan 808.5

16-8470

"There are in gesture as in other arts certain technical features and general principles which the student should master as a basis for his own particular mode of expression" says the author in his preface. His aim in this book has been "to discuss the technic of gesture; to indicate the signification of the various positions and forms of the hand; and to determine the reasons for their expressiveness." There are five divisions of the subject; The nature and technic of gesture; Positions and forms of the hand, with their general meaning; The scope of gestures analyzed and exemplified; Acquiring facility in gesture; Selections for analysis and delivery. The author is instructor in public speaking in the College of the City of New York.

Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:88 Je '16

Pittsburgh 21:279 Je '16

Pratt p31 O '16 50w

St Louis 14:238 Je '16

+ Springfield Republican p6 N 13 '16 180w

MOSS, JAMES ALFRED. Manual of military training. il $1.90 Banta pub. 355 14-21990

A book "intended, primarily, for use in connection with the instruction and training of cadets in our military schools, and of company officers of the organized militia, and, secondarily, as a guide to company officers of the regular army, the aim being to make efficient fighting companies and to qualify our cadets and militia officers, for the duty and responsibilities of company officers of volunteers."—Author's note

A L A Bkl 12:406 Je '16

N Y Br Lib News 3:35 Mr '16 70w

"A well ordered and completely indexed little volume. . . . The U. S. drill regulations are especially well treated in text and illustration."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p16 My '16 70w

Pittsburgh 21:109 Mr '16 60w

MOSS, JAMES ALFRED, and STEWART, MERCH BRADT. Self-helps for the citizen-soldier. il $1.25 (3c) Banta pub. 355 16-1990

"Something of what military preparedness means to the individual citizen soldier is clearly outlined in this little book, which does not pretend to be a manual of military training, but is intended to serve as a guide by means of which the civilian may inform himself concerning military matters sufficiently to enable him to understand in a general way what will be required of him when he is called upon to learn the soldier's trade for the defense of his country. The authors are both captains in the regular army and are fully conversant with the requirements of efficient military service. General Wood supplies an introduction to the book."—R of Rs

+ A L A Bkl 12:406 Je '16

"A very timely, clever and valuable book, profusely illustrated with photographs and a number of clever drawings by Lieut. W. E. Larned, 5th U. S. Inf. Although intended primarily for the civilian it can well be read with benefit by the regular officer. He will see old familiar subjects in a new light."

+ Army and Navy Journal 53:724 F 5 '16 460w

"It is a book of stern, hard facts, presented in such a plain way that the confidence of the reader should be caught at once and held till the back cover is reached. It is one of the best tracts for real Americanism produced in recent years. It is very timely, and it should be circulated by every propaganda working for improved citizenship." J. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p26 Ja 19 '16 640w

"One of the best of the non-technical books."

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:35 Mr '16 50w

N Y Times 21:278 J1 9 '16 90w

+ R of Rs 53:501 Ap '16 110w

MOTE, CARL HENRY. Industrial arbitration. *$1.50 (2c) Bobbs 331.1 16-9166

This "world-wide survey of natural and political agencies for social justice and industrial peace" has chapters devoted to: Elements of a vast problem; English experiments; German social justice; French experiments; A country without strikes; Australian experiments; Official investigations; Initial experiments at home; Legislation in United States; Some devices in operation; Interstate strikes; The Colorado coal strike; Trade agreements; Concluding observations. The aim of the author was "to present certain pertinent facts showing how the various devices or political agencies have worked or have failed to work." The general conclusion reached is that "the effort to attain industrial peace has failed somewhat because it has not recognized the necessity of founding that effort on a greater measure of industrial justice."

"The reader is a good deal perplexed by Mr. Mote's use of such terms as 'social justice' left without any adequate defining. . . . These defects should by no means offset the real value with which Mr. Mote enriches his subject. An adequate historical survey is given, in which the spread and specialization of arbitration and conciliation show the service that has been rendered." J; G. Brooks

+ Am Econ R 6:658 S '16 1650w

"His material is scattered and jumbled, his argument is scrappy, and the conglomerate mass of interesting information regarding industrial conditions, designed to throw light on the systems of arbitration, is of slight value because of the lack of organization." E. H. Sutherland

— Am J Soc 22:407 N '16 320w

A L A Bkl 13:103 D '16

Ann Am Acad 67:307 S '16 100w

"The importance in a work of scientific pretensions of carefully sifting material, and of making adequate comparative analyses, with a view to deriving fundamental principles, has apparently not been appreciated by the author. . . . Furthermore, frequent misstatements of fact have crept into the text."

— Nation 103:357 O 12 '16 470w

"The book is indispensable to anyone who wants to know where we now stand in the struggle for industrial peace. It is the most comprehensive view anywhere in print and the main conclusions are unassailable." J. A. L.

+ Special Libraries 7:93 My '16 130w

"The book gives too much the impression of a mere cataloging of interesting data. . . . And there is no convincing proof that the conclusions reached are the only logical deductions from the facts set forth. Some of Mr. Mote's many excursions into economic theory, furthermore, show a lack of careful thought. His description of the Socialist point of view, for instance, is far from accurate. On the whole, however, the book furnishes a vast amount of information on industrial agreements not found elsewhere."

+ Survey 36:607 S 16 '16 500w

MOULTON, HAROLD GLENN, ed. Principles of money and banking; a series of selected materials, with explanatory introductions. *$3 (1½c) Univ. of Chicago press 332 16-14895

This volume contains the materials used in an introductory course in money and banking in the University of Chicago. It represents an attempt to combine textbook and collateral reading in one volume. The text is supplied by the author in the form of an introduction to each of the subjects considered. This is followed in each case by a group of selected readings. Part 1, devoted to Money, takes up such subjects as The pecuniary organization of society; The origin and development of money; Early expedients for increasing the currency; The standard question: bimetalism; The standard question: government paper money, etc. Part 2, Banking, considers The various forms and services of banking; The nature and functions of credit; Instruments of commercial credit; The regulation of banking; The Federal reserve system; Agricultural credit, etc.

"It must be used in combination with a good text, or in connection with lectures." E. E. Agger

+ Am Econ R 6:923 D '16 330w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

MOULTON, HAROLD GLENN, ed.—Continued. "Professor Moulton has prepared, for use with his text, an excellent book of suggestive questions and problems, of nearly a hundred pages, with parts and sections corresponding to those of the textbook." H. G. Brown
+ J Pol Econ 24:1018 D '16 500w
N Y Br Lib News 3:138 S '16 50w

"There are few bank presidents who could not learn something from the book, and all is presented in a manner attractive to the inexperienced, if only an interest in the subject exists."

+ N Y Times 21:353 S 10 '16 330w
Pittsburgh 21:591 D '16
+ Pol Sci Q 31:649 D '16 100w
St Louis 14:387 N '16

MOWAT, ROBERT BALMAIN, ed. Select treaties and documents to illustrate the development of the modern European states-system. (Oxford pamphlets) *50c Oxford 341.2 15-19352

"The documents are arranged in groups; the Triple Entente and Triple Alliance, international guarantees respecting various European territories of interest now or those whose status may be affected by the war, Egypt, territorial cessions, etc. The pamphlet offers in convenient form the essential features of the accessible documents bearing upon the subject to the close of the year 1914. The introduction is not quite free from controversial hints, subtly introduced. The chronological index and the table of contents convert the pamphlet into a convenient reference manual, especially for international agreements since 1900."—Nation

+ Nation 102:171 F 10 '16 150w

MUCKEY, FLOYD S. Natural method of voice production in speech and song. il *$1 Scribner 784.9 15-26942

An explanation of the fundamentals of good singing. "According to Dr. Muckey, the underlying factors in the natural method of voice production are: (1) the non-interference of the action of the vocal cords, and (2) the full use of the resonance chambers. Interference is defined as any muscular contraction which prevents unhampered vibration of the vocal cords, free motion of the cartilages and muscles of the larynx, or full use of the resonance chambers." (School R)

"Dr. Muckey's book deserves notice mainly that the reader may be warned against accepting its 'scientific investigation' as reliable and complete. It is neither the one nor the other. The really scientific investigations into the overtones of the voice carried out by Professor Dayton C. Miller, and explained by him in his Lowell lectures of some seasons ago, are sufficient to expose the casual character of Dr. Muckey's 'evidence' and argument."

— Boston Transcript p24 F 23 '16 180w
+ Ind 88:368 N 27 '16 50w

Reviewed by H. T. Finck

Nation 103:91 J1 27 '16 250w

"He explains in clear, simple English the fundamentals of good singing. With the aid of Professor William Hallock, of Columbia, an investigation of the voice mechanism, the functions of the various parts of the mechanism, and the laws regulating its action was made. . . . This book if widely circulated will exert a powerful influence on the various methods of teaching singing now used. 'The natural method of voice production' should be in the library of every student and teacher of voice."

+ School R 24:483 Je '16 600w
— Springfield Republican p15 Mr 20 '16 370w

MUIR, JOHN. Boyhood of a naturalist. il *25c (2½c) Houghton

A new world, Life on a Wisconsin farm; A paradise of birds, and Young hunters, four chapters from Mr. Muir's "Story of my boyhood and youth" are reprinted in this volume of the Riverside literature series.

+ Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 90w

MUIR, JOHN. Thousand-mile walk to the Gulf; ed. by W. F. Badé. il *$2.50 (6½c) Houghton 917.3 16-23580

The journey of which an account is given in this book was taken in 1867. It led from Indianapolis thru Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida, and would have been continued in South America had not illness interfered with Mr. Muir's plans. In the notebook on which this volume is based he had written, "John Muir, Earth-planet, Universe," and the journey truly marked his break with the purely local. He had studied the plant life of his own and neighboring states and he set forth with the rather indefinite intention of continuing his investigations further. The book, which bridges the gap between "The story of my boyhood," and "My first summer in the Sierra," is made up of chapters on: Kentucky forests and caves; Crossing the Cumberland mountains; Through the river country of Georgia; Camping among the tombs; Through Florida swamps and forests; Cedar Keys; A sojourn in Cuba; By a crooked route to California; Twenty Hill Hollow.

A L A Bkl 13:218 F '17
+ Boston Transcript p4 D 6 '16 950w
+ Dial 61:539 D 14 '16 210w
+ Nation 104:136 F 1 '17 420w
+ N Y Times 22:22 Ja 21 '17 640w
+ Outlook 115:34 Ja 3 '17 50w

"Muir's diary of this journey has been prepared for publication by Mr. Badé. Although lacking the literary finish that characterized Muir's published book, this narrative has many points of interest."

+ R of Rs 55:217 F '17 120w

MUIR, RAMSAY, ed. Making of British India, 1756-1858. (Manchester univ. pub.; historical ser.) *$2 Longmans 954 16-6787

"In this volume Professor Muir has included the most important dispatches, treaties, statutes, and other documents from 1756 to the passing of the 'Hon. John company' in 1858, and the edition may serve as a useful introduction to the more extensive series on this early British period in India published by the Clarendon press. Professor Muir's extracts are accompanied by inductive notes and succinct reviews of the crucial phases that marked the adventitious change in the destiny of the company from that of a handful of merchant adventurers into the conquerors of a great empire."—Nation

"If we except such important matters as the land-tax, settlement in Bengal, the abolition of sati, and Dalhousie's last minute in 1856, the book is almost barren for the study of economic conditions in India. Naturally we also fail to get a clear picture of the social basis of administration. In other words this book marks no advance from the conventional viewpoint regarding the English in India. But certainly any such limitations of this useful book arise partially from the character of the material which is most available in printed form. . . . As a whole, therefore, these extracts are bound to be of value to many students who may not have the time or opportunity to go to the larger collections; and in a technical way the book is excellent." A. L. P. Dennis

+ Am Hist R 21:793 J1 '16 630w
A L A Bkl 12:379 My '16

"In his introductions the estimates of great officials are particularly good. Nothing better on Warren Hastings than the few pages in which his principles are analysed can be found anywhere. There is no clearer description, again, of how the dual system of 1765 in Bengal failed; nor, in so short a space, any estimate more just of the services of Sir Thomas Munro; and the sketch of the history of the north-west frontier, 1835-48, is masterly. A few points need reconsideration."

+ Eng Hist R 31:326 Ap '16 850w

"For a study of the growth and reform of Indian law; of the land system and its temporary setback under the unimaginative Cornwallis; of Elphinstone's handling of the village system; of the beginnings of education and the influence of Macaulay's ponderous and didactic minute, which is largely responsible for the anomalous position of educated Indians in relation to the government of to-day; of the various acts that culminated in the proclamation of 1858, taking India under the crown; all these, and the stirring incidents and reforms of protagonists like Dalhousie, are adequately illustrated in Professor Muir's collection."

+ Nation 102:167 F 10 '16 700w

"The first hundred pages are a faithful narration of the events that happened in the first decade of British rule in India. . . . The book is thus by no means a complete and impartial record of the events that led to the making of British India." Lajpat Rai

+ New Repub 9:sup36 N 18 '16 370w

N Y Br Lib News 3:29 F '16

"Wisely limiting his choice amid the voluminous masses of papers available, Professor Muir has concentrated attention on the reasons for the successive enlargements of British territory, on the stages in the growth of the British methods of administration and on the introduction of western practices and ideas. . . . Practically nowhere is Indian testimony adduced to show the effect of western ways upon the native mind and customs."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:352 Je '16 250w

+ Spec 116:sup135 Ja 29 '16 100w

MUIRHEAD, JOHN HENRY. German philosophy in relation to the war. *2s 6d Murray, London 193 (Eng ed War 15-192)

"The purpose of the book is to show that the 'German philosophy' which has been influential in leading to the war is not a development of the teaching of Kant and Hegel, but forms a definite reaction against it. In the first two lectures Professor Muirhead traces the development of idealism in Germany, showing its rise as a reaction against the materialism of the eighteenth century, and its relation to the growth of the idea of the state. . . . In the third and fourth lectures Professor Muirhead shows very clearly how idealism was gradually obscured in Germany by the reaction which was beginning even before Hegel's death. He traces the growth of pessimism, materialism and militarism, indicating the contributions of Nietzsche, Treitschke and others to the German militarist theory of the state; and in conclusion he mentions very briefly his hopes for the regeneration of Germany's better self."—Int J Ethics

"Candid and helpful. Issued by way of protest against certain blatant and violent attempts to discredit the whole movement of German thought, however little it has to do with the present war. It is a clear and concise summary." R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 13:900 Jl '15 140w

"A masterly presentation of the leading ideas of Kant, Fichte and Hegel, in their historical evolution. With a deft and sure touch Professor Muirhead indicates the significant elements in their teaching, taking special pains to deny the charge that Hegel is the philosopher of the Prussian military tradition." G. A. Johnston

+ Int J Ethics 26:129 O '15 670w

MUKERJI, DHAN GOPAL. Rajani; songs of the night. *$1 Elder 891.4 16-10336

"In this little volume a young Hindu scholar has tried to express in English 'free verse' something of the dream-poetry of his native Bengal," says David Starr Jordan in his introduction. The author, who was born near Calcutta in 1890, has been a student at Stanford university.

"Many of these mystical poems of love and vision attain great beauty of expression."

+ Ath p285 Je '16 50w

Ind 87:348 S 4 '16 100w

Lit D 52:1640 Je 3 '16 240w

MULLER, JULIUS WASHINGTON. Invasion of America. il *$1.25 (2c) Dutton 355.7 16-1771

This story was written in answer to the question: In case of invasion what could we actually do, with our actual present resources used to their fullest possible extent? It was written "without any idea of suggesting that any nation or group of nations may mean to attack us. It was written with no desire to 'scare' the people of the United States into giving thought to the army and navy. I should hold it a sad reflection on our country to assume that it must be aroused by terror or hatred into setting its house in order." (Preface) An outline of the story is suggested by the chapter headings: The beginnings; The coast bombarded; The landing; The coast defenses fall; New England's battle; The rising of New England; The investment of Boston; Defending Connecticut; The capture of New York city; The price that had to be paid.

"The story is free from all sentimentality or hysteria. It holds no suggestion that any nation or group of nations plans to attack us. The book is a simple statement of facts upon the subject of our 'preparedness,' as verified by army and navy statistics."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 15 '16 950w

"The book is valuable from the fact that it calls attention to the utter folly of the pacifists, who confound preparedness with jingoism. The book is well written and well illustrated."

+ Cath World 103:123 Ap '16 110w

"Mr. Muller tells his thrilling tale simply and with great plausibility."

+ N Y Times 21:18 Ja 16 '16 430w

R of Rs 53:381 Mr '16 90w

+ Seven Seas 2:45 F '16 80w

"The picture of invasion and subjection is cleverly worked out. Only a knowledge that the situation is highly improbable prevents the reader from shuddering."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Mr 3 '16 330w

MUMFORD, EDITH E. READ. Dawn of religion in the mind of the child; a study of child life. *50c Longmans 377 E16-291

"Mrs. Mumford has attempted to trace the growth of the child's religion during the first ten years of his life. On every page she insists upon the necessity of religious training both in the home and in the school, though she lays greater stress upon the duties of the true mother. 'In every case,' she says, 'the child needs to realize that there is no department in life in which religion has no concern, no one day in the week which alone is set apart for it.' Comparatively little is said about supernatural religion or supernatural motives, but the author brings out well the necessity of knowing, loving and serving God. The illustrations are drawn from real life, and they have been interpreted in the light of the author's own experience, so as to bring out the idea of an orderly process of development."—Cath World

+ Cath World 103:405 Je '16 140w

"The author is a student of child psychology, and a sympathetic interpreter of children's actions, impulses and questionings."

+ Ind 86:554 Je 26 '16 40w

MUNDY, TALBOT. King—of the Khyber rifles; a romance of adventure. il *$1.35 (1c) Bobbs 16-23093

Athelstan King—not the "lord among earls, bracelet-bestower, and baron of barons" of Old English poetry, but a very modern young hero—is sent up into the hills to head off a jihad, or holy war, that is said to be brewing. The time is that of the outbreak of war in Europe, and German influence is supposed to be at work among the native tribes of northern India. To track it to its source and to discover if he can the secret of the Khinjan caves and the "Heart of the hills" is Captain King's task. Only one thing about it displeases him, he is to work hand in hand with a woman, the wonderful Yasmini who knows all the secrets. This fascinating personage is always the center of interest, altho who she is is revealed only at the end, and then not fully.

"Full of intrigues and exciting adventures, and the native atmosphere is cleverly drawn."

+ A L A Bkl 13:223 F '17

MUNDY, TALBOT—Continued

"Another piece of outlandish romancing very effectively done. It is rather like Mr. Stewart Edward White's 'The leopard woman.'" H. W. Boynton

Bookm 44:648 F '17 390w

"A mammoth of sensationalism. And for the kind of thing it is, it is really not so bad. . . . If you like the impossible, if you can believe on occasion the incredible, and enjoy mystery for the very sake of mystery, read by all means the adventures of 'King of the Khyber rifles.'" — + Boston Transcript p8 D 30 '16 370w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:537 D 14 '16 400w

"The plot is cleverly constructed and ingenious, the descriptions vivid, the characters human beings." — + N Y Times 21:557 D 17 '16 430w

"Appeared in Everybody's magazine, v. 34-36, May 1916-Jan. 1917."

Pittsburgh 22:37 Ja '17 40w

MUNN, CHARLES CLARK. Camp Castaway. il *$1.30 Appleton 16-7916

"A departure from the usual superficial and often artificial 'prep' school or camp tale for boys. The principal participants in the narrative are three country boys, who ascend in a captive balloon at a county fair. Being without funds, they are aided in this adventurous ambition by an old hunter and trapper. The latter not only buys the necessary tickets for the boys, but ascends with them. When they get up in the air, a rope holding the balloon captive suddenly breaks, and the quartet sails away on a highly exciting journey to the Canadian wilderness. The old trapper, of course, is the savior of the party, and through his forest lore, and ingenuity in improvising to meet the needs of shelter and sustenance the reader learns how to make the wilderness yield up rude comfort and supply the material and physical wants of the traveler. Mr. Munn scatters through the story paragraphs of genial philosophy, anecdotes and interesting comment."—Springfield Republican

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 330w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 380w

MUNRO, WILLIAM BENNETT. Principles and methods of municipal administration. il *$2.25 (1c) Macmillan 352 16-2622

A supplementary volume to the author's "Government of American cities." "It has to do with functions rather than with framework; its aim is to show how various city departments are organized, what work they have to do, and what problems they usually encounter in getting things done." (Preface) Contents: The quest for efficiency; City planning; Streets; Water supply; Waste disposal and sewerage; Public lighting; Police administration; Fire prevention and fire protection; School administration; Municipal finance.

"The descriptions of methods of assessing real estate and of budget making are particularly good. Some of the author's statements and interpretations are, however, open to question." — + Am Econ R 6:680 S '16 340w

"The first and last chapters are the most valuable and original contributions. . . . Two valuable features are the historical setting given each topic discussed, and the few well-selected references." S. E. W. Bedford

+ Am J Soc 22:98 Jl '16 300w

"The work is more scholarly than C. A. Beard's 'American city government,' but on the whole steers a successful course between an elementary and highly technical treatise."

+ A L A Bkl 12:455 Jl '16 (Reprinted from Open Shelf, Cleveland)

"No general statement can be made regarding the author's attitude toward municipal problems as he is very discriminating in all of his opinions. . . . The contents of the book are most practical and the style extremely clear—even to the extent of repetition in some instances." F. A. Magruder

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:400 My '16 760w

"This bibliography will be of very great service to the average citizen interested in municipal affairs. Whatever may be the subject in which he is interested, he will have ready reference to the most valuable and trustworthy material. The author has shown rare judgment in discriminating between the important and the unimportant publications relating to municipal affairs. This work should be placed in a prominent position in every public library for the purpose of stimulating citizen inquiry into municipal problems." L. S. R.

+ Ann Am Acad 64:247 Mr '16 170w

"The volume is well written and would make interesting and valuable reading for every citizen, and especially for every municipal officer. The principal defect of the book lies in its omissions. The reader in looking through the table of contents is at once struck by the omission from the list of subjects of a treatment of public health, social welfare activities, and public utility regulation. . . . These omissions are particularly unfortunate from the point of view of text-book use." H. G. James

+ — Ann Am Acad 67:314 S '16 470w

Boston Transcript p10 Ap 22 '16 350w

+ Cleveland p37 Ap '16 80w

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg

+ Dial 61:185 S 21 '16 820w

"Here and there statements appear that to one versed in the technicalities of the subjects treated seem unhappily expressed and in a few cases actually misleading. All these are of course relatively minor blemishes that probably will do little harm among the class of readers for which the book was designed."

+ — Engin N 76:941 N 16 '16 500w

"Within the limits it sets for itself it is complete, careful, wholly scientific. It is alive to all the defects in American city administration and emphatic in its condemnation of them, yet it is optimistic in tone." V. J. West

+ J Pol Econ 24:813 O '16 950w

"A volume which, if less encyclopaedic than some others, is alone in supplying an informed, reasoned, and attractive record of what our cities are doing, the machinery by which they are performing it, their success and failure—in a word, in showing us where we are."

+ Nation 102:439 Ap 1 '16 330w

N Y Br Lib News 3:40 Mr '16 90w

Pittsburgh 21:303 Je '16 30w

+ Springfield Republican p8 Ag 1 '16 330w

MÜNSTERBERG, HUGO. Business psychology. il $2 La Salle extension univ. 15-15115

"The book is a treatise on elementary psychology with special emphasis on those functions which are significant for business life. Part 1 introduces the subject with some general principles. Parts 2, 3, and 4 deal respectively with the cognitive, emotional, and activity aspects of mental life, while Part 5 treats of psychological differences in individuals and suggests some practical tests whereby the business man may determine the mental characteristics of his employees. In the last two parts of the book the principles discussed in the foregoing chapters are applied to actual industrial life."—J Pol Econ

"If there is one point of criticism with respect to the appreciation of 'Business psychology' it is that a half-hearted or careless thinker will not be tempted to follow through all the niceties of discrimination involved. But to the earnest student, Professor Münsterberg has given a text whose basic and well correlated expositions dignify and set functioning the psychic values of business experience. The business executive, buyer, seller, employer of office help and the employer of labor will find 'Business psychology' valuable in assisting to build up a standard for correct human judgments." H. W. Hess

+ Ann Am Acad 63:305 Ja '16 350w

Boston Transcript p3 D 11 '15 350w

"The author shows an understanding of the business man's and manufacturer's problems and an appreciation of the work and field of the engineer which the writer has not as yet found in any other work of the sort. Moreover, the reader gets no sham, but real psychology with a characteristic German thoroughness. Dr. Münsterberg has done a public service in writing such a book." Hugo Diemer

+ J Philos 13:249 Ap 27 '16 550w

"There are interesting chapters on the outer and inner conditions of efficiency, and an informing discussion of the functions and power of suggestion. The mental tests of intelligence, temperament, and character given in the last chapters should prove interesting to those concerned with the employment of labor and the more disinterested forms of vocational guidance. On the whole, the work is clear, simple, and suggestive."

+ J Pol Econ 24:205 F '16 320w

"The shrewd reader is likely to find the special illumination afforded by 'Business psychology' in strange contrast to its sacerdotal pretensions, and to conclude that, in practical matters, psychology has little to say that might not be discovered by unspecialized intelligence. Professor Münsterberg's observations of the conditions of efficiency are often interesting, but they imply no special apparatus of thought."

— + Nation 101:341 S 9 '15 230w

"A little volume of distinction. The last four chapters on 'Vocational fitness,' 'Individual mental traits,' 'Selection of fit individuals' and 'Mental tests' are of great interest and practical value."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:194 Mr '16 120w

Springfield Republican p15 F 10 '16 180w

MÜNSTERBERG, HUGO. Photoplay. *$1 (2c)
Appleton 778.5 16-7528

A psychologist's analysis of the moving picture play. Professor Münsterberg analyzes the illusions of movement and depth produced by the picture on the screen and considers as well the psychological bearings of such technical devices as the "close-up," "cut-back," etc. This purely psychological study makes up part 1 of the book. In part 2, devoted to The esthetics of the photoplay, he considers the relation of the moving picture to the drama, arriving at the conclusion that the two are "coördinated arts, each perfectly valuable in itself." He makes no predictions as to the future of the photoplay. "Nobody can foresee the ways which the new art of the photoplay will open, but everybody ought to recognize even today that it is worth while to help this advance and to make the art of the film a medium for an original creative expression of our time and to mold by it the esthetic instincts of the millions."

+ A L A Bk 12:465 J1 '16

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 29 '16 470w

+ Dial 61:28 Je 22 '16 350w

+ N Y Times 21:234 Je 4 '16 170w

+ R of Rs 54:677 D '16 120w

"The photoplay," with its abundance of psychological observation and its esthetic speculation, is an entertaining little treatise, full of suggestive ideas and written in brisk, lucid English for the average intelligent reader."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 1000w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:269 Je '16 60w

MÜNSTERBERG, HUGO. Tomorrow. *$1 (2c)
Appleton 327 16-22443

This is Professor Münsterberg's third book written since the beginning of the war. Together they form a trilogy dealing with the past, present and future of international relations. In this third volume the author writes to a friend in Germany of the new nationalism and the new internationalism which will, he believes, result from the war. "Will this new internationalism bring us peace?" he asks, and answers: "I know it will surely bring us the will for peace. The pacifism of the old world will disappear, but a new pacifism will grow among us, virile, just and inspiring. I hope it will not speak in the threatening language of force; to enforce peace is to endanger peace. But it will be powerful through the idealistic spirit which will be the deepest trait of the new time."

"A generous portion of Professor Münsterberg's last book, 'Tomorrow,' is really about yesterday. . . . Whatever its mistakes or queer placings of emphasis, his last book—like all his books about the war—was happily an honest and moderate attempt to extend international good will rather than an attempt to destroy it."

+ — New Repub 9:308 Ja 13 '17 270w

+ N Y Times 21:531 D 3 '16 800w

"Of interest chiefly because it is Mr. Münsterberg's last word to the American people; also because it contains an interpretation to Americans of the spirit of Germany by a German. But it is not of great value as a prophecy or even as a hope of the probable results of the war. In this respect it is less suggestive than H. G. Wells's 'What is coming?'"

Outlook 115:118 Ja 17 '17 50w

R of Rs 55:109 Ja '17 30w

MÜNSTERBERG, MARGARETE ANNA ADEL-HEID, tr. Harvest of German verse; with a foreword by Kuno Francke. *$1.25 Appleton 831.08 16-13644

"A collection of over 150 German lyric poems from the twelfth century to 1915, representing besides folk-songs and ballads, over fifty authors. 'The German temper is essentially lyric. It is easy to see why a people of such a type of mind should have found in lyric poetry the most adequate form of self-expression; why, next to German music, German lyrics should be the richest and the finest revelation of the German soul.'" (Foreword).—Wis Lib Bull

A L A Bk 13:74 N '16

"Under the heading 'Our time' one finds a veritable 'golden treasury,' as the jacket says, of the poems of this hour—songs, as heartbreaking and joyful, as piercingly beautiful as the best of Christina Rossetti and Ernest Dowson, or our own Edith Thomas. It is this younger and present group of German lyricists that holds the reader most." C. H. Towne

+ Bookm 44:125 O '16 660w

"It is not because of her selections that one quarrels with Miss Münsterberg, although the omission of poems by Hölderlin and Hebel, and among the moderns, Otto Ernst, Wedekind, Mombert, Dauthendey and the ebullient Marie-Madeleine is to be regretted. It is rather more because her translations too often are like those found between the staves of foreign songs published for the American market. Too often she deprives the poem of its characteristic phrase. . . . Still, it is no little thing to have given the English-reading public a book that with all its imperfections affords much insight into what is loveliest in German character and story." P. L. Rosenfeld

+ — New Repub 8:120 S 2 '16 1450w

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 J1 '16 10w

Wis Lib Bull 12:320 J1 '16 80w

MURDOCH, WILLIAM HENRY FULLARTON, and OSCHWALD, ULRICH A. Electrical instruments in theory and practice. il *$2.75 Macmillan 537.7 (Eng ed A15-2387)

An authoritative work that gives a condensed history of the early attempts to measure electrical quantities; deals with damping and how to obtain it in meters; permanent magnet instruments, iron core instruments, electrostatic meters, hot-wire meters, dynamometer meters, and Watt-hour meters; describes magnetic testing apparatus; the Wheatstone bridge, the Kelvin double bridge and the potentiometer for both continuous and alternating currents.

"The writers of this excellent book evidently possess the two requisites for a successful text, mastery of the subject and the ability to express their ideas clearly. . . . A very useful feature consists of experimental data which is liberally given throughout to show how nearly

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

MURDOCH, W: H: F., and OSCHWALD, U. A.

—Continued

the theory may be expected to agree with practice. . . . The writer knows of no book on electrical measuring instruments which is its equal in value to the advanced engineering student." J. H. M.

+ Science n s 43:575 Ap 21 '16 250w

MURRAY, GILBERT. Foreign policy of Sir Edward Grey, 1906-1915. pa *50c Oxford 15-19354

A defense of the foreign policy of Sir Edward Grey. "Contents: The twelve days: Diary of the twelve days before the war; Criticisms on the twelve days, our relation to France.—The eight years: The general principles of foreign policy; The general principles of British foreign policy since 1906; The entente with France, the Morocco treaty of 1904; The sequel of the Morocco treaty; The crisis of 1911; The entente with Russia, the treaty of 1907; Persia, the working of the treaty of 1907; Persia continued, Mr. Morgan Shuster as treasurer-general; The peril in the background, our relations with Germany; Sir Edward Grey as a statesman." (Pittsburgh)

Pittsburgh 21:233 My '16 100w

St Louis 14:149 Ap '16

"Professor Gilbert Murray's very readable and persuasive defence of Sir Edward Grey's foreign policy is the more valuable as coming from one who was previously inclined to be suspicious of anything that was called imperialistic. . . . Incidentally he provides a satisfactory answer to the ill-considered demand for a popular control of diplomacy. He points out that Sir Edward Grey has in fact bound the British people to no vital policy without taking the House of commons into his confidence."

+ Spec 115:33 Jl 17 '15 830w

MURRY, J. MIDDLETON. Fyodor Dostoevsky. *$2 (3½c) Dodd 891.7 16-26939

This volume belongs to a series of studies of literary men that are essentially critical, biographical detail being relegated to a minor place. This is particularly true of Mr. Murry's study. The outward events of Dostoevsky's life are unilluminating, taken by themselves. "Dostoevsky cannot be understood from his letters; to understand them demands first an understanding of his work. Without that, they are obscure; with it almost superfluous. So it is with his life." On the other hand, the author says "It would be foolish for an English writer to attempt a purely literary criticism of Dostoevsky's work." His purpose is to ascertain "what is prophetic in it" and to determine what attitude English critics should take toward it, for it has burst upon them as "a new experience" and cannot be measured by old canons.

"Able written and a different viewpoint from Soloviev."

+ A L A Bkl 13:113 D '16

"There is a useful chronological bibliography at the end."

+ Ath p430 S '16 90w

"His study is in many ways the most profound which the great Russian has inspired. While it lacks the charm of Mr. Paul's analysis, partly due to the rigidity with which it clings to its critical premise, it is a volume which will appeal to the more diligent of Dostoevsky's admirers." G: Middleton

+ Bookm 44:299 N '16 820w

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 18 '16 630w

"Mr. Murry does not read Russian and has—or at least exhibits—small knowledge of Russian literature or of the very definite school of thought, the Slavophil, to which Dostoevsky belonged: he treats his author as a being apart from all external conditions, and rejects the obvious tendencies in his works, in favor of interpretations that are nothing less than whimsical. . . . In fine, one may say that this volume resembles rational criticism much as Dostoevsky's heroes resemble average humanity."

— Natlon 104:23 Ja 4 '17 420w

N Y Br Lib News 3:169 N '16 20w

St Louis 14:439 D '16

"The interest of this book, which is great, lies in the manner in which Mr. Murry has experienced Dostoevsky. To him Dostoevsky is not an artist, he is not one great writer among many to be compared with other great writers; he is for the moment, the whole of life; and what he says about Dostoevsky is really what he has to say about life itself, about the whole relation of mankind to the universe. . . . At nearly every point we have seemed to disagree with Mr. Murry; yet we would advise every one to read his book. For the more you differ from him the more you are provoked to thought."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p403 Ag 24 '16 1900w

MY secret service; Vienna, Sophia, Constantinople, Nish, Belgrade, Asia Minor, etc., by the man who dined with the Kaiser. il *$1 (3c) Doran 940.91 16-11740

"The remarkable narrative of a man who claims to have worked in the Krupp factories, heard Commander von Harsing tell the story of his submarine voyage to Constantinople, interviewed Enver Pasha, traveled on the first Balkan express, and, to cap the climax, dined with the Kaiser and King Ferdinand at Nish. The author represents himself as a neutral who was hired by Lord Northcliffe to 'scout' for the London Daily Mail at Adrianople, Sofia, Vienna, and other points. He denies that he has been a spy or that he ever was officially in England's service."—R of Rs

Ind 87:280 Ag 21 '16 130w

"The whole narrative is vitiated by a too-partizan bias. Nevertheless, it is interesting."

+ — Lit D 53:311 Ag 5 '16 350w

+ N Y Times 21:266 Jl 2 '16 380w

R of Rs 54:117 Jl '16 100w

"Despite the fact that his book reads like one of Mr. Oppenheim's highly colored romances of international intrigue, several circumstances point to its thorough reliability."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Jl 9 '16 300w

MYERS, A. WALLIS. Captain Anthony Wilding. 2d ed il *$1.50 (3c) Doran

Anthony Wilding, known as the world's lawn tennis champion, rose to the rank of captain in the British army and was killed in the trenches in May, 1915. This sketch of his life is the work of an intimate friend who had access to letters written from the front. Mr. Myers says: "In writing this volume I had a three-fold purpose: the first, to preserve some record of a strenuous life, of which the final act was its chief glory; the second, to offer a small tribute to New Zealand, the over-seas dominion which bred Captain Wilding and many another volunteer who has fallen in the great fight; the third, to suggest that the cult of sport, fostered in this country, has proved, in its discipline of body and mind, a material advantage to a nation suddenly called to arms." (Preface)

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p126 Mr 16 '16 900w

MYRICK, HERBERT. Federal farm loan system. *$1 Judd 332.7 16-16182

"The first book devoted to the new federal farm loan system is the work of Mr. Herbert Myrick, the well-known writer on agricultural topics, who is himself serving as chairman of the Massachusetts Farmland bank. In this manual Mr. Myrick defines the purpose and principles of the new system as established by federal law, showing how the National farm loan associations are to be organized and conducted, and also how the joint-stock landbanks are to operate. The author is not convinced that the new law is perfect, but believes that it may be utilized by farmers and investors to accomplish, to a great extent, the purposes that it was intended to serve."—R of Rs

A L A Bkl 13:61 N '16

+ Ind 87:463 S 25 '16 70w

R of Rs 54:456 O '16 110w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"It contains the full text of the farm loan act, as well as interest tables."

+ St Louis 14:429 D '16 20w

"The subject is considered from every angle and all possible objections are considered. The explanations are lucid, and the work reveals a full understanding of the system."

+ Springfield Republican p6 S 1 '16 110w

"Useful for investors, but still more so for the farmer."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:451 D '16 40w

N

NAIDU, SAROJINI. Bird of time. *$1 Lane 891.4

The author is a native of India who was educated at Girton college, Cambridge. She writes in English but chooses Hindu themes. An earlier volume of verse was entitled "The golden threshold."

"Choice, and of small compass, there is no mistaking her authentic inspiration. Mrs. Naidu distills the spirit of her ancient country, the absorption of its religions in contact with western idealism." W. G. Tinkom-Fernandez
+ New Repub 7:204 Je 24 '16 1250w

"Her folk-songs are rarely beautiful and her serious poems reveal a burning fervency that is fixed upon the pursuit of the eternal."

+ R of Rs 53:506 Ap '16 280w

NAIDU, SAROJINI. Golden threshold. *$1 Lane 891.4 16-22309

The poems in this volume were first printed in 1905. Arthur Symons, who encouraged their publication, says in the introduction to the volume: "They hint, in a sort of delicately evasive way, at a rare temperament, the temperament of a woman of the East, finding expression through a western language and under partly western influences. They do not express the whole of that temperament; but they express, I think, its essence; and there is an eastern magic in them."

"The reader feels sometimes as if it was a western poet who was singing of eastern life, expressing exotic moods, who had a delightfully subtle understanding of objects and scenes, which he had sedulously visualized through sympathy and experience." W. S. B.
+ Boston Transcript p6 S 27 '16 1250w

+ Lit D 53:957 O 14 '16 650w

"Sarojini Naidu is a Hindoo woman of pure blood. But there is nothing specially Hindoo in the book now published; it is European in structure, and even in tradition it is European. Girton and King's college have done their work thoroughly. Even the beautiful letters to Mr. Symons are the letters of a highly cultured, artistically sensitive, European woman."

New Repub 9:247 D 30 '16 720w

+ N Y Times 21:508 N 26 '16 30w

+ R of Rs 54:567 N '16 140w

NASMYTH, GEORGE WILLIAM. Social progress and the Darwinian theory; a study of force as a factor in human relations; with an introd. by Norman Angell. *$1.50 (1½c) Putnam 301 16-6037

The philosophy of force claims to find its scientific foundation in the application of Darwin's theory of natural selection to the evolution of human society. To show that this application is false and that it is based on a distorted version of Darwin is the purpose of this book. It is the outcome of studies begun several years before the outbreak of the war "with the object of making available for English readers some of the important results of recent researches on the applications of Darwin's theory to human society." As the work took its final shape, the special question of war was given first attention. It is divided into three parts, devoted to: The philosophy of force; Mutual aid as a factor of social progress; Justice as a prime social need.

"The present writer has done a great public service by writing this volume which is largely based upon the work of Novicov. . . . The reviewer is not at all convinced that the program as outlined is not in reality an attempt to substitute one half truth for another. It is, however, certain that the first half truth has been greatly overemphasized and the second greatly underestimated. It is well then to have the claims of cooperation strongly presented, and this the writer has done." Carl Kelsey
+ Ann Am Acad 69:283 Ja '17 400w

"The book is a good one of its kind, but it is a plea for a cause rather than a thorough scientific study."

+ Nation 102:650 Je 15 '16 970w

N Y Br Lib News 3:58 Ap '16 50w

"The doctrine that war is a factor of progress has been preached for so long and by men of such eminence that it has passed into a belief little short of a calamity. Dr. Nasmyth has done a good work in raising the standard of a nobler and milder philosophy, and giving it strength and dignity by a truer interpretation of the processes of social evolution."

+ N Y Times 21:282 Jl 16 '16 1550w

St Louis 14:179 My '16

Reviewed by E. G. Balch

+ Survey 37:92 O 28 '16 70w

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION. Essential place of religion in education. pa 30c National educ. 377 E16-327

"The National education association conducted a prize-essay contest last year on the above-named subject. . . . The prize was awarded to Professor Charles E. Rugh, University of California, and special mention was made of the essays presented by Professor Laura H. Wild of Lake Erie college, Miss Frances Virginia Frisbie of Wilkes-Barre high school, Rev. Clarence Reed of Palo Alto, California, and Miss Anna B. West, Newburyport, Massachusetts. These five essays are printed in the above-named monograph, together with a compilation, prepared by Miss Sara Whedon of Ann Arbor high school, of the points made in the remaining four hundred and twenty-seven essays."—Am J Theol

"Taken together, this collection is perhaps the best presentation of the various aspects of the problem of religious education in the public schools that has been made." T. G. Soares

+ Am J Theol 20:458 Jl '16 480w

+ A L A Bkl 13:61 N '16

+ Bib World 48:62 Jl '16 250w

School R 24:327 Ap '16 20w

NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL. Commercial preparedness; official proceedings of the third National foreign trade convention, held at New Orleans, January 27-29, 1916. $1.50 National foreign trade council 382

"In addition to reprints of addresses, discussions of the following problems are reported: Rehabilitation of the American merchant marine; Utilization of the tariff to encourage American foreign trade to protect it from discrimination; Adaptation of commercial education to the needs of foreign trade; Ways and means for smaller manufacturers and merchants to engage in and share the benefits of foreign trade; World trade conditions after the war; Coöperative foreign selling methods; Banking problems in foreign trade; and Foreign investment of American capital as an aid to export trade."—Am Econ R

Am Econ R 6:370 Je '16 90w

NATIONAL MUNICIPAL LEAGUE. COMMITTEE ON MUNICIPAL PROGRAM. Model city charter and municipal home rule. pa 50c National municipal league 352 16-21830

"The National municipal league now lays before the public its 'Model city charter and municipal home rule' prepared by a committee of distinguished experts in American city government. This document is a thorough revision of, or rather a substitute for, the League's original 'Municipal program,' adopted more than fifteen years ago and it represents the mature judgment of that association which has done such notable service in promoting thinking about city government in the United States.

NATIONAL MUNICIPAL LEAGUE—Continued

The scheme of government set forth in the document before us is simple in form. It is the commission manager type supplemented by the initiative, referendum and recall.—Am Pol Sci R

"The civil service provisions of the League's program are clear and full and represent, I believe, the most approved thought on that subject. . . . The proposals are for the most part clearly put and the language employed is far more precise and definite than one usually finds in city charters. The document is stripped of verbiage and compact in form. Some of the sections, such as those on the initiative and referendum might have been reduced, and more faith put in ordinances, but the good and wise will differ on this point." C: A. Beard

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:602 Ag '16 1200w
Engin N 76:314 Ag 17 '16 200w

NATIONAL SOCIETY FOR THE PROMOTION OF INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION. Report of the Minneapolis survey for vocational education, January 1, 1916. (Bul. no. 21) pa 75c
National soc. for the promotion of industrial education 371.42 E16-1096

The report of an investigation made a few years ago into the cases of children who leave school before completing the course, paved the way for this later report of the plans that are now being perfected by the public schools in cooperation with the Dunwoody institute for a complete system of industrial education. "There are certain general chapters in the book which show a broader view of industrial education than that which is exhibited in the earlier survey. Thus there is a chapter on 'What vocational education is needed for non-commissioned officers of industry.' This chapter discusses the different levels of industrial organization and points out the need of a group of trained workers who shall be subordinate to the managers, but superior to the ordinary laborers. There is a chapter on art education in industry. . . . There is a chapter on home gardening and elementary agriculture in which the plea is made for an education of the worker which shall have no relation whatsoever to his trade activities, but shall better qualify him to use his leisure time in productive activities which will contribute to his home life." (El School J)

"The book is a very readable statement of the characteristics of the different trades and will be useful in presenting the case to students as well as to teachers. . . . Will seem to many readers to present a program too elaborate for the ordinary city, but it will serve as an example of what may be done where funds are to be had; and a clear appreciation of the need of such training has been established by earlier investigations as well as by the present investigation."

+ El School J 16:461 My '16 900w

NAVY league annual (corrected to January 31, 1916); ed. by Robert Yerburgh, assisted by Archibald Hurd and Gerald Flenness. Il *5s
John Murray, London 359

"The foreword by Mr. Yerburgh and Part 1 constitute nearly two hundred pages of current naval history including articles by Mr. Archibald Hurd on 'The triumph of sea power'; Lord Sydenham on 'The influence of the British navy on the course of the war'; 'Aircraft in the war', the French, Russian, Italian, and Japanese navies in the war, 'American's new Armada', &c. Part 2 gives official documents relating to the navy, and Part 3 tables of warship losses. The illustrations consist, not as formerly of drawings by Mr. Oskar Parkes, but of photographs."

—Ath

Ath p235 My '16 90w

"Interesting though the special articles in the annual have always been and are again, the chief merit of the work is that it contains a compact mass of information about naval affairs which one cannot come by in so well arranged or accurate a form anywhere else."

+ Spec 116:660 My 27 '16 1400w

"The statistical tables presented in part 3 of the volume contain an immense amount of valuable information carefully compiled and skillfully digested by Mr. Maurice Prendergast and Mr. H. C. Bywater, who has undertaken the tables relating to the German navy."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p182 Ap 20 '16 780w

NEARING, SCOTT. Anthracite. *$1 (2c)
Winston 338.8 16-2226

This study of one natural resource monopoly is addressed particularly to the consumer. It shows that, far from being an indefinite third party in the conflict that involves capital and labor, the consumer is the one most affected; it is the consumer who pays. The anthracite coal industry has been chosen as offering a flagrant example of conditions that are possible in any natural resource monopoly. The anthracite monopoly is more concentrated and consequently offers a simpler problem for study, but the principles involved are those that underlie private ownership of natural resources in any form. The chapters take up: Monopoly on trial; The anthracite problem; The consumer and anthracite prices; The wages of anthracite workers; The profits of the operators; A concrete example—the conflict of 1912; An object lesson in monopoly; The future of anthracite. Statistical data are given in an appendix and there is an index.

Reviewed by F. S. Chapin

+ Am J Soc 22:114 Jl '16 160w

"For the historical facts concerning the growth of the combination see Jones (Booklist, 12:113, D '15) and for a study of collective bargaining in the anthracite coal industry see Sydenstricker (p. 46)."

A L A Bki 13:11 O '16

Reviewed by W. H. S. Stevens

Ann Am Acad 67:308 S '16 460w

Engin N 76:748 Ap 20 '16 170w

Ind 86:116 Ap 17 '16 90w

J Pol Econ 24:1022 D '16 140w

Lit D 52:734 Mr 18 '16 320w

"When, and so far as, he sticks to his text his historical compilation of previous wage controversies and their effect upon public interests is a valuable contribution to the discussion which is about to approach a crisis, and to make an appeal to public opinion. . . . With a caveat against the personal opinions, it may be said cordially that a more complete authoritative or symmetrical compilation of the facts on a subject so prominently before the public can hardly be found."

+ — N Y Times 21:51 F 13 '16 1750w

Pittsburgh 21:106 Mr '16 60w

R of Rs 53:378 Mr '16 130w

Springfield Republican p17 Mr 9 '16 800w

NEARING, SCOTT. Poverty and riches. Il *$1 (1½c) Winston 331 16-20127

The purpose of this book is expressed in its sub-title, A study of the industrial régime. "First," says the author in explanation, "it is perfectly evident to even the casual observer that the ruling power in the world today is the power of industry. The word 'régime' is used in recognition of this rulership or leadership of industry. Second, the crucial question before the nation today concerns the effectiveness of the industrial rule. The industrial leaders are directing national affairs. Are they directing wisely? The industrial machine has dominated the community. Has the industrial domination proved socially advantageous?" An introductory chapter, Theory and practice, gives an analysis of English individualism as it found expression in the "laissez-faire" doctrine of the 19th century. The chapters that follow consider: The man and the machine; The laborer and his hire; Industrial leadership; Poverty; Riches; Industrial democracy. The illustrations are from photographs by Lewis W. Hine, pictures by W. Balfour Ker and others.

"His argument breaks down by reason of his failure to strike a balance between the external and internal causes of social wrongs. . . . A fine simplicity characterizes the remedies offered in such books, but the true ring of an appeal to free will is lacking. They offer us instead limp fatalism."

— Boston Transcript p7 N 11 '16 320w

— Lit D 53:1475 D 2 '16 310w

"Scott Nearing in his new book appears frankly as a social agitator. . . . The book is elaborately illustrated with sensational pictures, chiefly pairs of photographs contrasting conditions of extreme riches and extreme poverty."

Springfield Republican p8 N 2 '16 170w

NEGRO year book; an annual encyclopedia of the negro, 1916-1917; ed. by Monroe N. Work. pa 35c Negro year bk. pub. co., Tuskegee inst., Tuskegee, Ala. 326

This is the fourth annual issue of this year book. The preface points out that the work has been revised and enlarged. All the old matter has been rewritten and about 100 pages of new matter has been included. "Seventy-five pages are devoted to a review of the events of 1914-1915 as they affect the interests and indicate the progress of the race." A valuable feature of the work is a bibliography of thirty-eight pages.

NEIHARDT, JOHN GNEISENAU. Quest. *$1.25
* Macmillan 811 16-22361

For this volume the author has selected poems from the earlier books, "A bundle of myrrh," "Man-song," and "The stranger at the gate." He says, "It has been my intention to include only those poems which, having been read widely, have won approval." The arrangement of the poems has been determined "in accordance with the succession of attitudes toward life incident to growth out of the erotic period into manhood."

+ N Y Times 22:1 Ja 7 '17 230w

"To realize the scope, the power and promise of American lyric poetry, it is necessary to know the work of John G. Neihardt. Here are no borrowings, no mimicking of other poets, but personal vision, fire, and the fruit of experience."

+ R of Rs 55:211 F '17 70w

NEIL, MARION HARRIS. Salads, sandwiches and chafing dish recipes. il *$1 (2c) McKay
641.5 16-15101

A book of recipes prepared by a former cookery editor of the Ladies' Home Journal. She says "The tested recipes I offer here are the results of careful selection from a collection made during a period of twenty years, and I have been explicit in my directions, even at the risk of repeating them more than once." Contents: Chafing dish recipes; Sandwich recipes; Salads, general information; Salad accessories; How to prepare; Dressings; Salads. There are a number of good illustrations and the book is indexed.

N Y Br Lib News 3:143 S '16

NEILL, A. S. Dominie's log. 2d ed *$1 (2½c)
McBride 371 A16-945

The dominie is not a minister but a schoolmaster—a Scottish schoolmaster who, setting a fine value upon the human side of his calling, illustrates by this record of his experiences with his "bairns" what he thinks is wrong with the present day school system. The rightness and justness of the ideas, made more acceptable by his winning personality and delightful humor, will appeal to an audience inclined towards socialism, steeped in Shaw doctrines, and sensitive to the twinges of an aroused social conscience. He has something, too, to say to parents about their shortcomings in parental responsibilities. "The truth is that the parents of to-day are not fit to be parents, and the parents of the next generation will be no better. . . . They will leave school at the age of fourteen, slave in the fields or the factory five or six years. Then society will accept them as legitimate guardians of the morals and spiritual welfare of children. I say that this is a damnable system."

"The dominie is unquestionably clear-sighted, and should help some to avoid over-seriousness; on the other hand, his views may be expected to become deeper and broader than they are."

+ — Ath 1915,2:346 N 13 300w

"He shows a sympathy and appreciation of the little whimsicalities of youth which are unique. The book ought to be distributed to all public and private school teachers in our land. We are not surfeited by child psychology in the writings of this dominie. But we learn something of genuine human kindness."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 24 '16 160w

+ Ind 87:104 J1 17 '16 30w

"The fact that A. S. Neill's 'A dominie's log' has been extravagantly praised by some British reviewers only shows that the substitution of sentimentalism for sound judgment is not confined to this country. Mr. Neill appears to be a tender-hearted person who is fond of children, and who doubtless, in spite of his avowed methods, contrives to teach them something; but one who reasons with the emotions, as does the author of this book, is not qualified to put forward a theory of education."

— Nation 103:18 J1 6 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:108 J1 '16

"A volume full of sound, original ideas, companioned with joy and whimsicality."

+ N Y Times 21:306 Ag 6 '16 370w

"The author's attitude of 'jeune revolté' and his querulous talk about the 'hypocrisy' of modern life are sometimes very irritating; and one regrets his rather silly defence of slovenliness in school as well as a few other things which seem below the level of the rest of the man. But when all is said, Mr. Neill appears in this book as an exceptionally original, humorous, and attractive person; a delightful teacher, one would suppose, as certainly as he is an attractive writer."

+ — Spec 117:48 J1 8 '16 820w

NEILSON, FRANCIS. Strong man's house.
*$1.50 (1c) Bobbs 16-18909

In the summer of 1914 it was the fatuous belief of Sir Alfred Horton-Birkett that, thanks largely to his own benevolent efforts, war had been made impossible. All the first-class countries were so well prepared no one dared fire a shot. It was to this end that Sir Alfred had manufactured shells, believing implicitly that the way to prevent war is to prepare for it. During the progress of the war he continues to manufacture shells—and gas bombs when they become a military necessity. And in the meantime he sees his family one by one turn from him and his money. In the end he is brought by their attitude to give up his business. He has great plans for using his money, even considers dividing his estate up into small holdings, but the change of heart comes too late. An ironic fate, and a Zeppelin-dropped bomb (was it one of his own making?) put an end to his planning.

"A tremendously interesting book to those neutrals who do not know the intimate reactions of the people who are under the curse. . . . 'A strong man's house' isn't cheap. It is saved from that by the genuine passion of the author against war, by his sense of its blind futility and waste. . . . His excellent technique will deceive no one. 'A strong man's house' is not a good novel by any artistic criterion. The march of events have captured its author's mind and heart." H. S.

+ New Repub 9:102 N 25 '16 520w

N Y Times 21:448 O 22 '16 1050w

"It is an unpopular side of the war that Francis Neilson, formerly a member of Parliament, supports in a 'Strong man's house.' . . . The novel, which has no literary value, is interesting as representing the sincere views of a group of radical members of Parliament and publicists, of whom the author is one."

Springfield Republican p15 D 31 '16 440w

NEILSON, WILLIAM ALLAN, and WEBSTER, KENNETH GRANT TREMAYNE, eds. Chief British poets of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries; ed. with explanatory and biographical notes. (Chief poets ser.) $2.50
Houghton 821.08 16-7219

"The aim in the present volume, as in the other issues of the series, has been, not to compile a mediæval anthology of choice poems and passages, but to represent fully and where possible by complete works, all the chief poets of the period covered." (Preface) In the case of some of the earlier poems, among them, "The pearl," and "Sir Gawain and the Green knight," a short selection from the original poem is given, followed by a translation of the whole. In the other poems footnotes furnish the glosses necessary for reading.

A L A Bkl 13:21 O '16

"Especially welcome by reason of the generous representation accorded to the Scottish poets from Barbour to Lyndesay. With Gregory Smith out of print and Hand Browne never entirely satisfactory, the student, outside of a large library, was put to it to find texts. . . . Should not Barclay, and some specimen of fifteenth-century romance have been represented? . . . The glosses and notes are a model of concision, and the texts excellent."

+ Nation 102:sup489 My 4 '16 230w

N Y Br Lib News 3:69 My '16

Pratt 229 O '16 15w

NELSON, JAMES ALLEN. Embryology of the honey bee. il *$2 Princeton univ. press 595.79 15-22984

"Students of insect embryology will find an excellent treatment of insect germ layers and organogeny, exclusive of metamorphosis, in this work. Each detail of structure is traced from the beginning in the egg, and each forms the basis for a generally admirable critical review of a very extensive literature." (Nation) The author is an expert in bee culture investigations connected with the Bureau of entomology of the U. S. Department of agriculture.

"A full bibliography and an ample index, as well as abundant illustrations, add to the book's value as a work of reference."

+ Dial 60:37 Ja 6 '16 120w

+ Nation 102:sup503 My 4 '16 60w

"The book, therefore, is almost without significance for the bee-culturist, but from the point of view of the student of comparative embryology it is a production of very great interest, and is to be warmly commended. It might, indeed, be regarded as a first-class elementary text-book on insect embryology were it not for the obvious fact that the bee is not a very good choice as a type of insect development. The book will prove to be an indispensable adjunct to every zoological library." E. W. M.

+ Nature 97:97 Mr 30 '16 570w

"Dr. Nelson has incorporated in this work a great deal of his own research and many original observations. His account of the work done by others is accurate. Many readers will probably regret that no account is given of oogenesis, of spermatogenesis or of fertilization. Dr. Nelson's is the first comprehensive monograph which has ever been printed on the embryology of the honey bee. It will be of great value both to the investigator and the student." Alexander Petrunkevitch

+ Science n s 43:644 My 5 '16 950w

NEOGI, DWIJENDRA NATH. Sacred tales of India. il *75c Macmillan 398.2

"The life of the orthodox Hindu is a round of fasts, festivals, observances, and ceremonies. Connected with these is an immense accumulation of curious legends transmitted orally for ages. Many of the ceremonies are almost exclusively performed by women, and the tales are recited by the older female worshippers. Mr. Neogi's main object has been to narrate the stories as they are recited, mentioning only especially interesting facts concerned with the rituals."—Ath

"The legends are pleasing in their simplicity and quaintness and will help the reader to a better understanding of Indian women."

+ Ath p427 S '16 100w

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16 80w

St Louis 14:427 D '16

NESBITT, FLORENCE. Low cost cooking. 50c
Am. school of home economics 641 15-15148

"The contents of this book includes a chapter on the business of home making, what food does for us, another on economy in buying and general household directions. The pages of recipes following cover grain products, legumes, desserts, and special desserts for summer and for winter. There are menus for both seasons and a discussion on cost of food for one month for a family of man, woman, and four children. There is a chapter on a home-made fireless cooker, on lunches, on feeding and care of children, closing with a brief bibliography."—Survey

"An excellent cook book. The foods are low in cost but permit good variety, well flavored and seasoned. The tables showing cost of dried and fresh foods, bulk and package cereal, etc., will help the intelligent woman with small income, while the receipts, suggestions about children and house management, are clear and simple enough for any woman."

+ A L A Bkl 12:324 Ap '16

"An excellent little book which is similar in plan to Gibbs' 'Economic cooking,' but which contains less miscellaneous material on the care of the house and is more substantial in makeup."

+ Cleveland p10 F '16 32w

"Very practical and will be of service to social workers in this field. It is written in a clear style and will be useful to housewives of average education. In the hands of a good teacher it would also be a great help in families where the housekeeper is quite illiterate, as for example, the average tenement type." W. S. Gibbs

+ Survey 34:543 S 11 '15 34w

NETTLETON, GEORGE HENRY, ed. Book of the Yale pageant. il *$1 (1c) Yale univ. press 378 16-17380

This book is made up of two parts. The first gives the text of the pageant which was presented in October, 1916, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the removal of Yale college to New Haven. The second consists of essays on Yale, contributed by Arthur Twining Hadley, William Howard Taft, Elisabeth Woodbridge Morris, Henry Parks Wright, Benjamin W. Bacon, George E. Vincent, William Lyon Phelps, and others. There are twenty illustrations, from old prints, photographs, etc.

"The supplementary essays, on the departments of Yale and their contributions to American life, might have had real value. Unfortunately, most of them are the hackneyed commonplace that appear in every university bulletin."

+ New Repub 8:252 O 7 '16 250w

Pittsburgh 22:52 Ja '17 20w

St Louis 14:399 N '16 10w

+ Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 670w

"Among others of these papers that are especially notable may be mentioned that of Professor Beebe on 'The expansion of Yale into a university.'" S. E. Baldwin

+ Yale R n s 6:433 Ja '17 80w

NEUHAUS, EUGEN. San Diego garden fair. il *$1.50 (9c) Elder 606 16-6973

The author of "The art of the exposition" and "The galleries of the exposition," two works devoted to the Panama-Pacific exposition, gives here his "personal impressions of the architecture, sculpture, horticulture, color scheme and other aesthetic aspects" of the smaller of the two California expositions of 1915. The San Diego fair has been continued into 1916. Mr. Neuhaus discusses: The historical background, The genealogy of the architecture, The buildings, The garden aspects. There are 32 illustrations and a ground plan of the exposition.

+ A L A Bkl 12:460 J1 '16

"Mr. Neuhaus's book is all that a guide book ought to be and is not. . . . The historical and architectural material is what distinguishes this book from others."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 17 '16 330w

+ Cleveland p119 Ag '16 10w

"There is a bit of history and some illuminating criticism of architecture, but one wishes for even more of the finely reproduced photographs, particularly more pictures of the lavishly beautiful gardens."

+ Ind 86:342 My 29 '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:94 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:288 J1 '16 '16 70w

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 330w

NEW international encyclopædia; ed. by F. M. Colby and T. Williams. 2d ed 24v v 17-20 il per set $120 (½c) Dodd 031 (14-9561)

v 17-20 Volumes 1-16 were noted in the 1915 Digest with a general descriptive note for the new edition. The new volumes carry the work to Shi.

"The changes from the former edition consist chiefly of liberal additions to subjects of growing interest, notably technology, including both entirely new articles and the expansion and revision to date of many older ones, additions and alterations in the bibliographies, plates and maps and the use of blackface marginal headings in the longer articles."

+ A L A Bkl 12:494 J1 '16 (Review of v 1-20)

"There has been sufficient rewriting and amplification to justify the claims of the publishers, many new maps and plates have been added, and there is throughout evidence of intelligent revision. The proof-reading has been carefully done, especially as to foreign names and titles of books. The International may in this respect challenge comparison with the Britannica, and even with Brockhaus and Meyer. . . . An innovation of doubtful value is the inclusion in the new edition of the International of a number of biographies of modern Russians and Russian-Americans whose title to fame is still to be proved. . . . Speaking generally, the articles on American cities take due cognizance of their growth since the publication of the first edition. The maps are still the weak point of the work. Though new ones have been inserted wherever necessary, their typographical execution leaves much to be desired."

+ Nation 102:438 Ap 20 '16 1850w (Review of v 9-18)

"The editorial claim of 'a full and practical bibliography for all important subjects' comes off little better than their substitute for an index. Taken as a whole the bibliographies of the 'New international' compare favorably with those of other encyclopaedias. One may even say that they constitute the best reference work for classified book titles readily available in English, owing to the number of titles and the consistent effort to give bibliography even to brief articles. But all this notwithstanding, the bibliographical feature is far from ideal."

+ New Repub 8:46 Ag 12 '16 2250w

+ N Y Times 21:296 J1 23 '16 80w

NEW international year book; a compendium of the world's progress for the year 1915; ed. by Frank Moore Colby; associate editors, Allen Leon Churchill and Horatio S. Krans. il $5 (½c) Dodd 031

This is the 9th issue in a series that began with the 1907 volume. Like the preceding volumes "it is designed as an encyclopædia of the year, with the titles arranged in a single alphabet, and the text written anew each year." There is a long article on The war of the nations by Carlton Hayes and one on The United States and the war by Nelson P. Mead. Other phases of war and peace, preparedness, etc., are treated by competent authorities. Drama is discussed by Clayton Hamilton, English and American literature by Horatio S. Krans, The woman movement by Juliet S. Poyntz. There are numerous illustrations and maps.

+ A L A Bkl 13:101 D '16

+ Ann Am Acad 68:331 N '16 140w

"The engineering articles are a feature."

+ Engin N 76:310 Ag 17 '16 70w

+ Ind 88:127 O '16 '16 80w

"In most of the articles the editors have performed the almost incredible feat of giving full information with no editorial bias—even in those articles dealing with the war."

+ New Repub 8:76 Ag 19 '16 190w

+ N Y Times 21:390 O 1 '16 160w

+ R of Rs 54:349 S '16 140w

+ Springfield Republican p8 S 22 '16 400w

NEW YORK (STATE). AGRICULTURE, DEPT. OF. Vegetable industry in New York state. (Bul. no. 70) il pa gratis New York (state). Dept. of agriculture, Albany 635

"A collection of forty-four articles contributed by experiment station scientists on soils, fertilizers, diseases and insect pests and by specialists in growing and handling vegetables. These are designed to give specific directions which will be of material help in meeting the problems with which the gardener is confronted, and to set forth the magnitude and variety of the business, and explain the adaptability of various sections of the state to one or more lines of vegetable growing within easy reach of some of the world's best markets." (N Y Libraries) The bulletin also contains a Guide for vegetable growers reprinted from the Cornell reading course lessons, a list of reference books, over 100 illustrations, and maps and a full index.

N Y Libraries 5:64 F '16 80w

NEW YORK (STATE). LABOR, DEPT. OF. European regulations for prevention of occupational diseases; prepared by the Bureau of statistics and information. (Special bul. no. 76) pa N. Y. state dept. of labor 613.6

"The prevention of occupational diseases which has only recently received attention in the United States has been the subject of much more extensive regulation in European countries. Included in this bulletin are European regulations concerning five of the eight industrial diseases (poisoning by lead, brass, and mercury, compressed air illness and anthrax) reportable by physicians to the Labor department under the New York law. This collection is not complete, either as to industries or as to countries. What is included are the regulations of latest adoption for a number of industries, each of which is also represented in New York state."

"Publicity given to foreign regulations such as these should be greatly extended, even to inclusion in trade and commercial journals, for by no more feasible method, probably, can industrial America come to heed and to compete with the great efficiency and economy of the systems abroad." E. R. Hayhurst

+ Am Econ R 6:920 D '16 510w

+ N Y Libraries 5:93 My '16 30w

NEW YORK (STATE). LEGISLATURE. JOINT COMMITTEE ON TAXATION. Report of the Joint legislative committee on taxation of the state of New York and Minority report. (Senate docs. 26, 29) pa Lyon 336.7 16-27094

The committee met on July 9, 1915 and elected Senator Ogden L. Mills as chairman. The report was transmitted to the Legislature February 14, 1916. It discusses the revenue situation in the state, cities, and towns of New York; the New York system of taxation with regard to its peculiar features and its faults; the history, causes of failure, and injustice of the personal property tax in the United States and New York state; the taxation of foreign corporations; the New York system of taxing manufacturers; the listing system; substitutes for the personal property tax, etc. There are a number of appendixes, no index but a full table of contents.

NEW YORK (STATE). UNIVERSITY. Vocational training of girls in the State of New York. (Bul. no. 612) il Univ. of the state of N. Y. 371.42

"Interesting account, by Anna C. Hedges, of what is being done in the line of vocational training for the girls of New York state. The examples given are not limited to city schools but include rural schools as well. Half-tone illustrations show classes and equipment. Contains a six-page bibliography. The library has a limited number for distribution."—N Y Libraries

+ N Y Libraries 5:93 My '16 50w

NEW YORK. STATE LIBRARY, ALBANY. List of books for prison libraries. pt. 1. Fiction; comp. by the Book selection section. (Bul. 620) pa Univ. of the state of N. Y. 016 (16-20454)

"Suggested list of books for the libraries of the prisons of the state, prepared at the request of the superintendent of state prisons. Contains 480 carefully chosen titles of general fiction to which has been added a supplemental list of 37 titles of fiction for women. Will be of value to small libraries in making a selection of fiction."—N Y Libraries

+ N Y Libraries 5:93 My '16 60w

NEUBOLT, SIR HENRY JOHN. Tales of the great war. il *$1.75 Longmans 940.91 16-23521

"Sir Henry Neubolt, as in his 'Book of the blue sea' and 'Book of the thin red line,' tells the stories to a great extent in the words of the actors themselves. Moreover, he keeps close to his evidence, inventing nothing. . . . He divides his matter into six sections—The adventures of a subaltern, The story of two admirals, The story of the Emden, The story of a general, The war in the air, The battle of Jutland."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"He has the best account the present reviewer has read of the battle of Jutland, and his description of the Mons retreat is admirable. In a word, his book is, we are convinced, just what is wanted, not only for, but also by, the youthful readers for whom he designs it. As he says: 'I have not shouted, and I have used as few adjectives as possible.'"—

+ Ath p535 N '16 120w

+ N Y Times 21:561 D 17 '16 220w

"The book is singularly free from hatred and abuse of the enemy. Everyone interested in the great war will find much material in this book to form an adequate picture of the battles already waged on land and sea."

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 19 '16 150w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p538 N 9 '16 100w

NEWELL, FREDERICK HAYNES. Irrigation management. il *$2 Appleton 631 16-5629

"In this volume the former director of the United States reclamation service answers practical questions relating to the operation, maintenance and betterment of irrigation works. The book is in fact the result of a series of conferences held by men actively engaged in irrigation projects in our great west."—R of Rs

"Does not consider the general subject of irrigation or methods of construction, phases partly covered in the author's other books."

+ A L A Bkl 13:68 N '16

"The book contains a great deal of information for the man actually engaged in the work. In this connection, it might be suggested that a few more illustrations would not be amiss. For college work it should form an excellent basis for class discussion. Much of the material in the book has been put forth before in one form or another. But the book strikes one or two new notes, as for instance, in the chapter on the importance of the human factor. As a whole it forms a collection of instructive data, rather well arranged." J. S. K.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:320 S '16 200w

"The volume is sufficiently comprehensive to serve as a guide to the management of works small or large, under private, district, state or federal ownership. . . . The volume cannot fail to make its impress on the future of irrigation management in America—and for that matter on good management generally."

+ Engin N 76:118 JI 20 '16 230w

"An immense extension of irrigation in American agriculture is one of the certainties of the future, and this book will doubtless stimulate many young men to fit themselves for service in that work."

+ Nation 103:568 D 14 '16 270w

N Y P L New Tech Bks p8 My '16 50w

R of Rs 54:119 JI '16 50w

St Louis 14:433 D '16 10w

NEWELL, FREDERICK HAYNES, and DRAVER, C. E., eds. Engineering as a career. *$1 Van Nostrand 620 16-2426

"A series of papers by eminent engineers, edited by F. H. Newell, professor of civil engineering, University of Illinois, and C. E. Drayer, secretary of the Cleveland engineering society. This book presents for the guidance of youth and their advisers some of the facts usually hard to obtain concerning engineering as a life work. Over a score of engineers and experts prominent in the United States have written separate articles telling what they believe are the personal and educational qualifications required for success and what opportunities await the young man who chooses engineering as a career."—School Arts Magazine

"Published in the Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Scientific American. Will supplement McCullough's 'Engineering as a vocation' which gives definite information about the college curriculum and specific advice, with lists of books for the man who studies alone."

+ A L A Bkl 12:411 Je '16

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 26 '16 750w

Eduec R 53:102 Ja '17 40w

Elec World 68:431 Ag 26 '16 70w

"There is considerable divergence of methods of treatment. Some of the authors consider their subject from the viewpoint of the boy or the parent trying to decide whether or not engineering is a desirable career, while others of the papers review the engineering field or specialty which is their subject without much regard to what it offers to the youth. On the whole, the papers are interesting and stimulating and should be useful to many youths and parents."

+ Engin N 75:749 Ap 20 '16 220w

"As a whole, the book is well worth the effort to produce it, though a second effort might result in a much superior work. The chapters on Metallurgical engineering, Electrical engineering, Chemical engineering, The lure of private practice and Vocational guidance are among the best, and are nearest the purpose of the book."

+ Engin Rec 73:458 Ap 1 '16 250w

"Amid the many platitudes about advice and application, industry and honor, are scattered a number of valuable suggestions as to the requirements in various branches of engineering service as to opportunities"

+ Ind 86:219 My 8 '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:46 Mr '16

+ N Y Libraries 5:173 N '16 20w

"Reviewed in Concrete, March, 1916, p. 140; in Canadian Engineer, March 30, 1916, p. 403; American Machinist, March 30, 1916, p. 526; Electrical Review & Western Electrician, April 8, 1916, p. 635; in Power, April 11, 1916, p. 529; in Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, March 1916, p. 294."

N Y P L New Tech Bks p8 My '16 120w

"Not all of the authors have treated their subjects satisfactorily, but the book is nevertheless a useful addition to the scanty literature of the subject."

+ — Pittsburgh 21:241 My '16 40w

Pratt p18 O '16 30w

St Louis 14:154 Ap '16

St Louis 14:445 D '16 40w

School Arts Magazine 15:605 Ap '16 170w

"It will interest engineers who enjoy any well-considered formulated statement which seeks to set forth broad views of the engineer's problem and of the place which he must assume in society. But it is especially for the boy and for the parents of boys." W. F. M. Goss

+ Science n s 43:687 My 12 '16 350w

Wis Lib Bull 12:184 Ap '16 40w

NEWMAN, JOHN HENRY, cardinal. Dream of Gerontius. il *$1.25 Lane 821

Cardinal Newman's poem appeared in 1866, fifty years ago. Features of this anniversary edition are illustrations by Stella Langdale and an introduction by Gordon Tidy.

"The introduction is full of interesting information about the poem which will be welcomed by many readers whose acquaintance with the work itself is long and familiar."

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 18 '15 250w

"It is doubtful whether the ten illustrations by Stella Langdale will be generally regarded as acquisitions. Readers whose appreciation of the masterpiece is keenest, will probably prefer that it should be given without attempt at visualization of its awe and mystery; nevertheless, the artist has displayed throughout a deeply reverential spirit, and the last two pictures are very impressive."

+ Cath World 103:253 My '16 150w

"Fitting enough is it that the poem should have a semi-centennial reissue in worthy form. Miss Stella Langdale illustrates the volume with ten drawings that well reflect the sentiment of the poem, and Mr. Gordon Tidy writes a bibliographic and appreciative introduction that fills half the book. It is safe to say that no previous edition of this fine product of Newman's genius can compare with the present one."

+ Dial 59:622 D 23 '15 130w

+ Lit D 52:1292 My 6 '16 320w

NEWMARCH, ROSA HARRIET (JEAFFRESON) (MRS. HENRY CHARLES NEWMARCH). Russian arts. il *$2 Dutton 709.47 16-26856

"Mrs. Newmarch's illuminating volume is a fitting pendant to her valuable work on 'The Russian opera.' . . . The first two chapters are devoted to architecture. After considering the primitive and conventional examples of ikonography, or izography as she prefers to call the religious paintings of saints and virgins, and the comparatively unimportant because imitative specimens of wood and copper engraving, she takes up the topic of painting, to which the greater part of her book is devoted, covering no less than 120 pages. . . . There is one chapter on sculpture and the book ends with a glimpse of what she calls 'the new art' as represented by Roerikh, Bogayevsky, Stelletsky, Bakst and others."—Boston Transcript

"Well illustrated and not too technical in treatment. Contains an index."

+ A L A Bkl 13:70 N '16

Ath 1915,2:180 S 11 80w

"Many of her descriptions are charming and her animadversions are sensible and sound." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p6 S 27 '16 450w

+ Dial 61:542 D 14 '16 110w

"We do not recall any single book on English, French or Italian art which in 285 pages says half as much or says it a quarter as well."

+ Ind 88:240 N 6 '16 220w

N Y Br Lib News 3:143 S '16

"A very serious little book on the Russian arts has been written by Rosa Newmarch after something like twenty years of studying the country at first hand. . . . Her work undoubtedly has gained by its slow ripening."

+ N Y Times 21:451 O 22 '16 340w

Pittsburgh 21:485 N '16 20w

+ R of Rs 54:365 N '16 100w

Springfield Republican p15 D 31 '16 400w

"Unfortunately Mrs. Newmarch has not that understanding of art that she has of music, and, despite a praiseworthy and painstaking plodding, there is a manifest absence of interpretative power either historical or spiritual. So that her volume is commonplace, whereas, considering the subject, it might have been the most precious and curious volume of the year."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p271 Je 8 '16 1400w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:452 D '16 30w

NEWMARK, HARRIS. Sixty years in Southern California, 1853-1913; ed. by Maurice H. Newmark and Marco R. Newmark. il *$5 (2c) Knickerbocker press; for sale by Baker and by Putnam 979.4 16-17932

Mr. Newmark came to southern California in 1853, but four years after the sensational gold rush. He wrote these reminiscences in 1913. A period of marvelous social development is bounded by the two dates. To make the work something more than a volume of personal reminiscences, the editors have verified names and dates, interviewed other pioneers whose memory goes back to the early days, and in other ways added to the book's historical accuracy. Charles F. Lummis in his foreword calls the book "the Peppy's diary of Los Angeles and its tributary domain."

N Y Br Lib News 3:169 N '16

"There is an enormous mass of data collected here of value to reference libraries and the shelves of every one interested in California and its past. The future historian will find one of his chief sources of information within these pages."

+ N Y Times 21:562 D 17 '16 100w

"He presents to the reader in a most realistic and vivid manner all the strange and unconventional doings of the raw early days. . . . Another interesting feature of the work is the publication, in many cases for the first time, of numerous old and rare photographs."

+ Springfield Republican p6 N 14 '16 600w

NEWTON, W. DOUGLAS. Undying story. *$1.35 Dutton 940.91 16-6006

"A vivid account of the famous 'fighting retreat' of the British expeditionary force on the continent, from August 23 to November 15, 1914." (R of Rs) "The book is a treasure house of anecdotes that thrill and amaze. As the volume is specifically an account of the work of the British expeditionary force the author deals with the conflicts and achievements of the French army during the time covered only when its troops were fighting in immediate conjunction with the British." (N Y Times)

"For a description of what apparently the author did not witness, 'The undying story,' is well done. But his effort lacks the supreme quality of human feeling."

— Ind 85:283 F 21 '16 120w

"It is a wonderful story, but it is unfortunate that Mr. Newton did not tell it with fewer adjectives and with less melodramatic intensity. Nevertheless, the work is one of real consequence and very great interest. He treats comprehensively the whole of the nearly three months' action, bringing out its strategical purposes and its tactical methods and so making clear the meaning of all its movements. There is a good map of the retreat during the last week of August."

+ — N Y Times 21:100 Mr 19 '16 350w

+ R of Rs 53:116 Ja '16 40w

"A collection of Mr. Douglas Newton's articles from 'T. P.'s journal of great deeds of the great war.' They are flamboyant accounts of various episodes in the fighting from Mons to

NEWTON, W. DOUGLAS—Continued
Ypres. Though, no doubt, good enough for their original purpose, they seem hardly worthy of republication.

— Spec 115:sup605 N 6 '15 50w

NEXÖ, MARTIN ANDERSEN. Pelle the conqueror: daybreak; tr. from the Danish by Jessie Muir. *$1.50 (2c) Holt

This is the fourth and last volume of the translation into English of "Pelle eroberen." The story, which had followed Pelle thru his country boyhood, his apprenticeship in the shoemaking trade under the old hand-work conditions, and his rise to power in the labor movement, came to its climax at the end of volume three. This fourth volume is in a more serious, more restrained mood. Pelle comes out of prison with some of his old fire dimmed, but with a deepened consciousness of his mission. He sees that his great victory in winning the strike and establishing the union was but one step. Something more is needed. Gropingly and haltingly he feels his way, laying slowly but securely the foundations of the great cooperative movement which is now the accepted economic order in Denmark. Along with the progress of this experiment moves the beautiful story of Pelle and Ellen and their renewed love and the happiness of their family life at "Daybreak," the country home which represents another beginning—of a garden city where other city workingmen are to find homes.

+ N Y Times 22:5 Ja 7 '17 780w

NICHOLS, EGBERT RAY, ed. Intercollegiate debates, v. 6. $1.50 (2c) Hinds 808.5

The questions debated in this sixth volume of Mr. Nichols's annual are: Government ownership of telegraph and telephone systems, Minimum wage, Single tax, Government ownership of merchant marine, Ship subsidy, Compulsory military service, Government ownership of interstate railroads. The book also gives a record of college debating for the school year 1914-15.

Nation 103:239 S 7 '16 250w

NICHOLSON, MEREDITH. Proof of the pudding. il *$1.35 (1½c) Houghton 16-11043

The heroine of this Indiana story is a young girl who has been rescued from poverty and brought up in wealth and luxury. At the opening of the story she is in danger of being spoiled by contact with a fast society set that has taken her up and of ruining her life by marrying a dissipated divorced man. Of the influences that intervene to change her course, one of the most important is her meeting with Jeremiah A. Amidon, an old playmate from her home town. The story was copyrighted in 1915 by the Red Book corporation.

A L A Bk 12:483 J1 '16

Ath p434 S '16 60w

Reviewed by Wilson Follett

+ Atlan 118:495 O '16 120w

"Another of those mediocre novels of real American life with which Mr. Nicholson, a born romancer, periodically teases himself and us. He has an idea here, a serious purpose, a thorough knowledge of his human and local material. But the result is not a big novel, or even an especially notable one." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 43:534 J1 '16 570w

"Its quality is the placid, complacent, self-satisfied Indiana quality, while at the same time, strangely enough, it lacks all Indiana or any other atmosphere. Its scenes seem to be placed in a land of nowhere. . . . Beyond all question. Mr. Nicholson has given in his latest novel what our most prosperous of American fiction-writers are striving for—a series of graphic pictures of our modern life. They are, however, extremely heterogeneous." E. F. E.

— + Boston Transcript p6 My 13 '16 1100w

— Ind 87:70 J1 10 '16 70w

— Lit D 53:75 J1 8 '16 200w

— Nation 103:110 Ag 3 '16 400w

+ — New Repub 8:170 S 16 '16 1050w

"Nan Farley was really an admirable person, and her deviations from the paths of strict rectitude—not to mention ordinary good taste and decency—were entirely due to her 'Irish temperament'; at least, so we are told. Of course it all ends happily for her, but we feel sorry for Jerry, whose fate was surely a far harder one than he deserved. Those people who have enjoyed Mr. Nicholson's other books will surely like this one."

— N Y Times 21:202 My 14 '16 670w

"A pleasant story to read because so far as it goes, it faithfully depicts contemporary American life. It presents few problems and no abnormalities. It is Mr. Nicholson's best work to date."

+ Springfield Republican p15 My 15 '16 450w

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p406 Ag 24 '16 140w

"A disappointing story and inferior to the author's previous work. . . . The manner in which the tangle is straightened out is hardly convincing, nor are the characters so."

— Wis Lib Bull 12:272 Je '16 50w

NICOLAY, HELEN. Our nation in the building. il *$2.50 (1½c) Century 973 16-22452

The author's purpose has been to revitalize some of the events of American history. Altho she begins with Washington's first administration and covers roughly the period up to the civil war, her book is not a chronological record of events. "It cares less for dates than for happenings, less for specific happenings than for movements and currents of feeling." (Preface) Among the chapters are: The opening west; As others saw us; The red menace; Women in a free country; Religion in a republic; Schools and inventions; Suffrage and reform; News and books.

"Reprinted from the Century."

+ A L A Bk 13:165 Ja '17 (Reprinted from Wis Lib Bull)

"It is not without faults. . . . Some of the inferences are not entirely justified by facts, to our mind. . . . The chronological sequence of events is more in the mind of the author than the central issue of the period. But in spite of these drawbacks, the author has produced a genuinely interesting and readable book." S. L. C.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 N 29 '16 550w

"She consulted many books, it is evident, in writing this one, but she does not tarry for citations, tho free with quotation marks and generous with her credits."

+ Lit D 53:1553 D 9 '16 150w

"People who never cared much for American history 'as she is taught,' will find in Miss Nicolay's pages a fresh and interesting treatment of the subject from a new point of view."

+ R of Rs 54:682 D '16 160w

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 2 '16 150w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:453 D '16 70w

NIRDLINGER, CHARLES FREDERIC. Four short plays. *$1.25 Kennerley 812 16-23418

The author calls his four plays, Look after Louise, an everyday tragedy; Big Kate, a diplomatic tragedy; The real people, a sawdust tragedy; Aren't they wonders? a holiday tragedy. It may be noted that the word tragedy used in connection with the clever little dramas has a slightly ironic tinge. The second play "Big Kate," will challenge comparison with Shaw's conception of Catherine the Great.

"The plays are amusing, vigorous, and full of wit and satire."

+ R of Rs 54:678 D '16 90w

NIVEN, FREDERICK. S. S. Glory. il *$1.25 (3c) Doran 16-1888

The Glory is a cattle ship bound from Montreal to Liverpool. Among the men who sign up for the voyage is one who is promptly nicknamed Scholar because of the evident familiarity with a pen manifested in the ordeal of writing his name. What or who he is we never know, only that he is of a different order from his companions. This, however, does not prevent him from entering into their friendships and enmities. The story has no plot, its only aim is to give a picture of a rough and crude but wholly interesting phase of life.

"The reader finds himself embarked upon a strange voyage, so real in its sights and sounds and smells that he himself seems a part of the wild crew sharing the perils of the sea, and becoming aware of the greater perils of the shore."

+ N Y Times 21:125 Ap 2 '16 140w

"Whoever loves stories of brave adventure, but is weary of conventional shabby plots and cheap melodrama, will hail this story with eagerness." L: T. Chapman

+ Seven Seas 2:37 My '16 60w

+ Spec 116:165 Ja 29 '16 180w

NOBLE, EDWARD. Bottle-fillers. $1.40 (1c)
Houghton A16-564

"It may be as well to explain at once that 'The bottle-fillers' is a nickname given to the officers and men of the mercantile marine. It is of one of these officers, Dennis O'Hagan, captain, when the story opens, of an overlaid tramp steamer appropriately christened the Sphinx, that the book tells." (N Y Times) "At the official inquiry he committed the indiscretion of telling unpleasant truths about the unsafe loading of his vessel; the owners, a rascally firm, defend themselves by means of cunningly insinuated lies which effectually prevent the young skipper from obtaining fresh employment, thus condemning him, together with his family, to starvation and misery. Eventually, through the not altogether disinterested influence of his wife's old admirer, he obtains another command, and with it the opportunity of retrieving his position. The culminating tragedy of shipwreck and disaster is well in keeping with the rest of the story." (Ath)

"It is as grim and powerful a tragedy of the sea as any we have read."

+ Ath 1915:2:330 N 6 230w

Reviewed by Wilson Follett

+ Atlan 118:492 O '16 170w

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 5 '16 500w

"Good fortune, or bad fortune, it all has the sign of actuality." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 60:383 Ap 13 '16 300w

"The novelist of purpose is to be commiserated only when he fails to make his narrative embody his purpose. The present writer is not content to tell a story which by sheer force and poignancy shall bring home the facts. He cannot let them alone as a subject for lecturing. He cannot resist the temptation to rub in his point. He is merely a writer of considerable talent who has here taken his gift in vain. The thing is too didactic, too long-drawn."

+ Nation 102:225 F 24 '16 210w

"The author seems not only to know his subject thoroughly, but to have it very near his heart, and that subject has the immense advantage of being extremely timely just now, when this country is slowly awakening to its need of a merchant marine. Many of the essential qualities of a good novel this book has; its failings appear to come principally from the fact that the purpose—for it is emphatically a novel with a purpose—has been allowed to dominate the art."

+ N Y Times 21:26 Ja 23 '16 370w

R of Rs 53:378 Mr '16 30w

+ Spec 115:630 N 6 '15 230w

NOBLE, MARGARET E. (SISTER NIVEDITA). Religion and Dharma. *90c Longmans 299
A16-1103

"Sister Nivedita (Margaret E. Noble) who died about a year ago, was known throughout India for her work in Bengal, speaking and writing in behalf of the national movement which was rising ten years ago. She is here introduced by S. K. Ratcliffe, an English journalist who visited this country about a year ago and was heard in public. We learn from Mr. Ratcliffe that the word dharma includes the whole social conception of law and conduct and worship. 'She preferred to translate the word as the national righteousness.'" (Boston Transcript) "Probably we should note that the pieces in this posthumous collection appeared originally several years ago. Mr. Ratcliffe says we should remember that they 'were thrown off with great rapidity in the midst of a crowded and arduous life of service in India'; but no apology is needed when their purpose is kept in mind." (Dial)

Boston Transcript p20 D 29 '15 160w

"It is impossible to say what effect these papers will have on their readers; but to the present reviewer they seem exactly the sort of thing that ought to be said to the youth of India. 'Righteousness lies in duty done.' Hinduism will undoubtedly develop a larger democratic element.' 'The struggle with material conditions is eternally necessary for the upward growth of the spirit.'"

+ Dial 60:385 Ap 13 '16 500w

Nation 102:440 Ap 20 '16 280w

NOLEN, JOHN, ed. City planning. (National municipal league ser.) il *$2 (1½c) Appleton 710 16-5914

Sixteen authors, "all men of recognized qualifications in city planning," contribute to this work. It is not, the editor says, "a loose collection of essays on city planning subjects, but a carefully related series which, taken together, cover the essential elements of a city plan." Following an introduction by Frederick Law Olmsted come papers on The subdivision of land, by John Nolen; Public control of private real estate, by Frank Backus Williams; Local and minor streets, by Edward Henry Bouton; Public buildings and quasi-public buildings, by Edward H. Bennett; Neighborhood centers, by Arthur Coleman Comey; General recreation facilities, by J. Horace McFarland, etc.

+ A L A Bkl 12:370 My '16

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:600 Ag '16 550w

"The bibliographies at the end of each chapter and the general bibliography at the end of the book deserve special attention, as they include the most recent and best publications available in this country. References to the best foreign literature, however, are almost wholly lacking." C. A.

+ Ann Am Acad 66:270 Jl '16 160w

"The volume is more generally useful, for Americans at all events, than any other upon the subject." F: A. Ogg

+ Dial 61:186 S 21 '16 110w

+ Engin N 76:553 S 21 '16 260w

+ Lit D 54:204 Ja 27 '17 120w

"Mr. Nolen's symposium is notable because it gives a sense, as no other book has given us, of the intricacy of the city-planning enterprise, and the number of diverse techniques and arts which it calls upon in coöperation."

+ New Repub 7:47 My 13 '16 790w

"'Bibliography' at the end of many of the chapters, 'General bibliography,' p427-436. The practical rather than the artistic side of the subject. Contains brief biographical sketches of the contributors."

+ Pittsburgh 21:243 My '16 80w

"The most practical and helpful of the books that have been appearing."

+ R of Rs 53:508 Ap '16 160w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 27 '16 550w

"Perhaps one of the most valuable features of the book is this demonstration that we have progressed so far beyond the domain of pure theory in American city planning that we can illustrate the effects of proposals by existing American examples." J: Ihlder

+ Survey 37:469 Ja 20 '17 130w

"While their work has mostly been with cities of the larger type, the principles and methods are applicable to towns, and the manner in which the subject is presented makes the book's use easy for any phase of town improvement. The plans and illustrations are all of larger cities. The best book for little towns and villages is Waugh's 'Rural Improvement.'"

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:225 My '16 80w

NORRIS, CHARLES G. Amateur. *$1.35 (1c)
Doran 16-6314

"The amateur" is the story of one of those hopeful young persons who come to New York intent on conquest. Carey Williams has had some success in commercial art work in his home city and has won a prize in a poster contest. This is enough to send him to New York. The fact that there are 25,000 artists in New York city alone, a bit of information offered by the distinguished illustrator to whom he appeals for advice, dampens his enthusiasm somewhat, but, altho he is a man of somewhat weak fibre, he perseveres and the story follows him thru discouragement, popular success, and failure, and leaves him in the end looking forward to what may be a second and more firmly founded success.

"Even the more readable of these illustrate a certain kind of inadequacy, the failure to correlate the story with the artist as an artist, however sufficient he may be as a person. We find the same fault with 'The amateur.'" Wilson Follett

Atlan 118:499 O '16 30w

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:326 My '16 650w

"A multitude of incidents fill the story, and a multitude of people. Yet Mr. Norris's canvas is never crowded, nor are his pages overflowing with detail. Every character is essential to the progress of Carey Williams's life, and to the working out of the story. Mr. Norris is, we understand, by profession an art editor. 'The amateur' bears evidence that he is also a novelist." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 11 '16 1300w

"Even if this author were not the brother of the late Frank Norris, author of 'The pit' and 'The octopus,' he would still be worthy of reading for his descriptive work and his graphic picture of the 'art-editor.' But he has his faults, both of omission and commission."

+ Lit D 52:910 Ap 1 '16 250w

"By all odds the most interesting part of the book—Carey's wanderings from one magazine to another, from one publishing house to another, from one advertising agency to another, in search of employment. . . . The plot is not the main feature of the book; the vital interest centres on the character of Carey—a character very well depicted. . . . The numerous accounts of Carey's stupid and vulgar debauches very quickly become wearisome, and there is nothing entertaining in the many catalogues of the different restaurants he visits. . . . The author apparently knows a good deal about the profession of which he writes."

+ N Y Times 21:82 Mr 12 '16 570w

"The scene at Sherry's after the illustrators' meeting is the best in the book, not mainly for the easily recognizable famous men who figure in it, but as a dramatic and fiery incident, not to be forgotten in a moment. One small thing in particular will please the blasé New Yorker. Mr. Norris boldly names his restaurants and shops. One who wished to see New York might do far worse than to inspect the places he names, so true to life is he. The magazines and the celebrities, for obvious reasons, are shuffled a bit. 'The amateur' is sure to find the interest of many sorts of readers." E. P. Wyckoff

+ Pub W 89:1030 Mr 18 '16 570w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 430w

NORRIS, EARLE BERTRAM, and others. Gas engine ignition. (Engineering education ser.) il *$1.50 McGraw 621.4 16-13663

"Few engineers realize the development reached in the art of firing fuel charges in internal-combustion engines. . . . This book will acquaint any intelligent man with this field, be he graduate engineer or factory employee. . . . The older schemes like hot-tube ignition are quickly passed over to get at the various electric-spark systems, which are grouped under such main topics as jump-spark battery equipment, low-tension magnetos, high-tension magnetos, and direct-current machines."—Engin N

"An excellent textbook of the correspondence-school type, which deals quite particularly with automobile engines. Good for home study."

+ A L A Bkl 13:156 Ja '17

Cleveland p150 D '16 20w

"The text evidently has been very carefully prepared with a view to home study, and is worthy of the stamp it bears 'prepared in the Extension division of the University of Wisconsin.'"

+ Engin N 76:309 Ag 17 '16 180w

N Y Br Lib News 3:141 S '16

+ N Y Libraries 5:173 N '16 10w

"It is evident from the text that the authors are thoroughly familiar with the subject and that they do not depend upon rewriting of catalog descriptions for their text. The book appears to contain quite a little matter not found in other works on the same or kindred subjects. . . . A very valuable addition to any library on internal combustion engines." (Gas Engine, July, 1916) Also reviewed in Power, July 4, 1916."

N Y P L New Tech Bks p14 N '16 80w

Pittsburgh 21:498 N '16

NORRIS, KATHLEEN (THOMPSON) (MRS. CHARLES GILMAN NORRIS). Heart of Rachael. il *$1.35 (1c) Doubleday 16-15662

At the opening of the story Rachael is a proud, cold woman of the world, unhappily married to a man whose weakness for drink makes her life unbearable. Feeling that her responsibilities to him and to his grown-up daughter are discharged, she divorces him and shortly remarries. Her second marriage, to a doctor of note, brings her all happiness. Under its spell her nature expands; with husband and two children, she asks nothing more of the world. Then she learns that her husband is infatuated with a light-headed young girl and she faces the prospect of a broken home. This does not happen. The catastrophe is averted, but during the crisis she does some serious thinking on the subject of marriage and divorce.

A L A Bkl 13:86 N '16

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 44:183 O '16 430w

"The super-sentimental and the maudlin that have characterized Mrs. Norris's other novels are wholly absent from 'The heart of Rachael.' In that way she gives evidence of her progress and will enlarge her reputation. Hitherto she has been a novelist for the many; with this story she shows that she is on the way to become a novelist also for the few." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 23 '16 1350w

— Cath World 104:394 D '16 310w

+ Cleveland p102 Ag '16 80w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:194 S 31 '16 530w

+ Ind 88:76 O 9 '16 50w

— Nation 103:325 O 5 '16 330w

"One cannot help wishing Mrs. Norris would be content to let her really admirable narrative speak for itself and not turn propagandist."

+ New Repub 8:229 S 30 '16 410w

"It is by far the best and most careful work that Mrs. Norris has done and ought to place her well forward among American novelists. It is less marred by the signs of carelessness and deplorable haste than her previous work, and it shows a riper, broader mind and a more refined art in its survey of humanity."

+ N Y Times 21:309 Ag 6 '16 950w

"When it comes to a real picture of conventional society folk Mrs. Norris is not easily surpassed. Their tricks of speech, way of thinking and lines of talk she has caught deliciously. Its small-talk, its etchings of tea-table and tennis court, rather than its anti-divorce arguments, give 'The heart of Rachael' distinction." Doris Webb

+ Pub W 90:600 Ag 19 '16 450w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 400w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 60w

NORRIS, MARY HARRIOTT. Golden age of Vassar. (Old-time Vassar ser.) *$1 Vassar college, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. 376.8 16-257

"Among the pioneer students of all the women's colleges there was an exciting feeling of experimentation, of adventure, accompanied by a certain pride that they should show to good advantage in the world after graduation. The class of '69 at Vassar, inasmuch as they were the very leaders of the pioneers felt this awakening and its responsibilities doubly. A member of this class describes the life of the infant days of the college, tells of the enthusiasm which animated everyone connected with its beginning, of the kind of study, and, still more important, of the new opportunities for meeting students from all parts of the country, for broadening into a greater cosmopolitanism. She speaks with the deepest affection and devotion of the first lady principal, Miss Lyman, and describes many of the professors of the early days."—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p22 Ap 19 '16 140w

"Its connected account of the starting of Mr. Vassar's 'dangerous experiment toward unsexed women' fills in many of the gaps which the 'Letters from old-time Vassar'—letters of a student in 1869-70—necessarily leave open."

+ Dial 60:428 Ap 27 '16 150w

Pittsburgh 21:364 Jl '16 70w

"A more formal picture of life at the early college and concerns itself more closely with those things about which the person of to-day feels curiosity in connection with the first days of women's colleges."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 13 '16 150w

NORRIS, WILLIAM EDWARD. Proud Peter. 2 *$1.35 Brentano's

"The setting of 'Proud Peter' is the well-worn, ever-agreeable English countryside, with its conventional, courteous people. . . . If one cannot be led to take enough interest in these people to care for their destinies, apart from any extraneous plot excitement, the book will probably fail of its effect; for there is very little plot, and few, if any, remarkable incidents."

One notes with appreciation that Proud Peter was actually the fag of his handsome brother Arthur; that this favorite of society went through life gaining unmerited honors and died lamented in a measure he had not deserved. . . . Nevertheless, Peter had his compensations in life—as the story relates."—N Y Times

N Y Br Lib News 3:136 S '16

N Y Times 21:537 D 3 '16 370w

"It is the essence of Mr. Norris's method to eschew melodrama, and nothing could exceed the restraint or the sobriety with which these combustible materials are handled."

+ Spec 117:135 Jl 29 '16 780w

"A pleasant, well constructed story, full of pleasant people, whose pleasantness is only thrown into greater relief by the few unpleasant ones."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p262 Je 1 '16 530w

NORRIS, WILLIAM EDWARD. Troubled Tranton. *$1.35 (1½c) Brentano's A16-856

A story of a quiet English country neighborhood that is much perturbed by a seemingly inexplicable mystery. Mrs. Margaret Lynden has come to take possession of Tranton under protest. It had been willed to her by Sidney Alder, who thought to spite his nephew, Nicholas Alder. Mrs. Lynden had promptly offered to resign her claim and had been snubbed by Nicholas for her pains. The other families in the Tranton neighborhood had taken to her kindly and had welcomed her with her daughter to their neighborhood. But shortly after her arrival begins a series of strange persecutions, anonymous letters and other annoyances. The mystery is not solved till near the story's end. In the meantime there are two love stories to help hold the reader's interest.

"Like many of Mr. Norris's other novels it is a story suggestive, though not at all imitative, of Anthony Trollope. It will appeal, as have Mr. Norris's other stories, to those who are fond of the Trollopian theme, the Trollopian manner, the Trollopian quietude and the Trollopian humor." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 1000w

"It is one of those quiet, well-bred, typical English novels with which we are all so pleasantly familiar, told in an easy-going leisurely fashion, with several clever character studies and an entirely satisfactory solution of the mystery, the latter something which is none too usual."

+ N Y Times 21:213 My 21 '16 330w

NORTHCLIFFE, ALFRED CHARLES WILLIAM HARMSWORTH, 1st baron. At the war. il *$2 (3c) Doran 940.91 16-25245

Lord Northcliffe's "letters, telegrams, cablegrams and other writings about the war" have been collected in this volume for the benefit of the British Red cross and the Order of St. John. Contents: Our soldier boys arrive; The army behind the army; The women are splendid; A civilian's impressions of the war; Warplanes; Sir Douglas Haig; Joffre; Cadorna; Under the six stars; The war doctors; Red cross visits; Life in Reims; Before Verdun; The new little Belgian army; With the Italians; Neutral glimpses.

"A really good book, written without undue prejudice or preference, in quiet but convincing style, and with a sufficiency of well-chosen and well-arranged facts. The Spanish chapter is of importance. If all the Carmelite house output were as well balanced as this book, we should have far less to fear from its influence."

+ Ath p601 D '16 50w

"The book gives Lord Northcliffe away. It reveals him not as the statesman but as the press agent of the popular English mind. . . . There is an absence of all personal illumination. There is a great deal of stock sentimentality and flub-dub and attitudinizing, a certain amount of shrewd observation. There is no particular concern for the truth. . . . Lord Northcliffe is undoubtedly an aggressive personage, a promoter of a familiar type. In this book, however, he not merely shows himself to be uncritical, insensitive and sentimental, he exhibits the narrowest ideas as to the war." F. H.

— New Repub 9:245 D 30 '16 2550w

"Written briskly, clearly, with no waste of words, sharply defined and journalistic, 'At the war' is, throughout a readable and important book. But it is in its information about what England has done that it finds its chief value for us. We need just such facts as Lord Northcliffe has given us."

+ N Y Times 21:573 D 31 '16 1050w

"Good examples of informing narratives are the chapters about medical work on the western front, and about the Verdun, Gorizia, and Carso fighting. The chapter entitled 'The war doctors' tells us more about the organization of surgical work in battle and just behind the lines than we have learned anywhere else. The book is, moreover, marked by humane feeling and enthusiasm. We almost wondered as we read whether the author could be the same Lord Northcliffe who in politics so often chooses methods which are the very reverse of helpful, or, just, or seemly."

+ Spec 117:735 D 9 '16 930w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p575 N 30 '16 260w

NORTHEND, MARY HARROD. Garden ornaments. il *$2.50 (8c) Duffield 717 16-21719

The scope of this book is wider than the title suggests. Garden planning and design, the planting of borders, and other subjects are given consideration. Contents: The garden path and border; The pergola and arch; The tea house in the garden; The garden steps; Entrances; Bird baths; Garden seats; Garden pools; The sundial in the garden; The fountain. There are about thirty well-chosen illustrations.

+ Dial 61:543 D 14 '16 110w

NORTHEND, MARY HARROD—Continued.

"There is nothing to recommend this book. As an aid to the gardener its suggestions are few and not of great value, and as an example of writing it is often so ambiguous that one must reread to gather the sense. . . . 'Garden ornaments,' as a title, suggests that something valuable will be found in the book in regard to the placing of garden furnishings. The title is misleading."

— Landscape Architecture 7:102 Ja '17 180w

"A purely practical book, that tells the reader just how to achieve certain effects and what errors to avoid."

+ R of Rs 55:106 Ja '17 100w

NORTON, GRACE FALLOW. Roads. (New poetry ser.) *75c Houghton 811 16-11039

A volume of poems, some of them reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly and Poetry. The poems of the first two of the three groups that make up the volume, Rainbow roads and Cross-roads, are marked by a distinct difference in mood. The third group, The red road, consists of poems on the war.

"In 'Roads' and the small pamphlet of war verse 'What is your legion?' all the best qualities we know her to possess in the past are struggling for expression, but there is a barrier of dull metres holding them back. Something has grown inarticulate within." W. S. B.

— + Boston Transcript p5 My 31 '16 780w

"Miss Grace Norton's personality fills a large place in her universe." O. W. Firkins

— + Nation 104:44 Ja 11 '17 200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:87 Je '16

"Will hardly recall the singer of 'Little grey songs of St. Joseph's.' There is a deeper richer feeling for life and more turbulent emotion, together with great variety, in this latest volume. If one feels the lyrical values are not as sure, as delicate, of such telling repressed beauty as in previous collections, it may well be that this is a fault of transition from one phase of poesy to another."

+ R of Rs 54:568 N '16 130w

"One finds the poems which deal with various aspects of the war, the most understandable. They are full of strong feeling."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 Ja 7 '17 300w

"Grace Norton has a turn for verse undoubtedly, and she has a wholesome love of colour, which recurs again and again in her pages; but she gives us medleys of words which too often send no authentic message through to the reader, often embodying trifling thoughts or fancies and sometimes not far from simple banality."

— + The Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ja 4 '17 70w

NORTON, GRACE FALLOW. What is your legion? pa *25c Houghton 811 16-11038

A small book containing twenty-one poems inspired by the war in Europe. In effect it is a call to America to take a stand, in sympathy at least, with the Allies.

"The poems are chiefly interesting for the poet's insight into the state of Europe, and in such a verse as 'Germany—1848,' for instance, a vigor of utterance, and an admonitory tone for the careless indifference of America to her own security. There is a great deal of passion behind what is here expressed, but not quite the passion of enthusiasm and inspiration which stirs." W. S. B.

+ — Boston Transcript p5 My 31 '16 160w

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 Jl '16

NORTON, ROY. Unknown Mr. Kent. *$1.25 (2c) Doran 16-21704

The scene of this story is the kingdom of Marken, somewhere in Europe. The world war seems to have come to an end before the opening of the tale, but world wars are of little importance to Marken, which is sick with its own internal ills. The people are ready to revolt and a usurper is about to wrest the throne from the hereditary monarch, Karl II. This is the state of affairs, when Richard Kent, financial agent for an American magnate who has loaned money to Marken, happens on the scene. Winning the king's confidence, he takes charge and by employing American business methods and borrowing tricks from American political oratory puts the affairs of the kingdom on a stable basis. Of course there is a beautiful princess, Eloise, the king's sister, who begins by scorning the American "money lender" and ends by marrying him.

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

Bookm 44:508 Ja '17 300w

+ N Y Times 21:495 N 19 '16 620w

"It is a light, half-satirical tale, with plenty of action and a broad vein of humor; but while its idea is very clever, rather inferior to Mr. Norton's earlier story, 'The boomer.'"

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 420w

NOURSE, EDWIN GRISWOLD. Agricultural economics. (Materials for the study of economics) *$2.75 (1c) Univ. of Chicago press 338 16-23032

Professor Nourse of the Department of economics, University of Arkansas, has brought together a selection of articles bearing on the economics of agriculture. He contributes to the book an introduction on The aim and scope of agricultural economics, and then arranges his material under the following headings: The emergence of the problem of agricultural economics; Consumption; Land and other natural agents of agricultural production; Human effort as a factor in agricultural production; Capital-goods as a factor in agricultural production; Organization and management of the agricultural enterprise; Records and accounts as measures of efficient management; Principles of value and price as related to farm products; Market methods and problems; Transportation and storage facilities; The rent and value of farm land; Land tenure and land policy; Interest on farm loans; Rural credits; Agricultural wages; Some problems of agricultural labor; Profits in agriculture.

"The sources vary from Mill, Ely, and Tausig to recent magazine articles, federal and state documents occupying a prominent place, and all the selections are 'alive' and interesting. The arrangement also is excellent."

+ Nation 104:81 Ja 18 '17 140w

"The editor has shown an amazing acquaintance with what has been written, especially in out-of-the-way places, on the general subject of agricultural economics. . . . His own writing constitutes an appreciable and not the least valuable part of the volume." T. N. Carver

+ Survey 37:499 Ja 27 '17 220w

NOYES, ALEXANDER DANA. Financial chapters of the war. *$1.25 Scribner 16-19959

"In this book Mr. Noyes has attempted, as he tells us in the preface, 'to describe clearly and explain without technicality the remarkable financial and economic episodes which have attended the European war.' He has succeeded most admirably in achieving this purpose. An interesting introduction dealing with 'precedent and prediction' . . . is followed by an admirable description of the initial panic and the emergency expedients adopted to prevent general insolvency. The financing of the war is then described, with special reference to America's participation in this gigantic undertaking and with separate chapters on currency inflation and the foreign exchanges. The last three chapters are devoted to the war's aftermath and its economic uncertainties."—Yale R

"By the financial editor of the New York Evening Post."

+ Cleveland p148 D '16 20w

"A valuable feature of the book is the excellent index, which makes it possible for the student to control all the topics treated. Although the volume bears the title, 'Financial chapters of the war,' it is really a history of the war period. The work grips the reader."

+ Nation 103:613 D 28 '16 520w

+ N Y Times 21:574 D 31 '16 550w

+ Springfield Republican p8 Ja 2 '17 340w

"As a simple exposition of an intricate chapter in contemporary financial history, it would be hard to over-praise this unpretentious book. The author's touch is so sure, his command of current facts and figures so certain, his knowledge of financial history so wide, and his sense of perspective so admirable, that he explains things simply by narrating them. . . . A number of other writers have recently attempted the same task. But for American readers, certainly, Mr. Noyes's version is easily the best; more balanced and less censorious than Mr. Lawson's 'British war finance'; wider in scope and richer in historical allusion, if less sprightly in style, than Hartley Withers's 'War and Lombard street'; altogether more readable than the account drawn up by the group of economists appointed by Section F of the British association to investigate the effects of the war on credit, currency, and finance." T. S. Adams

+ Yale R ns 6:424 Ja '17 350w

NOYES, ALFRED, ed. Book of Princeton verse, 1916. *$1.25 Princeton univ. press 811 16-13843

Alfred Noyes has edited a book of verse written during the last six years by Princeton students. With one exception the poems are the work of undergraduates. The book should be compared he says with similar collections of English undergraduate verse, tho he feels that it contains "a considerable quantity of work which would hold its own in any contemporary anthology."

+ A L A Bkl 13:22 O '16

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 2 '16 350w

"The verse is young but it is also scholarly, a happy combination."

+ Ind 87:130 Jl 24 '16 130w

+ Lit D 52:1858 Je 24 '16 450w

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 Jl '16

+ N Y Times 21:457 O 29 '16 670w

"Harrington Green's gay verses bubble with youth and irresponsibility. This talented young poet died three years ago. His poems are shortly to be gathered into a volume. The poems of John Peale Bishop have color and fine imagery, and smooth music of line. 'One side of the medal' by William Brewer Connert, is terse and comprehensive of both sides of the labor question. Charles Francis MacDonald contributes a strong and original group of poems. 'There's rosemary' has music and magic and a precocious maturity of thought."

+ R of Rs 54:231 Ag '16 630w

"Their range of theme is remarkable, and their attack is vigorous and sustained."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Jl 6 '16 370w

NYBURG, SYDNEY LAUER. Conquest. *$1.25 (1½c) Lippincott 16-5613

The story of a lawyer's life. It opens, in the year 1892, with John Howard pleading his first case. He wins, but learns that his success may mean failure and suffering for others. It is a moment for decision and he deliberately puts humanitarian considerations aside, determined that nothing shall stand in the way of his own progress. He begins to see that the idealism, which seems to him sentimentality, of the girl he loves will act as a deterrent and he puts her aside too and later makes a loveless marriage which promises to be of worldly advantage. The story is told in three parts, The plan of battle, The heat of battle, and The spoils of battle. It is in the third part, when Howard's brilliant career is cut short at the still early age of forty-five by an incurable malady, that he sees the worthlessness of it all. Thru the influence of Margaret Gilmor, whom he meets again after twenty years, he is led to yield to the one really unselfish impulse of his life. He undertakes to plead the cause for a union of striking garment workers, altho warned by his doctors that such a course will in all probability prove fatal.

+ A L A Bkl 12:385 My '16

"The tale is told with remarkable skill and directness, is so free from irrelevance or decoration as to produce an effect which is rare indeed outside of the dramatic form. For its technical perfection as well as for its content, the book deserves much, in a day when novelists incline to make a merit of formlessness." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:314 My '16 550w

"The novel commands respectful attention."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 1 '16 260w

"It is not easy to recall in recent fiction a more striking portrait of a man governed by ambition; and one might look far for a better-planned novel."

+ Nation 102:359 Mr 30 '16 550w

"Mr. Nyburg is a Baltimore lawyer who writes fiction by way of diversion. Two things especially mark the tale. One is the method of the trained lawyer's mind which can be seen working throughout the development of the story and the other is the remarkable portrait of the central figure. The best piece of work in the book is the final long letter that Howard writes to his wife."

+ N Y Times 21:32 Mr 12 '16 600w

"It is a satisfaction to run across a new book by a new writer so altogether worth while as 'The conquest' has proved to be. . . . The interesting feature of the book is the careful study Mr. Nyburg has made of this type of man. He is real and in spite of his gigantic faults he is thoroughly likable. There is excellent psychology in 'The conquest.'" F. M. Holly

+ Pub W 89:649 F 19 '16 470w

"In some particulars the situation in 'The conquest' is essentially American civilization, with its plethora of opportunity. Mr. Nyburg has written an interesting narrative, which reveals insight into character and human motives."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 27 '16 240w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:146 Mr '16 50w

NYSTRÖM, ANTON KRISTEN. Before, during, and after 1914; tr. by H. G. de Walterstorff, with an introd. by Edmund Gosse. *$2.50 Scribner 940.91 (Eng ed 16-1465)

"Sweden has been set down in the popular mind apparently with justice, as the most pro-German of all the important neutrals; yet here is a Swede who writes as strongly against Germany as any Englishman or pro-Ally American. . . . When Mr. Nyström came to the discussion of the great struggle he had an equipment of knowledge and thought which the majority of writers on the same subject might envy. He goes down to the basic things, and, after defining the meaning of racialism and showing its shortcomings and dangers, he traces the rival aims of the Slavs and the Germans through historic times. He begins to give a more detailed survey of the career of Germany as he reaches the Dano-German war of 1864, and carries it right on until he reaches the tragedy of Sarajevo, and analyzes the diplomatic documents that led up to the outbreak of hostilities."

—N Y Times

"It is not an exaggeration to say that in comparison with the great majority of trivial 'war books' his work is gigantic in conception and execution. The fact that his philosophy is anti-militaristic is its most interesting feature."

+ Army and Navy Journal 53:1184 My 13 '16 180w

"The value of Mr. Nyström's book lies in his sincerity and his freedom from a desire to map out the future of the warring nations. His book is strictly partisan, but is based on study and conviction." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 1 '16 680w

"His partizanship leads him into conclusions which can not always be sustained."

+ —Ind 87:167 Jl 31 '16 110w

NYSTRÖM, ANTON KRISTEN—Continued

"Probably in all Sweden there is no man who could approach his task, as this volume presented it, in a spirit of larger humanity. What he says upon racialism will excite thought."

+ Lit D 52:1289 My 6 '16 580w

"Such a survey coming from the pen of a Swede is certain to contain matter of great interest which would not have been written by an American or an Englishman however close they were to him in sympathy."

+ N Y Times 21:216 My 21 '16 670w

R of Rs 53:627 My '16 40w

"It is written by a distinguished Swede, it is translated by a devotee, and the introduction by Dr. Edmund Gosse could not be improved. Dr. Nyström's book has a character of its own; it covers a wider territory than any other single work; and in times far-off it finds roots of present-day events. He has made real to himself the fact that the primary causes of the war must be followed through German history from the earliest times to our own days. . . . This elaborate scheme is developed and brought to completion, always with impartial care, and as briefly as possible. On many points we cannot agree with Dr. Nyström, whose candour in the study of facts is burdened too often with the prepossessions of dogmatic dreams."

+ — Sat R 121:41 Ja 8 '16 1300w

"Dr. Nyström has evidently fully grasped the vital importance of the issues at stake." [Earl of] Cromer

+ Spec 116:112 Ja 22 '16 2300w

"Clear-headed, well-informed and morally vigorous examination of the causes of the war."

+ Springfield Republican p21 Ap 6 '16 850w

NYSTROM, PAUL HENRY. Economics of retailing. $2 Ronald 658 15-23035

"The dual aim of this book is 'to present fact material' and 'to suggest constructive thought on the subject of retail distribution.' . . . The book opens with a discussion of merchandise distribution and distributive system, including a statement of some of the most pressing problems of the retail distributing system, followed by a survey of the development of the system itself and a brief sketch of the history of the meager literature on the subject. The twelve succeeding chapters are made up chiefly of the fact material to which Mr. Nystrom refers in his preface. . . . Separate chapters are devoted to the department store, the chain store, and the mail order house; and the effect of each upon competitive conditions in retail distribution is made clear. . . . The final chapter considers the ideal retailing system and emphasizes the value of really scientific work in the investigation of the subject of merchandise distribution and particularly the retail field."—Am Econ R

"His facts are full and accurate. They evidently represent the fruits of his special investigations into various retail problems, which have been made public in his testimony before congressional committees and elsewhere. They also bear evidence of having been enriched by his work in extension lectures and merchants' short course work in western states while he was connected with the universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota." P. T. Cherington

+ Am Econ R 6:382 Je '16 1000w

"A book useful alike as a text in college classes and to practical retail merchants who wish to understand the business in its wider implications."

+ A L A Bkl 12:460 Jl '16

Cleveland p25 Mr '16 20w

NYSTROM, PAUL HENRY. Textiles. (Commercial education ser.) il $*1.50 (1½c) Appleton 677 16-5902

"The purpose of this book is to present in concise form the essential facts regarding the ordinary textiles of commerce—the sources of raw material, the methods of manufacture and distribution, the tests to determine quality, the economic aspects of textiles, and the other phases of the subject which are of importance to all who manufacture, sell, or use the products of the textile mills." (Preface) The book has been prepared for the Extension division of the University of Wisconsin and is adapted to the needs of college classes and of the general reader. The work is well illustrated but is not provided with an index.

"The best popular treatise yet published on this subject. . . . As a treatise on textiles the most marked defect of the book is the omission of any but the most casual reference to the great jute industry. . . . In some places the author has not kept up with the recent publications. . . . Taken altogether the book is carefully written, and it merits wide use by schools and by those who desire to gain a good knowledge of the textile industry without having to wade through too many technical details." W. A. G. Clark

+ — Am Econ R 6:626 S '16 700w

"The author touches upon so many topics that it is inevitable that his work will contain not a few inaccuracies. . . . He limits himself to statements of facts with almost no explanation of the factors of causation behind those facts, a flaw most noticeable in the chapters on the Geography of the cotton trade and the Geography of wool production. While writing, the author must have had most prominently before his mind the retail salesgirl portion of his audience for the literary style of the book nowhere advances beyond the intelligence of such a person." Malcolm Keir

+ — Ann Am Acad 67:302 S '16 350w

Cleveland p75 Je '16 40w

+ N Y Libraries 5:173 N '16 20w

"Reviewed in Textiles, April, 1916, p. 31."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p19 My '16 40w

R of Rs 54:119 Jl '16 60w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 27 '16 90w

OBCCHAIN, MRS. ELIZA CAROLINE (CALVERT) (ELIZA CALVERT HALL, pseud.). Clover and blue grass. il $*1.25 (2½c) Little 16-26774

"How Parson Page went to the circus," the first in this collection of six tales, is said by the author to be the last of her "Aunt Jane of Kentucky" stories. It is reprinted from the Cosmopolitan for July, 1910. The other stories, all of them sympathetic studies of simple, homely, country life, are Mary Crawford's chart; Old mahogany; Millstones and stumbling-blocks; "One taste of the old time"; and One day in spring.

+ A L A Bkl 13:35 O '16

"It is the laughter of the countryside rather than its tears that 'Clover and blue grass' is concerned with." P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 44:271 N '16 400w

+ Ind 88:76 O 9 '16 40w

"The stories are quiet, quaint, and wholesome, full of helpful, practical philosophy for everyday life, and told sympathetically and vividly."

+ Lit D 53:1040 O 21 '16 150w

+ N Y Times 21:484 N 12 '16 520w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:411 N '16 20w

O'BRIEN, EDWARD JOSEPH HARRINGTON, ed. Best short stories of 1915 and the Yearbook of the American short story. $*1.50 (1½c) Small 16-11387

The editor has chosen twenty short stories from those offered in the American magazines in 1915. Of the stories examined ninety-three were found to be stories of distinction. Out of these the twenty were chosen, and of the twenty the one pronounced the best story of the year is by a new writer, Benjamin Rosenblatt, whose story "Zelig" is reprinted from the Bellman. The volume contains also an index to the short stories of the year and other data which support its title as the "Yearbook of the American short story." There is promise that this volume will be the first of a series of annuals.

+ A L A Bkl 13:22 O '16

"The quality and technique of the American short story for the past twenty years has been determined by the magazines, and not by the special vision and temperament of the author. And the variety of the types has not been due to the variety of minds that wrote them but to the varied policies of the different magazines. The value of Mr. O'Brien's annual volume is in its declaration of freedom for the American short story writer. It calls attention to the public of the state of affairs which exists, and which the best taste of the reading public can reform." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 24 '16 1150w

+ Cath World 104:553 Ja '17 100w

"It is as an explorer rather than as a judge that Mr. O'Brien makes his work most valuable. Discovering new authors and comparatively unknown magazines is his specialty."

+ Ind 86:486 Je 19 '16 230w

"Of value to the smaller public libraries, as giving in compact form characteristic examples of current work which could hardly otherwise be represented in the small library's accessions."

+ N Y Libraries 5:124 Ag '16 100w

N Y Times 21:215 My 21 '16 450w

"They are distinctive, typically American, trenchant—in many instances powerful. If there is a fault in the collection, it is that they have not sufficient diversity. Human-welfare stories dominate the book."

+ R of Rs 53:760 Je '16 140w

"An ambitious book, the value of which, either as literature or as a record of literature, is not, perhaps, high enough to repay the editor's pains. . . . 'Zelig' does not seem superior, when all points are considered, to 'The waiting years,' by Katharine Metcalf Roof, or 'The bounty jumper,' by Mary Synon. 'T. B.,' by Fannie Hurst, is worthily included in the collection. It is notable in several respects."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 13 '16 550w

"Of value in a study of the short story, besides being a good volume for the fiction shelves of all but the little library."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:272 Je '16 50w

O'BRIEN, SEUMAS. Duty, and other Irish comedies. il *$1.25 Little 822 16-17688

"Duty," the first of these one-act plays, was produced at the Abbey theatre in December, 1913 and formed part of the repertory of the Irish Players during their American tour in 1914. The other plays are Jurisprudence, Magnanimity, Matchmakers, and Retribution. The characters are drawn from the Irish peasantry and both situation and dialog contribute to the fun of the comedies.

+ A L A Bkl 13:161 Ja '17

+ Cath World 104:263 N '16 50w

+ Cleveland p130 N '16 20w

"Five lively little farce-comedies, of the type which Lady Gregory made popular. They show no remarkable originality, but are full of high spirits and a gay and careless humor." H. E. Woodbridge

+ Dial 61:462 N 30 '16 660w

"Remarkably good as reading plays."

+ R of Rs 54:566 N '16 90w

"There is humor, philosophy and more than a hint of satire in the comedies, besides an occasional unexpectedness of dénouement that adds to their charm."

+ Springfield Republican p6 S 12 '16 380w

O'BRIEN, SEUMAS. Whale and the grasshopper, and other fables. il *$1.35 (3c) Little 16-22898

Twenty short stories rich in Irish imagery and humor. The stories are told either by Padma Dan to his friend Micus Pat, or by Micus Pat to his friend Padma Dan, and the philosophical and worldly-wise comments of the one or the other are worth as much as the stories themselves.

Some of the titles are: The whale and the grasshopper, The valley of the dead, The dilemma of Matty the goat, The white horse of Banba, Kings and commoners, The folly of being foolish.

"Their shrewd comments on the times and on human nature in general are amusing and fresh and sometimes hold a sting."

A L A Bkl 13:223 F '17

"Those who enjoy the writings of James Stephens will derive something of the same pleasure from reading these fables."

+ Cath World 104:540 Ja '17 50w

"Irish imagination at its best is a precious thing; and the reader may be assured of finding it at somewhere very near its best in 'The whale and the grasshopper.'"

+ Dial 61:537 D 14 '16 200w

O'CONOR, NORREYS JEPHSON. Fairy bride, a play in three acts; with music composed and arranged by Elliott Schenck. *$1 Lane 812 16-8702

The author has drawn on Celtic fairy lore for the plot of his play. He says, "My attempt has been to write an acting play, not merely closet drama; therefore, while preserving certain characteristics of the early Irish style of writing, I have sought to use language that will be intelligible to a modern audience and modern readers, particularly children who are already reading the plays of Shakspeare." The play comes within the acting range of high school pupils; directions for the stage settings are given in an appendix, and acting rights may be obtained from the publishers.

Boston Transcript p6 J1 19 '16 420w

+ Cath World 104:552 Ja '17 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:330 Ag 27 '16 80w

"The play is delicately phrased and creates an atmosphere of illusion. It is excellent for amateur performance, for use in schools, or for reading."

+ R of Rs 53:634 My '16 150w

St Louis 14:443 D '16 30w

O'DONNELL, CHARLES LEO. Dead musician, and other poems. *$1 Gomme 811 16-17361

The title poem is an elegy, written "in memory of Brother Basil, organist for half a century at Notre Dame." The other poems of the collection are grouped as: A hive of song; Dreams of Donegal; The bird of God; Quatrains; and Odes. Among the latter is the ode written for Indiana day at the Panama-Pacific exposition. The book also includes The nativity; a miracle play. The author is a Catholic priest, and his religious faith finds expression in many of the poems.

"He lacks many qualities that make a poet of the first order, or of the third for that matter. But for all this lack he has done a few things so supremely simple and deep, that any poet of the first order would have been glad to claim them. One thing is preëminent in this poet, and that is, good or poor, the verses in this collection were written for the personal satisfaction they gave the writer." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 14 '16 1300w

"The most important feature of the book is the title poem. . . . It deserves to rank with the very best of American elegiac poetry."

+ Lit D 53:137 J1 15 '16 750w

+ N Y Times 21:457 O 29 '16 320w

OFFICIAL guide to eastern Asia. 4v il v 1 *$4.50; v 2-3 *$7.50; v 4 *$5 Putnam 915

"Tourist travel to the Far East has taken the place of that to Europe to such an extent that new guides to the lands across the Pacific are most welcome." (Lit D) The four volumes are devoted to: Manchuria and Chosen (Korea); Southwestern Japan; Northeastern Japan; and China.

"Tho there has been a guide for travelers in Japan, there has been none for China, Korea

"Although there have been many 'lives' of President McKinley this is the only authorized biography based on his private papers."

+ R of Rs 53:753 Je '16 380w

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 30 '16 780w

OLCOTT, FRANCES JENKINS, comp. Bible stories to read and tell. il *$2 (2c) Houghton 220 16-23598

Miss Olcott has selected and arranged 150 stories from the Old Testament. They are told in the words of the King James version with occasional revisions or substitutions from revised versions to suit the understanding of the child. "The stories are not meant to take the place of the Bible, but to lead to the wider reading of both Old and New Testaments. References are given after some stories so that the children may look them up in their Bibles. The arrangement forms an outline of Old Testament history." (Introd.) An appendix gives a list of editions of the Bible recommended for children. There are eight illustrations in color by Willy Pogány.

+ A L A Bkl 13:225 F '17

"The introduction and appendixes are excellent guides, and altogether I consider this volume to be one of the most thoughtful contributions to the juvenile appreciation of the larger Book we have had in a long while." M. J. Moses

+ Dial 61:546 D 14 '16 70w

+ Ind 88:465 D 11 '16 50w

+ Public Libraries 22:37 Ja '17 150w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 7 '17 220w

OLCOTT, VIRGINIA. Plays for home, school and settlement; Flowers in the palace garden and other plays. il *$1 Moffat 16-18615

Six plays for younger children. A play for Christmas is included among the number. Directions for costuming, etc., are given.

+ A L A Bkl 13:184 Ja '17

"In subject, treatment and ease of production these little plays are models of their kind." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:407 D '16 40w

+ Lit D 54:206 Ja 27 '17 50w

OLDROYD, OSBORN HAMILINE, comp. and ed. Poets' Lincoln. il $1 O. H. Oldroyd, 516 10th st., N. W., Washington, D. C. 811.03 16-2036

"Osborn H. Oldroyd of Washington has collected many of the most famous poems about the martyred president, and has added numerous portraits and other illustrations to make an attractive volume. An introductory essay is contributed by Marion Mills Miller. The purpose of the book, Mr. Oldroyd says, is to assist in preserving the collection of memorials now contained in the house in which Lincoln died, at 516 Tenth street, Washington."—Springfield Republican

"Compiled and published by that zealous and well-informed Lincolnian, Mr. Osborn H. Oldroyd. He has collected in his two hundred and sixty pages many more Lincoln poems of merit than most of us suspected to be in existence. To trace them and, in many cases, their authorship, must have been a task."

+ Dial 60:86 Ja 20 '16 150w

"The illustrations are many and for the most part of Lincoln portraits, which will give the book an especial value to those who cannot readily come at these pictures."

+ Ind 85:284 F 21 '16 50w

+ Nation 101:662 D 2 '15 150w

"Happily, Mr. Oldroyd's selections cover all phases of Lincoln's career. In general, the editor's principles of selection can be warmly commended. The collection will be found useful by teachers and those who have charge of the making of programs at memorial meetings. It is also an anthology that many a man will be glad to add to his library. It is to be regretted that the dates of all the later poems are not stated."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ja 20 '16 280w

O'LEARY, IRIS PROUTY. Department store occupations. 25c (1c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-5600

A report of an investigation into department store conditions in Cleveland made in the interests of vocational guidance. Contents: Purpose and scope; Department stores; Neighborhood stores; Five and ten cent stores; Working conditions and health; Wages and employment; Analysis of jobs; Vocational training for department store workers; Looking for work.

"Perhaps the most instructive chapter is the one giving an analysis of jobs, showing in different departments the places of entrance into department store work and the lines of promotion." H. E. M.

+ Am Econ R 6:683 S '16 110w

"Will interest vocational trainers and workers alike."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 21 '16 80w

Cleveland p22 Mr '16 30w

"Boys and girls who are expecting to enter the different activities described will profit greatly by a reading of these books [monographs of Cleveland survey] and they will be able to do so because of the form in which the material is presented. Department store occupations gives a very careful picture of the kinds of jobs in department stores, their regularity, pay, and physical effects."

+ El School J 16:463 My '16 420w

"A valuable report, tho disappointing in its lack of plan for changing the bad features of the work."

+ Ind 88:35 O 2 '16 40w

Pittsburgh 21:242 My '16 20w

"The author is assistant in vocational education for girls and women in the Department of public instruction of New Jersey."

+ St Louis 14:191 My '16 20w

St Louis 14:445 D '16 10w

"Like all the Cleveland monographs it is compact, authoritative, and attractively printed."

+ School R 24:406 My '16 140w

OLLARD, REV. SIDNEY LESLIE. Short history of the Oxford movement. il *$1.80 Young ch. 283 A16-389

"Within the moderate compass of two hundred and eighty pages Canon Ollard has summarized accurately all the important events of the Oxford movement from Keble's famous Assize sermon of 1833 to the secession of the major portion of the Caldy community to Rome in 1913. He indicates concisely the outstanding individual characters in three generations of high churchmen, and the nature and importance of their separate work. . . . Nor does he confine himself to the theological aspects of the movement; he traces its influences into modern art, literature, journalism, music, and architecture. The work is enriched with thirty-two illustrations, mostly portraits."—Spec

"A eulogistic chronicle, which leaves the reader still regretful that Mr. W. J. Copland never wrote the story of Newman and his followers. But, so far as it goes, it is readable and apparently accurate; the author is able, at any rate, to correct some errors of detail in his predecessors." James Moffatt

+ Hibbert J 14:436 Ja '16 170w

"Save where it impinges on Romanism, he treats the movement too much as an isolated phenomenon; its bearing on the religious and general thought of the age receives scant consideration; its philosophy is almost ignored. The writer identifies himself too closely with his leaders to see them as they really are; his character-drawing is conventional, true in outline but lacking detail in the shadows. . . . Canon Ollard has produced an excellent book of reference; but a closer study of divergent opinions on the necessity of the institution to what it stands for will have to be made, and a wider outlook on the thought of the century will have to be taken, before the final verdict can be given on the nature and results of the Oxford movement."

+ Spec 116:294 F 26 '16 500w

OLLIVANT, ALFRED. Brown mare. *$1
Knopf 940.91 16-22756

"This is a book of short stories about the war, dealing not at all with its battles, little with its horrors and its agonies, but with the small human matters that are, when war is over the land, things of everyday. They are little more than pictures, drawn with infinite tenderness; an English schoolboy under bombardment, a young Belgian conscript, an athlete who was killed, a group of Hindus, a brave woman at home, a faithful horse. They are not stories, or essays, or impressions; they are just little bits of the war."—N Y Times

"Some have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, Country Life, and Boston Evening Transcript."
+ A L A Bkl 13:223 F '17

"These are pictures of home and they have that quality of homely tenderness, fortitude, and patience which endears the British race. Those who have known and loved England in happier days will find in these pages something precious and intimate and friendly."
+ Dial 61:198 S 21 '16 200w

"By its universality 'The brown mare' is one of the wonderful books about the war."
+ N Y Times 21:469 N 5 '16 700w

OLMSTEAD, FLORENCE. Father Bernard's parish. *$1.25 (2c) Scribner 16-11734

A novel of New York life that has many of the qualities of a story of a country town. The New York that the author suggests is a New York of innumerable small communities, each with interests and activities of its own. Father Bernard's parish lies along Columbus avenue up near 100th street and his parishioners, the butcher, the baker, the cobbler and many other persons of local importance, are characters in the story. In particular it has to do with two love stories. Lena, the waitress in Zukerman's lunch-room, is the heroine of one, and little Annie Halligan who, until George Wagner came to clerk in the drug store, had thought herself called to the church, of the other.

+ A L A Bkl 12:483 J1 '16

"It keeps to the difficult mean which lies between soapy sentimentalism on the one hand and scientific 'uplift' on the other." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:621 Ag '16 280w

"Presents an America that exists, an America that we must take account of, an America that an American had better know." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:94 Ag 15 '16 570w

+ Ind 87:32 J1 3 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16

"A novel worth reading for its dramatic story, its touches of genial humor, and its truthful picture of an interesting phase of American life."

+ N Y Times 21:210 My 21 '16 700w

+ R of Rs 54:125 J1 '16 30w

"In picturing the half-Americanized residents of the section, the author displays a sympathetic insight reminiscent of the late Myra Kelly."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 280w

+ Wls Lib Bull 12:323 J1 '16 80w

ONIONS, BERTA RUCK (MRS. OLIVER ONIONS). In another girl's shoes. il *$1.35 (1c) Dodd 16-16716

A new novel by an author who always contrives to make an absurd plot seem plausible. This time she tells the story of an attractive English girl who is forced into an anomalous position as a "war widow." She is almost literally forced, for Miss Vera Vayne, the film actress, finding at the last moment that she cannot face "George's people," all but pushes Rose Whitelands off the train and into the arms of the waiting Merediths. Unfortunately Rose is unable to make the Merediths understand the situation at once. Later comes the astounding news that Captain George Meredith has not been killed in action after all, and the supposed husband and wife are brought face to face. It is an awkward situation, but one that is ultimately straightened out to the satisfaction of everybody.

+ A L A Bkl 13:86 N '16

+ N Y Times 21:335 Ag 27 '16 450w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 240w

OPPENHEIM; EDWARD PHILLIPS. Amiable charlatan. il *$1.30 (2c) Little 16-8225

Mr. Paul Walmsley is quietly engaged with his dinner in a respectable London restaurant when a genial stranger drops into a chair at his side and with apologies appropriates the half-eaten meal to himself. The appearance of a detective a moment later throws some light on the situation but by no means makes it wholly intelligible to Mr. Walmsley. Nevertheless when the young man recognizes in the stranger the father of a most beautiful girl whom he has seen dining at the restaurant on other occasions, he unhesitatingly becomes an accomplice in concealing he knows not what illegal act. Thus begins a series of exciting adventures. Mr. Walmsley doesn't at all approve of Mr. Joseph H. Parker's methods, but for Eve's sake, he is forced to condone them. The book is made up of episodes, and one isn't obliged to wait to the end for the revelation of the identity of Joseph H. Bundercombe, alias Parker.

"Not as good as this author's average work."

— A L A Bkl 12:431 Je '16

"The chief figures, the people they consort with, their victims and their friends, they are all crazy." P. G. Hubert, jr.

— Bookm 43:537 J1 '16 570w

"Once acquired, the habit of reading the Oppenheim novels is incurable. It is, moreover, a habit that none wants to be cured of. It is, in fact, a good habit, for it is a habit that provides a generous amount of recreation within an occasional few leisure hours." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 8 '16 950w

"Mr. Oppenheim really needs no comment, but only to be passed along." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 60:426 Ap 27 '16 350w

+ Ind 86:343 My 29 '16 60w

"How long this recurring situation will hold a laugh for the reader will depend upon his individual partiality for that classic figure of fun, the triumphant and benevolent joker of farce-comedy."

+ Nation 102:436 Ap 20 '16 130w

"One receives the impression that Mr. Oppenheim thoroughly enjoyed writing the lively series of episodes which together make up this ingenious and sportive yarn."

+ N Y Times 21:130 Ap 9 '16 470w

"Mr. Oppenheim works the story out in a masterly way that will appeal to all lovers of that type of fiction."

+ R of Rs 54:125 J1 '16 50w

"A lively and amusing but not a very edifying tale."

— + Wls Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 50w

OPPENHEIM, EDWARD PHILLIPS. Kingdom of the blind. il *$1.35 (2c) Little 16-21059

England in the first year of the war, unawake as yet to the danger from German spies in her midst, is the "Kingdom of the blind." Hugh Thomson, nominally an inspector of field hospitals, is in reality head of the military intelligence department. It is he who first suspects Captain Ronald Granet, an officer in the British army and nephew of Sir Alfred Anselman, one of England's greatest financiers. His suspicions are at first ridiculed, and Geraldine Conyers breaks their engagement as a result of them, but Thomson persists and in the end, after many exciting incidents, including a Zeppelin raid, Granet, who is of German ancestry, is found guilty.

A L A Bkl 13:126 D '16

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

Bookm 44:278 N '16 250w

"An excellent mingling of the romantic and the real." A. A. R.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 25 '16 420w

+ Dial 61:354 N 2 '16 150w

Ind 88:126 O 16 '16 30w

"It is a fascinating love-story, and a story of adventure. It contains much that is explanatory and elucidating in the methods and problems of secret service and the general undercurrents in war-tactics. It is one of the most plausible and convincing books Mr. Oppenheim has written."

+ Lit D 53:1339 N 18 '16 250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:136 S '16

N Y Times 21:484 N 12 '16 350w

"The story is a rushing, exciting tale, pulsating with patriotism, and is undoubtedly Mr. Oppenheim's best effort of this particular type. But the lack of principle displayed in the author's choice of subject and his attitude makes it necessary to condemn the book from a public point of view."

— + Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 450w

OPPENHEIM, JAMES. War and laughter. *$1.25
Century 811 16-22398

It is a buoyant and vigorous, yet a stern, philosophy that the poet preaches in the first half of this volume. "With clean laughter and a hard soul, I greet the morning," is its keynote. In the second half, War, the message is: "Would you end war? Create great peace."

A L A Bkl 13:162 Ja '17

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 44:513 Ja '17 200w

"For a section in this volume Mr. Oppenheim abandons the free forms of polyphonic verse for the rhymed measures in which he expressed himself in his early work. Among these are a series of sonnets of exceptional power and beauty." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 1 '16 1200w

+ Ind 88:534 D 25 '16 580w

+ N Y Times 21:509 N 26 '16 30w

+ N Y Times 22:2 Ja 7 '17 820w

"In 'War and laughter' he has chosen the higher reality. The old singing has returned, and become the instrument of all the poet's new dreams in the presence of flaming truths." E. J. O'Brien

+ Poetry Review 2:10 N '16 900w

"Has poetic fervour and in some sections a captivating gayety and sheer sunniness. . . . He has realized that laughter is really a means toward salvation and that the knowledge of the worst that is in us sometimes saves our souls. This volume is one of the best of the year."

+ R of Rs 54:674 D '16 140w

ORCZY, EMMUSKA (EMMA MAGDALENA ROSALIA MARIA JOSEFA BARBARA) (MRS. MONTAGU BARSTOW), baroness. Leatherface. *$1.35 (1c) Doran 16-18331

A story of Flanders in the sixteenth century with the Prince of Orange contending valiantly against the Spanish under the Duke of Alva. More than once had the prince's life been saved by the timely warnings of the unknown and mysterious stranger, Leatherface, so called because of his leather mask. This man of mystery appears and disappears and no one knows who he is. The reader, however, who is early let into the secret, knows that he is Mark van Rycke, who has entered light-heartedly into his father's ambitious plans to marry him to the daughter of one of the invaders, his father hoping to curry favor thereby. Mark is a wastrel and a cynic of whom no good is expected. Lenora de Vargas, on her part, is forced into the distasteful marriage, in the interests of Spain. She is to play the spy in her husband's house. She tries to carry out her bargain, but finds it harder and harder to keep as she falls more deeply in love with her husband. The story ends with the revolt of Ghent when the identity of Leatherface is made known to his wife and others.

+ A L A Bkl 13:223 F '17

"Strong human interest is maintained to the end."

+ Ath p434 S '16 100w

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

Bookm 44:280 N '16 120w

"The whole novel does, in truth, fall a little flat. It is the old trouble of reputation established and not sustained. Nevertheless, for those who do not know the 'Scarlet pimpernel,' and very likely for many who do, the story of Leatherface will prove worth the reading." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '16 470w

"Readable, exciting, and well-balanced."

+ Lit D 53:1341 N 18 '16 170w

"The romance is told with spirit, it is full of incident and color, presents an interesting picture of the manners and customs of the time, and has a thrilling climax."

+ N Y Times 21:429 O 15 '16 400w

Reviewed by M. A. Hopkins

Pub W 90:1410 O 21 '16 380w

+ Spec 117:556 N 4 '16 10w

+ Springf'd Republican p15 D 10 '16 290w

O'RORKE, BENJAMIN GARNISS. In the hands of the enemy. il *50c Longmans 940.91

15-25231

"Mr. O'Rorke, a chaplain attached to the Fourth field ambulance of the British expeditionary force, witnessed the fierce fight of the Coldstream guards at Landrecies, Aug. 25, 1914, and was there captured by the Germans and carried off to the war prison at Torgau. For eight or nine months he was confined with the British officers at Torgau and at Burg, near Magdeburg, but toward the end he was allowed to go out alone into the city on parole, and at length was exchanged. His modest little book tells of his experiences. . . . The author makes few complaints of ill-treatment. Occasional instances of over-bearing conduct on the part of German officers are treated in humorous style, and this is the general attitude of the British prisoners." —N Y Times

Boston Transcript p9 O 30 '15 120w

"It is by many little incidents that Mr. O'Rorke conveys his picture of life in a German war prison. On the whole, the author gives us a fairly cheerful picture, though imagination can easily supply the deeper shadows."

+ N Y Times 20:503 D 12 '15 450w

"An unvarnished but intensely interesting narrative. The writer was in turn at Torgau, Burg, and Magdeburg, and describes his experiences very simply and naturally. They will be of great interest to those who have friends or relatives in the hands of the enemy."

+ Spec 116:sup140 Ja 29 '16 200w

ORTH, SAMUEL PETER. Imperial impulse. *$1.20 (3c) Century 914 16-6953

These "background studies" of five European nations "aim at nothing more than a rapid sketching of the ethnic, economic and political background of these countries, now engaged in the most colossal recrudescence of the imperial instinct of modern times." (Preface) Six papers make up the contents: Germany's destiny; The soul of the French; England: imperial opportunist; Belgium: international waf; Russia in transition; Our first duty. The first three are reprinted from the Century magazine; the last was written for the Sunday magazine of the New York Times; the remaining two, on Russia and Belgium, appear here for the first time.

A L A Bkl 12:475 J1 '16

"Mr. Orth has had wide experience in public affairs and for this reason is more than ordinarily competent for the task before him. During the Roosevelt administration he was assistant United States attorney. He has been acting president of the Board of education in Cleveland and held many other positions in educational circles. In all of his work, however, there has been present a strong interest in socio-political problems and he has studied public affairs from the inside."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 30 '16 300w

ORTH, SAMUEL PETER—Continued

"The book is well done, and we have found it stimulating and full of interest. It shows intimate acquaintance with the things narrated, as well as thorough and delicate appreciation; there is much that is delightful and more that will suggest further thought; generally the writing is clear and refreshing, and sometimes so weighty, as to be reminiscent of the manner of Carlyle."

+ — Nation 102:459 Ap 27 '16 1100w

"Half a dozen essays by the professor of political science in Cornell university, already known as the author of 'Socialism and democracy in Europe.' They are character studies of nations, brilliant, graphic and convincing."

+ N Y Times 21:307 Ag 6 '16 320w

Pittsburgh 21:355 J1 '16 20w

+ Pratt p35 Ja '17 30w

ORVIS, JULIA SWIFT. Brief history of Poland.

*$1.50 (2c) Houghton 943.8 16-22948

The author has based her history on secondary sources, using Röpell and Caro's "Geschichte Polens" and Robert H. Lord's "Second partition of Poland" as her chief sources. Her purpose has been to present the subject "in such a way as to reach and interest the many to whom Poland's great past, as well as her present problems and their wide significance, are practically unknown." The history is brought down to the present time, closing with a chapter on The Poles and the war. The author is associate professor of history in Wellesley college.

"There has been no history of Poland in the English language that is even remotely satisfactory. Morfill's work in the 'Story of the nations' series is a hasty and superficial compilation."

Of the first half of Professor Orvis's book, which treats of the history of Poland down to the death of Augustus III in 1763, the best that can be said is that it is superior to Morfill's handling of the same theme. The second half of the volume, beginning with an excellent sketch of Polish society in the eighteenth century, and proceeding with an account of the partitions and the history of the Polish people under foreign rule, is of different sort, being clear, well-ordered, and interesting. As a fitting climax, it conducts the reader to a definite understanding of the relations of the Poles to the present war."

+ — Nation 104:137 F 1 '17 440w

Outlook 115:34 Ja 3 '17 50w

"A bibliography gives the best sources of information for further study."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 29 '17 190w

OSBORNE, CHARLES EDWARD. Religion in Europe and the world crisis.

*$2.50 (2c) Dodd (Eng ed 16-14627)

Problems in religion and ethics rising out of the war are considered in this volume. In part the chapters are based on lectures delivered in the Church of St. John, Newcastle-on-Tyne, in 1915. In the first of them the author points out that New Testament Christianity, owing partly to conditions at the time it was formulated, takes no account of patriotism. The problem with which many men and women now find themselves confronted is the reconciliation of their Christian beliefs with the demands of "a patriotism that is sane as well as ardent, and which disclaims the temptation to selfish domination." This problem is the central theme of the book. Some of the specific chapters take up: Religion in Germany and the war; The Russian spirit; The testing of democracy and the testing of the church; The Church of England and the changing times. In an epilogue the author looks to the future with the prediction that Christianity after the war will be predominantly social rather than individual.

"One of the best things in these last three chapters is what the author says of the eastern church. He has travelled in Russia and has made a careful study of this church; and his conclusions show that this great communion is to play a large part in the immediate future development of Christianity. The book is not at all dogmatic, indeed, many of the conclusions are stated in the form of questions."

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 9 '16 690w

N Y Br Lib News 3:141 S '16

"The real value of the book lies in the author's revelation of himself as a minister of the established church of England, faced, in his capacity as a pastor of souls, with the tremendous realities of life which the war has brought before the eyes of those of his own nation."

+ N Y Times 21:432 O 15 '16 410w

Pratt p40 Ja '17 36w

"The volume demands attention as the result of much reflection on questions of primary importance by a thoughtful and cultured observer, who writes with the force of strong conviction informed by careful and wide reading."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p188 Ap 20 '16 150w

OSBORNE, THOMAS MOTT. Society and prisons.

*$1.35 (2c) Yale univ. press 365 16-14890

The lectures that make up this book were delivered as the 1916 Yale lectures on the responsibilities of citizenship. The preliminary lecture on Crime and criminals makes it clear that, Lombroso and Havelock Ellis to the contrary notwithstanding, there is no such person as "the criminal." There is no criminal type, no criminal class. There is, however, a prison type, created by prison conditions. The four lectures that follow take up Courts and punishment; The old prison systems; The Mutual welfare league; The new penology.

+ A L A Bkl 13:11 O '16

+ Ann Am Acad 69:284 Ja '17 150w

"What most interests the reader in Mr. Osborne's new book is his clear analysis of the underlying responsibilities of the prisons, and his sensible programme for future reform."

R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 770w

+ Cath World 104:400 D '16 260w

Reviewed by Paul Blackwelder

+ Dial 61:186 S 21 '16 1050w

"If any one has feared Mr. Osborne as a sentimentalist who would ruin a good idea by applying it in season and out of season, let him read the Yale lectures on 'Society and prisons.'"

+ Ind 87:462 S 25 '16 210w

"Mr. Osborne writes in an easy, conversational style which makes agreeable reading, and, though full of enthusiasm for his ideas, for the most part he talks (in his own words) not 'reform,' but 'business.'"

+ Nation 103:181 Ag 24 '16 670w

"It is a very human book, written with earnestness, with compassion, with understanding, but without any trace of sentimentalism."

+ N Y Times 21:291 J1 23 '16 1200w

+ R of Rs 54:343 S '16 310w

+ Spec 117:632 N 18 '16 180w

"The book in which he has explained his position so clearly and so comprehensively must be regarded as one of the most significant and valuable of current works on penology."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 15 '16 1200w

Reviewed by W. D. Lane

+ Survey 37:280 D 9 '16 1150w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p545 N 16 '16 1000w

"The best book for the small library of the many recently published."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:451 D '16 50w

"No part of the service which these lectures perform is of greater value than their indignant exposure of the folly and inhumanity of the old-line prison management. Mr. Osborne rails against it in a spirit of rebellion which will evoke a chorus of delight from veteran wardens who have successfully fought in their respective states, inch by inch, to abolish inhumane practices in government, and distorted social vision."

N. G. Osborn

+ Yale R ns 6:195 O '16 2000w

O'SHAUGHNESSY, EDITH LOUISE (COUES)
(MRS. NELSON O'SHAUGHNESSY). Diplomats' wife in Mexico. il *$2 (2c) Harper
972 16-13529

Letters to her mother written by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy between October 8, 1913 and April 23, 1914, when diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico were broken off, make up this volume. They give an intimate picture of what was happening in those days and throw light on the situation which seems just at the present moment to have come to a head. The recognition of the rebels was regarded all the time as a mistake by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy. The lifting of the embargo was a crime. It meant the admission of arms "that, in some day and hour unknown to us, must inevitably be turned against their donors. It is all as certain as death."

+ A L A Bkl 13:26 O '16

"She nowhere reveals appreciation or understanding of the big problems and the appalling needs of Mexico, nor sympathetic realisation of Mexican national character. The point of view is the narrow one of the diplomatic circle." F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 44:203 O '16 450w

"One of the most stirring parts of the book is that which describes the conditions of the diplomats in Mexico City while the United States was taking Vera Cruz. It is an actual first hand view of war. Americans as well as Mexicans believed that the two nations were actually at war." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 1200w

+ Cath World 103:824 S '16 530w

"Historically valuable in some of its first-hand evidence. It is well illustrated."

+ Dial 61:144 S 7 '16 350w

+ Ind 87:70 J1 10 '16 50w

+ Lit D 53:900 O 7 '16 470w

"The work, apart from the fact that its very publication is in questionable taste, is a significant, although not particularly original, contribution to the materials which must be considered in solving the Mexican problem."

+ Nation 103:400 O 26 '16 1250w

"The history of literature affords few examples of the art of letter-writing superior to this volume of letters from Mexico by Mrs. O'Shaughnessy. . . . One need not agree with her. It would be most disquieting to do so. Nevertheless, it would be a wholesome exercise for the stay-at-home-citizen to look for a little while at the Mexican problem through this gifted woman's eyes." A. S. J.

+ New Repub 8:98 Ag 26 '16 1450w

N Y Br Lib News 3:104 J1 '16 40w

+ N Y Times 21:265 J1 2 '16 100w

"Its genuineness, its first-hand quality are unmistakable. The author has manifestly no axe to grind, no pose to maintain, no self-appointed literary task to get through. . . . To one who wishes to understand the Mexican problem as it appeared to intelligent people 'on the inside,' to one who sincerely desires to know how our Mexican policy inevitably appeared to those whom it directly affected—to the Mexicans themselves and to the representatives of other powers—to one who cares to become en rapport with the personalities concerned in the situation, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy's book will be an invaluable bringer of light. . . . The whole book is tremendously convincing, but the portraiture of Huerta is the most convincing part of it."

+ No Am 204:300 Ag '16 1350w

+ R of Rs 54:201 Ag '16 900w

"Clever, entertaining, and exceedingly indiscreet."

Spec 117:810 D 23 '16 100w

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 2 '16 350w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p386 Ag 17 '16 700w

+ Wls Lib Bull 12:409 N '16 110w

"Mrs. O'Shaughnessy's knowledge of American history is not flawless; and her Spanish—of which this book offers rather too much for the American reader—does not always conform to the standards. . . . Her English also is open to criticism. . . . The account shows too much sentiment and idealizing; but it appears to have been written in good faith, and history is grateful even if diplomacy may not be." J. H. Smith

+ Yale R ns 6:193 O '16 1100w

OSTWALD, CARL WILHELM WOLFGANG.
Handbook of colloid-chemistry. il *$3 Blak-
iston 541.12 15-27635

"The work of the past twenty-five years in this branch of chemistry has proved the very great importance of the subject. . . . Living matter, whether of plants or animals, and under normal or pathological conditions, is chemistry in a colloid matrix; whence colloid-chemistry comes to concern every botanist and zoologist, the physiologist, the pathologist, and the practical man in medicine and surgery. 'A handbook of colloid-chemistry' by Dr. Wolfgang Ostwald, first English edition translated from the third German edition by Dr. Martin H. Fischer, deals with the recognition of colloids, the theory of colloids, and their general physico-chemical properties.'"—Nation

+ A L A Bkl 12:461 J1 '16

"Ostwald was turned into colloid chemistry by certain problems met in biology, and the translator is an animal physiologist dealing with very fundamental problems in the colloidal side of his subject. These facts should especially interest biologists in the book. It is to be regretted that the second half has not yet appeared in German, and therefore is not available for translation; but one sees the rapidity of the growth in colloid chemistry when he recognizes that the first half passed through three editions without opportunity for writing the second half. The volume is a much-needed reference book for plant workers." W. Crocker

+ Bot Gaz 61:345 Ap '16 270w

"The work first appeared in 1910, and is known throughout the world as the authoritative text on the subject. Dr. Fischer has performed a great service in making it more accessible to the English-speaking chemists through this excellent translation."

+ Nation 102:sup501 My 4 '16 370w

"It is stated in the preface that this book has passed through three large editions in Germany. We are inclined to think that such success was due more to the fact that it was first in the field as a general treatise upon a subject which was attracting widespread interest than to intrinsic merit. The ideas especially of the general theoretical portion are superficial, and the writing loose, words being mistaken for ideas. . . . The least satisfactory part of the book is the section on surface energy. . . . The part dealing with special properties of colloidal solutions, such as molecular weight, viscosity, osmotic pressure, etc., gives, on the whole, a clear account of the work which has been done."

+ Nature 98:47 S 21 '16 370w

"While the reviewer can not agree with the translator in saying that Wo. Ostwald in colloidal chemistry occupies a position analogous to Wilhelm Ostwald in physical chemistry, or J. Liebig in agricultural chemistry, nevertheless one must agree that his text-book is most stimulating and interesting. . . . The book is made very attractive with its abundant photographs and tables." W. A. Patrick

+ Science ns 43:747 My 26 '16 320w

O'TOOLE, THOMAS. Way they have in the army. il *$1 (2½c) Lane 355 16-6487

"In this little volume," says the author, "I have endeavored to convey to the public in general . . . a faithful representation of the life, customs, duties, etc., of our brave heroes in khaki. The work is not an exhaustive encyclopedia on matters military. It simply deals with the inside, the human side of soldiering—the side in which those with near ones and dear ones with the colours are, naturally, most interested." (Foreword) Some of the chapters are: Difference between the soldier and the civilian; The new recruit; Tommy's private language;

O'TOOLE, THOMAS—Continued

How the army is arranged; Cinderellas of the army; Tommy's badges of rank; Military etiquette; Tommy's grub; The soldier's wife.

"The method is not heavy or dull, but light and chatty wherever a light touch is possible."
+ Boston Transcript p4 My 31 '16 220w
+ N Y Times 21:148 Ap 16 '16 100w
R of Rs 53:503 Ap '16 40w
Spec 116:385 Mr 18 '16 230w

OVIATT, EDWIN. Beginnings of Yale (1701-1726). il *$3.50 (3½c) Yale univ. press 378 16-22784

The author divides the early history of Yale into three periods. These are treated under three headings: John Davenport and his New Haven college; The founding of the Collegiate school; The Collegiate school and Yale college. Much new material, letters, diaries, town records, etc., has been examined in the preparation of the work. The illustrations by Theodore Diedricksen, jr. have been redrawn from old woodcuts and from photographs.

"Authentic, comprehensive, and readable."
+ N Y Times 22:16 Ja 14 '17 70w

"The 'Beginnings of Yale' is written in the spirit of a genial story-teller rather than of an historical scholar. One regrets that more references are not made to authorities and explanatory material." S. E. Baldwin
Yale R ns 6:432 Ja '17 260w

OXENHAM, JOHN. My lady of the moor. il *$1.35 Longmans 16-14871

"Dartmoor is the scene for another novel by Mr. Oxenham, who is a facile if not fastidious writer. 'My lady of the moor' is a semi-saint who writes books and takes care of a chapel on the moors, not far from the famous prison. Noel Daunt, imprisoned for attempted murder of a man who had ruined her sister, feels her unseen influence working upon him and fighting against his determination to complete the work he had bungled. Upon his release he is brought under her direct care, and led to renounce his unworthy ambition, and to start afresh with new ideals and new strength."—Boston Transcript

"While above the ordinary level, falls at times to rise to the height demanded. Its theology is broad and may commend itself to many."
+ — Ath p196 Ap '16 150w

"The novel is super-sentimental, affectedly mystic, and unsubstantial to a degree."
— Boston Transcript p5 My 24 '16 150w

"The best part of the artificial tale is the account Mr. Oxenham gives of the ever changing aspects of the moor in fog and storm and sunshine."
+ Cath World 103:554 Jl '16 100w

"A strange book, compelling attention tho not altogether convincing. There are excellent descriptions of Dartmoor, the scene of the story."
+ Ind 86:405 Je 5 '16 50w

"If this book be indeed fact and not fiction, it is an interesting record of a fine man's struggle, however questionable the taste shown in thus giving it to the world may appear to the fastidious."
+ — N Y Times 21:246 Je 18 '16 430w
+ — Springfield Republican p15 Jl 23 '16 330w

OYEN, HENRY. Snow-burner. *$1.25 (1c) Doran 16-22899

A hero of Nietzschean proportions is Reivers, the "snow-burner" of this story. He rules his lumber camp—known thruout the north as Hell camp—on the principle that might is right and he holds his men in subjection thru fear. Topsy Treplin, when he first comes to Hell camp, is Reivers' equal in size but not in strength, for four years of easy living and dissipation have left their mark on a man who had been a distinguished college athlete. It takes many weeks of training as blacksmith's helper, and almost superhuman self-restraint to put Topsy in shape for the big fight that he knows is inevitable. The fight comes, and, beaten on his ground, Reivers is driven from camp. The camp believes Reivers dead, but very much alive, he enters a new life where he tries to carry out his old principles, but he is beaten again; this time by a girl whose defiance goads him to an act of kindness, for him the supreme weakness.

"The book is real and does not try credulity over much."
+ Dial 61:470 N 30 '16 160w

Ind 88:506 D 18 '16 60w
+ N Y Times 21:527 N 26 '16 230w

"A thrilling, but not wholly convincing tale."
+ — Springfield Republican p15 Ja 28 '17 140w

P

PACKARD, FRANK LUCIUS. Belovéd traitor. il *$1.25 (1c) Doran 16-10838

The story opens in a little fishing village on the Mediterranean. Here live Jean Laparde and Marie-Louise Bernier, betrothed lovers. Jean is a fisherman, but in his spare moments he models little figures of clay for the children and for Marie-Louise. An American collector and his daughter visit the village and are at once impressed with the quality of his work. They take him away to Paris and within two years he becomes the most talked of man in France. He seems to forget little Marie-Louise, but she is not so easily forgotten. In all his work, she lives, for, unconsciously he uses her for the model of all his noble figures. Circumstances bring her back to him, and he learns that it is to her, not to the rich and beautiful American, that his heart and soul belong.

+ Ath p481 O '16 70w

Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 380w
+ — N Y Times 21:125 Ap 2 '16 230w

"The book is, in the last analysis, a tribute to the womanhood of France, to all those sterling virtues which, steadily, placidly glowing in hours of ease, burst into flames of devotion and heroism in days of trial. Mr. Packard's curé is of the tradition established by the Abbé Constantin. His Paris is rather vague, but he opens his book with a spirited scene of storm and wreck."
+ N Y Tribune p9 Mr 18 '16 190w

"Frank L. Packard takes liberties with even the most elastic of probabilities. If the reader can adjust himself to Jean's lightning metamorphosis from fisherman to the nation's greatest sculptor much pleasure will be extracted from the rapidly-moving, dramatic story."
— Springfield Republican p17 Mr 12 '16 210w

PAGE, BRETT. Writing for vaudeville. (Writer's lib.) il *$2 Home correspondence school 808.2 16-1116

"Mr. Page is not a college professor with a class in vaudeville writing in his charge; he is a worker in the dramatic forms he talks about, monologues, 'two-acts,' playlets, and lyrics. He has no theories; he has the facts that he has gathered out of a somewhat extended experience, and those he presents for the benefit of those who want to write for the vaudeville stage. . . . The appendix of the volume furnishes as models to the would-be writer of vaudeville numbers nine complete acts: a monologue, a vaudeville two-act, a flirtation two-act, a travesty playlet, a comedy playlet, a tragic playlet, a melodramatic playlet, a one-act musical comedy, and a burlesque tab., most of these being published here for the first time."—N Y Times

"A brilliant little treatise. . . . Everything, moreover, is given with sanity and good humor unsurpassable. This is, probably, the first good treatise on its subject; Mr. Page deserves praise due to the pathbreaker." G: C. D. Odell
+ Educ R 52:521 D '16 650w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

+ Ind 85:430 Mr 20 '16 60w

"Throughout he is definite—throughout he is practical. He gives the would-be writer the whole vaudeville alphabet. 'I have the idea, but I don't know how to get it in shape' can be no excuse now that Mr. Page's book exists. . . . It is the first book of its kind. Like most first books of a kind it is not without many crudities."

+ N Y Times 20:517 D 19 '15 1050w

"A valuable work. Nine complete examples are given of the various vaudeville forms by Richard Harding Davis, Aaron Hoffman, Edgar Allan Woolf, Taylor Granville, Louis Weslyn, Arthur Denvir, and James Madison."

+ R of Rs 53:376 Mr '16 50w

"Brimful of useful information."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ja 13 '16 430w

PAGE, THOMAS NELSON. Shepherd who watched by night. (Perfect tribute ser.) il *50c (10c) Scribner 16-18022

This little Christmas story was published in Scribner's magazine in 1913. In the same year it was published with other short stories by the author in "The land of the spirit." It is the touching story of an old rector who comes to the end of his long labors on Christmas eve.

+ N Y Times 21:566 D 24 '16 130w

PAGE, VICTOR WILFRED. Automobile repairing made easy. il $3 Henley 629.1 15-28164

"A complete treatise explaining approved methods of repairing all parts of all types of gasoline automobiles. Shows all latest developments based on a wide, actual repair experience, includes electric starting and lighting system instructions; oxyacetylene welding; tire repairing; engine and ignition timing; overhauling, etc." (Subtitle)—A L A Bkl

A L A Bkl 12:270 Mr '16

+ Cleveland p92 Jl '16 10w

"It is hardly to be expected that the poorly paid garage repairman will study this book. Those who will read and benefit by it will be the chauffeurs who look after the cars that they drive, who are generally more skillful mechanics than the garage repairmen. The book appears to be thoroughly practical and sets forth up-to-date practice in the repair and adjustment of the latest types of cars, including such recent features as wire wheels, starting systems—mechanical, pneumatic and electric-lighting systems, vacuum-feed apparatus, etc. A chapter on shop kinks and a series of useful tables are also noteworthy."

+ Engin N 75:749 Ap 20 '16 400w

N Y Br Lib News 3:25 F '16

+ N Y Libraries 5:173 N '16 20w

"For mechanics, owners, and chauffeurs—a practical, completely illustrated guide of over 1000 pages by one who gained much of his experience first hand as a repair man. Well provided with useful mathematical and mechanical tables."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p3 F '16 120w

Pittsburgh 21:194 Ap '16

Pratt p22 Ap '16

+ R of Rs 54:459 O '16 60w

PAGE, VICTOR WILFRED. Starting, lighting and ignition systems. il $1.50 Henley 629.2 16-6273

"Outlines the features of leading electrical starting and lighting systems, showing not only the various parts of these systems, but the actual application of various ignition, generating and starting units. Seeks to explain principles and methods of operation as well as location of troubles, simply enough for readers without special technical knowledge. Carefully chosen illustrations and wiring diagrams of representative systems in actual use."—A L A Bkl

A L A Bkl 12:411 Je '16

+ Cleveland p92 Jl '16 10w

N Y Br Lib News 3:75 My '16

"A practical, simply written, and up-to-date treatise with nearly 300 illustrations. . . . Reviewed in Iron Age, March 23, 1916, p. 737."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p3 My '16 50w

Pittsburgh 21:350 Jl '16 10w

+ R of Rs 54:459 O '16 40w

St Louis 14:229 Je '16

PAGET, STEPHEN. Essays for boys and girls; a first guide toward the study of the war. il *$1.75 (3c) Macmillan 940.91 A16-685

In the essays of this book the author's aim is to interpret the war for young people and to make clear to them the part each nation is taking in it. Ideals of courage and self-sacrifice are held up to the young readers and the belief is expressed that the war is making England a better nation. There are nine essays: Your war; A venture of faith; The invasion of Belgium; France; Russia; Italy; Germany; Austria; The Balkan states; Turkey; Looking back. Cartoons from Punch are used as illustrations.

Boston Transcript p25 Mr 1 '16 300w

Ind 86:144 Ap 24 '16 40w

"It consists of a number of rambling, chatty essays, which in style are reminiscent of Ruskin's manner. Mr. Paget aims to stir the deeper feelings of faith, patriotism, and responsibility in the boys and girls whom he is addressing. But we are doubtful whether his style is suited to accomplish his purpose. Scattered through the volume are a number of interesting cartoons from Punch, which have nothing in particular to do with the text."

+ — Nation 102:sup497 My 4 '16 110w

"Though he says that he writes for boys and girls only, yet he does much more; he speaks to all civilians when he says that a terrible question comes from countless little wooden crosses over graves in France and Belgium and Gallipoli, and from all the unmarked graves of the sea: 'Is it nothing to you?' Why, the war is your war. The miseries of it will be the making of your safety."

+ Sat R 121:162 F 12 '16 1050w

"After reading these essays, so full of ardour and generosity, faith in our cause, and trust in its upholders, we rejoice at the impulse which prompted his task, and the courage and energy which enabled him to carry it out. At the very outset Mr. Paget does well to insist gravely, and even solemnly on what the war means for his audience. . . . The best of these chapters is that on the genius, the rebirth, and the grandeur of France. Mr. Paget traces her recovery after the war of 1870-71, first in things material, then in the realm of the spirit. . . . The remaining chapters give a useful outline of the main events in the history of Italy, Russia, Austria, the Balkans, and Turkey; and the book, which is dedicated to Sir Owen Seaman, is illustrated by admirable reproductions of sixteen war cartoons from Punch."

+ Spec 116:20 Ja 1 '16 1900w

"Charm of style, clarity of thought and a pervasive high-mindedness make Stephen Paget's 'Essays for boys and girls: a first guide toward the study of the war' eminently worthy of being brought to the attention of the class of readers for whom it is intended. Older readers will find that its being addressed to children has not given it any trace of childishness. He has definitely set himself the task of interpreting to the growing generation the great events of today so as to strengthen their belief in God and their love of gentleness and righteousness. His work is delightfully done. It needs to be said that not all of Mr. Paget's arguments will be accepted by all readers."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 27 '16 1100w

PAHLOW, MRS. GERTRUDE CURTIS BROWN. Cross of heart's desire. *$1.30 (2c) Duffield 16-17073

Marcia Dale had been reared in the belief that woman's chief duty is to charm. Above all she must never appear to be intellectual; men abhor intellectual women. In this belief Marcia flutters down the stairs to greet Spencer Blake, the young millionaire, and, remembering her mother's admonition to keep her three-quarter view turned towards him, she proceeds to charm. But Spencer Blake is a serious-minded and earnest young man, intensely interested in factory reform. He is at first puzzled and then bored and shortly takes his departure. Humiliated by the experience, Marcia leaves her home to go to New York. Here a wealthy cousin has offered her a position as secretary to his pseudo-philanthropic society. As Marcia grows, she finds her position here intolerable and later is given work with an organization that comes into actual contact with the poor and when she again meets Spencer Blake, she has a new and broadened viewpoint.

PAHLOW, MRS. G. C. B.—Continued

"The sort of book which is written about New York and about life by a person who does not know either New York or life very well. There is idea and plot, but the characters are too obviously drawn from imagination rather than observation."

+ Ind 88:76 O 9 '16 50w

"The beautiful Marcia is a bore. The story of how her mind developed and her spirit grew is interesting, natural, and sane."

+ — N Y Times 21:484 N 12 '16 450w

Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '16 230w

PAIN, BARRY ERIC ODELL. Collected tales. 2v v 1 $1.25 (1½c) Stokes (16-8699)

Barry Pain was asked by his publisher to choose from his work of the last twenty-five years those stories which he thought to be "best and most characteristic." These were to be published in two volumes of which this is the first. Humorous stories, the preface states, have been purposely omitted. In choosing the stories for inclusion the author seems to have given preference to those that touch the borderland of the supernatural. The titles are: The celestial grocery; Exchange; The glass of supreme moments; Zero; Wilmay; The doll; Ellen Rider; Sparkling Burgundy; Too soon and too late; The night of glory; The moon-slave; The diary of a god; The undying thing.

"The author's charming, whimsical style and the poetic beauty of his descriptions lighten the effect somewhat, but the average reader will wish that the collection had wider range."

+ Cleveland p18 Mr '16 40w

+ Nation 102:284 Mr 9 '16 420w

"Barry Pain is essentially a poet, and, delightful as are most of the short stories which make up the volume now under consideration, they are the work of a poet, and not the work of a man whose inevitable medium is the short story. The 'Collected tales' will be read from beginning to end with enjoyment only by those who read for the sake of their emotional reaction, who like to take intellectual baths in strange atmospheres. But any one who appreciates imagination, whimsicality, and the fresh and genuine expression of a poet's mind, will enjoy spending a few minutes with Barry Pain from time to time, and will find his book one to be taken homeopathically with delight."

+ — N Y Times 21:49 F 13 '16 480w

R of Rs 53:760 Je '16 70w

"Many of these tales have a touch of the supernatural about them, the last one, 'The undying thing,' being truly horrific."

Spec 117:191 Ag 12 '16 20w

"Only, perhaps, in 'Supreme moments,' which is one of the most significant and finely imagined stories in the volume, is there pride and joy. Have we here the fundamental sadness of the jester? If so, it is no pessimism, for it is tempered with constant pride in man's courage and unselfishness."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p283 Je 15 '16 950w

PAIN, BARRY ERIC ODELL. Short story. (Art and craft of letters) *40c (3c) Doran 808.3 (Eng ed 16-6810)

This essay on the short story is an answer to a critic who said, "English literature does not take kindly to the short story. Its imaginative fiction requires a greater space and amplitude than the short story can supply." The author cites Dickens, Kipling, Conrad, Stevenson and Meredith in refutation. French and Slavic authors are brought in for purposes of comparison, but of the American short story writers there is no mention.

+ A L A Bkl 13:211 F '17

"Barry Pain, who can himself write excellent short stories, merely offers his own reactions to various of the great short-story writers, and ends upon a vindictive note of distaste for the Russians, and a dithyrambic note of praise for Henry James and George Meredith."

— Nation 103:614 D 28 '16 210w

+ N Y Times 21:458 O 29 '16 350w

PAINE, ALBERT BIGELOW. Boys' life of Mark Twain; the story of a man who made the world laugh and love him; with many anecdotes, letters, illustrations, etc. *$1.25 (1½c) Harper 16-21582

There was much in the life of Samuel Clemens to interest a boy, much in his personality to appeal to the heart of youth. Mr. Paine, his official biographer who was with him during his last years, has written his story for young people. It is a newly written work, not an abridgment of the larger Life. There are many illustrations from photographs and drawings. The story appeared in St. Nicholas, 1915-16.

+ A L A Bkl 13:131 D '16

+ Dial 61:547 D 14 '16 30w

+ Ind 88:405 D 4 '16 40w

"Herein are compressed all the interesting moments of the three larger volumes."

+ Lit D 53:1565 D 9 '16 230w

+ Nation 103:549 N 30 '16 40w

"A splendidly well written and readable story from beginning to end."

+ N Y Times 21:525 N 26 '16 110w

"More than anything else, it shows boys that the great success of Samuel Clemens was due as much to persistency and hard work as to natural genius. . . . The author makes us feel by his fine simplicity and emotional sweep that Mark Twain is with us still, and that we shall go on loving him and laughing with him as long as America is America."

+ R of Rs 54:681 D '16 130w

+ Spec 117:738 D 9 '16 40w

"A boy will go through it as he went through 'Tom Sawyer' and the other Mark Twain books, with almost breathless interest."

+ Springfield Republican p8 D 15 '16 250w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p610 D 14 '16 150w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:455 D '16 40w

PAINE, ALBERT BIGELOW. Hollow tree nights and days. fl $1.50 (3c) Harper 16-18313

This is the third book of a series, following "The hollow tree and deep woods book" and "The hollow tree snowed in book." There are nineteen stories with such titles as Little Jack Rabbit and Bunty Bun, Mr. 'Possum's sick spell, Mr. Turtle's flying adventure, Mr. Bear's early spring call, How Mr. 'Possum's tail became bare. The pictures are by J. M. Condé.

"Opinions may differ when all the stories are so funny, but we confess to a particular delight in the automobile tales and in the serio-comedy of love and jealousy entitled 'A deep woods war.'"

G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:406 D '16 120w

+ N Y Times 21:456 O 29 '16 70w

"The American author would have been wiser not to put foolish reflections on the war into the mouths of his animals. . . . The black-and-white pictures are clever, and there is a certain liveliness about the stories that makes them readable."

+ — Spec 117:sup608 N 18 '16 160w

"Mr. Paine is a biographer of Mark Twain, and there's a flavor in some of these chapters that reminds one of the older humorist's pleasant satire. . . . While it is ostensibly a juvenile, it is really better adapted to older readers, who will appreciate its quiet humor keenly."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 240w

PAINE, RALPH DELAHAYE. Long road home. il $1.35 (1½c) Scribner 16-6290

This is a tale of virtue rewarded and vice disgraced. Edward Barrington, the young first officer of the wrecked Columbian, is dismissed from the service for the fault of his captain. He ships as mate of a trading schooner, is shipwrecked, picked up by an Italian lumber bark and carried to Montevideo. After various adventures he settles down in his home town of Eppingham, N. H. and revives its shipping interests. His fortunes in this venture are (tho the fact is unknown to him) promoted by Stella Corbin, the principal owner of the Tropical navigation company, who had seen his brave conduct on the Columbian when she went down. The love story of these two is sketched for the future.

+ A L A Bkl 12:431 Je '16

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, Jr.

Bookm 43:540 Jl '16 60w

"Mr. Paine has knowledge of the sea and sea-craft. Rural life on the New England coast, as Mr. Paine seeks to depict it in the middle and later sections of his story is, however, hardly so faithfully or completely presented. . . . Melodrama of this sort never ends unhappily, and the experienced reader has no fears that this instance will prove an exception. The book is entertaining from first to last."

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 27 '16 330w

"His style is simple and vigorous. His descriptions and digressions are often good. As for the substance of the thing, it is deadly familiar."

+ Nation 102:410 Ap 13 '16 210w

"An interesting, well-related tale, with plenty of action, occasional touches of humor, a fine, manly hero, a clear-headed, strong-willed heroine, and some likable minor characters."

+ N Y Times 21:100 Mr 19 '16 400w

"Some of the best chapters in the book deal with Barrington's South American adventures."

+ N Y Tribune p9 Mr 18 '16 270w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 270w

PALMER, FREDERICK. Old blood. $1.40 (1½c) Dodd 16-22259

In the early summer of 1914, Phil Sanford of Longfield, Massachusetts, goes to England to make the acquaintance of his cousins, the Sanfords of Trickleford. The cousinship is many times removed, but ties of blood hold thru many generations. Phil meets also two girl cousins, Helen and Henriette Ribot, one beautiful and one plain, and he is a guest at their mother's chateau in France when the German invaders come. After this experience he enlists with the Allies, is wounded and nursed back to life by one of the sisters and a remarkable doctor from Kansas.

"The pathological side of the war romance is by no means its least absorbing feature."

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 9 '16 330w

Ind 89:30 Ja 1 '17 230w

+ New Repub 9:248 D 30 '16 220w

+ N Y Times 21:502 N 26 '16 60w

+ N Y Times 21:566 D 24 '16 380w

"A gallant and invigorating book, in which our gratitude to the author for his generous sympathy with the cause of the Allies is reinforced by admiration for his skill as a writer and a student of character."

+ Spec 117:773 D 16 '16 390w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p526 N 2 '16 220w

PALMER, JOHN LESLIE. King's men. $1.35 (2c) Putnam 16-11227

The assistant editor of the Saturday Review has put forward in fiction form a plea for national service. Himself a Balliol man, a dramatic critic and novelist, a part of that young England of which he writes, he has shown here the spiritual and mental reactions of individuals in that group to the new and sudden demand for "communal discipline" made by England in the first months of the Great war. In his preface he writes: "The war is not only a military event. It is, so far as the English are concerned, a social revolution"—a social revolution which has entered two out of every three English homes. The reader is taken into those homes. Capitalist employer, politician, publicist, litterateur, sportsman—each meets as an individual the new test of his life. The title "The king's men," is obviously taken from the call to service "Your king and your country need you," the king here standing to the English, as the Athenaeum has said, as "a personal symbol of national unity."

+ A L A Bkl 13:36 O '16

"The book ends on a badly forced note, a disposition which is apparent elsewhere, but that is not a blemish which should dissuade any one from reading a thoroughly sound piece of work."

+ Ath p231 My '16 820w

"The author's chief impulse in it is that of a publicist stirred by patriotism and great events. Yet as he is a novelist he writes in the revealing terms of individual human and emotional experience; and the result is to heighten the meaning of those great events. The delineation of the women whose lives are bound up with those of his chief characters, and whose reaction to the war conditions constitutes a vital part of the story, Mr. Palmer achieves with tenderness and understanding." F. I.

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 31 '16 1700w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:66 Jl 15 '16 500w

Ind 87:32 Jl 3 '16 30w

"Mr. Palmer draws a well defined contrast between the many differences of opinion in England and the absolute solidarity to be found in France."

+ N Y Times 21:239 Je 11 '16 350w

"The distinction of this book lies in its sheer earnestness."

+ R of Rs 54:124 Jl '16 170w

"His characters live, the social pictures are true and various; the struggle between war and peace in the disunion of English individualism is made real with admirable skill. It is a novel to be read with care."

+ Sat R 121:424 Ap 29 '16 600w

Spec 117:135 Jl 29 '16 20w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 8 '16 380w

"It is not calculated to appeal to the lover of sensational fiction. It is rather a series of psychological studies, with a strong infusion of politics, using the term in the Aristotelian sense, without reference to the party game."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p154 Mr 30 '16 600w

PALMER, JOHN MCAULEY. Army of the people. $1 (4c) Putnam 355.7 16-6484

The author's purpose is to show how an effective citizen army could be organized and trained. For the purposes of the book, he assumes that Congress has passed the National defense act and describes, using the present tense, the military system of the country as it will stand a few years later. To make his account more readable, he throws part of the narrative into the form of extracts from the diary of an officer.

"Its intrinsic value and the timeliness of its subject will make it of great interest to both the services and the general public."

+ Army and Navy Journal 53:897 Mr 11 '16 300w

"Except that his book does not go all the way with us in advocating national training, we wish that its principles could be adopted on this side of the water. . . . We regret to find that Mr. Palmer, like many other writers, can not think of compulsory military training apart from conscription. . . . In our opinion he falls between two stools. His plan neither obtains armies big enough for the requirements of modern warfare, nor does it guarantee adherence to the voluntary principle."

PALMER, JOHN MCAULEY—Continued

+ — Ath p227 My '16 750w

"Some of his readers may be a little skeptical with respect to his great expectations; but any one interested in the general problem of preparedness will find it worth while to see how he undertakes to solve the problem."

+ — N Y Times 21:126 Ap 2 '16 280w

R of Rs 53:502 Ap '16 30w

"Major Palmer's plan is a modification of the Swiss system." P. B.

+ St Louis 14:183 My '16 10w

Springfield Republican p19 Ap 7 '16 150w

PAN-AMERICAN ROAD CONGRESS. Proceedings of the Pan-American road congress, held at Oakland, Cal., September 13-17, 1915. il pa $1 Pan-American road congress, Executive com., 150 Nassau st., N. Y. 625.7

Ag16-588

This congress was "held under the joint auspices of the American road builders' association and the American highway association with the cooperation of the Pacific highway association and the Tri-state good roads association." (Title-page) Among the twenty-six papers (mainly followed by discussions) are those on The history and future of highway development, by Logan W. Page; Federal aid in rural districts, by C. L. Mackenzie; Roadway surfaces, by Frank F. Rogers; Convict labor for highway work, by G. P. Coleman.

PARÈS, BERNARD. Day by day with the Russian army, 1914-1915. il *$2.50 Houghton 940.91 War16-33

"The diary of the official British observer with the Russian armies in the field, from the beginning of the war to June 19, 1915." (R of Rs) "Mr. Pares was present during the great successes of the Russians in the early months of the conflict up to the capture of Przemyśl, but he had left before the great retreat began and the German conquest of Warsaw and Poland." (N Y Times)

A L A Bkl 12:421 Je '16

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 7 '16 800w

"Numerous opportunities to discuss the origin of the war with Austrian and German prisoners yield an interesting conflict of popular opinion in those countries, and as a companion to similar works the book is valuable for the political and military student."

+ Ind 86:72 Ap 10 '16 150w

"Worth reading, if merely for an understanding of the amazing signs of humanity and democracy in the army of the most autocratic country in the world."

+ Nation 102:358 Mr 30 '16 220w

"It would be difficult to find a match for Bernard Pares's book in colorless and jejune style. Yet in spite of its mechanical quality, its merciless aridity, unforgettable pictures emerge. . . . It is the little human intimacies that keep you reading Mr. Pares's book. For 'Day by day with the Russian armies' is local, provincial, episodic, rather superficial. There is no grasp of the war as a whole. Literally, Mr. Pares makes no attempt to see beyond the end of his nose. He is not really fair. . . . With his opportunities for observation, what a book he might have written!"

+ — New Repub 7:125 Je 3 '16 900w

N Y Br Lib News 3:26 F '16

"He never ventures on any generalization or bit of vivid writing. He writes in the form of a diary and his book partakes of all the qualities of a diary. From it one can undoubtedly get a good idea of the simple, patient Russian soldiers, who are superbly brave individually and gentle and devoted to their officers, but one does not gather much more. So the book is somewhat disappointing."

+ — N Y Times 21:119 Ap 2 '16 330w

R of Rs 53:502 Ap '16 40w

"We see now how plans went astray because the enemy's power of organization and recovery was underrated. Those who are capable of learning will profit more by such a record as this than by the work of a glib author who imports into his diary the wisdom which comes after the event."

+ Spec 115:792 D 4 '15 1800w

PARET, JAHIAL PARMLY. Lawn tennis lessons for beginners. il *$1.25 (4c) Macmillan 796 16-12252

A brief introduction, which gives a simple outline of the game and the rules for keeping score, provides one who knows nothing of the game with the necessary information. This is followed by a series of tennis lessons, consisting of chapters on: Selecting a racket, clothes, etc.; The grip of the racket; First principles of good form; Errors of beginners in positions and grips; Forehand strokes off the ground; Backhand strokes off the ground, etc. The laws of lawn tennis are given in an appendix.

"More thorough and more logically arranged than Burns but Burns is good and much cheaper. For books treating the finer points of the game see Paret and Bjursted."

+ A L A Bkl 12:465 Jl '16

"J. Parnly Paret has followed his 'Methods and players of modern lawn tennis' by a less technical, very plainly written and clearly illustrated book, 'Lawn tennis for beginners,' its warnings of how not to play will be especially useful."

+ Ind 87:32 Jl 3 '16 40w

+ Nation 102:651 Je 15 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:108 Jl '16

+ N Y Times 21:333 Ag 27 '16 60w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ag 9 '16 140w

"The points he has picked out for emphasis are excellently chosen; for instance, the importance of keeping away from the ball."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p432 S 7 '16 150w

PARKER, GEORGE WILLIAM. Elements of optics for the use of schools and colleges. il *75c Longmans 555 SG16-99

"In Mr. Parker's 'Elements of optics' the subjects of reflection, refraction, mirrors and lenses, simple optical instruments, and dispersion are dealt with in four chapters. The book is intended for beginners, and no further mathematical knowledge is required for its perusal than an acquaintance with elementary geometry, simple algebraic equations, and the trigonometrical ratios. The text consists chiefly in the derivation of the usual formulæ of geometrical optics, the deviation method being employed for mirrors and lenses."—Nature

"The material is well chosen and well illustrated. The practical exercises and questions are very good."

+ Educ R 52:201 S '16 50w

"Many teachers will regard the book as being too sparse and somewhat uninteresting owing to the absence of experimental matter. The inclusion of experiments to verify the laws and results by the aid of simple and inexpensive apparatus, would have enhanced the value of the book considerably."

+ — Nature 96:226 O 28 '15 150w

PARKER, SIR GILBERT. World for sale. il *$1.35 (1c) Harper 16-18027

A gipsy girl, daughter of a Romany "Ry," is the heroine of this story of the Canadian northwest. The hero is Max Ingolby, an empire builder, one of the first men to see the future that lay before the great prairie provinces. He is involved in a railroad consolidation project when he first meets Fleda Druse. He is attracted to her at once, but it is only thru an accident which all but costs him his sight that he learns her worth to him in comparison with the rest of the world. Fleda on her part renounces leadership of her own Romany people to follow the ways of the "Gorgios" with him. A note says that the story was written in 1911 and '12 and published as a serial in 1915 and '16.

"Contains a great deal about the rites and customs of the gypsies. Appeared in Harper's magazine."

A L A Bkl 13:126 D '16

+ Ath p481 O '16 70w

+ Boston Transcript p6 S 27 '16 1550w

+ Cath World 104:263 N '16 150w

+ Ind 88:235 N 6 '16 80w

"The world for sale' deals with the old matter, and feebly echoes the old manner. The whole affair is trumped up, machine-made. . . . It is all movie stuff."

— Nation 103:422 N 2 '16 460w

"Every element of romance is here to make the dreamland complete. After the war, if Sir Gilbert should decide to offer us a new picture of the peace life of the great northwest, neither he nor we will be content with so meaningless, so tritely picturesque a spectacle as this."

— New Repub 9:103 N 25 '16 260w

"Sir Gilbert succeeds triumphantly in his audacious experiment. With skill he has blended the broad splash of Romany coloring with the wheat fields and the pine forests, the lumber mills and the bridges. . . . Although the story has all the graphic quality of a realistic picture of life in an actual region, there is a strong flavor of romance in its manner, romance of a delightfully fresh and dewy quality, as if the book had been written out of doors, that gives it a very great charm."

+ N Y Times 21:361 S 17 '16 1250w

+ Outlook 114:570 N 8 '16 180w

+ Pub W 90:841 S 16 '16 380w

+ Spec 117:632 N 18 '16 30w

+ Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 530w

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p452 S 21 '16 370w

PARKER, LOUIS NAPOLEON. Mavourneen; a comedy in three acts. *$1.25 Dodd 822 16-22397

"If one had to label this play, one might call it a play of anecdotal history. Some of it comes from Pepys's 'Diary'; some from Count Hamilton's 'Memoirs of Grammont'; some from sterner authorities; and the rest is out of my own head." (Author's note) The court of Charles II furnishes the background, and king, queen and courtiers and other distinguished personages, including Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pepys, are among the characters. The heroine is Lady Patricia O'Brien, a gallant young Irish maid who comes to London in boy's attire.

"The play is thoroughly charming both in conception and characterization and fully deserves the popularity so far awarded it."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 23 '16 130w

N Y Br Lib News 3:185 D '16

PARKMAN, FRANCIS. Rivals for America. II *60c Little 973.2 15-21981

"Louise S. Hasbrouck has compiled from the writings of Francis Parkman a number of chapters illustrative of the struggle between France and England for the dominance of the North American continent in the 18th century." (Educ R) "Among the stories related are those dealing with the attack on Deerfield, Braddock's defeat, the services of Robert Rogers, the siege of Fort William Henry, the capture of Louisburg, Abercrombie's attempt to capture Ticonderoga, and the fall of Quebec." (Nation)

Educ R 51:532 My '16 40w

"Clearness, dignity, and wholesome incident abound. The book is well adapted to the end for which it is written, a supplementary reading book for children."

+ Nation 102:sup497 My 4 '16 200w

PARKYN, ERNEST ALBERT. Introduction to the study of prehistoric art. II *$3.25 Longmans 571 16-6304

"The author modestly terms this fully and expensively illustrated volume an introduction to the study of prehistoric art. The illustrations in the text number 318, some of which are in color, and the pagination is 350. The scope of the work lies in a consideration of the phases of art in the three states of mankind's evolution, in the ages of stone, bronze and iron. . . . Mural decoration of caves forms an important section of the book and important discoveries in southwestern France and Spain are described." (Boston Transcript) "Much of the matter which furnishes the subject of this volume appears incidentally in works which treat of the antiquity of man, such as those very recent ones of Osborn, Keith, and Lord Avebury's seventh edition of 'Prehistoric times.'" (Lit D)

+ A L A Bkl 12:370 My '16

"The work will serve as a convenient cylopedia of primitive art for those who have neither time nor opportunity to consult the widely scattered original sources. The book is profusely illustrated and well indexed." J. P. Lichtenberger

+ Ann Am Acad 67:312 S '16 200w

"This is a book that was wanted. The present work is, perhaps, liable to the criticism that it covers too much ground. Was it necessary to merge the proto-historic in the prehistoric, so as to carry down the story to the late 'Keltic period?'"

+ Ath 1915,2:445 D 11 950w

Boston Transcript p11 Ja 1 '16 400w

"His strict account of the remains of the art of an age of which there is no other record but its art leads us from the very dawn of human genius in western Europe to late Keltic times. It is worth reflecting that it is art alone that survived from the darkness of that past."

+ Int Studio 58:74 Mr '16 260w

"A bringing together of the materials which demonstrate the artistic capabilities of prehistoric man has not before been attempted. The area embraced is not so wide as might well have been included—early Babylonia is not represented, nor are the interesting and recently exhumed Hittite products. The western world, however—England . . . Egypt, Alaska, Africa—has been ransacked from the earliest paleolithic period down to late Celtic times and the early 'iron age.' The author has done his work well."

+ Lit D 52:298 F 5 '16 280w

"The literature of these discoveries, for the most part in French and German, is widely scattered in periodicals and ponderous reports, difficult of access to the general reader, and not lightly to be attacked even by the seasoned specialist. There was room, therefore, for a popular account in English of the art-of prehistoric times, such as Mr. Parkyn has attempted to give us."

+ Nation 102:603 Je 1 '16 960w

"Mr. Parkyn has many good qualities, but he has yet to learn how to live among the prehistoric families and how to make real to us the tragedy of their creeping progress. His book is many other books, for every page of it gleams with much care from other writers. . . . Mr. Parkyn puts 318 illustrations in the text and adds to them 16 plates, among which there are two coloured pictures. Here is one of his good ideas. He knows that a book on art should be mainly a book of illustrations. And nothing could be better than his choice of work to represent at first hand the vicissitudes of art and craft from the older stone age to the dawn of written history. In other words, Mr. Parkyn is a very admirable editor. His editing work is a museum of very rare antiquities; and what man of sense will not pass with awe from chapter to chapter, studying the illustrations, and brooding over the tragic patience of primitive mankind."

+ Sat R 120:567 D 11 '15 600w

PARMELEE, MAURICE FARR. Poverty and social progress. diagrs *$1.75 (1c) Macmillan 360 16-11608

"An effective program for the prevention of poverty cannot be devised and carried out until an intensive and accurate analysis of the manifold causes of poverty has been made. . . . It is obviously impossible to make an exhaustive study within the limits of one book. But I have endeavored to give a comprehensive survey of the problems of poverty which shows the one-sided character of many of the explanations of its causation and which will at least furnish the starting point for an effective program of prevention." (Preface) The author treats first of the causes and conditions of poverty, taking into consideration biological factors, the distribution of wealth, unemployment and other economic evils, the growth of population and the regulation of the birth rate, etc. He then considers, first the measures by which poverty may be alleviated, and finally, preventive measures. Poverty can be abolished; will be abolished in a society that is based on democratic and humanitarian ideals. There is a bibliography of twelve pages at the close.

PARMELEE, MAURICE FARR—Continued

"In this book the author undertakes the impossible. . . . In such a study as this two main faults are practically unavoidable. In the first place, the treatment of the various related topics cannot possibly be thorough, however much it may appear so superficially. In the second place the essential relationships, which are, after all, the vital thing and the thing the reader is looking for, are either obscured or absolutely neglected in the enormous mass of detail. . . . Following these extended and rather sweeping criticisms, it should be repeated that there is much of good in the book. . . . The book is well worth reading—one is tempted to say, more worth reading than writing." H: P. Fairchild

— + Am J Soc 22:553 Ja '17 900w

"Designed as a textbook, it has been criticized as dogmatic and not sufficiently exhaustive for reference work."

A L A Bkl 13:201 F '17

"The chapters dealing with social insurance, wage legislation, the labor supply, industrial democracy and political reorganization will be found of particular interest."

+ — Am Pol Sci R 10:757 N '16 70w

"The most satisfactory work attempting to deal with the entire field of poverty, dependency, and philanthropy which has appeared in recent years. . . . Several features differentiate this work from previous works dealing with the same field or closely allied fields. One of these is the fuller consideration of the newer facts of biology and psychology in the treatment of poverty causation. . . . There are several ways in which the excellence of the book might have been improved." J. G. Stevens

+ Ann Am Acad 69:285 Ja '17 420w

Boston Transcript p6 J1 26 '16 570w

"The bibliography is excellent, the index faulty."

+ Cleveland p109 Ag '16 50w

+ Ind 88:32 O 2 '16 120w

"The book is marred throughout by a lack of discrimination and critical examination in the use of much of the statistical material which constitutes a large and important part of the work. . . . As a statement of the various aspects of poverty, the book represents an uncritical epitome of much that is both more completely and more carefully stated elsewhere. Its sole service consists in affirming the now current opinion that a large part of poverty is preventable."

— Nation 103:242 S 7 '16 480w

N Y Br Lib News 3:90 Je '16

N Y Call p14 D 10 '16 50w

"There is hardly a point of the modern humanitarian movement which he does not discuss with recognition that there are two sides to most arguments, and with equal candor on both sides."

+ — N Y Times 21:343 S 3 '16 1700w

+ R of Rs 54:343 S '16 260w

"The book bears the marks of large and wide reading which has not been sufficiently digested. It is loosely knit together and, as far as style and diction are concerned, could be improved by rewriting." Karl de Schweinitz

— Survey 37:71 O 21 '16 170w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p396 Ag 17 '16 70w

PARRISH, GLADYS. Carfrae's comedy. *$1.35 (1c) Putnam 16-26325

George Carfrae is writing a play for Blanche Benwell. Mrs. Benwell has had little stage experience. She gives recitations in drawing rooms. But Carfrae has discovered the secret of her success, her ability to be herself, and in the play he gives her a part which is essentially herself. She is an unusual type for an actress. She lives in a convent and is devoutly religious, and so true to her Roman Catholic beliefs that she looks on herself as married, altho she has been for some years divorced. Carfrae's devotion to her is largely impersonal, as is her feeling for him, but with Julian Eames, a different element is introduced. The story is concerned with the spiritual struggle that ensues when she realizes her love for Eames, and with the changes in herself which lead Carfrae first to alter and finally to rewrite his comedy.

"Though the situation is improbable, there is a good deal of psychological analysis of motives and of character that is quite convincing, and the people are well differentiated."

+ A L A Bkl 12:432 Je '16

"Charm, either of decadence or mysticism, is an elusive thing, not easily carried over the footlights, and it is small wonder that the author fails to make us realize why both men adore the heroine, or why she, on her side, clings with Solveig-like devotion to the worse of them. But the story abounds in movement and interest, and acquires distinction from the subtle touches which reveal a high imaginative quality."

+ — Ath 1915,2:294 O 23 140w

"The story is improbable and impossible, a labored effort at character portrayal which not only fails but distresses."

— Boston Transcript p6 Ag 30 '16 170w

"Improbable as the situation is, it is saved from being merely fantastic by the firmness with which the childlike mystical beauty of the heroine's character is drawn. The men are puppets, the action is forced, but she is alive."

+ — Nation 102:285 Mr 9 '16 390w

"The religious element of the novel is very pronounced. The author shows a strain of inspired common sense in the heroine's confessor, Father Dudley, and in the invalid Mother Superior of the convent which is Mrs. Benwell's home."

+ — N Y Times 21:136 Ap 9 '16 280w

+ Sat R 120:358 O 9 '15 850w

"There is good work in Miss Parrish's novel, and she will write still better when she has gained experience and has rid herself of vagueness."

+ — Spec 115:586 O 30 '15 25w

PARRISH, RANDALL. "Contraband"; a romance of the north Atlantic. il *$1.35 (1c) McClurg 16-21939

After several years spent on land, Robert Hollis joins a yachting party that is to cross the Atlantic. This is in the summer of 1914. Gerald Carrington, who is known as the Copper King, has scented war and has purposes of his own in putting to sea with a party of influential friends. It is a men's party, but, to his surprise, Hollis learns that there is a woman aboard. On the second day out the "Esmeralda" is wrecked and Hollis, with one of the other guests, and this strange girl, escape together in one of the boats. The vessel that picks them up is something of a derelict, an accident having robbed her of captain and officers. Hollis takes command as a measure of necessity and then learns that the ship carries contraband of war and is bound for Hamburg. This is but the beginning of a series of adventures.

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 70w

PARSONS, MRS. ELSIE WORTHINGTON (CLEWS) (JOHN MAIN, pseud.). Social rule; a study of the will to power. *$1 (2c) Putnam 301 17-228

A companion volume to "Social freedom." In that work it was suggested that social classifications are prized as safeguards to habit. In this book the author develops the idea that they are instruments of power. "The classified individual may be held in subjection in ways the unclassified escapes," she points out. "Classification is nine-tenths of subjection. Indeed to rule over another successfully you have only to see to it that he keeps his place—his place as a male, her place as a female, his or her place as a junior, as a subject or servant or social inferior of any kind, as an outcast or exile." As in her other books the author brings a wealth of anthropological data to bear on her thesis.

R of Rs 55:220 F '17 40w

"It is perhaps well that Mrs. Parson's social philosophy hardly gets beyond the statement of an initial impulse."

— Springfield Republican p6 Ja 9 '17 210w

PARSONS, SARA E. Nursing problems and obligations. *$1 (2c) Whitcomb & B. 610.7 16-16225

A book based on talks given to the student nurses of the training school of the Massachusetts general hospital, of which Miss Parsons is superintendent. Part 1, devoted to the ethics of nursing, has chapters on: Ethics; Ethics and the probationary period; Ethics and the student nurse; The student nurse and co-workers. Part 2 consists of Talks to senior nurses, with chapters on: Qualifications for executive work; Specialized nursing; Miscellaneous topics: The activities of the graduate nurse; Molding public opinion; Looking ahead. There is an introduction by Dr. Richard C. Cabot.

St Louis 15:13 Ja '17 10w

"The book is full of practical good sense and breathes the kindly, generous spirit of the writer. . . . Student and graduate alike will find much that is wise and helpful in Miss Parsons' book, and will be grateful to her." T. C. + Survey 37:179 N 18 '16 300w

PATERSON, ISABEL. Shadow riders. *$1.35 (1c) Lane 16-5191

A story by a new Canadian writer. Alberta is the scene and its economic interests, its business developments, and its politics give the story its background. The action occupies the last five years, and events of importance in that time, among them the rejection of the reciprocity treaty, are prominent in the narrative. The conflict of opinion between east and west on that question is well brought out. But these things, altho they form an integral part of the story, are subordinated to the human interests, which involve two girls, one young man, setting out on a business and political career, and two older men. The girls occupy the position of heroine interchangeably and are both of more vital stuff than that from which heroines are usually made.

+ Ath p481 O '16 30w

"One of the finest cisatlantic novels of recent years." Wilson Follett

+ Atlan 118:497 O '16 530w

"Perhaps the author's most signal achievement is the simple, unostentatious way in which she has caught and portrayed the spirit of such a town." F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:320 My '16 630w

+ Boston Transcript p23 J1 5 '16 120w

"An excellent realistic study of varied types of character in the new west. The style is remarkable for vigor and point."

+ Nation 102:545 My 18 '16 600w

"Because it describes with such truth, force and vividness the life and affairs in the home of our next door neighbor and near-relative the story ought to interest readers in the United States. In the conversation one finds so many and varied, but always interesting, expressions of opinion about this country that the book seems to offer a good opportunity to find out what our neighbors think of us. It also reflects some widely disparate opinions about Canada's destiny and the best methods of securing an advantageous future. An interesting feature of the book is the richness of the soil out of which it has sprung—the well-furnished and intelligent mind of the author."

+ — N Y Times 21:90 Mr 12 '16 750w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 270w

PATRICK, GEORGE THOMAS WHITE. Psychology of relaxation. *$1.25 (2c) Houghton 130 16-5637

The author explains his bringing together in one volume of such diverse subjects as play, laughter, profanity, alcohol, and war, by saying that each is a form of relaxation from the tension imposed by the conditions of modern life. Each offers a form of relief to the higher brain centers thru a return to more primitive activities. "Daily or periodic systematic return to primitive forms of activity is sport or play. War is a violent social reversion to elemental and natural inter-tribal relations. Profanity is a resort to primitive forms of vocal expression to relieve a situation which threatens one's well-being. Alcohol is an artificial means of relieving mental tension by the narcotizing of the higher brain centers." (Introd.) Some of the chapters have appeared in somewhat different form in the Popular Science Monthly, the Pedagogical Seminary and the Psychological Review. The author is professor of philosophy in the State university of Iowa.

"He is successful in bringing home to the reader the present absence and need of relaxation, but gives few practical details by which to profit. Good bibliographies."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:450 J1 '16

"An illuminating book and one that is deeply interesting, provocative of thought and full of suggestion." M. P. Allison

+ Bookm 43:208 Ap '16 530w

"The book is full of interest in the bearing which it has upon one of the most vital problems of the world. It is a note which has been often sounded in the ears of the American people, but one which cannot be too often placed before them if the nation is to be saved from its present tendencies."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 5 '16 550w

Cleveland p53 My '16 80w

+ Dial 61:144 S 7 '16 290w

Ind 86:346 My 29 '16 70w

"The reviewer can not help wishing that this volume could be placed in every household in the United States to be read and studied till its lesson were learned. . . . It contains after each chapter an interesting list of works pertinent to the subject."

+ Lit D 52:1711 Je 10 '16 280w

"Thoughtful and readable, and entertaining, if pessimistic."

+ — Nation 103:180 Ag 24 '16 1000w

St Louis 14:130 Mr '16

"Its author, though no doubt a painstaking collector of facts within his reach, has remained untouched by the finer issues of the war, which he sees, not as the clash of good and evil, but as a colossal 'relaxation' and destroyer of material prosperity. . . . There is, however, a certain interest, if a painful one, in being forced to realize how little effect the blood and tears of one part of mankind may have on the regeneration of those who hold themselves mentally aloof from the spirit inspiring the Allies."

— Spec 117:217 Ag 19 '16 150w

"While the book is written in a clean-cut style, characterized by open, simple English, the hypotheses and deductions it presents are at times almost too absurd to be examined seriously."

— Springfield Republican p17 Mr 12 '16 150w

"Full of most illuminating ideas, and backed by a thorough scholarship that gives the ideas an authority as well as their pronounced originality. The subject is one that appeals to all tired and busy people, in other words, to all of us." H. D. Jenkins

+ Survey 36:394 J1 8 '16 420w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p263 Je 1 '16 50w

PATTEN, SIMON NELSON. Culture and war. *60c (5c) Huebsch 172.4 16-16251

A study of the ideals that animate modern Germany. "The element that has made the present world conflict inevitable," the author says, "is not the clash of arms, so much as the clash of ideals." This conflict is strongest between the German and the English ideal, one dynamic, the other static, but it exists too within Germany herself. "German thought," he holds, "is the initial stage of a new evolution of thought and life. . . . Where they have gone on and hence differ from us, they are in the right. Where they are wrong is where they still hold identical views with those prevailing in the Anglo-American world." The point at which these views are identical is in the belief in advance thru struggle; the German calls it Krieg. Professor Patten considers the question of a "moral equivalent of war." "The way out of war is not moral restraint but economic liberation," he says. We need not to find substitutes for the military virtues but to set free those traits which a military state represses.

Cleveland p121 Ag '16 40w
+ R of Rs 54:349 S '16 10w

"Prof. Patten seems to be outlining a metaphysics for a social revolution. With many of his concrete aspirations the reader must sympathize, for he is inspired by brotherly love, but his revolutionary ethics is not clearly thought out."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ag 6 '16 200w

"Dr. Patten is a vigorous, original, thought-provoking, modern American thinker. No German would say just the things that Dr. Patten, with his British and American inheritance, says; but any German of the wiser sort might wish that he had." E. T. D.

+ Survey 37:439 Ja 13 '17 500w

PATTERSON, CHARLEY THOMAN. Twenty lessons on poultry keeping; ed. by Frank E. Hering. il *50c Lippincott 636.5 16-6338

A series of lessons prepared under the auspices of the American poultry association and intended for use in classes in elementary schools. The subject is fully covered; the book is well illustrated; and each chapter is followed by questions and suggestions for home work. An appendix gives a glossary of technical terms and at the close there are suggestions for clubs and contests.

N Y Br Lib News 3:47 Mr '16

PATTERSON, HAROLD WALLACE. Small boat building. (Outing handbooks) il *70c (2½c) Outing pub. 623.8 16-10141

A book for the amateur boat builder. "The idea is, not to describe the building of any one boat, but to treat the various parts separately, explaining methods of construction and giving suggestions for their application," says the author. There are chapters on: Tools, Woods, Fastenings, Laying down, The backbone, Setting up, Framing, Planking, Deck framing and decks. There are ten plates, supplying the working drawings, and numerous illustrations in the text.

+ A L A Bkl 13:206 F '17

"Written expressly for the amateur by a veteran boat-builder, it is terse, clear, and profusely illustrated with diagrams."

+ Ind 87:32 J1 3 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:94 Je '16

PATTERSON, JOHN HENRY. With the Zionists in Gallipoli. il *$2 (3c) Doran 940.91 16-13380

A narrative written with the object of interesting the Hebrew nation in the fortunes of the Zionists and of showing them of what their Russian brothers are capable, even under the command of an alien in race and religion. It is the story of the famous Zion mule corps and its service in Gallipoli. This corps was the first Jewish military unit formed in 2,000 years and was composed of Russian born refugees from Palestine. Colonel Patterson commanded the corps and writes this account of the campaign as he saw it, its policy and the operations of war in execution of that policy.

+ A L A Bkl 13:76 N '16

+ Boston Transcript p6 J1 12 '16 430w

+ Cath World 104:396 D '16 260w

"Appeared in a briefer form in the Forum."

+ Cleveland p121 Ag '16 50w

+ Ind 87:422 S 18 '16 190w

Lit D 53:312 Ag 5 '16 220w

"Unquestionably, his volume gains in interest from the general commentary he has to make on the conduct and organization of the Gallipoli expedition as a whole."

+ Nation 103:402 O 26 '16 160w

Reviewed by Harold Stearns

+ New Repub 9:sup24 N 18 '16 330w

"The human outcroppings here and there in a field of measureless inhumanity are the things that appeal to him, and he keeps his mental ease and his sense of humor—which is apt to become a bit grisly—through it all."

+ N Y Times 21:247 Je 18 '16 850w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 60w

"A tired reviewer sits up in his chair and reads on and on; there is electricity in each page, and fearless criticism provokes as much thought as the intrepid courage. Veteran soldiers have a right to be critics of military affairs; and when Colonel Patterson finds fault with any person or with anything, his phrases bite. They cannot be forgotten. And the motive-power behind them is the conviction that criticism cannot be too direct, because the lives of thousands are imperilled daily in the firing lines."

+ Sat R 121:563 Je 10 '16 1550w

+ Spec 116:722 Je 10 '16 400w

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 10 '16 700w

"Colonel Patterson, the author of this book, is a man of infinite adventures and experiences. He has, so to speak, explained himself in the introduction, though to most people and to nearly all hunters of big game there could have been little need of an explanation, for is not 'The man eaters of Tsavo' known to all, or if not it ought to be?"

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p206 My 4 '16 700w

PATTERSON, JOSEPH MEDILL. Note book of a neutral. *50c (5c) Duffield 327.73 16-2125

That, even if Germany loses, the German idea will win is one of the contentions of the author. His little book is an exemplification of his belief; for it is a policy of America über alles that he preaches. Any national act that has not the selfish interest of America as its end is unjustifiable. Now is the time to use the supplying of munitions as a means of forcing an alliance with England that will protect us against Germany and Japan. President Roosevelt showed more vision than any president since Lincoln—with his act in wresting the Canal Zone from Colombia cited as an instance. And, as tho it needed emphasis, Stephen Decatur's "Our country, may she always be in the right; but our country right or wrong" is repeated at the head of each chapter. The book is made up of articles reprinted from the Chicago Tribune.

+ Ind 86:550 Je 26 '16 230w

"His point of view is amiably and frankly cynical and material. If a nation thinks aggression, wrongdoing, and bullying will benefit it, he sees no reason why it should refrain."

+ N Y Times 21:58 F 20 '16 290w

R of Rs 53:380 Mr '16 20w

St Louis 14:179 My '16 20w

"It is Mr. Patterson's hard-headedness which, while it must revolt many people, gives the book whatever value it has."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ja 24 '16 600w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

PATTON, CARL SAFFORD. Sources of the synoptic Gospels. (Univ. of Michigan studies. Humanistic ser.) *$1.30 Macmillan 226 15-19244

"This volume is an intelligent examination, in the light of previous studies, of all the probable sources of the first three gospels, though it pays more attention to Mark and Q than to the material in Luke which is not assigned to these sources. . . . Following along the lines mapped out by Wernle in his essay on the synoptic problem published in 1899, Dr. Patton elaborates a theory of two Aramaic recensions of Q which were translated into Greek and then used by Matthew and Luke respectively, the order of the original Aramaic Q being even now discernible in Luke."—Nation

+ — Am J Theol 20:309 Ap '16 210w
+ — Ind 85:62 Ja 10 '16 70w

"The discussion is so ordered that the gist of the argument may be readily grasped by those whose knowledge of Greek is scanty. It is a happy circumstance that this meritorious essay proceeds from the pen, not of a professor, but of a working pastor."

+ — Nation 102:sup500 My 4 '16 290w

PATTON, WALTER MELVILLE. Israel's account of the beginnings. *$1 Pilgrim press 222 16-6124

"Students of the Bible who seek a work giving in condensed form the results of modern scholarship's examination of the early chapters of Genesis will find it in this work by Prof. Walter M. Patton of Carleton college. The book is planned as the first of a series, which when completed will cover Biblical history to the year 79 A. D. . . . Prof. Patton begins his story with a brief survey of Hebrew history and geography and takes up the first eleven chapters of Genesis in a paraphrase of the familiar version prepared with reference to the original Hebrew."—Springfield Republican

"Presents in a popular and very convincing way the interpretation of the early narratives of Genesis as generally held by modern scholars, with particular prominence given to the views of Gunkel. . . . The book is rather sketchy and takes too much for granted to be altogether intelligible to undergraduates. . . . Although the book is a popular presentation of the matter under discussion and is not intended to be technical, it ought at least to be in line with the latest developments of scholarship. In the notes and elsewhere there are a number of inaccuracies in this respect." T. J. Meek
+ — Am J Theol 21:125 Ja '17 500w

"It is doubtful, however, whether anybody but the author would find it a practicable textbook. The book lacks in unity of aim. . . . It buries most of its valuable information in inaccessible footnotes, printed in a type that is almost invisible. Of the fifty book-titles to which frequent reference is made nearly half are in German or French, hence practically out of the average student's reach. . . . Being so good a book from the point of view of scholarship, it is to be regretted that its pedagogy is not of an equally high character."

+ — Bib World 48:375 D '16 160w
+ — Ind 87:351 S 4 '16 50w
+ — Nation 102:sup500 My 4 '16 70w
N Y Br Lib News 3:93 Je '16

"Scholarly commentary frequently interrupts the narrative—which is partly separated into the documents recognized by modern scholarship—and copious explanatory and critical notes add to the comprehensiveness of the study."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 N 5 '16 170w

PAYNE, GEORGE HENRY. Child in human progress; with a foreword by A. Jacobi. il *$2.50 (3c) Putnam 392 16-4864

The position of women has sometimes been said to be the measure of a tribe's or a nation's progress. The author of this book believes that the attitude toward children better serves the purpose. In many cases, as among the Greeks, where women were well treated, infanticide was common. The present has been called the century of the child, and the author has prepared this book, the first of its kind, in the belief that a background of historical fact will be of value in the solution of present problems concerning child welfare. He says it was the fact that until 1874 there was no organized movement to defend the rights of children that led him to investigate the conditions that had existed before that time. The larger part of the book is given to primitive tribes and the ancient nations. The modern factory system is given two chapters and present day activities in the interest of children are merely touched on. There are numerous illustrations, a bibliography and an index.

A L A Bkl 12:406 Je '16
Ath p277 Je '16 40w

"The extent of his work is evidenced by the range of his bibliography, which covers the history of civilization in all parts of the world. The book offers a firm foundation for further study of the subject." D. L. M.

+ — Boston Transcript p24 Mr 8 '16 850w
+ — Educ R 52:207 S '16 80w
+ — Ind 86:29 Ap 3 '16 70w

"Mr. Payne is identified with research into the origin of the child-protective movement. Much of the book is technical, serious, and revolting, but the information it contains is invaluable. Every word has a definite bearing on the proper understanding of the subject and its hopeful modern outlook."

+ — Lit D 52:915 Ap 1 '16 270w
+ — N Y Times 21:59 F 20 '16 1200w
+ — R of Rs 54:344 S '16 60w
+ — Springfield Republican p19 Mr 16 '16 480w

"It gives to the student of child welfare a historical perspective which no other book has given."

+ — Survey 36:208 My 20 '16 230w

"Hardly likely to prove itself a standard work. It is largely devoted to the ancient world, not reaching the period of the end of the Roman empire until the nineteenth out of twenty-three chapters; though modern conditions are touched on in the chapters dealing with China, Japan, and India. The middle ages and more recent times are in consequence scamped, especially as chapter 23 is devoted to America and the American society for the prevention of cruelty to children."

— + — The Times [London] Lit Sup p288 Je 15 '16 160w

PEABODY, JOSEPHINE PRESTON (MRS. LIONEL SIMEON MARKS). Harvest moon. *$1.25 Houghton 811 16-23423

This book, dedicated to the women of Europe, is made up of poems on war. They were written between 1914 and 1916 and voice woman's protest against the desecration of life, the cost of which only she can know.

"Some of them have appeared in Scribner's magazine, Poetry Review, Woman's Journal, Boston Transcript, New York Evening Post."

A L A Bkl 13:212 F '17

"Besides other distinctions, this new collection of Mrs. Marks' poems has the distinction, as far as I know, of being the first rounded utterance of a woman's heart on the European war. . . . The great forces that have been at work upon her sympathies are forces that demand absolutely all that one has to give; there is no withholding of any element for one's personal mood." W. S. B.

+ — Boston Transcript p5 N 22 '16 1450w
Lit D 54:25 Ja 6 '17 380w

"She sings here against war and often her singing is vigorous and direct. But more often she is tangled up in a sentimental attitude that expresses itself in vague and hackneyed poetisms, instead of fresh creative expression. . . . Woman's attitude toward war is not yet a decided nor an effective thing. This book is an attempt to express it. As such, it is worthy of praise."

+ — N Y Call p15 D 24 '16 220w

PEABODY, JOSEPHINE PRESTON—Continued
 "The poems of children are unsurpassed among those of modern poets. The deep responsibility of both physical and spiritual motherhood—woman's debt to child and to mankind is expressed in exquisite music."
 + R of Rs 54:674 D '16 80w

PEACOCKE, ISABEL MAUD. My friend Phil.
 il $1.25 (2c) Rand 15-23061

Phil is a little boy of six and this is the story of his friendship with several grown people. Two of them, a young man and woman, make Phil's acquaintance in the waiting room of a dentist's office where the little boy is awaiting the ordeal of having a tooth pulled. Interest in Phil leads to acquaintance with one another and a pretty romance follows. There is another and minor love story which also has its beginning in the dentist's office. A serious accident from which it is feared for a critical time that Phil will not recover is the deciding factor in both of these affairs.

"The mind of a child is no open book that any one can read. For a very few it opens wide. In this class the author undoubtedly finds herself. But having read, it is another thing entirely to tell what she has seen. The author writes about it passably, but the tools of her craft are clumsy in her hands."
 + Boston Transcript p6 J1 12 '16 140w

"A zest is given to the narrative—which needs none—by its unusual setting of Sydney in New South Wales. The 'local color' is, however, incidental, never insistent, only a slightly sketched background to the character. These are altogether English, barring small divergencies of speech."
 + N Y Times 21:236 Je 4 '16 300w

"Phil is a delightful child, but about the writing of this book there is no especial brilliancy."
 + Spec 116:196 F 5 '16 24w

+ Springfield Republican p13 J1 2 '16 200w

PEAKE, ARTHUR SAMUEL, and others. Germany in the nineteenth century; second series. (Pub. of Univ. of Manchester. Historical ser.) $1.25 Longmans 914.3 (or 943 with first volume) 15-15784

The first series published in 1912 contained lectures on politics, economics and education. "The success of the volume, both in England and Germany, led the university to prepare a second series to cover in part that of the vast field of German endeavor in the nineteenth century upon which the first volume had not touched. Dr. Bosanquet contributed a study of nineteenth century philosophy, Professor Peake of the German theologians of the period, and Mr. Ferruccio Bonavia the musicians." (N Y Times)

"It is scarcely to be expected that a book of this kind will do more than put into semi-popular form a description of a development already known to scholars in the respective fields. Professor Peake confines himself largely to the significance of Schleiermacher and of Ritschl, as is entirely proper. The exposition gives a fair-minded view of the main characteristics of these great theologians. The controversy which centered in Strauss's interpretation of the gospel narratives is also covered, and a few pages are devoted to the progress of biblical scholarship. The lecture is clearly written and furnishes a good brief survey of the outstanding contributions of German thought." G. B. S.
 + Am J Theol 20:154 Ja '16 180w

"Scholarly lectures published in England before the war, which had been given with the belief that appreciations by British scholars of the part played by Germany in the development of modern civilisation might serve to promote more friendly feeling between the two nations." Other phases of German civilization are taken up in the first series. First and second series also published in one volume at two dollars net."
 + A L A Bkl 12:234 F '16

"One result of the year 1914 will, at all events, be this: we shall no longer have the exaggerations of the intellectual place of Germany in Europe which have been common both in England and in America, and of which this well-meant series of lectures is a high-class specimen. For here the 'German' race gets the credit for all that has been accomplished in three great departments of human learning, without allowance for the large non-German influences which have affected its music, and the ineffectual character of its subtle speculations in theology and philosophy."

 + Ath 1915,1:183 F 27 900w

"It is surprising that Dr. Peake has not made more of Ritschl's indebtedness to Lotze in the matter of 'judgments of value' and of his kinship with certain modern modes of thought, whether known as pragmatism, Bergsonism, or what not."
 + Nation 101:362 S 16 '15 230w

"Apart from the fact of their immense informative and literary value they stand as an interesting historical document. They show what a group of British scholars 'thought, and in essentials still think, was a just tribute to pay to the activities of the German nation.'"
 + N Y Times 20:404 O 24 '15 200w

"Mr. F. Bonavia attempts with some success the desperate task of analysing in a score of pages the most prolific period of musical production in the world's history."
 + Spec 114:308 F 27 '15 110w

PEARL, RAYMOND. Modes of research in genetics. $1.25 (3c) Macmillan 575.1 16-685

Genetics is the name given to that branch of biology that has to do with the experimental study of evolution and heredity. Professor Pearl, biologist of the Maine agricultural experiment station, has been for some time engaged in researches along these lines. This book is made up of a collection of papers that have either been read before societies or published in scientific journals. Contents: A critical examination of current modes of research in genetics; Biometric ideas and methods in biology, their significances and limitations; On the nature of statistical knowledge; Certain logical and mathematical aspects of the problem of inbreeding; Genetics and breeding.

"This book has a distinct message not only for general biologists, biometricians (the followers of Galton and Pearson), but for students of statistical method, whether economists, sociologists, or professional statisticians." W. M. Adriance
 + Am Econ R 6:439 Je '16 800w

+ Dial 61:108 Ag 15 '16 110w

+ Ind 86:342 My 29 '16 220w

"Although the veteran will read it with profit, the book will prove especially useful to the beginning investigator, inasmuch as it will aid materially in orienting him in the technique of his subject. . . . The second and third chapters together afford a concise and understandable summing up of the content, limitations, and real utility of biometry in genetics." M. F. Guyer

+ J Philos 13:748 D 21 '16 380w

"The methods of research are briefly and clearly outlined, biometrics receiving the most attention. One chapter, however, on inbreeding is so technical that a higher candle-power might well have been used to light it."
 + Nation 102:sup504 My 4 '16 120w

+ Nature 97:399 J1 13 '16 300w

N Y Br Lib News 3:26 F '16 30w

"There has been need enough for such a clear-cut analysis of the possibilities and limitations of the various methods now being utilized by workers in the expanding field of genetics and the author has performed this service most acceptably. For any one engaged, or even interested, in genetic research Dr. Pearl's book will prove a most welcome and illuminating volume." H. E. Walter
 + Science n s 43:501 Ap 7 '16 270w

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 15 '16 230w

PEARL, RAYMOND, and others. Diseases of poultry; their etiology, diagnosis, treatment and prevention. il $2 Macmillan 636.5

16-633

"The diseases of poultry,' by R. Pearl, F. M. Surface and M. R. Curtis, biologists of the Maine agricultural station, is an illustrated scientific study based upon experimental work in poultry raising."—Ind

Cleveland p24 Mr '16 20w

Ind 85:356 Mr 6 '16 30w

"Mention should be made of the very clear and concise exposition of poultry hygiene that is given in the second chapter. Were the instructions detailed therein to be carried out universally there is no doubt that nine-tenths of the losses now experienced among poultry would be saved. The short account on materia medica for the poultryman is simple, sound, and eminently practical." F.

+ Nature 97:339 Je 22 '16 280w

"Among the unusual features of the work are the discussion of hygiene and sanitation, the tables for aiding in the diagnosis of disease, the thorough analysis of the literature of the subject. It is worthy of note that nearly all the diseases mentioned have been observed by the authors directly in their biological work."

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 11 '16 300w

"This book deals with the subject exhaustively, and in a way that will meet with approval, for, while curative treatment receives proper attention, the primary importance of preventive measures is duly emphasized. It is in regard to this point that this book is chiefly valuable."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p214 My 4 '16 170w

PEARSON, WILLIAM WINSTANLEY. Shantiniketan. il $1.50 (9c) Macmillan 891.4

16-23417

Mr. Pearson describes his visit to Shantiniketan, the school for boys established at Bolpur by Rabindranath Tagore. The ideals on which this school was founded are summed up in the poet's words as "simplicity of life, clarity of spiritual vision, purity of heart, harmony with the universe, and consciousness of the infinite personality in all creation." Mr. Pearson also presents a translation of a story, "The gift to the Guru," written for the boys of the school by Satish Chandra Roy, one of the teachers.

+ Nation 104:109 Ja 25 '17 80w

R of Rs 55:214 F '17 50w

PEASE, EDWARD REYNOLDS. History of the Fabian society. il $1.75 Dutton 335

16-23553

"This may be regarded as an 'authoritative' history of the society during the thirty years of its career, as Mr. Pease has been its secretary for twenty-five years, and the volume has been revised by Mr. Sidney Webb and Mr. Bernard Shaw (who contributes some 'Memoranda' in an appendix)."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

+ A L A Bkl 13:150 Ja '17

"There is plenty of personal interest in the recital, though the official position of Mr. Pease and his impartiality tend to sober down the more exciting episodes; but the facts are there, and the causes of controversy clearly analysed. The portraits are interesting."

+ Ath p235 My '16 90w

"Absorbingly interesting record." G: Middleton

+ Bookm 44:534 Ja '17 1650w

"Next in importance to the publication of the 'Fabian essays' in the story of the society comes the episode of Mr. Wells." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 3 '17 1050w

"An appendix gives a complete list of Fabian publications, 1884-1915."

+ Cleveland p149 D '16 20w

"The most important internal quarrel, to which an entire chapter is devoted, was the attempt of Mr. H. G. Wells to reorganize and enlarge the society and to revise its creed to include the state support of children."

+ Ind 88:163 O 23 '16 430w

"I myself left the society in 1904, but I was one of the four members (Shaw, Webb, Oliver, and myself) who had most to do with building it up, and I have kept in touch with it since my resignation. . . . Now that I read this history, with its calmly accurate record of names and dates and tracts and manifestoes, I find myself wondering whether events will prove that there was a sufficient reason for my dissatisfaction." Graham Wallas

+ New Repub 7:203 Je 24 '16 1450w

N Y Br Lib News 3:173 N '16 20w

"Socialist readers of Mr. Pease's admirable book will read with especial interest the strictures upon Marxian economics, alike from the pen of the author and Bernard Shaw. The manner in which the Fabians anticipated Bernstein and the German 'Revisionists' is an interesting part of a most valuable work." J: Spargo

+ N Y Call p14 D 24 '16 2050w

+ N Y Times 21:526 N 26 '16 700w

+ Springfield Republican p10 O 19 '16 1200w

"The personalities who have been associated with the society, its growth from the deliberations of a little knot of enthusiasts to a position of considerable influence as the representative body of a certain phase of intellectual socialism, give the book an interest outside the immediate circle of Fabians."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p227 My 11 '16 100w

"It is much easier to agree with Mr. Sidney Webb in a general way, or to feel that you have outgrown him, than to have his knowledge. The early Fabians knew this. They concentrated upon their own peculiar work; and that was how they produced their effect. Mr. Pease shows how great that effect has been not only upon general opinion but on actual legislation."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p260 Je 1 '16 1400w

PEATTIE, ELIA (WILKINSON) (MRS. ROBERT BURNS PEATTIE). Sarah Brewster's relatives. il $1 (3c) Houghton 16-19456

Sarah Brewster, a little girl of thirteen, comes to the small town of Lac du Laiche in Wisconsin to make her home with an unknown uncle and his family. Sarah, who has always had the assistance of a maid, finds it hard to adapt herself to the merry ways of a household where girls are expected to do things for themselves. She finds public school life a change too, for she has studied only with private tutors. But she fits in gradually and the time comes when she is able to repay her uncle for the place he has made for her in his home. A break-down from over-work sends him off on an enforced vacation and Sarah steps into a place in his newspaper office.

"A thoroughly satisfactory girl's book and a beautiful study of courage and loyalty and true democracy." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:408 D '16 40w

+ Dial 61:547 D 14 '16 30w

"This little story for the betwixt-and-between age is direct in the telling, it is filled with fortitude and just enough romance to satisfy the young reader."

+ Lit D 53:1566 D 9 '16 170w

+ N Y Times 21:566 D 24 '16 300w

"A more natural and pleasing story than the majority of this season's books for girls."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 80w

PEEL, DOROTHY C. (BAYLIFF) (MRS. CHARLES S. PEEL). A Mrs. Jones. $1.25 (1½c) Lane 16-19070

"I never thought I should be a Mrs. Jones," says the heroine of this story on the eve of her marriage. "It's such an unromantic name. Imagine trying to write a novel about a Mrs. Jones!" But this is what the author has done, she has written the life of Dot Quenby, who becomes "a Mrs. Jones," from childhood to maturity. Dot marries at nineteen, but finds that her quite admirable husband and her perfectly satisfactory little daughter do not wholly satisfy her desire for life. Poverty for a time forces her to earn her living and at forty, after her daughter is married, she experiences the first real love of her life, but loyalty to her husband proves the stronger of the two forces that contend for mastery.

PEEL, DOROTHY C.—Continued

"The heroine's circle seems to us to contain a larger selection of streaky morals than is usually available in decent society. Mrs. Peel has somewhat overcrowded her scheme with characters, but she hits off well childish ways and society fads."

- + Sat R 122:205 Ag 26 '16 170w
- + Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 180w
- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p368 Ag 3 '16 700w

PEIXOTTO, ERNEST CLIFFORD. Our Hispanic Southwest. il $2.50 (6c) Scribner 917.8 16-21142

Points of historic and pictorial interest in southwestern United States are described in this new book by Mr. Peixotto who, as in "Romantic California" and other books, appears as both author and artist. He says, "It is with the thrill of a discoverer that one comes for the first time upon such a great church of the desert as San Xavier del Bac or beholds the old Spanish-Mexican towns of the Rio Grande valley. . . . To point out these Spanish remains in our own Southwest, and hint at the thrilling stories of their foundation, is the reason for this book." Contents: The charm of New Orleans; The old Texan capital; The historic background; Along the Mexican border; Through Arizona; The pueblos near Albuquerque; The city of the holy faith; Northward to Taos; The return to Santa Fé.

- + A L A Bkl 13:110 D '16

"The book is filled with interesting and curious incidents. It contains a good historical summary of the region." R. M.

- + Boston Transcript p6 N 4 '16 780w
- + Cath World 104:535 Ja '17 260w
- Cleveland p157 D '16 60w

"Mr. Ernest Peixotto's work, both as author and as artist, is too well known and too favorably known to need commendation."

- + Dial 61:473 N 30 '16 190w
- + Ind 88:408 D 4 '16 110w
- + Lit D 53:1554 D 9 '16 100w

"A book made precious by his own sympathetic and delicate drawings."

- + N Y Times 21:512 N 26 '16 110w
- R of Rs 54:680 D '16 130w

"A volume not to be overlooked when critics report upon the cream of 1916 literature."

- + Springfield Republican p14 D 9 '16 520w

PELLETT, FRANK C. Productive bee-keeping: modern methods of production and marketing of honey. (Lippincott's farm manuals) il $1.50 Lippincott 638 16-6112

"The writer not only gives full practical details about managing bees and honey, for beginners and experienced apiarists, but has kept in mind the person interested from the nature-study side. More popular than Phillips but sound, and conservative in the matter of profits. Chapters on law for the beekeeper and bee diseases, and abundant illustrations."—A L A Bkl

"Good, comprehensive, readable book."

- + A L A Bkl 12:461 Jl '16
- N Y Br Lib News 3:47 Mr '16

"Author is state apiarist of Iowa."

- Quar List New Tech Bks Ja '17 40w

PENNELL, ELIZABETH (ROBINS) (MRS. JOSEPH PENNELL) (N. N., pseud.). Nights. il $3 (5c) Lippincott 16-9573

"If I wrote the story of my days during these last thirty years, it would be the story of hard work," says Mrs. Pennell. But the story she writes here is of nights, and nights were devoted to play. The play, she confesses, may appear to many a mild form of mild amusement "for it usually consisted in nothing more riotous than meeting my friends and talking with them." So this book, with its four papers on Rome and Venice in the "aesthetic eighties," and London and Paris in the "fighting nineties" is a book of talk. In the London chapter for instance, there is talk with Henley, with Stevenson's cousin "Bob," with Henry Harland, Aubrey Beardsley, Phil May and many another who figured prominently in that period which Mrs. Pennell characterizes as "a period of revolt against decadence, of insurrection, of vigorous warfare." The illustrations are from portraits and from etchings and drawings by Joseph Pennell.

- + A L A Bkl 12:425 Je '16

"Of such lifelike material as this is Mrs. Pennell's book made, and it is material too that is of more than transitory interest. It is the stuff out of which will be woven the history of literary and artistic movements during the last years of the nineteenth century." E. F. E.

- + Boston Transcript p4 Ap 5 '16 1500w
- + Cath World 103:555 Jl '16 500w

"Something to be unreservedly thankful for." P. F. Bicknell

- + Dial 60:417 Ap 27 '16 1350w

"Her pages brim over with the sense of youth, —enthusiastic, intolerant, tragically, absurdly in earnest, childishly gay hearted, omnipotent youth."

- + Ind 87:28 Jl 3 '16 220w
- + Lit D 52:1854 Je 24 '16 380w

"She is more successful in suggesting the general climate that a person creates than in hitting off the betraying particularities of walk and conversations. An excellent case in point is the extended and delightful appreciation of Henry Harland, one of the choice things in the book. The pages devoted to Aubrey Beardsley are equally good. Of its sort the book is delightful, and it is very just."

- + Nation 102:598 Je 1 '16 300w

"She has not sought her 'copy'; she has lived it."

- + N Y Times 21:306 Ag 6 '16 880w

"Not William Dean Howells himself is more devoted to the truth than is Mrs. Pennell in this book."

- + No Am 204:466 S '16 850w

"The most interesting volume of travel and reminiscence to appear this spring. A million leagues away it seems now, with Europe, Europe everywhere and not a bit to enjoy. And yet how it all comes back to us in her more than welcome pages. Such friends and such evenings!" Robert Lynd

- + Pub W 89:1329 Ap 15 '16 580w
- + R of Rs 54:347 S '16 190w

"The difficulty is to sympathize with her in the later chapters. . . . The change from intense enjoyment of her own youth to disparagement of the youth of others is really surprising."

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p486 O 12 '16 970w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:227 My '16 70w

PENNELL, JOSEPH. Joseph Pennell's pictures of the wonder of work. il $2 Lippincott 741 16-19662

Fifty-two reproductions of drawings, etchings and lithographs, made in many parts of the world in the years between 1881 and 1915, with impressions and notes by the artist. "Work to-day is the greatest thing in the world," he says, "and the artist who best records it will be best remembered." He has recorded it as he has seen it in America, both east and west, and in England, Germany, Belgium, Italy, and France. Blast furnaces, smelters, coal breakers, skyscrapers in construction, ore docks and grain elevators are his subjects. The introduction to the book is founded on a lecture delivered before the Royal society of arts, London, and an article published in the Studio.

- A L A Bkl 13:110 D '16
- + Cath World 104:399 D '16 250w
- + Dial 61:477 N 30 '16 280w
- + Ind 88:411 D 4 '16 150w

"Many visions that enthused the artist, however, will hardly appeal to outsiders even though sufficiently sophisticated as to avoid 'pretty bits' and the too picturesque. . . . Actual colour, not the mere suggestion of it, is the only salvation in most of the fifty and more plates produced."

- + Int Studio 60:95 Ja '17 320w
- + Lit D 53:1554 D 9 '16 130w
- + Nature 98:385 Ja 18 '17 370w

"Mr. Pennell's shrewd and whimsical comments on the subjects of his drawings add to their value."

- + N Y Times 21:515 N 26 '16 90w
- + Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 320w

"Mr. Pennell is making us aware of their beauty as they are, and for that we are grateful; only he must not make us content with it."

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p510 O 26 '16 950w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:452 D '16 60w

PEOPLE, EDWARD HENRY. Auto-biography; a tale of truth—and Ruth. il *$1 (6½c) Moffat 15-27967

The automobile that tells his own story in this little book was born in Detroit. His first journey in the world took him to New York, where he was placed in the window of a hundred and eighty million dollar sales room on upper Broadway for all the world to admire. Many possible purchasers looked him over and considered his points, but it was Billy and Ruth who bought him as a companion for their honeymoon. He fell in love with Ruth and took a liking to Billy—but the things Billy didn't know about a motor car! All these things are related in the auto-biography in a way to delight the owners of other cars.

"It is not given to 'the general' to put a soul into things inanimate after the fashion of 'The little tin soldier' and '007.' But, if Mr. Peple falls short of this, at least he makes his story a vehicle for much automobilia, and for a pretty tripartite love affair besides."

- + N Y Times 21:34 Ja 30 '16 100w

"To owners of cars the outspoken objections and bits of advice given by the car will undoubtedly prove amusing, and perhaps of value for the hints on managing seeming contrariness."

- + Springfield Republican p17 D 18 '15 180w

PEPYS, SAMUEL. Pepys on the restoration stage; ed. with an introd. by Helen McAfee. il *$3 Yale univ. press 792 16-22360

Miss McAfee has selected from Pepys' 'Diary' all the passages relating to the theater and the drama. These have been classified and arranged in three parts, relating to plays, to actors, playwrights and audiences, and to theaters and stage production. Annotations "in the light of recent researches as well as seventeenth-century sources" are provided. The introduction which precedes this arrangement of material is given to a consideration of: The critics and Pepys's material on the stage; Pepys as a dramatic historian; Pepys and the restoration theater. There is a bibliography of ten pages and an index.

- + Ath p591 D '16 40w
- Boston Transcript p8 N 25 '16 1150w
- Springfield Republican p8 D 7 '16 1000w

"Students of the drama of 1660 to 1669—that very interesting period—will henceforth be much indebted to Miss McAfee, who has analyzed all the theatrical matter in the diary, arranged it alphabetically under subject-headings, annotated it, written a sound and informative introduction; in fact, made it easy for anyone to find out at a moment's notice what Pepys had to say on this point or on that."

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p605 D 14 '16 2000w

PEPYS, SAMUEL, Jr., pseud. Diary of the great warr. il *$1.50 (2c) Lane 827 17-3043

A record of events between July 1914 and December 31, 1915, ingeniously set forth in the style of the original Pepys. The spirit of the parody is carried out in the illustrations by M. Watson Williams. The diary has been appearing in London in the weekly numbers of Truth.

"An ingenious skit, at first amusing, but after a while becoming wearisome. . . . The clever illustrations uncompromisingly depict personages and scenes of our own time."

- + Ath p477 O '16 70w

"The angle of vision of the original is very cleverly imitated; and the junior Pepys has caught the knack of the elder's pretty egotisms, his delight in irresponsible gossip, his little naughtinesses, his little moralizings."

- + Boston Transcript p9 N 4 '16 240w
- + Boston Transcript p8 D 20 '16 460w
- + N Y Times 21:575 D 31 '16 200w
- + Pittsburgh 22:36 Ja '17 50w
- + R of Rs 54:684 D '16 120w
- + Sat R 122:253 S 9 '16 1350w

"It is in the spirit of his narrative that his chief success has been achieved."

- + Spec 117:511 O 28 '16 1100w
- + Springfield Republican p6 D 1 '16 350w
- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p423 S 7 '16 680w

PERCY, WILLIAM ALEXANDER. Sappho in Levkas, and other poems. *$1 Yale univ. press 811 15-24830

Poems reprinted from Ainslee's magazine, The International, McClure's magazine, The Yale Review and others. Mr. Percy uses classical themes. The three longest poems in the volume are that one which gives it its title, "St. Francis to the birds," and "Girgenti." There is also a group of sonnets.

- + A L A Bkl 12:374 My '16

"There is indisputable poetry in this volume, poetry of a vivid, intense, yet restrained beauty. Three long poems are of chief interest, and a number of short poems are in quiet and reflective moods. We must judge Mr. Percy by his longer poems, for in these he has revived a quality of passion in contemporary verse that has had little attention of late. . . . Without in any sense wishing to make comparison in a definite manner, one cannot help suggesting that Mr. Percy's sentiment and mood is very much akin to Keats's. His work gives one the impression that poetry exists for itself with him, a creative process that should result in something beautiful and magical. He is the kind of true dreamer who looks beyond the object into its heart." W: S. Braithwaite

- + Boston Transcript p7 Ja 22 '16 1800w

"I have not seen for some time a re-study of a well-worn classical theme like this of the passion of Sappho for Phaoon, showing so much fresh poetic charm. . . . I cannot think the metrical form of the poem to be as good as it deserves." R. M. Alden

- + Dial 61:61 Jl 15 '16 380w

"His work is so devoid of feeling, that when he seeks to paint voluptuousness sympathetically, the poem 'burns froze,' in the pungent Miltonic phrase, and in 'St. Francis to the birds,' where the aim is tenderness, he can compass nothing but coldness and sparkle. This sparkle is Mr. Percy's distinction; it resides in diction merely, but it affords me the pleasure I might feel in passing through my fingers handfuls of fragments of porphyry and jade and onyx and lapis-lazuli." O. W. Firkins

- + Nation 102:566 My 25 '16 290w

PERINE, EDWARD TEN BROECK. Story of the trust companies. il *$2 (4c) Putnam 332.1 16-24947

The author dates the beginning of trust companies in the United States from the organization in 1822 of the Farmers' fire insurance and loan company, now the Farmers' loan and trust company of New York. His aim in this has been "to sketch the beginnings and advances of the older companies, and to bring the individual narratives of a number of the largest institutions down to 1916." (Foreword)

"This book is written for the layman who likes to read of big achievements; it is the biography of a great American institution, told with the charm of an entertaining story."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 3 '17 170w

+ R of Rs 55:221 F '17 30w

"Many quaint and interesting illustrations are included in the book."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 18 '17 450w

PERITZ, ISMAR JOHN. Old Testament history, maps *$1.50 (1½c) Abingdon press 220.9 15-27712

This book is one of a series of Bible study texts. The Bible itself has been taken as the main source and the chronological order followed is that established by modern criticism. The three parts of the book are devoted in turn to: The formative period: from the beginnings to the death of Solomon, 933 B. C.; The period of the prophets: from the division of the kingdom, 933 B. C., to the restoration under Cyrus, 538 B. C.; The period of the priests and scribes: from Cyrus, 538 B. C., to Herod, 4 A. D. Throughout the whole treatment Old Testament history is looked on as "a divine revelation preparatory to and culminating in the person and teachings of Jesus Christ." (Preface) The book is provided with maps and a bibliography but is not indexed.

+ Am J Theol 20:463 JI '16 120w

"The point of view and method of the volume are frankly in sympathy with the principles of modern historical Bible-study. Yet the author is cautious and conservative in the presentation of his conclusions. The work seems well within the range of the average college student's time and ability and ought to carry his interest along as he works his way through the subject. It might be better were the attitude of the author a little more consistent throughout. Certain difficulties are faced with refreshing frankness; others, however, are glossed over or ignored. But perhaps the college student must go slowly in such matters. In any case, this book will teach him much that he needs to know."

+ Bib World 47:51 Ja '16 240w

"A practical book that was much needed in biblical study."

+ Ind 85:205 F 7 '16 60w

"Critically broad and sound, and in perfect sympathy with the higher ideals of the Old Testament, Dr. Peritz has produced a book which is both learned and readable."

+ Nation 103:243 S 7 '16 120w

R of Rs 53:250 F '16 40w

"One of the chief merits of the book is its clearness. It is carefully planned and written attractively. If anyone wishes to have an authoritative and reverent view of Old Testament history, this book may profitably be read. It is significant, too, that Dr. Peritz has made use of the Apocrypha."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 23 '16 150w

PERKINS, LUCY FITCH (MRS. DWIGHT HEALD PERKINS). Cave twins. il *$1 (5c) Houghton 16-21403

For this story the author has gone back to prehistoric times. The twins are Firetop and Firefly, brother and sister, who live in a cave. The pictures are no less delightful than those of the other "twin" books.

PERRY, BLISS. Fishing with a worm. *50c (1½c) Houghton 799 16-5891

A reprint of an essay that appeared in the Atlantic Monthly for May, 1904. It is a spirited, but genial, defense of worm-fishing as opposed to the more scientific fly-fishing. The philosophy of fishing with a worm is pragmatic, it is "a philosophy of results, of having something in your basket when the day's work is done."

+ Ind 85:429 Mr 20 '16 30w

"A most charming bit of literature."

+ N Y Times 21:278 JI 9 '16 70w

+ Outlook 112:617 Mr 15 '16 620w

PERRY, CLARENCE ARTHUR. Educational extension. il 25c (1c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-2203

A report on the extension activities of the Cleveland public schools by the associate director of the department of recreation of the Russell Sage foundation. A new development is imminent in Cleveland. A division of school extension has been established and a supervisor of community centers appointed. The author shows in this little book how these new departments in education are adapted to meet the needs of society. The book is illustrated and provided with tables and charts.

Cleveland p8 F '16 80w

+ El School J 16:341 Mr '16 300w

"Its facts and plans serve equally well Cleveland's new division of school extension and the citizen anywhere who seeks the meaning and justification of community education responsibilities."

+ Ind 86:28 Ap 3 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:95 Je '16

Pittsburgh 21:111 Mr '16

PERRY, LAWRENCE. Fullback. (Fair play ser.) 2 il *$1.25 (2c) Scribner 16-22054

Two problems in school athletics are touched on in this story. One is that of the special inducements held out by some colleges to students of athletic promise, the other is the question of professionalism. Putting aside the enticing offer made by one college, Tom Kerry of Alledale high school, decides to work his way thru "Haledon," one of the big eastern universities. His career at Haledon fulfills all the predictions of his friends, but at one time it comes dangerously near ruin by the charge of professionalism, Tom once having pitched a half-game without pay in one of the minor leagues.

PERRY, LORINDA. Millinery as a trade for women. *$1.50 (4½c) Longmans 331.4 16-16266

This is the fifth volume published in the series of Studies in economic relations of women, prepared by the Women's educational and industrial union of Boston. The report has been prepared more directly under the supervision of Susan Myra Kingsbury of the Educational and industrial union and Marion Parris Smith, associate professor of economics at Bryn Mawr college and was submitted as a doctor's thesis in the Department of economics of Bryn Mawr. It is based on investigations conducted in Boston in 1910, and in Philadelphia, 1911-13. An introductory chapter gives a survey of the field of investigation and there are other chapters on: Description of the millinery trade and of its processes; Classification of shops according to stages of industrial evolution; The seasons and their problems; Wages; Millinery workers; Ways of learning millinery: The apprenticeship system; School training for milliners in Boston, (by Elizabeth Riedell).

Cleveland p115 Ag '16

N Y Br Lib News 3:173 N '16

N Y Call p14 D 10 '16 10w

Pratt p25 Ja '17

The Times [London] Lit Sup p502 O 19 '16 40w

PERRY, MONTANYE. Blossomy Cottage. il
*50c Abingdon press 16-6645

"A short happy story of a settlement worker forced into the country for his health, and finding opportunity there for the same kind of work under the name of rural betterment, is told in 'Blossomy Cottage.' The family began it, especially the sister who took the district school and developed it. How they found Blossomy Cottage in the wilderness, and how they made their way into the hearts of all the people, are told here simply but effectively."—Springfield Republican

"A sweetly wholesome little story which records their friendly experiences, culminating in the happiest possible way: a story which gratefully leads the reader for a little space, out of a war-stricken world, through quiet garden closes, where grow the herbs of healing and the fragrant posies our grandmothers loved and tended."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 300w

"It is good to be out in the country with such people."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 2 '16 140w

PERRY, RALPH BARTON. Free man and the soldier. *$1.40 (3c) Scribner 16-17208

A series of essays dealing with two great questions to which the present international crisis has given rise: How shall one be secure and yet peaceful? and How shall we act in concert and yet remain free individuals? In the matter of national preparedness the author does not feel that there need be any antagonism between a military system and liberty, since, as he believes, a military system that is freely adopted by a people will be a natural expression of the characteristics of that people. A democratic people will formulate a democratic type of military service. The essays, reprinted from the New Republic, the Atlantic Monthly and other magazines are: The free man and the soldier; The vigil of arms; The tolerant nation; Impressions of a Plattsburg recruit; The fact of war and the hope of peace; What is worth fighting for? Non-resistance and the present war; Who is responsible? The university and the individual; Education for freedom; The useless virtues; The condescending man and the obstructive woman.

+ — A L A Bk! 13:202 F '17

"There is a refreshing absence of 'America first' in his advocacy of the whole proposal. But what makes one doubtful of Professor Perry's universalism is his handy assumption that nations have a unity like that of individuals." Graham Aldis

+ — Dial 61:584 D 28 '16 790w

"In vision and clarity, the work is at times reminiscent of William James."

+ Ind 88:166 O 23 '16 60w

"In the essay on 'The fact of war and the hope of peace,' he points out with admirable force the fallacies of both the extreme pacifist and the extreme militarist. . . . The thesis of the entire book is really summed up in the first sentence of the preface: 'The sort of truth that is in most danger of getting itself neglected is the whole truth.'"

+ Nation 104:47 Ja 11 '17 550w

"One seeks in vain in Mr. Perry's book for two essential points. First a demonstration that it is not Mr. Perry's own inexperience in the ways of foreign policy and European states that causes the German act to look so monstrous. Second, a demonstration that Mr. Perry has considered the army and navy establishment in relation to geography and the rest. . . . It is as a philosopher, however, that Mr. Perry is most to be criticized. He can best be criticized in his own words. . . . It is a courageous and loyal book, but it is marred by short-range practicality."

+ — New Repub 8:146 S 9 '16 1680w

"One would have to look far for a wiser defense of liberal education than his 'Education for freedom,' while the distinction which he establishes in 'The useless virtues' between 'long-range and short-range practicality' is really illuminating."

+ No Am 204:633 O '16 570w

+ Outlook 114:250 O 4 '16 1700w

"Prof. Perry argues with skill and subtlety, but he does not seem to dwell upon the practical need of universal training in a country like the United States."

+ — Springfield Republican p6 S 4 '16 700w

PERUGINI, MARK E. Art of ballet. il *$2.50
Lippincott 793 (Eng ed 16-4396)

"Not so much a history of the ballet as a presentation of some of the leading phases of modern ballet in France and England. Includes 100 pages on 'the first era,' from Egypt to the court ballets of Louis XIV; as many more on 'the second era'; chapters on 'the modern era' of the 19th century, with a final one on 'the Russians and—the future.'"—Pittsburgh

+ A L A Bk! 13:71 N '16

"The preparation of this book has involved the marshalling of a vast array of facts and dates, the delving into and comparison of some three hundred or more ancient and modern volumes on dancing and on theatrical and operatic history, the study of scores of old newspaper files and long-forgotten theatrical 'repositories' and souvenirs. The book has a full and useful index of names and things."

+ Nation 102:335 Mr 23 '16 530w

Pittsburgh 21:283 Je '16 60w

+ — Spec 115:671 N 13 '15 230w

PETERS, MADISON CLINTON. Seven secrets of success, and other talks on making good.
*75c (4c) McBride 174 16-22618

The seven secrets as enumerated in the first chapter are: Do your best; Be determined to succeed; Your opportunity your chance; Have an all-controlling purpose; Work to win; Don't stand still; Cultivate a pleasing personality. Other chapter headings carry out the idea and consider other secrets to the same end: Find out where your talents lie; Specialize your work; Take hold of life with a purpose; Odd moments—success opportunities, etc.

+ Dial 61:545 D 14 '16 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:188 D '16

St Louis 15:6 Ja '17

PHELPS, EDITH M., comp. Debaters' manual.
2 (Debaters' handbook ser.) *$1.25 (1c) Wilson,
H. W. 898.5 16-23142

Changes in this second edition consist of the addition of references to the bibliographies and a revision of the list of debating organizations, bringing it down to date. The main body of the book remains as in the original edition.

PHELPS, EDITH M., comp. Selected articles
2 on government ownership of railroads. (Debaters' handbook ser.) *$1.25 (1c) Wilson,
H. W. 385 17-3491

This third edition of the debaters' handbook on government ownership of railroads has been thoroughly revised and printed from new type. The editor says, "While some of the material included in the first and second editions has been retained, many of the articles and references are new, having been obtained from more recent sources. The brief and the introduction have been largely rewritten to meet present conditions."

PHELPS, EDITH M., comp. Selected articles on the American merchant marine. *$1.25
(1c) Wilson, H. W. 387 16-23038

A volume in the Debaters' handbook series dealing with a question which was brought prominently before the country by President Wilson's message to Congress in December, 1914, and which has held public interest during the debates in Congress that have followed. The handbook is designed for the use of students, debaters and others wishing to make a study of the question. "It attempts to set forth the facts in regard to the history of our merchant marine and its present status with regard to the shipping of other nations. The arguments for and against government ownership and control are also presented." (Explanatory note) The volume is made up of brief, bibliography, and selected reprints.

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

PHELPS, EDITH M., comp.—Continued

Pittsburgh 21:590 D '16

PHELPS, EDITH M., comp. Selected articles on the Monroe doctrine. 2d and enl ed (Debaters' handbook ser.) *$1.25 (1c) Wilson, H. W. 327.7 16-8708

Continued demand for reference material on the subject of this handbook has made necessary a new edition within one year after first publication. "The bibliography has been enlarged to admit references not only to the recent literature on the Monroe doctrine, but also to many articles on Pan-Americanism, a subject with which discussion of the doctrine tends to become more and more closely allied. The best of these articles have been reprinted for this edition." (Explanatory note for 2d ed.) This new matter adds about 80 pages to the volume.

A L A Bkl 12:494 JI '16

"Here is a really admirable little handbook. Published primarily for debaters, its appeal is much wider."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 23 '16 220w

+ Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 30w

Wis Lib Bull 12:451 D '16 20w

PHELPS, EDITH M., comp. Selected articles on woman suffrage. 3d and rev ed (Debaters' handbook ser.) *$1.25 (1c) Wilson, H. W. 324.3 16-10753

More than 100 pages of new material have been added to this handbook on woman suffrage. A new bibliography of ten pages has also been added and the suffrage map has been revised to show the political status of women in the United States at the end of 1915. The bibliography and reprints of the second edition, 1912, stand unchanged.

A L A Bkl 12:494 JI '16

"Probably the most useful single volume there is for suffrage workers."

+ Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 40w

Wis Lib Bull 12:451 D '16 30w

"The Woman Voter is often asked to recommend literature which contains suffrage propaganda in a nutshell. 'Woman suffrage' seems to us one of the most practical and complete handbooks on the subject that has appeared."

+ Woman Voter p26 JI '16 100w

PHELPS, WILLIAM LYON. Advance of the English novel. *$1.50 (2½c) Dodd 823

16-18587

A connected study of the development of the English novel from the days of Queen Anne to the present, from Defoe and Richardson to Mrs. Wharton, Wells and Galsworthy. An introductory chapter discusses the Present state of the novel. The chapters that follow take up: The age of Anne—Defoe and Richardson; Fielding, Smollett, Sterne; Eighteenth century romances; The mid-Victorians; Romantic revival, 1894-1904; Meredith and Hardy; Conrad, Galsworthy and others; Twentieth century British novelists; Twentieth century American novelists; Henry James. The chapter on Henry James is reprinted from the Yale Review; those preceding it were published as a series in the Bookman. Professor Phelps's manner is more or less personal; he does not hesitate to obtrude his own personal preferences, consequently his book is not a mere dry historical survey.

+ A L A Bkl 13:113 D '16

"Mr. Phelps shows the liveliness and the taking way of the journalist, and we congratulate him on the adroitness of his appeal to the general reader; but he does not exhibit any judgment. He should have dated the later revival of romance from Blackmore, not Stevenson, and he should not have omitted Glissing in an account of the modern novel of life."

+ — Ath p478 O '16 370w

+ Boston Transcript p7 S 27 '16 1350w

"It is criticism in accord with true moral standards."

+ Cath World 104:248 N '16 450w

"Not a book of lasting literary criticism but rather one which entices to reading of the authors treated and is in itself pleasant to read aloud."

+ Cleveland p128 N '16 80w

"When it is said that Professor Phelps is an unusually successful popularizer, all has been said. A college lower classman or the jaded lay reader will find this volume genuinely stimulating; the judicious must grieve, however, at its slapdash definitions, its airy ipse dixits, and its naïve assumption that chronology in fiction or anything else is synonymous with advance."

Dial 62:72 Ja 25 '17 230w

"It is doubtless because the book lacks a critical ballast, which might have been supplied by a few valid distinctions of this sort, that it impresses us rather as a collection of amusing and often suggestive chats about certain novels and novelists, chiefly of our own day, than as a serious contribution to the history of the novel."

+ — Nation 103:352 O 12 '16 1150w

+ N Y Times 21:379 S 24 '16 2500w

"A feature of the book is its discussion of modern novelists and its incidental comparisons of the established classics with modern favorites."

+ No Am 204:764 N '16 480w

+ Outlook 114:520 N 1 '16 630w

Pittsburgh 21:480 N '16 40w

"The book is good Prof. Phelps, but a very sketchy account of the 'advance' of the English novel. It is full of jests and 'topical' allusions, but it does anything but trace the novel systematically from the age of Anne to to-day. Yet Prof. Phelps says a good deal that is worth saying, even if his generalizations sometimes fall short of the weight of true critical dicta."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 S 24 '16 1650w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p515 O 26 '16 320w

PHILLIPPS, LISLE MARCH. Form and colour. *$2.25 Scribner 709 16-26324

"The author maintains that form has dominated art wherever the intellectual faculty was dominant in life; color, wherever the emotional faculty was predominate. He attempts to show how all the great color schools, such as the Byzantine, the splendor of the stained glass of Gothic interiors, and the richness of Venetian painting have been derived directly from eastern sources of influence. In the same way he explains how all the triumphs of form are strictly of western origin. Divided into three parts: The East, The classical epoch, and Christian Europe."—Pittsburgh

"A book suggestive to the thoughtful reader, but one which will not always convince him."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:370 My '16

"His book is well planned, his style clear and vigorously pointed for purposes of argument or exposition. His knowledge of art and of the world is wide, and free from the specialism which prevents co-ordination. A writer so well equipped trenches a false position and makes it really formidable against attack. We commend his work to the thoughtful reader none the less for our failure to subscribe to its main proposition."

+ — Ath 1915:2:371 N 20 2350w

"But for its great suggestiveness, its power to promote thought, and to give us a desirable consciousness of the dual principles that are always seen to be opposed in art, we regard this as a book of altogether exceptional importance."

+ — Int Studio 57:293 F '16 500w

"The subject is fascinating, and Mr. Phillips, through his knowledge and sympathetic insight, handles it with breadth and sureness as well as with charm. . . . A sane and balanced judgment, full knowledge, and an understanding of the other man's point of view, were needed for the adequate treatment of this theme; and all this the author has brought to his task."

+ Journal of American Institute of Architects 4:303 Jl '16 1450w

Pittsburgh 21:117 Mr '16 80w

PHILLIPS, HENRY ALBERT. Universal plot catalog; introd. by Homer Croy. (Author's hand-book ser.) $1.20 Stanhope-Dodge pub. 808.3 16-23427

"Mr. Phillips brings together in classified form a good number of items suitable for use as plot material, and introduces this material with instructive remarks on the best way to handle it in plot-construction. Not to seven or eleven or any other definite number does he reduce all the variations of the major plots; . . . on the contrary, he asserts that 'it would take many large tomes' to hold merely a list of all the plots that have ever been used, while the number of 'good, complete plots that are possible through combinations of plot material' he believes to be incalculable."—Dial

"A careful index with cross references is appended to the table of plot material, and an illustrative example of the skilful use of such material is given. If the story-teller, unlike the poet, is made and not born, here is the book that will help to the making of him."

+ Dial 60:390 Ap 13 '16 170w

Ind 86:185 My 1 '16 50w

PHILLIPS, WALTER ALISON. Poland. (Home univ. lib.) *50c (1c) Holt 943.8 16-12564

With the crushing of the last Polish insurrection in 1864, says the author, a change began in the Polish attitude toward Russia and the west. To understand the Polish situation today, one must know intimately the events of the half century that has followed that date. "To contribute to such an understanding is the object of this little book." Polish sympathies in the present war are, and rightly the author holds, on the side of Russia and the Allies, for from that source only can come freedom from the German oppression which they have found more bitter than even Russian cruelty.

"A history of the Polish question, rather than of Poland. The five chapters dealing with the period of Polish independence (down to 1795) are disappointing. They are marred by a surprising number of errors, particularly with regard to dates; and they seem to the reviewer to contain more than one fundamentally false conception, and to rest on a quite too superficial and hasty investigation of the subject. The 'Congress kingdom' and the insurrections of 1830 and 1863 are satisfactorily treated; as well, perhaps, as has yet been done in English (within the given limits of space). Doubtless the most valuable part of the book, however, is that dealing with the fortunes of the Poles under their three masters since 1863 and with the evolution of Polish political parties and political thought just before the outbreak of the war."

R. H. L.

+ Am Hist R 22:198 O '16 230w

+ A L A Bkl 13:27 O '16

"Covers a wide and little understood history within brief and compact limits. The final chapter of the book, treating of the attitude of the Polish people, states in simple but vigorous phrase the Polish question on the answer to which, the author says, depends the fate of Europe."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '16 300w

+ Ind 88:74 O 9 '16 200w

"Brings order out of a complex record."

+ Nation 103:89 Jl 27 '16 30w

N Y Times 21:214 My 21 '16 230w

R of Rs 54:348 S '16 90w

"A timely contribution by a writer of considerable reputation, who is now professor of history in the University of Dublin. . . . Little space is given to the anti-Semitic movement of recent years in Poland, so disastrous to Polish solidarity. But the political importance of the Ukrainophil movement is correctly emphasized. Specially commendable is the excellent bibliography of Polish history since 1863."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Je 26 '16 400w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:270 Je '16 50w

PHILLIPSON, COLEMAN. International law and the great war; with introd. by Sir John Macdonell. *$6 Dutton 341

(Eng ed 15-24262)

"The first problem the author considers is why Great Britain was forced to go to war. . . . He prints in full Germany's ultimatum to Belgium, the latter's heroic reply and her appeal to England; and then shows that England's honor and self-preservation compelled her to go to war. . . . Some very interesting chapters are given to learn how war has been declared in the past and how it should be declared under the Hague rules. . . . This brings the author back to the German doctrine of belligerent necessity, and the official German war manual. Four chapters are needed for the discussion of methods of warfare. . . . Military occupation, and the wounded and prisoners of war require two chapters. Then three exceedingly interesting chapters discuss the relations between belligerents and neutrals. A chapter is given to maritime capture, and one is given to mines. The last chapter reviews the field traversed, and forecasts the future of international law."—Boston Transcript

"Will be of use when the war ends as giving a history of the abuse of international law codes during the last two years."

+ A L A Bkl 13:150 Ja '17

"On the whole his work is rather disappointing. It shows great industry and is in some parts full of valuable information; but hardly any of the numerous problems the present war has produced are satisfactorily dealt with. The author is not always correct in his assertions, and he is sometimes uncritical. After the statement of the existing rules of international law follows a compilation of facts gathered from the reports of the committee appointed by the Belgian government and from newspapers, mainly The Times. It is here that the work is very useful, for the reader will find collected under appropriate headings most of the incidents that have hitherto arisen, and a discussion of the many violations of international law of which the Belgian reports and our newspapers accuse the Germans. The excellent introduction to the work by Sir John Macdonell (pp. xvii-xiv) is full of most valuable views."

— + Ath 1915,2:238 N 6 680w

"When the day comes to reconstruct international law this volume will be of great service. In the meanwhile it will be appreciated for its marshalling of facts and the light it throws upon the legal aspects of the war."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 2 '16 1050w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 Jl '16

+ N Y Times 21:388 O 1 '16 430w

+ Sat R 120:401 O 23 '15 1200w

"For a long time to come the maintenance of friendly relations between neutrals and belligerents seems likely to depend largely upon the temper and self-control of the respective secretaries of state. On these and similar matters 'International law and the great war' will be found full of interest."

+ Spec 115:305 S 4 '15 2050w

PHILLIPSON, COLEMAN. Termination of war and treaties of peace. *$7 Dutton 341.2 17-283

"Mr. Coleman Phillipson has written a useful book on the way in which wars come to an end, and on the treaties of peace which follow them. His work, which has two good indices, a list of judicial cases referred to in the text, a list of the works and documents drawn upon, and also appendices containing the texts of all important treaties signed since the treaty of Paris in 1815, will prove a mine from which diplomatists and statesmen may draw facts and precedents. As Mr. Phillipson explains in his preface, the object of his book is to consider, first, the methods of terminating wars without recourse to treaties of peace, either by cessation of hostilities or by conquest and subjugation, and next, the normal way of ending wars by the concluding of a treaty of peace. Further, the part played by neutral states in bringing the hostile parties together is described.—Spec

PHILLIPSON, COLEMAN—Continued

"The binding force of treaties and the means of insuring their performance get ample discussion, and there are also several chapters on the effect of the cession of territory."

+ N Y Times 21:573 D 31 '16 1650w

"The book is one which by its nature is one rather for reference than for general reading; but those who have time to study the work in detail will find much food for thought."

+ Spec 117:511 O 28 '16 190w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p479 O 5 '16 80w

"This collection, it should be said in conclusion, will not dispense with the use of such treatises as Koch's 'Traité de paix.' But it has the great merit of collecting, collating, classifying, and arranging in accessible form information scattered through many volumes."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p507 O 26 '16 1300w

PHILLIPOTS, EDEN. Green alleys; a comedy. *$1.50 (1½c) Macmillan 16-17414

A story of the hop fields of Kent. Like "Brunel's tower" and "Old Delabole" the story takes its character from the type of industry on which it is based. "The green alleys" is a quietly-moving tale in which the development of the action, even tho it concerns the love of two men, brothers, for one woman, is as steady and sure as the progress of the seasons. At the end the war breaks in on the peace of the little agricultural community, taking the men away from their fields, but in the last chapters there are glimpses of the same fields in another season, the processes of growth continuing as before under the care of the women.

+ A L A Bkl 13:126 D '16

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:258 N '16 630w

"His latest novel is a representative example of him at his best, of his skill as a literary creator, and of his ability as an interpreter of life. It joins man with the soil whence he sprang and by which he lives. Now that Thomas Hardy is writing novels no more, it is no question that we have in Mr. Phillipots his legitimate successor." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 13 '16 1150w

"Though the book is appropriate only for readers of mature judgment, its tone is wholesome and elevated and closely human."

+ Cath World 104:264 N '16 380w

"Comparison with Mr. Hardy is inevitable, for like Mr. Hardy he makes Nature a vital force in his story. . . . The descriptions have a rare fidelity and beauty that are not often found. . . . One is surprised, therefore, that possessing all these excellencies the book does not leave a deeper impression. But so it is,—charming, readable, incisive in character-drawing and yet unimpressive. There is no flash, no livening spark. And part of its failure seems to be due to the modern lack—the want of a plot."

+ Dial 61:398 N '16 '16 430w

+ Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 200w

+ Lit D 53:1479 D 2 '16 200w

"There is a haunting quality in this prose which we may match, perhaps, in passages by the late John Muir—hardly elsewhere in the literature of our own generation."

+ Nation 103:466 N '16 '16 400w

+ New Repub 8:306 O 21 '16 900w

"What the novel lacks in centred interest it makes amends for in the strongly individualized characters."

+ N Y Times 21:363 S 17 '16 570w

+ Outlook 114:569 N 8 '16 480w

"In his later and ampler books the mood is changed as well as the theme. In 'The green alleys' his pages are brightened with unstinted sunshine and abundant optimism." Philip Tillinghast

+ Pub W 90:1414 O 21 '16 380w

+ Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 420w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p464 S 28 '16 360w

PHILLIPOTS, EDEN. Human boy and the war. *$1.25 (2c) Macmillan 16-14090

In 1900 Mr. Phillipotts published a volume of school boy stories called "The human boy." This book of later stories, about different boys, but just as human, reflects the effect which the war is having on the world outside of school. There are thirteen stories each by a different narrator and each representing a different attitude, but all equally amusing—from that stupid grown-up point of view which the human boy finds so hard to understand. Young Abbott in one of the stories supposes that older people must get a certain amount of feeble excitement out of life, yet it appears to him that their amusements are rather weird. This book will prove a source of that sort of amusement.

+ A L A Bkl 13:36 O '16

"Mr. Phillipotts writes of peculiar boys—perhaps they are human in preference to being boy-like—in a peculiar school. There may be such institutions, but we have not met them, and we suspect that the average youth, even at a private school, is far more practical and less silly than most of Mr. Phillipotts's young friends, who seem to be cast in an unusual mould."

—Ath p288 Je '16 60w

"Delightfully humorous revelations of the boy state of mind. . . . Out of it all we get an odd sense of something stable and permanent—an England which can never be risked at the front, which is bound to keep springing from the ancient stalk, however often it may be lopped off at the ends." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:622 Ag '16 300w

"Whether or not we care for books about the war, we shall certainly care for this book in which we hear from a far distance the faint echoes of the conflict." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 1350w

"One of the most refreshing books of the year."

+ Ind 87:315 Ag 28 '16 150w

"It is always the schoolboy who is speaking through a schoolboy; nobody has more deliciously hit off the ingenuous conventionality of adolescence in the act of serious composition."

+ Nation 103:221 S 7 '16 600w

"There is a singular sort of maturity about it, that special kind of maturity belonging to boys, mixed with an immaturity and inexperience natural and expected. It is the appreciation of this oldness of youth that makes the book so wonderful."

+ N Y Times 21:245 Je 18 '16 1200w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 30w

"Whatever verdict may be passed upon his book by schoolboys, it is full of refreshment and entertainment for middle-aged readers."

+ Spec 116:785 Je 24 '16 1100w

+ Springfield Republican p13 S 24 '16 250w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p296 Je 22 '16 430w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 40w

PICCOLI, RAFFAELLO, ed. Book of Italy; under the auspices of Her Majesty Queen Elena of Italy; with an introd. by Viscount Bryce. il *$2.50 Stokes (Eng ed A16-1130)

"How English men and English women have loved Italy; how much England has owed to Italy! These are the convictions left by a study of this book, which is published to help the Italian soldiers' and sailors' families in the United Kingdom and the Italian Red cross. Dr. Piccoli has been successful in getting together a various collection of good things in verse and prose, essay, story, and letter, with a large number of pictures by well-known artists, British and Italian."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"We find it, therefore, insufficient in continuity, and we could wish that the editors had taken the one or the other line thoroughly—preferably the descriptive line, with systematic historical and topographical sketches from which the average English reader might have learnt a great deal."

+ — Ath p485 O '16 130w
+ Int Studio 60:104 D '16 180w
+ New Repub 9:195 D '16 '16 50w
+ Sat R 121:471 My 13 '16 1400w

"No volume of the kind that we remember to have seen contains a more varied and interesting set of essays, sketches, and poems, and the illustrations are exceptionally good. Those who buy it to help a good cause will have value for their money."

+ Spec 117:sup397 O 7 '16 720w
"The book of Italy" is alive with a purpose and a spirit. Lovers of Italy will thrill to it, and it will win new lovers for Italy."
+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p200 Ap 27 '16 550w

PICKARD, ANDREW EZRA. Rural education. il
2 $*1 (1c) Webb pub. 379.17 15-15453

The aim of this book has been to present a complete course of study for modern rural schools. The need of the modern school is, as the author states it, "a redirected course of study in which a broader and better country life is the ultimate aim." The author has been superintendent of the Cokato, Minnesota, associated schools, an association of twelve rural districts with a central high school, and his book is largely an outline and exposition of this form of school organization. The chapters of the book are grouped under the general headings: Proper environment, Academic work, Industrial work, Country life.

PICKTHALL, MARJORIE LOWRY CHRISTIE.
2 Lamp of poor souls, and other poems. il
*$1.25 Lane 811 16-23420

This volume includes all the poems that appeared in "The drift of pinions," published in 1913, together with a number of new poems. Some of the latter are reprinted from Scribner's magazine and the University magazine of Montreal.

"Fulfilled the expectations aroused by the publication of her 'Mary Shepherdess' in Scribner's magazine for last December. The book's lovely music and nobly romantic imagery have endeared it to all who are sensitive to such appeals."

+ N Y Times 21:509 N 26 '16 40w

PICKTHALL, MARMADUKE WILLIAM. House of war. $*1.25 (2c) Duffield 16-8692

Turkey in Asia Minor is the scene of the misguided missionary endeavor which this story chronicles. Elsie Wilding, who comes out from Tunbridge Wells to visit the two aunts who conduct a school for native girls, approves of their efforts as little as she does of those of the other English missionaries. The gentle aunts are passing on the graceful accomplishments they had learned in their own youth in a select school for young ladies. The missionaries are expending their energies on such irrelevancies as medical dispensaries. None of them are going to the heart of the matter, saving souls. This Elsie, with the enthusiasm of a novice, resolves to do. The oriental diplomacy of her maid, Jemileh, saves her for a time from disaster, but it comes at last, involving Muslims and native Christians in a massacre. Again it is Jemileh who saves the situation for Elsie and brings about the successful termination of a halting love affair.

"Mr. Pickthall knows—as do few Occidentals—the conflicting characteristics, the mysterious subtleties of the 'Near East.' The characters throughout are well drawn. But it is the Orientals whose personalities are the most convincing." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 20 '16 500w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale
+ — Dial 61:96 Ag 15 '16 670w

"The one fine thing in the book is the presentation of the dignity and worth of the real Mohammedan and his fine qualities. There is much ignorance in regard to the Young Turk. This story, carefully read, might inspire better understanding, sympathy, and tolerance."

+ — Lit D 53:75 Jl 8 '16 180w
+ New Repub 8:277 O 14 '16 310w

"Written with full knowledge of and sympathy with these eastern people, with keen and delightfully humorous delineation of the oriental character, it is a pity that the story is not only halting in movement but lacking in color. It has none of the reach or the grasp of Pierre Loti's stories of Turkey. But then neither has it their intention. It is a humorous tale for summer reading."

+ — N Y Times 21:210 My 21 '16 580w
+ Springfield Republican p13 O 22 '16 220w

"All these people are described with sympathy and without exaggeration."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p106 Mr 2 '16 500w

PIDDUCK, F. B. Treatise on electricity. $*3.60
Putnam

"This is a mathematical treatise on electricity and magnetism of the Maxwellian type. . . . The book has fourteen chapters relating respectively to the following subjects: Mathematical introduction; Permanent magnetism; Electrostatics; Electric currents; Magnetic effects of currents; Thermoelectricity; Induced magnetism; Induction of currents; Applied electricity; Electrolysis; Electric oscillations; Conduction of electricity through gases; Radioactivity; and The theory of electrons."—Elec World

"It contains much new matter, presented in a distinctly original way. The presentation is definite, succinct and straight to the point. . . . One of the best text-books on the borderland between electrical engineering and the mathematical-physical theory of electromagnetism which has appeared for a long time."

+ Elec World 67:1484 Je 24 '16 190w

"The first half of the book. . . might be recommended to a mathematical honours student taking up for the first time the study of electricity. . . . The latter half of the book, containing chapters which form introductory accounts of special subjects, is sure to prove of great service to advanced students. . . . In the chapter on the conduction of electricity through gases the author is scarcely fair to research carried out in this country." H. S. A.

+ Nature 98:6 S 7 '16 980w

PIERCE, FREDERICK ERASTUS. Jordan
2 farms; an epic in homespun. $*1 Yale univ.
press 811 16-22203

A narrative in verse. "A stern and rural tale, told simply of stern, simple lives" the author calls it. It is a New England tale of a life of thwarted ambition. Somewhat after the manner of "The ring and the book," the author tells the story from several points of view, piecing it together bit by bit from many sources.

N Y Br Lib News 3:181 D '16

"The reader who takes up this little volume will not lay it down until he has finished it. His attention will be arrested by no unusual episode or morbid confession but by the realization that he is watching the most interesting thing in the world, the growth of a soul." E. B. Reed

+ Yale R ns 6:420 Ja '17 140w

PIPER, CHARLES VANCOUVER, and BEATTIE, ROLLA KENT. Flora of the northwest coast. $1.75 State college of Washington, Pullman, Wash. 581.97 15-25085

"A manual of the flora of the region described as 'lying between the summit of the Cascade mountains and the Pacific ocean from the 49th

PIPER, C. V., and BEATTIE, R. K.—Continued parallel of latitude across the southern portion of Vancouver island, south to the headwaters of the Willamette river. . . . It is a most interesting floral region, not hitherto represented in a suitable manual. The material upon which the work is based is mainly to be found in the herbarium of the State college of Washington. . . . The size of the volume indicates a rich and varied flora, and the summary states that 1,617 species and subspecies are presented, representing 550 genera and 100 families. . . . A useful glossary and a full index complete the volume."—Bot Gaz

+ Bot Gaz 61:348 Ap '16 210w

"The authors are to be congratulated for bringing to fruition the labors of their earlier years for the botany and botanical education on the Pacific coast. Their new work will contribute greatly to the knowledge of the plant life in the northwest. . . . The text is supplied with keys to families, genera and species, but the descriptions of the species are often meager, too much so we fear in some cases for certain identification. But in the reviewer's mind the most disappointing feature of this admirable work is the extremely meager and indefinite distributional notes."—LeRoy Abrams

+ — Science n s 43:932 Je 30 '16 770w

PIRSSON, LOUIS VALENTINE, and SCHUCHERT, CHARLES. Text-book of geology, for use in universities, colleges, schools of science, etc., and for the general reader. II *$4; pt 1 *$2.25; pt 2 *$2.75 Wiley 550

15-2896

"This book of 1,060 pages, with 522 illustrations and 40 plates, is divided into two parts. Part I, by Professor Pirsson, consists of 404 pages, and deals with physical geology. Part 2, by Professor Schuchert, discusses historical geology and has 647 pages. It is an excellent plan to issue the parts separately, as well as combined. . . . In Part I, the subject is treated under two main captions, namely, Dynamical geology and Structural geology. . . . In Part 2 Professor Schuchert has given us a very readable, up-to-date book from the first chapter on 'Matter and organisms' to the last on 'Earth history in retrospect.' The book consists of a series of lectures upon the principal events, physical and biologic, in the history of the earth. Each lecture or chapter deals with a single subject."—Science

"Chapters devoted to the origin and evolution of stars and the solar system, written by Joseph Barrell, although intensely interesting, are not particularly useful to the practicing miner or geologist, although they would not get anywhere else in the same space limit the valuable information given here, which is therefore ample justification for the inclusion."

+ Engineering and Mining Journal 101:366 F 19 '16 400w (Review of pts 1 and 2)

"An elementary text-book should excel, first and foremost, in the clearness of its exposition and in the choice of its illustrations. In both respects, 'Physical geology' is deserving of high praise. If 'Physical geology' is also intended for a reference book—and such every elementary text-book should be with regard to the matter which it treats—its abbreviated table of contents and its incomplete index are to be deplored. . . . A pleasing innovation [in Part II] is the inclusion of the portraits of famous geologists. . . . As was to be expected from one of the world's foremost paleogeographers not the least of the many excellent features of the book are the discussions of the past geography of the earth and the many original maps to illustrate it. There are usually several paleogeographic maps of North America for each period. That modern necessity, a good working index, is here well met."—H. W. Shimer and F. H. Lahee

+ Science n s 43:497 Ap 7 '16 4150w (Review of pts 1 and 2)

PLATER, REV. CHARLES, ed. Primer of peace and war. *80c Kenedy 172.4 A15-2696

"This 'primer' is a fresh restatement of international morals, written in the light of the present war on the one hand and of the teachings of the Bible and the Catholic church on the other. . . . Father Plater and his collaborators explain that the Catholic church rejects alike the extreme of militarism and of pacifism, but justifies those wars, and only those, which are waged in self-defense after a state has suffered the violation of a right. This doctrine is explained in all its ethical details by the Rev. J. Keating, S. J., in a chapter on 'Morality and war,' and is expounded historically by the Rev. V. Moncel, S. J., in his chapter on the 'Development of the Catholic doctrine of war.' (N Y Times) "The appendices deal with the mediations of the papacy, from the earliest days of the church to the efforts of the Holy Father to-day." (Cath World) There is an eight-page bibliography.

"Full of information ably and compactly set forth, it fills a distinct place as a textbook on war from a Christian, not too sectarian, standpoint."

+ A L A Bk 12:260 Mr '16

"The Rev. J. Keating, S. J., and the Rev. V. Moncel have treated these themes with a thoroughness that leaves no point untouched."

+ Cath World 103:261 My '16 200w

"It is by far the ablest text-book on war from the Christian standpoint which has appeared in recent times in English, and could only have been written by one who is thoroughly versed in all live thinking, both ancient and modern, on a difficult topic."—R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 14:195 O '15 170w

"The soundness of its ethics and the ability of its authors are evident on every page. It is intended as a text-book for the Catholic social guild and has the imprimatur of the church authorities."

+ N Y Times 20:452 N 21 '15 280w

PLOMER, HENRY ROBERT. Short history of English printing, 1476-1900. (Books about books) *$1.25 Dutton 655.1 (Eng ed 16-12580)

"In an easy, readable way, the history of English printing is traced from Caxton and his contemporaries down to the day of the Hoe press. When one says that the 19th century is treated in one chapter of less than 30 pages, it will be seen that the book does not go very fully into the wonders of the modern printing presses. But a very happy balance is preserved throughout between printing as an art and printing as a science."—Springfield Republican

"An excellent working book for the collector and the librarian."—G. H. S.

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 11 '16 170w

"Mr. Plomer's book is not exhaustive, and is intended for the general reader rather than the specialist. But it is marked by careful study and judicial taste."

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 300w

PLUMMER, ALFRED. Critical and exegetical commentary on the Second epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians. (International critical commentary on the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments) *$3 Scribner 227 16-915

"The formal arrangement of the commentary is the same as that of the earlier volume on I Corinthians. A new English rendering of the epistle section by section is followed by an explanatory paraphrase, and to this is added a detailed exposition of the Greek text phrase by phrase. Textual, lexical, and grammatical data, and the opinions of other interpreters, particularly of the ancient, are noted. The whole forms an excellent compendium of information arranged along the lines of the usual commentary. But the author makes little or no use of data from the Hellenistic setting of Paul and the Corinthian Christians as a means of illuminating the content of the epistle."—Am J Theol

"One of the most needed and one of the best numbers in the New Testament section of this series. The author of the present work candidly states that he has no new solutions to offer for any of the numerous problems presented by the epistle. But he has carefully compiled current opinions and passed critical judgment upon them." S. J. Case

+ Am J Theol 19:601 O '15 400w

"Dr. Plummer's method is to present in paraphrase the contents of each succeeding section and then comment upon all its important phrases. The excellence of these paraphrases is a striking feature of the book. The notes are both learned and illuminating. Sanity and sympathy are among Dr. Plummer's qualities as a commentator. . . . The new commentary is decidedly more clearly printed than have been some of its predecessors in the series."

+ Bib World 46:192 S '15 780w

"Catholics will read with interest this critical and exegetical commentary."

+ Cath World 103:122 Ap '16 290w

"The exegesis is marked by reverence and by liberality."

+ Sat R 120:212 Ag 28 '15 170w

PLUNKETT, JOSEPH MARY. Poems. il *$1.50
Stokes 821

Joseph Mary Plunkett was one of the younger of the Irish poets whose lives went out in the uprising of 1916. This volume of his poems is edited by his sister, Geraldine Plunkett, who writes an introduction. The first part of the book, "Occulta," was to have been issued as the poet's next volume. Its poems are printed as he arranged them. In the second part his sister has collected a group of earlier and later poems which she believes he would have wished included. An essay on "Obscurity and poetry," which appeared in the Irish Review in 1914 is reprinted at the end of the volume.

"In the poetry of Joseph Mary Plunkett there seems to us a complete gap between words and things. . . . He has no eyes for the visible world, he describes nothing; rather with words he tries to conjure up an idea of that which the visible world means; and often it means nothing to him."

The Times [London] Lit Sup p583 D 7
'16 660w

POAST, FLORENCE MAUDE. Indian names, facts and games for Camp fire girls. il 75c
James William Bryan press, Woodward bldg., Washington, D. C. 970.1 16-18571

A book "designed especially for the use of Camp fire girls, but also for those who wish to be informed on those matters pertaining to Indians which usually are misunderstood, too. . . . Brief information is given on language, symbolism, signs and signals, totems, fire-making, houses, occupations of women, clothing, children and their names, dolls, and games. A feature that will appeal to many is a list of several hundred Indian terms suitable for personal names, country seats, boats, etc." (Nation) The author is connected with the Bureau of American ethnology.

+ Nation 103:206 Ag 31 '16 110w
Pittsburgh 21:588 D '16

POLAND'S case for independence. *$3 (4c)
Dodd 943.8 (Eng ed 16-23384)

Various authors contribute to this volume, the purpose of which is, "to illustrate the continuance of Polish national life, and to interpret the manifestations of that life to foreigners, and especially to the people of Great Britain." The book raises a question: "Is force the only method by which to compel attention in the affairs of nations?" and the various essays are offered as an answer, for they are an expression of the belief that "sympathetic knowledge of Polish affairs is an indispensable preliminary to a just settlement." Contents: Landmarks of Polish history, by August Zaleski; Poland's struggle for independence, by Rajmund Kucharski; The population of the Polish commonwealth, by Arthur E. Gurney; Poland as an independent economic unit, by Stanislaw Posner; An outline of the history of Polish literature, by Jan de Holecinski; A sketch of the history of Polish art, by Jan de Holecinski; The national music of Poland, by Marguerite Walaux;

Intellectual Poland, by Leon Litwinski. Each of these papers is preceded by an introduction contributed by Sidney Webb, Viscount Bryce, and others.

"This volume is peculiarly timely. Mr. Zaleski's story of the rise and fall of Poland, though brief, is comprehensive." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 9 '16 330w

"Now we at last have a book presenting an adequate summing up of Poland's case for recognition as an independent power."

+ N Y Times 21:574 D 31 '16 450w

+ Spec 117:707 D 2 '16 130w

"After carefully reading this collection (we had already seen the pamphlets of which it is composed) we have come very regretfully to the conclusion that the eminent noblemen and gentlemen who advise the 'Polish information committee' have, no doubt inadvertently, set their imprimatur on a work the cumulative effect of which is decidedly anti-Russian. At the present moment such a work is, in our opinion, likely to be as harmful to the cause of the Allies as dangerous to that of the Poles."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p542 N 16
'16 2300w

PONSONBY, ARTHUR AUGUSTUS WILLIAM HARRY. Democracy and diplomacy; a plea for popular control of foreign policy. *2s 6d
Methuen & co., London 327.42 16-8582

"Mr. Arthur Ponsonby pleads clearly and without violence or bitterness for the application of the democratic principle to foreign no less than to domestic affairs. The main planks in Mr. Ponsonby's platform are that the British consular and diplomatic service is altogether inadequate to twentieth-century needs, and that the public ignorance of foreign affairs, even of those in which our own interests are most profoundly involved, must at all costs be removed."—Hibbert J

Ath p184 Ap '16 800w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 14:439 Ja '16 80w

"Usually the notion is stated and present conditions deplored, but not much is given to explain how the situation may be altered. And so it is with this book, though here the author, more than others, does propound some parts of his plan. There are useful appendices of documents and reports relating to the subject, particularly one which explains procedure in some of the other countries."

+ Nation 102:597 Je 1 '16 700w

"There is, in fact, one fatal defect in Mr. Ponsonby's analysis of the situation. He ascribes to faulty diplomacy the results which are, in reality, due to faulty statesmanship." [Earl of] Cromer

+ Spec 115:790 D 4 '15 3000w

POORE, IDA MARGARET (GRAVES), lady. Recollections of an admiral's wife, 1903-1916. il *$2.50 Dutton 16-17720

"Sir Richard Poore was commander-in-chief in Australia (1908-11) and commander-in-chief at the Nore (1911-14). Lady Poore's reminiscences cover some years of life in a corner of Wiltshire, and the wider interests of official life. The admiral is still on active service, and the last pages bring us into contact with the war."—Ath

"Reminiscences which are full of genial observation and racily written."

+ Ath p197 Ap '16 70w

"Three years were spent in Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania, where opportunities to study conditions and people were exceptional. And exceptional likewise her gift of verbal description. Seldom has the life of the people of these far lands been so well understood, so adequately presented. . . . One realizes, as was perhaps never before possible, the magnificent inevitableness of the valor and endurance of the colonial forces of Australasia, who day after day are freely giving to the mother country the last full measure of a son's devotion. . . . The narrative up to August, 1914, ripples with humor and joy of living. But the later record flows with a high inspiration not to be forgotten by those who read." F. B.

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

POORE, IDA MARGARET—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p9 Je 24 '16 750w

N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

"An extremely agreeable book, cheerful, informing, and always in the right spirit. A book which has to be quoted from."

+ Spec 116:500 Ap 15 '16 1850w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p135 Mr 23 '16 750w

POPE, AMY ELIZABETH. Physics and chemistry for nurses. il $*1.75 (1½c) Putnam 610.7 16-17913

"To provide a foundation for such knowledge [of hospital-housekeeping] by explaining the principles of the chemical and physical properties upon which the various actions that occur in cleaning, cooking, digestion, metabolism, etc., depend, was one reason for compiling this book. A second purpose was to explain important chemical and physical processes constantly referred to in physiology, materia medica, and the other studies included in the school of nursing curriculum." (Preface) The book is based on recent authoritative works in chemistry and physics. Miss Pope is author of "Anatomy and physiology for nurses" and other books.

N Y Br Lib News 3:142 S '16

PORTER, ELEANOR HODGMAN (ELEANOR STUART, pseud.). Just David. il $*1.25 (2c) Houghton 16-6721

Ever since he can remember David has lived up on the mountain with his father. With the woods and the wild things and their two violins they have been very happy and David has not missed other human companionship. Then a change comes. His father dies and he is left to the care of strangers, gruff, stern farmer folk in whom the warmth of kindness is buried deep. The boy can tell them nothing about himself; he is just David. His father's name has never been known to him. Later it is learned to be the name of one of the world's great violinists, but before this revelation comes, David has made a sure place for himself in the hearts of Farmer Holly and his wife and has been an influence in other of the lives about him.

"Can be obtained in reenforced binding at same price with no discount."

+ A L A Bkl 12:385 My '16

"A story of a child prodigy . . . told in a sentimental fashion, which takes little account of the real nature of a human boy."

— Ath p244 My '16 100w

+ Boston Transcript p7 Mr 25 '16 650w

"Eleanor H. Porter has taken a trumped-up situation, a threadbare plot, some commonplace characters, and by virtue of David, 'Just David,' has made a charming story. He is a perfectly real impossible character."

+ Ind 86:66 Ap 10 '16 90w

+ Lit D 52:1462 My 20 '16 200w

"The action is utterly flimsy, the persons who are supposed to hover about David, admiring him, are built of sticks and pumpkins and wisps of straw. And thousands of readers will probably welcome it." H. W. Boynton

— Nation 102:520 My 1 '16 430w

"Any ordinary boy would have had rather a difficult time of it, but David was by no means an ordinary boy. He behaved in the style and accomplished the things expected of ten-year-old boys—in this kind of fiction. Of course, at the end his identity was discovered, all the good people were rewarded, and everything was just too perfectly lovely for words."

— N Y Times 21:106 Mr 26 '16 320w

"His adventures are related with unrepressed sentimentality. He combines in his pathetic person the shortcomings of Lord Fauntleroy, Eric, and Humphrey in 'Misunderstood.' But to many this will undoubtedly be a triple recommendation."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p203 Ap 27 '16 110w

"A little-boy counterpart to 'Pollyanna.' The story will be popular, specially with older girls."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:186 Ap '16 60w

PORTER, ELEANOR HODGMAN (ELEANOR STUART, pseud.). Six Star ranch. il $*1.25 Page 16-2367

"Genevieve Hartley, who has been in Sun-bridge, N. H., for her schooling has formed a club called 'The happy hexagons.' The story is mainly a narration of a vacation which these six young girls spend in Texas at the 'Six Star ranch,' at the invitation of Mr. Hartley, its owner."—Lit D

"Mrs. Porter will never be able to write another book like 'Pollyanna,' but she does know how to write for young people. . . . Her knowledge of outdoor life, her understanding of girls' ambitions, foibles, and daily problems help to fill the story with inspiration."

+ Lit D 53:75 J1 8 '16 220w

— Nation 102:708 Je 29 '16 150w

PORTER, GENE (STRATTON) (MRS. CHARLES DARWIN PORTER). Morning Face. il $*2 Doubleday 16-22428

Mrs. Porter, novelist and nature lover, has made this book for children. Its stories and poems were made up first for one particular little girl, and it is at her request that they have been put into a book "like other books," for other little girls and boys to enjoy. Most of them are about living things, and they represent the author's methods of teaching nature facts to little people. The illustrations, the work of her camera, are truly wonderful examples of outdoor photography.

"The press work and the illustrations are of exceptional beauty and merit. Children of from ten to fourteen years of age would consider such a book a most precious Christmas gift."

+ Cath World 104:413 D '16 90w

"Though it is hardly literary in form, it will suggest many playful things for the parent to practise on children as delightfully cheerful as the little girl whose portrait forms the wrapper design of this heterogeneous array of verses and stories."

+ Dial 61:548 D 14 '16 70w

"The verses are not marked by any great literary skill, nor are the stories anything of an unusual character, but there is a quaint humor, every now and then, peeping out between the irregular lines of the verse, and that is something in these days when humor is so lacking in our juvenile literature."

+ Lit D 53:1616 D 16 '16 110w

N Y Times 21:513 N 26 '16 190w

+ R of Rs 55:102 Ja '17 110w

Springfield Republican p15 D 9 '16 120w

PORTER, ROBERT PERCIVAL. Japan, the new world-power; being a detailed account of the progress and rise of the Japanese empire. maps $*2.50 Oxford 915.2 16-13081

This is a second edition of "The full recognition of Japan," published in 1911. For entry with quotations see the Digest, 8th annual cumulation, for 1912.

N Y Br Lib News 3:37 Mr '16

"Mr. Porter's book is hardly suitable for the casual reader or superficial student of oriental affairs. It is more of a reference work—a historical cyclopedia."

+ N Y Times 21:226 My 28 '16 380w

"Mr. R. P. Porter apparently is one of the many Englishmen who forecast what the Japanese would do in the time of trial. Whether his political sagacity upon this point is an adequate reason for the republication of an old book under a new name is open to doubt. It might have been wiser if the capable services of Mr. Shinichi Ando had been secured again by the author to bring at least the statistical material up to date. There is another and graver defect in the book that needed remedying before it entered upon a second issue. This is concerned principally with the diplomatic and political history of Japan. Great credit must be given to Mr. R. P. Porter for the industry and clearness with which he marshalled the various facts that he accumulated during a not very lengthy stay in Japan."

+ — Sat R 120:500 N 20 '15 870w

Reviewed by the Earl of Cromer
Spec 116:222 F 12 '16 1400w

PORTER, ROSE HENNIKER (HEATON) (MRS. ADRIAN PORTER). Life and letters of Sir John Henniker Heaton. il *$3 (4c) Lane 16-22605

This life of the great postal reformer who is known as "the father of imperial penny postage" has been written by his daughter. The events of his life are outlined in the first chapter. A brief biography. The remainder of the book has been divided into chapters "illustrating the different characteristics and divers interests of Sir John as postal reformer, politician and traveler." Among the illustrations are many interesting facsimiles of letters, one of them that sent by Mark Twain acknowledging his indebtedness for money saved in postage.

+ Dial 61:542 D 14 '16 120w

+ N Y Times 21:343 S 3 '16 90w

+ Spec 117:108 JI 22 '16 100w

"The fact that we in America now enjoy the two-cent letter postage with the British Isles is due very largely to the efforts of Henniker Heaton, and there is accordingly much to interest American readers in the entertaining hodge-podge of anecdotes about the great postal reformer collected by his daughter."

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 5 '16 1150w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p307 Je 29 '16 1500w

POST, EMILY (PRICE) (MRS. EDWYN MAIN POST). By motor to the Golden Gate. il *$2 Appleton 917.3 16-10865

"An account of an interesting automobile trip, made by two women and a man, from New York to San Francisco in twenty-seven days. Minor details of roads are left to the 'Blue books,' but it gives information about the best general roads, the best hotels and garages where stops were made, daily expense account and twenty-seven map drawings of local places."—A L A Bkl

"A profitable book for those who desire to make the whole or any part of the trip, and an interesting travel book for those who do not."

+ A L A Bkl 12:476 JI '16

"The author not only describes vividly the places through which the pilgrimage leads, but tells bits of their history, forming some of the most picturesque incidents in the life of the republic. And, most friendly, most altruistic of all motor-journey records, indeed the first of their kind, are the twenty-seven road maps, each illustrating in detail one day's run, warning, suggesting, giving distances, etc., making the way plain for all travellers following their trail."

+ Boston Transcript p6 JI 12 '16 250w

+ Ind 86:398 Je 5 '16 120w

"Her book, aside from being a very readable travel narrative, will be a revelation to those who have motored much in Europe, putting their own country behind them, as she confesses she has always done before, in the conviction that it is too difficult and uninteresting for the automobilist."

+ N Y Times 21:237 Je 11 '16 430w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:320 JI '16 80w

POST, LOUIS FREELAND. Taxation of land values. il *$1 (2½c) Bobbs 336.2 15-20404

This is the fifth edition of a work that has been issued under various titles. It appeared first in 1894 as "Outlines of Post's lectures." The present title was used for the revised edition which appeared in 1912 and of which the fifth edition is a reprint with but slight changes. The work is described by the sub-title as "an explanation with illustrative charts, notes and answers to typical questions of the land-labor-and-fiscal reform advocated by Henry George."

"The fifth edition, but little revised, of a work which, since its first publication in 1894, has been known as one of the strongest statements of the single tax case." A. N. Young

+ Am Econ R 6:158 Mr '16 210w

Reviewed by A. N. Young

+ Ann Am Acad 64:240 Mr '16 170w

"Mr. Post's practical application of Henry George's theories was earliest in the field and holds it against all comers, showing a vitality rivaling that of the subject itself. The book may be commended once more heartily to all—to its friends as a classic, and to dissenters as an essential part of an economic education."

+ N Y Times 21:173 Ap 23 '16 230w

R of Rs 53:118 Ja '16 30w

"The taxation of land values' by Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of labor, easily and deservedly belongs in the front rank of books dealing with the interesting and vital subject of the single tax."

+ Special Libraries 7:109 Je '16 220w

POTAPENKO, J. N. Russian priest. *$1.35 (2c) Dodd

This story, translated from the Russian, was published in England in 1891. It is the story of a young man of brilliant prospects who chooses to devote his life to the peasantry, renouncing a promising worldly career for a life of service as a village priest. James Adderley in his introduction says, "'A Russian priest' shows us how the general desire of Christians to humanize their religion is spreading over the whole church." The translation has been made by W. Gaussen.

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:260 N '16 480w

"The story lifts the veil from a class of people who are quite unknown to western readers. It has occasional touches of humor and is filled with a charming spirit." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p7 S 23 '16 950w

"It is well worth reprinting as an expression of Russian sanity and idealism, which have been so sadly obscured for us by the naturalists. . . . The story is simply, and warmly, and gently told; there is a great deal of sound human feeling in it, as well as of spiritual aspiration."

+ Nation 103:422 N 2 '16 380w

+ N Y Times 21:566 D 24 '16 460w

POTTER, MARY KNIGHT (MRS. THOMAS PARKER CURRIER). Ten beautiful years, and other stories. *$1.25 (2c) Lippincott 16-16718

The author of these short stories died in 1915 and every reader of the book will feel that in her a writer of promise was lost to the world, for they are stories of a high order. The author was also an art critic and had written several books on art. The stories, reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly and other magazines, are: Ten beautiful years; The making of a prima donna; Ultimately; The wife; The mother; Socialism at The Larks; The triumph of failure; In payment thereof; The gift supreme; Those taught; John Gorking's graft; Needs must; The scale; The greater call.

"There is also another story in the book which is a masterpiece of analysis and description, 'The wife.'"

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 9 '16 240w

N Y Br Lib News 3:136 S '16 40w

+ N Y Times 21:347 S 3 '16 230w

POUGIN, ARTHUR. Short history of Russian music. *$1.75 Brentano's 780.9 (Eng ed 16-6455)

"M. Arthur Pougin's 'Short history of Russian music' has been admirably translated by Mr. Lawrence Haward. The book covers a wider field than Mrs. Newmarch's work, which dealt only with opera. M. Pougin traces (very brief-

POUGIN, ARTHUR—Continued
ly) the development of music in Russia from the folk-songs and early church-music down to Scriabin and Stravinsky."—Spec

"Wider in scope than Newmarch's 'The Russian opera' but not so detailed in that special field."

+ A L A Bkl 13:71 N '16

"It is clear that Pougin has been 'edited' as well as translated; the pity is that one is left to guess at what points the editing begins."

+ — Ath 1915,2:180 S 1 950w

"The author lays no claim to having written a complete history of Russian music. This he believes to be a difficult and almost a colossal task. In spite of this, the present book, which offers much helpful material both for the music student and for the aid of those who in the future shall undertake the larger task, repays a serious consideration. The author has striven not only to devote attention to the special composer, but to treat of the origin and something of the nature of Russian music itself, and he has revealed himself a careful student and a talented interpreter in the chapters which he gives to the reader."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 4 '15 250w

"For the student it is not a satisfactory book, having little coherence or style and containing far too large a proportion of quotation. If only the author had shown more confidence in his own musical and critical powers he might have produced a real 'Short history' of permanent worth; as it is, he has given us a handy little book of reference, with interludes of genuine enlightenment."

+ Pittsburgh 21:96 Mr '16 250w (Reprinted from Outlook [London] 1915)

"M. Pougin is a scholarly critic . . . and he has plenty of the Gallic sense of humor and sarcasm. . . for treating the most important phase of Russian musical history—the great war between the cosmopolitan musical geniuses, Rubenstein and Tchaikovsky in one camp, and the formerly, so-called 'Young Russian school' in the other."

+ Pittsburgh 21:118 Mr '16 100w (Reprinted from Nation 1915)

"As regards matters of taste, the most controversial point is the question of the relative merits of Mussorgsky and Rimsky-Korsakov. In M. Pougin's view, it is almost entirely owing to the revisions and improvements of the latter that Mussorgsky's works find a hearing to-day. But there are many people who disagree with this opinion."

+ Spec 115:56 J1 10 '15 200w

POULSSON, EMILIE, and POULSSON, LAURA ELIZABETH, trs. Top-of-the-world stories for boys and girls. il *$1 (3c) Lothrop 16-17491

Other collections of stories by Miss Poulsson have been meant for kindergarten children; this book is planned for boys and girls somewhat older. Five of the stories were written by Zachris Topelius, a noted Finnish author, two are translated from the Danish, one from the Norwegian.

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:405 D '16 40w

"Delightfully illustrated by F. L. Young."

+ Ind 88:399 D 4 '16 50w

Lit D 53:1613 D 16 '16 40w

"A fine collection of stories for older boys and girls."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 50w

POUND, EZRA LOOMIS. Gaudier-Brzeska; a memoir, including the published writings of the sculptor, and a selection from his letters. il *$.350 (8c) Lane 735 16-14290

"Gaudier-Brzeska, half Frenchman, half Pole, was killed fighting for France in June, 1915, at the age of twenty-three. He had practised the art of sculpture in England, and had belonged to the Vorticists, a fierce little sect, whose organ is Blast, and whose works, whether in painting or in sculpture, deserve more gratitude from the critics than they get, in that they raise certain fundamental æsthetic questions which ought to give the critics something interesting to write about. These questions are discussed in this book, which is half a memoir of Brzeska and half an exposition of vorticism principles."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"The memoir has a three-fold interest. In the first place it presents an unusual personality and a 'romantic' career. . . . Gaudier-Brzeska's letters from the trenches to Pound and others are the most vivid impressions of the war which the present reviewer has seen. . . . The third field of interest in Mr. Pound's book is—Mr. Pound; his humour, his rhetoric against the Philistine, and especially the theories of art held by the 'vorticist' group. Mr. Pound has gained much in sanity and in clearness of expression; he is now not only amusing, he is stimulating."

+ Dial 61:112 Ag 15 '16 680w

"This memoir is without doubt the most important exposition we have had of the ideas for which the word vorticism is made to stand, but as a biography it seems slighter and more obscure in detail than it need have been."

+ — Int Studio 59:189 S '16 190w

"He deserves a better fate than to be maundered about by an unvenerable imagiste who has no better generalization to offer anent Greek art than that its ruling characteristic is to be 'caressable.'"

— Nation 103:207 Ag 31 '16 530w

"Mr. Pound diminishes the value of his memoir by including a number of his own pronouncements on the subject of sculpture and of art in general. There is, indeed, too much Pound in the book and too little Gaudier-Brzeska. But the letters, especially those written by Gaudier-Brzeska during the time just before his death, are interesting and moving, and may well be read by all who are interested in the psychology of artists."

+ — N Y Times 21:314 Ag 13 '16 430w

Pittsburgh 21:485 N '16 80w

"A most beautiful book with wide margins, clear type and thirty-eight illustrations consisting of photographs of his sculpture, and four portraits by Walter Bennington and numerous reproductions from the Gaudier-Brzeska drawings. At present very little of the sculptor's work is accessible to the public. Some examples are to be placed in South Kensington, others in the Musée du Luxembourg. In this country a group of his statues are in the art collection of John Quinn."

+ R of Rs 54:236 Ag '16 300w

"This book, like the sculpture in it, will irritate many; and we could write a column and more about the provocations of Mr. Pound. Yet the fact remains that his book gives us a vivid picture of a remarkable artist and explains with some lucidity what he was trying to do in his art."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p199 Ag 27 '16 1750w

POWELL, JOHN WALKER. What is a Christian? a book for the times. *$1 Macmillan 252 15-22535

"A breezy, optimistic series of addresses delivered 'before a congregation of average folk, who seemed to find them enlightening.' There are six addresses in the volume, dealing with fundamental themes. After rescuing his cause from a literalistic interpretation of the teachings of Jesus, the author proceeds to expound as 'Christian' truth the deliverance of his own religious common-sense."—Bib World

"The addresses represent a virile, open-minded, and ethically earnest type of religion, concerned with issues of our modern life. . . . The vagueness and flexibility of this norm enable Mr. Powell to find whatever he wants in the teachings of Jesus." G. B. S.

Am J Theol 20:470 J1 '16 110w

"Apart from the author's rather naïve assumption that his very modern message is a real exegesis of what Jesus meant, the addresses are inspiring and wholesome. They express the sort of religion which the average layman can understand and approve, a faith disentangled from abstruse questions of creed or biblical interpretation and shaped by the actual exigencies of present-day thinking."

+ Bib World 47:267 Ap '16 120w

"It is a thoughtful book, within the limitations of thought that is non-Catholic; and it is definitely spiritual-minded."

+ Cath World 103:124 Ap '16 150w

"A good book for the times."

+ Ind 89:117 Ja 15 '17 60w

+ Nation 102:sup500 My 4 '16 120w

N Y Br Lib News 3:29 F '16

"The author goes straight to the point in every chapter. As sermons, they are of high class; as common sense for men in the street, they are equally strong."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 16 '15 330w

POWERS, HARRY HUNTINGTON. Things men fight for; with some application to present conditions in Europe. *$1.50 (1½c) Macmillan 327 16-12411

The European situation viewed from the standpoint of national patriotism which the author states is at the root of the whole matter. Two introductory chapters show what men of to-day are like and discuss the tangible and intangible interests that they fight for; on the one hand independence, territory and commerce; on the other, race unity, nationality, civilization and peace. The rest of the discussion turns from abstract principles to concrete problems and observes how these principles work out in the case of problems facing European peoples to-day. A chapter on "Proposed remedies for war," and "The future of war" conclude the discussions.

"A strong, well informed presentation, however much one may disagree with the writer's thesis."

+ A L A Bkl 13:117 D '16

"Mr. Powers believes that national patriotism is at the root of the whole matter, which shows that his devotion to art has made him a sentimentalist. That economic questions are the basis of the whole European war few persons, except sentimentalists, doubt."

+ Army and Navy Journal 53:1513 Jl 22 '16 80w

Ath p439 S '16 300w

"One of the few books dealing with the controversial aspects of the great war that every one, no matter how much in disagreement with its opinions, must be glad has been written. . . . Dr. Powers is at his best as a strategist. . . . The book, which up to that point was so studiously neutral becomes a passionate plea for an intimate alliance between the United States and the British empire."

+ Ind 87:130 Jl 24 '16 900w

"Of all the war-books that have appeared, none other so analyzes the geography of Europe as does this; none other makes logically plain, as this does, geographical and ethnological reasons why the present war had to be."

+ Lit D 53:1182 N 4 '16 750w

"A shattering, disintegrating book at once objective and depressing." W. E. Weyl

+ New Repub 8:121 S 2 '16 2100w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 Jl '16

"Mr. Powers is not quite logical. . . . And nowhere does he consider the dawning but potentially tremendous force of internationalism, or stop to question what its effect might be upon the inexorable of national destiny. In his discussion of commerce and the part that it plays in a nation's progress and in the precipitation of war, for instance, he sees commerce only in its old-time light of the ordinary trade intercourse between nations, and not at all as the dominating figure of imperialized finance that it has become."

+ N Y Times 21:285 Jl 16 '16 420w

Pratt p40 Ja '17 30w

+ R of Rs 54:117 Jl '16 60w

St Louis 15:4 Ja '17 20w

"Dr. Powers pushes sometimes to an extreme his countryman Mahan's teaching as to sea power. Whether he has also studied Ratzel is not clear. But never was the teaching of the great philosophical geographer as to the effect of 'location' and environment stated with more confidence and with fewer qualifications and reservations than in this volume."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p434 S 14 '16 1150w

POWYS, JOHN COWPER. One hundred best books; with commentary and an essay on Books and reading. 75c (5c) Shaw, G. Arnold 028.3 16-13998

"The following list is frankly subjective in its choice; being indeed the selection of one individual. . . . The compiler holds the view that in expressing his own predilection, he is also supplying the need of kindred minds; minds that read purely for the pleasure of reading, and have no sinister wish to transform themselves by that process into what are called 'cultivated persons.'" (Preface) "A list of books of the kind appended here, becomes, by the very reason of its shameless subjectivity, a challenge to the intelligence perusing it—a challenge that is bound in some degree or another, to fling such a reader back upon his own inveterate prejudices; to fling him back upon them with a sense that it is his affair reasonably to justify them." (p. 9) Mr. Powys's choice includes the Psalms of David and the Spoon River anthology; Miss Austen's Pride and prejudice and Dreiser's Titan; Emerson and Shaw; Thackeray and Oliver Onions, Homer and de la Mare, Nietzsche and Lamb, etc., etc. Under each author's name is a critical appreciation of his work.

A L A Bkl 13:5 O '16

"Nothing could be more haphazard and disordered than Mr. Powys's list. It is absolutely without form. It is individual, of course, as any such list must necessarily be, and at the same time it is eccentric apparently for no other purpose than to arouse discussion by its unconventionality. Whatever else Mr. Powys may be in his little book, he is certainly nothing if not entertaining." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Jl 8 '16 600w

"Though my dislike of Mr. Powys as a writer has been aggravated page by page, he rouses my curiosity. . . . I imagine him as half a quack and very much in earnest, with a streak of poetry in him." Q. K.

+ New Repub 7:256 Jl 8 '16 880w

"It would never do to demand of him indignantly why he omits George Eliot and includes Mr. Gilbert Cannan; for that would be merely playing into his hands: that is precisely what he wants you to do. . . . He is the tameless urchin of criticism, and he makes his outrageous racket with his stick on your front fence in order that you may be teased to come out and swear at him." Lawrence Gilman

No Am 204:457 S '16 1550w

+ St Louis 14:426 D '16 30w

"Mr. Powys may revolt against the attempts made by sensible adults to put good literature in the possession of young people, but his caprices are little likely to be substituted for the judgments of the best critics. Not a few books in his list, moreover, are distinctly not for young people."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 25 '16 100w

POWYS, JOHN COWPER. Rodmoor; a romance. *$1.50 (1c) Shaw, G. Arnold 16-20552

The dedication of this book to "the spirit of Emily Brontë" suggests that the author has deliberately attempted to write a book that will produce an effect like that of "Wuthering Heights." He has meant to write a story pervaded with the spirit of a place. No one in Rodmoor, a village on the North sea, is quite normal. "It's the effect of the sea," says one of the characters. "If you look at the plants which grow here you'll understand. . . . It's absurd not to recognize that human beings like plants and animals are subject to all manner of physical influences." The Renshaws, Brand and Philippa, belong to Rodmoor. Nance Herrick and her half-sister, Linda, and Adrian Sorio are outsiders who come under its sinister influence and under the influence of the Renshaws. Brand Renshaw leads the younger sister to her ruin, and Nance, who is the most nearly normal of any person in the book, sees her lover, Adrian Sorio taken from her by Philippa. Adrian, who has already suffered one attack of insanity, is driven to madness and death before the story's close.

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

POWYS, JOHN COWPER—Continued

"There is a taint about the thing, whether of unwholesome eroticism or unwholesome mockery." H. W. Boynton
— Bookm 44:390 D '16 390w

"His work is perfectly non-constructive. But it is also so far above the average English and American fiction that one can well exempt it from the necessity of following the rules. It is only that this want withholds him from greatness. He has intellect, he has taste, he has a sure instinct for what is aesthetically fine. These qualities in themselves make his 'Rodmoor' a novel of exceptional distinction." R. M.
+ Boston Transcript p6 N 8 '16 1100w

"Mr. Powys follows distinguished masters; Emily Brontë and Paul Verlaine have given him some ideas on the extravagant and sensitive possibilities of men and women. But of whomever he has learned, he has gained the desire to look beneath the surface and see for himself, and that desire is in itself a great thing." E. E. Hale
+ Dial 61:396 N 16 '16 870w

"Another book of morbid and not over-clean imaginings is this new story by the eccentric author of 'Wood and stone.' . . . The scene falls upon an orgy of insanity, suicide, and despair such as the deadliest Russian naturalism might well envy. It is a diabolically brilliant performance, but to what end? That, no doubt, is what the performer meant to prod us into asking."

— Nation 104:134 F 1 '17 210w

"The qualities to note are the extraordinary and disturbing reality of the thing; its awful plausibility; its terrible success in rousing sympathy and in quelling it; its insane humor and its humorous insanity. . . . Perhaps this story of Mr. Powys' is just a pathological study; but perhaps it is something more: it possesses at least that thrill of the unknown which is also the thrill of beauty, and this gives it a claim."

No Am 204:944 D '16 800w

"A series of senseless miseries, and the end of it all is a bleak and meaningless futility. The novel is a dreary waste of a high order of ability."

— Outlook 114:616 N 15 '16 270w

POWYS, JOHN COWPER. Suspended judgments; essays on books and sensations. *$2 (2c) Shaw, G. Arnold 824 16-24596

A series of literary studies prefaced by an essay on The art of discrimination. The subjects of the studies are: Montaigne, Pascal, Voltaire, Rousseau, Balzac, Victor Hugo, Guy de Maupassant, Anatole France, Paul Verlaine, Remy de Gourmont, William Blake, Byron, Emily Brontë, Joseph Conrad, Henry James, Oscar Wilde. To these is added a concluding essay, Suspended judgment.

"It is obviously necessary to regard the judgments of this most subjective and emotional novelist and critic wholly from the personal point of view. Do you like the books that he likes? Then read him by all means. . . . He has done what he pretends to do with absolute fidelity and with a liberating honesty of utterance." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 3 '17 640w

"There is not a single statement of value in the volume that is not contradicted at some other point in the volume with equal vehemence." Israel Solon
— Dial 62:56 Ja 25 '17 1550w

POWYS, JOHN COWPER. Wolf's-bane rhymes. *$1.25 Shaw, G. Arnold 821 16-6804

Wolf's-bane, a medicinal herb from which acotin, a bitter and poisonous alkaloid, is extracted, is chosen by the author as a symbol for these rhymes. Yet it is wistful sadness rather than bitterness that they express.

"Poems in uniformly despondent mood, often forced and mannered, but occasionally fresh in inspiration and expressed with truth and simplicity."

A L A Bkl 13:22 O '16 (Reprinted from Open Shelf, Cleveland)

— + Boston Transcript p10 Ap 22 '16 300w

"There is much that is artificial about Mr. John Cowper Powys's 'Wolf's-bane rhymes,' and the poet hampers himself by his reluctance to speak naturally and directly. But here is a poem [Daffodils] which is unmarred by elaborate eccentricities; it is simple and convincing."

— + Lit D 52:1473 My 20 '16 250w

"There are two excellent points in Mr. Powys—a command of caressing, simple, old-fashioned metres, and a happy invention of the kind that imparts to a lyric the neatness of a dramatized epigram. . . . At present he is mainly engaged in the 'trying-on' of moods, and impresses us most by the diversity of his wardrobe." O. W. Firkins

— + Nation 103:348 O 12 '16 430w

"Lecturer, novelist, poet, these three are Mr. John Cowper Powys, and he is the least of these in being a poet. There is a sardonic stiffness in the sadness here displayed, not the tender, appealing sadness of one whose heart and soul has been through the furnace of life."

— Poetry Review 1:18 Je '16 180w

"The verse is often reminiscent of the music of Poe. Here and there a lofty note challenges admiration. A notable and a unique collection."

+ R of Rs 53:762 Je '16 50w

"Stridency, a sense of effort and a strange medley of images and ideas are characteristic of these poems."

— Springfield Republican p13 Je 25 '16 130w

POWYS, JOHN COWPER, and POWYS, LLEWELLYN. Confessions of two brothers. $1.50 (3½c) Manas press 16-5332

A remarkable piece of self analysis is presented in the "confessions" of John Cowper Powys. Of his reason for writing them he says this: "Given an eloquently impassioned critic,—and not even my enemies could deny my right to that title—it is, I maintain, of curious and delicate interest to know what the texture of such a critic's mind is like. I am always engaged in analyzing the minds of clever artists; let me for once, undertake the less pleasing task of analyzing the mind of a clever critic." Llewellyn Powys, author of the second and shorter part of the book, is a younger brother. His confessions, consisting partly of quotations from his diary, are somewhat more objective but reveal much the same analytical type of mind.

+ A L A Bkl 13:31 O '16

"As to the wisdom of writing it at all, it is for the writer himself to judge. From the reader's point of view, it is immensely interesting, both from a literary point of view, and as a satisfaction to perfectly human curiosity." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 8 '16 850w

"Whatever the faults of the book, it is not commonplace or insignificant."

+ Dial 60:388 Ap 13 '16 280w

"The 'confession' of Llewellyn Powys, consisting of a brief diary of travel, could profitably be omitted. We should miss two or three examples of striking effects of impressions skillfully conveyed by seemingly bare description, but also a few exhibitions of extraordinary coarseness."

+ — Nation 103:182 Ag 24 '16 330w

POWYS, THEODORE FRANCIS. Soliloquy of a hermit. Il *$1 (4c) Shaw, G. Arnold 242 16-2259

Cynic tho he may be and a skeptic in regard to some of life's values, this hermit loves the sunshine and the smell of the earth and finds his delight in a garden. To deduce any system or any principle from this book is not possible. As he himself says, "I notice in this tract that I am now writing, that sometimes I appear to be an infidel and sometimes a believer, sometimes a Christian and sometimes a heathen, and every brave man is just the same as I am. . . . If a man is sincere he will change his opinion with every mood, at least about the things that belong to the spirit." The author is a brother to John Cowper Powys.

"The confusion of thought which identifies that power by which we live with the evil purposes and deeds of mankind, is a serious error."

— + Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 400w

"Better might he have called his book 'The soliloquy of a satirist,' since satire of a delightful sort crops out on almost every page. Truly, a satirist and humorist of a different kidney from the ordinary sort in this companionable hermit. There is many a chuckle in his little book."

+ Dial 60:218 Mr 2 '16 300w

"Even a careful reader is not always quite sure what Mr. Powys is driving at, or whether he is to be taken seriously and literally or by contraries."

— + Springfield Republican p13 S 24 '16 350w

PRAED, ROSA CAROLINE (MURRAY-PRIOR)
(MRS. CAMPBELL MACKWORTH PRAED).
Lady Bridget of the never-never land. *$1.55
Brentano's

"To Leichardt's Town, Australia, with her friends, Sir Luke and Lady Tallant, comes Lady Bridget O'Hara, the orphan daughter of a poverty-stricken Irish earl. Well born, clever, and fascinating, she is nevertheless a failure in the eyes of most of her friends and relations, for although she has had any number of love affairs—usually with ineligible—she is nearly 30 and still unmarried. . . . She is ready for about any desperate step. And by way of making a complete plunge into the unknown, she marries Colin McKeith, an Australian squatter and cattle owner, a man quite unlike any she has ever known, and goes with him to his station, Moon-garr, in the back districts—the never-never land. . . . The account of Lady Bridget's experiences in the bush is thus somewhat out of the ordinary, and therefore interesting."—N Y Times

"The characters and plot of the story are of a familiar type. So far as these factors are concerned the book is an average novel, fairly well done and fairly interesting. But the locale of the tale is one which is still comparatively unusual and possessed of considerable freshness."

+ — N Y Times 21:149 Ap 16 '16 160w

PRATT, EDWIN A. Rise of rail-power in war and conquest, 1833-1914. *$2.50 Lippincott
355 A16-737

"In a brief way the book reviews the development of the use of railways in warfare and their employment for purposes of economic, political, and even territorial conquest in time of peace. The profound influences exerted upon military strategy by the introduction of railway transportation are pointed out in detail, and the gradual development and increase in complexity of this strategy is made clear by a study of the use of railways in the principal wars in the world since the year 1833. . . . The building and purposes of the strategic railways in Africa, Asia Minor, and elsewhere, is accorded extended treatment. Of especial interest are the chapters on Railway ambulance transport, Strategic railways, and the development of special railway troops. The work is well documented, and in treating of any country, the author, wherever possible, uses the works of native writers and the reports of the government in question to support his observations and conclusions. An excellent bibliography is appended."—Am Econ R

"Very serviceable and, at the moment, of great interest, since it contains the salient facts to be found only by searching through an immense number of technical books and reports."

James Bardin

+ Am Econ R 6:364 Je '16 350w

+ A L A Bkl 13:11 O '16

+ Ann Am Acad 67:303 S '16 330w

Boston Transcript p9 Jl 29 '16 580w

"The reader turns to the chapter on Germany's strategical railways with great expectations. . . . Mr. Pratt's work seems to be weakest just at this point. The information is imparted in a flat-footed and perfunctory way, and in the absence of maps is confusing. . . . Incidentally a vivid light is thrown upon the wonderfully silent but keen struggle for the commerce of Africa and Asia Minor." D. A. MacGibbon

+ — J Pol Econ 24:820 O '16 950w

+ Lit D 53:85 Jl 8 '16 230w

"The merit of this book is its summarized character. . . . It contains an elaborate bibliography of the subject, probably the most satisfactory in existence."

+ Nation 103:469 N 16 '16 470w

+ N Y Times 21:296 Jl 23 '16 90w

"Instructive review of the development and present (1914) organization of railways as influencing military tactics, considering the conditions essential to efficiency and the limitations to their usefulness."

+ Pittsburgh 21:350 Jl '16 27w

+ R of Rs 54:115 Jl '16 70w

"We live in the age of war by machinery. Mr. Pratt's book is a very useful introduction to the subject, though we cannot say that he has greatly enlivened his theme. He might try to drop the habit of putting very obvious truths, principles, or deductions in the form of lists in which each morsel of obvious information is dignified with its own number."

+ — Spec 116:292 F 26 '16 2300w

PRATT, JAMES BISSETT. India and its faiths; a traveler's record. Il *$4 (2c)
Houghton 275.4 15-24926

The author approaches his subject from the point of view of a student of the psychology of religion. "I am neither a Sanskritist nor a missionary nor a convert to some oriental cult; and that perhaps constitutes my chief qualification for writing on India," he says. "For I have had no axe to grind, and my interest has been centered on existing conditions, on present-day ideas and their significance, and on the methods used by the different communities of India for religious education and religious reform." (Preface) Some of the chapters are: On avoiding misunderstandings; Hindu worship; The Hindu pilgrim; The many gods; The one God; Duty and destiny; The Hindu dharma; Teachers, priests, and holy men. There is also one chapter devoted to Christian missions in India and the final chapter suggests lessons which the West might learn from the East.

"Those who have read the half-pictures—most valuable though they be of the Abbé Du-bois' Hindu manners, customs, and ceremonies' on the one hand, and those of Sister Nivedita, Fielding Hall, and Mrs. Besant on the other, will find in this book a conscious endeavor to avoid these extremes by not merely giving facts, but by giving facts in such balance that the resulting will be true. . . . No other book is known to the reviewer that sets forth with greater fulness the methods used by the different communities of India for religious education." D. J. Fleming

+ Am J Theol 20:450 Jl '16 930w

"More interesting reading than Jones' India; its life and thought,' but smaller libraries having Jones will not need this except where there is special need."

+ A L A Bkl 12:313 Ap '16

+ Cath World 103:690 Ag '16 500w

"The author's training in the problems of psychology and religion (he is professor of philosophy in Williams college) made an admirable propædæutic for his investigations in India; and he has given us a thoughtful book, that is scholarly with no tinge of pedantry, and is unmarred by intolerance. . . . Inasmuch as we have commended the book so warmly, even if we have ventured to differ about some not unimportant points, we shall not be misunderstood

PRATT, JAMES BISSETT—Continued
if we voice a protest on a few details. . . . In a second edition, which we hope will be demanded very soon, a few statistical tables might well be inserted before the helpful index."
F. B. R. Helms

+ Dial 60:114 F 3 '16 2250w

+ Ind 85:391 Mr 13 '16 270w

"It is hardly too much to say that it outranks almost any three or four volumes on the subject now available. Moreover, there is nothing here of the 'dry-as-dust' character. The author is as close an observer as he is a lucid and intelligent narrator."

+ Lit D 52:1107 Ap 15 '16 320w

"A careful and well-considered criticism of modern faiths in India, for the more intimate study of which the author had carefully prepared himself. Not all is of equal value. The chapter on the Sikhs is rather negligible as new matter, while that on the Jains is imbued with first-hand and appreciative criticism, both favorable and adverse. The survey of Christian work in India is excellent."

+ Nation 102:521 My 11 '16 650w

N Y Br Lib News 3:29 F '16

"There are parts of it which are worth reading just for the charm of the writing and quite apart from the matters of importance which it portrays."

+ N Y Times 21:171 Ap 23 '16 1700w

"The record of a distinctly competent observer and of a reader and compiler who knows much of the best literature on the subject."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:353 Je '16 300w

R of Rs 53:120 Ja '16 100w

+ Spec 117:269 S 2 '16 150w

"A judicial treatise. . . . 'Christian missions in India, ought to be read both by the friends and critics of missions.'"

+ Springfield Republican p6 Je 12 '16 1050w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p335 Jl 13 '16 90w

"The touch of dry humor is not lacking; and he is specially American in his robust optimism, his practical spirit."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p412 Ag 31 '16 1800w

"He has done his work with the utmost sympathy and skill and given us a book of most unusual value for its style, accuracy, and comprehensiveness. As a psychological and practical interpretation it stands somewhat alone. . . . The chapter on Christian missions in India is eminently sane, and while Dr. Pratt has 'no axe to grind,' he affords the reader a scholarly and unprejudiced justification for the attempt to Christianize India." J: C. Archer

+ Yale R ns 6:217 O '16 830w

PRATZ, CLAIRE DE. Frenchwoman's notes on the war. *$1.50 Dutton 94.01

(Eng ed 16-6714)

"The author tells us in fluent, logical English why France, fearing Germany, and cherishing the idea of 'revanche,' was, in a large measure, unprepared for war. These causes naturally were largely political. She analyzes the fighting spirit of the French, the influence of war on national character, and outlines the women's part in the war."—R of Rs

A L A Bkl 13:117 D '16

"What she has done with sincerity and fire, is to blazon a picture of the heart of the French people, through the mirror of her own personality."

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 8 '16 470w

+ Ind 88:415 D 4 '16 60w

+ Lit D 53:1182 N 4 '16 280w

N Y Br Lib News 3:70 My '16

Pittsburgh 21:432 O '16 40w

Pratt p35 O '16 50w

+ R of Rs 54:573 N '16 130w

+ Springfield Republican p8 S 29 '16 500w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p99 Mr 2 '16 200w

PRIME, WILLIAM COWPER. Along New England roads. 1l *$1 (2c) Harper 917.4

A reprint of a book published in 1892. It is made up of articles contributed originally to the New York Journal of Commerce, all consisting of descriptions and sketches of New England. The original illustrations are reproduced.

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:548 Jl '16 130w

"The author has been dead more than eleven years, but that is no reason why his book should not enjoy a green old age." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:55 Jl 15 '16 150w

"His chapter on epitaphs and names culls the rare and unusual out of the commonplace."

+ Ind 86:403 Je 5 '16 50w

N Y Times 21:237 Je 11 '16 120w

"These letters were widely read at the time of their original publication, and every one familiar with New England scenery will appreciate them."

+ R of Rs 53:757 Je '16 60w

"The book has a human interest that renders it above the accident of date and justifies its claim upon a new generation of readers."

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 21 '16 180w

PRINGLE, MARY P., and URANN, CLARA A. Yule-tide in many lands. 1l *$1 (4c) Lothrop 394 16-17338

A chapter on Yule-tide of the ancients is followed by chapters on Yule-tide in England, Germany, Scandinavia, Russia, France, Italy, Spain and America. The authors describe the Christmas customs of each country and to each chapter add one or more poems, some of them well-known. Miss Pringle is reference librarian for the Minnesota public library commission.

"Will probably be used more for reference and by grown-ups than by the children themselves. Rather cheap make-up."

A L A Bkl 13:184 Ja '17

+ Bull of Bibliography 9:87 O '16 70w

+ Lit D 53:1613 D 16 '16 90w

+ N Y Times 21:387 O 1 '16 40w

+ St Louis 14:430 D '16 10w

"It is well illustrated and covers its ground admirably."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 40w

PRINZING, FRIEDRICH. Epidemics resulting from wars; ed. by H. Westergaard. *$2.50 Oxford 614.4 16-21765

"This work forms a part of that scientific investigation into the causes and results of war, which was organized at Berne in 1911 by the Carnegie endowment for international peace. The volume gives a very full and accurate description of the way in which epidemics resulting from war have spread to the non-belligerent population and also to countries which are far removed from the immediate seat of hostilities. The various diseases which Dr. Prinzing classifies among war pestilences—namely, typhus fever, bubonic plague, cholera, dysentery, typhoid fever, smallpox, and scurvy—are briefly but carefully described. . . . Dr. Prinzing's investigations extend from the time of the crusades to the siege of Port Arthur, but he has wisely confined himself to the detailed examination of three well-known war epochs—namely, the Thirty years war, the Napoleonic wars, and the Franco-German war of 1870."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

+ Educ R 52:528 D '16 70w

"The book is of peculiar interest both to the scientist and to students of questions of civic health." V. J.

+ Int J Ethics 27:265 Ja '17 570w

Spec 117:191 Ag 12 '16 230w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p323 Jl 6 '16 170w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p356 Jl 27 '16 1450w

PRITCHARD, MYRON THOMAS, and TURK-INGTON, GRACE ALICE. Stories of thrift for young Americans. il *$1 (2c) Scribner 331.84 15-25491

"Here are 21 chapters conveying each a moral in story form, wherein the children of a family or a whole schoolroom are shown a number of important lessons in economy and economics. . . . There is no incitement to cultivate miserliness; wealth is not exalted for its own sake, but only for what it will do. And the lessons do not all apply to money; they concern the waste of time and of health and of opportunity. There are no gold mines suddenly discovered, nor gold bricks; but the value of the saving habit which puts seeming luxuries within the reach of the prudent is abundantly emphasized."—Springfield Republican

+ A L A Bkl 12:436 Je '16

"Many a story has the teachings of thrift as a basis, but here is a book in which thrift itself is set forth in every line in interesting story form, where real interest and curiosity are aroused so that children will actually beg for chapter doses of what in precept form would be considered by them preachy. If read by the members of the family it will permeate the whole family group."

+ Boston Transcript p20 D 29 '15 300w

"They are direct, interesting, unforced, and will be helpful in making plain the value of economy in effort, strength and time, as well as money."

+ Ind 85:132 Ja 24 '16 50w

"Older people may well read the book. . . . The volume ought to be made a part of the prescribed reading of every school room."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 13 '16 300w

"A good book to put upon the shelves of libraries at home and school and to be talked over with young people who think being thrifty and being stingy are necessarily the same thing."

+ Survey 36:211 My 20 '16 80w

PROCTOR, EDNA DEAN. Glory of toil, and other poems. *75c Houghton 811 16-21744

The author has several volumes of verse to her credit and her poems have been appearing in the magazines over a period of years. In addition to the title poem this volume contains: The war in Europe—1915; The trust by the Grand canyon; A woman of Paris; Mount Tacoma; On the Massachusetts coast, and other poems.

+ Ind 89:153 Ja 22 '17 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:181 D '16

PROCTOR, GERTRUDE AMELIA. Gleams of scarlet. *$1.35 (2c) Sherman, French & co. 15-18829

"Much of the action of this story takes place in the pine-girt mountains of the Northwestern Rockies. . . . The tale is largely concerned with the characters and fates of a young woman of the mountain region and her elder brother. A woman physician on a tour of the West sees the two young people and is much interested in them. The young man later is charged with a serious crime and his trial and the way in which his innocence is proved provide much of the action and plot. . . . A love story develops in which the girl and her brother's lawyer finally discover that they love each other, although their happiness results in disappointment to several others."—N Y Times

"A quietly told tale through whose pages one scents the breath of the western hills."

+ N Y Times 21:70 F 27 '16 180w

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Ag 19 '15 300w

PROTHEROE, ERNEST. Noble woman. pa *40c (1½c) Abingdon press 940.91

(Eng ed 16-15541)

In this "life-story of Edith Cavell" but 22 pages are given to biographical details. The remainder of the book tells vividly of her arrest in the hospital in Brussels while tending a wounded German soldier, the efforts of Brand

Whitlock, the American minister on her behalf, the so-called trial and her execution. Then follow an account of the memorial service at St. Paul's, the German defence and the effect of the crime upon the public and the press of two continents.

"The author makes no pretence of judicial impartiality, and there is no reason why he should; the facts speak for themselves, and if they did not the German military authorities would be condemned out of the cynical mouth of Dr. Zimmermann."

+ Nation 102:415 Ap 13 '16 630w

PROUTY, OLIVE HIGGINS. Fifth wheel. il *$1.35 (2c) Stokes 16-6605

After several seasons in society Ruth Vars wakens to find that she has become a fifth wheel in the homes of her married brothers and sisters. The only way she sees to a position of her own is thru marriage. Two opportunities for marriage offer themselves, but in the one case love is lacking, and in the other there is a clash of ideals, and Ruth, who has cut loose from her family, finds herself in New York with the problem of earning a living before her. Good fortune favors her. She is established in a paying position, is swept into the woman movement, and takes part in the suffrage parade. It is the sight of Ruth riding at the head of her division that melts Bob Jennings's stubborn heart and paves the way for a final reconciliation between the two lovers.

"Will be popular though not so popular as 'Bobbie, general manager.' Appeared in American magazine."

+ A L A Bkl 12:385 My '16

Boston Transcript p7 D 13 '16 240w

+ Ind 87:33 Jl 3 '16 50w

+ — Lit D 52:979 Ap 8 '16 270w

+ — N Y Times 21:114 Mr 26 '16 420w

"A keen analysis of the woman who wants to support herself. No drab, self-righteous tale, but a colorful, human story." Doris Webb

+ Pub W 89:1024 Mr 18 '16 850w

"Many writers of fiction have given much attention to the general subject of feminine unrest or to particular phases of it. Mrs. Prouty is among the first to offer a comprehensive reason for its existence. The novel is stronger on the side of argument than art."

+ Springfield Republican p15 My 15 '16 350w

PULLER, EDWIN SEWARD. Your boy and his training. *$1.50 Appleton—173 16-11606

"Mr. Puller, former president of the Scout-masters' association of St. Louis, has written a practical treatise on what he calls 'the eternal boy problem.' He has some good things to say on the responsibility of parents, the repressive and suggestive methods of training, children's courts, and the influence of the Boy scout movement."—Cath World

+ A L A Bkl 13:146 Ja '17

+ Cath World 103:696 Ag '16 80w

+ Ind 87:33 Jl 3 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:91 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:333 Ag 27 '16 60w

Pratt p7 O '16 20w

+ R of Rs 55:214 F '17 50w

St Louis 14:383 N '16

"Simple, sensible, sympathetic and suggestive." H: W. Thurston

+ Survey 37:343 D 23 '16 130w

PULSIFER, HAROLD TROWBRIDGE. Mothers and men. (New poetry ser.) *50c Houghton 811 16-19646

The title of the book applies particularly to the first section, in which there are poems on "The mothers," "To an unborn child," "Mother and son" and kindred themes. The second section contains "I would not be a child again" and other poems, some of them reprinted from the Outlook. The third section, in addition to the prize poem "The conquest of the air," has poems that touch on national and international themes.

PULSIFER, HAROLD TROWBRIDGE —Cont.

+ Lit D 53:1413 N 25 '16 140w
N Y Br Lib News 3:173 N '16

"'Mothers and men' shows little of immaturity in substance or in form; its unabashed tenderness and its enthusiasm are not blurred by unfinished workmanship. It is a heartening book for those to whom the earliest and oldest form of love and the patriotism that does not take count of the cost are dear." H. W. Mabie

+ Outlook 114:882 D 20 '16 950w

"The poems of the first section are exceptionally beautiful tributes to motherhood. The poem, 'The conquest of the air,' a superb piece of versification, was awarded the Lloyd McKim Garrison prize by Harvard college."

+ R of Rs 54:568 N '16 50w

PURINTON, EDWARD EARLE. Triumph of the man who acts, and other papers. *$1.35
(2c) McBride 170.4 16-23061

Mr. Purinton is efficiency expert for the Independent and author of "Efficient living." In this book he writes of: The triumph of the man who acts; The efficient optimist; How to succeed; Unused powers; How to achieve happiness; Causes of unhappiness; The boon of concentration; A sound body and the efficient life; Woman's work; Man and his community; The fine art of giving, etc.

PUSEY, WILLIAM ALLEN. Syphilis as a modern problem. 50c Am. medical assn. 616.9
15-14491

"Dr. Pusey considers syphilis from the standpoint of its effect on society, not primarily as a disease which medicine is called on to treat. The first three chapters present a concise and interestingly written history of syphilis from the beginning of recorded scientific information. The next three chapters present a non-technical statement of the course of syphilis, and succeeding chapters present the facts concerning hereditary syphilis, the pathology and etiology of the disease, and special discussions of syphilis in relation to marriage and the possibilities of a practical campaign for prevention of the disease."—Survey

"It is clear and readable and should appeal to the intelligent portion of the public." E. H. Sutherland

+ Am J Soc 22:272 S '16 350w

"An authoritative, calm, convincing presentation."

+ A L A Bkl 12:412 Je '16

"Dr. Pusey's book is a step in the direction of enlightening the public regarding the problem, and should make a strong appeal to the intelligent public. It is not written as a popular discussion. Some of the topics are rather technical, but on the whole technicalities have been avoided, so that the layman can read the book without undue effort."

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 11 '16 150w

"The American medical association has done much to promote the social hygiene movement through the publication and distribution of scientific articles, educational pamphlets, and lectures, but probably no single effort has had as wide an influence as that which Dr. Pusey's book promises." W. F. Snow

+ Survey 35:645 F 26 '16 580w

PUTNAM, GEORGE PALMER, comp. Tabular views of universal history. 1l *$2.50 Putnam 902 14-22664

"A new edition, revised and enlarged, of George Palmer Putnam's 'The world's progress' has been continued to date under the editorial supervision of the compiler's son, Mr. George Haven Putnam. The original scheme has been preserved of presenting, in parallel columns, a record of the most noteworthy events in the world's history."—Dial

"Ancient history is thus so to speak brought up to date."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 12 '15 270w

"To this new edition is added an index—an indispensable aid for quick reference to a volume of this kind."

+ Dial 59:118 Ag 15 '15 100w

Ind 82:167 Ap 26 '15 100w

"So far as we have tested it, the book is fairly accurate in statement and judicial in selection, and therefore convenient for purposes of reference or of cramming."

+ Nation 101:155 J1 29 '15 150w

N Y Times 20:247 J1 4 '15 80w

"Would have been more practical if a good many of the items in the most recent years had been omitted."

+ Outlook 110:154 My 19 '15 60w

+ R of Rs 52:123 J1 '15 90w

PUTNAM, NINA WILCOX. Adam's garden. 1l
*$1.25 (2c) Lippincott 16-9267

Adam Van Vleck spends the last of his money on one glorious night of rioting, and finds himself in the morning the possessor of a dress suit and a hand organ. He disposes of the hand organ in exchange for a junk shop, and then in turn becomes the owner, in partnership with an ex-prize-fighter, of a flower garden that proves to have commercial possibilities. There is an Eve too, a lady aviator, and a serpent enters the garden in the person of Adam's cousin, Breckenridge Allen, who is to inherit his father's fortune in his stead. There are both idyllic and melodramatic elements in the story and a satisfactory ending which reveals the fact that Adam has all the time been fulfilling the conditions of his father's will and making his inheritance secure.

"The story, though built upon a perfectly conventional plan, is entertainingly told."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 12 '16 170w

+ Lit D 52:1466 My 20 '16 270w

+ Nation 103:489 N 23 '16 180w

"A very readable bit of fluff that sounds like the Alger that was forbidden us in our youth. . . . All in all, though, this would make fine reading on a lazy vacation, if your critical faculties are asleep and you do not mind inaccuracies, solecisms, improbabilities, and such like." W. M. F.

+ N Y Call p14 My 11 '16 270w

"Preposterous but very readable story."

+ N Y Times 21:283 J1 16 '16 310w

"The big-heartedness of the characters, with the exception of the real stage villain, redeems the story from its amazing structure. It is full of warmth and sunlight, and its inner urge is—that come what may—the world is a good place to live in if we only make the best of that which lies nearest to hand."

+ R of Rs 53:635 My '16 220w

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 28 '16 300w

In the second month of the war Mr. Pyke, a great adventure in three phases. 1l *$1.50 (2c) Houghton 940.91 (Eng ed 16-6511)

In the second month of the war Mr. Pyke, a young Cambridge man, undertook to go to Berlin to report on the press of economic necessity. The idea was his own and he persuaded the editor of the London Daily Chronicle to let him try it on his own responsibility. He arrived safely in Berlin, but his observations were cut short by arrest. He was taken to the Alexanderplatz prison, confined in solitary and given a taste of the experiences that, until recently, fell to the lot of criminals serving life sentence in San Quentin or Sing Sing. Later he was transferred to Ruhleben, the detention camp for English civilians outside Berlin. In company with a friend, he made his escape in July, 1915, and after an adventurous cross-country journey reached Holland and safety.

+ A L A Bkl 12:422 Je '16

"Mr. Geoffrey Pyke's experiences and escape from Ruhleben read better than half the adventures of fiction. His account of his confinement at the Alexanderplatz and the Stadt Vogel prisons is admirably vivid."

+ Ath p120 Mr '16 680w

"Mr. Pyke, needless to say, spares none of his journalistic wiles to make the account interesting. It is thrilling. More than that, his account of the Prussian prisons and of the life in the camp is of unique value as one of the few descriptions which have leaked through to the public."

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ap 19 '16 550w

+ Cleveland p138 N '16 70w

+ Lit D 52:1714 Je 10 '16 200w

"The first part of the book is rather tedious and reveals the author's youth in its patient analysis of his own psychology. When it comes to the escape, the quality of Mr. Pyke's narrative improves in proportion to its interest. At times, indeed, it is quite absorbing, and like reading what, in fact, it is, a story of thrilling adventure."

+ Nation 102:463 Ap 27 '16 450w

"Mr. Pyke spent months in solitary confinement, the effects of which, as he describes them, are worth the consideration of all penologists."

+ N Y Times 21:261 Je 25 '16 450w

R of Rs 53:756 Je '16 30w

"Mr. Pyke not only had the pluck and the resource to carry out a nerve-shattering enterprise; he also has the ability to relate it brilliantly."

+ Spec 116:321 Mr 4 '16 1600w

Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 320w

PYKE, HAROLD REASON. Law of contraband of war. *$4.15 Oxford 341.3 16-890

"Mr. Pyke in this admirable volume not only describes the original growth of the law, but also endeavours to keep abreast of the most recent authorities. So rapid, however, has of late been its development so many new points have arisen in this war, that he has been unable to keep pace with the development of the law of contraband. In the text the important judgment in the Kim case is not noticed. Mr. Pyke has to be content with analysing and stating in his preface the main effects of this leading case." (The Times [London] Lit Sup) The appendixes give the Declaration of London, the orders in Council, etc.

"To those who from a sense of scholarly duty have attempted to thread their way through the British orders in council, the American protests, the British replies and further American protests, the present volume will come as a welcome light in the darkness. . . . An excellent bibliography, classified according to subject matter, gives additional value to a work which has much intrinsic merit." C. G. Fenwick

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:797 N '16 480w

"Lucidly describes the growth of contraband law. Up to date with recent authorities so far as rapid development allows. Accurate and complete, with long list of authorities cited."

+ Library Association Record 18:173 Ap 15 '16 30w

"We have found in every chapter proof that Mr. Pyke has spared no pains to make it accurate and complete, and to produce what is, on the whole, the best book on the subject."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p26 Ja 20 '16 1100w

PYLE, KATHARINE. Wonder tales retold. il *$1.35 (2c) Little 16-17509

A collection of stories for children drawn from the folklore of many lands. Among the stories are: Long, Broad, and Sharpshot, a story from Bohemia; The dwarf with the golden beard, a Slavonic fairy tale; The great white bear and the trolls, a story from the Norse; The stones of Plouvinec, a tale from Brittany; The king of the buffaloes, an American Indian tale; The jackal and the alligator, a Hindoo fairy tale.

"Well written, some of them will be unfamiliar to many children."

+ A L A Bkl 13:88 N '16

"The author's own work as illustrator adds charm to the book." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:405 D '16 60w

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 7 '16 140w

"Unfamiliar and very varied stories charmingly told."

+ Ind 88:465 D 11 '16 50w

Q

QUACKENBOS, JOHN DUNCAN. Body and spirit. *$1.50 (2½c). Harper 134 16-10777

An inquiry into the subconscious based upon the author's intimate experiences in psychotherapy. He shows us, as "laggards and camp-followers" of the great forces we cannot see, the latent unused power behind the visible. It is the power that fills one with reverence for human personality, the power that commands the output of thought, the power which, dynamically directed and applied, restores distraught human beings to wholeness. A particularly salutary chapter is one on "Psychic suffering" in which the writer shows how much physical and mental distress in this life is unreal and avoidable and how it may be averted.

N Y Br Lib News 3:94 Je '16

N Y Times 21:244 Je 11 '16 350w

+ R of Rs 54:122 Jl '16 80w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p287 Je 15 '16 140w

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS. ("Q" pseud.). On the art of writing. *$1.50 Putnam 803 16-9154

This is a series of lectures given by Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch as King Edward VII professor of English literature in the University of Cambridge in 1913-14. They are printed as they were delivered. Their preaching is "that the art of writing is a living business. Literature is not a mere science, to be studied; but an art, to be practised." To this end "Q" speaks on "The practise of writing, On the difference between verse and prose, On the capital difficulty of verse, On jargon, On the capital difficulty of prose, On the lineage of English literature, On English literature in our universities, On style."

A L A Bkl 13:22 O '16

"Q" not only writes but also lectures as a novelist, and is full of good stories of a post-prandial, but never inapposite kind. These lectures may well be appraised as a capital example of the wisdom of letting a practical writer, who is also a critic, discuss and expound the principles on which he has himself attained success in his art."

+ Ath p176 Ap '16 1250w

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 17 '16 1550w

"An interlude on 'Jargon' touches satirically on the pompous, abstract, and meaningless verbiage now so common in newspapers, Parliamentary debates, official documents, etc. This is perhaps the most useful chapter in the book."

+ Library Association Record 18:175 Ap 15 '16 110w

"There is much poetic feeling, in spite of a scheme which is as precise as it is ingenious. . . . A book which is likely to be regarded by American instructors in English composition as queer."

+ Natlon 102:572 My 25 '16 500w

+ N Y Times 21:304 Jl 30 '16 340w

"Here is a book, intended for students (it is, in fact, a compilation of college lectures), which rebukes and heartens you by its vision, its ripeness, its large tolerance, its pervasive charm, its impeccable taste. It is written out of an exquisite and vivid consciousness of all that is soundest, noblest, and most excellent in literary art." Lawrence Gilman

+ No Am 204:139 Jl '16 1450w

"English is an art whose study and practice is essential. Sir Arthur's lectures drive at this truth continually; and they drive at it from many angles. They are just a series of friendly talks with young men at Cambridge, salted with companionable references to their young pursuits, peppered with excellent quotations, and inspiring by reason of the sure taste and grip of the lecturer himself in the art with which he is dealing."

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR A. T:—Continued

+ Sat R 121:330 Ap 1 '16 1350w

+ Spec 116:322 Mr 4 '16 1000w

+ Springf'd Republican p15 My 15 '16 1150w

"These lectures, though they do not pretend to be a handbook of rules, are yet explicitly practical. They are the beginning of a liberal education in style."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p145 Mr 30 '16 2500w

QUINTERO, SERAFÍN ÁLVAREZ, and QUINTERO, JOAQUÍN ÁLVAREZ. Malvaloca; tr. from the Spanish by Jacob S. Fassett, jr.; with an introd. by J. Garrett Underhill. (Drama league ser. of plays) il *75c Doubleday 862 16-23445

A play by two brothers who do all their work in collaboration. They are popular in their native Spain and their plays have been translated into French, German and Italian. "Malvaloca," the first to appear in English, is a three-act play suggested by an Andalusian song:

"Let this mountain maid
Be remade again,
Like the bells remade."

The recasting of a convent bell and the awakening of a woman's soul thru love are interwoven as the theme of the play. The introduction says, "The brothers Quintero are modernists by temperament and by artistic affiliation. The interest of a play, in their conception, does not lie in what is about to happen, but in what is happening at the moment, of which the future promise is but a phase."

QUIRK, LESLIE W. Ice-boat Number one. il *$1.20 (2c) Little 16-11042

The fourth story in the "Wellworth college series." "Penny" Wayne is still the hero. College rivalry, with a regular feud involved, furnishes the thread of the story, with incidents a plenty growing out of athletic contests to string upon it. Wrestling matches, ski contests, ice sports including hockey and ice-boat polo, demand the out-of-door atmosphere that shows the college boys at their strongest and best.

"For older boys."

+ A L A Bkl 12:487 Jl '16

"Mr. Quirk understands not only boys but athletics. Moreover, his ideals are good for a boy to strive to attain. The action never halts."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 230w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 150w

"Fourth in Wellworth college series, and, like the others, a story of clean sport and boys who are real and likable."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:273 Je '16 20w

R

RADIN, MAX. Jews among the Greeks and Romans. il $1.50 Jewish pub. 296 16-1712

"The period of which the book treats extends over about six centuries. Its starting point is the time of Alexander, 'when the Jews as one of the Mediterranean nations began to come into close contact with Greek civilization'; its end, 'the stage of Jewish relations beginning with the dominance of Christianity.' The descriptions of the varied social, legal, religious, and intellectual relationships that existed between Jew and Greek and Roman are vivid with pertinent detail and pointed illustration." (N Y Times) "For the material of this study the author has depended upon the Old Testament and its Apocryphal writings, the works of Josephus, and particularly the collection of classical references to the Jews made by M. A. Reinach." (Ind)

A L A Bkl 13:7 O '16

+ — Eng Hist R 31:662 O '16 320w

"While the apologetic purpose is not concealed, the book will be of value to other than Jewish scholars."

+ Ind 86:458 Je 12 '16 230w

"The subject of Dr. Radin's work is vast, but he covers each of its manifold aspects adequately and yet with such conciseness that the volume is not rendered too bulky in either matter, or form for the perusal of the lay reader."

+ N Y Times 21:196 My 7 '16 470w

Pittsburgh 21:101 Mr '16 60w

+ R of Rs 54:348 S '16 10w

RADZIWIŁŁ, CATHERINE (RZEWUSKA) princess. Royal marriage market of Europe. il *$2 (5c) Funk 923.1 15-22270

The author has told the stories of the marriages of living members of the royal families of Europe. She has attempted to show the part which these unions have played in the present war and, believing that the question of royal alliances will be an important one at the close of the war, she has told something of all the princes and princesses who will in the near future be eligible for thrones.

"If the book is well written, chatty, and furthermore, neither scurrilous nor risqué, it may well find a permanent place on our shelves. 'The marriage market of Europe' is this sort of book. On the whole it is written very well indeed. One is left with an impression of frankness and common sense at the end of a very interesting book."

+ N Y Times 21:252 Je 18 '16 850w

RADZIWIŁŁ, CATHERINE (RZEWUSKA) princess. Sovereigns and statesmen of Europe. il *$2.50 (4c) Funk 923 16-6710

The author has written sketches of the rulers and political leaders of the countries now at war, devoting a chapter to each country. A great deal of current history is included in the narrative, and the final chapter takes a look toward the future.

"Good illustrations from photographs."

+ A L A Bkl 12:426 Je '16

"It is evident that she has studied persons more than policies in the course of many years' experience of intimate acquaintance with many, if not most, of the ruling powers in European governments. And is it unfair to judge that she is influenced in her judgments, as most women are, more by their preferences and sympathies than by the cold and calm powers of reason?" H. S. K.

+ — Boston Transcript p24 F 23 '16 600w

N Y Br Lib News 3:41 Mr '16

+ N Y Times 21:252 Je 18 '16 1100w

RAEMAEKERS, LOUIS. Raemaekers' cartoons; with an appreciation from H. H. Asquith. *$5 Doubleday 940.91 16-22444

This collection of pictures by the Dutch cartoonist is published with an introduction by Francis Stopford and with notes to accompany the pictures written by Eden Phillpotts, Hilaire Belloc, G. K. Chesterton, John Buchan, Boyd Cable, Sir Sidney Lee, Alice Meynell, and others. One hundred and fifty cartoons, all bearing on the war, are reproduced.

"Raemaekers has been said to be worth more to the Allies than two army corps." N. H. D.
+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 13 '17 490w

"No man or woman should evade the responsibility of studying each one of them. They tell us more than can words something of what the men at the front have suffered. Those of us who have not done our bit in actual service, owe it to the memory of those who have, to realize as intimately and vividly as is possible what war is. Else, how shall we know the magnitude of our debt?"

+ Dial 61:479 N 30 '16 230w

+ Nation 103:589 D 21 '16 440w

"In this extraordinary volume, beautifully bound and printed, we find examples of the powerful, almost terrifying talent of the artist who has been called the only genius brought out by the war. . . . The book is great in historical as well as artistic importance."

+ N Y Times 21:512 N 26 '16 200w

"Some of these comments might pose as an English echo of the German 'Hymn of hate'; and the book would be quite as satisfactory without them. But it is only fair to say, per contra, that other pages are really explanatory and illuminating; and as touching the neutral attitude of Uncle Sam, for instance, both artist and writers have caught the true American point of view."

+ Springfield Republican p7 N 25 '16 480w

RAI, LAJPAT. Young India; foreword by J. T. Sunderland. il *$1.50 (2½c) Huebsch 954 16-16110

This interpretation of the nationalist movement in India is written by one who has had an active part in it from its beginning. He is a leading member of the bar in Lahore, we are told in the foreword, and is prominent in both local and national affairs. "While Mr. Rai is an ardent and uncompromising advocate of the nationalist cause," says Mr. Sunderland, "he has always counselled procedure by evolutionary and not by revolutionary measures." Contents: The general viewpoint of the Indian Nationalist; India from 1757 to 1857; India from 1857-1905; The first years of the nationalist movement; Types of Nationalists; Indian Nationalism and world-forces; The religious and communal elements in Indian Nationalism; The future. There is a short bibliography of books in English.

A L A Bkl 13:116 D '16

"Entirely one-sided and somewhat heated in temper, but interesting as giving an unfamiliar viewpoint."

Cleveland p136 N '16 20w

"All of the traditional arguments against British rule are skilfully propounded; but, unfortunately, the old failure to face realities is also in evidence. . . . To all thinking Americans we can recommend the volume."

+ Dial 61:318 O 19 '16 340w

"There are certain elements in Hinduism which Mr. Rai discreetly fails to touch upon, but concerning which western civilization would like to possess definite information. Instead he paints the British administration as black as some Hindu practises we refrain from mentioning."

— Ind 88:282 N 13 '16 160w

"Now Lajpat Rai re-appears in America, with this trenchant little book. And in the book I find the same keen and disinterested temper, solicitous for peace and philanthropic measures, but stirred to the soul by continued wrong." H: W. Nevinson

+ New Repub 8:226 S 30 '16 1850w

"Mr. Rai's description of the early days of the nationalist movement in India is of extraordinary interest, and strongly suggests the similar movement in Ireland."

N Y Times 21:351 S 10 '16 1600w

Pratt p41 Ja '17 30w

St Louis 15:24 Ja '17

"His book is written in rather a bitter spirit, and paints a most unflattering picture, to say the least, of British rule in India. . . . Although Mr. Rai may, possibly, exaggerate the capabilities of the Indians for self-government, his book is well worth the attention of serious people, and should furnish much food for thought to British administrators."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 17 '16 480w

RALEIGH, SIR WALTER ALEXANDER. Romance. *$1 (6c) Princeton univ. press 820.4 16-24446

Two lectures delivered at Princeton university during Sir Walter Raleigh's visit to this country in 1915. The first on The origin of romance is devoted to the genesis of the romantic movement in English literature. The second, Imitation and forgery, points out the weaknesses of romanticism. In the romantic movement, more than any other movement in literature, he says, "it was not the supply which created the demand, but the demand which created the supply. The romantic change was wrought, not by the energy of lonely pioneers, but by a shift in public taste."

"He has simply taken a standard subject of literary criticism and clothed it with the trappings of an active and eager mind, with genial and self-deprecating scholarship, and with arresting and imaginative phrases. An exhaustive and methodical study he has not given us."

+ Springfield Republican p13 N 5 '16 1300w

"We must be prepared, then, to hold a slim little book in our hands and to find that each sentence holds enough matter to fill a page."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p31 Ja 18 '17 1000w

RAMSEY, ALBERT R. J., and WESTON, H. CLAUDE. Manual on explosives. il *$1 Dutton (*1s G. Routledge and sons, London) 662.2 War16-137

"This little manual is intended to furnish to the munition worker, as well as to the general reader, concise information on the nature of explosives and on their manufacture, and further to emphasize the very important part which explosives play in the sphere of modern engineering."—Nature

Ind 88:127 O 16 '16 30w

"It is certainly an excellent little primer. Particularly good is the description of the manufacture of nitro-cellulose, nitro-glycerin, and the modern high explosives, the text being illustrated by excellent diagrammatic representations of the various plants employed. The authors have shown considerable discretion in the allotment of space to the different explosives, but more might well have been devoted to propellants. Smokeless powders, other than cordite, scarcely receive mention. A valuable chapter is one on 'Industrial poisoning among explosive workers and its prevention.'"

+ Nature 97:279 Je 1 '16 240w

N Y Br Lib News 3:154 O '16

"Readable and non-technical. Reviewed in Chemical Trade Journal, May 6, 1916."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p6 My '16 90w

+ N Y Times 21:551 D 10 '16 70w

+ Quar List New Tech Bks Ja '17 30w

+ R of Rs 54:459 O '16 110w

St Louis 14:434 D '16

+ Springfield Republican p10 O 13 '16 270w

RAMSEY, WALTER REEVE. Care and feeding of infants and children. (Lippincott's nursing manuals) il *$2 Lippincott 649 16-17343

A book designed primarily as a text for nurses. The author says, "I have tried to make it practical and at the same time sufficiently comprehensive to meet the increasing demand for a broader education along the line of preventive medicine." The book is limited strictly to the physical care of young children and covers its subject thoroughly and scientifically. Abnormal conditions and deformities, the care of delicate infants, care in illness and disease, are treated in addition to directions for feeding and proper care of normal children. The author is associate professor of diseases of children at the University of Minnesota and suggestions on nursing have been contributed to the book by Margaret B. Lettice, of the Baby welfare association of St. Paul, and Nan Gosman, nurse in charge of the children's department of the University of Minnesota hospital.

+ A L A Bkl 13:156 Ja '17

N Y Br Lib News 3:155 O '16

"The form is excellent, the text accurate, and unusually up to date. Contagious diseases, disorders and deformities are specially well handled. The best manual on children for the well-educated mother."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:407 N '16 90w

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

RAMSEY, WALTER REEVE. Infancy and childhood. il *$1.25 (3½c) Dutton 649 16-6585

A book on the feeding and care of infants and young children. It has been prepared in the belief that the only way to accomplish anything in preventive medicine is to gain the cooperation of the public. One of the tasks of preventive medicine is the reduction of infant mortality, for the greater part of which ignorance and bad social conditions are responsible. Chapters are devoted to Structure of the body; Growth and development; Care of the new born; Diet; Exercise; Contagious diseases, etc. The author is assistant professor of diseases of children in the University of Minnesota Medical school.

+ A L A Bk1 12:412 Je '16

Springfield Republican p15 Ap 11 '16 150w

"The feeding section is correct and up-to-date, also that on contagious diseases; in each case only the essentials are given. A useful and unusual feature is the frequent charts and tables, also the chapter on body structure. There is nothing on prenatal care, unfortunately, and little on clothing, on feeding disturbances, or on the care of older children. It ranks with Holt (8th ed. only) and Tweddell (3d ed. only), but no one of the three supplants the other two."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:184 Ap '16 100w

RANKIN, HENRY BASCOM. Personal recollections of Abraham Lincoln. il *$2 (3c) Putnam 16-11056

In his introduction Joseph Fort Newton says that the greatest value of this book lies in "its portrayal of the background of the life of Lincoln, the atmosphere and environment of his early years, and the development of his unique personality and genius." The author's first memories of Lincoln are those of a messenger boy for the Menard county circuit court at Petersburg, Illinois. Later he studied law in the offices of Lincoln and Herndon. His mother and father had been friends of the Lincolns and it was at the home of his mother that Abraham Lincoln met Ann Rutledge. It is from his own memories and from family annals that Mr. Rankin, one of the few surviving men who knew Lincoln, has written this book.

A L A Bk1 13:31 O '16

+ Ath p385 Ag '16 100w

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 17 '16 800w

"The book is rather tiresome at times on account of the fulsomeness of its praise and the pettiness of many of the details which Mr. Rankin so zealously records."

+ Cath World 103:686 Ag '16 170w

Reviewed by L. E. Robinson

+ Dial 61:309 O 19 '16 1300w

+ Ind 88:72 O 9 '16 120w

Nation 103:280 S 21 '16 1800w

"Mr. Rankin's book is like the voice of an old, affectionate neighbor, who delights in recalling the life of one of his dearest friends."

+ N Y Times 21:270 J1 2 '16 380w

R of Rs 53:754 Je '16 50w

+ Sat R 122:208 Ag 26 '16 310w

Reviewed by the Earl of Cromer

+ Spec 117:212 Ag 19 '16 2100w

"It is noticeable that lately there has crept up a way of representing this mighty man not exactly as he was, but as certain good people think he ought to be portrayed. But Mr. Rankin's book is not to be disparaged, for it is interesting throughout and is a worthy addition to Lincoln literature."

+ Springf'd Republican p13 My 21 '16 570w

"Mr. Rankin has something to tell us, and he tells it well, with a freshness which will give it a value even to those who know Mr. F. F. Browne's 'Every-day life of Abraham Lincoln,' which gathered together a very large number of reminiscences about twenty years after Lincoln's death. Particularly will Mr. Rankin's book be welcomed for its sympathetic account of Mrs. Lincoln."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p298 Je 22 '16 110w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p320 J1 6 '16 1600w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:410 N '16 70w

RANNIE, DAVID WATSON. Elements of style; an introduction to literary criticism. *$1.50 Dutton 808 16-14340

"It should be noted that at the outset the author takes the broadest possible view of the connotation of the term 'style,' which he regards as not a quality of expression but expression itself. He admits that style is by many believed to be a quality which gives distinction to certain writers or compositions, which is recognizable but yet incapable of analysis or explanation; a quality which by some is regarded as belonging to the externals of literature. Mr. Rannie's view is that style is posterior rather than external to thought. . . . This view, which identifies the criticism of style with the essential part of literary criticism, entails a panoramic range of treatment. All literary forms in prose and poetry are passed in review, including translations and journalism. Then we have an examination of words, sentences, paragraphs, sections, etc., and, lastly, chapters in which unity, fashion, and individuality are successively dealt with."—Spec

"Setting all this aside, let us frankly declare that the writer, seeking to advise the student and show him something of the secret of excellent writing, excellent style, has many good and useful things to say. He understands the art of the cogent example, which, after all, is the only practical method. He has not quite plucked out the heart of the paragraph's mystery, but his chapter on 'Words' is admirable and the most pleasing in the book."

+ Ath 1915:2:289 O 23 1250w

Ind 87:233 Ag 14 '16 40w

+ R of Rs 54:345 S '16 50w

+ Spec 115:712 N 20 '15 1050w

"The elements of style,' while the achievement in it hardly matches the aim, has considerable value both for its sound maxims and for its fertility in definitions."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 1300w

RANOUS, MRS. DORA KNOWLTON (THOMPSON). Good English in good form. *$1 Sturgis & Walton 808 16-21067

A little book which aims to be, first of all, practical. Part 1 has chapters on Speaking and writing, Topics for practice, Various types of composition, and other subjects related to the more general aspects of writing. Part 2 takes up matters of derivation and syntax; Part 3 deals with punctuation, preparation of manuscript, proof-reading, etc. The book is published with an introduction by Rossiter Johnson, who gives it his commendation.

Cath World 104:116 O '16 80w

"Compact, scholarly, and useful."

+ Dial 61:318 O 19 '16 330w

+ Ind 87:235 Ag 14 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:122 Ag '16

N Y Br Lib News 3:142 S '16

"The author has presented the whole subject clearly and simply, which should commend the work to those who seek a reference book on English."

+ Springfield Republican p15 N 25 '16 110w

RANSOM, WILLIAM LYNN. Charles E. Hughes. *$1.50 Dutton 16-16393

"Judge Ransom has selected from Mr. Hughes's opinions while on the bench during the last six years those which tend strongly to show the justice's sympathy with the general doctrine of the Republicans in regard to the extent and nature of the power of the national government. With these he has also chosen a number that show definite leaning toward that view of governmental power regarding social and economic questions entertained by the Progressives of four years ago. . . . The opinions of Justice Hughes quoted in this volume give a clear and attractive picture of the working of his mind and of the range and nature of his sympathies."—N Y Times

"Judge Ransom brings out clearly Mr. Hughes's belief in the necessity for continuous thought before action is taken but he does not convey the assurance that Mr. Hughes is really aware of the issues upon which thought is essential." H. J. Laski

— Dial 61:304 O 19 '16 670w

"Tho of especial interest to lawyers, the layman, by the description of the causes and excerpts from decisions, may gain a clear idea of the questions at issue."

+ Ind 87:419 S 18 '16 210w

+ Nation 103:350 O 12 '16 780w

+ N Y Times 21:353 S 10 '16 1150w

+ Outlook 114:272 S 27 '16 2000w

"Should be read not only for its portrayal of the work of Mr. Hughes and his colleagues but for the personal contribution of the author towards an illuminating philosophy of law." T. R. Powell

+ Pol Sci Q 31:623 D '16 1350w

R of Rs 54:455 O '16 210w

St Louis 14:388 N '16 20w

Springfield Republican p 8 S 28 '16 240w

Reviewed by Florence Kelley

+ Survey 37:54 O 14 '16 770w

RASHDALL, REV. HASTINGS. Conscience and Christ; six lectures on Christian ethics. *$1.50 Scribner 230 (Eng ed 17-2649)

"This volume contains the Haskell lectures given in Oberlin theological seminary in the autumn of 1913. The publication was delayed on account of the war. In the first lecture the author defines terms and states his own position. This involves the main attitudes toward the sources of authority. There is no such thing as a moral sense, for that would be purely emotional and unstable. But there is a moral consciousness which is based on experience, and so is firmly anchored when it ventures into the unknown. Conscience is a kind of reason which possesses objective validity. The ethical criterion is a utilitarianism which includes, not only pleasure, but moral goodness and intellectual culture. The author's point of view is, then, that of 'ideal utilitarianism.'"—Bib World

Reviewed by G. B. Smith

+ Am J Theol 21:133 Ja '17 800w

"The book is eminently sane—because scholarly and all-round, seeking to include all essential facts and to give each one its due weight."

+ Bib World 49:48 Ja '17 500w

"It follows almost inevitably, if one holds a theory of conscience similar to Dr. Rashdall's, that conscience will consist in the usual structure of prejudices of the enlightened middle classes. To this middle-class conscience the teaching of Jesus is gradually assimilated. . . . All that is anarchic, or unsafe or disconcerting in what Jesus said and did is either denied, or boiled away by the 'principle of development' (Lecture 4)." T. S. Eliot

— Int J Ethics 27:111 O '16 460w

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16

N Y Times 21:343 S 3 '16 50w

"'Readable' in a high degree."

+ Spec 117:18 Jl 1 '16 1650w

RAWNSLEY, REV. HARDWICKE DRUMMOND. Past and present at the English lakes. il *$1.75 Macmillan 9142 (Eng ed A16-1513)

"This book is mainly a collection of papers of personal observation and literary reminiscence. Among its specific topics and chapter headings are Sunrise on Helvellyn, Reminiscences of Hartley Coleridge, The German miners at Keswick, A hundred miles of beauty on the lakes, At the sign of the Nag's head, and A crack with Mrs. Dixon of Dove cottage."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 13:170 Ja '17

Boston Transcript p9 O 28 '16 550w

+ Nation 104:110 Ja 25 '17 320w

N Y Br Lib News 3:191 D '16 70w

St Louis 14:440 D '16

+ Spec 117:319 S 16 '16 450w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p307 Je 29 '16 980w

RAYMOND, WILLIAM LEE. American and foreign investment bonds. *$3 (3c) Houghton 332.6 16-8705

A clear and simple discussion of the leading classes of investment bonds. A brief introduction shows the historical stages in the development of investment in bonds and states that the present work concerns itself less with the history of borrowing than with the principles governing at present the intrinsic value of leading classes of bonds. Contents: The field of investment; United States and foreign government bonds; State bonds, County, municipal, and district bonds; Steam-railroad bonds; Public-service corporation bonds; Industrial bonds.

"Especially good for its abundant citation of sources of authority. The notes should prove useful to the earnest student seeking further information along the line of any of the topics discussed. An ample index is also a helpful part of the work." Hastings Lyon

+ Am Econ R 6:904 D '16 530w

"Of use to managers and salesmen of bond houses and the large and seasoned investor rather than to the casual investor."

+ A L A Bkl 13:62 N '16

"The index is inadequate. . . . There is in this book a fulness of detail, not otherwise accessible under one cover, regarding government, municipal, and corporation obligors and issues, which will suggest reference to this work by students, dealers and investors." L. C.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:307 S '16 270w

+ Cleveland p87 Jl '16 30w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:90 Je '16 20w

"A valuable book of reference."

+ N Y Times 21:283 Jl 16 '16 70w

"In view of the expectation that the United States may soon become the market for a large amount of foreign government securities, such a work has special timeliness."

+ R of Rs 54:119 Jl '16 50w

"Probably unique among guides to investment in that it treats the subject not only from the investor's viewpoint, but also from that of the student of economics. . . . Steam railroad bonds are considered with thoroughness, the debt history, managerial record, situation and organization of numerous lines being discussed in a manner enlightening to one who would buy some of their paper."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Jl 11 '16 170w

READ, MARY LILLIAN. Mothercraft manual. il *$1.25 Little 649 16-21567

One of the author's aims has been "to write a handbook that is so definite, concrete, and clear that the least experienced person of average intelligence will find it practical." She is director of the School of mothercraft in New York city and this book is the outgrowth of courses given to classes. The term "mothercraft" is given a broad interpretation to include all that relates to the nourishing and training of children. Contents: Mothercraft: its meaning, scope, and spirit; Establishing the home; Finding the means for mothercraft; Founding a family; Growth and development; Preparing for the baby; Care of the baby; The physical care of young children; The feeding of children; The education of the little child; Studying the individual child; A curriculum for babyhood and early childhood; Play; Games; The toy age; Story-telling; Science and history; Handwork;

READ, MARY LILLIAN—Continued
Music and art; Home nursing and first aid in the nursery. There is a bibliography of 43 pages.

"The information is conveyed in a style that makes misunderstanding by the average person almost impossible, and it is based upon the accepted facts of modern science. This is notably true in the case of the portions devoted to nutrition, which is so specialized a field in itself, but it is also true of the psychology of play, the psychology and physiology of the development of the young child, and other matters." F. F. Bernard

+ + Am J Soc 22:564 Ja '17 340w

"A helpful feature is the graphic tables for quick consultation."

+ Cleveland p146 D '16 50w

"The book is definite, concrete and clear on every subject it touches. . . . A most helpful guidebook indeed it is, and not, as so many such books are, a mass of only one person's more or less carefully thought out conclusions. . . . The index is full and more useful than most. The whole book is workable and scholarly at the same time." E. P. Wyckoff

+ Pub W 90:2075 D 9 '16 670w

READERS' guide to periodical literature [cumulated]; v 3, 1910-14. *$32 Wilson, H. W. 050 (6-8232)

This new five-year volume gathers into one alphabet all the entries to be found in the annual volumes of the Readers' Guide for 1910 to 1914 inclusive. As far as possible the indexing of magazines added to the Guide since 1910 was carried back to the beginning of the five-year period, and subject entries to 167 composite books have been included in the same alphabet with the magazine references. To bring all these references into one harmonious whole it has been necessary to reclassify many of the articles and to change many of the subject headings to accord with the latest usage. Many new sub-headings have been added to facilitate the use of the great number of references found under many subjects. The author entries have been thoroughly revised and many dates added. This new cumulation fills in all 2868 double-column pages, making a volume about one-sixth larger than the last five-year cumulation for 1905-1909. It is estimated that the new volume contains about 225,000 entries in all, representing some 60,000 articles in 7365 separate issues of the 111 magazines and reports indexed.

Library Association Record 18:120 Mr '16 10w

R of Rs 53:637 My '16

RECOLLECTIONS of a royal governess. il *$3.50 Appleton (Eng ed 16-10489) (6-8232)

"An English woman who prefers to remain anonymous is the author of this book, which is largely a record of her experiences at the Austrian court twenty years ago, interwoven with a measure of political gossip, and some intimate pictures of several members of the ill-starred Hapsburg family, including the aged Emperor Francis Joseph. The author was first attached to the household of Count Badeni, at that time governor of Galicia. . . . At Vienna the royal governess was companion to the young Archduchess Elizabeth, granddaughter of Francis Joseph and daughter of the Crown Prince Rudolph."—N Y Times

"Her picture of the administration of great Polish estates is full of life, and if Signor Gayda, the author of 'Modern Austria' could have consulted her pages, he might have modified his description of the Polish landowners as careless spendthrifts, indifferent to the misery of their peasants. . . . The governess, promoted to Vienna, found that the court buzzed with scandal, and she had little scruple about transferring that scandal to paper. Her more intimate pages read like an echo of Fanny Burney's diary."

+ — Ath 1915.2:171 S 11 950w

"The tone of the whole book reveals the author as an impartial critic and observer."

+ N Y Times 21:331 Ag 27 '16 470w

+ Spec 115:sup605 N 6 '15 700w

RECOULY, RAYMOND. General Joffre and his battles. il *$1.25 (3½c) Scribner 940.91 16-22135

Articles which have been appearing in Scribner's magazine under the signature "Captain X" have been collected for this book. The preface says, "It has been Captain Recouly's good fortune to have a share in much of the fighting, while his position on the General staff has brought him into close relation with the men by whom the fighting is planned." Contents: The General Joffre: the victor of the Marne; The French offensive in Champagne; Two collaborators of General Joffre—General de Castelnau and General Foch; Journal of the author; The battle of Verdun. There are five maps.

"The personal journal of Captain Recouly adds to what is conspicuously one of the most valuable war records."

+ Ind 89:32 Ja 1 '17 230w

"During 1915, he kept a journal on the field which excited great interest in France when it was published under the pen-name 'Jean Lery.'"

+ Lit D 53:1554 D 9 '16 140w

"Historians ought to find some of the author's maps invaluable." Harold Stearns

+ New Repub 9:sup24 N 18 '16 150w

"As a piece of writing, 'General Joffre and his battles' is distinguished by its lucidity. As a repository of intimate and important facts about some of the most interesting men and events of the war the book has a very definite place of its own."

+ N Y Times 21:478 N 12 '16 570w

"Written for the citizen; vivid, clear and optimistic throughout." P. B.

+ St Louis 15:4 Ja '17 10w

RED cross and Iron cross. *$1 Dutton 940.91 2 (Eng ed 16-15508)

"The narrative of experiences of a physician in one of the hospitals on the firing line itself. The author has dared to depict explicitly and minutely the horrors and terrors of the battlefield. The incidents are merged together in a sort of running narrative full of pathos and feeling. The doctor is friendly and tender in speaking of the German private, but stern and condemning as to the Teutonic officers."—Springfield Republican

Ind 88:551 D 25 '16 50w

"Its sincerity is obvious, of course. The skill with which it is written is considerable. But it is haunting in its tales of 'frightfulness,' and its record of war sometimes ceases to be horrible and becomes gruesome. . . . Yet it is not without its records of heroism, tenderness, very beautiful sacrifice and devotion. It is an unusual book."

+ N Y Times 21:575 D 31 '16 180w

+ Sat R 122:186 Ag 19 '16 120w

+ Spec 117:47 Jl 8 '16 800w

Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 120w

REDESDALE, ALGERNON BERTRAM FREE-MAN-MITFORD, 1st baron. Memories. 2v il *$10 Dutton (Eng ed 16-5048)

"Very few men, even among fortune's favourites, could give so pleasant and profitable an account of their seventy-eight years as Lord Redesdale has done in these pages. As diplomatist, permanent official, member of Parliament, author, and peer, his life has been full, varied, and useful, and obviously very happy. . . . When Mr. Mitford was not writing a despatch or a report he was writing 'Tales of old Japan' or some other book, or posting up his diary. When he was not tearing across Europe with a Foreign office bag he would run over to the far western states of America and have a shot at a buffalo. Or if he was not diplomatically, officially, or politically employed he would cultivate his garden in Gloucestershire, or simply sip the honey of the best society in the world." (Sat R) The pages give insight into events of international importance, such as the taking of Schleswig-Holstein by Germany in the 60's, the birth of the new Japan in 1868, etc. They are lightened by anecdotes of Swinburne as an Eton schoolboy, of Disraeli, Gladstone and other statesmen, of the Carlyles, and many persons of importance including the Czar Alexander II, the German emperor, and King Edward VII.

+ A L A Bkl 13:219 F '17

"He includes trivialities in its survey, and his style runs to wordiness. But, when he is at his best, he is informative with a lightness of touch that is more French than English, and here and there he makes genuine contributions to history. But Lord Redesdale appeals to us most forcibly as a social commentator."

+ Ath 1915:2:344 N 13 870w

"The cream of autobiography. It is full of stories and characteristic glimpses as an egg is full of meat. It would be hard to cite a work which is more likely to rank among the permanent and authentic memorials of the Victorian age." J. P. Collins

+ Boston Transcript p1 D 11 '15 4300w

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 2 '16 670w

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:257 O 5 '16 1450w

+ Ind 88:235 N 6 '16 170w

+ N Y Times 21:349 S 10 '16 2050w

Pittsburgh 21:131 Mr '16 40w

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

Pub W 91:214 Ja 20 '17 690w

+ R of Rs 54:457 O '16 90w

+ Sat R 120:496 N 20 '15 1450w

"A cultivated mind, experiences in many parts of the world, humour, geniality, innumerable friendships with well-known people, and a vigorous memory have enabled Lord Redesdale to write one of the best books of reminiscences which have appeared in recent years. Though it is long, it is eminently easy to read. We do not accept all his political judgments, but the book has historical values proper in many parts—notably the pages on the transition period of Japan."

+ Spec 115:665 N 13 '15 2250w

REDMOND-HOWARD, LOUIS G. Six days of the Irish republic; a narrative and critical account of the latest phase of Irish politics. *$1 (2c) Luce, J. W. 941.5

(Eng ed 16-22368)

The author, a nephew of John Redmond, characterizes the brief Irish rebellion as 'a challenge—of madmen, if you like—to the greatest empire in the world, at the very moment of its gravest crisis, upon the most fundamental portion of its policy of interference with the affairs of the continent, namely, England's claim to be the champion of small nationalities.' He writes of the occurrence in nine chapters: A bolt from the blue; Just before the battle; Battle; Surrender—collapse; Aftermath; Sinn Fein—German gold; Minds and men; Remoter causes of the rebellion; Reflections towards reconstruction.

REDPATH, BEATRICE. Drawn shutters. *$1.25 Lane 811 16-2606

"A mood resulting from the closing of the shutters to the afternoon sun and a quiet reflective musing are found in 'Drawn shutters.' The volume is the first publication in book form of the work of Beatrice Redpath, a Canadian woman, who has contributed to the Canadian magazine and to various periodicals in this country."—Springfield Republican

+ — Boston Transcript p6 F 12 '16 390w

"A volume of moods and impressions reflected in verse that because of its formal pictorial quality brings to mind the work of the Pre-Raphaelite brotherhood. The poet's skill in creating atmosphere is clearly shown in the title-poem, which also indicates the book's prevalent emotional tone."

+ Lit D 52:383 F 12 '16 350w

+ — Springfield Republican p15 F 6 '16 380w

REED, EARL H. Dune country. fl *$2 (4c) Lane 818 16-6922

Mr. Reed is an artist who has long made the sand dunes of Lake Michigan the object of study. His etchings of this region have done much to make its wild beauty known. In this book he shows that he has been a student of nature as well; the action of the winds, the plant and animal life of the region, and above all the quaint human types have interested him. Many of the chapters of the book are character studies. The book is illustrated with reproductions from drawings and etchings by the author.

+ A L A Bkl 12:424 Je '16

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:547 J1 '16 220w

"The life of the dunes taken in its completeness forms an epic, of a sort. Mr. Reed has caught the spirit of it all, and given it to us in his vivid descriptions, and in sketches which are full of character and life." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Mr 25 '16 670w

"Excellent in its reading matter and its numerous drawings, the book is little short of sumptuous in its plan and execution."

+ Dial 60:510 My 25 '16 350w

+ Ind 86:182 My 1 '16 40w

"The author has good literary style, plenty of dry humour, a deep knowledge of and sympathy with his subject, a love of nature and the passions of a poet. Furthermore, the book contains fifty illustrations after the author's etchings."

+ Int Studio 58:sup100 My '16 320w

+ R of Rs 53:630 My '16 80w

REED, JOHN. War in eastern Europe; pictured by Boardman Robinson. *$2 Scribner 940.91 16-11589

"Mr. Reed bemoans in his preface the ill-luck which attended their journeying and caused them, 'except for getting mixed up with the great Russian retreat and flitting through the Balkans at the beginning of the German drive, to arrive everywhere during a comparative lull in the hostilities.' So they saw no fighting and very little of battle zone life. But they saw many other things in the conditions and character of the people in the eastern war regions that are of consequence and much interest. It is a book about human beings under the stress of wartime conditions as they appeared to two men who evidently were eminently human themselves, and therefore it stands rather by itself in the multitude of books about the war."—N Y Times

+ Ind 86:401 Je 5 '16 270w

"Robinson is one of the few cartoonists of the day whose work may be compared to that of the great caricaturists of the past. There is in his work something of the diablerie of genius that recalls Daumier, and even Doré, in certain aspects."

+ Lit D 53:751 S 23 '16 380w

"It has its pages of horror and tense feeling, but they do not dominate the entire book, and otherwise it is so frankly human and fraternal and so good-naturedly and tolerantly humorous that not only does it give a new view of war-time life that is entertaining and illuminating, but also offers much valuable information concerning the peoples and countries on the eastern front."

+ N Y Times 21:192 My 7 '16 650w

Pittsburgh 21:358 J1 '16 30w

+ R of Rs 53:756 Je '16 90w

"The charm of vivid personal contact is almost never absent. The book may not be, in the accepted sense, war correspondence; but it is far more readable than the average travel book, and whatever it is, it is good journalism."

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 '16 '16 380w

REED, JOHN—Continued

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p515 O 26
'16 50w

"Presents the features which generally distinguish American reporting—free-and-easy cocksureness based upon information too hurriedly assimilated to inspire confidence."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p524 N 2
'16 450w

REED, MYRTLE (MRS. JAMES SYDNEY McCULLOUGH) (OLIVE GREEN, pseud.).
Myrtle Reed cook book. *$1.50 Putnam 641.5
16-22114

Under the pseudonym of Olive Green, the late Mrs. McCullough (Myrtle Reed) issued a number of small cook books. This complete cook book is compiled from these various volumes. The recipes are prefaced by two essays: The philosophy of breakfast and How to set a table, and a poem, The kitchen rubalyat.

"The work suffers because of its bulky size, the 552 pages rendering it a book hard to handle easily. . . . However, aside from these defects, the book is of value in its wide range of subjects, treating as it does practically every form of food at great length."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '16 160w

REELY, MARY KATHARINE, comp. Selected articles on world peace; including international arbitration and disarmament. 2d and enl ed (Debaters' handbook ser.) *$1.25 (1c)
Wilson, H. W. 016.341 16-5182

A new edition, with added reprints and a supplementary bibliography. "In the articles chosen for reprint preference has been given to those presenting plans for some form of league of peace, with criticisms of such plans from the negative point of view. The original bibliography remains unchanged. A new bibliography of literature for 1914 and 1915 is added." (Explanatory note to 2d ed.)

Advocate of Peace p119 Ap '16 60w

A L A Bkl 12:395 My '16

Army and Navy Journal 53:1087 Ap 22
'16 60w

Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 40w

Reviewed by L. T. Chapman
Seven Seas 2:37 My '16 80w

Wis Lib Bull 12:182 Ap '16 20w

REEVE, ARTHUR BENJAMIN. Constance Dunlap, woman detective. *$1.25 (2c)
Hearst's int. lib. 16-6818

That forgery is one of the few crimes in which women are more proficient than men is one of the facts we are told in this book. Constance Dunlap does not discover her own skill in the art until she is called on to cover traces of her husband's criminality. The scheme works excellently well for a time, but the husband, less strong willed than the wife, breaks down under the strain and commits suicide. Thereafter Constance devotes her talents to aiding other young and inexperienced criminals. Detective is hardly the word for her, for she works always against the law.

Boston Transcript p10 My 27 '16 270w

"While an excessive air of criminality pervades each incident, yet the author implies that there is a strain akin to justice in Constance's generally successful efforts to thwart the letter of the law. The ingenious stories keep the reader's interest at high pitch; but the 'lady criminal' is as unwelcome a type as the 'gentleman burglar.'"

— Spring'd Republican p13 My 21 '16 180w

REID, FORREST. At the door of the gate. *$1.35 (1½c) Houghton 16-11969

Martin, the elder of the two Seawright brothers, is his mother's favorite. She is a stern woman, self-controlled and conscientious, but in Martin's shallow good nature she finds something she can understand, while Richard, her moody, introspective son, baffles her. The only one who at all understands Richard is Grace Mallow, his adopted sister. Grace has musical ability of a rare order combined with keen intelligence and common sense. It is she whom Richard should have married, and in all probability would have married, had he not been caught by Rose Jackson's pretty face. His marriage is a failure; his only child dies; his wife leaves him and her death adds to his burden of resentment and remorse. In a quarrel he kills his brother. Out of the agony of soul that results comes a spiritual vision and in renunciation Richard finds satisfaction for the mystical side of his nature.

"His main theme is the attainment of spiritual certainty through direct acquaintance with God on the part of a remarkably conscientious young man, condemned to feel an almost fratricidal hatred for his brother. No little skill is shown in the presentation of women, and the tragedy in the process which makes the hero ready for the 'vision' that guides his unrecorded life is adroitly devised."

+ — Ath 1915,2:293 O 23 250w

"There is a spiritual quality in this book, a moral stability, even." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:200 Ap '16 470w

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 27 '16 320w

+ — Lit D 52:722 Mr 18 '16 200w

"The story is by no means a 'pleasant' one, to be sure. Deplorable things happen, and terrible things; but they do not happen without meaning, and the narrative ends, as it were, upon a rising inflection."

+ Nation 102:409 Ap 13 '16 310w

"Is the book, in a sense, a prose translation of 'The hound of heaven'? And what next? It is pre-eminent among the books of which we ask 'What next?'"

+ N Y Times 21:146 Ap 16 '16 450w

+ Spec 115:585 O 30 '15 650w

"The enumeration of these happenings suggests melodrama, manufactured horrors, the piling up of agonies for the mere purpose of a climax. But such is not the case. They are logical consequences of the hero's growth—the tests, it would seem, demanded of him that he may prove the mettle of his real self. Taken together, they represent a series of upward gropings to attain a destiny consistent with his superior intellectual endowments. 'At the door of the gate,' despite a somewhat morbid tone, is notable among the season's novels."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 5 '16 370w

REILLY, HENRY JOSEPH. Why preparedness. il *$2 (2c) Daughaday 940.91 16-14929

The author, a United States army officer, went to Europe at the outbreak of the war "with a view of getting at the real historical and military lessons to be learned from this great war, particularly those lessons which should be of importance to the United States." He spent one year abroad observing conditions at the British and French fronts, in England, Germany and along the German front. His observations and conclusions are presented in this book in five parts: The Entente Allies at war; Swiss preparedness for war; The Central powers at war; Modern battle; Conclusion: Lessons America should learn from the great war. There is an introduction by Leonard Wood and the book has many illustrations and three maps.

"The fourth part, consisting of fourteen chapters, is devoted to 'modern battle.' Here the author is perfectly at home, and, certainly to the soldier, this section will prove the most valuable and interesting part of the book. Few men have had the experience necessary to write these chapters, and they will prove of the greatest value to the professional soldier."

+ — Boston Transcript p9 Ag 12 '16 500w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 Jl '16

R of Rs 54:348 S '16 90w

REPPLIER, AGNES. Counter-currents. *$1.25 (3c) Houghton 814 16-11169

This group of essays, reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly, represents a sternly conservative attitude toward modern humanitarian movements. Sentimentalism is a quality the author abhors and she discerns it in almost every present day movement for social reform. Contents: The cost of modern sentiment; Our loss of nerve; Christianity and the war; Women and war; The repeal of reticence; Popular education; The modest immigrant; Waiting; Americanism.

"Well and spiritedly written, thought provoking, exhibiting a sarcasm, keen observation, and a courage, which dares to oppose some of the popular movements of the day and to criticize the accepted utterances, even, of some of the spokesmen."

+ A L A Bkl 12:468 J1 '16

"She never allows her imagination to play havoc with facts and she never gives her devotion to the truth a chance to enchain or to limit her imaginative faculty. Miss Repplier hits hard with the arrows of sound judgment and of satire many a target of political and social follies, and with them she upsets many an idol dear to the heart of the modern reformer and uplifter."

E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 3 '16 1600w

+ Cath World 103:538 J1 '16 550w

+ Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 110w

+ Lit D 53:417 Ag 19 '16 170w

Nation 102:598 Je 1 '16 530w

"A mind so full of taboos as Miss Repplier's is necessarily inadequate to social understanding. She is forced to hand out moral judgments which she cannot afford to analyze. The humanitarian view of life has dangers to which Miss Repplier is right in advertent. . . . But where she loses force is in her failure to arouse any conviction that she shares or understands the democratic object." F. H.

+ New Repub 6:20 My 6 '16 1950w

"Opinions which are sure to find acceptance among thoughtful men and women."

+ N Y Times 21:234 Je 4 '16 330w

"The whole book is remarkable for its sustained impeachment of false sentiment—social and philanthropic—which threatens to sap the fibre of the nation."

+ Spec 117:105 J1 22 '16 2550w

"In the field of politics, national or international, she is not so happy, as this volume shows. But in dealing with social phenomena, in exposing fallacies and in detecting flaws, she has a very feminine eye for the concrete detail that illumines an argument."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 570w

"After all that can be said in answer to Miss Repplier's criticisms, and of her misunderstanding of some of our ideals, in one thing she is everlastingly in the right; and it is the thing most important to be understood in American education today; namely, that what ennobs in this world is subordination—self-surrender to a country, a cause, an ideal—to something that is bigger than you are and that you value more than life." Joseph Lee

+ Survey 36:506 Ag 12 '16 2700w

"We feel inadequacy in her discussions of some industrial and moral questions."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p378 Ag 10 '16 1050w

Wis Lib Bull 12:320 J1 '16 70w

REXFORD, EBEN EUGENE. A-B-C of vegetable gardening. (Harper's A-B-C ser.) *50c (2c) Harper 635 16-5337

A work on the "A-B-C of gardening" published as one of the series last year covered a rather wide range for a book of its size. This book, confined to one phase of gardening, the raising of vegetables, offers more of practical value. There are chapters on: Getting the garden ready; Laying out the garden; Planting the garden; Seeds that give best results; Early garden work; Vegetable plants in the house; Standard varieties of vegetables; Small fruits and their culture; Hotbeds and cold-frames; Small gardens; Left-overs; Health in the garden.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 150w

*This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

+ Ind 86:74 Ap 10 '16 50w
St Louis 14:190 My '16

"Mr. Rexford gives very helpful advice on the construction of hot-beds and cold frames. The work is written in a simple and non-technical style that should appeal to the beginner."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Mr 24 '16 150w

REXFORD, EBEN EUGENE. Making of a home. Il *$1.25 (2½c) Jacobs 630 16-5708

The author, who is well known as an authority on flower and vegetable gardening, tells in this book of a city-bred man who makes a home for his family in the country; or, rather, the whole family helps to make the home. He shows what can be done with an acre of ground, devoting chapters to the lawn, the vegetable garden, flowers, small fruits, poultry, flowers for winter bloom, hotbeds, a water system for a country home, etc.

+ A L A Bkl 12:412 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:272 J1 2 '16 270w

"Adapted to the inexperienced gardener of limited means. The choice of flowers is conservative, and the shrubs and perennials are selected for the Wisconsin climate."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:225 My '16 60w

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS JOSEPH. United States navy from the revolution to date. Il $5 Collier 359 16-14655

"This book is a pictorial history of the American navy, and covers the period from 1775 until the present time. Its pictures illustrate every phase of naval activity. Many of them are reproductions of early prints found in the collection of the Office of naval records and Library, U. S. Navy department, Washington, D. C. Of recent pictures, many are from the copyrights of E. Muller, Jr., and a few from the bureaus of the Navy department in Washington and from the Naval training station at Newport. The selection embraces not only such usual subjects as naval portraits, naval vessels, and sea-fights, but also the less common ones of mines, hospital service, wireless telegraphy, wrecks, torpedoes, torpedo-boats, target practice, submarines, aviation, coaling, and the naval academy. . . . Accompanying the pictures is a brief sketch of the navy, and an introduction by Rear-Admiral Austin M. Knight, president of the Naval war college."—Am Hist R

"The choice of pictures is most excellent, and the reproductions are skillfully done. Touching upon the present war and the rivalry between the submarine and the battleship, Admiral Knight makes some exceedingly interesting comments. He is of the opinion that the spectacular successes of the submarine have greatly exaggerated its importance, and that the dreadnought, which he calls the 'backbone of the fleet,' is not likely to be superseded."

+ Am Hist R 21:859 J1 '16 230w

REYNOLDS, FRANCIS JOSEPH; CHURCHILL, ALLEN LEON; and MILLER, FRANCIS TREVELYAN. Story of the great war. 10v Il subs Collier 940.91 16-22608

A ten-volume record of the war from its beginning to August, 1916. The editor-in-chief was formerly reference librarian in the Library of Congress. Volume 1, to which are contributed several special articles, among them What the war means to America by Major-General Leonard Wood, is devoted largely to Causes; Volume 2, to Diplomatic and state papers. The actual record of the war begins with volume 3, and is carried thru the succeeding volumes down to the tenth where it closes with the account of the great Somme drive. Volume 10 also contains a summary of the two years of war, a chronology, index and pronouncing vocabulary. Drawings, maps and photographs illustrate the volumes.

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:567 D 24 '16 500w

REYNOLDS, GERTRUDE M. (ROBINS) (MRS. LOUIS BAILLIE REYNOLDS). Daughter pays. $*1.25 (1c) Doran 17-1012

Twenty years earlier, her mother had jilted him, changing the current of his life and making of him a bitter misogynist, and when he meets Virginia and recognizes in her an exact copy, outwardly, of the mother, he sees his opportunity for revenge. But Osbert Gaunt finds after marriage that he has made a tragic mistake. The young girl whom he has drawn within his power, meaning to exact payment from her for her mother's heartlessness, is not the shallow-minded, mercenary being he had thought her. She is a woman of deep reserves of character and is like her frivolous mother only in appearance, and realizing this, the man, who has been a confirmed woman hater, begins by trying to make reparation, and ends by changing his whole attitude and outlook.

"There is a fine idea back of the book."

+ N Y Times 21:393 O 1 '16 700w

"The tale is sentimental, but Mrs. Baillie Reynolds is an adept in portraying characters of the type described in this book, and readers fond of excruciating emotions will find the tale very much to their liking."

— Springfield Republican p13 O 29 '16 270w

REYNOLDS, ROTHAY. My Slav friends. il $*3 Dutton 914.7 (Eng ed 16-5975)

"Mr. Reynolds has had considerable experience with Russian and Polish life. He has been a newspaper correspondent and he feels it his duty and privilege to contribute one more book to aid the effort that is making in England at the present time to interpret their Slav allies to his fellow-countrymen. He has the pen of an extremely ready writer and he flies from one thing to another and then back again with the lightness of a butterfly. . . . Mr. Reynolds is a kindly, friendly person, and, like a genuine journalist, makes copy out of unusual experiences; he likes to travel third-class, wearing muzhik garb; he thus comes to know the common people, and the common people of Russia and Poland are perhaps better worth knowing than the aristocracy who of course approximate the aristocracy of every other country."—Boston Transcript

"Readable; needed only in larger libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 13:79 N '16

"He himself is always in evidence, as the title of the book would suggest. But he has the gift of humor and he certainly corrects a great many mistaken notions about Russian customs, manners, thoughts and ideals. . . . Taken in a moderate amount at odd moments and not as a document to be read all at once, Mr. Reynolds's book is well worth while." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 16 '16 1000w

+ Cath World 104:264 N '16 1100w

N Y Br Lib News 3:140 S '16

"The book is so thoroughly likable and amusing, witty and serious by turns, that we read on until we find ourselves perhaps ardently pro-Russian before we know it. That he writes primarily for a British audience need not lessen the very real value of the book to us."

+ N Y Times 21:473 N 5 '16 1650w

"No recent book on Russia is more entertaining, none accomplishes more satisfactorily the object of presenting the people as they are."

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 5 '16 420w

REHAD, LOUIS JOHN. American trout-stream insects. il $*2.50 (5½c) Stokes 799 16-9678

"A guide to angling flies and other aquatic insects alluring to trout; selected and painted for each month of the trout season from nearly one hundred living specimens native to the rivers and lakes of the temperate zone of North America, with notes on and reproductions of artificial imitation flies tied by the author, and a chapter on the mode of tying artificial flies with assisting charts and illustrations in the text, together with descriptions and illustrations of a complete set of new artificial nature-lures, copied exactly from carefully colored life-pictures of all creatures that bass and other game fishes consume as food." (Title page) The author, who is both artist and fisherman, has prepared the book to fill a long felt want. No similar book exists, he says, devoted to American insects. The specimens chosen are those common to the trout streams of New York and Pennsylvania. There are four color plates, each showing about twenty insects, and other illustrations.

"It may be regretted that the author's frequent reference to 'my line of lures' and the mention in connection with each plate of 'choice flies tied from the author's patterns and sold by his agents' make the book more suggestive of the sporting goods emporium than of the stream-side. . . . The studies in colors of the prevailing insects for each month are well-executed, and the descriptions are clear and sensible."

+ Dial 60:557 Je 8 '16 400w

+ Ind 86:342 My 29 '16 70w

+ Nation 102:263 S 14 '16 270w

N Y Br Lib News 3:69 My '16 40w

+ N Y Times 21:288 J1 16 '16 80w

+ R of Rs 53:765 Je '16 50w

RHOADES, CORNELIA HARSEN (NINA RHOADES). Independence of Nan. il $*1.20 (1½c) Lothrop 16-17067

Fifteen year old Nan, who has been brought up in her uncle's comfortable home in Ohio, comes after his death to live with an uncle near Boston. She finds herself welcomed into a kindly but slipshod household. Her aunt who gives lectures on "The child" has little time to devote to her own children. To relieve her uncle from the burden of her support Nan takes a position as companion to a little invalid. The post is one that tries her patience and courage, for her little charge, tho she loves Nan dearly, is irritable and difficult to manage. The return of an older brother from the Philippines and the clearing up of a mystery concerning him bring Nan complete happiness.

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:408 D '16 70w

+ Ind 88:402 D 4 '16 50w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 160w

RHODES, EUGENE MANLOVE. Desire of the moth. il $*1 (5c) Holt 16-9066

Watchful waiting was the policy followed by John Wesley Pringle in this story of the New Mexico border. John Wesley, an old time ranger from Texas, riding along the border on his way to Prescott, happens onto a situation that arouses his suspicions. With a nice semblance to stupidity, he bides his time, and when it comes is there with his two guns cocked, much to the amazement of the band of villains who had plotted against the life of Christopher Foy. Once again, in a later situation, Pringle comes to Foy's assistance, and this time he assumes a more dangerous pose, that of a traitor.

"Has a good, unhackneyed plot. It would make an excellent film drama of western life, tho, in transferring it to the screen, the eccentric and entertaining conversation of its hero, John Wesley Pringle, would unfortunately be lost."

+ Ind 86:405 Je 5 '16 50w

"Like its predecessors from the same author, the book abounds in spontaneous comedy as well as in tense situations, and cannot fail of meeting a reception as hearty as was accorded 'Good men and true.'"

+ N Y Times 21:314 Ag 13 '16 230w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 30w

RHODES, KATHLYN. Afterwards. $*1.35 (1c) * Duffield

A man and a woman captured by savage hill-men in the north of India are to be shot at dawn. Fearful that her own fate may be one worse than death, the woman exacts a promise from the man. She asks death at his hands. In the next to the last moment he complies, in the last moment help arrives. For the remainder of his life, Dr. Anstice carries with him the tragic remembrance of this occurrence, and its burden is made more heavy by the attitude of Bruce Cheniston, the man Hilda Ryder was to have married. Their paths cross at unexpected times and places and the heroic fight Dr. Anstice makes to live down the tragedy is almost brought to naught by the other's enmity.

"It lacks the very first quality of literary style—clearness."

— N Y Times 21:560 D 17 '16 370w

"A melodramatic story with an original plot and treatment."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '16 70w

RICE, CALE YOUNG. Earth and new earth. $1.25 Doubleday 811 16-2209

Several of the poems in this volume are poems of the war, and the one play included in the collection is anti-militarist in its sentiment. In one group of "Poetic epigrams" the author has attempted to adapt the Japanese verse-form, the "hokkai," to use in English. In addition there is a group of love songs and a number of miscellaneous poems.

"The playlet, 'Gerhard of Ryle,' in Mr. Rice's latest volume, has a worthy object—the discrediting of armed force, and exhibits his customary felicity in imaginative setting. With these virtues, its excellence terminates. The incompleteness of the half-built choir of the Cologne minster seen through the house-window of its unhappy architect is an adumbration of the indistinct allegory and vague dramatic purport of the play. In the lyrics impressiveness is rare." O. W. Firkins

— + Nation 103:58 J1 20 '16 170w

RICE, RICHARD ASHLEY. Robert Louis Stevenson; how to know him. il $1.25 (1c) Bobbs 16-24568

Professor Rice writes of Stevenson as "one of the companionable authors." He has written no great work, but to know him "is always a personal and companionable experience." He writes of Child's play; Literature and the family profession; Ordered south; Vagabondage and craftsmanship; Vagabondage and craftsmanship; Barbizon; The first great adventure; Ill health and ambition; The spirit of romance, etc. The book is primarily a study of Stevenson and is not given so much to quotation as are some of the other works in this series. The author is professor of English literature at Smith college.

"Good for beginners."

+ A L A Bkl 13:212 F '17

Boston Transcript p8 D 2 '16 440w

RICE, SUSAN TRACY, comp. Easter; ed. by Robert Haven Schauffer. (Our American holidays) $1 Moffat 808.8 16-10495

"Useful compilation of prose and verse selections on Easter, grouped under Celebration, Spirit and significance, Hymns and carols, Immortality. Fiction and drama, with a historical introduction."—A L A Bkl

+ A L A Bkl 12:468 J1 '16

+ Cleveland p129 N '16 40w

"One wishes more of the quaint early and medieval hymns had been included in the small carol section, but the collection covers a wide range."

+ Ind 86:404 Je 5 '16 50w

+ Lit D 53:622 S 9 '16 110w

+ Pittsburgh 21:280 Je '16 10w

+ Pratt p15 O '16 10w

"Of especial value in some eyes is the table giving the date of Easter for fifty years beginning in 1916."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 230w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:408 N '16 40w

RICHARD, TIMOTHY. Forty-five years in China. il $3.50 (3c) Stokes 266

Dr. Richard went to China in 1869 as representative of the Baptist missionary society. At that time, he says, the problem before the missionary "was not only how to save the souls of a fourth of the human race, but also how to save their bodies from perishing at the rate of four millions per annum, and to free their minds, more crippled than the feet of their women, from a philosophy and custom which had lasted for many centuries." During his residence in China he has watched the uplifting of the country thru "better religion, better science, better means of communication, better international commerce, the institution of modern schools and colleges, the founding of a modern press, the establishment of new industries and manufactures over a country as large as the whole of Europe." And he adds, "In all these departments I have taken some share, as will be seen in these reminiscences."

"Through his unconsciously heroic story we see not only the troubled history of China during the past forty-five years, but a light especially needed for us, confused by the horrors of the great war, is thrown upon the policies of Japan in the Far East." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p3 N 22 '16 850w

+ Sat R 122:578 D 16 '16 510w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p478 O 5 '16 60w

RICHARDS, GERTRUDE MOORE (MRS. WALDO RICHARDS), ed. High tide; songs of joy and vision from the present-day poets of America and Great Britain. $1.25 Houghton 821.08 16-6636

"High tide" is an anthology of modern verse that is differentiated from other collections of its kind by the principle of choice by means of which the poems have been brought together. The compiler has chosen poems "that make special appeal with their emphasis of inspiration, joy, and vision." Francis Ledwidge, Alfred Noyes, W. W. Gibson, John Masefield, Fannie Stearns Davis, Edith M. Thomas, Joyce Kilmer, Sara Teasdale, and Josephine Preston Peabody are among the poets represented.

"Contents arranged alphabetically under title, with author index."

+ A L A Bkl 12:418 Je '16

"A bit sentimental; similar in scope but quite different in tone from the rather lugubrious 'Little book of modern verse.'"

+ — Ind 87:104 J1 17 '16 40w

Pratt p29 O '16

R of Rs 53:506 An '16 70w

+ Springfield Republican p7 My 11 '16 500w

"English poets are represented, but American predominate. Not all have distinctive merit but both in spirit and variety the collection will appeal to many people."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:226 My '16 40w

RICHARDS, JOHN THOMAS. Abraham Lincoln, the lawyer-statesman. il $2.50 (5½c) Houghton 16-8365

This is not a biography of Lincoln but a study of his career as a lawyer. There has been much misunderstanding, the author feels, regarding Lincoln's professional standing and thru erroneous statements by some of his contemporaries the belief has become current that he was not a great lawyer. "The facts presented in this volume, it is believed, will remove the erroneous impression which has been thus created, and convince even the most skeptical that Mr. Lincoln was one of the truly great lawyers of his generation." (Preface) Lincoln's attitude toward negro suffrage, the rights of labor, the powers of the judiciary and other questions are brought out by the book. One chapter is also devoted to his standing as an orator. An appendix lists Lincoln's cases in the Supreme court of Illinois.

"The records show conclusively that Mr. Lincoln was one of the ablest, most successful,

RICHARDS, JOHN THOMAS—Continued
most respected, and widely employed lawyers of his time and territory." F. R. Mechem
+ Am Hist R 22:207 O '16 430w

"Has much the same aim as Hill's 'Lincoln the lawyer' (Booklist, 2:239, D '06), but is much more special and less interesting for general reading."

+ A L A Bkl 13:32 O '16

Reviewed by J. M. Leake

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:597 Ag '16 1250w

"Mr. Richards's careful and comprehensive study controverts the opinion of many lawyers of distinction." H. S. K.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 15 '16 950w

Cath World 103:685 Ag '16 480w

Reviewed by L. E. Robinson

+ Dial 61:307 O 19 '16 1250w

+ Ind 88:72 O 9 '16 100w

"In reading one can feel that one is in touch with an authority, sympathetic, accurate, and judicial. Lovers of Lincoln and of the law will desire to possess this book."

+ Lit D 52:1714 Je 10 '16 280w

+ Nation 103:355 O 12 '16 530w

+ N Y Times 21:270 J1 2 '16 550w

R of Rs 53:754 Je '16 70w

Springfield Republican p13 My 28 '16 850w

RICHARDS, MRS. LAURA ELIZABETH
(HOWE). Fairy operettas. il $*1 Little 793 16-22266

Mrs. Richards has dramatized eight of the popular nursery tales, Cinderella, The babes in the wood, Beauty and the beast, Bluebeard, The three bears, Good King Arthur, Puss in boots, and The sleeping beauty. The plays are written in rime and may be sung if desired to familiar tunes, Yankee Doodle, Auld lang syne, and others.

"Will find instant recognition from the teacher."

+ Dial 61:543 D 14 '16 80w

"This combination of new words with old tunes—a method employed in the Salvation army —is a rather good idea, altho there may be some musical esthetes who will doubt whether
"There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight" is an advisable melody for children to learn."

+ Lit D 53:1567 D 9 '16 150w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 80w

RICHARDS, MRS. LAURA ELIZABETH
(HOWE), and ELLIOTT, MRS. MAUD
(HOWE). Julia Ward Howe, 1819-1910. 2v
il $*4 Houghton 16-694

"Mrs. Howe's daughters have wisely made of their two volumes practically an autobiographical record of their mother's life. After an opening chapter that leads us through an ancestral labyrinth of distinguished forefathers, we have the story of her wonderful years told mainly by herself through the medium of letters or of intimate recollections from her birth in 1819 until her death in 1910. It is a story of infinite appeal and a revelation of the successive epochs in the life of a woman who believed that woman's place is the world of affairs and ideals as well as the home, and who justified that belief by her own service."—Boston Transcript

"The facts of her life are all here, those told in the 'Reminiscences' given in greater detail and with new emphasis. Numerous and good illustrations."

+ A L A Bkl 12:381 My '16

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 8 '16 1450w

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 60:326 Mr 30 '16 1700w

"One of the most interesting records of a literary life ever published. Over these pages plays a never failing humor, while the always entertaining reminiscences include literally almost every one of note in the literary world of England, Italy and this country for three-quarters of a century."

+ Ind 86:72 Ap 10 '16 400w

+ Lit D 52:976 Ap 8 '16 900w

"The charming simplicity with which the whole story of Mrs. Howe's career is told in these volumes, some passages lighted with flashes of humor and others veiled with a tender reserve, cannot be conveyed by any paraphrase of the text."

+ Nation 102:543 My 18 '16 2250w

+ New Repub 7:46 My 13 '16 1750w

+ N Y Times 21:101 Mr 19 '16 1750w

"As a biography, this life of Mrs. Howe is a little dissatisfying, in two particulars. There is, first, the effect of hurry and compression.
Then, too, there is, from the point of view of readableness and continuity of interest, rather too much than too little detail in the two volumes of the life. Nevertheless one would hardly say that there is anything in the life that one would wish away, and it may be said that the book splendidly achieves its main purpose: it portrays a great character with lively truth and with something like completeness."

+ No Am 203:624 Ap '16 1000w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Wallace

+ Outlook 113:101 My 10 '16 1200w

"It is her purely personal interests, the story of her life as a wife, home-keeper, and mother, the actual tangibility of her presence, that we find embodied in these volumes."

+ R of Rs 53:499 Ap '16 80w

"The literary work qualifies it, in view of the fame of its subject, to rank as a classic American biography. It is what might be expected of Mrs. Howe's daughters, or of herself."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 1250w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:271 Je '16 60w

RICHARDS, ROSALIND. Northern countryside. il $*1.50 (4c) Holt 917.41 16-9566

The author has written a series of Maine sketches, based on her own knowledge of the country and her father's memories of an earlier generation. Rivers, woods, ponds, farms and villages are all described with the intimate touch of one who has loved them. There are twelve illustrations reproduced from photographs.

"Full of the simple ways and homely details of country life, the sketches have a distinct local flavor, and will appeal to many who liked Clarke's 'Village life in America.' Attractive illustrations."

+ A L A Bkl 12:476 J1 '16

"This first book by the daughter of Laura E.
Richards and the granddaughter of Julia Ward
Howe shows the heritage through three generations of the instinct for the art of words." F. F.
Kelly

+ Bookm 43:550 J1 '16 120w

"On the whole, her sketches are wonderfully in accordance with New England at its loveliest. If at times she seems to over-idealize the New England character, at others she will introduce an anecdote which displays to the full its eccentricity." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 29 '16 650w

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:55 J1 15 '16 220w

+ Ind 87:103 J1 17 '16 50w

"Most of the human characters portrayed are of a past generation. Of these the author writes with sympathy and intimate knowledge."

+ R of Rs 53:757 Je '16 70w

RICHARDSON, ANNA STEESE. Adventures in thrift. il $*1.25 (3c) Bobbs 641 16-7927

In fiction form the author offers a study of ways and means of reducing the high cost of living. Ways of testing linen and of judging cuts of beef, cooperative marketing, buying at public markets and shopping by parcel post are some of the matters touched on. The activities of the National housewives' league and the Housewives' cooperative league are described.
One valuable feature of the book is that it exposes the falseness of many supposed economies.
The chapters appeared originally in the Woman's Home Companion.

+ A L A Bkl 12:412 Je '16

"As useful, even indispensable, as it is entertaining, the book should go into every household and into every wedding outfit. Not only is the story readable—it is true; its every statement a fact scientifically verified, the incidents, the organizations and the individuals themselves, everyone real."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 19 '16 320w

"It must be admitted, however, that the history of their researches is somewhat appalling to the reader who cannot help feeling that half the time, study, ability and general hard work expended by Mrs. Larry on, for instance, the procuring of corn for a cent and a half an ear, instead of paying 10 cents for three ears would if used in other ways have enabled her to earn an excellent income."

+ N Y Times 21:132 Ap 30 '16 180w

"She has the gift of imparting her knowledge in clear and simple language. The trials and tribulations of the sincere seeker after bargains are set forth with much good nature and real humor." H. Dick

+ Pub W 89:1225 Ap 15 '16 350w

"It is a distinct service Anna Steese Richardson has performed in giving to men, as well as women, the sound, worth-while lesson in getting one's money's worth."

+ Special Libraries 7:109 Je '16 200w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:225 My '16 100w

RICHARDSON, DOROTHY M. Pilgrimage: 2 pointed roofs; with an introd. by J. D. Beresford. *$1.35 Knopf (Eng ed 16-2960)

"This is the first novel of a series of three, which, under the general title of 'Pilgrimage,' are to follow the journeys of Miriam, an English girl of independent thought and strong personality. Impelled by her father's financial disasters, she obtains the position of English governess in a girls' boarding school in Hanover. Thenceforward, like 'Vilette,' and even more than 'Vilette,' the story is bounded by the walls of the pensionnat, in which the young teacher finds abundant play for her vivid intelligence and fervent emotions. It holds no romance; that, presumably, is to come as the pilgrimage proceeds. Objectively, the book is a careful and impartial study of the differences between the English and the German spirit."—N Y Times

"The extended detail and the almost perverse incoherency of much of the narrative make it hard reading. Always it demands an uncommon degree of concentration; occasionally, in its monotony and its lack of events, it grows tiresome. . . . The author displays uncommon power of entering into the mind and heart of her heroine." F. I.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 3 '17 570w

"The subjective side of the story is, however, that which commands the greater interest. The author does not portray Miriam; she is Miriam. . . . The more we muse upon what Miss Richardson has achieved in this book the more remarkable does it seem. In the volumes to follow she will be her own most formidable rival."

+ N Y Times 21:577 D 31 '16 320w

RICHMOND, GRACE LOUISE (SMITH) (MRS. NELSON GUERNSEY RICHMOND). Under the country sky. il *$1.25 (1½c) Doubleday 16-10118

A story that ran as a serial in the Ladies' Home Journal in 1915 with the title "The star in the country sky." The heroine is a college girl who comes back to her village home to keep house for her invalid father. She rebels sometimes against the poverty of her lot, but on the whole makes the best of it. She has one solace in her loneliness, her friend James Stuart, college bred like herself. A distinguished young surgeon in search of quiet comes to her house as a boarder, and a rich young society cousin comes as a guest. Out of the situation between these four, two love stories are worked out.

+ A L A Bkl 12:432 Je '16

"The love element in the plot is really secondary to Mrs. Richmond's desire to emphasize the fact of the healthful tendencies of country life." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 10 '16 630w

"A pretty little love story, quite free from 'problems,' complex characters, 'thrills' and similar incumbrances. It is sure to appeal to any one who, in this day and generation, is fortunate enough to have time for such gentle reading."

+ Ind 86:405 Je 5 '16 50w

+ Lit D 53:76 Jl 8 '16 220w

+ N Y Times 21:236 Je 4 '16 300w

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 21 '16 200w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 40w

RIDEING, WILLIAM HENRY. George Washington. (True stories of great Americans) il *50c (1c) Macmillan 16-22172

The life story of the first great American has been written for this series by the author of "The boyhood of famous authors." There are chapters on: Washington's boyhood; Life in old Virginia; The young soldier; Washington at home; The beginning of the war; Battles near Boston, etc. Gilbert Stuart's portrait is reproduced as a frontispiece and there are five other illustrations.

"Interesting but by no means brilliant. The narrative covers the field of late colonial and early national affairs in a manner which, considering the limited size of the volume, has made it impossible to study Washington's personality at all. A book of more intimate flavor might, since school histories care for the background of Washington's life fairly well, have been more serviceable."

+ Nation 103:567 D 14 '16 100w

"Much of the traditional material that formerly burdened the pages of popular biographies of Washington is eliminated from the present work, greatly to its advantage, but this in no wise detracts from the heroic proportions of the subject."

+ R of Rs 55:215 F '17 70w

St Louis 15:23 Ja '17

+ Springfield Republican p8 D 15 '16 100w

RIDEOUT, HENRY MILNER. Far cry, il *$1.25 (2c) Duffield 16-22404

The movement of the story falls into three parts. The first takes place on board ship with two young adventurers taking their crop of hemp to market; the second on the tropical island on which they are wrecked; the third on a patriarchal estate on an atoll which they reach just in time to be of service to an old man and his beautiful granddaughter. On the island Wallace and Tisdale find a companion, Francis Godbolt, like themselves a castaway, and from this point he becomes the real hero of the tale. The three are interestingly contrasted types of young manhood.

"Clean and wholesome."

+ A L A Bkl 13:223 F '17

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:509 Ja '17 300w

"One does not look as a rule to the conventional South seas adventure story for either strong character drawing or psychological studies. But Henry Milner Rideout attempts with some success, to present both in the 'Far cry.'"

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 220w

Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 60w

RIDER, FREMONT, comp. and ed. Rider's New York City, and vicinity, including Newark, Yonkers and Jersey City. *$3.10 Holt 917.47 16-22765

A guide book to New York city and vicinity, planned somewhat on the order of Baedeker. It is in convenient guide book size and is provided with sixteen maps and eighteen plans. The contents is made up of: Introduction [a general description of New York city, etc.]; Preliminary information [hotels, restaurants, railway stations, theatres, etc.]; Entering New

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

RIDER, FREMONT, comp. and ed.—Continued
 York; Downtown New York; Midtown New York;
 Uptown New York; The Bronx; Brooklyn;
 Staten Island; The New Jersey shore; Newark.
 In preparing the volume the editor has had the assistance of Mary Alden Hopkins, Frederic Taber Cooper and others. There is a bibliography prepared by Doris Webb, and an index made by Suzette G. Stuart.

+ A L A BkI 13:171 Ja '17

Pittsburgh 22:47 Ja '17

Reviewed by R. W. Thurston

+ Pub W 91:212 Ja 20 '17 650w

"Contains an astonishing mass of well-digested historical and descriptive material, every line of which is authoritative."

+ R of Rs 55:218 F '17 50w

RIDGE, WILLIAM PETT. Kennedy people.
 *$1.25 (1½c) Doran

A tale of three generations. Mr. Kennedy of Highbury, London, is a successful business man and not a gentleman; his son Robert fails to be either. The story tells how Robert's wife, left by her husband to struggle alone, succeeds in making her son both. It is a detailed description of the domineering character of the first Kennedy, the early charm and later self-indulgence of the second, and the gradual forming of the character of George, the third of the name. The common-sense and high courage of Cicely, who is a Kennedy by marriage, illuminate the pages of the family history.

+ N Y Times 21:298 Jl 30 '16 580w

— + Sat R 121:618 Je 24 '16 200w

"It is evident that Mr. Pett Ridge is coming to depend, for the value and interest of his work, more and more upon his skill as a 'genre' painter. His book is simply a series of detailed, realistic 'interiors' in Highbury. We cannot keep up an unflinching interest in three hundred pages of so trivial matters, however delicate be the manner of their setting."

— + Spec 115:513 O 16 '15 180w

RIDGE, WILLIAM PETT. On toast. 2s Methuen & co., London

"Assuming that the poached egg, the quail, caviare, in fact, any comestible served on toast, may fitly be regarded as a type of human delusion, the title 'On toast' seems to apply almost equally to each of the fifteen short stories in this volume. . . . The first ten stories are of life before the war. . . . The remaining four touch with the same light hand on situations arising out of our new topsy-turvydom. But there are two stories, . . . 'Away in the sixties,' a visit to the mid-Victorian theatre, and 'The happiest hours,' an elderly man's reverie, which have a charm which makes one feel that they have found their way by mistake into a book which submits to the slang title 'On toast,'"—The Times [London] Lit Sup

N Y Br Lib News 3:77 My '16 30w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p130 Mr 16
 '16 400w

RIHBANY, ABRAHAM MITRIE. Syrian Christ.
 *$1.50 (2c) Houghton 225 16-21561

The author, now a pastor of an American church, was born in Syria and his purpose in this book is to offer an interpretation of the life of Jesus and of other parts of the Bible in the light of his knowledge of the history and customs of his native land. Part 1, The Syrian Christ, has appeared in the Atlantic Monthly.
 In part 2, The oriental speech and manner, he makes clear many of the figurative passages of the Bible. Part 3, Bread and salt, is concerned with the practices of hospitality; part 4, Out in the open, with the life of vineyard and market place and means of travel; part 5, Sisters of Mary and Martha, with the position of women.
 To these is added a sixth part prepared in answer to questions pertaining to puzzling passages and allusions.

A L A BkI 13:119 D '16

Cath World 104:551 Ja '17 110w

+ Ind 88:464 D 11 '16 300w

"Its effect will be in many instances to give readers such a new understanding of the Bible as to make it a new book. And beyond its value as a commentary on these scattered passages, it is interesting as a book to read."

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 17 '16 530w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:450 D '16 80w

RILEY, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. Life and times of Booker T. Washington; introd. by Edgar Y. Mullins. il *$1.50 Revell 16-21143

"Dr. Riley's biography centers about the work and the times rather than the personality [of Booker T. Washington]. Yet in some ways it gives more of the man than does 'Up from slavery,' because it is free to emphasize characteristics and conditions. Himself a white man laboring for the colored race in the black belt,
 Dr. Riley is especially fitted to analyze Washington's aims, methods and results, and to consider his attitude in regard to the great wrongs under which the colored people, North as well as South, still struggle."—Ind

Reviewed by Garland Greever

+ Dial 61:525 D 14 '16 1250w

+ Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 260w

+ — Lit D 54:78 Ja 13 '17 200w

+ Outlook 115:23 Ja 3 '17 420w

Pittsburgh 21:503 N '16

Reviewed by F. M. Holly

Pub W 90:1419 O 21 '16 660w

+ R of Rs 54:457 O '16 130w

"Dr. Riley has been quite too free in borrowing from Dr. Washington's own book, 'Up from slavery.' The new volume so closely follows the earlier one as to be in large part little more than a paraphrase; and the difference, applying a literary test, is all in favor of the autobiography. Dr. Riley, however, has in some chapters, notably the one in which he gives an account of the founding of Tuskegee institute, expanded Washington's story in a way to emphasize the tremendous difficulties under which the young founder labored."

Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 110w

"Contributes little new to our knowledge of the man and his work. . . . It furnishes some new data regarding Washington's early privations. Its style is prolix." M. W. Ovington

Survey 37:438 Ja 13 '17 110w

RILEY, W. Netherleigh. *$1.50 (2c) Putnam

16-4584

This story of Yorkshire follows the adventures of a young man who has been an invalid up to his twenty-fifth year. A weak heart, the fears of his father and mother and the conservatism of the family doctor have combined to keep him a prisoner. But the new doctor, who in the course of time supersedes the old doctor, has a different theory. He advises his patient to begin to live and suggests as a beginning a harmless flirtation with the housemaid. Acquaintance with 'Arriet, the housemaid, leads to friendship with her young man, and so gradually Richard's knowledge of his own neighborhood grows. The perilous experiment in living succeeds. The weak heart behaves itself admirably till it develops a weakness of another sort which in time leads to a second experiment, marriage; and this also promises to be a success.

Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 150w

"It is an easy formula for patching a story out of shreds of local observation. The net result is not enlivening, in spite of more than enough happy courtships and the interjection of several fortuitous events involving force and violence."

— Nation 102:257 Mr 2 '16 210w

"A strong, brave, tender book, and if we do not rise from it to 'thank God and take courage' we have proved ourselves unworthy of the hours of rare enjoyment and bracing companionship which it has given us."

+ N Y Times 21:131 Ap 9 '16 550w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"The scene is in Yorkshire, and the descriptions of the country-side have much charm. The tone of the story is restful, and the atmosphere of simplicity pervading the characters, their activities and intercourse makes it unusually likeable."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 230w

RINEHART, MRS. MARY (ROBERTS). Through Glacier park; seeing America first with Howard Eaton. il *75c (6c) Houghton 917.8 16-11602

An intimate and personal account of a trip thru Glacier park as a member of a touring party. Three hundred miles of mountain travel on horseback, with cool nights around a campfire and breakfasts of brook trout, are described. There are nineteen illustrations from photographs.

"Appeared in Collier's Weekly."

+ A L A Bk1 12:476 J1 '16

"One does not glean from her slender volume much information about the park. But one does get fleeting pictures in outline, little patches of colour, vivid impressions, and through it all the sense of an experience of which the author enjoyed every moment with the keenest delight." F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:548 J1 '16 230w

+ Boston Transcript p7 J1 8 '16 320w

+ Cleveland p136 N '16 20w

+ Ind 86:398 Je 5 '16 100w

+ Nation 103:112 Ag 3 '16 330w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

"She tells the story of it with zest, with lively reminiscence, and with a vivid pen that seems all the time to be fairly hungering to repeat the experience."

+ N Y Times 21:237 Je 11 '16 120w

+ R of Rs 54:121 J1 '16 40w

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 16 '16 80w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:320 J1 '16 30w

RINEHART, MRS. MARY (ROBERTS). Tish. il *$1.50 (2c) Houghton 16-15840

Letitia Carberry, known to her intimates as "Tish," was one of three middle-aged friends and the moving spirit of their spicy adventures. "Aggie," the secretary of the Woman's prohibition party, was of the temperament which observed the anniversary of her lover's death for twenty and more years, but she and "Lizzie" each found herself involved by Tish in a doubtful motor race, in the preservation of a young Syrian of rare beauty and suicidal tendencies, in simple living in the woods and in untold predicaments from which they are rescued only by the opportune good sense of Tish's nephew, Charlie Sands.

"Read a little at a time to enjoy them. Reprinted from Saturday Evening Post."

+ A L A Bk1 13:36 O '16

"A spicy and highly entertaining volume."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 9 '16 430w

+ Ind 87:389 S 11 '16 50w

"The Tish stories are usually spoken of as 'irresistibly funny'—it all depends on one's point of view—but all will agree that they are cleverly silly, full of jokes, and amusingly descriptive of foolishly ludicrous situations and naively bland stupidity."

Lit D 53:1040 O 21 '16 200w

"The present commentator means only to deplore, in a book which contains much comic virtue, so frequent touches of the kind of coarseness which the women of vaudeville audiences appear to relish highly."

+ Nation 103:304 S 28 '16 230w

"The tales are all wildly extravagant in matter and manner, with something of the good-natured caricature in their method. But they are cleverly done and full of laughter, and will furnish entertainment, in plenty for a railway ride on a hot afternoon."

+ N Y Times 21:309 Ag 6 '16 600w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 3 '16 340w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 70w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

RIPLEY, WILLIAM ZEBINA, ed. Trusts, pools and corporations. (Selections and documents in economics) diagrs *$2.75 Glinn 338.8 16-3468

"The revised edition of Prof. Ripley's collection of reprints contains almost twice as many pages as the old edition. A few of the reprints included in the edition of 1905 have been omitted but in the main the revision consists in the addition of new material drawn chiefly from the reports of the Bureau of corporations and from the decisions of the courts. The texts of the Sherman act, the Trade commission law and the Clayton act are included."—Nation

Reviewed by M. H. Robinson

+ Am Econ R 6:912 D '16 420w

"Since the publication of the first edition of this work in 1905, there have been many important changes in the organization and regulation of industrial combinations. The decisions of the Supreme court in the Standard oil company and the American tobacco company suits, the application of the principle laid down in these cases, and the enactment of the Clayton law and the Trade commission law have been the outstanding features of a new and important period." T. W. V. M.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:320 S '16 100w

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 12 '16 80w

Ind 86:219 My 8 '16 40w

"The reports of the United States Commissioner of corporations for 1909 and 1913, respectively, concerning the tobacco trust and the International harvester company, occupy two full chapters of the new text. Professor Francis Walker's reports on 'The German steel syndicate' and 'The law concerning monopolistic combinations in continental Europe' occupy two chapters, and give the reader a very good idea of the comparative status of combinations in Germany and in the United States. In general the new edition brings together the more recent documentary material bearing on the subject of trusts, and offers editorial interpretation and comment which is very valuable in throwing light on the present standing of combinations."

+ J Pol Econ 24:621 Je '16 270w

"The piquant prefatory notes to the Clayton act and the Trade commission law make the reader regret the extreme editorial restraint which is shown in other parts of the volume."

+ Nation 102:sup499 My 4 '16 120w

"The work, which was a pioneer in its special field, contains an application of the case system in use in many law schools to the study of economics. The timeliness of the revised edition is illustrated by its inclusion of the National cash register case, the Steel corporation case of June, 1915, and other recent cases of importance."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Mr 27 '16 170w

RITCHIE, MOORE. With Botha in the field. il *75c Longmans 940.91 16-1307

"Mr. Moore Ritchie was a member of General Botha's bodyguard during the suppression of the rebellion in the Union and the campaign in South-west Africa." (Spec) "Mr. Ritchie describes the swift and accurate movements of General Botha and the loyalist troops as having broken the back of the main risings before more than local disorganization and the least possible amount of bloodshed had taken place. The campaign in South Africa makes the second part of the small volume. It embraces 'the preliminary canter,' the first trek into the Namib desert, the second trek to Windhuk, and the flight and surrender of the German forces." (Boston Transcript)

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 8 '16 170w

"His book is most entertaining; boys as well as their elders must enjoy it. There is no politics—just soldiering. He writes in a good, easy way, using slang whenever it expresses his meaning best, and he manages to make you live with him the night marches on the veld with what he calls 'the true horrors of sleep-fighting,' the discomforts of the transport steamer, and the terrible storms of mineralized sand in Southwest Africa. His book is packed with excellent photographs, and his diagrams are taken from a German detailed map, which he acknowledges is the best in existence."

RITCHIE, MOORE—Continued

+ N Y Times 21:34 Mr 12 '16 160w

"This lively and cheery little narrative is not least of all a tribute to General Botha's great qualities as a soldier and a man."

+ Spec 116:385 Mr 18 '16 160w

ROBERTS, CHARLES GEORGE DOUGLAS.
Secret trails. 1l *$1.35 (3½c) Macmillan
16-23022

The story of the domesticated animal who goes back to the wild is a favorite with writers of animal tales. In the first story of this collection, a pedigreed black boar is let loose in the wilderness to fend for himself. "The dog that saved the bridge," second in the book, is a story of the present war. The other stories, which have been copyrighted first by the Associated Sunday magazines, the Illustrated Sunday magazine, and others, are: The calling of the lop-horned bull; The aigrette; The cabin in the flood; The brothers of the yoke; The trailers; Cock-crow; The ledge on Bald Face; The morning of the silver frost. "The aigrette" should be reprinted by the Audubon society.

"The uncritical reader is prepared to look with indulgence on his occasional practice of endowing the dumb creatures of the field and wood with super-animal powers and gifts."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '17 160w

"A very effective chapter reveals the too little known tragedy of the aigrette."

+ Dial 61:544 D 14 '16 100w

+ Lit D 54:84 Ja 13 '17 140w

"Boys will delight in this book, which is excellently illustrated."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 100w

ROBERTS, S. C., comp. Picture book of British history. v 1-2 1l ea *90c Putnam 942
(A15-38)

These volumes aim "at supplementing the teaching of history by a wealth of illustrations taken partly from contemporary sources and partly from photographs of historical sites and buildings in their present state." (Spec) Volume 1 covers a period from earliest times to 1485 A. D.; volume 2 from 1485 to 1688.

"On the whole the illustrations form a complete and useful collection."

+ Ath 1914.2:358 O 10 130w (Review of v 1)

"The form of the book itself and the authority of those who have compiled it seem to furnish a sufficient guaranty that the pictures are themselves of first-class historical value. Certainly they are interesting to the lay reader, and one cannot fail to be enthusiastic about this addition to the equipment of the history class. What the atlas is to the geography class and the laboratory to the science class, pictures of this sort will undoubtedly be to the history courses."

+ Ei School J 16:275 F '16 260w (Review of v 2)

"Represents an excellent idea well carried out."

+ Spec 113:504 O 10 '14 60w (Review of v 1)

ROBERTSON, CHARLES GRANT, and BARTHOLOMEW, JOHN GEORGE. Historical atlas of modern Europe from 1789 to 1914, with an historical and explanatory text. maps *$1.15 Oxford 911.4

"The purpose of 'An historical atlas of modern Europe, from 1789 to 1914, is to supply maps, at a relatively low price, for the study of the territorial and racial facts of the nations concerned in the war to-day. The date of the French revolution as a convenient starting-point has not been adhered to rigidly; the partitions of Poland, for example, are illustrated." (Ath) "The size of the atlas is a distinct advantage, as it allows of plates 12½x9½ in. Most of the maps are of this size. Central Europe and the Balkan lands are specially well shown. . . . The introduction is an excellent commentary on the maps, and keeps the geographical standpoint in view throughout." (Nature)

+ A L A Bkl 13:79 N '16

+ Ath 1915.2:347 N 13 150w

"The maps show clear printing and proper subordination of details."

+ Dial 61:32 Je 22 '16 80w

"The book is designed for popular reference and the maps are boldly, even crudely, coloured. In a first edition some oversights are inevitable. For example, the map of the Balkan peninsula '1856-1878' gives the political divisions of 1878, as does the following map; and in the latter the colours for Greece and Turkey are almost indistinguishable." N.

+ Eng Hist R 31:344 Ap '16 170w

"A map of Europe is the only orographical map given. The other maps either show no relief or show it in the old caterpillar fashion. That is disappointing, and certainly lessens the value of the larger-scale maps. Most of the plates are otherwise admirably executed, but a few—Russia in central Asia and the ethnographical map of south-eastern Europe—scarcely come up to the high standard of technique which we expect from the firm of Bartholomew. The atlas is good value for the money and can be highly recommended." R. N. R. E.

+ Nature 96:369 D 2 '15 230w

"This work consists of 36 admirably printed plates, which, with the explanatory text, provide a complete survey of the evolution of the state system of modern Europe from the French revolution to the present day. The work will be found invaluable to historical students, and to those general readers whom the events of the past year have made historical students."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 2 '16 170w

ROBERTSON, JOHN MACKINNON. Germans. *$2 (3c) Putnam 943 (Eng ed 16-9417)

"The views concerning German evolution set forth in these pages are not products of the world war. Alike with regard to the ethnological and to the sociological question, they were substantially set forth by the author in four works written or published before 1900. . . . Formed originally in no spirit of national antagonism, they cannot now be reasonably charged with cultivating that spirit. They were shaped, and are now restated, in the spirit of social science." The two parts of the book deal with The Teutonic gospel of race; The old Germany and the new.

Ath p367 Ag '16 730w

"Nor will Germans overlook misinterpretations and misstatements of fact. . . . Indeed, few pages of Mr. Robertson's book are spared the stains of war. This is regrettable, for the author's conception of German evolution is essentially true beyond any doubt."

+ Nation 104:137 F 1 '17 180w

"In the first part of his book Mr. Robertson gives an admirable and timely exposition of the crude falsity of certain current doctrines of race."

+ Nature 97:379 Jl 6 '16 350w

"A study of race-theories—a clever, sharp, satirically iconoclastic study that aims at the overthrow of many race-theories in general, and in particular that especial abomination of 'The dominant race.' . . . The second and larger part of the volume is intensely interesting. Antagonistic, of course, and sometimes bitter, it has yet the important merit of complete absence of national self-righteousness in its treatment."

+ N Y Times 21:493 N 19 '16 570w

"A learned, useful and withal highly instructive work, but its utility, in so far as it is intended to serve any purpose of political education for the masses of the public, is rather marred by some minor defects both of style and of substance." [Earl of] Cromer

+ Spec 116:550 Ap 29 '16 2200w

"It covers wider ground than most books bearing on the war, but is too controversial and polemical to have permanent value."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p170 Ap 13 '16 1350w

ROBERTSON, JOHN MACKINNON. War and civilization. *$1 Dutton (Eng ed 16-5588)

"The sub-title of Mr. Robertson's book, 'War and civilization,' describes it as 'An open letter to a Swedish professor,' it is addressed to Dr. Gustaf F. Steffen, professor of economics and sociology in the University at Stockholm, who had written a book in defense of German 'Kultur.' . . . Mr. Robertson goes at the Swedish professor's thesis in downright, forceful fashion, examining his arguments one by one on the broad grounds of the moral issues involved and the contributions of Germany during the last half century to the progress of civilization along material, scientific, spiritual, and artistic lines."

—N Y Times

Reviewed by F. W. S. Browne
Int J Ethics 26:572 J1 '16 220w
N Y Times 21:289 J1 23 '16 450w
R of Rs 54:349 S '16 20w

ROBIE, VIRGINIA HUNTINGTON. Historic styles in furniture. il *$3 (6c) Houghton 749

A publisher's note announces that this is a reprint of a work issued ten years ago by the House Beautiful magazine and given a limited circulation among subscribers. That it may reach a wider reading public, it has been reissued. Furniture of the middle ages, of the 14th and 15th centuries, of the renaissance, etc., are treated in separate chapters. The final chapter is devoted to Colonial furniture.

"Delightful glimpses of social life of the periods dealt with make the account informal, without the sacrifice of sufficient technical details to meet the needs of the general reader."

+ Dial 60:558 Je-8 '16 170w

"A collector never tires of this type of book. . . . It contains much that is romantic and historic, with wonderful illustrations of noted period furniture and where it may be seen."

+ Lit D 52:1854 Je 24 '16 200w

"This book must be hailed as one of the best of its kind. . . . The binding and typography are in character with the text and are quite admirable."

+ Nation 103:429 N 2 '16 270w

ROBIE, VIRGINIA HUNTINGTON. Quest of the quaint. il *$2 (4c) Little 738 16-21717

A book for the collector. "One would never think of calling old silver 'quaint,'" says the author, "nor is fine mahogany brought to mind by the word, but bandboxes, samplers, old needlework pictures, colonial chintz, cottage ornaments, silhouettes and American snuffboxes are well described by it." It is with these oddities that her book deals, and there are in addition chapters on Hunting highboys, Bayberry candle and tallow dip, The romance of glass, etc. Twenty illustrations accompany the text.

+ Cleveland p155 D '16 50w

"One merit not to be overlooked in Miss Robie's book is that it names many articles possible of collection without a long purse to pay the bill. . . . Twenty plates in half-tone and unusually full index are among the excellent features of this good book."

+ Dial 61:477 N 30 '16 60w

"In her descriptions of different periods the lay reader gets many a good laugh, while the collector absorbs definite information and helpful suggestions."

+ Lit D 53:1555 D 9 '16 150w

+ R of Rs 55:106 Ja '17 40w

"To the reader who is not a collector, but who is interested in old things, the chapters which describe some of the beautiful colonial dwellings at Portsmouth are the most entertaining."

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 9 '16 270w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:452 D '16 50w

ROBINS, KINGMAN NOTT. Farm mortgage handbook. *$1.25 Doubleday 332.7 16-15474

"A book of facts regarding the methods by which the farmers of the United States and Canada are financed, especially intended for investors seeking information regarding investments in farm mortgages." (Sub-title) The book takes no account of the recently passed Farm loans act. It is concerned, as the sub-title indicates, with farm mortgages from the point of view of the investor, one of its purposes being to bring this form of investment before the conservative eastern investor who is less familiar than the westerner with the opportunities offered.

N Y Br Lib News 3:172 N '16 30w
R of Rs 55:221 F '17 40w

ROBINS, SALLY NELSON. Man's reach. il *$1.25 (2c) Lippincott 16-5617

When he was born his mother had accepted him as a divine gift bestowed for a divine purpose. She looked to him to reform his father; for how could a man fail to be a man with his son looking on, she argued. But far from influencing his father, Randolph Turberville follows in his footsteps, and in spite of a brilliant start in life promises to fill an early drunkard's grave. He is reclaimed and brought back by a young girl who sets her will against the forces of habit and heredity. It is a Virginia story and the characters are all members of old Virginia families.

"The book will have especial interest for the preachers and teachers of temperance, although it derives its value in that respect solely from the truth of its portrayal and interpretation of life and of one of the ways in which drunkards are made." F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:323 My '16 250w

+ — Boston Transcript p7 Mr 25 '16 270w

"It is not without interest; it gives us a view, amusing in its naive snobbishness, of a section of Virginia society. It is steeped in sentiment, mostly of a rather old-fashioned sort, but with a suggestion of Harold Bell Wright by way of modern flavoring."

— + Nation 102:410 Ap 13 '16 230w

— N Y Times 21:114 Mr 26 '16 200w

"Though the design is less ambitious in a literary than in a moral sense, the story is well written and at all times holds the reader's attention."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 260w

ROBINSON, CHARLES MULFORD. City planning, with special reference to the planning of streets and lots. il *$2.50 (3½c) Putnam 710 16-3145

This is a revision of the author's work on "The width and arrangement of streets," published in 1911. The original work, the author says, "has been so amplified, revised, and rearranged that a reader will not be impressed by the presence of the old material. Yet it is all here—though buried under the new." The work advocates a more rational method of street planning in the adaptation of the city plat to topography. The book is made up of three sections, Standardization in street platting, Functional street platting, and City planning legislation, with introductory and concluding chapters. There are 58 illustrations, from both plans and photographs, an appendix giving reports of committees, etc., and an index.

Reviewed by S. E. W. Bedford

+ Am J Soc 22:96 J1 '16 220w

A L A Bkl 12:395 My '16

+ Ann Am Acad 67:320 S '16 180w

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 8 '16 440w

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg

+ Dial 61:186 S 21 '16 170w

+ Educ R 52:204 S '16 70w

"He shows more restraint than in his 'Modern civic art' and many of his city-planning reports,

ROBINSON, CHARLES MULFORD—Continued
which were too pronouncedly æsthetic in aim and expression for the average prosaic and rather suspicious American citizen and taxpayer who must pay the city-planning bills."

+ Engin N 76:553 S 21 '16 260w

"Unless a word of caution be said, there is danger that so excellent a book may mislead city-planning bodies into the error of supposing that they can, with its aid, work out all the problems that come before them. Town planning is, in the last analysis, the work of the expert. It is for the student, the trained town-planning engineer, to work out these problems of plotting and arrangement." Morris Knowles

+ Engin Rec 73:651 My 13 '16 700w

"There is nothing dry about the book. It is full of vital revelations about things that we take too much for granted. A general reading of such a book would result in a more generous interest in municipal improvement."

+ Lit D 52:736 Mr 18 '16 180w

Pittsburgh 21:243 My '16 30w

"Combining the scientific accuracy of the expert, the vigorous directness of the journalist, and the clarity of the college teacher, he has given us a book which should have a wide influence in making the problems of city planning intelligible and its advantages apparent. If the book is of value to the student and the expert it is of equal value to every urban citizen interested in the vital problems of his town or city." R. E. Cushman

+ Pol Sci Q 31:327 Je '16 1100w

Pratt p26 Ap '16

"A book admirably planned, written and illustrated. More than a word should be said for the illustrations, which not only truly illustrate the points made in the text, but often have an added interest of their own." F. R.

+ Pub W 89:655 F 19 '16 670w

+ R of Rs 53:379 Mr '16 50w

+ Springfield Republican p6 J1 28 '16 400w

ROBINSON, EDWIN ARLINGTON. Man against the sky. *$1 Macmillan 811 16-4598

There are somewhat over twenty poems in this volume, each a work of distinction. With the exception of "Ben Jonson entertains a man from Stratford," which should be counted as one of the tercentenary tributes, the themes are modern. The treatment is modern too in its deceptive simplicity. A number of the poems are reprinted from periodicals.

+ A L A Bkl 12:419 Je '16

"These verses are typical of the good-class magazine or periodical, satisfactory in many ways, but never inspiring. One, 'The gift of God,' rises above the level of its fellows."

Ath p593 D '16 30w

Reviewed by W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p9 F 26 '16 1550w

"This sort of workmanship is highly significant to those interested in the poetic art, as showing how all the effects of directness, veracity, and individuality can be obtained not only without losing the sense of beauty but—what is especially pertinent to our generation—without losing the sense of form." R. M. Alden

+ Dial 61:62 J1 15 '16 560w

+ Lit D 52:738 Mr 18 '16 1300w

Reviewed by O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 103:150 Ag 17 '16 600w

"Dynamic with experience and knowledge of life. . . . His poems do not invigorate; they mellow and subdue. But in our material day, the spirituality of Mr. Robinson's work is tonic and uplifting." Amy Lowell

+ New Repub 7:96 My 27 '16 1250w

"Mr. Robinson's attitude toward life is the Russian attitude—the attitude of Dostoevsky. He is intent on pointing out the good in evil. He is the subtlest of the subtle and has been called the portrait painter of the soul."

+ N Y Times 21:121 Ap 2 '16 1050w

+ No Am 203:633 Ap '16 250w

"Simple, direct lyricism, so effortless as to seem magical, and possessing more insight into the kingdom of the mind than the work of any other American poet."

+ R of Rs 53:632 My '16 200w

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 28 '16 230w

"There is more packed away within its few pages than the most receptive reader will discover in volumes of our modern rhapsodists."

E: B. Reed

+ Yale R ns 6:421 Ja '17 280w

ROBINSON, ERNEST FRANKLIN. Military preparedness and the engineer. Il $1.50
Clark bk. co. 623 16-8710

"The purpose of this book is to place before the engineers of America as accurate an idea as possible of the opportunities and limitations that will confront the civilian engineer in the event of war, to show him what he can do to assist in preparedness against invasion and how he must go about the matter." (Preface) Contents: How to obtain a military training; The national guard; Military organization; Military administration; Engineer troops in the field; Fire action; Field fortifications; Obstacles; Siege works; Demolitions; Military bridges; Topographical sketching; Needs of the engineers in war; Conclusion. A bibliography, "Military reading-for civilian engineers," is given in an appendix.

Cleveland p13 Ag '16 20w

"It is a good primary text, opening up the field and orienting the would-be officer's ideas; and it gives better notes on the lectures and elementary texts than even a careful student would make."

+ Engin N 75:940 My 18 '16 430w

"Provided with excellent illustrations, a selection of appropriate reading matter, and a list of engineering property carried by a company of engineers in the field. Reviewed in Canadian Engineer, July 27, 1916, p. 77."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p15 Ag '16 170w

Pittsburgh 21:290 Je '16 90w

St Louis 14:382 N '16 20w

ROBINSON, J. P. KAY. With Botha's army; with introductory letter by General Botha. *$1.25 Dutton 940.91 (Eng ed 16-14056)

"This little book is not a history of the war in southwest German Africa, but a short description of the battles, and some serious and funny stories. General Botha, who writes the introduction, says of the book: 'It contains an able and good description of the fine spirit which animated our army in German Southwest Africa, and of the good humor which kept our men cheerful under most trying conditions.'—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 150w

+ New Repub 8:335 O 28 '16 280w

N Y Br Lib News 3:104 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:247 Je 18 '16 100w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 10w

"To the realist, to him who would learn of the doings and sufferings— quaint and grim, humorous and pitiful, hideously monotonous and uniquely beautiful—of the small portion of the army that operated around Lüderitzbucht, this book will be very welcome. The language is vivid, virile, and alive; and the author shows a remarkable skill in finding unusual, but in the circumstances perfectly justifiable, phrases and epithets. His pen-portraits are extremely good and he has the artist's eye for the beautiful under no matter what conditions; while a vein of quiet humour runs throughout the book."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p243 My 25 '16 930w

ROBINSON, JAMES HARVEY. Medieval and modern times. Il $1.60 (½c) Ginn 949 16-14809

A revised edition of the author's 'Introduction to the history of western Europe,' which was first published in 1902. Among the changes noted by the author are, a simplification of treatment, making the book more suitable to high school and preparatory classes as well as to beginning classes in colleges, the cutting down of the treatment of medieval times making possible the addition of about one hundred pages devoted to recent history without increasing the size of the book, the inclusion of new illustrations with explanatory legends which "add much information which it would have been awkward to include in the general narrative." The history is brought down to the outbreak of the war in 1914.

"Appended is an uncommonly comprehensive bibliography. The numerous illustrations, maps and genealogical tables are fully adequate."

- + Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 300w
- + Ind 87:231 Ag 14 '16 110w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:157 O '16
- Pittsburgh 21:430 O '16
- + School R 24:772 D '16 380w

"Especially interesting is his treatment of the causes which led up to the European war, and this inclusion should commend the book for school use, as throwing much light on current history."

- + Springfield Republican p13 N 12 '16 130w

ROBINSON, WILLIAM ALEXANDER. Jeffersonian democracy in New England. (Yale historical publications, Miscellany, 3) il *$2 (4½c) Yale univ. press 329 16-22344

The Federalist party was dominant in New England at the time of which the author writes. "Nevertheless," he says, "the New England Republicans performed important services, both local and national, in a period full of domestic and foreign difficulties." Contents: Political conditions in New England, 1789-1797; The growth of Republicanism, 1797-1800; The growth of Republicanism, 1800-1807; Party methods; The Federalist reaction, 1808-1815; The party basis; Republicanism and religious liberty; The national significance of New England Republicanism; Party distribution. The work was begun as a piece of graduate work at Yale and in its original essay form won the John Addison Porter prize in 1913.

N Y Br Lib News 3:186 D '16

"The study is compact and workmanlike, and its use of original material constitutes its value as an aid to historical scholarship. It shows, however, the defects of its method, being keener in assembling facts than brilliant in their interpretation. . . . Books such as Prof. Robinson's reach their chief public value in showing us that democracy in this country has not been conferred by Providence, but has been gained by bitter struggles."

- + Springfield Republican p13 N 19 '16 1650w

ROBINSON, WILLIAM JOSEPH. My fourteen months at the front; an American boy's baptism of fire. il *$1 (3c) Little 940.91 16-8943

The author is an American who went to England on business soon after the beginning of the war. Under the influence of the general excitement he enlisted and went to the front with the 5th Dragoon Guards. When men of this regiment were sent back to England to finish their training he managed to stay at the front as a member of the Army service corps, his familiarity with motor cars and motor cycles winning him the transfer. He relates his experiences as a driver of an armored car, as a dispatch rider, and as a gunner in the trenches.

- + A L A Bkl 13:76 N '16
- + Boston Transcript p8 Ap 8 '16 500w

"He came to know the British soldier as a comrade, and he was 'proud to belong to such an army.' He praises the British officers under whom he served, and he reveals the peculiar characteristics of the British soldier better than has any other war writer."

- + Ind 86:217 My 8 '16 210w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

N Y Br Lib News 3:89 Je '16

- + N Y Times 21:187 Ap 30 '16 250w
- Pratt p40 Ja '17 10w

- + R of Rs 53:627 My '16 90w

"A number of good illustrations serve to enhance the value of the book."

- + Springfield Republican p17 My 26 '16 330w

"Written in a boyishly energetic and slangy style, these chapters are as vivid and interesting as any we have had."

- + Wis Lib Bull 12:270 Je '16 60w

ROCHE, ALEXIS. Journeys with Jerry the Jarvey. *$1.35 (2c) Dutton (Eng ed 15-14920)

Jarvey is the term applied to the driver of an Irish jaunting-car. In a short introduction the author introduces us to Jerry, a humorist and philosopher. After that he lets Jerry talk for himself. Wit and wisdom are mingled in his monologs and they are plentifully sprinkled with characteristic Irish anecdotes.

- + Ath 1915:1:526 Je 12 100w

"The book is well written, though at times the humor is a bit broad. The reader will not find a dull line from the first page to the last."

- + Cath World 103:120 Ap '16 80w

"His stories of the 'quare' people he has known in this 'quare world' are Irish thru and thru, and hence delightful. Filled with excellent material, the book is marred by unskillful handling. A judicious omission of the broader bits of humor would also be an improvement."

- + — Ind 85:464 Mr 27 '16 70w

"An ever-bubbling spring of humor and wisdom, shrewdness and absurdity, which is the more entertaining the more one knows of Irish character. Every now and then he indulges in political or economic or social observation and comment that are usually shrewd and illuminating as well as droll."

- + N Y Times 21:90 Mr 12 '16 580w

"A splendid book for vacation reading."

- + R of Rs 54:125 Jl '16 10w

- + Spec 114:853 Je 19 '15 1000w

- + — Springfield Republican p13 Jl 2 '16 160w

ROCHE, ARTHUR SOMERS. Loot. il *$1.25 (2c) Bobbs 16-15132

Wade Hildreth, landing in New York on a business mission, one item of which is to procure for his wealthy client in England a necklace valued at $2,000,000, regrets that he has but two days to stay. He would like to see something of the wonderful city of which he has had but a glimpse. He is permitted to see something of it, and under most strange circumstances. From the first moment of his arrival he is involved in a gigantic criminal plot, altho his first inkling of the state of affairs comes only when Morn Light, the star in the musical comedy he has dropped in to see, mysteriously summons him to her dressing room. There follows a most exciting series of incidents, through which Hildreth, Morn, and the diamond necklace are carried to final triumph.

- + Boston Transcript p6 Ag 2 '16 330w

"That a story wildly exciting to the point of incredibility should absorb the reader without inciting adverse criticism speaks well for the skill of the writer."

- + Lit D 53:1341 N 18 '16 200w

"Mr. Roche begins well and ends ill. . . . The conclusion is of the sudden, unexpected sort that is the bane of the honest reader of detective yarns. It is a pity that the author let a good plot slip through his fingers."

- + — Nation 103:488 N 23 '16 160w

"The ingenious story gallops along at a swift pace, with plenty of surprises and plenty of incident. Altogether, those desirous of reading an entertaining and well-written detective story will be wise to turn their attention to Mr. Roche's tale of 'Loot.'"

- + N Y Times 21:303 Jl 30 '16 530w

- Springfield Republican p15 Jl 23 '16 130w

ROE, JOSEPH WICKHAM. English and American tool builders. il *$3 (4c) Yale univ. press 621.7 16-11753

The author prefaces his work with Carlyle's statement: "Man is a tool-using animal. . . Without tools he is nothing, with tools he is all," and then continues, saying that the purpose of his book is "to bring out the importance of the work and influence of the great tool builders." Few of the general public know, he says, who the great tool builders were, still less is known of their life and work. The treatment is limited to England and America because "practically all of the creative work in tool building has been done in these two countries." Among the early English tool builders are John Wilkinson, who made possible the building of Watts' steam engine, Joseph Bramah, Sir Samuel Bentham, Sir Marc Brunel, Henry Maudslay, Joseph Clement, and James Nasmyth. Among the Americans given notice are Elias Howe, Eli Whitney, Simeon North, Samuel Colt, Francis A. Pratt, Amos Whitney and James Hartness. The author is professor of machine design in Sheffield scientific school and much of the material presented here represents original research.

+ Am Econ R 6:618 S '16 370w
A L A Bkl 13:68 N '16

"Fuller on the American than on the English side."

Cleveland p151 D '16 120w
+ Engin N 76:311 Ag 17 '16 120w
+ Nation 103:244 S 7 '16 80w
N Y Br Lib News 3:94 Je '16

"Also reviewed in Canadian Engineer, July 27, 1916, p. 79; in American Machinist, July 27, 1916, p. 176; in Mining and Scientific Press, July 8, 1916, p. 74."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p14 Ag '16 100w
"May be said to respond to a real literary need, inasmuch as it is the only notable book of its kind that has been published in this country in the last fifty years."

+ N Y Times 21:319 Ag 13 '16 100w
Pittsburgh 21:498 N '16 50w

ROE, VINGIE E. Divine egotist. il *$1.35 (2c) Dodd 16-19455

The story of a woman's faith and a man's reformation. Velviny Craith has beauty, wealth, social position and a confidence in herself which one of her friends characterizes as divine egotism. She is mistress of Crimson Water, an estate on the outskirts of a prosperous, graft-ridden city, and with the same assurance with which she manages her private affairs, she takes hold of the politics of the city, determined to rid it of its evil practices. She marshals her forces, collects her evidence, and stands ready at last to expose the ring of grafters. But at that moment she decides on a more audacious course. She puts aside her evidence, determined to win over the man who has been the brain and soul of the ring. This man is Caradine, a southerner, renegade and drunkard. Her fight and victory make up the story. The scene is in that part of the middle west, where north and south meet. The life of Crimson Water is distinctly southern in its atmosphere.

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.
Bookm 44:276 N '16 290w

ROHMER, SAX, pseud. (ARTHUR SANSFIELD WARD). Return of Dr. Fu-Manchu. *$1.35 (2c) McBride 16-6203

"Imagine a person tall, lean, and feline, high shouldered, with a brow like Shakespeare and a face like Satan, a close-shaven skull, and long magnetic eyes of the true cat green. Invest him with all the cruel cunning of an entire eastern race accumulated in one giant intellect, with all the resources of science, past and present, and you have a mental picture of Dr. Fu-Manchu, the 'Yellow Peril' incarnate in one man." This is the author's own picture of his villain. The book is a sequel to "The insidious Dr. Manchu," published about three years ago. At the close of that story the reader was left in doubt as to the fate of the wily Chinaman. There was a possibility that he might be dead, but no certainty. In the present story he reappears in England very much alive and bent on new deviltry.

"There is not a dull moment in the story, and the swiftly moving incidents are arrayed in the atmosphere of oriental munificence."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 12 '16 140w
N Y Br Lib News 3:77 My '16

ROLAND, JOHN, pseud. Six-pointed cross in the dust. il *$1.30 (1c) Stokes 17-494

The hero of this new novel by the author of "The good shepherd" is a wandering knight-errant. As he expressed his own mission: "My life-work is like that of all noble knights. I go through the world seeking to do good. Not striving, as the fashion was in times past, to right men's wrong; for that is quite impossible. But trying to make the wrongs, once done, easier to bear. Not succoring the innocent. But lending a hand to the guilty." In this story he has for his companion a young Bavarian lad who has just completed his apprenticeship and the book is made up of the adventures that they meet during one wander-jahr.

"The adventures are manufactured—never really happened; and the whole tale lacks the breath of true romance."

—Ind 88:467 D 11 '16 50w

"The book is fairly ingenious, but much too long winded, while the adventures are related in a rather spiritless fashion, and so fail to arouse any great interest on the part of the reader."

—+ N Y Times 21:395 O 1 '16 240w

ROLFS, PETER HENRY. Subtropical vegetable-gardening. (Rural science ser.) il *$1.50 Macmillan 635 16-6111

"Subtropical vegetable gardening" discusses the special problems involved in plant growth for those fortunate sections which can produce tropical and temperate vegetables in the hot and cool seasons respectively.—Ind

"Useful to progressive farmers and agricultural students in the Gulf states, also valuable as a reference book for instructors and students in the North. Frequent reference is made to U. S. government documents."

+ A L A Bkl 12:462 J1 '16
+ Ind 87:421 S 18 16 30w

"Although Mr. Rolfs's book is designed primarily to meet the needs of the Florida people, it will be found, none the less, of great use in other parts of the tropical and subtropical belts, and the suggestive way in which difficulties of all kinds are indicated and disposed of should render it good reading to the dwellers of temperate zones as well. The chapter on irrigation is an example to the point." A. S. W.

+ Nature 98:189 N 9 '16 310w
N Y Br Lib News 3:143 S '16
Pittsburgh 21:576 D '16
St Louis 14:190 My '16

ROLLAND, ROMAIN. Above the battle; tr. by C. K. Ogden. *$1 (2½c) Open ct. 940.91 16-7501

These essays were written in Switzerland where M. Rolland has been since the beginning of the war engaged in the work of the International agency for prisoners of war. They have not found a welcome in France, but many of them have appeared in the Journal de Genève and some of them in English in the Cambridge magazine. It is in this wise that M. Rolland sees his mission: "A great nation assailed by war has not only its frontiers to protect; it must also protect its good sense. It must protect itself from the hallucinations, injustices, and follies which the plague lets loose." He sees it as his mission to uphold the ideals of brotherhood that national hatreds and jeal-ousies have broken down. "I know that such thoughts have little chance of being heard to-day," he writes. "Moreover I do not speak to convince it [Europe]. I speak but to solace my conscience—and I know that at the same time I shall solace the hearts of thousands of others who, in all countries, cannot or dare not speak themselves."

A L A Bkl 12:422 Je '16

"The book is eloquent in its moral appeal, but the several chapters, being a collection of contributions to the press, are disconnected and inconclusive."

+ — Am Pol Sci R 10:583 Ag '16 100w

"No indictment of German militarism could be less compromising, no praise of the noblest French traditions more just, than M. Rolland's. But to M. Rolland, the tragedy of this war is the tragedy of humanity as a whole. No saner counsel has yet been heard above the turmoil of the conflict. Here is a book which proves that the tradition of Goethe and Carlyle is not yet dead,—that at least one man lives in the world who can speak out with something of their eloquence and their wisdom in behalf of the eternal claims of humanity." W. R. Browne

+ Dial 80:277 Mr 16 '16 1450w

+ Ind 89:115 Ja 15 '17 180w

"With the essays and letters are incorporated three international documents of value: the manifesto of the Catalanian intellectuals, the appeal of the Dutch anti-war council, and clear and vigorous testimony of a Lettish student as to the respective perils of Pan-Germanism and Pan-Slavism. . . . 'War literatures' and 'The murder of the élite' are terse and touching accounts of that small minority in Germany which did not succumb to the war fever, but could be just and generous even in the trenches. Side by side with these essays, are the tribute to Belgium, The open letter to Gerhart Hauptmann, and the Valedictory, 'Jaurès.' The knowledge is equally wide and sound, the style curiously epic in its massive dignity and limpid clearness, with some strikingly happy epigrammatic judgments." F. W. S. B.

+ Int J Ethics 26:571 Jl '16 180w

+ Nation 103:89 Jl 27 '16 140w

"The articles and letters which make up the new volume appeared for the most part in the Geneva Journal. They brought the wrath of both France and Germany on the author's head. The reason is not far to seek. France and Germany wish to believe the worst of each other—Rolland insists, even in these dire days, on repudiating national hatreds and cultivating international understanding. Nobody who reads him at this distance can doubt the ardor of his patriotism, though one cannot help feeling that his absence from France has somewhat tempered the reality of what he has to say." E. S. Sergeant

+ New Repub 6:49 F 12 '16 1400w

N Y Times 21:169 Ap 23 '16 500w

R of Rs 53:756 Je '16 90w

— Sat R 121:444 My 6 '16 970w

"M. Rolland's error, in fine, is his extraordinary inopportune. He talks of looking down from the high plateaus of Switzerland on the strife of nations. It is a most unfortunate phrase. It is precisely this 'looking down' from a height, whether it be a physical, moral, or philosophical height, which enrages a man who is conscious that he is playing his own honest, humble, and dangerous part in a great cause, while his lecturing philosopher is less perilously engaged."

— Spec 116:631 My 20 '16 1200w

"Yet he does look forward to peace and friendship with a future Germany from which the disease of Prussianism has been remorselessly cut out. He sees even now, and he shows to his readers in one remarkable chapter, this new Germany in the making. The whole of Germany, after all, is not thinking in platoons. English readers do not know it; they have always been far too little concerned to know what goes on in the mind of modern Germany. Let them learn something of it from Rolland. He has a right to speak with unfettered lips, confident of the understanding and sympathy of honest minds. But we must indicate one or two points on which we frankly disagree with him."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p110 Mr 9 '16 1350w

ROLLAND, ROMAIN. Handel; tr. by A. Eaglefield Hull; with an introd. by the editor. il *$1.50 (3c) Hoit (Eng ed 16-22104)

A work which, in the author's words, "does not pretend to be anything more than a very brief sketch of the life and technique of Handel." A little more than one half the book is devoted to the "life." The remainder, treating of Handel's technique and works, takes up in turn: The operas, The oratorios, The clavier compositions; The chamber music (sonatas and trios), The orchestral works. A list of Handel's works and a bibliography are given in appendices. There are four plates.

+ A L A Bkl 13:111 D '16

"Not only is Rolland's study untraditional, it is also unconventional." L. M. Isaacs

+ Bookm 44:266 N '16 1500w

"The book is written in a popular style, for the general reader, and occupies a field quite apart from that of the elaborate works of Chrysander and Schoelcher. Yet M. Rolland makes his book readable by sound methods. . . . It is particularly valuable for the illuminating background which M. Rolland furnishes by his description of places and contemporary persons and events. . . . The list of Handel's compositions, the bibliography, and the index are all useful. Dr. Hull's translation is quite satisfying." Russell Ramsey

+ Dial 61:263 O 5 '16 1330w

+ R of Rs 54:565 N '16 80w

"It is written with enthusiasm, but with judgment as well."

+ Springfield Republican p13 S 24 '16 290w

"M. Rolland's view of Handel had been largely anticipated by the excellent English biography of Mr. R. A. Streatfield, to which M. Rolland acknowledges his indebtedness at many points. In only one department of Handel's work, and that a comparatively small one—his music for instruments without voices—is M. Rolland's study at all closer and more detailed."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p173 Ap 13 '16 970w

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS WILLIAM. Boy with the U. S. mail. il $1.50 (2c) Lothrop 353 16-22140

"The story of the United States post-office is a record of bravery and success that knows no superior," says the author. "No army holds a post more dangerous, none is entrusted with a greater treasure, none has more nobly and more worthily upheld the faith and trust of the people than the army of the United States mail." This volume is the eighth in the "U. S. service series," and as in the other books, the author has told an interesting story and at the same time described fully the activities of one department of our government. The scope of the book may be shown by the chapter headings: The honor of the postage stamp; Caught by the secret service; Pigeon messengers of life and death; On the trail with the pony express; A desperado mail-carrier; Battling with the Sioux; Caught in the quicksands; Handling the Arctic mail; Mail service by aeroplane; Saving the railway mail.

Ind 88:405 D 4 '16 30w

+ Lit D 53:1567 D 9 '16 100w

"The author has had access to official sources of information, with the result that his facts are solidly based."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 150w

"The story is negligible but the incidents are instructive."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:455 D '16 30w

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS WILLIAM. Monster-hunters. il *$1.25 (1½c) Lothrop 16-14350

The author, who has had the assistance of specialists in the American Museum of natural

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS WILLIAM—Cont. history, has hit upon a novel scheme for the instruction and entertainment of young readers. He writes the story of what happened to a boy who accompanied two expeditions made in the interests of the Museum,—one to the Sahara, the other to Wyoming. For the benefit of this young hero the author recreates the monsters of the earth of remote geological periods, and pictures, according to scientific facts, their haunts and their habits. This the author has done to suggest to boys that they themselves can be hunters and captors of tokens of grim ages and to show them the thrill of discovery and the splendid work that scientists and museum experts are accomplishing. The illustrations include the restorations by Charles R. Knight of pre-historic reptiles, reproduced by the courtesy of the Museum.

A L A BkI 13:40 O '16

+ Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '16 210w

+ Springfield Republican p13 J1 2 '16 150w

ROMAN, CHARLES VICTOR. American civilization and the negro; the Afro-American in relation to national progress. il $2.50 (2c) Davis 326 16-2965

A dignified and dispassionate presentation of the whole negro problem. The writer is a colored physician whose hope is to increase racial self-respect and diminish racial antagonism. The aim thrust is to show "that humanity is one in vices and virtues as well as blood; that the laws of evolution and progress apply equally to all; that there are no lethal diseases peculiar to the American negro; that there are no debasing vices peculiar to the African; that there are no cardinal virtues peculiar to the European; that we are all sinners and have come short of the glories of civilization. Hence, one should be careful to hear all the available evidence before giving judgment, especially when that judgment involves the welfare of a people." (Preface)

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 14 '16 1250w

"Because the author has lived with the things of which he writes, and because his work has evidently taken its own time in maturing, his book somehow furnishes endless food for thought. It shows, moreover, an excellent acquaintance with the literature of the subject, and is well illustrated."

+ Dial 60:341 Mr 30 '16 220w

+ Ind 87:102 J1 17 '16 200w

+ St Louis 15:8 Ja '17 40w

"This book is obviously prepared and published as an antidote for Shufeldt's book on the negro, issued last year by the same firm. As such, it is a complete and amusing success. The word 'amusing' is used advisedly, for Dr. Roman has by imitation without comment emphasized many of the weaknesses and defects of Dr. Shufeldt's book. Moreover like most of his race Dr. Roman has a keen sense of humor and real skill in the use of witty phrases, so that many of his aphorisms are exceedingly clever. . . . Racial self-respect should be greatly promoted among the negroes by the publication of Dr. Roman's book, and racial comity should be likewise advanced. For there is as much for the white race in the volume as there is for the author's own people." H. L. Clark

+ Science n s 43:855 Je 16 '16 1000w

"On the whole, the book contains much matter of permanent value and presents the case for the negro with fairness. Its chief value is documentary, as showing certain present-day tendencies." Joseph Gould

+ Survey 37:282 D 9 '16 520w

ROOF, KATHARINE METCALF. Stranger at the hearth. $1.35 (1c) Small 16-22894

Nina Ferris, now the Contessa Varesca, returns to New York with her Italian husband to find her own city a different place from the one she had left a dozen years before. Everywhere the immigrant and the children of the immigrant are, in her eyes, de-Americanizing America. The book is a study of these new conditions, written around a slender plot furnished by Nina's evaluation of her husband's Latin qualities when forced into sharp contrast with those of Percy Loring, a hypocritically priggish writer of "best-sellers" and of Daniel Griscom, a forceful, clear-thinking American of the older type. A study of New York society forms a background to this character analysis.

"One of the analytical, intellectual novels we expect from certain American woman writers. From a hundred unexpected points of view she presents the picture of the alien over-running New York."

Dial 61:538 D 14 '16 240w

"The book, despite some glibness in the psychology of national traits and in the history of our American civilization, is a conscientious protest against any relaxing of the social ideal."

+ Nation 103:587 D 21 '16 320w

"For its clearness of perception, sincerity of purpose, and excellence of style the book deserves a more careful reading than is usually given to a story of modern society. That, in spite of its merits, it somehow fails to grip the reader's attention as do many stories less praiseworthy is, perhaps, because the writer's creative power is not yet equal to her vision."

+ N Y Times 21:496 N 19 '16 300w

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE. Book-lover's holidays in the open. il $2 (2½c) Scribner 795 16-6251

Adventures in the United States and Canada and in South America are described in this book. In his Foreword the author has something to say of the pleasures of out-door life that are open to the man past his first youth. "The joy of living is his who has the heart to demand it," is the keynote of the book. Contents: A cougar hunt on the rim of the Grand Canyon; Across the Navajo desert; The Hopi snake-dance; The ranchland of Argentina and southern Brazil; A Chilean rondeo; Across the Andes and Northern Patagonia; Wild hunting companions; Primitive man; and the horse, the lion, and the elephant; Books for holidays in the open; Bird reserves at the mouth of the Mississippi; A curious experience.

"Much of the material has appeared in Scribner's magazine."

+ A L A BkI 12:466 J1 '16

+ Ath p477 O '16 50w

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:544 J1 '16 720w

"He has said that 'the joy of living is his who has the heart to demand it.' After reading this book we would have no question that Mr. Roosevelt is among those who possess the heart to demand every kind of joy. . . . Characteristically, none of the hunting expeditions has been without its accompanying reflections upon the conditions of men and game and how these might be bettered. He has much to say in regard to the Indians in the United States. . . . In his chapter of books for the open, Mr. Roosevelt has much to say on the question of reading in general." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 1250w

+ Cath World 103:401 Je '16 300w

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:23 Je 22 '16 270w

Ind 86:182 My 1 '16 80w

"Two of the chapters are entirely new. The others have been expanded and revised since their appearance in magazines. . . . Roosevelt is one of those authors who in their books unconsciously bare their souls. The French saying that the style is the man himself seems literal in his case."

+ Lit D 52:1290 My 6 '16 700w

+ Nation 102:674 Je 22 '16 1050w

+ New Repub 6:296 Ap 15 '16 1650w

"The book gives a feeling of dissatisfaction with the inside of a house—a craving for the hardships of the trail followed by the soundest sleep under the stars, the night wind to twist the smoke of the smoldering camp fire."

+ N Y Times 21:126 Ap 2 '16 600w

"There are no dull passages in any of the chapters. The chapter on the great bird reserves at the mouth of the Mississippi is probably the most complete popular account of those institutions that has been published anywhere."

- + R of Rs 53:630 My '16 190w
- + Sat R 122:349 O 7 '16 1900w
- + Spec 117:445 O 14 '16 1600w
- + Springfield Republican p13 Je 18 '16 600w
- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p475 O 5 '16 600w

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE. Fear God and take your own part. *$1.50 (2c) Doran 327.73 16-3624

Mr. Roosevelt's well-known position on immediate national issues is restated with emphasis in this volume, which is based in part on articles written for the Metropolitan magazine. "The principles set forth," he says, "are simply the principles of true Americanism within and without our own borders, the principles which, according to my abilities, I have preached and, according to my abilities, I have practised for the thirty-five years since, as a very young man, I first began to take an active interest in American history and in American political life." Contents: Fear God and take your own part; Warlike power; Where there is a sword for offence there must be a sword for defence; America, first—a phrase or a fact? International duty and hyphenated Americanism; Peace insurance by preparedness against war; Uncle Sam's only friend is Uncle Sam; The sound of laughter and of playing children has been stilled in Mexico; When is an American not an American? The Japanese in Korea; The Panama blackmail treaty; Conclusion. In addition there are several appendices. The book is not indexed.

A L A Bkl 12:360 My '16
Bookm 43:12 Mr '16 250w

"When one has sufficiently marvelled at the artist's inexhaustible powers of abuse, one falls into fresh amazement at the dauntless courage of his inconsistencies and his apparently boundless faith in the large, easy swallow of the plain people."

- Nation 102:518 My 11 '16 2750w
- N Y Times 21:53 F 13 '16 750w
- Pittsburgh 21:104 Mr '16 100w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper
+ Pub W 89:654 F 19 '16 1000w
R of Rs 53:381 Mr '16 30w
St Louis 14:148 Ap '16

Reviewed by L. T. Chapman
+ Seven Seas 2:36 My '16 730w

"The most remarkable attack on pacificism yet published. It refines all moral questions down to a single and very simple question. We hope that Mr. Roosevelt's book will be widely read here. No work could be more vitally relevant to the problems which arise out of the war."

- + Spec 116:440 Ap 1 '16 2000w
- + Springfield Republican p13 F 21 '16 480w
- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p147 Mr 30 '16 1200w

"Of interest just now, but very lengthy and will hardly be read fully except by Mr. Roosevelt's followers."

- + — Wis Lib Bull 12:268 Je '16 80w

ROOT, ELIHU. Address as temporary chairman of the New York Republican convention, February 15, 1916. *50c Dutton 327.73 16-14753

A reprint of "the 'Address' delivered by Elihu Root last February before the New York Republican convention, in which he scored the present administration on many counts, but especially its policy in regard to the European war."—Ind

- Ind 86:404 Je 5 '16 40w
- R of Rs 54:115 Jl '16 30w
- The Times [London] Lit Sup p158 Ap 6 '16 190w

ROOT, ELIHU. Addresses on government and citizenship. *$2 Harvard univ. press 308 16-21573

"The second volume of Mr. Root's addresses, edited by Messrs. Bacon and Scott, relates chiefly to government. It contains the four lectures at Yale on 'The citizen's part in government,' and the two delivered at Princeton on 'Experiments in government, and the essentials of the constitution,' with a number having to do with the New York state constitutional conventions of 1894 and 1915. There are also addresses dealing with the profession of law, the administration of justice, the law's delay, individual liberty, and the responsibility of the bar, and the whole range of professional service, obligation, and opportunity."—N Y Times

A L A Bkl 13:150 Ja '17

"The few short pages on the recall of judges (pp.387-410), for instance, are on the whole the best single statement with which I am acquainted of the case against a periodic renewal of tenure. . . . If I had to single out the most important contribution of the book to our present situation it would undoubtedly be the speeches in which Mr. Root deals (pp.363-78) with the function of the states in the national life." H. J. Laski

- + Dial 61:387 N 16 '16 1050w
- Ind 88:328 N 20 '16 60w

"No serious student of the American political system can afford to ignore the masterful exposition of its principles which this volume contains."

- + Nation 103:609 D 28 '16 750w
- + N Y Times 22:8 Ja 7 '17 130w

ROOT, ELIHU. Addresses on international subjects; collected and ed. by Robert Bacon and James Brown Scott. *$2 (1c) Harvard univ. press 341 16-13169

This is the first of several volumes in which the public addresses and state papers of Elihu Root are to be printed. The papers collected will cover the period of his service as secretary of war, secretary of state, and as United States senator. They are not arranged chronologically but are classified and grouped by subject, so that each volume will contain papers centering around a single theme. In this volume, for instance, the subject is international law and relations, and among the addresses that make up the contents are these: The need of popular understanding of international law; The real questions under the Japanese treaty and the San Francisco school board resolution; The sanction of international law; The basis of protection to citizens residing abroad; The real significance of the Declaration of London; The ethics of the Panama question; Should international law be codified?

"Well indexed."

- + A L A Bkl 13:104 D '16
- + Am Pol Sci R 10:759 N '16 120w
- + Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 950w

"The books are in excellent style, print, and binding, some five hundred octavo pages each, and for what they are, very low in price. All this is but justice to Mr. Root, to the world and to the students and statesmen of today and tomorrow, for these addresses are, especially those on international law and controversy, important to the country, as those by Daniel Webster on constitutional law were when uttered, and yet are."

- + Ind 88:327 N 20 '16 190w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:106 Jl '16

"The outstanding feature in these addresses is the ethical spirit that pervades them. It may, perhaps, be said that they are a careful, clear, intelligent, often eloquent and always sincere application to international relations of the time-honored legal principle: He who seeks equity must do equity."

- + N Y Times 21:276 Jl 9 '16 1750w
- + R of Rs 54:455 O '16 200w

"His attitude toward these matters is not that of a lawyer, but rather that of a reformer of international practices."

- + Springfield Republican p6 Jl 3 '16 670w

ROPES, JAMES HARDY. Critical and exegetical commentary on the Epistle of St. James. *$3 Scribner 227 16-6543

"This latest addition to the 'International critical commentaries' will be especially welcome

ROPES, JAMES HARDY—Continued
to all students of the New Testament. . . . The commentary is provided with a particularly valuable introduction. The Epistle is believed to be a pseudonymous production of some Christian Jew of Palestine writing in the last quarter of the first, or the first quarter of the second, century. . . . The commentary proper, constructed along the general lines of its predecessors in this series, contains many valuable special studies of obscure words and phrases."—Bib World

+ A L A Bkl 13:7 O '16

Ath p278 Je '16 60w

+ Ath p411 S '16 650w

"His work should be standard for some time to come."

+ Bib World 47:342 My '16 400w

"A minute exegetical study for specialists. The wealth of illustration from Greek and Rabbinical literature make the work invaluable to those who love to deal with parallelisms of thought and expression."

+ Ind 86:344 My 29 '16 50w

"The volume is conspicuous for its thoroughness, historical insight, lucidity, and sound common-sense. There are larger works on James, but none better."

+ Nation 102:sup500 My 4 '16 310w

Pittsburgh 21:230 My '16

ROSCOE, REV. JOHN. Northern Bantu. (Cambridge archaeological and ethnological ser.) il *$3.75 (3c) Putnam 572.9 (Eng ed 16-7239)

An earlier work by the author, published in 1911, dealt with the Baganda, the most powerful and farthest advanced of the Bantu tribes. Some of the lesser known tribes of the Uganda protectorate are treated in this book. The five parts into which the book is divided are devoted to: The Banyoro a pastoral people; The Banyankole a pastoral tribe of Ankole; The Bakene, lake dwellers; The Bagesu a cannibal tribe; The Basoga; Nilotic tribes, the Bateso and the Kavirondo. Different types and different stages of primitive culture are represented, and in each case marriage and birth customs, religious rites, industrial development, etc. are discussed.

"The arrangement of the matter and the literary expression are alike so clear that the scientific student will have no difficulty in putting his finger on the facts as he wants them. Mr. Roscoe has long been in close touch with Sir James Frazer, and some of his most valuable notes were doubtless directly inspired by the principles of research embodied in the latter author's 'Totemism and exogamy.' Dr. Rivers, too, has helped him with a form whereby relationship terms might be systematically recorded."

+ Ath 1915,2:467 D 18 850w

+ Lit D 53:625 S 9 '16 290w

"Mr. Roscoe is too well known as an ethnologist to require any introduction to the readers of Nature, who if they are studying the negro people of Africa will read his new book as eagerly as its predecessors." H. H. Johnston

+ Nature 96:507 Ja 6 '16 800w

"The book is well illustrated."

+ N Y Times 21:288 J1 16 '16 50w

"This is not a book for the general reader, yet it is crowded with interest for those who are interested in comparative anthropology." Bishop Frodsham

+ Sat R 121:282 Mr 18 '16 950w

Spec 115:796 D 4 '15 80w

ROSE, F. HORACE. Golden glory. *$1.25 (1c) Doran

A story of the prehistoric period in South Africa, before the coming of the white man. Three friends, Napo the dwarf, Keshwan the giant, and Baroa the bushman, typifying respectively strength, size and cunning, are the characters whose exploits are followed. The "golden glory" which they seek is to Keshwan and Baroa the golden crown which Haika, queen of the Bafokeng, has taken with her into captivity, but to Napo the dwarf it comes to mean much more, standing for the ideal, the quest of which is the object of life. It is a savage tale of a savage people, whose deeds, as the author ironically remarks, compare very favorably so far as cruelty goes with those of our own ancestors in the realms of Christendom.

— + Boston Transcript p6 N 25 '16 290w

"The book is frankly a yarn of satirical intent—an extravaganza involving romantic and other adventures."

+ Nation 103:156 Ag 17 '16 430w

"The novel is a curious mixture of allegory and adventure, history and legend. It is a well-written story, told with spirit and an occasional touch of clever sarcasm; full of action, occasionally exciting and often amusing."

+ N Y Times 21:118 Ap 2 '16 600w

"This adventure tale of South Africa a century ago, which gained the South African prize in a recent novel competition, is immensely long and leisurely but Mr. Rose writes well and evidently from first-hand knowledge."

+ Spec 115:311 S 4 '15 30w

ROSE, JOHN HOLLAND. Development of the European nations, 1870-1914. 5th ed maps *$2.75 (1c) Putnam 940.9 16-6514

The fifth edition of this work, published first in 1905, contains three new chapters that cover the period 1900-14. To make room for these the Epilogue and appendices have been omitted. Of his treatment of recent events the author says: "Necessarily, the narrative is tentative at many points; and it is impossible to attain impartiality; but I have sought to view events from the German as well as the British standpoint, and to sum up the evidence fairly." (Preface)

A L A Bkl 12:495 J1 '16

Army and Navy Journal 53:1184 My 13 '16 200w

"Dr. Rose can absorb not only the letter, but also the spirit, of state papers."

+ Ath p21 Ja '16 160w

"The best asset of the author lies in his ability to view events neutrally, for it has helped him to discuss without enmity the numerous events and diplomatic passages which led to the final break with Germany, with admirable understanding for both of the belligerents. It is less an arraignment of German ideals than of the Kaiser's diplomatic blunders which he makes." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p11 Ap 22 '16 800w

"While it cannot be said to reach the high level of originality nor to rest on the solid foundations of documentary evidence (since the documents are mostly still secretly guarded) which distinguish his valuable studies on Napoleon and Pitt, it is nevertheless one of the most convenient summaries in English of European diplomatic history since the Franco-Prussian war."

+ Nation 103:517 N 30 '16 330w

R of Rs 53:628 My '16 30w

St Louis 15:24 Ja '17 20w

"It will perhaps be thought that some of Dr. Rose's views need revision, rather than supplementation. But Dr. Rose's book, though one may at times differ from his interpretations, must be justly esteemed for its scope, its grasp of political history and the vivid character of its military information."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 330w

"A work for the thoughtful, educated reader, covering more fully less than half the period treated in Hazen's 'Europe since 1815,' which is perhaps the better book to buy where but one is needed."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:270 Je '16 60w

ROSE, JOHN HOLLAND. Nationality in modern history. *$1.25 (2c) Macmillan 940 16-10939

This book is made up of ten lectures. The first eight were delivered as a series at Cambridge in 1915. The ninth and tenth were delivered before the historical associations of Birmingham and Bristol. The author's aim in the first series was "to study the varied manifestations of nationality among the chief European peoples before attempting to analyze and define it." The seven chapters that are devoted to this historical survey are: The dawn of the national idea; Vive la nation; Schiller and Fichte; The Spanish national rising; Mazzini and young Italy; The awakening of the Slavs; The German theory of the state. The eighth chapter, Nationality and militarism, presents the analysis. The two remaining chapters are devoted to Nationalism since 1885 and Internationalism. Throughout the work "Nationality" has been used to indicate the legitimate aspirations of a people toward national unity; "Nationalism" to express the aggressive attitude of Germany and some of the Balkan states.

Reviewed by E. Krehbiel

+ Am Hist R 22:439 Ja '17 380w

"However much scholars may disagree with some of the writer's views, he affords a real historical perspective helpful to the average thoughtful reader."

A L A Bk1 13:27 O '16

"To students of history the book will prove a helpful review of familiar facts and their bearing on that topic of special interest at present, nationality and war. To those less well acquainted with Europe's past, 'Nationality in modern history' presents an opportunity to acquire a knowledge of facts essential to an intelligent consideration of present conditions and future developments,—facts given in a most interesting style and, as the author expresses it, in 'as objective and impartial a treatment as present conditions admit.'" M. L. Hickman

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:795 N '16 700w

"One is impressed with the author's wide reading, with the array of significant facts he has marshaled, still more with the penetration with which he sees the cause, the reason behind the event. . . . But, with all due respect to his scholarship, it must be said that the temptation which besets all lecturers to strain a point to make a point, proves occasionally too strong for his power of resistance."

+ Cath World 104:548 Ja '17 480w

"We lay down Dr. Rose's book with a sense of having failed to grasp his meaning. Its pages seem to us full of confusions and contradictions."

— Eng Hist R 21:675 O '16 470w

Ind 87:388 S 11 '16 470w

+ Lit D 53:81 J1 8 '16 580w

"To question him, even in the western world, seems like shaking the pillars of the temple. But the conception of history to-day is not the conception on which Dr. Rose attained authority. And if one respects the new conception Dr. Rose's authority falls to the ground. Candor and completeness are not Dr. Rose's characteristics. It is his ambition to be inspiring, not scientific; to educate the young patriotically by making history do politics a good turn." F. H.

— New Repub 7:95 My 27 '16 1700w

+ N Y Times 21:316 Ag 13 '16 550w

No Am 204:145 J1 '16 1200w

"So far, there has appeared no connected scientific account of the growth of the all-important idea of nationality; and it is to this book, therefore, that we turn with high hope. With many of the basic contentions of the author, thoughtful students will find themselves in full agreement. . . . Zealous national partisanship is probably the real explanation of many inconsistencies in Dr. Rose's book. . . . The chief defect seems to the reviewer to lie in Dr. Rose's uncertainty as to what nationality really is." Carlton Hayes

+ Pol Sci Q 31:605 D '16 1850w

Spec 117:130 J1 29 '16 1900w

"The publication of these lectures will hardly add to Dr. Rose's well-established reputation as a historian. The author is a sound historian, but he is weak in analysis, and there is no basis of philosophic thought; nor has he worked out for himself the complex political problems with which he deals. . . . Even for the nineteenth century the book is a very inadequate guide, chiefly because of the almost complete neglect of the revolutions of 1848."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p231 My 18 '16 1100w

ROSE, MARY SWARTZ. Feeding the family. il $2.10 (3c) Macmillan 613.2 16-22157

A thoroughgoing guide to the healthful feeding of the family, based on a knowledge of the science of nutrition. Chapters are devoted to the special food needs of the different members of a family group—babies, growing children, adults and aged persons. The question of menus on a rational basis, the wise expenditure of money for food, the control of the amount and kinds of food consumed, the feeding of the sick are all presented simply and concisely enough for any housekeeper to follow.

+ R of Rs 55:221 F '17 90w

"The important but often neglected subject of food prejudices is most happily treated in 'Food for children eight to twelve years old.'" C. F. Langworthy

+ Science ns 45:116 F 2 '17 990w

ROSE, THOMAS KIRKE. Metallurgy of gold. 6th ed (Griffin's scientific text-books) il $6.50 Lippincott 669.2 GS16-129

"The whole book has been thoroughly revised and much new matter added. The early chapters, which have been rewritten and greatly enlarged, now contain a remarkably full and accurate account of the properties of gold, its compounds and alloys, and throughout the volume special attention is given to the principles underlying the various practical operations involved in the extraction of the metal, and in the refining and preparation of gold bullion for the market and for minting."—Nature

"Sir Thomas Rose's 'Metallurgy of gold' has been recognised for the last twenty years as the best general treatise on the metallurgy of the metal; the appearance of this new edition, which by revision and expansion is practically a new book, will hence be warmly welcomed by all metallurgists. Since the last edition was published in 1906 the changes which have been introduced in the metallurgy of gold have been greater than those in any other metal; the need for a new edition of the book was therefore imperative, and this need has been admirably satisfied in the present volume." W. Gowland

+ Nature 96:590 Ja 27 '16 670w

"Reviewed in Mining and Scientific Press, Jan. 15, 1916; in Iron and Coal Trade Review, Dec. 17, 1915; in Mining Magazine, Dec., 1915; in Mining Journal, March 4, 1916."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p18 My '16 90w

ROSHER, HAROLD. With the flying squadron (Eng title, In the Royal naval air service). il $1.25 Macmillan 940.91 16-23464

The letters that make up this book were written between August, 1914, and February, 1916. A few days after the date of the last letter the author, a boy of twenty-two, was killed. Arnold Bennett in his introduction says, "The letters are spontaneous and utterly unstudied documents, and they have been printed almost exactly as Harold wrote them. Many of them are quite ordinary, most are spiced with slang; the long ones describing his share in the great historic raids are thrillingly dramatic. . . . Each contributes its due realistic share to the complete picture of an airman's life in war. . . . So far as my knowledge goes, no other such picture, so full and so convincing, of the air-fighters' existence has yet been offered to the public."

"Lieut. Rosher wrote, simply and unaffectedly, just what he felt, saw, and did. Without delving into technicalities he was yet able to present clearly the technical side of his work; we can follow with ease all his flights, and these were many—especially patrolling and raiding."

+ Ath p414 S '16 280w

ROSHER, HAROLD—Continued

+ N Y Times 22:3 Ja 7 '17 240w

"Above all the letters reflect the wonderful personality of the youth."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 160w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p426 S 7 '16 520w

ROSS, ESTELLE. Oliver Cromwell. (Heroes of all time) il *75c (2c) Stokes 15-18269

A biography of Cromwell and a history of his times. The author provides the necessary background for an understanding of Cromwell's career by her careful treatment of the events preceding the civil war. The book is one of a series for young people.

"As the only life adapted to higher-grade children, it can be used to supplement school histories and with adult readers who want a simple survey."

+ A L A Bk 13:89 N '16

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 120w

+ N Y Times 21:303 J1 30 '16 50w

ROSS, GORDON. Argentina, and Uruguay. il *$3.50 Macmillan 918.2 16-22177

"The author of this work is an Englishman, who was formerly financial editor of the Buenos Aires Standard, and served as official translator to the Congress of American republics at Buenos Aires in 1910. He outlines the present and probable future effects of the European war on Argentina and Uruguay, and gives the most recent statistics of finance and commerce in these countries. There are also informational chapters on agriculture, live stock, and forestry."

—R of Rs

+ Cleveland p119 Ag '16 60w

+ Dial 61:477 N 30 '16 120w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:140 S '16

+ R of Rs 54:680 D '16 70w

ROTCH, WILLIAM. Memorandum written by William Rotch in the eightieth year of his age. il *$3.50 Houghton 16-14478

This work "throws interesting light upon a little-known episode of the American revolution. Rotch was a Nantucket Quaker, born on the island in 1734, and engaged there for many years in a profitable whaling and shipping business. When the war came on, the people of Nantucket sought to remain neutral, and in consequence found themselves in collision with the patriots on the one hand and the British on the other. Rotch's 'Memorandum,' written, he tells us, at the request of a friend, is a naïve and entertaining account of the efforts which he and some of his Quaker associates made to obtain immunity for their vessels and save their industry from destruction."—Nation

"There are several fine illustrations of whaling scenes." M. W. Jernegan

+ Am Hist R 22:203 O '16 350w

+ Boston Transcript p7 J1 15 '16 720w

+ Nation 102:713 Je 29 '16 370w

+ N Y Times 21:423 O 8 '16 80w

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 28 '16 210w

ROUSSEAU, JEAN JACQUES. Political writings; ed. by C. E. Vaughan. 2v *$18.50 Putnam 308

"The entire body of Rousseau's writings on politics is here collected together and provided with the necessary commentary both textual and explanatory. Besides the 'Economie politique,' the first draft and final version of the 'Contrat social,' and the works on the government of Corsica and of Poland, the edition includes the 'Discours sur l'inégalité,' the important fragment on 'L'état de guerre,' passages from 'Emile' of a definitely political character, especially the sketch of political theory in book 5, illustrative excerpts from other non-political writings, the last four of the 'Lettres de la montagne.'"—Am Pol Sci R

"Of this new material by far the most interesting part is the series of eight autobiographical fragments, including the original draft of the close of the fifth 'Lettre de la montagne,' gathered together in an appendix. . . . The editor's finest achievement in the field of textual reconstruction lies where two excellent scholars—Dreyfus-Brisac and Windenberger—had preceded him: minute examination of the awkwardly grouped pages of the MS. of 'L'état de guerre' resulted in the discovery that a rearrangement of the order of the pages clarified, and did away with breaks in, the course of Rousseau's argument. The fragment is now printed in accordance with this discovery."

S: C. Chew

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:591 Ag '16 1100w

"It can hardly be doubted that he has made a great improvement even on the most careful of his predecessors, and no one who is fortunate enough to possess his edition, with the valuable literary history contained in the several introductions, is likely to use any other for the works which he includes. Sympathy must be expressed with him for the unfortunate accident which deprived him of the chance of consulting the recently discovered original manuscript of the 'Gouvernement de Pologne.' . . . It is, perhaps, hardly to be expected that Dr. Vaughan should give the same satisfaction to all his readers when he is considering Rousseau's place in political thought, as when he is editing the text." P. V. M. Benecke

+ Eng Hist R 31:504 J1 '16 2650w

"The true extent of the labour involved can hardly be measured by the careful corrections and the interesting notes on textual exactness of which the edition is full." C. D. Burns

+ Int J Ethics 26:553 J1 '16 1600w

ROUSTAM-BEK, B. Aerial Russia; the romance of the giant aeroplane. il *$1 (4c) Lane 623.7 17-4588

The purpose of this book is to set forth the progress of aviation in Russia and the part played by aircraft in the war. The author is a Russian officer and the book is written in the interests of a better understanding between his country and Great Britain. Contents: A Scotsman in Russia; The first steps; Russian military flying schools; The Imperial All Russia aero club; General Baron Kaubars and aviation; The Imperial Russian technical society; The prototype of the Zeppelin; Constructors, aviators, and workmen; Famous Russian flying men; I. I. Sikorsky; Foreign aviators in Russia; Heir Pokker's Russian lady pilot; Just before the war; Aerial Russia and the British press; Aviation and the Russian press; By way of conclusion.

R of Rs 54:685 D '16 60w

+ Springfield Republican p13 N 12 '16 180w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p371 Ag 3 '16 160w

ROWE, HENRY KALLOCH. Society, its origin and development. *$1.50 Scribner 301

16-15715

This work "aims at 'a simple, untechnical treatment of human society,' wherein the author 'writes with the undergraduate continually in mind, trying to see through his eyes and to think with his mind.' . . . Some little attention is accorded to social evolution and theory, but the bulk of the book is description and comment about present-day conditions. We hear of the social life of the rural community, the city, and the nation; and especially do we contemplate schemes for its betterment."—Nation

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 8 '16 200w

+ Cleveland p106 Ag '16 40w

Ind 88:167 O 23 '16 40w

"It contains a good deal of trustworthy information and a number of sound and 'safe' judgments. It should be useful where it is not desired to go much beneath the surface of things. But the title and sub-title are somewhat over weight for the treatment. The style is clear and simple."

+ Nation 103:243 S 7 '16 180w

- New Repub 8:22 Ag 5 '16 900w
 N Y Br Lib News 3:138 S '16 40w
 + N Y Times 21:367 S '17 '16 700w

"The author is associate professor of history and sociology in the Newton theological institution, Mass."

St Louis 15:7 Ja '17 15w

"Excellent as it is in conception and execution, the volume falls into errors almost unavoidable when one attempts to treat of a great variety of subjects. . . . Notwithstanding such errors, the book is worth while for students. It possesses a distinct advantage because it treats of facts and wastes no time in trying to establish a terminology." E. T. Hartman

- + — Survey 37:315 D 16 '16 270w

ROWLAND, ARTHUR JOHN. Applied electricity for practical men. il *$2 McGraw 621.3 16-19968

"This book, though it is primarily intended for electrical workers, has a place in an engineer's library. One of its prominent features is the large use of numerical-computation problems to illustrate the action of apparatus. The book starts off with 'fundamental principles' and magnetic phenomena. Thus the road is paved for direct-current generators, heating and power service, distribution lines, and direct-current motors. Up to the close of this half of the work, nothing has been presented about alternating currents. For this field the author first goes back to elementary discussions of rudimentary matters like inductance, capacity, reactance, voltage and current waves, etc. . . . The end of the book covers storage batteries, electric lamps and house wiring."—Engin N

"The book is very readable and the discussions are helped by a moderate use of well selected illustrations."

- + Engin N 76:944 N 16 '16 180w
 N Y Br Lib News 3:190 D '16

"Reviewed in Power, Nov. 7, 1916."

- + N Y P L New Tech Bks p12 N '16 120w
 Pittsburgh 21:573 D '16 10w
 + Quar List New Tech Bks Ja '17 60w

ROWLAND, HENRY COTTRELL. Filling his own shoes. il *$1.35 (1½c) Houghton 16-20499

Richard P. Ruggles is a retail salesman in the Paris store of the Walkeasy shoe company. He is proud of his position, proud of the company and of his connection with it. The attitude of Miss Darthea Westbrooke and her aunt Miss Challand when they learn of his occupation is quite incomprehensible to him, and on top of their rebuff comes a crushing blow from the company itself, a promised promotion goes to another man. In his reaction, Ruggles starts for the Balkans and is there plunged into a series of adventures, from which he returns to Paris in charge of four young ladies fresh from a harem. He finds Darthea's English prejudices somewhat mollified, but by this time Darthea has ceased to be an important person to Ruggles. There is another girl, the daughter of the president of the Walkeasy company, and she is as democratically American as Ruggles himself.

- + A L A Bkl 13:178 Ja '17

"Full of adventure, fascinating and satisfying."

- + N Y Times 21:577 D 31 '16 520w
 Springfield Republican p14 D '17 '16 150w
 + Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 40w

ROXBURGH, RONALD FRANCIS. Prisoners of war information bureau in London; with an intro. by L. Oppenheim. *90c Longmans 940.91 15-16613

An account "of the rules and methods under which the British War office handles its prisoners through the elaborate organization known as the Prisoners of war bureau, 49 Wellington street, London. The author, a barrister of the Middle Temple, testifies that everything is done in accordance with the provisions of the Hague and Geneva conventions, and his detailed account of the work reveals a system apparently as complete as labor and thought can make it."—N Y Times

"By article 14 of the Hague convention the governments of belligerent states are pledged to set up bureaux for the purpose of keeping records of prisoners of war and of enemy sick and wounded, of supplying lists of enemy dead, of taking charge of personal effects, and of answering enquiries and dealing with letters, parcels and gifts sent to prisoners of war. Hence the interest of this detailed study of the working of the Prisoners of war information bureau established by the British government in London." S. W.

- + Int J Ethics 26:145 O '15 180w

"A terse and businesslike account."

- + N Y Times 20:357 O 3 '15 270w

"His book runs into something less than fifty pages, but, however the reader test it, he will find no point into which his curiosity tempts him to inquire unsettled by a reference to one or other of its sections. We trust this little book will be widely read in neutral countries. It is quite innocent of any Pharisaism. It is a simple record of the work done by a small government department."

- + Sat R 120:43 Jl 10 '15 570w
 + Spec 114:899 Je 26 '15 140w

ROY, MRS. LILLIAN ELIZABETH (BECKER).
 2 Woodcraft girls at camp. il *$1.25 (1½c) Doran 16-20590

The author has based her story on the principles and customs of the Woodcraft league, an organization for girls founded by Ernest Thompson Seton. Five girls, with a teacher, spend a summer on a farm in New Jersey. The everyday happenings and the efforts of the girls to master all the league ceremonies and activities make the story. One of the five is a girl who has been too much petted at home and there is a marked change in her character as the story progresses. The talks by the teacher give a somewhat didactic air to the book.

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

- + Bookm 44:408 D '16 20w
 + Cath World 104:559 Ja '17 100w
 + Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 80w

ROYCE, JOSIAH. Hope of the great community. *$1 Macmillan 172.4 16-23120

A collection of essays, written during the later years of Professor Royce's life. "His topics include 'The attitude of Americans in the present war,' 'The destruction of the Lusitania,' 'The first anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania,' 'The possibility of international insurance,' and the title essay." (R of Rs) "Will the great community ever be realized upon earth? Prof. Royce tells us that much of the machinery of such a community is with us already. Instead of being a mere Utopia, as it once was, it now has become an object of reasonable hope. . . . What alone can perfect the great community will be an extension of the spirit of loyalty, or the devotion of the self to the interests of the group." (Springfield Republican)

A L A Bkl 13:199 F '17

"No reader of 'The hope of the great community' will lay the book down without a keen sense of gratitude and a clearer understanding of what Professor Royce called, not America's rights, but America's duty in the war. . . . The book is small, but it is the summing up of a great soul." E: E. Hunt

- + Dial 62:58 Ja 25 '17 520w
 R of Rs 55:100 Ja '17 200w

"If one dissents from Prof. Royce's view as to the duties of Americans in regard to the war, one cannot fail to read any utterance of his with profit. Nothing in this collection—which has the advantage of being addressed to the public as a whole—is of equal importance with most of his previous books, though the autobiographical sketch and the essay on "The hope of the great community" are sure of a lasting audience."

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

ROYCE, JOSIAH—Continued

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 1300w
The Times [London] Lit Sup p639 D 28 '16 40w

ROYLE, EDWIN MILTON. Peace and quiet.
 2 il *$1.35 (1c) Harper 16-18488

"Peace and quiet" is the ironic title of a story about Mexico. Madero is in power when Tad Castleman, late of Princeton, first enters that turbulent country. As a matter of fact, Tad is in prison waiting to be shot at sunrise when the story opens, but at this point the author turns on his track to point out the trail that led the youthful adventurer to this pass. Thru the intervention of Miss Tranquillity Buck, a charming girl who has influence in Washington, he is spared this time, however. He returns to Washington and sees something of Mexican affairs from the diplomatic side, but is drawn back to Mexico again to take part in the exciting events of Huerta's régime and those following.

+ N Y Times 21:496 N 19 '16 330w

RUBINOW, ISAAC MAX. Standard accident table as a basis for compensation rates.
 $1.50 Spectator co. 368 15-15533

"Dr. Rubinow's purpose was to determine the relative frequency of the several injuries and conditions which are distinguished in American workmen's compensation legislation and thus to help toward adequate and just premium rates in compensation insurance. Introductory pages show the author's difficulties, especially from dearth of directly relevant data, and his methods; and concluding paragraphs give brief hints as to the use of the table. But the body of the booklet consists of a series of computations to show how many deaths should be expected from 100,000 industrial accidents, how many permanent total disabilities, and so on, for the other injuries and conditions which the statutes distinguish. In the author's suggestive words, 'it was decided . . . to construct something akin to the standard mortality table in life insurance.'"—Am Econ R

"Of such a table there was acute need." Dr. Rubinow has done his pioneer work extremely well. Beyond what most men would have thought possible in advance of the achievement, he has presented data for nearly or quite every element which has a proper place in such a table as his. The result is a body of information which carriers of compensation insurance in America must use henceforward. But too much must not be expected from the table. It is far indeed from being a complete guide to adequate and just premium rates. Only when combined with other data will it show how much must be charged to policy holders collectively. And there is the limit of its usefulness. Nor is the book free from minor or superficial faults." W. C. Fisher

+ Am Econ R 5:903 D '15 1400w

"A reconstruction of the table after the accumulation of a few years' experience is anticipated, but not a change in the method and its application. Considering the meagerness of the data available, probably the only claim that would be made, and certainly the only claim that could be supported, is that the material offered is the best available and will serve a useful purpose during the tentative period of American compensation administration. Undoubtedly the work will supply a present necessity in enabling the avoidance of either haphazard estimates or slavish detailed computation for each individual state; and more particularly by furnishing a common standard, even though not an entirely accurate one, for the determination of differentials, that must serve until the accumulation of a better collective experience." L. D. Clark

+ J Pol Econ 24:86 Ja '16 630w

RUBINOW, ISAAC MAX. Standards of health insurance. *$1.50 (2c) Holt 331.2 16-19819

"The movement for sickness or health insurance in this country has been growing so rapidly within the last few months that there appears to be a demand for a brief and popular, though scientifically sound, discussion of the essential principles underlying it and the various provisions which go to make a successful health insurance scheme; and without many excursions into the domains of statistics or history." (Preface) The book is based on articles that appeared in the Journal of Political Economy for March, April, and May, 1915. Contents: The principle of compulsion; Extent of health insurance; The scope of health insurance; Medical benefits; Money benefit; Maternity benefit; Funeral benefit; Optional benefits; Bearing the cost; Distribution of cost; Organization of insurance; Administrative organization; Financial organization; Organization of medical aid; Estimates of cost. Two appendixes give an article on Constitutionality of health insurance, by Joseph P. Chamberlain, and one on Organization of medical aid, by Alexander Lambert.

Reviewed by E. L. Talbert

+ Am J Soc 22:556 Ja '17 360w

A L A Bkl 13:104 D '16

"Granting the hypothesis that the provision of systems of health insurance by governmental legislation is generally desirable in some parts of America, the volume is thoughtful and scientific, and should contribute much to intelligent discussion of an important question."

+ Nation 103:568 D 14 '16 280w

+ R of Rs 55:220 F '17 110w

St Louis 14:387 N '16 10w

"The movement for health insurance in this country has been growing so rapidly within the past year that legislative action in at least three of our states is almost certain next year. Consequently the recent work by Dr. I. M. Rubinow, executive secretary of the social insurance committee of the American medical association is most timely."

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 12 '16 800w

"The value of this little book to the cause of social reform can hardly be over-estimated." W. M. Leiserson

+ Survey 37:467 Ja 20 '17 700w

RUHL, ARTHUR BROWN. Antwerp to Gallipoli; a year of war on many fronts—and behind them. 1l *$1.50 (2c) Scribner 940.91 16-6950

Mr. Ruhl's book of the war is one of contrasts. He saw the conflict not from one but from many angles. He was first in Belgium, later in Germany, and still later in the Balkans and at the Dardanelles. Among other things he writes of: Paris at bay; The fall of Antwerp; Two German prison camps; The road to Constantinople; With the Turks at the Dardanelles; In the dust of the Russian retreat. Some of the material of the book has appeared in Collier's.

+ A L A Bkl 12:422 Je '16

"He has succeeded marvelously well in displaying at once the dignity of the soldiers who are suffering and the inhumanity of war as it is waged by the Germans."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 15 '16 680w

Ind 86:218 My 8 '16 230w

"With a commendable artistry, he has respected the intelligence of his reader, and with deft strokes presented only the bare, necessary scene. . . . At Gallipoli, we are shown the Dardanelles from the Turkish heights for the first time."

+ Nation 102:523 My 11 '16 530w

+ New Repub 6:243 Ap 1 '16 1050w

"Mr. Ruhl's experiences in the eastern theatre of the war furnish us with a valuable fund of informative facts—not alone those connected with the country as a battlefield, but as a land where there are quaint and picturesque villages, the homeland of so many thousands of American citizens."

+ N Y Times 21:167 Ap 16 '16 500w

"He depicts in his admirably graphic manner the evidences of Teutonic fitness, organization, and national solidarity. From German territory Mr. Ruhl went into the Balkan states, Turkey, and Austria-Hungary. His intimate accounts of these peoples present them in a new light. And with the closing picture of the brave wrecks of manhood in a Hungarian hospital the most significant message of the book stands out clear; that under the sadness of it all lies the broad and sure foundation for a reorganization, in mutual admiration and respect, after the passing of this gigantic and hideous anachronism." Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 89:653 F 19 '16 880w

R of Rs 53:627 My '16 30w

"His account is so well-written and really has so much to say that, in spite of a plethora of war books, one welcomes it and recognizes it as one of the most interesting and satisfactory that have appeared. The book is well illustrated with photographs which are largely Mr. Ruhl's own."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 250w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:270 Je '16 40w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM.
Justice in war-time. *$1 (1½c) Open ct.
327 16-6145

In writing these essays during the progress of the war, the author has not lost in partisan bias the philosophical detachment necessary to a broad view of an international crisis. This is evident in his treatment of "atrocities" and of England's foreign policy. The essays, some of which have appeared in America in the Atlantic Monthly and the International Journal of Ethics, are: An appeal to the intellectuals of Europe; The ethics of war; War and non-resistance; Why nations love war; The future of Anglo-German rivalry; Is a permanent peace possible? The danger to civilization; The entente policy, 1904-1915: a reply to Professor Gilbert Murray. The last is "an attempt to show how England might have averted the war by a wiser policy during the ten years preceding its outbreak." The two factors that must be reckoned with as causes of war, the author holds, are the instinct of pugnacity and the machinations of the war makers. "If either were coped with, the other would be no longer operative for evil." He differs from the majority of his countrymen in believing that nothing is to be gained by "fighting to a finish."

A L A Bkl 13:117 D '16

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:583 Ag '16 270w

+ Ind 89:196 Ja 29 '17 620w

"... Thus 'this war is trivial, for all its vastness. No great principle is at stake, no great human purpose is involved on either side.' And yet he says: 'I consider that either a serious weakening of England, France, and Italy, or a serious strengthening of Germany, would be a serious misfortune for the civilization of the world.' One would not have suspected Mr. Russell of holding the civilization of the world to be a trivial matter."

- J Pol Econ 24:622 Je '16 220w

N Y Br Lib News 3:55 Ap '16

R of Rs 53:381 Mr '16 50w

"Many Americans are familiar with Mr. Russell's sentiments. He is anxious to purge civilization of its zeal for power, for possessions, and for domination. It is a high ideal. . . . Mr. Russell is not an apologist for Germany; but he is a little disingenuous in presenting Germany's case. His hostile examination of British policy might do some good if he did not seem bent on proving the thesis: 'You see, we English are as bad as you Germans.' It is right that there should be no trace of self-righteousness in Britain's attitude. In times of peace such self-scrutiny would be good for the soul. It can do no harm now, while necessity rules the hour, but Mr. Russell does not think it worth while to subject the German temper to any such scrutiny. . . . It is a little difficult to understand how a man who admires Germany also preaches non-resistance."

- + Springfield Republican p15 F 3 '16 750w

- The Times [London] Lit Sup p158 Ap 6 '16 900w

RUSSELL, GEORGE WILLIAM (A. E., pseud.).
Imaginations and reveries. *$1.75 Macmillan 824 16-26549

"Into his pages Mr. Russell has gathered his incidental writings of a period of over twenty years, and they include among other titles, 'The character of heroic literature,' 'Nationality or cosmopolitanism,' 'The poetry of James Stephens,' 'Ulster,' 'The spiritual conflict,' 'On an Irish hill,' and 'Religion and love.'"—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 12:469 Jl '16

"The springs of the philosophy which A. E. discovers alike in his verse and in the many-coloured prose of his essays lie hidden in the mystical books of the East. Everything he has written bears witness to his faith in the divine in man and in the universe. Here we have the secret of A. E.'s power and influence in Ireland."

+ Ath p25 Ja '16 900w

Boston Transcript p9 Ap 8 '16 1150w

+ Natlon 103:16 Jl 6 '16 430w

"A. E. is himself not only a man of indubitable distinction—one of the first of living Irishmen; he is a man spiritually distinguished above any of his compatriots who are visible, at this distance, to foreign eyes—a man of noble and magnanimous imagination, a devout mystic, a poet of genius; and of him it might be said that, like Watts, he mistakes the true sources of his intellectual power. One cannot—or one must not—quarrel with a poet who elects to devote himself to social amelioration, to practical public service." Lawrence Gilman

No Am 204:616 O '16 1500w

+ Spec 116:323 Mr 4 '16 600w

RUSSELL, GEORGE WILLIAM ERSKINE.
Portraits of the 'seventies. il *$3.75 Scribner 920 (Eng ed 16-23965)

"In his 'Portraits of the 'seventies,' the Right Honourable George W. E. Russell, a younger member of the ducal house of Bedford, adds another to his numerous chatty volumes about the famous people he has known. Among them are politicians, poets, physicians, clergymen, novelists, historians, scientists and ladies and gentlemen of the highest social rank. Dividing his book into twenty-eight chapters, he allots to each either a famous man, a distinguished lord and his lady, or a group of eminent professional men. Among them are Gladstone, Disraeli, Lord Acton, Henry Labouchere, Joseph Chamberlain, Lord and Lady Salisbury, Bishop Wilkinon, Lady Holland and Robert Lowe."—Boston Transcript

"Mr. Russell may be congratulated on the best book that he has hitherto given us."

+ Ath p524 N '16 370w

"It gives a series of clear views of some of the most picturesque personalities of the English seventies." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 7 '16 920w

+ Ind 88:235 N 6 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:170 N '16 90w

+ Sat R 122:417 O 28 '16 650w

"Mr. Russell's gossip may be said to be 'high' in every sense of the term. It is all about distinguished people, and though not without a pleasant flavour of acidity it is never really ill-natured."

+ Spec 117:sup682 D 2 '16 1550w

"As might be imagined from the author's many previous books, and from his public utterances in Parliament and elsewhere, it is not without evidence of partisanship and prejudice, especially upon the theological side; but when Mr. Russell says that he speaks from personal knowledge, the reader knows that he does so, and there are no signs of carelessness in the composition and revision of the volume."

RUSSELL, G. W. E.—Continued
+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p568 N 30
'16 400w

RUSSELL, WILLIAM FLETCHER. Economy in secondary education. (Riverside educational monographs) *35c (2½c) Houghton 373 16-14610

"Economy in education," says the author, "means the transfer to the pupil, in the fewest years and in the most thorough manner, of a certain relatively complete fund of knowledge and a group of habits and methods of work which are likely to prove useful in the life he is to lead." In his five chapters he considers: The problem of economy; Economy through an increase of time devoted to study; Economy through the organization of the program of studies; Economy through the improvement of instruction; Economy in secondary education and the colleges. Thruout the work comparisons are drawn between the educational systems of foreign countries and our own.

N Y Br Lib News 3:126 Ag '16

"The author is professor of secondary education in the George Peabody college for teachers, Nashville, Tenn."

St Louis 15:10 Ja '17 50w

RUXTON, GEORGE FREDERICK AUGUSTUS. Adventures in Mexico; ed. by Horace Kephart. (Outing adventure lib.) *$1 (2c) Outing pub. 917.2 16-2967

A reprint of a narrative describing travels in Mexico at the time of the Mexican war. The author was a young English officer stationed in Canada who traveled extensively in western United States in the early days. One of his accounts of his adventures, "The old west" was issued last year as one of this series of reprints. The present narrative tells of a journey from Vera Cruz to Santa Fé, a journey of 2,000 miles made on horseback.

"George Ruxton gives lively and picturesque descriptions of the country and people, descriptions which might have been written today so little have conditions changed."

+ Ind 85:464 Mr 27 '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:37 Mr '16

"The book is written in a humorous, racy style, and the description and comments have an uncommon flavor."

+ N Y Times 21:165 Ap 16 '16 80w

R of Rs 53:500 Ap '16 100w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 2 '16 270w

RUXTON, GEORGE FREDERICK AUGUSTUS. Wild life in the Rocky mountains; a true tale of rough adventure in the days of the Mexican war; ed. by Horace Kephart. (Outing adventure lib.) *$1 (1½c) Outing pub. 917.8 16-9412

A narrative of the Rocky mountains of yesterday, "the no-man's land of danger and adventure . . . which engendered reckless independence, haughty self-reliance and a sense of irresponsible freedom." The traveler's experiences antedate 1848 in which year he died at the age of twenty-eight. His journeyings took him from Chihuahua, Mexico, north thru hostile territory into New Mexico. Thence he continued his way the length of New Mexico into Colorado as far as Bayou Salado,—South Park of today. The wilderness, harsh and perilous, puts up tremendous odds for him to battle against, including beasts, Indians and winter terrors; yet he says that he upon whom these wilds cast their magic finds no heart to dissolve the spell, and remains a wanderer and an Ishmaelite to the hour of his death.

"Throughout, the story of his wanderings is one of inspiration, in its revelation of the primitive condition of those lands since incorporated into the United States and of the heroic effort and endurance through which our west and southwest were explored and colonized. His impressions, moreover, of the Mexican problem, even then vexing the United States; of the practice of slavery, and of the attitude of the United States and of England, each toward the other, have a value time has accentuated."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 520w.

+ Ind 88:408 D 4 '16 90w

N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

+ R of Rs 54:458 O '16 150w

RYAN, NELLIE. My years at the Austrian court. il *$3 (6½c) Lane 943.6 16-2392

The author, who was attached for some years to the family of the Archduke Karl Stefan, has hoped by this book to correct some of the prevailing misconceptions concerning the Hapsburgs. She says: "As I spent some delightful years at the court of Vienna, and personally knew many of these so-called degenerate Hapsburgs, it is my intention to write of those whom I always found extremely clever and interesting, and by no means mad." Before beginning her more personal memoirs she tells the story of the unhappy Empress Elizabeth and of the unrecognized daughter, Caroline, now the Countess Zandardi Landi, who by her mother's wishes was brought up away from court. The book is free from the salacious gossip of the usual book of court memoirs.

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 9 '16 400w

+ Lit D 52:450 F 19 '16 110w

+ N Y Times 21:252 Je 18 '16 800w

"Miss Ryan's information concerning Austrian royalty obviously is collected from admirers of the institution, and is not invariably correct. The book is given over largely to descriptions of the pleasures and activities of the archducal family and the characteristics, habits and accomplishments of its members. It is a gossipy book, somewhat Boswellian in character. Few new facts of importance are disclosed. The book has some entertaining qualities but lacks solidity."

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 4 '16 530w

S

SABATIER, PAUL. Frenchman's thoughts on the war; tr. from the French by Bernard Miall. *$1.25 (3½c) Scribner 940.91

(Eng ed 16-1381)

The author characterizes this war as "a revolt of the human conscience against Germanism." Germanism is defined as "a perfectly coherent system, in which the words religion, science, and the ideal do not disappear, but become, as it were, labels applied by bureaucratic officials to various departments of the imperial administration which is to rule and organize the world." Four of the five chapters, First impressions of the war; The mobilization; Religious union and revival; Alsace, were delivered in London during the fall of 1915. The last chapter, Public feeling in France, is by Camille Jullian and appeared in the Journal des Débats in August, 1915.

+ A L A Bkl 12:379 My '16

+ Ath p118 Mr '16 700w

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 27 '16 1450w

+ Ind 87:67 Jl 10 '16 130w

"As most of those who have told us about the French feeling concerning the war have been either Parisians or Americans or English who wrote either of Paris or the battle front, M. Sabatier's message, coming as it does out of the very heart of France, takes on peculiar authenticity and significance."

+ N Y Times 21:75 Mr 5 '16 630w

"No Roman Catholic, we believe, could celebrate more truthfully than has M. Paul Sabatier, a Protestant, the virtues of Roman Catholics. Certainly no one has done more than has he to establish the fame of the man who has been called the greatest Christian since Christ, namely St. Francis of Assisi. Such an eminence fits him for his rôle during the present war—to point out its spiritual significance."

- + Outlook 112:584 Mr 8 '16 1500w
- + R of Rs 53:502 Ap '16 30w
- + St Louis 14:144 Ap '16
- + Spec 116:377 Mr 18 '16 1400w
- + Springfield Republican p17 Mr 12 '16 330w

SABATINI, RAFAEL. Banner of the bull. *$1.25 Lippincott

"Rafael Sabatini in 'The banner of the bull' narrates three stirring episodes in the career of the famous Florentine, Caesar Borgia, on whose banners the emblem of the bull was emblazoned. Mr. Sabatini has previously written a life of this dangerous and fascinating man, and . . . he sets forth his own conception of Borgia's mental subtleties." (Springfield Republican) "Machiavelli himself glides through the pages, but cannot equal his model in guile and astuteness. Cesare appears not as a monster, but as a master of statecraft, almost infallible in his choice of tools for the furtherance of his tortuous schemes, ruthless to his rivals, but popular among the townsfolk of the conquered states on account of the wisdom and liberality of his government." (Ath)

"There is no declared attempt to whitewash Cesare completely, but certain of the grosser rumours concerning him are traced to their untrustworthy sources. . . . The author writes with skill and authority of the pomp and splendour of mediæval Italy."

- + Ath 1915.2:329 N 6 180w

"The plots and the ethics are indubitably of the period. The embellishments are not so sumptuous, sartorially or rhetorically, as other spinners of renaissance tales have led us to expect. Instead the effort seems to have been to revert to the moral point of view of the epoch, the lusty paganism that served, for instance, an unabashed Cellini for his boasting. Probably this is as good a way as any to render plausible and comprehensible the legendary atrocities of a Cesare Borgia."

- + Nation 102:139 F 3 '16 130w
- + N Y Times 21:70 F 27 '16 250w

"Spirited and splendidly coloured."

- + Spec 115:796 D 4 '15 20w
- + Springfield Republican p15 Ja 9 '16 300w

SADLER, WILLIAM SAMUEL, and SADLER, MRS. LENA (KELLOGG). Mother and her child. il *$1.50 McClurg 649 16-17118

"The authors have divided the subject into three parts, each of which deals with the successive problems of the child. Thus the first part deals with the mother until the birth of the child; the second part with the infant until the weaning period, and the third part with the problems connected with the care and bringing up of the child until adolescence. An appendix gives plain directions for different kinds of baths, prescriptions for various disorders, and other special information."—Springfield Republican

- + N Y Br Lib News 3:170 N '16
- + St Louis 14:433 D '16

"A carefully prepared treatise on the important things that mothers and fathers who have the care of the child, should know. The advice given covers the ground fully, clearly, and entertainingly. The work is filled with invaluable information expressed in language that is easily understandable."

- + Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '16 210w

ST. NICHOLAS book of plays and operettas; second series. il *$1 Century 793 16-19448

The first book of plays and operettas from St. Nicholas appeared in 1900. This second series contains a new selection from the dramatic material that has appeared in the magazine in the fifteen years since that date. The editors say that they have included "only those plays and operettas which have proved most useful and popular" and they assure us that the

St. Nicholas readers have always been frank in making known their opinions. Among the selections are: The dream-toy shop, by Jessie M. Baker; Christmas babes in the woods, by Corinne Rockwell Swain; The Christmas conspiracy, by Elizabeth Woodbridge; The first Thanksgiving day, by Agnes Miller; "Every-girl," by Rachel Lyman Field.

- + A L A Bkl 13:185 Ja '17
- + Dial 61:548 D 14 '16 40w
- + Lit D 53:1569 D 9 '16 130w

"An indispensable book for the home, just what young people will want who wish to turn the natural play instinct, the desire to 'make believe' into sources of mental and spiritual growth."

- + R of Rs 54:678 D '16 70w

"These little plays have the great merit of being actable as well as literary."

- + Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 70w

SAINTSBURY, GEORGE EDWARD BATEMAN. Peace of the Augustans: a survey of eighteenth century literature as a place of rest and refreshment. *$3.25 Macmillan (*8s 6d Bell, London) 820.9 (Eng ed 16-10735)

"Mr. Saintsbury has the scholar's dislike of running with the crowd, and by choosing to dwell in the eighteenth century he certainly contrives to avoid the crowd of to-day, for the eighteenth century is not popular. . . . For Mr. Saintsbury clearly has a profound distrust of things that are popular. His admiration for the Augustans is whetted by his dislike for the popular authors of to-day. He loves Addison not merely by reason of Addison's merits, but also by reason of the demerits of the more modern style of journalism. He loves the formality, repose, and reserve of the Augustans because he intensely dislikes the go-as-you-please, epigrammatic 'brilliance' of our modern novelists. He enjoys the classic form of a couplet by Pope because he resents the deliberate outrages upon classicism perpetrated by some of our 'Georgian' poets. To Mr. Saintsbury, in fact, the eighteenth century does really offer an escape from much that is rather distressing and deplorable in contemporary literature."—Sat R

"The book is certainly not a history of eighteenth-century literature. In order to bolster up his title and to preserve the peace, whole sections of the literature are thrust bodily outside—all the political writings of Swift, Defoe, Steele, Addison, Johnson, Burke, and 'Junius'; nearly all the philosophers, all the historians, and all the translators. . . . What is the value of the book as a whole? We think that it will appeal almost exclusively to readers already interested in eighteenth-century literature. Others will hardly guess what it is all about. To those who know the period well it will be a noisy companion for a day or two, and a loiterer on the shelf for a good many days."

- + Ath p125 Mr '16 770w

"One of the most stimulating of Prof. Saintsbury's books, and in spite of its title one of the most dogmatic and pugnacious. He devotes himself exclusively to literary questions, abjuring social, philosophical, or moral topics. A wealth of learning is displayed in the text of the meaty footnotes. Index."

- + Library Association Record 18:125 Mr '16 110w

"The style is of his customary brand: a mixture of pertness and pedantry. There is nothing clear in the design, and no judicious principle of selection; the book has the effect of being huddled together. Worst of all, the whole tone and temper of the author render this excursion into broad fields of the eighteenth century an experience of vexation and resentment instead of 'rest and refreshment.' The fact simply is that Mr. Saintsbury, despite his protests to the contrary, is constitutionally unable to enter into the spirit of the authors who really created the peace of the Augustans."

- + Nation 102:437 Ap 20 '16 870w

Reviewed by J. Palmer

- + Sat R 121:184 F 19 '16 1600w

"Every page is so subtly seasoned with amusing comment, and the whole book so charmingly

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

SAINTSBURY, G. E. B.—Continued

garnished, that none but a dullard could fail to find delight in its perusal, however little he knew of the spirit which animated the eighteenth century. But to one who loves that spirit, and who has already paid homage to the great band of poets and novelists through whom it breathed, the book will prove still more refreshing. One could hardly imagine better reading after a day of hard or uncongenial work."

+ Spec 116:415 Mr 25 '16 520w

SALAMAN, MALCOLM CHARLES. London, past and present; ed. by C. Holme. il $3; pa $2.50 (13c) Lane 914.21 16-8953

One of the special numbers of the International Studio. The book is divided into three parts. London before the great fire, 1666; Eighteenth century London, and Modern London. This third part has chapters on: The river and bridges; Churches; Streets, houses, etc.; Public buildings and monuments. The many illustrations are chosen from old prints, paintings, etchings and drawings. Eight of these are in color. There are also four reproductions of old maps.

A L A Bkl 12:424 Je '16

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 12 '16 430w

"This purpose is carried out by means of nearly one hundred and fifty plates (including eight in color), reproduced and printed in irreplaceable style. A few brief chapters of text by Mr. Malcolm C. Salaman supply a pleasant background of fact and comment."

+ Dial 60:512 My 25 '16 120w

Pittsburgh 21:428 O '16 40w

"London is not to be loved at first sight. You must get to know her. The more of her history you know, of course, the more fascinating she becomes; and Mr. Salaman, with a reference and a name, can give life to the duller street."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p139 Mr 23 '16 900w

SALAMAN, MALCOLM CHARLES. Shakespear in pictorial art; ed. by C. Holme. il $3; pa $2.50 Lane 822.3 16-20922

Over seventy artists are represented in the illustrations of this special number of the International Studio. The first picture "is a reproduction of the frontispiece to 'The rape of Lucrece' (1655), attributed to William Faithorne, and the pictures following present a record of Shakespearian illustrations down to the modern work of W. Heath Robinson and Edmund Dulac. The text by Mr. Salaman gives an interesting sketch of Shakespearian illustrators and painters.

"A rare collection of pictorial Shakspeare miscellanea." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 30 '16 620w

+ Dial 61:478 N 30 '16 130w

+ Ind 88:411 D 4 '16 100w

"It is odd and instructive that Shakespeare has rarely well inspired a draughtsman. The illustrations are a bog of mediocrity and the paintings, though marked by an occasional flash of insight, for example in Ford Madox Brown, Millais, and Abbey, are usually distressful."

+ Nation 103:526 N 30 '16 70w

"One of the most gratifying volumes lovers of Shakespeare can possess."

+ R of Rs 54:365 N '16 90w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 27 '16 450w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p366 Ag 3 '16 680w

SALES promotion by mail, how to sell and how to advertise. il $2 (2½c) Putnam 658 16-17866

This work, called "a handbook of business building," covers all the phases of getting business through the mails. It is designed to serve both the small business concern and the large establishment. The ten authors are said to be men of wide and successful experience. Among the subjects covered are: How to compile a mailing list, edited by H. C. Burdick; Form letters, edited by James Wallen; Follow-up letters, edited by Louis V. Eytinge; Letter-enclosures, edited by Gridley Adams; Making collections by mail, edited by T. J. Wright.

N Y Br Lib News 3:189 D '16

St Louis 14:434 D '16

SALIERI, EARL ADOLPHUS. Principles of depreciation. (Ronald's accounting ser.) $2.50 Ronald 657 15-13393

"The book has three parts, devoted respectively to theory, practical applications and the determining of the depreciation charge. In addition there is an appendix with a chapter on logarithms and a selected bibliography that lists six books and twenty-five articles. The character of the industrial plant is discussed first. . . . Part 2 has chapters on regulation, the income tax, valuations and land. . . . In part 3 the author gets at the determination of the depreciation charge. Besides an introductory chapter, a short chapter is given to each of six methods. . . . The author leans toward the straight-line method, but explains each briefly and presents depreciation curves obtained by the different methods."—Engin Rec

"It follows in the main the ideas and classifications generally accepted by the accounting profession, and will doubtless be favorably received by American professional accountants. It is the first comprehensive work on depreciation presented by an American writer, and for this reason alone is interesting. It will be useful as a handbook or as an introductory textbook, and it will serve in further emphasizing the importance of regular depreciation allowance in industrial management. . . . The author has attempted too much in the compass of his little book, and consequently has presented an inadequate treatment of much of his subject-matter. This criticism appears particularly true of his classification of hydro-electric plant, his survey of English income tax decisions, his review of American court decisions on depreciation, and, more especially of his discussion on valuation." J. Bauer

+ Am Econ R 6:129 Mr '16 1100w

"The many engineers in this country who have valuation work on their hands will find much to interest and enlighten them in Dr. Salieri's little treatise. Its value to them, first, will be its insistence on a sharp distinction between capital and revenue—matters of economics and accounting in which the engineer's training is limited. Its second value will be the closer acquaintance it will give with some of the existing methods of finding depreciation, besides the familiar straight-line and sinking-fund schemes. . . . The book has obvious merit to a high degree, and it is no detraction to state, as should be said, that the text does not go deep enough for immediate practical engineering utilization."

+ Engin N 76:117 Jl 20 '16 480w

"From the engineer's point of view, there is one theory that colors the discussion that the reviewer cannot square with justice—namely, that it is right to require the owner of the plant to put up considerably more than $100,000 in order to come out with $100,000 of dividend-paying capital; in other words, that the forced retirement of capital by the amortization of theoretical depreciation down to a feasible condition per cent is entirely proper. . . . The book is one that valuation engineers should possess." C. W. Stark

+ Engin Rec 74:88 Jl 15 '16 670w

SALISBURY, FREDERICK STIMSON. Rambles in the Vaudese Alps. il $1 Dutton 914.94 16-1415

"A summer vacation spent at Gryon in 1908 laid the foundations of this book, in which it is hoped that the lover of alpine flowers will find things of interest, as also those who delight especially in the scenery and atmosphere of the Alps. Faithful camera pictures of flower and landscape illustrate the botanizer's genially rambling narrative."—Dial

"The little book leaves upon one's mind a grateful sense of tranquillity."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 3 '16 280w

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:24 Je 22 '16 110w

+ Ind 86:398 Je 5 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

+ Sat R 121:566 Je 10 '16 190w

SAMPSON, PHILIP J. Capture of De Wet: the South African rebellion, 1914. il *$3 Longmans 968 (Eng ed 16-1046)

"The account which Philip J. Sampson has written of the abortive insurrection of General Christian De Wet is something more than one of the ordinary war books." (N Y Times)
"Why the Boers did not revolt en masse at the outbreak of the great war must puzzle all who believe that men act habitually from low motives of self-interest. . . . Some little light is thrown on the mystery by Mr. Sampson." (Nation)

"It is rather a hasty journalistic performance, and not altogether commendable in tone. Its merit is to furnish data upon which the student of history can form a judgment."

+ Nation 102:228 F 24 '16 730w

"It is a study in colonial statesmanship, and deserves to be read by all who would understand the relations between a dominant power and a people dependent upon it."

+ N Y Times 21:18 Ja 16 '16 400w

SAMS, CONWAY WHITTLE. Conquest of Virginia: the forest primeval. il *$3.50 (3c) Putnam 970.4 16-10741

The initial volume in a series of historical studies on the "Conquest of Virginia." Its theme is the "primeval forest" and it is an illuminating account of the Virginia Indians written from the original records made by men who knew the tribes and the unbroken wilderness they inhabited. It gives an accurate picture of the people among whom was begun the planting of European civilization and various forms of Protestant Christianity. It should, therefore, be a substantial contribution to the yet unwritten history of Virginia.

"The author has brought together much of the early material, making lengthy quotations, in an attempt to represent the aborigines of Virginia as they were at the time of the coming of the first settlers; but he has failed to refer to later publications which would, in many instances, have explained and amplified the older texts. And having failed to become acquainted with the relationship of the different tribes of eastern United States, and of Virginia in particular, he has unfortunately often erred in their identification. . . . No new facts are presented in the work under consideration, and from the manner in which many comparatively simple words and terms have been defined (as on p. 162), and the curious method of presenting 'Some Indian words' (pp. 285-323), we are led to believe the book was intended for juvenile readers, to whom it will appeal." D. I. Bushnell, Jr.

— Am Hist R 22:211 O '16 360w

"Mr. Sams has made a unique adventure in the writing of American history and has succeeded admirably. . . . The reawaking of interest during the last few years in Indian life, culminating in the recent announcement of the foundation presently in New York city of an imposing Indian memorial museum, gives a timely value to Mr. Sams's 'Forest primeval.'" F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:422 Je '16 630w

+ Lit D 53:415 Ag 19 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:91 Je '16

"A careful and very complete compilation of extracts from original sources. The numerous illustrations are well chosen."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 29 '16 470w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p352 Jl 27 '16 550w

SANDBURG, CARL. Chicago poems. *$1.25 Holt 811 16-10920

In his opening poem the author attempts to express Chicago, "Hog butcher for the world, tool maker, stacker of wheat, player with railroads and the nation's freight handler." To the critics of this kind of poetry the obvious answer will be that Chicago could not express herself in a lyric and that if she was to be expressed at all it had to be done in this wise. For this is another volume of tradition-shattering poetry, finding no aspect of life, however ugly, unworthy of notice. The volume is truer to its title than are many others—Halsted street, Clark street bridge, the bronze statues of Lincoln and Grant, the picnic boats coming home across the lake, these are the poet's inspirations.

A L A Bkl 13:23 O '16

"It is a book of ill-regulated speech that has neither verse nor prose rhythms. . . . He has a strong if unpleasant imagination which is strangely woven with a tenderness that is striking. The man's a poet inside, but it does not become articulate in the symbols of the speech he has chosen. . . . This phase of our poetic art will pass, it is too positive to last, and a man of Mr. Sandburg's undoubted visual strength will employ his powers to more enduring ends." W. S. B.

— + Boston Transcript p6 My 13 '16 1400w

"There are apparently two Sandburgs: one the rather gross, simple-minded, sentimental, sensual man among men, going with scarcely qualified gusto through the grimy business of modern life, which, mystical moccobrat, he at once assails and glorifies; the other the highly sensitized impressionist who finds in the subtle accords between his own ideal moods and the loveliest, most elusive aspects of the external world, material for delicate and dreamlike expression." W: A. Bradley

— + Dial 61:528 D 14 '16 120w

+ Ind 87:425 S 18 '16 140w

"I do not mean to let my enthusiasm for this book give the impression that everything in the volume is up to its high levels. . . . But the majority of the volume is far different than these few exceptions. It is a volume that is vivid with the health of vulgarity; that has the strength of sorrow as well as the gaiety of strength. It is, at the last, an intensely personal volume, and 'who touches this book, touches (in the best sense in which Walt Whitman ever meant it) a man.'" L: Untermeyer

+ The Masses Review 8:30 Jl '16 730w

Reviewed by O. W. Firkins

Nation 103:152 Ag 17 '16 510w

+ New Repub 8:328 O 28 '16 1400w

"In a line or two you are given the measure of immense contrasts. It is all alive, stirring, human. The best is very good indeed; the worst is dull and shapeless. But the worst can easily be let alone, for there is so much of the good."

+ N Y Times 21:242 Je 11 '16 780w

"I have dwelt so long on the propagandist side of Mr. Sandburg's book, because he challenges us with it upon many pages. But these are poems, and it is as poetry that the work must be judged. 'Chicago poems' is one of the most original books which this age has produced." Amy Lowell

+ Poetry Review 1:46 Jl '16 2000w

"He has shaped poetry that is like a statue by Rodin."

+ R of Rs 53:761 Je '16 270w

Springfield Republican p6 Ag 22 '16 570w

"The best part of this book is the section entitled 'Fogs and fires,' with its unrhymed measures as fine as Henley's and with mood and vision touched with beauty." E: B. Reed

— + Yale R n s 6:418 Ja '17 390w

SANDERS, FREDERIC WILLIAM. Reorganization of our schools: some educational postulates and practical suggestions as to the organization of schools. $1 Palmer co. 16-4412

"One of the conditions that serve to make the work of the teacher mechanical and uninter-

SANDERS, FREDERIC WILLIAM—Continued
esting is the fact that, under the present system, the teacher is usually confronted with a wholly new set of pupils every half-year. . . . Mr. Sanders proposes a system under which the teacher will have the same pupils through the four or five years of what he conceives to be a natural developmental period; and under this system he thinks that it will be possible to adjust her work to the capacity of the pupils, releasing her from the necessity of covering a fixed extent of ground."—Nation

Ind 87:348 S 4 '16 40w

+ Nation 102:sup486 My 4 '16 230w

SANDYS, SIR JOHN EDWIN. Short history of classical scholarship from the sixth century B. C. to the present day. il *$2.25 Putnam 880.9 EL5-2366

"An abridgement of the author's important work on the subject which has been widely known for many years. To reduce three large volumes into one small one, severe compression was necessary; but the author has avoided the mistake of attempting merely to popularize. While he has had to omit or pass by summarily a good many minor scholars, he has taken care that the greater men shall not suffer injustice. In particular we are glad to see that he has retained sufficient indication of titles and editions, and while shortening, has not suppressed his foot-notes. He has even been able to include a fair proportion of the illustrations which formed an interesting feature in the larger book."—Eng Hist R

"Such a book should be of great value to students in our graduate schools, where the history of scholarship might well receive more attention than at present. . . . The least satisfactory chapter of the book is that dealing with 'Comparative philology' (pp. 349-52). . . . On the whole, the book has been carefully carried through the press, but several misprints have been allowed to stand in the latter part of the work. These, for the most part, are easily detected by the scholar, but might not always be apparent to the younger student. . . . The book is provided with an excellent index." G. C. Scoggin

+ Class J 11:126 N '15 680w

"Of the 86 illustrations which appeared in the three-volume edition, 25 have been reproduced here; and the spurious portrait of Hemsterhuys has been superseded by the genuine portrait on p. 278." W. C. Wright

+ Class Philol 11:105 Ja '16 600w

+ Eng Hist R 31:333 Ap '16 120w

SANFORD, ALBERT HART. Story of agriculture in the United States. il *$1 Heath 630 16-8586

"A novel attempt to gather the more important facts of our agricultural history into a book that may be accessible to those whose lives are associated with the farmer's calling. Oddly enough, very little has heretofore been done in the way of drawing material for the instruction of young people in our rural schools from their actual environment. This book is made up of such material and it is intended primarily for boys and girls who live on farms, although it should be of interest to many others."—R of Rs

"Well illustrated."

+ A L A Bkl 13:40 O '16

"A surprisingly interesting book, well adapted for supplementary reading with any grammar school history."

+ Ind 87:237 Ag 14 '16 70w

+ Nation 103:521 N 30 '16 500w

+ R of Rs 53:765 Je '16 80w

St Louis 14:434 D '16 10w

SANTAYANA, GEORGE. Egotism in German philosophy. *$1.50 Scribner 193 17-4489

"The author, who formerly held the chair of philosophy at Harvard university, postulates that egotism is immanent throughout the scheme of German thinking, which 'summons all nature to minister to the self,' and that the great characteristic of German philosophy is its deliberate subjectivity. It limits itself to the articulation of self-consciousness. Prof. Santayana passes from the hints of egotism which he finds in Goethe to the 'seeds of egotism in Kant,' and from these to the dicta of Fichte and the transcendentalism of Schopenhauer. He proceeds to a consideration of the ethics of Nietzsche, the concept of the superman, and the specific aims and tendencies of German genius."—Ath

"The book is commendably free from prejudice, and the finer qualities of the Teuton race are by no means overlooked."

+ Ath p425 S '16 130w

"A book of this quality cannot have a wide appeal; but it will be welcome to those who may hope to inspire the thoughts of others." B. I. G.

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 18 '16 720w

"Even when Mr. Santayana is pouring forth his vials of scorn upon German subjectivism, one has frequently a feeling that while he came to curse, he is remaining to bless—up to a certain point. . . . He does justice with the sensitiveness of an artist to whatever he finds true in the doctrine which he condemns." J: Dewey

New Repub 9:155 D 9 '16 1500w

+ Spec 117:512 O 28 '16 100w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p443 S 14 '16 110w

"The book is in truth a series of brilliant and discursive comments upon half-a-dozen philosophers, beginning with Fichte. . . . Not by any means a perfect piece of work, discursive and vague, the book strikes good blows in the cause of true freedom. . . . It has a charm and a distinction which make one forget its one-sided character."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p447 S 21 '16 920w

SAPPER, pseud. Men, women and guns. *$1.25 (2c) Doran 16-20442

Part 1 of this book is made up of eight short stories: The motor-gun; Private Meyrick—company idiot; Spud Trevor of the Red Hussars; The fatal second; Jim Brent's V. C.; Retribution; The death grip; James Henry. The second part, called "The land of topsy turvy," consists of a series of related sketches that attempt to tell what the war means to the soldier taking part in it. He is in a "land of topsy turvy," where old values cease to have force and all the old standards are shattered. It is only when a man comes back from it that he realizes that it was a mad world and that he himself was not quite sane.

"The two best tales are 'The motor gun' and 'Jim Brent's V. C.' both of them so crammed with the quality of suspense that it is impossible to review them without telling too much of the plot."

+ N Y Times 21:548 D 10 '16 350w

"The motto of this moving study is to be found in the words of the C. O.: 'It's the thrusters, the martinets, the men of action who win the V. C.'s and D. C. M.'s, but it's the dreamers, the idealists who deserve them. They suffer so much more.' And it is this sympathy with the idealists, combined with a due regard for the great qualities of the alert men of action and enterprise, that lends peculiar attractiveness to 'Sapper's' stories. But this quality has its defects, and they are to be seen in the present volume in an increasing tendency to enhance the tragedy or pitifulness of war by melodramatic or sentimental complications."

+ Spec 117:292 S 9 '16 1150w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p439 S 14 '16 720w

SAPPER, pseud. Michael Cassidy, sergeant. *$1.25 (2½c) Doran 16-16391

Stories and sketches of the war. Michael Cassidy of the Royal engineers is invalidated home after "stopping a bit of lead with his foot." In conversations with his superior officer, the "Sapper" who is the anonymous author, he tells of his experiences at the front, with considerable shrewd comment on modern warfare. These Cassidy stories, or conversations, take up the first half of the book. The second half consists of ten short stories of soldier life.

+ Cath World 104:254 N '16 120w

Reviewed by Travis Hope

+ Dial 61:190 S 21 '16 290w

"Brilliant pictures of the things that happen at the front, each one painted with free, strong brush strokes, and they are also clever, keenly seeing and profoundly understanding studies of men under the rapidly shaping influences and the hotly inspiring breath of war. Many of his sketches have appeared in the English newspapers, where they have attracted much attention, not only for their truthfulness of description, but also for their literary quality."

+ N Y Times 21:334 Ag 27 '16 600w

+ R of Rs 54:460 O '16 20w

+ Spec 115:184 Ag 7 '15 250w

"The humor and pathos of the situations are brought out by 'Michael Cassidy' in the manner peculiar to his race. But when one has finished the book he feels as though he had been led through a vale of terrors too awful to be true, and yet that the half has not been told."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 24 '16 180w

SARGEANT, E. W. Centrifugal pumps and suction dredgers. il $3.25 Lippincott 621.64 16-24221

"The reader will easily recognize the author as belonging to the older school of engineers, who followed their respective specialties from the drafting board, through the pattern shop, foundry and machine shop into actual service. The work is in no sense profound. On the contrary it is essentially a simple and readable description of methods and constructions that have worked out satisfactorily in widely diversified centrifugal pump practice. The principles of design laid down by the author are strictly empirical, being based on formulas deduced from tests of a number of pumps of known dimensions."—Engin N

"American readers must bear in mind that in the numerous formulas and tables capacities are given in imperial gallons, which are 20% larger than the measure which is standard in this country. . . . On the whole the work is scarcely one that would be classed as a textbook. Its contents savor more of the general counsel of an engineer of broad practical experience. It would do excellent service as a corrective with which to temper the ultra-theoretical treatment that is often encountered in textbooks dealing with this subject."

+ Engin N 76:940 N 16 '16 360w

"Will be of service to designers, draftsmen and operating engineers. . . . The volume should also appeal to students, as it is clearly written and easily understood." A. G. Hillberg

+ Engin Rec 74:568 N 4 '16 430w

SARGENT, PORTER EDWARD. Handbook of American private schools. $2 P. E: Sargent, 50 Congress st., Boston 373 15-12869

"The 1916 edition of 'American private schools' is a volume of 600 pages covering the most important boarding and day schools for boys and girls and also the leading music schools and summer camps. New features, such as a list of educational periodicals, have been introduced."—Springfield Republican

A L A Bkl 13:190 Ja '17

"To the reader not directly interested in private schools, the main value of the book will center in its 'Educational directories.' These give valuable information as to purpose, publications, and officers of all educational associations in the United States, including all our classical associations; also a full list of educational periodicals, with publisher, price, and purpose." F. J. Miller

+ Class J 12:157 N '16 160w

"The book bears every evidence of careful editing, and is up to date. In the difficult matter of estimating the character of the schools a middle ground, neither flattering nor unduly severe, is adopted; the editor has, however, taken a more critical attitude toward some schools than in the previous volume."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 140w

SARGENT, PORTER EDWARD. Handbook of New England. $2 P. E: Sargent, 50 Congress st., Boston 917.4 (16-15736)

"The latest in Porter E. Sargent's handbook series is 'A handbook of New England,' and it is to be an annual publication. . . . It has that supreme attribute of the guide-book already—compactness. . . . One fact the book demonstrates. Primarily a manual for the motorist, it concerns itself almost solely with main-traveled roads, which means that not only many towns but some of the most delightful spots in these our six states are necessarily neglected. If the book is to live completely up to its name, subsequent editions must take count of the by-ways."—Springfield Republican

A L A Bkl 13:171 Ja '17

"Maps, photographic pictures and a variety of indexes and directories add materially to the ready reference value of the volume."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 150w

"The text is marked by a pithiness of expression that flavors what might otherwise be matter-of-fact, however useful reading. The publisher's note states his intention to make the book, and the others in the series to follow, which will eventually cover the country, 'humanized Baedekers.' That he has succeeded in the humanizing function a brief skimming of the contents proves."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 120w

SARGENT, WALTER, and MILLER, ELIZABETH ERWIN. How children learn to draw. il $1 (3c) Ginn 741 16-14920

Theory and method are both considered in this book by Mr. Sargent and Miss Miller of the University of Chicago school of education. In the elementary school of the School of education experiments have been tried out with a view to determine "how children learn most readily to use drawing as a common means of self-expression." This book offers a record of some of these experiments. Contents: The illustration of themes; The drawing of birds, plants, and the human figure; The drawing of constructed objects; Interests and standards of attainment; Conclusions as to how children learn to draw.

+ A L A Bkl 13:71 N '16

"Not only for the teacher and student, but for the general reader, has this practical, helpful little book a rare interest."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 26 '16 220w

N Y Br Lib News 3:188 D '16

+ St Louis 15:16 Ja '17 50w

"Occasionally a book is published of commanding importance. 'How children learn to draw' is such a book. It is a plain unvarnished tale of the results of patient, persistent, open-minded and keen-eyed experiment with elementary school children to discover the facts. The record is orderly, detailed, sun-clear in statement, and completely illustrated. This book is the first of its kind in English. It does for American teachers what Dr. Kerschenshteiner's four-times-larger volume was designed to do for the German teachers. It should be in every school library in the United States, and in the personal library of every supervisor of drawing."

+ School Arts Magazine 16:45 S '16 160w

"The significant fact about this book on drawing is that it represents the union between the presentation of theory and of the related practice." F. N. Freeman

+ School R 25:66 Ja '17 740w

SAROLEA, CHARLES. Great Russia; her achievement and promise. maps *$1.25 (2½c) Knopf 947 16-6084

This book represents "an attempt to give a systematic and co-ordinated survey of Russian history and policy." It is divided into four parts. Part 1 is devoted to The geographical foundations of Russian politics. Part 2, What the world owes to Russia, deals with the so-called Slav peril. Part 3, The great Russian triumvirate, considers Russian ideals as revealed in the works of Turgenev, Tolstoy and Dostoevsky. Part 4 is devoted to Russian problems, with particular attention given to the problems of Poland and the Jews. The author is a Belgian who from 1894 has been a lecturer in Edinburgh university and since 1901 has been Belgian consul in Edinburgh. Two books from his pen were published last year, "Anglo-German problem" and "How Belgium saved Europe."

Boston Transcript p24 Mr 1 '16 380w

+ — N Y Times 21:58 F 20 '16 670w

"Carries praise of Russia beyond all limits of judgment or discrimination. It is a part of that flood of literature of 'mutual admiration' among the Allies, which present conditions render inevitable. Its best pages form the brief chapter called 'The geographical foundations of Russian politics.' But even this part, like all the rest, is casual and slight."

— R of Rs 53:502 Ap '16 100w

St Louis 14:198 My '16 20w

"Among the enormous mass of works dealing with Russia for the benefit of English and American newspaper readers, I can recommend Professor Sarolea's little book. It is full of information and vitality—but is marred by three faults—overwhelming partisan hatred of Germany, enormous egotism, and a love not merely of prophesying, but of triumphant references to his past successes in this clairvoyant art." W: L. Phelps

+ — Yale R ns 6:212 O '16 120w

SAUNDERS, CHARLES FRANCIS. Finding the worth while in California. il *$1 (2c) McBride 917.94 16-23805

A little guide book for tourists. The preface says: "If this little book, written from personal observation, deals but lightly with city sights in California, it is because of the writer's belief that American cities east and west are pretty much alike. What interests most people in California, both visitors and residents, are outdoor matters." Contents: By way of prologue: some sights along the route to and from California; Los Angeles and round about; The San Diego country; About Santa Barbara; Monterey, California's Spanish capital; Stopping off at San José; San Francisco and across the bay; North of San Francisco; Some big things of the mountains; Summer camp life; For the practical man—being about petroleum, mines and agriculture; Climate, clothes and cash. There are four maps, grouped at the end, seven illustrations, bibliography and index.

"All tourists, present and prospective, bound Californiaward should read this book, whose small pages are packed with a surprising amount of information."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 10 '17 200w

SAUNDERS, [MARGARET] MARSHALL. Wandering dog. il *$1.50 (1½c) Doran 16-21075

The author of "Beautiful Joe" has written another dog story. The hero, who tells his own story, is a fox-terrier. He is a wanderer in New York city when the story opens, but he is a sophisticated youngster who has seen the world and he manages to take care of himself quite adequately until he has the good fortune to be adopted into a home on Riverside drive. The story falls into two parts, My life in the city, and My life in the country.

"The book is simple and sincere and is written out of a real love for and understanding of dogs." G. I. Colbron.

+ Bookm 44:407 D '16 60w

"One of the most engaging of canine heroes is Boy of Pleasant River, and the story of his life up to the present is unflinchingly entertaining. This in spite of certain crudities of style, and the 'I-did-not-raise-my-boy-to-be-a-soldier' fallacy which wriggles insidiously through it. No one can read the little story without gaining a true understanding of animal needs and longings."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 N 11 '16 150w

"A good example of canine fiction, and one that will advance the cause of the S. P. C. A."

+ Dial 61:480 N 30 '16 150w

St Louis 14:439 D '16

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 17 '16 150w

SAUVEUR, ALBERT. Metallography and heat treatment of iron and steel. il *$6 McGraw 669.1 16-2191

A revision of a work issued in 1912. "Professor Sauveur's treatise has been almost entirely reset and comprises 27 chapters and an appendix dealing with the nomenclature of the microscopic constituents. The work has been enlarged and unified, the chapters and pages numbered consecutively and a fairly complete index provided. The practical portion of the subject is treated first, leaving the more complicated theoretical parts to the last few chapters." (Engin N)

A L A Bkl 12:306 Mr '16

+ Cleveland p58 My '16 20w

"A revised edition of the 'Metallography of iron and steel' by the same author, which since its first issue in 1912 has become the most widely used treatise on this subject in America." F. N. Speller

+ Engin N 75:750 Ap 20 '16 500w

"It is clearly printed, very practical, beautifully illustrated." (Metallurgical and Chemical Engineering, April 1, 1916). Also reviewed in Journal of the Franklin Institute, March, 1916; in American Machinist, March 9, 1916; in Foundry, Feb., 1916; in Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, May, 1916, p. 481; in Canadian Engineer, April 27, 1916, p. 491."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p18 My '16 150w

+ Pratt p26 Jl '16 30w

SAWYER, RUTH (MRS. ALBERT C. DURAND). Seven miles to Arden. il *$1.25 (2c) Harper 16-10304

A story that ran as a serial in the Ladies' Home Journal. Patsy O'Connell of the Irish National players is left stranded in New York when the company disbands. But Patsy has no time to worry about troubles of her own when other people need help. And the thought of a young man in trouble and in need of a friend to trust him is enough to send her off on a journey in search of him. She doesn't know him, and can only trace him by the cut of his clothes. He is to be found she learns at Arden, seven miles away, and she sets out thither. But Arden seems an elusive town and difficult to arrive at, and on the way she meets a tinker. It is out of these circumstances that a pretty romance grows.

A L A Bkl 13:36 O '16

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 43:538 Jl '16 110w

Boston Transcript p7 Jl 22 '16 350w

Ind 86:405 Je 5 '16 40w

"A delightful and not too absurd little romance."

+ Nation 102:595 Je 1 '16 270w

"A very charming, dainty fairy story for grown-ups, and if you are not wedded to realism and do not balk at improbabilities you will be wise to make the acquaintance of Patsy and her friend and comrade, the tinker."

+ N Y Times 21:191 My 7 '16 300w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Jl 2 '16 170w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p251 My 25 '16 90w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 60w

SAWYER, RUTH (MRS. ALBERT C. DUR-AND). This way to Christmas. il *$1 (3c) Harper 16-20438

The story of David and his wonderful Christmas in the Adirondacks. David is only nine and his father and mother, who have gone to the war zone, have left him in care of Barney and Johanna in their lodge in the mountains. Christmas time is approaching, but David can not see how it is to be much of a Christmas so far away from shops and toys, not to mention father and mother. But the story tells how David's friends, an old German flagman, a trapper, and others, contribute to his Christmas. And each tells him a Christmas story drawn from the folk-lore of his own land.

- + A L A Bkl 13:185 Ja '17
- + Cleveland p128 N '16 60w
- + Dial 61:549 D 14 '16 30w
- + Lit D 53:1567 D 9 '16 150w

SCARBOROUGH'S official tour book, 1916. 2v il ea $1.50 Scarborough motor guide co. 917.3 (16-14925)

Scarborough's tour books provide information for motorists. Tours are outlined in detail with mileage given. One of the two volumes covers New York, New Jersey, Canada and the east, the other, the Central states, covers Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and trunk lines. In each there is a large map of the section covered with numerous smaller sectional and city maps. A hotel and garage directory is provided and the advertising pages offer other information about leading hotels. There is also an abstract of automobile laws for the states covered.

SCHEFTEL, YETTA. Taxation of land value. *$2 Houghton 336.2 17-235

This "study of certain discriminatory taxes on land" is published as one of the Hart, Schaffner and Marx prize essays. It was awarded the first prize in Class A (open to any American without restriction) in 1915. Contents: The tax on land value; Land taxes in Australasia (two chapters); The tax on value increment in Germany; The English land-value duties; Municipal taxation in western Canada; The tax in its fiscal aspect; The tax as a social reform (two chapters); Expediency of the tax on land value for the United States.

Boston Transcript p8 Ja 27 '17 330w

SCHERER, JAMES AUGUSTIN BROWN. Cotton as a world power. *$2 (2c) Stokes 330.9 16-21237

The author calls this work "a study in the economic interpretation of history." It has grown out of a lecture delivered at Oxford and Cambridge universities in the spring of 1914 on "Economic causes in the American civil war." The subject is treated under seven divisions: From India to England; The transformation of England; Cotton in American history; sectional evolution; Cotton in American history; the great controversies; Cotton in American history; the civil war; The old south and the new; Cotton and world trade. The author is president of Throop college of technology, Pasadena, California, and author of "The Japanese crisis."

"This plethoric volume opens with the fascination of romance, and closes with the philosophy of statesmanship. . . . One seldom finds anywhere in one work such a comprehensive range of historic interest as this volume affords."

- + Lit D 53:1475 D 2 '16 280w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:190 D '16
- + R of Rs 55:217 F '17 100w

SCHERER, JAMES AUGUSTIN BROWN. Japanese crisis. *75c (5c) Stokes 325 16-9180

A book written in the interests of a more friendly understanding between our country and Japan. The author, who names as his qualifications for writing the book a five years' residence in Japan and seven years of citizenship in California, finds the focal point of the whole situation in the temperament of the Japanese. They are compared to the Irish, than whom there are no kinder people—till they are touched on some sensitive point of honor or self respect. There are chapters on: California and the opening of Japan; The coming of the Japanese to California; Is Japan militant? Are the Japanese assimilable? Is agricultural competition safe? The alien land law. The conclusion stated in this final chapter is to the effect that the most important piece of legislation waiting to be enacted in this country is a law putting international affairs in the hands of the nation.

"The value of the book is increased by the inclusion of the Japanese law relating to the foreigner's right to own land in Japan, the California alien land law of 1913, and the American-Japanese treaty of 1911. While the volume is an incomplete discussion of 'the Japanese crisis,' it is a distinct contribution to the growing body of literature on the Japanese question." -E. S. Bogardus

+ Am J Soc 22:418 N '16 210w

"As a thoughtful presentation in small space of the views of both sides the book is a good one, but not indispensable, specially to those having Millis' report of facts (Booklist, 12:66, N '15) and Gulick's admirable discussion of the whole situation (Booklist, 10:352, My '14)."

+ A L A Bkl 13:12 O '16

Reviewed by P. J. Treat

Dial 61:22 Je 22 '16 180w

Ind 86:304 My 22 '16 60w

"An absolutely fair presentation of both sides with special reference to the California land issue. As a brief, clear statement of existing facts for the student of current events whose time is limited, Dr. Scherer's book will prove invaluable."

+ N Y Times 21:226 My 28 '16 280w

"The title of Mr. Scherer's little volume about Japan is quite misleading. The book is a moderate and useful essay on the relations of Japan and the United States. No chapter of it has any reference to a crisis. Mr. Scherer's book is conciliatory and helpful in its suggestions."

+ R of Rs 53:626 My '16 110w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Jl 30 '16 350w

SCHEVILL, FERDINAND. Making of modern Germany. il *$1.25 (2½c) McClurg 943 16-5972

A series of six public lectures delivered in Chicago in 1915 by the professor of modern European history in the University of Chicago. The lectures were arranged for in the spring of 1914 and as first planned had no bearing on the war. The author says: "Although this is in no sense a war book and the military happenings since August, 1914, lie wholly outside my scope, I hope none the less that I have added to our understanding of the issues involved in the struggle and illuminated somewhat its significance for the Germany of today and of the future." Contents: The end of the elder Germany, and the rise of Brandenburg after the thirty years' war; Frederick the Great and the advent of Prussia as a European power; Napoleon Bonaparte; Prussia's overthrow and reconstruction; Progress and reaction; from the congress of Vienna to the revolution of 1848; Bismarck and the unification of Germany; Germany since her unification. The Polish question, The Alsace-Lorraine question, and other matters are considered in appendices. There is a bibliography and an index.

A L A Bkl 12:473 Jl '16

Boston Transcript p9 Mr 25 '16 650w

"They seem almost too cursory to justify their publication in book form. The author, while not discussing the war directly, has a strong pro-German bias, and is at considerable pains to minimize the Prussianism and militarism of the German empire and to claim for the German constitution a greater measure of the democratic spirit than most Americans are able to detect. It is hardly correct to state, as he has done, that the government of the Empire does not differ in character from the government of a German municipality."

SCHEVILL, FERDINAND—Continued

— Dial 61:31 Je 22 '16 180w

Ind 88:26 O 2 '16 340w

"The first four or five lectures may be read with considerable interest and sympathy. The author keeps his eyes fixed on essentials and he accompanies the facts of history with comment that is animated and interesting, if not profound. All the keener is the reader's disappointment when he comes to various conclusions which Professor Schevill draws concerning the Germany of recent years. Collectivism is certainly not a conscious product of the German people, as he implies. It was deliberately forced upon them from above. Nor did the German Social-democrats rally to the defence of the country, with no less fervor apparently than the classes to which they were opposed." Professor Schevill also ignores the discontent in Germany just before the outbreak of the war."

+ — Nation 103:16 J1 6 '16 270w

"A straightforward story, informative in the essentials. The lectures were obviously popular, and the published work makes no pretensions to elaborate scholarship."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 16 '16 370w

SCHMITT, BERNADOTTE EVERLY. England and Germany, 1740-1914. *$2 (1½c) Princeton univ. press 327.43 16-9553

"This book is not entirely a product of the great war," says the author. The subject had engrossed his attention for some years, his interest in it having been aroused while he was at Oxford where he went as a Rhodes scholar in 1905. He says, "Nearly all of the evidence upon which my conclusions are based was in my hands before August, 1914; indeed, the first six chapters, and the eighth, were practically written by that date, although they have since been rewritten." Contents: Modern England; The German empire; German expansion; Commercial rivalry; Anglo-German relations to 1890; The quarrel; The admiralty of the Atlantic; The Triple entente; The Near East; Agadir and its aftermath; The eve of the war; The crisis of 1914; Armageddon; The Anglo-German rupture. There are two folding maps.

"One of the best chapters, on a subject which deserves more attention in English than it has received, is that dealing with the growth of German influence in Turkey, and the Bagdad railway." S. B. Fay

+ Am Hist R 22:146 O '16 850w

+ A L A Bkl 13:12 O '16

Boston Transcript p6 Je 17 '16 520w

+ — Cleveland p121 Ag '16 160w

+ Dial 61:70 J1 15 '16 430w

+ Educ R 52:315 O '16 80w

+ Ind 88:27 O 2 '16 160w

"Professor Schmitt is well informed, but bias in favor of England leads him more than once to a false perspective of German affairs, to inconsistencies of statement, and even to direct errors. This is true especially of his chapter on the German empire. . . . If all of Professor Schmitt's book were on the high level of his last chapters, few faults could be found in it."

+ — Nation 103:516 N 30 '16 710w

+ N Y Times 21:185 Ap 30 '16 1400w

R of Rs 53:756 Je '16 60w

"It is unnecessary to travel over all the familiar grounds which have led Dr. Schmitt to the delivery of this judgment. It will be more profitable to indicate a few errors into which, from want of full information, he has unwittingly fallen. . . . No diplomatic incident of recent years has formed the subject of more numerous myths than the Anglo-French entente of 1904." [Earl of] Cromer

+ — Spec 117:413 O 7 '16 2800w

"His account has the great merits of vividness and concreteness; his interpretations, while often acute, and generally sound, are not extended so far as one could wish. And, in attempting to get at the thoughts that were in the minds of peoples of the two nations and the different classes of the two nations he has of necessity been largely reliant upon the writings of journalists and politicians. It cannot be said that he has weighed carefully all these writings and attempted to show to what extent they represented different shades of opinion held by various groups of people in the two nations."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 My 21 '16 850w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p299 Je 22 '16 90w

"It would probably be wiser in any fresh edition avowedly to limit the book to the period with which it really deals, 1890-1914."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p350 J1 27 '16 1300w

+ Wls Lib Bull 12:270 Je '16 120w

SCHNEIDER, NORMAN HUGH (H. S. NORRIE, pseud.). Wiring houses for the electric light, together with special references to low voltage battery systems. il *50c (2c) Spon 621.32 16-7928

A second edition of a work published in 1911. The preface says, "In addition to practically all the information contained in the former edition, there has been added thirty-two new pages on conduit wiring and concentric wiring and a number of full-page plates."

N Y Br Lib News 3:141 S '16

"Reviewed in Canadian Engineer, April 27, 1916, p. 490."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p10 Ag '16 50w

SCHOOLCRAFT, HENRY ROWE. Indian fairy book, from the original legends. il *$1.50 (2c) Stokes 398 16-16326

"These Indian fairy tales are chosen from the many stories collected by Mr. Henry R. Schoolcraft, the first man to study how the Indians lived and to discover their legends. . . . Mr. Schoolcraft listened and wrote the stories down, just as he heard them. In 1856 this collection of his stories was published by Mason Brothers in New York city. A small brown book with quaint engravings for pictures, it is now only to be found here and there in families that have always treasured its delightful contents. It is republished, with revisions and with new illustrations in color, so that these stories may be passed on as they deserve." (Foreword) There are 24 stories, with 8 illustrations by Florence Choate and Elizabeth Curtis.

A L A Bkl 13:190 Ja '17

Lit D 53:1561 D 9 '16 90w

Outlook 115:33 Ja 3 '17 30w

+ R of Rs 55:102 Ja '17 90w

+ Springfield Republican p7 N 25 '16 220w

+ Wls Lib Bull 12:456 D '16 30w

SCHULTZ, JAMES WILLARD. Apauk, caller of buffalo. il *$1.25 (3c) Houghton 16-19071

An Indian autobiography. Mr. Schultz has pieced the story together from tales told him by Apauk during winter evenings of the late 70's and 80's and has set it down in Apauk's own words. Apauk was a member of the Piegan tribe of the Blackfoot confederacy. As a boy he was taught to call buffalo and for many years he led the great hunts of his tribe. He believed implicitly in the "medicine" by which he accomplished his dangerous feats and his story gives an insight into the Indian's faith in magic. The book also gives an interesting account of the education of Indian youth.

"Brings out a somewhat different side of Indian life, and one the boy reader may not find as thrilling as that of the writer's earlier books."

+ — A L A Bkl 13:185 Ja '17

"When we consider that there are not quite four thousand buffaloes now extant, the present volume will be of particular interest."

+ Lit D 53:1616 D 16 '16 70w

SCHULTZ, JAMES WILLARD. Blackfeet tales of Glacier national park. il *$2 (4c) Houghton 398.2 16-11057

Visitors to Glacier national park will find in this book an interesting collection of the legends that are associated with its many mountain peaks, lakes and waterfalls. The stories are written down as they were told by the Blackfeet Indians to the author, who is an adopted member of their tribe. Some of the stories are offered in protest against the practice of substituting modern place names for those originally bestowed by the Indians. The book is beautifully illustrated from photographs by R. W. Reed.

+ A L A Bkl 12:456 J1 '16

"It is rarely that one can see Indian life and read Indian legend through the eyes of anyone not himself an outsider. Mr. Schultz feels himself to be, as he is, Ap-i-kun-i. Many of the stories that he tells are true classics, full of an understanding of human nature, of humor and of pathos." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 3 '16 750w

+ Cath World 103:541 J1 '16 150w

Nation 103:113 Ag 3 '16 250w

"The book is more than a collection of Indian stories. It relates the incidents and daily adventures of this visit, the talks with his old companions, the nights' musings about the campfire. And it includes a series of superb photographs of the park, with the Indians in their native costumes pursuing their accustomed business."

+ N Y Times 21:218 My 21 '16 1250w

+ No Am 205:153 Ja '17 450w

Pittsburgh 21:361 J1 '16 30w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:269 Je '16 30w

SCHUYLER, WILLIAM. Hope of glory; being part of a correspondence written in the Roman empire between the years 52 and 66 A. D.; with introd. essay by Mary Fisher. *$1.50 Four seas co. 16-21062

"Let him who doubts the supremacy of Christianity over other religions or philosophies of life read 'The hope of glory.' It is an effective argument for Christianity written in a most scholarly manner. The author presents his ideas in the form of a correspondence carried on between a noted Stoic philosopher and teacher, and a new convert to Christianity. The time is following the conversion of Saul of Tarsus. Especially interesting is the strong character sketch of Nero, with an account of his rise and downfall."—Springfield Republican

"He makes us realize, as in but one other instance has been so vividly done, the heroism of that little band of Christians who, despised, persecuted, were steadfastly sowing the seeds of that 'tree of life' whose leaves were to be for the healing of the nations."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 15 '16 520w

"The story is preceded by an estimate of the author's character and personality from the pen of Mary Fisher, which many may find more interesting than the body of the book. . . . One fears that the argument of this book will be followed to the end only by those who are already convinced. . . . The mangling of various Roman names is due to the fact that the author did not live to do his own proof-reading, for there can be no question as to the genuineness of his classical scholarship."

+ Nation 103:465 N 16 '16 500w

"The author has shown unusual vividness of imagination, which is skilfully interwoven with carefully sought-out historical and biblical facts."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 20 '16 120w

SCOLLARD, CLINTON. Ballads, patriotic and romantic. *$1.50 Gomme 811 16-23793

Among the patriotic ballads are: The drum of Lexington; Wayne at Stony Point; Old Hickory; Chant of the Mohawk; On an American soldier of fortune slain in France; Song for Memorial day, and Song for Flag day. Following these come Romantic ballads, eleven in number. The next section of the book is called The lure of the Orient; the last, The lyric quest.

+ Lit D 54:87 Ja 13 '17 1100w

SCOTT, DIXON. Men of letters; with an introd. by Max Beerbohm. il *$2 (2c) Doran 820.4

Of the nineteen critical papers in this volume, six were prepared for book publication by the author. The remainder have been collected from the Bookman (London), the Manchester Guardian and other periodicals to which they were contributed by friends who, since the author's death at the Dardanelles, have desired to carry out his plans as far as possible. Among the papers are: The innocence of Bernard Shaw; The meekness of Mr. Rudyard Kipling; The ambitions of Sir James Barrie, bart.; The artlessness of Mr. H. G. Wells; The commonsense of Mr. Arnold Bennett.

+ Ath p591 D '16 90w

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '17 1450w

"Mr. Scott had the very great advantage of viewing life and letters from the point of view not of London's literary cliques, but of level-headed Lancashire. . . . The essay on Browning shows that had he turned his pen oftener to the greater figures of letters, he would have preserved his freshness of view and gained in sobriety from the contact. That on Max Beerbohm shows that his persiflage can be amusing. The paper on Barrie shows that he can be delightful. That on Henry James shows that he can be subtle—but, alas, again, too subtle."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 16 '17 1200w

"He was worthy to go adventuring among masterpieces. With his vitality, his sincerity, his acuteness and sensitiveness, his patience, his daring, and his 'really simply goluptions' joy in life and letters, he gives our old loves a new glamour and braces us to the worthier worship of them."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p547 N 16 '16 1050w

SCOTT, EMMETT JAY, and STOWE, LYMAN
BEECHER. Booker T. Washington, builder of a civilization. il *$2 (2c) Doubleday 16-22174

This is not a complete biography of Booker T. Washington. That work still remains to be written. His life story was partly told in his own book "Up from slavery," and on the early struggles and privations pictured in that work, the present book does not touch. Its purpose is to record the achievements of his mature life, "to give the full fruition of his life's work." The chapters are: The man and his school in the making; Leader of his race; Washington: the educator; The rights of the negro; Meeting race prejudice; Getting close to the people; Booker Washington and the negro farmer; Booker Washington and the negro business man; Booker Washington among his students; Raising hundreds of thousands a year; Managing a great institution; Washington: the man. There is a Foreword by Robert R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee institute, and a preface by Theodore Roosevelt.

+ A L A Bkl 13:173 Ja '17

"The book is handsomely done and entertainingly written and may be recommended to the general reader; to those, however, who had hoped for a broad and discriminating statement of the meaning of Mr. Washington and his work, this biography will be a distinct disappointment. The facts were furnished by a man who knew much more than he revealed and they were put into literary shape by another man who did not know or sense the real problem of the Negro in America."

+ Crisis 13:133 Ja '17 230w

+ Dial 61:525 D 14 '16 1250

+ Lit D 54:78 Ja 13 '17 500w

+ N Y Times 22:6 Ja 7 '17 560w

+ Outlook 115:23 Ja 3 '17 420w

SCOTT, E. J., and STOWE, L. B.—Continued
 "The writers, Mr. Emmett J. Scott, for eighteen years Dr. Washington's secretary, and Mr. Lyman Beecher Stowe, grandson of the author of 'Uncle Tom's cabin,' were personally selected by Dr. Washington himself for this particular task."

+ R of Rs 54:681 D '16 120w

"Some delightful anecdotes brighten up a book that on the whole impresses one as hastily put together, and that falls as a work of reference since it contains no index. . . . What a story it would make could we see this great African-American as he really was." M. W. Ovington

+ Survey 37:438 Ja 13 '17 350w

SCOTT, H. PERCY. New slavery. *$1 W: Briggs, Toronto 338.5

"The author senses the severe pressure that the modern consumer is feeling, due to the general rise in the costs of living. A third of his book consists of selections gleaned from current newspapers, lectures and magazines to show that the consumer's trouble is widespread—ever breeding discontent and lawlessness. It is the new slavery of the common people. A search for causes is made. The roots of the problem reach back into the reign of gigantic industrial combinations and trusts, which, in addition to controlling the commodities of living, have taken into their keeping the monetary and banking systems. In the way of solution he sees 'The new era' in which a consumer's guild is to obtain control of the situation."—Ann Am Acad

"Nothing fundamentally new is found in the book, but one appreciates the outlining of necessary organization to be carried on by the consumers in order to obtain a more effective social control." C. R.

+ Ann Am Acad 66:265 J1 '16 210w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

Hibbert J 13:904 J1 '15 30w

Spec 114:595 Ap 24 '15 50w

SCOTT, JAMES BROWN. Status of the international court of justice. (Carnegie endowment for international peace pubs.) *$1 Oxford 341.1 16-10370

"It is to reawaken interest in the project [establishment of an international court], to explain just what the work of this court would be and to make clear how far negotiations in regard to it have progressed that the present book has been written. In the appendix are added a number of long documents which make the book a valuable asset in the study of the question either at the present or at any future time."—Boston Transcript

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 180w

Ind 87:463 S 25 '16 100w

SCOTT, JOHN REED. Cab of the sleeping horse. il *$1.35 (2c) Putnam 16-20439

A tale of the Secret service in Washington with the wit and beauty of two women and the strength and ingenuity of many men pitted against one another for the recovery of a cipher letter. This letter had been left in a deserted cab guarded only by a sleeping horse. The affair is international, France, Germany, England and the United States being interested in the contents of the letter.

+ — A L A Bkl 13:126 D '16

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, Jr.

— Bookm 44:276 N '16 370w

+ — Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '16 160w

N Y Br Lib News 3:136 S '16

"The story is exciting and keys the interest to high pitch."

Springfield Republican p15 Ja 14 '17 170w

"She is far the loveliest and most fascinating secret agent in Europe; but even that fails to compensate the reader for the dullness of the story. The author has not at present attained the art of this particular genre."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p562 N 23 '16 60w

SCOTT, JONATHAN FRENCH. Patriots in the making. *$1.50 (3c) Appleton 355.7 16-24209

The book's aim is to show "what America can learn from France and Germany." The foreword says "Both these nations have employed the school to mold the mind of rising generations to a preconceived type of patriotism." This is the ideal the author would have our own country adopt, altho he would "draw the line between an education that makes for proper patriotism and one that makes for narrow nationalism." Contents: Historical sketch; French education as national self-expression; Molding the psychology of defense; The inculcation of hostility toward Germany; The teaching of loyalty to the republic; Contending forces in French education; Patriotism in German education; The lesson for America; Military training in Europe; Conclusions. There is an introduction by Myron T. Herrick. The author is instructor in history in the University of Michigan.

+ N Y Times 21:555 D 17 '16 580w

SCOTT, WELLINGTON, pseud. Seventeen years in the underworld; introd. by Lynn Harold Hough. *50c Abingdon press 364 16-7247

"'Seventeen years in the underworld' is a straightforward narrative of the opportunities society provided for making a criminal out of a promising boy of fifteen. Pool room, jail, reformatory, penitentiary, the lonesome lad and the lure of the underworld are presented without prejudice or bitterness. Wellington Scott, the name assumed for this writing, is at his best recounting the coming into his life of two real men and the place made for himself since that time."—Ind

+ Ind 86:31 Ap 3 '16 80w

"The book is particularly interesting in those parts where one is given a first hand view of the continual struggle between the keepers and the prisoners in the reform schools."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 11 '16 60w

"His characterizations of underworld morals and types, contract labor, the work of a chaplain, the life of the ex-prisoner, show clear vision and constructive social views." F. A. Manny

+ Survey 36:440 J1 22 '16 230w

SCOTT, WILLIAM AMASA. Money and banking. $2 (1½c) Holt 332 16-10857

A fifth edition, "rewritten, rearranged and enlarged." The preface says: "The present edition is a reprint of the fourth with the addition of a section to ch. 10 on the Federal reserve act and its operation and of such changes in ch. 15 and a few other chapters as the introduction to the Federal reserve system has rendered necessary. Some other changes have also been made but they are relatively unimportant." The fourth edition was published in 1910.

"While the instructor can bridge over the difficulties mentioned, the value of the book for teaching purposes would be greatly increased if it were given a thorough revision in line with the policies of recently constructed texts covering the same subject." F. T. Stockton

+ — Am Econ R 6:673 S '16 280w

A L A Bkl 13:94 N '16

Ann Am Acad 68:328 N '16 30w

SCROGGS, WILLIAM OSCAR. Filibusters and financiers; the story of William Walker and his associates. il *$2.50 (2c) Macmillan 972.8 16-8820

The word filibusters is used in this volume "to designate those adventurers who, during the decade preceding the civil war, were engaged in fitting out and conducting under private initiative armed expeditions from the United States against other nations with which this country was at peace." "The part played in Walker's career and in Central American politics by American financiers and captains of industry; the designs of Walker upon Cuba; his utter repudiation of the annexation of his conquests to the United States; the appeals of Central American governments to the leading European powers for deliverance from the filibusters; the thinly veiled machinations of Great Britain, Spain, and France against the American adventurers—these are some of the facts, hitherto overlooked or ignored, which it is here sought to set forth in their true light." (Preface)

"The author has had training in historical research and his work exhibits evidences of industrious and careful investigation." J. M. Calahan

+ Am Hist R 22:411 Ja '17 800w

+ A L A Bkl 13:27 O '16

+ Ind 87:70 Jl 10 '16 50w

"A book which appears adequately and impartially to cover a period in American history brief and recent, yet almost unknown to the present generation."

+ Lit D 52:1851 Je 24 '16 650w

+ Nation 103:282 S 21 '16 1450w

N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

N Y Times 21:307 Ag 8 '16 950w

St Louis 14:442 D '16 10w

+ Spec 117:216 Ag 19 '16 460w

"Well worth the attention of every student of American history clearing up, as it does, many obscure points."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 20 '16 770w

"The subject is, clearly, a good one. It would have made better reading if Mr. Scroggs had decided to tell his tale more in the spirit of Washington Irving or Prescott. He has unfortunately elected to be judicious, and a little lacking in human interest and local colour."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p317 Jl 6 '16 1050w

SCULLY, WILLIAM CHARLES. History of South Africa, from the earliest days to union. il $1 Longmans 968 16-6506

"Mr. Scully makes no claim for original research in the writing of his book, which is founded principally, he declares, 'upon the standard histories.' But he has massed his facts in a gratefully clear manner, and although each topic is necessarily treated briefly, the whole presents a cogency and directness which will make the book interesting to the general reader as well as valuable to the student of history."

Perhaps the most picturesque part of the book is the record of the early days of Portuguese discovery, when Prince Henry the Navigator, in his search for a sea-route to India, sent out expedition after expedition, which explored the west coast of Africa as far south as Sierra Leone. But each period has its particular interest."—Boston Transcript

"As a pioneer and magistrate the author works on a background of wide experience. Yet, in some respects, his special equipment for his task is not without its disadvantages. It leads him to take too many things for granted. Indeed, the sense of proportion is decidedly faulty. In general, Mr. Scully wields an impartial pen, though the standpoint of an administrator is manifest in his strictures on those, missionaries and others, who have idealized the natives. The book seems to be commendably free from errors; nevertheless it is misleading to speak of the war of the Spanish succession as 'the twelve years' war between Holland and France.'" A. L. Cross

+ Am Hist R 21:852 Jl '16 300w

"This little book is the first to give the story of South Africa in connected form and in a single volume."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Mr 18 '16 430w

"The author knows how to pack a considerable amount of information into a clear and readable form, and adds many interesting illustrations. He does not pretend to original research, but utilizes the results of the work of such scholars as Theal, Cory, and Leibbrandt."

+ Nation 102:sup496 My 4 '16 150w

+ R of Rs 53:637 My '16 30w

"Journalists as well as schools will owe much to the research of Mr. Scully. Not a phase in the long history of South Africa from its early exploration and discovery has been neglected."

+ Sat R 121:92 Ja 22 '16 70w

"The author puts forward charitable judgments upon nearly all the leading figures of modern history. Though he professes to write for the general reader as well as the student, his concise paragraphs make rather a dry record which is not engrossing as a connected story."

+ Spec 116:504 Ap 15 '16 160w

SCULLY, WILLIAM CHARLES. Lodges in the wilderness. il $1.35 (3c) Holt 916.8 A16-536

The scene of these South African sketches is the Great Bushmanland desert, which is just south of the Orange river. The travels described were taken, the author says, in the nineties when he was special magistrate for the northern border of the Cape Colony. The book is of interest first for its picture of the desert in her many aspects, night, dawn, noonday, in sun and in storm. But there is much too about the animal life, and a few game shooting adventures are described.

+ A L A Bkl 12:380 My '16

"Mr. Scully is, or should be, well known as a writer on South African subjects. His 'Kafir stories,' with their unflinching directness of presentation and their vivid colouring, were not likely once read, to be forgotten; and the volume before us shows something of the same quality. . . . A real record of real experience, and a very attractive book."

+ Ath 1915,2:73 Jl 31 1300w

+ Boston Transcript p9 Mr 25 '16 500w

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:25 Je 22 '16 350w

"We do not recall any volume that brings out quite so vividly the power of the desert, that mysterious attraction, the common experience of nearly all who have come under its influence, which seems to be compounded of hate, of fear, and of love. Through all the chapters, as a kind of leit-motif, runs the theme of parching heat and thirst intolerable."

+ Nation 102:363 Mr 30 '16 500w

"Mr. W. C. Scully made a number of journeys across this desert in the 'nineties,' and has now written a striking account of the country, which will be read with all the more interest since this waterless tract of land forms one of the strategical difficulties with which General Botha is now contending."

+ Spec 114:sup570 Ap 24 '15 100w

"Mr. Scully is a naturalist of ability. The chief distinction of the book, however, lies in the graphic and intimate pictures of the desert itself."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 380w

SEABURY, JOSEPH STOWE. New homes under old roofs. il $3.50 Stokes 728.6 16-11158

A book made up almost wholly of illustrations. The thirty-six double plates show examples of seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth century farm houses which have been remodeled "by those discerning people who are able to interpret the language of an old house." In each case two views are shown, one of the house as it was before remodeling, one as it stands at present. Each picture is accompanied by a brief paragraph giving something of the history of the house, and the whole is preceded by a discussion of colonial architecture.

"In his account of the periods Mr. Seabury performs a valuable service in drawing distinctions between the different styles of our early buildings."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 3 '16 880w

+ Cleveland p134 N '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:95 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:278 Jl 9 '16 70w

SEAMAN, AUGUSTA HUIELL. Sapphire signet. il $1.25 (3c) Century 16-17652

A mystery story for young people. The three girls who live in the interesting old house in

SEAMAN, AUGUSTA HUIELL—Continued

Greenwich Village have never seen their home in that light until they make friends with a girl who has always lived in a modern apartment. They have thought it just old fashioned, but Corinne Cameron, who loves old things, falls in love at once with the delightful old house. It is thru her that they are led to explore the attic where they find an old diary that opens up to them a revolutionary war mystery. Unraveling the story bit by bit proves a fascinating pursuit, and leads indirectly to a piece of good fortune for one of the girls.

"Very interesting, it will be popular for girls about twelve. Appeared in St. Nicholas."

+ A L A Bkl 13:132 D '16

"To begin with the best, regardless of age, interest, and so forth, there is a delightful book entitled 'The sapphire signet,' by Augusta Huiell Seaman, whose story of 'The boarded-up house' was one of the best of last season's juveniles." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:408 D '16 130w

+ Cleveland p162 D '16 40w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 150w

SEAMAN, SIR OWEN. War-time verses. *1s Constable & co., London 821

"It was inevitable that Sir Owen Seaman should find the war fruitful in subjects for his humorous and satiric pen. One may depend upon the English seeing a humorous situation in a painful and depressing crisis. . . . The English have been the most good-natured and prodigal in their humorous verses and pictures. They have been funny in that proud and confident spirit which cannot be beaten, and which shows, while fully conscious of the cruel and unsportsmanlike behavior of their enemy no bitterness towards him. . . . So we find in Sir Owen Seaman's 'War-time verses' all these qualities made more conspicuous by the deft and precise power he commands."—Boston Transcript

"He finds his opportunity in events, figures and situations familiar to all the world during the last year and a half. Nor does he always jest and ridicule; he turns aside to a serious revelation of his countrymen's duties, and pays a tribute where sacrifice and honor merits it." W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 22 '16 1350w

"Social fads and political foibles seldom escaped Sir Owen Seaman's attention in time of peace, and our weaknesses to-day do not escape him; but we learn now that his wit can scathe and scorch in a way for which the verses of light-hearted days had hardly prepared us."

+ Sat R 119:508 My 15 '15 750w

"No editor of Punch has ever had such opportunities, but none has been more finely equipped for turning them to the noblest account."

+ Spec 116:662 My 27 '16 120w

SEARLE, GEORGE MARY. Truth about Christian science. *$1.25 Paulist press 615.8 16-21778

"A consideration of Mrs. Eddy's religion in the light of Catholic doctrine. The author takes up section by section of 'Science and health' and makes an honest attempt to find out their meaning and then subject it to a rational discussion. He asserts that it is impossible to make out just what is meant in certain parts, so obscure and full of meaningless rhetoric is the text. Although the author writes as a Roman Catholic, many of his positions as to Christian doctrine would be accepted in the Episcopal and other orthodox churches."—Springfield Republican

+ Cath World 104:257 N '16 240w

"The author is one of the Paulist Fathers." St Louis 15:6 Ja '17 8w

"The book is free from acrimony, and shows insight and scholarly method. Its controversial tone is never obnoxious or unfair."

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 90w

SEARS, CLARA ENDICOTT, comp. Gleanings from old Shaker journals. il *$1.25 (2c) Houghton 289 16-22423

Using old Shaker journals for her source, the author has told the complete story of the United society of believers (Shakers) of Harvard, Massachusetts. She begins with the origin of the Shakers in England, tells of their coming to America in 1774 under the leadership of Mother Ann Lee, and follows them thru their various vicissitudes and persecutions down to the present time, when a few of the faithful, still holding to their old beliefs, are living in peace with a world that no longer reviles them, Fruitlands, of which Mrs. Sears has written in another book, was but two miles distant from the Shaker colony and one of the chapters in this book deals with the relations between the two communities.

"Interestingly illustrated with photographs and reproductions of some old woodcuts."

+ A L A Bkl 13:146 Ja '17

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 11 '16 570w

"Evidently the outcome of years of intimacy with the Harvard Shakers. Manuscript sources that perhaps no other writer could have had access to are made to yield an abundance of curious matter in these chapters of mingled biography and religious history."

+ Dial 61:542 D 14 '16 150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:189 D '16

+ R of Rs 55:101 Ja '17 240w

SEATON, ROY ANDREW. Concrete construction for rural communities. (Agricultural engineering ser.) il *$2 McGraw 693 16-12395

"This book is convincing evidence of the widening of the fields of application of concrete in new directions, in this case to agricultural engineering. While largely made up of simplified abstracts of data from various sources, there is included in addition to descriptions of the materials (cements and limes, with specifications and aggregates) a fairly technical consideration of plain and reinforced concrete. . . . There are presented by good illustrations and by tabular data helpful in design such subjects as side-walks, floors (barn and feeding floors), roads, tanks, cisterns and silos and small bridges and culverts."—Engin Rec

"For a brief handbook of plain directions for farmers and others see Campbell (Booklist, 13:15, O '16), which will fill the need in most small libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 13:109 D '16

+ Cleveland p153 D '16 40w

"The distinctive parts of the book, however, are contained in part 5, treating the typical applications of concrete. . . . The chapter treating the methods of casting in molds is complete and useful, and contains several practical suggestions for the solution of rural engineering problems. . . . The typography and illustrations are fully equal to the highest standards for such text books."

+ Engin Rec 73:841 Je 24 '16 190w

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 J1 '16

"Also reviewed in Canadian Engineer, July 27, 1916, p. 77; in Journal of the Western Society of Engineers, April, 1916, p. 369."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p9 Ag '16 180w

"Useful to practical workers in either rural or urban communities."

+ Pittsburgh 21:348 J1 '16 30w

+ Pratt p22 O '16 40w

SEAWELL, MOLLY ELLIOT. Betty at Fort Blizzard. il *$1.50 (3½c) Lippincott 16-22628

A sequel to "Betty's Virginia Christmas." The action of the second story takes place some years later, for it introduces Betty as the mother of a son of twenty and a daughter of seventeen. With her husband, Colonel Fortescue, Betty is stationed at an army post in the northwest. The book gives a picture of the social side of army life and follows out the love story of Betty's daughter and a young officer. It was published in the Book News Monthly in 1916 under the title "Colonel Fortescue's Betty."

"Clean and wholesome, almost without plot, totally lacking in 'punch.'"
 N Y Times 21:577 D 31 '16 170w

SEDGWICK, HENRY DWIGHT, Jr. Apology for old maids, and other essays; with a preface by Owen Wister. *$1.50 (3c) Macmillan 814 16-23424

A volume of thoughtful essays, given for the most part to a consideration of spiritual and ethical values. The first and title essay appeared in the Yale Review. The others are reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly. Their titles are: De senectute; The religion of the past; Credo quia possibile; On being ill; The house of sorrow; A forsaken god; The classics again; Literature and cosmopolitanism.

A L A Bkl 13:162 Ja '17

"Mr. Sedgwick's volume will place its author among the all too-sparse ranks of the thoughtful and scholarly essayists of the day." R. M.
 + Boston Transcript p6 D 9 '16 620w

"The graceful whimsical, or intuitive suggestion of the essay, which defies proof, belongs like poetry, to a separate field from the matter of fact seriousness of history. In this respect Mr. Sedgwick fails; his articles, while gently meditative, are too long, and not headlong enough in the right way."
 + — Springfield Republican p15 Ja 28 '17 490w

SEEGER, ALAN. Poems; with an introd. by W. Archer. *$1.25 Scribner 811 16-24961

"Alan Seeger was one of forty or more young Americans who at the beginning of the war enlisted in the Foreign legion of France. He was killed on the evening of July fourth, 1916. Only twenty-eight years old he had some years before chosen literature as his profession and this volume of nearly two hundred pages is filled with poems he had already produced. Some thirty pages of the work have been inspired by the war and these breathe pleasure in the adventure, belief in the glory, delight in the companionship of war."—Bookm

A L A Bkl 13:212 F '17

"Imaginative beauty and much nobility of expression mark all of these poems, but their viewpoint is always that of the conventionally romantic and, fine in spirit and pleasing in form although the poems are, one looks in them in vain for any glimpse of forward shining light." F. F. Kelly

+ — Bookm 44:513 Ja '17 230w

"The pure quality of the poetic temperament in Alan Seeger Mr. Archer states with conclusive discernment." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 16 '16 1550w

+ N Y Times 21:570 D 24 '16 700w

SEITZ, DON CARLOS. Training for the newspaper trade. (Lippincott's training ser.) il *$1.25 (5½c) Lippincott 070 16-20319

This volume is one of a series that aims to set forth the opportunities offered in various professions and to advise young people as to the preparation necessary. In this work on the "newspaper trade" the business manager of the New York World says that newspaper work offers to young men "an education greater than any college or university can afford; it puts them in close touch with the great affairs of the universe; it makes them broadminded and rouses an intellectual activity not inspired in any other profession or trade." He writes of: Training and opportunity; The trade; The editor; The reporter; The reader; Industrial side; Advertising; Illustrating; Circulation; The country paper.

+ A L A Bkl 13:101 D 16

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 25 '16 530w

+ Cleveland p144 D '16 70w

"The youth who contemplates a journalistic career may well read this volume, charged with the intensive personality and wide experience of its author."

+ Ind 88:331 N 20 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:172 N '16

SELLARS, ROY WOOD. Next step in democracy. *$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 335 16-10310

A study of socialism as the next step in democratic progress. It offers an effective answer to the popular criticism to the effect that the socialists themselves don't know what socialism is, for the author makes it clear that socialism is a creative movement rather than a cut-and-dried program. He finds its "ethical unity" more important than the agreement or disagreement of the articles of its creed. Socialism cannot be exactly defined but as a working definition the following is offered: "Socialism is a democratic movement whose purpose is the securing of an economic organization of society which will give the maximum possible at any one time of justice and liberty." Contents: The spirit of modern socialism; Socialism in the making; What socialism hopes to accomplish; Misconceptions of socialism; Objections to socialism; Objections and tendencies; The ethics of labor; The growth of justice; Some principles of pecuniary reward; The conditions of a social freedom; Reflections on the war; Can we universalize democracy? The author is assistant professor of philosophy in the University of Michigan.

Reviewed by J. E. LeRossignol

+ — Am Econ R 6:941 D '16 500w

"It is refreshing to read a book on democracy so penetrating, so sensible, and so constructive as this." L. L. Bernard

+ Am J Soc 22:408 N '16 620w

+ A L A Bkl 13:104 D '16

+ Ind 88:122 O 16 '16 300w

"It is by the controlled process of conscious social evolution that the race's goal is to be won. . . . Professor Sellars's book, because of just this perspective should aid greatly the cause of clear thinking on social issues by socialist, anti-socialist, and 'indifferentist' alike."

+ Lit D 53:620 S 9 '16 390w

+ — Nation 103:446 N 9 '16 580w

N Y Br Lib News 3:90 Je '16

N Y Times 21:348 S 3 '16 880w

R of Rs 54:118 Jl 16 70w

St Louis 14:387 N '16

"A moderate and even-tempered reply to current objections against socialism. The temper of Prof. Sellars's book can be unreservedly praised, though it is possible that his writing would be more effective if he had kept his argument closer to the teachings of the contemporary school of radical economists—Hobson, Chapman, etc.—and had dealt less in question-begging generalities."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 270w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p335 Jl 13 '16 90w

SELTZER, CHARLES ALDEN. Range boss. il *$1.30 (2c) McClurg 16-20105

Heroine and hero of this western story are of the standard type. Ruth Harkness is an eastern girl who comes west to take charge of the ranch her uncle has left her. Rex Randerson, the quiet, humorous and resourceful westerner, is her range boss. Randerson meets her on her arrival, rescues her from a mired buckboard, and is devotedly in love with her from that moment. Ruth, however, is engaged to Willard Masten, who comes west as a member of her party. Masten, who is a double-dyed villain, finds companions of his own calibre in Chavis and Pickett, two typical "bad men" and there is much gun play before the story comes to an end with Ruth and her range boss happy in their mutual love and understanding.

"A fairly entertaining love story, with a heavy and unconvincingly repentant villain."

+ — Ind 88:467 D 11 '16 50w

SELTZER, CHARLES ALDEN—Continued
 N Y Br Lib News 3:168 N '16

"Smacks rather too much of a certain very famous story of cowboys and the west, called 'The Virginian.' . . . Not only is the basic plot the same, but many incidents are similar. . . . However, the narrative is thrilling, interesting, and well-written, despite the fact that it suffers from the unescapable comparison."
 + — Springfield Republican p13 O 22 '16 150w

SERGEANT, ELIZABETH SHEPLEY. French perspectives. il *$1.25 (2½c) Houghton 914.4 16-21550

Sketches of French life and character written before the war and published, some of them, in Scribner's magazine, the Outlook and the New Republic. "My excuse for collecting them in war-time," says the author, "is precisely that the cross-sections of French life and character they seek to portray, the sober perspectives they would open, belong to the old France, not to the new. For I cannot see France as reborn, by a sort of miraculous conversion, from the ruins of the Variétés and the Latin Quarter. I see her rather as living through these bitter years on the strength of her ancient everyday virtues." The people of the book are real, she says later, altho only in the case of public personages have real names been used. The author is an American woman who loves France.

- + A L A Bkl 13:171 Ja '17
- + Boston Transcript p7 N 4 '16 190w
- + Dial 61:591 D 28 '16 380w
- + Ind 88:415 D 4 '16 120w
- + Nation 104:22 Ja 4 '17 230w

"I like to think that it is because Miss Sergeant is a very modern New Englander that she understands this conscientious France so well. For modern Massachusetts is just the place where puritanism is far less vigorous and repellent than anywhere else in America." R. B.
 + New Repub 9:156 D 9 '16 950w

"After all, what we in America want is—aside from the news of the day—not so much impressions of the war, but knowledge of the nations. Of such knowledge Americans as a group have deplorably little. . . . For this reason it is worthy of immediate note that the present volume is a very important book."

- + N Y Times 21:440 O 22 '16 550w

"A book in which personal impressions that have been thought out with uncommon thoroughness are presented with rare charm."

- + No Am 205:146 Ja '17 490w

St Louis 15:21 Ja '17

- + Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '16 450w

SERGEANT, PHILIP W. ed. Morphy's games of chess; being a selection of three hundred of his games, with annot. and a biographical introd. il *$2 Macmillan 794 (Eng ed A16-614)

"This handy volume contains one-third as many games again as Löwenthal's collection of 1860, and is well annotated in the light of later research. Morphy's brilliancies still give practical hints to players, and many of his finest games are expositions of the Evans gambit, which has stood the test of time and analysis as well as any."—Ath

Ath p36 Ja '16 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:44 Mr '16

St Louis 14:399 N '16

"This collection of the games of Paul Morphy will be welcome to every chess-lover. They have the great merit of being short: the analysis is lucid and never wearisome: the criticism is generous and, in the light of latter-day chess-strategy, sound."

- + Sat R 121:331 Ap 1 '16 230w

SERVICE, ROBERT WILLIAM. Rhymes of a Red cross man. *$1 Barse & Hopkins 811 16-22918

"Robert W. Service is known for a certain Kiplingesque flavour, as of free winds and wide horizons and untrammelled, divining spirit, that he has put into several volumes of Canadian verse. These 'songs from out the slaughter mill' show the qualities of lilting rhythm, vivid description, vigour of spirit, and understanding of human nature that won for him a wide audience in times of peace. It is all spirited verse and it gives many a picture of battle fields and trenches and of the inside of men's souls when they are fighting, or have lately been fighting, well worth reading."—Bookm

- + A L A Bkl 13:213 F '17

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

- + Bookm 44:512 Ja '17 230w

"Robert W. Service has been a poetic phenomenon. More or less ignored by the critics, he has won a vast following. And it seems to me time for a fellow-craftsman to protest that in this case the public is right. . . . It is not a criticism from without, but a cry from within—dignifying even 'Tipperary.' We have been inquiring for the poetry of the war. In my judgment, here it is." Witter Bynner

- + + Dial 61:531 D 14 '16 720w

N Y Br Lib News 3:181 D '16

"The wonder note echoes from cold facts as a man of experience finds them; cold facts, warm with a vibrancy that draws an alien character into the circle of brotherhood. . . . The neutral influence which crushes bitterness is an undertone of the entire collection of rhymes." N. J. and C. K. Gerbaulet

- + Poetry Review 2:28 D '16 1000w

SETON, ERNEST THOMPSON. Wild animal ways. il *$1.50 (3c) Doubleday 16-13179

There are six stories in this volume, all companion stories to those published a number of years ago as "Wild animals I have known." Again the author claims personal acquaintance with the animals of which he writes, saying, "Some of these I personally knew, some are composites, and are merely natural history in story form." Contents: Coaly-Bay, the outlaw horse; Foam, or The life and adventures of a razor-backed hog; Way-Atcha, the coon-raccoon of Kilder creek; Billy, the dog that made good; Atalapha, a winged brownie; The wild geese of Wyndygoul; Jinny, the taming of a bad monkey.

- + A L A Bkl 12:487 J1 '16

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

- + Bookm 43:546 J1 '16 250w

- + Boston Transcript p22 J1 5 '16 180w

"Thompson Seton may not teach science, but he is a master in inspiring sympathy with our furry kin and in writing healthful and charming romance."

- + Ind 86:403 Je 5 '16 50w

- + Lit D 53:756 S 23 '16 230w

- + Nation 103:159 Ag 17 '16 230w

N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

"There is wisdom as well as beauty in this volume, and the tales would hold attention unadorned by the excellent sketches."

- + N Y Times 21:254 Je 18 '16 550w

"Mr. Seton's books range all but the most perverse of human beings on the side of the animals."

- + Spec 117:345 S 23 '16 1500w

- + Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 150w

"Of their own sort they are very good. But is it the right sort? Is it the best way of telling animal stories? That is the question, and it is largely a question of taste. Here, where are we? In an atmosphere in neither sense real, scarcely quite honest, neither frankly fictitious and poetic nor severely true to fact."

- + — The Times [London] Lit Sup p411 Ag 31 '16 730w

- + Wis Lib Bull 12:273 Je '16 40w

SETON-WATSON, ROBERT WILLIAM. German, Slav, and Magyar; a study in the origins of the great war. *2s 6d Williams and Norgate, London (Eng ed 16-17139)

"The work falls into two parts. The first, on Austria-Hungary and the southern Slavs, covers familiar ground, though it brings out some details of Hungarian policy towards Croatia that are apt to be forgotten. . . . The second division of this book deals graphically with the growth and tendencies of Pan-Germanism, which, in its aggressive form, has been equally supported by Berlin and Budapest. The crushing of Bohemia is an essential part of the Pan-German programme. It is therefore a principal interest of the Allies to establish an independent Bohemia upon sure foundations."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"Mr. Wickham Steed and Dr. Seton-Watson, both of whom can speak with unrivalled authority on certain aspects of the Near Eastern question, have done excellent service in endeavouring to dispel erroneous notions. . . . It cannot be too clearly understood that the 'Drang nach Osten' has constituted the corner-stone of the foundations on which all recent German policy has been built. . . . That objective has been explained by numerous German writers long before the war commenced. Dr. Seton-Watson quotes from a pamphlet written by Herr Karl von Winterstetten, entitled 'Berlin-Bagdad: New aims of mid-European policy.' . . . Here we have a definition of the policy of Deutschland über alles, developed in its full or nearly full maturity. There are several ways of combating these sinister and ambitious projects. . . . Another highly efficacious method would be to adopt the policy advocated by Dr. Seton-Watson." [Earl of] Cromer

+ Spec 117:158 Ag 5 '16 1600w

"As sound in learning and intention as his previous works, and appeals more directly than some of them to the general reader."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p315 JI 6 '16 600w

SEWARD, FREDERICK WILLIAM. Reminiscences of a war-time statesman and diplomat, 1830-1915. il *$3.50 (3c) Putnam 16-20572

The author, the son of William H. Seward, Lincoln's secretary of state, was himself assistant secretary of state during the administrations of Lincoln, Johnson and Hayes. Something of his own share in national events at the time of the civil war has been told in his 'Life and letters of William H. Seward,' but these recollections are amplified here. The book is divided into three parts, Before the war, During the war, After the war. One of the important 'after the war' events in which Mr. Seward took part was the purchase of Alaska.

"It is well to get into our minds some of the real possibilities of the Mexican genius, as shown in Mr. Seward's pages. . . . On the negative side, one must say of these reminiscences that in comparison with many other volumes of American autobiography brought out in recent years, they bring us into personal contact with extremely few of the author's great contemporaries." W. H. Johnson

+ Dial 61:388 N 16 '16 1250w

"Seldom has the memory of one man—and that one an active participant in the scenes described—contained a greater store of historic recollections. It is history in its most interesting form told by an eye-witness and an actor in the great events."

+ Lit D 53:1337 N 18 '16 2000w

+ Nation 103:400 O 26 '16 1250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:157 O '16 10w

R of Rs 54:569 N '16 120w

"The book well written throughout is replete with interesting stories and anecdotes. It should appeal to every student of American history."

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 6 '16 980w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p581 D 7 '16 1750w

SEYMOUR, CHARLES. Diplomatic background of the war, 1870-1914. *$2 (2½c) Yale univ. press 940.91 16-8942

This study of European diplomatic relations between 1870 and 1914 attempts "to correlate in their logical sequence the most significant events of recent European history and to show how the great disaster was the inevitable result of their reactions upon each other. The author's aim is to indicate the manner in which German primacy in continental politics. . . led, in combination with the economic and moral transformation of the Empire, to Germany's new conception of the rôle she must play in world politics." (Preface) Contents: Bismarck and the Triple alliance; The Dual alliance; German world policy; economic factors; German world policy; moral factors; British foreign policy; The diplomatic revolution; The conflict of alliances; The Near Eastern question; The Balkan wars; The crisis of 1914; The diplomatic break.

"Among studies dealing with the general causes of the great war this volume is in character and execution the most scholarly one that has come to the attention of the reviewer. It is clearly the result of serious and careful study by a writer having primarily the point of view of the trained historian who has examined to advantage the sources and literature of the recent history of Europe. And there is besides what the critical reader is certain to desire and what he will vainly seek in most of the books so far written in this new field, a wealth of annotative and bibliographical information. A serviceable index is appended." E. R. Turner

+ Am Hist R 21:803 JI '16 650w

+ A L A BkI 13:76 N '16

"Prof. Charles Seymour enters a comparatively new field occupied hitherto by a few excellent general histories, such as those of Phillips, Rose, Andrews, and Hazen, and by biographies and special treatises not generally accessible."

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:760 N '16 200w

Ann Am Acad 69:289 Ja '17 180w

"This study ranks with Headlam's 'History of twelve days,' Stowell's 'Diplomacy of the war of 1914,' and Bullard's 'Diplomacy of the great war,' as one of the most scholarly historical studies which the war has produced."

+ Dial 61:30 Je 22 '16 400w

+ Ind 87:167 JI 31 '16 130w

+ Nation 103:264 S 14 '16 180w

N Y Br Lib News 3:89 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:258 JI 16 '16 70w

"Manifestly a historic study that is essentially so clear and so well proportioned as this of Professor Seymour's should lead the reader into cool and sane ways of thinking. Such is the case. The account of international struggles which is given in this book 'holds together' so well, is so intelligible and so reasonable, that it seems to exclude prejudice or bitter feeling. And there is also in the author's remarks a quality of tolerance and good sense that deserves to be especially noticed."

+ No Am 204:147 JI '16 570w

Pittsburgh 21:358 JI '16 50w

+ Pratt p40 Ja '17 40w

"The author is assistant professor of history in Yale university."

+ St Louis 15:5 Ja '17 40w

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 4 '16 750w

SEYMOUR, CHARLES. Electoral reform in England and Wales. il *$2.50 (1½c) Yale univ. press 342 15-25078

For descriptive note see Annual for 1915.

"In conjunction with Veitch's 'Genesis of parliamentary reform' (1913), and Butler's 'The passing of the great reform bill' (1914), students of English history now have in not more than three books a complete and practically continuous story of the movements for parliamentary reform; of the fortunes of the numerous reform bills from 1830 to 1884 in the House of commons; and the influence of the acts of 1832, 1867, and 1884 on the making of the political England that was in existence at the time the great European war was begun."

+ Am Hist R 21:593 Ap '16 770w

"Mr. Seymour's success with his task is so pronounced that it is easy to give at least four reasons why 'Electoral reform in England and Wales' must at once take front rank among histories of England in the nineteenth century, and in particular among histories of parliament and of parliamentary franchises. The first reason is that of the six or seven books on the electoral system, or rather on the reforms of the electoral system of 1832-84, Mr. Seymour's book is the only one that covers the acts of 1832, 1867 and 1884. A second reason is the extreme care which he has bestowed on the history of registration. A third reason is that there is in no other book anything approximating to the history of the elimination of corruption in many boroughs that is to be found in Mr. Seymour's book. A fourth reason is that it is well and clearly written. Hansards and parliamentary papers, as was inevitable, have been largely drawn upon; but Mr. Seymour has a happy faculty of summarizing; and nowhere is the book overburdened with long extracts either from speeches in parliament or from reports of parliamentary committees." E. P.

SEYMOUR, CHARLES—Continued

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:168 F '16 1450w

"Within the limits which Dr. Seymour laid down for his inquiry his book contains a thorough and able exposition of its subject. . . . All matters lying outside these limits he ruthlessly disregards. He seldom attempts any estimate of popular feeling, whether spontaneous or engineered, as manifested from time to time on the question of reform, nor does he exhibit the bearing the question had on the history of cabinets or parliamentary manoeuvres. Nor when quoting the words of statesmen does he tell his readers anything about their authors." W. Hunt

+ Eng Hist R 31:508 J1 '16 2050w

"Professor Seymour has described for us, not what the reforms were theoretically expected to accomplish, but what they did in actual practice accomplish. It was a difficult task, but one which needed much to be done. It is the essence of his method not to be concerned with theories which work their effects 'over the heads of men,' but to be concerned with the concrete situation in minute detail, with the changes that from time to time occurred in this situation, and with the immediate multiplied and conflicting influences that were everywhere actually operating. It is a method involving immense research, the labor of which Professor Seymour has in no way shirked."

+ Nation 102:258 Mr 2 '16 950w

"There is only one quarrel with Mr. Seymour. He has written a useful and deeply interesting book, but he has written it almost entirely from official sources. Hansard and Parliamentary papers give us much. His analysis of them is full and of permanent value. But Mr. Seymour knows far better than I can pretend to do that there is a valuable pamphlet and periodical literature on these questions which greatly needs revivification. What were the trade-unionists thinking during these years? What had the Chartists to say in those badly printed little journals from which the fastidious reader still shrinks in half-disgust?" H. J. L.

+ New Repub 6:193 Mr 18 '16 1250w

"Dr. Seymour's book is for the specialist; it deals with the parliamentary technic and mechanics of three signal episodes in the British drama of popular government. Historical backgrounds, antecedent causes, the drift and pressure of the social and economic milieu are not extensively treated. The scope of the book imposes upon the subject—the popular control of the machinery of representative government—a conception somewhat too technical and arbitrary perhaps to interest the general reader, however useful it be for the analytic student of British democracy."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 6 '16 730w

"The pre-eminent value of Mr. Seymour's 'Electoral reform in England and Wales' is that it traces with much clear and always interesting detail, all the reforms in the representative system since 1832 which have not only bestowed the parliamentary vote on all male householders and a small proportion of lodgers, but made it possible for democracy in the mining and industrial constituencies to get itself directly represented in Parliament." E. Porritt

+ Yale R n s 5:886 J1 '16 1050w

SHACKLETON, ROBERT. Book of Boston. Il
$2 Penn 917.44 16-22764

"The book of Boston' is an informal guide to Boston and near-lying towns of New England. The author approaches his subject lovingly, with a view to inculcating in the younger generation, and renewing in others, a respect and reverence for the best traditions of this section."—Nation

+ A L A Bkl 13:171 Ja '17

"The fact that 'The book of Boston' is published in Philadelphia, gives it its keynote. It is essentially Boston seen through the eyes of an outsider. . . . Whatever else the reader may happen to object to in 'The book of Boston,' it is certain that the author pays full tribute to the historic and literary associations and to the beauty of the old houses and the old streets on the slope of Beacon hill." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 13 '16 1550w

"The narrative is spiced by a generous supply of anecdotes, and there are a goodly number of attractive illustrations by R. L. Boyer."

+ Nation 103:519 N 30 '16 50w

+ Outlook 115:118 Ja '17 '17 40w

Pittsburgh 22:47 Ja '17 30w

+ R of Rs 55:100 Ja '17 250w

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM. Sonnets of Shakespeare from the quarto of 1609, with variorum readings and commentary; ed. by Raymond Macdonald Alden. *$6 Houghton 822.33 16-18540

"Mr. Alden's variorum edition of the sonnets appears in a thick octavo volume, bound in the brick-red cloth covers made familiar by the Furness variorum volumes, and in every detail it follows the typographical form and critical paraphernalia of that work. . . . His arrangement of his volume makes it easy to read and study and seems impossible of improvement. After his preface and other explanatory matter come facsimiles of the titlepage and dedication of the quarto edition of 1609. These are followed by nine pages of selected commentary upon the dedication, and this in turn by the sonnets themselves and their accompanying textual notes and critical matter."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 13:95 N '16

+ Ath p594 D '16 80w

"Like both Dr. Furness and his son, his excerpts from commentators ancient and modern are carefully selected, while at the same time his own commentary is keenly judicious. He interjects it only occasionally, and then with a rare exactness that invariably adds to our knowledge of the sonnets." E. F. E.

Boston Transcript p8 S 16 '16 1450w

Pittsburgh 21:481 N '16

+ R of Rs 55:212 F '17 100w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 17 '16 980w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p615 D 14 '16 40w

"Throughout, the editor appears as critic as well as compiler. His freedom from partisanship in relation to the main controversies about the sonnets makes this a comparatively safe proceeding, while the sanity which marks all of Professor Alden's work, and the results of his intensive study of the subject make his own contribution a material addition to the value of the work." W. A. Neilson

+ Yale R n s 6:438 Ja '16 550w

SHAKESPEARE'S England. 2v il *$10 Oxford 822.3 17-26075

"The one connecting purpose of this book, explains the anonymous author of its excellent preface, is 'to describe the habits of the English people during Shakespeare's lifetime.'" (The Times [London] Lit Sup) "The plan of the book was sketched as long ago as 1905 by Sir Walter Raleigh. In 1909 Sir Sidney Lee undertook its production and arranged for most of the contributions. In 1911 he was obliged to postpone working on the book, and in 1914 gave up the hope of completing it. Further editors were withdrawn by war business, but the scheme has been brought to a happy termination by Mr. C. T. Onions, who has been assisted by Sir Walter Raleigh and several other scholars. . . . The book is produced with all the care we expect from the Oxford press, and indexed in three separate sections devoted to passages cited from Shakespeare, Proper names, and Subjects and technical terms." (Sat R)

"It may be confessed by even an appreciative critic that the perpetual remembrance and ingenious use of quotations becomes at times almost wearisome, and verges on that 'damnable iteration' which even the dramatist himself deprecates." E. P. Cheyney

+ — Am Hist R 22:372 Ja '17 840w

+ Ath p368 Ag '16 1250w

"The finest tribute during this tercentenary to the memory of the dramatist. It should prove one of the most serviceable handbooks to the serious student, furnishing a vast amount of relevant information, breaking down many fallacies, such as the belief in the poet's omniscience, and helping the public to read the works with understanding and sane appreciation."

+ Ath p382 Ag '16 100w

"The things of value to be found in these two volumes are countless. And yet it would be hard to find anywhere an equal number of pages in total effect more bafflingly unsatisfactory. This is a book not to read, but to consult. Its merits, like those of almost any coöperative work, are rather encyclopædic than literary or historical. You may go to it confidently for information to think with, but you will find little help toward the processes of your thought. Its general want of system is therefore troublesome." Barrett Wendell

+ — Dial 61:453 N 30 '16 1650w

"We have little doubt that these fine volumes will be the book of the year. . . . The contributors have been chosen with discrimination; they are all real experts in their special subjects, and between them they represent a wealth of erudition which no single scholar could hope to reach. The thirty chapters extend to over 1,100 pages of text, and at the end of each is a bibliography mentioning the best sources for further information."

+ Sat R 122:153 Ag 12 '16 3650w

"This book is a splendid work of scholarly research. . . . It can be read by men, women, and children. They will find implicit in every page the assumption that Shakespeare belongs to them, and is to be understood of them."

+ Spec 117:131 J1 29 '16 2100w

"Probably the most important book of the year in any class."

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 9 '16 70w

"Its conception and general plan are Sir Walter Raleigh's, and his is the rich introductory survey of its vast subject, 'The age of Elizabeth.' The main execution of that first plan has been the work of Sir Sidney Lee. . . . Many of the rare and admirable illustrations are of his choice, though as regards actual contribution only one animating essay, on 'Bearbaiting, bull-baiting, and cockfighting' is from his pen."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p337 J1 20 '16 4750w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p355 J1 27 '16 1350w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p391 Ag 17 '16 920w

"As the preface well says, the book would have been worth writing even if Shakespeare had never lived; and some of the best chapters are those in which the writers devote themselves to aspects of Elizabethan England to which the dramatist pays little overt heed."

Tucker Brooke

+ Yale R ns 6:440 Ja '17 630w

SHARFMAN, ISAIAH LEO. Railway regulation. $2 La Salle extension univ. 385 A16-8

"Professor Sharfman's 'Railway regulation' is avowedly written as a textbook, and its subtitle, 'an analysis of the underlying problems in railway economics,' even as limited, arouses hope. Beginning with a few well-chosen paragraphs on the extent and importance of railway transportation, the author passes to a rather inadequate statement of the problem of regulation; and then takes up an extremely sketchy account of American railway development and of rate-making conditions and forces. He concludes with a description and analysis of state and federal regulation that occupies 136 of the 223 pages of text. . . . There is a useful survey of state public utility laws extending through the year 1913, and making up about 15 per cent of the book. This last contribution, however, has for some time been available to American students in an article on 'Commission regulation of public utilities,' written by Professor Sharfman for the Annals of the American Academy."—Am Econ R

"The book strikes one as being pretty mechanical in make-up and scrappy in treatment. The ill effects of the scrappy treatment appear in the inadequate discussion of valuation. . . . In the main, the book is logically sound enough, but several points should be queried. . . . One can hardly call Professor Sharfman's book an important contribution to his subject nor a satisfactory text for a general course on railway transportation. But if one wants a brief, clear survey that hits the top of most of the high points in the problem of American railway regulation, the book will have considerable utility." L. H. Haney

+ — Am Econ R 6:116 Mr '16 750w

"A well-balanced and clear statement of the problem of railway regulation in the United States and an account of the efforts which have been made both by the states and by the federal government to solve the problem. References to decisions of courts and commissions are given throughout the text, and a short but well chosen bibliography is appended." T. W. V. M.

+ Ann Am Acad 64:237 Mr '16 60w

"An admirable and concise presentation of a large subject necessarily stripped of all but the most important details. The suppression of detail has accentuated the fundamental principles and outstanding features to be observed. Naturally and inevitably the result of trying to make such a book is essentially an epitome of the larger and older treatises, like Professor Ripley's 'Railways: rates and regulations.'"

+ Engin N 75:512 Mr 16 '16 290w

"It collects the material from sources, well known enough to be sure, but not usually convenient of access to those wanting an adequate knowledge of American railway regulation. A judicial poise is maintained throughout the work."

+ J Pol Econ 24:414 Ap '16 270w

+ — Nation 103:614 D 28 '16 120w

+ Springfield Republican p15 N 26 '15 250w

SHARP, DALLAS LORE. Hills of Hingham. il $1.25 (3c) Houghton 814 16-8473

The author writes delightfully of life on fourteen acres, with a garden, a few chickens and a cow. It is a book of humor and common sense, with a practical side to it, too. "What men live by is an interesting speculative question," says the author, "but what men live on, and where they can live,—with children to bring up, and their own souls to save,—is an intensely practical question which I have been working at these fourteen years here in the hills of Hingham." The open fire, The ice crop, Seed catalogues, The dustless-duster, Spring ploughing, Mere beans, are some of the titles.

+ A L A Bkl 12:462 J1 '16

+ Bookm 43:548 J1 '16 300w

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 7 '16 260w

"Though he writes about 'spring plowing' and 'mere beans' and 'a pair of pigs,' he writes as a poet, not as a plowman." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:55 J1 15 '16 400w

"He loves hills and bees and open fires. He has a sense of words, a sense of humor and a sense of the infinite. He writes with charm and sincerity of the little things of life, and of the big things. You will read 'The hills of Hingham' twice, or even three times."

SHARP, DALLAS LORE—Continued

- + Ind 86:342 My 29 '16 70w
 - + Nation 103:15 J1 6 '16 600w
 - + N Y Times 21:234 Je 4 '16 130w
 - Pittsburgh 21:280 Je '16 40w
 - + R of Rs 53:760 Je '16 140w
 - + Springf'd Republican p13 My 28 '16 150w
- "Pleasant but not specially stimulating reading for the country lover."
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:320 J1 '16 70w

SHARP, JOHN M. Practical electric wiring. 11 *$1 Appleton 621.3 16-6025

"Decidedly a comprehensive, practical, and completely illustrated little guide to up-to-date installation, by a teacher in the Bliss electrical school. Thoroughly describes the making of joints and splices; wiring for bells, annunciators, and gas lighting; open, concealed, rigid conduit, motor, and telephone wiring; with numerous questions and useful tables."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

- + A L A Bkl 13:207 F '17

"It is very elementary in treatment yet practical, and besides dealing with construction gives the reader some idea of the regulations under which wiring must be done to pass the inspection of the underwriters. The book is not sufficiently comprehensive to be considered a practical handbook or guide for the electrician, and was evidently not so intended by the author."

- + Elec World 68:823 O 21 '16 120w
- N Y Libraries 5:173 N '16 20w
- + N Y P L New Tech Bks p10 My '16 50w
- R of Rs 54:459 O '16 60w

SHAW, ARCH WILKINSON. Approach to business problems. *$2 Harvard univ. press 658 16-20270

"The author starts by considering how a plant should be built, how production should be conducted (including the management of labor), and how demand should be created or increased for the purpose of distribution. Efficiency systems, shop management, advertising, discovery and increase of selling demand, and relations to public control are all discussed instructively. The book serves to give a birdseye view of a subject which customarily is regarded piecemeal."—N Y Times

SHAW, FRANK LESLIE. Building trades. 11 25c (1c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-8929

The relation of public school training to opportunities in the building trades is the subject of this report. Contents: Nature of building work; Number in the trades and sources of supply; Conditions of labor; Training before the boy leaves school; Training after leaving school: A summary of training recommendations. agreeable surroundings as upon spiritual exaltation."

- Pittsburgh 21:349 J1 '16 30w

SHAW, FRANK LESLIE. Printing trades. 11 25c (1½c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-8930

This volume, devoted to a consideration of printing as a vocation, has chapters on: The printing industry; The composing-room; The pressroom; The bindery; Plate-making and lithography; Training before the boy leaves school; Training for apprentices and journeymen.

- Ind 88:35 O 2 '16 70w
- Pittsburgh 21:349 J1 '16 40w

SHAW, GEORGE BERNARD. Androcles and the lion; Overruled; Pygmalion. 2d ed *$1.50 Brentano's 322 16-9158

"The book contains three plays, 'Androcles and the lion,' 'Overruled,' and 'Pygmalion,' two of which are so well known in America that little needs to be said about them now except that the inevitable preface to each is available. The preface to 'Androcles and the lion' is on 'The prospects of Christianity,' and proves, as might have been expected, that, in so far as one can gather a definite impression of Mr. Shaw's creed, his conception of Christianity is identical with his conception of Fabian socialism."—Springfield Republican

- + A L A Bkl 12:469 J1 '16
- + Ath p303 Je '16 1500w

"An estimate and analysis of the character of Christ undertaken by a brilliant and untimidated mind is always interesting; all of the writer that really matters has to be put into it. And here is the essential Shaw—the fineness, the factitiousness and the final futility of him that comes from his ineradicable belief that ratiocination can control life." J. B. Kerfoot

Cleveland p69 Je '16 170w (Reprinted from Life)

"We are sorry that a critic who has seen so much (tho far from enough) of the greatness of the Master should see so little of the greatness of the Apostle. . . . 'Overruled' is one of Shaw's farce-comedies of sex relationship, adding little to what he has often said before. 'Pygmalion,' on the other hand, is a play of importance."

- + Ind 87:200 Ag 7 '16 800w

"The second play in the book has not, so far as we know, yet been produced in America. Shaw describes it in his preface as a farcical comedy, and offers it as a model to all future writers of farcical comedy. It is clever, it sets forth Shaw's now well-known ideas in regard to the real unimportance of sex in the great scheme of life, and explains to some degree the fictitious importance that still hangs about it. This explanation in the preface goes much further."

- + N Y Times 21:217 My 21 '16 1600w
- R of Rs 53:763 Je '16 200w

"Our complaint of Mr. Shaw when he writes about religious subjects is that he appears not to have the slightest inkling of what true religion is. . . . After expressing our regret that Mr. Shaw has missed his mark, or at any rate has not aimed at the right target, we will proceed to deal in detail with the preface to a play which is quite admirable from the dramatic point of view."

- + Spec 117:180 Ag 12 '16 3100w
- Springf'd Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 1450w

"The originality and the value of the preface lie in this—that Mr. Shaw does not, like many Christians, despair of the application of Christianity to politics. He says that Christianity can have no reality, that it cannot be believed in, until it is applied to politics; that the Christian problem is to apply it to politics, since without such application men cannot even begin to be Christians."

- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p259 Je 1 '16 2200w
- Wis Lib Bull 12:408 N '16 80w

SHELDON, CHARLES MONROE. Of one blood. *$1.25 (2c) Small 16-14564

A stimulating tale, particularly for the younger generation, whose theme is universal brotherhood and whose contention is that race prejudice—one of the most cruel and senseless prejudices of mankind—is largely the result of the persistent ignorance of centuries. The principal action takes place in a college in the middle west and the curtain rises upon an oratorical contest in full swing. At the close the judges give the first prize to a negro, the second to a highlander from the Tennessee mountains and the third to a Jew. Indignation sweeps over the campus, subsides, but leaves in its wake the inspiration to form the Cosmopolitan club which includes a student from almost every nationality of the globe. Their slogan is "Above all nations is humanity." And what is more they live up to it in the face of bitter opposition and show the mercifulness of its truth.

"It is earnest, eloquent, persuasive and reasonable, but as prejudice is unreason the story may not reach those who need it most. 'Of one blood' should influence all fair-minded young men."

+ Ind 87:70 J1 10 '16 50w

"His attempts to illustrate and amplify his points are too apparent, making the results labored and unreal, and yet he manages to voice many weighty arguments against race-prejudice and in favor of brotherly toleration. The one love-story incorporated into the uplift-element is incredibly instantaneous, as is also the efficacy of prayer in the tragic and dramatic episodes of the plot, but it is all a part of Mr. Sheldon's scheme for preaching on the text of 'Brotherhood,' and contains some good thoughts and helpful suggestions."

+ — Lit D 52:1712 Je 10 '16 210w

"It is safe to predict that 'Of one blood' will enjoy nothing like the popularity of 'In his steps,' simply because we no longer like to take our sentiment 'straight.' We prefer to have the flavor of it half concealed by that of irony or some sort of disillusion. And Mr. Sheldon's sentiment is incapable of any such sophistication. . . . On the whole the book is a rather interesting survival, a sort of literary curiosity."

+ — Nation 103:133 Ag 10 '16 400w

"His characters are all mere puppets and the construction a jumbling together of incidents. But he knows how to strike the note of elemental human feeling. Coming as it does when so many people are sick with the horrors of war and of international hatreds, the book, with its earnest plea for the laying down of such hatreds and for the better appreciation of human worth wherever found, has especial timeliness. It will make a strong appeal to young men."

+ — N Y Times 21:246 Je 18 '16 330w

"Wholesome, though somewhat colorless in places. The author's point of view has widened much since his earlier books."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 My 15 '16 70w

SHELLEY, PERCY BYSSHE. Letters; containing material never before collected; ed. by Roger Ingpen. 2v ea *$1.75 Macmillan (Eng ed 16-12064)

"As Professor Dowden's life of Shelley stands pre-eminent among the biographies of the poet, so Roger Ingpen's collection of his letters is unrivaled in its domain. It contains about 480 of Shelley's letters, or more than three times as many as had appeared in any previous collection. First published in 1909, and reissued with some additions two years later, it is now made accessible to a larger public at a moderate price by being published in Bohn's standard library. In a brief supplementary preface Mr. Ingpen remarks that he has taken this opportunity to make a few minor additions and corrections." — N Y Times

"Mr. Ingpen's long labors have made these volumes much more than a collection of letters. The numerous notes and appendices, with the excellent biographical sketches of all of Shelley's correspondents, help to make the work as complete as it is invaluable."

+ N Y Times 21:1 Ja 2 '16 1000w

SHEPARD, EDWARD VALENTINE. Expert auction. *$1.25 (2c) Harper 795 16-15351

"A clear exposition of the game as actually played by experts with numerous suggestions for improvement." (Subtitle) Contents: Expert auction; Valuing hands; The basis of sound bidding; Attacking hands; Light no-trumpers; Bidding vocabulary; Informative bids; Supporting bids; Opening attacking bids; Forced bids; Changing partner's call; Secondary bids; Compensated suits, etc. By permission of the Whist club, New York, there are reprinted here the Laws of auction together with the Etiquette of the game.

N Y Br Lib News 3:143 S '16 20w

+ N Y Times 21:343 S 3 '16 50w

SHEPARD, ODELL. Shakespeare questions; an outline for the study of the leading plays. (Riverside literature ser.) *50c Houghton 822.3 16-12267

Questions on eighteen of Shakespeare's plays; the selections made equally among the comedies, tragedies and historical plays. Desiring to stimulate the student to do his own thinking, little criticism or information is offered. The analytical method is encouraged by the questions the character of which stimulates independent thinking. The student is constantly forced back to the text of the play which alone contains the answer to his questions.

+ Nation 103:357 O 12 '16 60w

N Y Br Lib News 3:88 Je '16

"The questions should lead high-school classes to a close and interested scrutiny of the text, since the author has realized the keen interest of such students in debatable propositions."

+ School R 24:494 Je '16 60w

SHERBOW, BENJAMIN. Making type work. il *$1.25 Century 655.2 16-15048

A handbook for the advertising man, publisher and practical printer which deals with "those details of type arrangement that help advertising to do its job." The material is arranged in three main divisions: (1) Advertising print must command attention; (2) Advertising print must get itself read; (3) Advertising print must get itself understood. How to accomplish these ends is set forth in text and illustration.

+ A L A Bkl 13:109 D '16

"The book is unusual and is doubtless the only book of its kind. It is amply illustrated at every point."

+ Boston Transcript p7 J1 15 '16 180w

Cleveland p152 D '16 20w

+ N Y Times 21:333 Ag 27 '16 60w

"This book admirably supplements Parsons' pioneer work 'Art in advertising.'"

+ School Arts Magazine 16:89 O '16 90w

SHERMAN, CHARLES. Only relatives invited; a social and a socialistic satire. *$1.25 (2½c) Bobbs 16-6758

Miss Appleby, foreseeing the end of her long life, knows that the time has come to dispose of her forty millions. That she may make a wise choice of an heir she invites all her relatives to her house and they appear, all of them down to the fourth divorced wife or husband. But Miss Appleby does not approve of divorce and since there is no one among the many relatives assembled who has not had some association with the divorce court, decides to leave her fortune to one of the servants. Reuben Reubenstein, the socialistic fourth assistant gardener, when he learns that the choice has fallen on him, of course ceases at once to be a socialist.

Boston Transcript p4 My 17 '16 220w

"A story which is rich in satire, cleverly analytical, and deliciously funny."

+ Lit D 52:1464 My 20 '16 190w

— + N Y Times 21:177 Ap 23 '16 250w

SHERILL, CHARLES HITCHCOCK. Modernizing the Monroe doctrine; with an introd. by N: Murray Butler. *$1.25 (2½c) Houghton 327.7 16-6666

The author, a former United States minister to Argentina, is now chairman of the committee on foreign relations of the Chamber of commerce of the United States. He believes in Pan-Americanism and believes that in the A. B. C. mediation a foundation was laid on which lasting peace in the western hemisphere may be founded. Pan-Americanism is "at the same time the most altruistic and the most practical foreign policy to which any country has ever devoted itself." There are chapters on: What is South America like? South American markets: commerce as an international peacemaker; Chambers of commerce: their opportunity for patriotic service internationally as well as nationally; The South American point of view: is it worth considering? The Monroe doctrine and the Canning myth; The Monroe doctrine and its misinterpretation abroad; A Pan-American triangle for peace, etc.

SHERRILL, CHARLES HITCHCOCK—Cont.

+ — A L A Bkl 13:12 O '16

"It is novel and radical in some of its proposals, but the two fundamental ideas running through the work—adherence to the Monroe doctrine, modernized by cooperation with the South American republics, and a vigorous Pan-American policy—command attention." K. F. G.

+ Ann Am Acad 68:333 N '16 260w

"Mr. Sherrill has a passion for 'tidying up' on a great scale; but of internationalism or of the deeper principles of government he has not even a glimmering. . . . It is not the proposals, but the limitations, of this book which give it its interest."

— Ath p525 N '16 1150w.

"His arguments in favor of the cultivation of the Pan-American spirit are irrefutable; although in his enthusiasm he occasionally ventures assertions of somewhat extravagant character. The most noteworthy feature of his book is, however, not the appeal for Pan-American cooperation, but certain novel and even radical proposals concerning the mode of attainment of peace and comity in the western world. . . . At this point the scheme as outlined by Mr. Sherrill becomes dubious, if not fantastic and, in the reviewer's opinion, quite breaks down."

F: A. Ogg

+ — Dial 60:551 Je 8 '16 530w

"When a writer of experience presents to his readers a broad constructive policy, which is at the same time tenable, he is heard with more than ordinary interest. . . . The presentation of the subject-matter is interesting and the style easy; the book, however, gives the impression of having been hastily written, and would be improved by a revision."

+ J Pol Econ 24:823 O '16 700w

"The author gives us some interesting examples of the ignorance of some of our large manufacturers concerning Argentina. In the matter of proper and adequate representation Mr. Sherrill discusses ways and means for the manufacturer who is unwilling or unable alone to go to the expense of sending an agent to develop his trade in this new field."

+ N Y Times 21:133 Ap 9 '16 1400w

"In this book there is real knowledge, idealism, vigorous, suggestive thought. As a discussion of the foreign policy of the United States, the treatise, however, is too slight to be convincing. On the whole, the author fails to give such a definition of Pan-Americanism as will satisfy skeptics that this policy is necessary, safe and practicable."

+ — No Am 203:926 Je '16 800w

"Very informal, concrete rather than abstract—the notes of a diplomat and statesman, rather than the treatise of a scholarly student. . . . The frankness with which he discusses many current issues gives a timely and readable quality to a book that is only too brief in view of its wisdom and its worth."

+ R of Rs 53:627 My '16 250w

"A delightful, naive fantasy, which surprises the reader into smiles as though he were reading a fairy story. . . . Mr. Sherrill himself glows with altruism; but without irony, he does give a most satisfactory and interesting account of the better understanding between the United States and the southern Americas, for whose civilisation and peoples he has enthusiastic admiration."

— + Sat R 122:371 O 14 '16 400w

"Perhaps the best answer to Mr. Sherrill's suggestions is conveyed in the words of his countryman, Professor Usher, who says that 'the traditional policy of the United States has been to insist upon privileges from European powers without an apparent appreciation of the effort requisite to secure their concession.' Mr. Sherrill also appears to be under a complete delusion as to the views generally entertained by Englishmen in respect to the attitude adopted by the United States government during the war." [Earl of] Cromer

— Spec 117:316 S 16 '16 920w

"It is marred by fantastic proposals. The author is certainly a dreamer."

— Springfield Republican p19 Ap 14 '16 380w
The Times [London] Lit Sup p335 JI 13 '16 70w

"Mr. Sherrill, in his patriotic desire to undermine the traditional friendship between Great Britain and the Latin-American republics, has devoted a whole chapter to the explosion of what he calls the 'Canning myth.' . . . Mr. Sherrill sees in this attitude a readiness 'to allow European colonization later on to rob them (the Latin republics) of their hard-earned sovereignty.' A more preposterous perversion of the truth could hardly be conceived."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p361 Ag 3 '16 3600w

SHERWOOD, MARGARET POLLOCK, Worn
doorstep. *$1.25 (3½c) Little 16-19420

An American woman whose English lover has been killed in the early days of the war takes a house in a country village. Here she busies herself with the little duties of a householder, opens her door to Belgian refugees and others in need of her ministrations, and in helping others schools herself to carry her own sorrow. The story is told in the form of letters addressed to the dead lover, who still lives for her in spirit.

+ A L A Bkl 13:126 D '16

"The war has inspired much, but nothing else, I think, of just this quality. It is so simple, so appealing, so awake to every force of the present tragedy, yet so imbued with a deeper sense of eternal things transcending the present, that it arouses an answering sympathy in the reader."

D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 7 '16 1100w

+ Ind 88:165 O 23 '16 30w

+ Nation 103:610 D 28 '16 140w

"One of the most appealing and tenderest of stories that the great war has inspired. . . . The author has the remarkable ability of drawing her characters so well that they live in every page. It must also be mentioned that her frequent observations on English national life and character, and on the war, would do credit to a real student of history and politics." M. G. S.

+ N Y Call p14 N 26 '16 430w

"One of those rare, satisfying books which are really and thoroughly worth while."

+ N Y Times 21:449 O 22 '16 730w

"A work of art by a writer whose sensitive conscience is matched by her skill."

+ Outlook 114:570 N 8 '16 150w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 70w

SHORT stories from Life. *$1.25 (2c) Double-day 16-17415

In 1915 Life offered prizes for stories under 1500 words in length. The contest was planned to answer the question: How short can a short story be and still be a short story? Eighty-one of the stories submitted, including the prize winners, are reprinted in this book with an introduction by Thomas L. Masson. "In their final selection of these stories," says Mr. Masson, "the readers and judges were governed, not so much by the question 'Is this superfine literary art?' as they were by the question 'Is this interesting?'"

"They are not so unusual as one might hope."

+ — A L A Bkl 13:125 D '16

Reviewed by E: E. Hale

Dial 61:586 D 28 '16 860w

Lit D 53:1039 O 21 '16 190w

N Y Times 21:363 S 17 '16 630w

Springfield Republic p13 N 5 '16 420w

SHOWERMAN, GRANT. Country chronicle. 1l
*$1.50 (2c) Century 16-22047

A Wisconsin neighborhood of some thirty years ago is the scene of this country chronicle. Country school, country dances, temperance meetings, sugaring-off, haying, and harvest and other activities that make up a year are described as they appeared to a little boy of ten. His father, his mother, his big brother, aunts and uncles, and neighbors, all early settlers who have come from New Hampshire and York state, together with Teacher and the boys and girls of the school are the characters who live in the pages of the book. Both a child's world and a social period are pictured.

"A few of the sketches appeared in the Century."

+ A L A Bkl 13:127 D '16

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:394 D '16 470w

+ Dial 61:480 N 30 '16 180w

+ Ind 88:466 D 11 '16 70w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 103:507 N 30 '16 110w

"To borrow a term from the game of marbles, Mr. Showerman's small boy is a 'real.'" H. McA.

+ New Repub 9:sup10 N 18 '16 570w

"Before you have finished the book you know the characters intimately, and you are glad to know them. There is something sound and happy in the atmosphere of the story. You want to stay in it. The drawings made for the book by George Wright have a decided charm of their own and are true interpretations of the text."

+ N Y Times 21:480 N 12 '16 1050w

"They present faithfully the various types of the community, the social life, the events of farm-work, school experiences, etc., and will interest older readers who wish to relive similar experiences. Readers who have known only city life would not care for them."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 60w

SIDGWICK, ETHEL. Accolade. *$1.35 (1½c)
Small A16-766

This novel belongs to the group that already includes "A lady of leisure" and "Duke Jones." In it Miss Sidgwick continues her study of the Ingestre family, devoting herself this time to the main branch and to young John Ingestre, the heir. Young John inherits a love for the stage and a talent for acting from his grandmother. Cut short in a career in which he might have found scope for his abilities and an outlet for his tempestuous humors and forced into an uncongenial marriage, he is, at the opening of this story, ready for an outbreak. It comes in his love for beautiful Helena Falkland, much younger than he, but congenial and sympathetic to his moods as his perfectly balanced Ursula could never be. In her handling of the forces that restrain him, the author exercises her characteristically delicate skill.

A L A Bkl 12:341 Ap '16

"The accolade' gives us Miss Ethel Sidgwick at her very best; and the season that can furnish tired readers and reviewers with even one such book as this latest of hers, is already forgiven its trespasses." Wilson Follett

+ Atlan 118:498 O '16 520w

"It is all very English, of course. You feel the family as a personality maintaining itself, if necessary, at the expense of its members. . . . What I feel is to be really deplored is the fastidious and involved style in which Miss Sidgwick as usual, wraps and obscures her very human story." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:201 Ap '16 550w

"As Henry James followed his master Turgeneff, so Ethel Sidgwick has followed her master Henry James. I have said before, but with emphasis upon different grounds, that she is the sole heir of the dying master at Rye. In her as in Henry James, culture flowers, but it flowers on the stalk of living men and women. She is a great artist who feels for her subject a 'quality of chastity,' and whose sense of appropriateness is as fixed as if it were a moral obligation. These qualities surprised one in her previous novels; they surprise no longer because they are now common to her genius, but they increasingly convince the reader by the broadening and deepening effects that are produced that Miss Sidgwick is one of the supreme English novelists of today. . . . The artistic triumph of 'The accolade' is an honor to English fiction. Not only in John Ingestre does Miss Sidgwick triumph, but in every character in the story. It is a fine achievement." W. S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p6 F 19 '16 1900w

+ Cleveland p34 Ap '16 130w

+ Dial 60:336 Mr 30 '16 1100w

"Here is a story in which we seem to be looking at characters through the wrong end of the glass. They are indistinct and far away. It is a book of interesting episodes, but one in which there is a bewildering multiplicity of threads, distracting one from the main theme of the story."

+ Lit D 52:723 Mr 18 '16 230w

"It is a theme, clearly, which requires, as it receives, subtle handling: what we are surmising is that such handling has been hampered as much as aided by Miss Sidgwick's self-conscious subtlety of manner."

+ Nation 102:256 Mr 2 '16 530w

+ N Y Times 21:70 F 27 '16 550w

+ N Y Times 21:504 N 26 '16 140w

Reviewed by Doris Webb

+ Pub W 89:648 F 19 '16 450w

+ R of Rs 53:378 Mr '16 30w

"It is difficult to say whether a new acquaintance would be able to read the latest story with interest and understanding; to those of us who have long known and loved the family it comes as a renewal of old friendships. The book is long, possibly too long, and filled in every chapter with fresh figures, but Miss Sidgwick's power of vivid characterization seems unlimited and untouched by any danger of caricature."

+ Spec 116:324 Mr 4 '16 170w

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 20 '16 1650w

SIDGWICK, ETHEL. Hatchways. *$1.40 (1½c)
Small 16-22896

A new group of men and women is presented in this novel by Ethel Sidgwick. As in her subtle studies of the Ingestre family, the author is concerned with the reactions of temperament. The Duchess of Wickford and her two sons are the center of the plot, but it is about Ernestine Redgate that the story revolves; for she holds all the threads in her hands, and with infinite tact and wisdom wards off disaster. With the exception of the hunt for the escaped circus tiger, there is little action in the book, yet it is full of tense moments, not the least of them the meeting between Lord Iveagh, the duchess's second son, and Lise Kiplingstone, the beautiful girl he loves so passionately and hopelessly. It is this delicate situation in which Ernestine, the mistress of Hatchways, is called on to display her understanding of human emotions.

+ A L A Bkl 13:178 Ja '17

"Hatchways,' though it is obviously by no one but Miss Sidgwick, lacks the structural power that assembles representative ideas and the immediate imagination that makes them intelligible. Miss Sidgwick's method and her people are always subtle; here they are too subtle. . . . But subtle or not she is always worth reading, and here, though there are no figures like Violet Ashwin and John Ingestre, there is yet much to interest and charm." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:535 D 14 '16 810w

"But 'Hatchways' lacks the vigor of thrilling event and powerful theme. We cannot build skyscrapers with shingles."

+ Ind 89:72 Ja 8 '17 90w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 103:508 N 30 '16 250w

SIDGWICK, ETHEL—Continued

"Here and there the book is more than a little obscure; but it has distinction, a certain charm and unusualness which make it arresting."

+ — N Y Times 21:530 D 3 '16 600w

"This, I suppose, is as near as one can come to explaining Ethel Sidgwick's hold on her reader. She succeeds so marvelously in assuming an intimacy on his part with her characters. She does not create characters before his eyes. She does not introduce characters to him. She admits him into an inner circle where he is allowed to watch developments for himself."

M. K. Reely

+ Pub W 90:1412 O 21 '16 470w

"The story shows. . . a very distinct loss of artistry. . . . We have not found an appeal in any of the characters."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p638 D 28 '16 150w

SIEPERT, ALBERT F. Bird houses boys can build. il pa 50c Manual arts press 598.2 16-10778

"An illustrated pamphlet of 60 pages, giving not only working drawings but halftones of completed houses, etc., and pictures of the common domestic wild birds, so to speak, with much helpful information."—School Arts Magazine

+ A L A Bkl 12:462 J1 '16
Pratt p26 Ja '17

"The best reference book in this field."

+ School Arts Magazine 16:45 S '16 40w

SIMONDS, FRANK HERBERT. They shall not pass. map *$1 (4c) Doubleday 940.91 16-12561

Five articles reprinted from the New York Tribune descriptive of the French stand at Verdun. In one of the chapters Verdun is compared to Gettysburg. Gettysburg marked the "high-tide" of the confederacy; Verdun, the author believes, marks the same point for Germany, and the victory at Verdun has had the same moral effect on France, that Gettysburg had on the disheartened North in the civil war.

+ A L A Bkl 12:474 J1 '16
+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 7 '16 620w
+ Ind 87:280 Ag 21 '16 120w

"The literary charm that was one of the traits of 'The great war' reappears in the author's little epic of Verdun, but naturally a more personal and poignant note characterizes the new volume. . . . What struck Mr. Simonds most forcibly, more even than did the indomitable spirit of the French, was the unusual hatred of war, as war, which had been engendered by the cataclysm. No pen or voice, he cries, can express the horror, that those men, that all Frenchmen, have of this war, of all war."

+ Lit D 53:751 S 23 '16 400w

Reviewed by Harold Stearns

+ New Repub 9:sup24 N 18 '16 100w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16 10w

+ N Y Times 21:275 J1 9 '16 320w

Pittsburgh 21:358 J1 '16 20w

+ R of Rs 54:116 J1 '16 50w

+ Springfield Republican p6 J1 3 '16 250w

SIMPSON, JAMES YOUNG. Self-discovery of Russia. il *$2 (4c) Doran 914.7 (Eng ed 16-20578)

This volume by a professor of natural science in New College, Edinburgh, consists of seven essays, a prelude, two interludes and a postlude. The essays, two of which were printed in part in the Contemporary Review and the Hibbert Journal are: Through union to victory; Some economic problems; The prohibition of vodka; On the Galician front; The future of Poland; Religion in Russia to-day; Russia and Constantinople. The first is a discussion of what the war has done toward the unification of Russia. The two interludes, By little mother Volga and Great elms, are descriptive.

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 9 '16 1000w

+ Ind 88:205 O 30 '16 170w

N Y Br Lib News 3:158 O '16 30w

"The author is not quite so happy in his chapter on 'Religion in Russia today.'"

+ N Y Times 21:433 D 15 '16 780w

"The literature tending to enlighten and clarify British public opinion about Russia, to clear away misconceptions, and to bring home to us what she has done and is doing grows apace. Of pre-war books none is more illuminating than Mr. Harold Williams's 'Russia of the Russians,' while of those published since August, 1914, none is more sympathetic, helpful, and reassuring than Professor Simpson's studies of 'some aspects of the self-discovery of Russia,' as these were visible in the summer of 1915."

+ Spec 116:551 Ap 29 '16 2650w

"The greatest by-product of the war up to the present is the Russian ban on vodka. . . . More comment and information than has yet been available on the matter is contained in Prof. J. Y. Simpson's 'The self-discovery of Russia.'"

+ Springfield Republican p6 S 11 '16 400w

"Everywhere, indeed, in Mr. Simpson's book there is much that is thoughtful and good. Unhappily, the arrangement of the chapters of 'Themes,' as the author chooses to call them, is somewhat arbitrary, in spite of his resort to such mechanical devices as 'Preludes,' 'Interludes,' and 'Postludes.' There are many aspects of Russian religious life upon which we would gladly hear him again."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p206 My 4 '16 1400w

SINCLAIR, BERTRAND WILLIAM. Big timber; a story of the Northwest. il *$1.35 (2c) Little 16-16258

When her father's business failure and death leave her alone and helpless, Stella Benton goes to make her home with her one living relative, a brother in British Columbia. She has led a life of ease and comfort and the change to the rough ways of a logging camp is a hard one at best, but when a drunken cook takes sudden leave and she finds herself expected to step into the breach she is put to the real test. She proves equal to it, but the drudgery of the task combined with her brother's lack of appreciation of her position drive her to take another step. She marries Jack Fyfe, a neighboring lumberman, and the tale thereafter is concerned with the story of their marriage and with the events which shape it for success in spite of its precarious beginning.

"He deals with big emotions in a manner too superficial and too wordy."

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 2 '16 150w

+ Nation 103:399 O 26 '16 490w

"The picture of life and the people in the logging camps, in the few homes along the lake shore and in the little town which forms the connecting link with the far-away world is very realistic. Mr. Sinclair seems to know the 'big timber' and the men who conquer it quite thoroughly and to have much respect for both."

+ N Y Times 21:322 Ag 20 '16 420w

"Rather better than the majority of tales of the kind. . . . The author is very successful in depicting the physical elements of the scene. With the personal element he is less convincing."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 300w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 30w

SINCLAIR, MAY. Belfry (Eng title, Tasker Jevons). *$1.35 (1½c) Macmillan 16-2958

Miss Sinclair's own brief but intense experience in Belgium in 1914 colors the last chapters of this new novel. In the days when she had first begun to feel the fascination of the young cockney, Tasker Jevons, then at the beginning of his fame as a writer, Viola Thesiger had followed him to Bruges, determined to gratify at the expense of conventions thir innocent wish to see the Belfry together. It is much later, for this is in 1905, after she has defied her family in marrying him, after she has endured his little cockney mannerisms till they have brought her to the breaking point, after a world catastrophe has come to overwhelm their petty little interests, that she follows him to Belgium again. He goes out with an ambulance corps, and, while confessing himself a coward, performs, all in a frenzied three weeks, deeds of valor that win for him what he has been in danger of losing, his wife's devotion, and what he has never before had, the whole hearted respect and friendship of her family.

+ A L A Bkl 12:342 Ap '16

"Even so fine a craftsman as Miss May Sinclair is guilty of leaving a theme derelict in order to bring her plot into port." Wilson Follett

+ — Atlant 118:500 O '16 300w

"From the moment when the European war breaks out, or breaks in, all is wild romance. Here is a climax which ruins the integrity of the whole book." H. W. Boynton

+ — Bookm 43:199 Ap '16 680w

"The story as a whole is rich in its portrayal of the effects of temperament upon temperament, and especially of the reaction of Jevons' peculiarities upon Viola after several years of marriage. It is primarily a realistic story told in the romantic manner, a story of events as they are measured by and sway the minds of men and women. It is, moreover, a fascinatingly interesting story. It is better in scheme and motive and characterization even than 'The combined maze.' It touches the heights of Miss Sinclair's skill, and it indicates in her still higher powers." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p6 F 12 '16 1300w

+ Cath World 103:399 Je '16 470w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 60:280 Mr 16 '16 1500w

"Two-thirds of the book is given to making us acquainted with a group of characters, so unusual, so individualized and so interesting, that we follow them into the war zone with the breathless anxiety of relatives or, at least, of lifelong friends."

+ Ind 85:393 Mr 13 '16 240w

+ Lit D 52:723 Mr 18 '16 280w

"Viola has not shrunk from him as a coward; she has shrunk from him as a person of impossible manners—and it is that person with whom, on the strength of his bravery in Flanders, she is now supposed to live happy ever after. Such a huddling up of matters, so deliberate a dodging of the real point at issue, could but seriously compromise the integrity of the story, brilliant as it is."

+ — Nation 102:359 Mr 30 '16 470w

"Rewarding as Miss Sinclair's past performances have been, 'The belfry' has an unusual quality. Crisp, sure, incisive, it shows full command of a drama and it has a full drama for command. A word like hysteria is a dangerous word, but there have been novels of Miss Sinclair's in which her nervous energy was certainly all too nervous. Here there is a firmness of touch and tone. She has an exacting subject. She manages it with a surprising and delightful verve." F. H.

+ New Repub 6:134 Mr 4 '16 1300w

+ N Y Times 21:57 F 20 '16 1000w

+ N Y Times 21:502 N 26 '16 70w

"The best part of this thoroughly fine story is the honesty with which Viola's problems after her marriage are set forth. Whatever 1916 may bring forth 'The belfry' will be one of its big books." Doris Webb

+ Pub W 89:643 F 19 '16 750w

+ R of Rs 53:505 Ap '16 30w

"Miss Sinclair has given us a brilliantly written and extremely interesting book with a new type of hero, for whom, if we cannot love him, we come in the long run to entertain a feeling of intermittent affection."

+ Spec 116:504 Ap 15 '16 1200w

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 20 '16 850w

+ The Times [London] LIt Sup p82 F 17 '16 620w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:186 Ap '16 80w

SINGMASTER, ELSIE (MRS. HAROLD LEWARS). Emmeline. il $1 (6c) Houghton 16-5189

When soldiers begin to appear on the streets of Gettysburg, Emmeline is sent for safety out to her grandfather's farm, beyond Seminary ridge. Emmeline is fifteen years old and an intense patriot, and it is much against her will that she is forced away from home just as things are beginning to happen. But she finds that she has run straight into the things that are happening. Her grandfather's house is deserted when she reaches it. She stays there alone while, as it seems to her, all the soldiers of the world come trooping down the Emmetsburg road, and the soldiers who surround and take possession of her grandfather's house wear gray! Here for three days, while she bakes and cooks and carries water and acts as nurse to the wounded, Emmeline sees the enemy of her country in a new light and learns that war is not all made up of glory and the waving of flags. The story appeared in the Youth's Companion.

"Can be obtained in reinforced binding at same price with no discount."

+ A L A Bkl 12:390 My '16

"Many a scientific description of the battle of Gettysburg has been written which does not recreate, as vividly as does this little story, a portion of those events which made immortal the drowsy Pennsylvania village. Miss Singmaster has written no story more exquisitely wrought, more poignantly touching than this."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 8 '16 370w

"It is a prettily told tale of the sort that is written by a generation to whom the grimness of hostility is known only through tradition."

+ Nation 102:387 Ap 6 '16 130w

+ N Y Times 21:179 Ap 23 '16 270w

R of Rs 53:505 Ap '16 100w

SIRÉN, OSVALD. Leonardo da Vinci, the artist and the man; rev. with the aid of W. Rankin and others. il $6 (6c) Yale univ. press 16-3627

A work translated, with revisions, from the Swedish. The author says: "This book is more than a translation of my Swedish book on the same subject published in 1911. The material has been rearranged and some portions have been added, while others have been left out. It has seemed best to omit some purely historical parts and extracts from Leonardo's 'Treatise on painting,' while greater emphasis has been laid upon aesthetic analysis." The volume has over 200 illustrations, showing not only Leonardo's drawings and completed works, but also the work of his contemporaries and imitators. The work closes with A sketch of Leonardo's personality, character and views of life.

"The best and only work of its kind that seems fully to appreciate the soul of the great master."

+ A L A Bkl 12:371 My '16

"Many books have lately been written about Leonardo da Vinci. We have met no book more thorough and penetrating than this solid work. It is profusely and most carefully illustrated. We have almost every touch of his pencil studied with minuteness and understanding, and with undoubted critical power." J. E. C.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 24 '16 1450w

Cleveland p75 Je '16 50w

"The Yale university press has done well to employ the income of the Scheffel foundation in making Dr. Sirén's life of Leonardo accessible to English readers. Dr. Sirén has the historic sense which distinguished Müntz, so far the most popular biographer of Leonardo, and much firmer critical grasp. In philosophic and discursive criticism he has not the penetration of a Gabriel Séailles. In fact, he sets himself a quite different task. What he does more successfully than any previous writer on Leonardo is to suggest his artistic surroundings."

+ Nation 102:717 Je 29 '16 770w

Pittsburgh 21:408 O '16 10w

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 16 '16 1200w

SIRÉN, OSVALD—Continued

"Its compeers among the recent literature of Leonardo are the elaborate monograph recently translated from the Norwegian of Dr. Jens This, which dealt only with the first Florentine period of the artist's life, and the study by Von Seidlitz, which aimed at treating all sides of Leonardo's work succinctly with wealth of salient detail. By concentration upon the artistic work Dr. Sirén has been able to obtain a richer effect of completeness, a more searching analysis, and a resultant closer degree of insight into the artist's conceptions."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p260 Je 1 '16 2050w

"Aside from the general excellence of Dr. Sirén's work, the author has treated his subject matter from two points of view never properly emphasized by his predecessors. In the first place, he has acted on the oft-stated principle that Leonardo as an artist can better be appreciated by his drawings. . . . In the second place, the author has consistently shown the steps in the history of Florentine painting which led up to Leonardo's several compositions, and the effect which these compositions had on the later art of Europe." G. H. Edgell

+ Yale R n s 6:442 Ja '17 1050w

SITTERLY, CHARLES FREMONT. Jerusalem to Rome. il *$1.50 Abingdon press 226

15-28151

The author offers a new translation of the book of Acts, together with a commentary. The commentary, set in smaller type, runs along with the text. The medieval versification and numbering have been abandoned in favor of an arrangement into paragraphs and chapters. Professor Souter's text (Oxford, 1910) has been used as the basis for the translation. There are a number of illustrations, some of them from famous paintings, and several maps.

"The new translation does not differ radically from that of the revised version, but it is sufficiently new to catch the attention at many points where the more usual rendering, because of its familiarity, might not awaken the reader's interest. The accompanying commentary is quite untechnical in character and is mainly devoted to homiletical interests. Problems of textual and historical criticism are consistently eschewed. The author's point of view is essentially that of the conservative school, as represented for example by Bernhard Weiss who is especially mentioned in the dedication. Harnack is followed in dating the composition of Acts before the year 70 A. D."

+ Bib World 47:121 F '16 230w

+ Ind 86:554 Je 26 '16 40w

"The translation, which is based on Souter's edition of the revisers' Greek text, is at times clearer than the original, and the commentary is mainly a paraphrase with a dash of imagination thrown in."

+ Nation 102:sup499 My 4 '16 70w

R of Rs 53:250 F '16 20w

"The book shows learning and spiritual vitality."

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 27 '15 230w

SKAGGS, WILLIAM HENRY. German conspiracies in America, from an American point of view. *5s T. Fisher Unwin, London 327.73

16-9039

"Mr. Skaggs does not claim to have any special sources of information and his 'German conspiracies in America,' is in the main a compilation from other books, the reports of speeches and news articles. It has a preface introducing him to the British public from the pen of Theodore Andrea Cook, editor of the London Field." (N Y Times) There is a bibliography.

"It could be improved by compression and the elimination of some repetition, but it is none the less valuable for its presentation of many scattered and not very accessible facts. Perhaps the most interesting chapter deals with the cotton situation and exposes the outcry at the beginning of the war concerning the ruin that was being brought on the South."

+ N Y Times 21:132 Ap 9 '16 350w

Sat R 121:308 Mr 25 '16 140w

"Though strongly pro-Allies in sentiment, he is very far from being a thick-and-thin anglophil. On the contrary, he is an extremely candid critic of England and English rule. . . . Evidences of the wide ramifications of the pro-German campaign have been constantly published in the American press since the outbreak of the war, but this is the first attempt we have seen to co-ordinate these multifarious activities and trace their concurrent streams under the heads of press bureau and publicity work, espionage, commercial boycott, and industrial interference."

+ Spec 116:291 F 26 '16 2050w

"The story is presented essentially from the American point of view, and it is freshly and vigorously told."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p34 Ja 20 '16 620w

SKINNER, EDWARD M., and others. Credits and collections. $2 (3c) La Salle extension univ. 332.7

16-6467

The subject of Credits is treated by Mr. Skinner, that of Collections by Mr. White, and that of the Mail-order instalment collections by Mr. Kramer. Each of these authors is a business man who can bring practical experience to the treatment of his subject. Mr. Skinner in his preface says that his aim has been "to state fundamental principles rather than to describe any particular system," and the two collaborating authors seem to have followed a similar plan.

"The first half-dozen chapters are devoted to credits. . . . This essay of 120 pages is probably the best brief treatment of the subject yet available."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:651 D '16 150w

"A thorough analysis of the duties of the credit and collection man are found in this helpful book."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Jl 11 '16 100w

SLATER, JOHN ROTHWELL. Living for the future; a study in the ethics of immortality. *$1 (4½c) Houghton 218

16-20597

A book frankly addressed to those who believe in an after life. The author purposely avoids the use of set religious terms and of images derived from the Bible. His is what might be termed a common sense discussion of immortality. Reasoning from our present knowledge of human personality and its needs, he outlines some of the probable conditions of life after death.

"Readable and full of stimulus."

+ Cleveland p147 D '16 30w

Pittsburgh 21:595 D '16

St Louis 15:6 Ja '17 10w

+ Springfield Republican p7 N 25 '16 160w

SLATTERY, REV. CHARLES LEWIS. Gift of immortality; a study in responsibility. *$1 (3½c) Houghton 218

16-8832

The Raymond F. West memorial lectures delivered at Leland Stanford Jr. university in 1915. The three lectures in the series are "The responsibility of the individual to immortality"; "The responsibility of the world to immortality"; "The responsibility of God for immortality." Immortality throws upon the individual the responsibility to be master of himself in all temptations; to be courageous in all the hard places of experience; to detach himself from the mere things of life; to buckle to himself a task so great that only eternity is long enough to complete it. Our corporate or world responsibility expresses itself in discrimination, truth, hope and love. The responsibility of God is manifest in His infinite goodness and patience.

+ A L A Bk 12:451 Jl '16

"The book is well written, contains some suggestive thoughts, but it will av'ail nothing to the man in the street who denies the existence of the world to come."

+ — Cath World 103:698 Ag '16 220w

Cleveland p87 J1 '16 40w

+ Nation 103:517 N 30 '16 130w

N Y Br Lib News 3:76 My '16 20w

N Y Times 21:303 J1 30 '16 60w

"The author is rector of Grace church, New York"

+ St Louis 14:384 N '16 60w

"His method of dealing with the subject is that of religious experience. This has always been Dr. Slattery's foundation in his theological writing and thinking and it is one of the surest and sanest foundations on which to build in the present time. The book is written with all of the author's characteristic ease and charm."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 12 '16 330w

SLATTERY, REV. CHARLES LEWIS. Why men pray. (Church principles for lay people) *75c (3½c) Macmillan 248 16-3928

The author, who is rector of Grace church, New York city, states in the beginning that he does not intend to argue about prayer. "I shall put down in as many chapters," he says, "six convictions which I have concerning it; and the reader may ask whether he has in his experience any convictions which correspond to them." These convictions are stated in the chapter headings: All men pray; Prayer discovers God; Prayer unites men; God depends on men's prayer; Prayer submits to the best; Prayer receives God.

+ A L A Bkl 12:402 Je '16

+ Bib World 48:64 J1 '16 70w

"The author under the heading Public prayer has a good page on prayer in times of war; he develops the statement, 'Prayer does change the world.' This outline of the book will indicate the unusual breadth with which he views his subject—from the sub-conscious through the emotions to will and action."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 12 '16 90w

+ Cleveland p54 My '16 20w

"A little volume of unusual power and insight."

+ Ind 86:305 My 22 '16 60w

N Y Times 21:178 Ap 23 '16 60w

Pratt p8 Ja '17 10w

"The book is eminently clear and reasonable, and as such will appeal to the mind of the average layman."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Mr 2 '16 170w

SLAUGHTER, JOHN WILLIS. Adolescent; with an introd. by J. J. Findlay. *60c Macmillan. 136.7 (Eng ed E13-239)

"Dr. Slaughter is an Englishman and his expressed hope in the preface is that this condensed statement (only 100 small pages) may serve as an introduction to careful study of Dr. Hall's 'monumental work.' The readers he evidently has in mind are those lacking technical knowledge such as is required for easy comprehension of the American writer's views. . . . Dr. Slaughter's essay embraces 'adolescent love,' 'scepticism,' 'pathology and hygiene,' 'juvenile crime and its treatment,' and 'education during adolescence.' The book contains criticism of current doctrine and methods of child training." (Boston Transcript) The book is "reprinted from the English edition of five years ago." (Ind)

"Hard things are said of the public schools, things which are likely to bring out controversy. The subject of the book is so large and engrossing that the brevity of its treatment here is provocative of regret and surprise. Supplementary treatment may perhaps be expected."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap.26 '16 230w

"He has condensed the significant facts about the mental and moral characteristics of the adolescent into a small book of a hundred pages; and he has presented his concentrated extract in a most readable, and sometimes even entertaining way."

+ Ind 85:461 Mr 27 '16 140w

"The author is evidently a lover of youth. He presents its psychology and possibilities and necessities with an enthusiasm that is contagious. By contrast he is unnecessarily critical and pessimistic in regard to the later periods of life. In this latter respect, in fact, the book or the author of it is open to just criticism. In a number of places extreme statements are made that cannot be accepted at their face value."

+ — Nation 102:sup486 My 4 '16 250w

SLINGERLAND, WILLIAM H. Child welfare work in Pennsylvania. $2 Russell Sage foundation 362.7 15-21145

"As stated by Dr. Hastings H. Hart, director of the department of child-helping of the Russell Sage foundation, in an introduction to this volume, Pennsylvania is far in advance of any other state of the Union in the magnitude and generosity of her investments for dependent, delinquent, and defective children. In this study Dr. Slingerland records 210 institutions and 53 societies organized for child welfare work."—R of Rs

"Statistical tables present the facts in great detail, and there are many excellent illustrations scattered through the book. The 'Child welfare symposium,' edited by Mr. Slingerland, goes into some detail regarding the causes that put children in the institutions. The inevitable overlapping that comes with symposium writing does not seriously detract from the excellent body of material which these twenty-five special papers furnish regarding the work for children in the state of Pennsylvania." S. N.

+ Ann Am Acad 66:265 J1 '16 190w

"The constructive suggestions will be helpful to all engaged in social work with children, wherever situated. Comparisons with methods and accomplishment in other states give balance and practical outlook to the study."

+ Ind 86:117 Ap 17 '16 70w

R of Rs 53:379 Mr '16 80w

Pittsburgh 21:61 F '16

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 24 '16 430w

"Especially valuable is Dr. Hart's comparative statement of the facts of subsidized institutions in New York, California, Maryland and Pennsylvania. This book is the first one known to the reviewer which aims to give a description of all the agencies now caring for all varieties of handicapped children in any American state. It really gives the impression of a cyclopaedia of agencies and institutions as they are. But it is also more because in chapters 26-31 the treatment becomes dynamic, the last chapter being entitled Transition and progress."

+ Survey 36:209 My 20 '16 320w

SLIPPY, JOHN CLIFFORD. Telephone appraisal practice. $4 J. C. Slippy, 429 Oliver bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. 658 15-23379

"A fragmentary compilation, arranged in six chapters, on the subject of appraising telephone properties. The chapter titles embrace the following: General, inventory, costs, depreciation, commission requirements, and bibliography. Frequent quotations are given from a number of well-known authorities, together with notes and extracts from commission cases and public utility laws, some nine or ten different forms recommended for use in preparing inventories, unit cost data, life tables, depreciation estimates, and a very short bibliography."—Elec World

"While this book is clearly not intended to cover all phases of the subject of valuation and possesses but little interest for the expert, it nevertheless brings together considerable information which will interest the non-technical manager or superintendent."

+ Elec World 67:220 Ja 22 '16 110w

"Mr. Slippy's little book will find a welcome in many an engineering library—partly because it gives specific procedure and data and partly because the telephone field is generally regarded a difficult one for an appraisal engineer."

+ Engin N 75:511 Mr 16 '16 300w

SMART, WALTER KAY, ed. How to write business letters. *70c (1½c) Shaw, A. W. 652 16-8345

This manual on business correspondence has chapters devoted to: The tone of a business letter; The make-up of a business letter; Inquiry, contract, and routine letters; Adjusting complaints by letter; Collecting by mail; What a sales letter must do; Getting attention and arousing interest; Explanation—describing the product; Proving your claims; Persuading the prospect to buy; What inducements to offer; Summary and climax—clinching the sale; Developing a follow-up series; News value; Giving your letter personality; The "you" interest. Throughout all these chapters typical letters are reproduced by way of illustration. The author is head of the department of English in the Armour institute of technology, and this work has been prepared in collaboration with the editorial staff of System.

N Y Br Lib News 3:189 D '16
School R 24:494 Je '16 70w

"The most readable small volume for the average business man, based on a study of nearly two thousand actual letters and the methods of specialists, and covering in a less intensive way the same field as the three volumes of the 'Business correspondence library' (same publisher). It and Gardner's 'Effective business letters' and Buhlig's 'Business English' are perhaps the three books which cover the field best, each treating the subject in a different way."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:225 My '16 73w

SMIDOVICH, VIKENTII VIKENTÉVICH (VIKENTY VERESSAYEV, pseud.). Memoirs of a physician; tr. by Simeon Linden; with an introd. and notes, by H. Pleasants, Jr. *$1.50 Knopf 610.4 16-14877

This work, translated from the Russian "is the recorded reaction of 'an average practitioner, with average ability and average knowledge' to the conditions of life and work which meet such a man. . . . Without effort at concealment or evasion the author discusses the shortcomings of the equipment wherewith the young medical man undertakes practice. . . . He enters very thoroughly into a consideration of the problems attendant on examination and autopsy as practised in public and academic clinics; he discusses the difficulties of diagnosis; he writes of the appalling lack of technique prevalent among young doctors, and of the avoidable and inevitable risks of surgery. The status of medicine as an art, not a science, is treated in scholarly fashion; the ancient bugbear of vivisection receives a quietus at the hands of common-sense. The translator appends notes, many of which are valuable commentaries upon the text."—Dial

+ A L A Bkl 13:68 N '16
Boston Transcript p7 Ag 26 '16 580w

"The style of the book is easy, even colloquial at times, and not unpleasantly burdened with medical terminology. The translation seems adequate. The book should interest and profit any, who have occasion ever to consult a physician, so ably does it set out the professional element of the equation governing the relations of doctor and patient."

+ Dial 61:144 S 7 '16 320w

"To the layman a startling and enlightening book, leaving one with understanding and sympathy for the doctor's life, and with the conviction that no one who has not had long practice under experienced men should ever be licensed to private work."

Ind 87:426 S 18 '16 50w

"The conditions the author describes are naturally those of Russia, but the notes and comments of the editor prevent perplexity on the part of the reader, and link the Russian point of view with that of the medical profession in this country."

+ Nation 104:23 Ja 4 '17 220w

"The book gives no occasion for despair. It destroys false confidence while creating sincerer faith." H. S.

+ New Repub 9:246 D 30 '16 1000w

"That such a record is always valuable in the interests of science cannot be disputed, but that its value depends largely on the interpreter himself, on his temperament, and on the color of the lens through which he views his experiences, must also be recognized. And Dr. Veressayev seems to see through a glass darkly. . . . Some of the conditions which he describes are not typical in America."

+ — N Y Times 21:315 Ag 13 '16 600w
Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 150w

SMITH, ALBERT WILLIAM, and MARX, GUIDO HUGO. Machine design. 4th ed, rev and enl il *$3 Wiley 621 15-20648

"The book approaches the subject of design from a very practical viewpoint, taking up first a study of motion in mechanisms, then energy in machines and the proportioning of parts as dictated by stress. A little less than one-third of the book is devoted to material of this character, the remaining two-thirds taking up the problems involved in the actual design of particular machines and parts."—Elec World

A L A Bkl 12:306 Mr '16

"The authors have revised the text in such a way as to include results of recent investigations of machine elements and bring the work up to date as a college textbook. There are many good illustrations and useful formulas throughout the text, which makes it more than a college textbook and places it among practical reference texts."

+ Elec World 67:388 F 12 '16 190w

"A real addition to technical literature. It has been thoroughly revised. Throughout the book are many footnote references to the sources from which the data are obtained. They are of great value if one wishes to pursue any particular subject farther than the limits of such a work permit. Among many excellent discussions in this book the chapter on riveted joints and the condensed table of critical speed formulas for shafting may be mentioned." J. G. D. Mack

+ Engin N 75:119 Ja 20 '16 450w

SMITH, CHARLES ALPHONSO. O. Henry biography. il *$2.50 (4c) Doubleday 16-22276

Mr. Smith, a boyhood friend of William Sydney Porter, has taken over the material collected by the late Harry Peyton Steger and has used it, together with his own reminiscences, in writing this biography. The chapters of the book are: The life and the story; Vogue; Ancestry; Birthplace and early years; Ranch and city life in Texas; The shadowed years; Finding himself in New York; Favourite themes; Last days. There is a frontispiece portrait, and among the other illustrations are several showing O. Henry's early drawings, for it was as a cartoonist that his friends expected him to rise to fame. There are also a few interesting extracts from letters.

+ A L A Bkl 13:173 Ja '17

"A work of rare charm and moving interest, a happy mean between the biographical and the critical study." Archibald Henderson

+ Dial 61:573 D 28 '16 1400w

"Some one once asked O. Henry why he did not read more fiction. His answer might serve—if it were needed—as an incentive to read this biography. 'It (fiction) is all tame,' he replied, 'as compared with the romance of my own life.'"

+ Ind 88:282 N 13 '16 270w

+ Lit D 53:1472 D 2 '16 520w

"The casual reader will be pleased with this very agreeably written sketch; but he who wants all the facts about O. Henry's years in Texas and New York—the most important years of his life—judiciously and clearly stated will be disappointed. . . . The greatest sins of the biography are sins of omission."

+ — Nation 104:51 Ja 11 '17 1250w

+ N Y Times 21:458 O 29 '16 650w

"The first effect of this book on the reader will be to send him back to the stories. I should advise that the biography be read with the collected volumes close at hand, and with a book-mark, too, for the reader will want to stop more than once to refer from the life to the stories." M. K. Reely

+ Pub W 90:2077 D 9 '16 920w

"The reader lives O. Henry's life with him, so sympathetic is the study."

+ Springfield Republican p13 N 12 '16 780w

SMITH, FLORENCE MARY. Mary Astell. (Studies in English and comparative literature) *$1.50 (3c) Columbia univ. press 396 16-11266

Mary Astell was a seventeenth century feminist. She was born in 1666 and died in 1731. She was the friend of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu and author of many pamphlets relating to religious and philosophical controversies and to education. She was one of the early advocates of education for women, and it is in this phase of her life that the author of the present monograph is particularly interested. Miss Smith's purpose has been "to formulate some of the seventeenth and eighteenth century ideals for the education of women as they presented themselves to a woman of the period, and conversely to show how her statement of them re-acted upon the thought of the time."

"Miss Smith's style is not only unidiomatic, but is disfigured by Americanisms and even downright bad grammar. . . . In the matter of knowledge her work is well up to the average. She has read thoroughly the literature about her subject, and, despite a certain amount of repetition, has made a valuable contribution to the history of woman's rights."

+ — Nation 103:425 N 2 '16 190w

N Y Times 21:278 J1 9 '16 100w

SMITH, FRANCIS HOPKINSON, and SMITH, FRANK BERKELEY. Enoch Crane. il *$1.35 (1½c) Scribner 16-12890

A story begun by F. Hopkinson Smith and finished by his son, F. Berkeley Smith. It was Mr. Smith's habit to outline his novels in careful detail before writing them and his son had only to follow the outline left at his father's death to complete the book. It is a story of New York city with an old house in Greenwich Village as its immediate scene. Old Enoch Crane, the owner of the house who lives in its top floor, takes a friendly interest in his tenants, particularly in Joe Grimsby, the young architect who lives on the third floor and little Sue Preston, the singer, on the second floor. And he plays a bigger part than they know in their affairs.

+ A L A Bkl 13:127 D '16

"It is evident that the scenes, the characters, the scheme of 'Enoch Crane' are Mr. Hopkinson Smith's. They bear every trace of his mind and hand. But the execution is clearly another's. The melodrama, the violent transitions, the extravagant humor, are not his. Little of the sweetness, the gentleness, the mellowness to which we have become accustomed, is there. To read 'Enoch Crane,' is to take part in an interesting literary experiment and nothing more." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 S 9 '16 1250w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale
Dial 61:268 O 5 '16 1050w

+ — Ind 88:234 N 6 '16 50w

+ Lit D 53:1039 O 21 '16 200w

Nation 103:351 O 12 '16 480w

"With a crude, time-worn plot, . . . with stereotyped characters and unpolished style, Mr. F. Berkeley Smith has brought to its close a novel which leaves the pleasant, harmless paths of romance and comes perilously near to being trash."

— New Repub 9:164 D 9 '16 110w

+ N Y Times 21:361 S 17 '16 1500w

+ — Springfield Republican p15 S 17 '16 450w

SMITH, FRANK BERKELEY. Babette. il *$1.25 (1½c) Doubleday 16-6760

Babette is the daughter of the guardian of the prison at La Fourche. The gray walls of the prison and its tiny garden have been her home. To the prison comes Pierre Raveau, alias Ravin—not as a prisoner, to be sure, altho he is one of the cleverest criminals in France, but as a visitor, hoping to gain a secret word with one of his confères who is an inmate. His eyes light on Babette, and a new experience dawns for him. He is in love for the first time in his life. The story tells how under the influence of this love he is led to change his way of living for one of respectability and honor.

"A tale of honest affection, faithful trust, manly effort, terrifying suspense and satisfying success. The charm of 'Babette' is not so much in Mr. Smith's well-told narrative as in the atmosphere of the French country life in Tours and of the safe nook in lurid Montmartre, which Raveau discovered for his bride."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 24 '16 380w

Ind 86:220 My 8 '16 80w

"It contains no element of plot, character, or local color that is not already over-familiar."

— Nation 102:436 Ap 20 '16 110w

"A vivid description of the underworld of Paris, centred at Montmartre, is unhesitatingly pictured, but with so light a touch that it does not disgust one. Indeed, the delicacy with which the author handles his subject is an added attraction to his book."

+ N Y Times 21:136 Ap 9 '16 180w

SMITH, REV. GEORGE ADAM, ed. Atlas of the historical geography of the Holy Land. maps *$7.50 Doran 911.3 Maps16-6

"The maps are arranged in four groups. The first includes the Semitic world. . . . General maps of Palestine form the second group. . . . In the third group come the maps of Palestine at successive historical periods, starting from the pre-Israelite period and coming down to the time of Agrippa II, together with plans of Jerusalem at various stages. The fourth group is concerned with the Christian era. . . . The introductory matter is composed chiefly of notes upon each map, taken in the order in which they appear in the 'Atlas.' These notes are of a topographical and historical character, discussing disputed sites or giving a few hints as to the history of the territory or some of its parts. In addition to this, each map is provided with a special bibliography, citing the most important authorities. Some corrections to the maps are also incorporated in the notes. The Introduction closes with a set of chronological tables, giving in detail the chronology from 4000 B. C. down to the birth of Christ." (Bib World) The maps were made by Bartholomew.

+ A L A Bkl 13:79 N '16

"The 'Atlas' is put out in splendid form, and is filled with most valuable materials. No such array of maps is to be found in any other existing-atlas of Bible lands. The draughtsmanship, coloring, and mechanical make-up in general are beyond praise. The concluding part of the second section is given to one of the most valuable features of the 'Atlas,' viz., a map of Palestine in eight sections, covering two pages each, on the scale of one fourth of an inch to the mile. In no existing atlas prior to this one can maps of Palestine on so large a scale as this be found. It should stand for a long time as the standard atlas of Bible lands. Toward the second edition we contribute the following corrections. . . ." J. M. P. Smith

+ Bib World 47:195 Mr '16 1350w

+ Ind 86:184 My 1 '16 70w

"It is twenty-two years since Dr. George Adam Smith gave us his 'Historical geography of the Holy Land,' which took the place for the present generation of Stanley's 'Sinai and Palestine.' In the preface to that book he promised an historical atlas. The work had to be postponed for other engagements; but as the interval was specially fruitful in the results of Palestine exploration, we have no reason to regret the delay."

+ Spec 117:417 O 7 '16 340w

SMITH, GEORGE WILLIAMSON. Short apology for being a Christian in the XXth century. *80c Longmans 239 16-2256

"Dr. George Williamson Smith, formerly president of Trinity college, Hartford, writes 'A short apology for being a Christian in the twentieth century' in the form of a reply to a letter received from a friend who announced that he had been led to repudiate Christianity by the claims of science and historical criticism. One by one the attacks are met, and a belief in the Bible, the atonement, the resurrection and the supernatural justified."—Ind

"The volume is characterized by its simplicity of expression and its careful reasoning."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 11 '16 350w
Ind 86:184 My 1 '16 70w

SMITH, HARRIET LUMMIS (MRS. WILLIAM M. SMITH). Other people's business; the romantic career of the practical Miss Dale. *$1.35 (2c) Bobbs 16-22298

Kindly, shrewd Persis Dale, the village dress-maker, is the heroine of this story. Persis sews for all the families of Clematis and acts as nurse, guide and counselor in times of illness and distress. Many of Persis's good deeds are done in the open, but in others she moves mysteriously and those who benefit by her wisdom are often unaware of their indebtedness. In the course of the story an old lover returns to prove himself not the lover of her dreams, and Persis, who shortly after falls heir to a modest fortune, realizes another of her dreams by adopting a family of five children.

"Pleasant reading."

+ A L A Bk 13:178 Ja '17
+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '17 220w

"The book is decidedly pleasant reading."

+ Dial 61:400 N 16 '16 170w
N Y Br Lib News 3:168 N '16

"Despite the happy-go-lucky, spineless plot, the book is entertaining and a good example of the small-town story."

+ Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 260w

SMITH, JOSEPH RUSSELL. Commerce and industry. il $1.40 (1c) Holt 380 16-4252

A book that will serve as a text for classes in industrial and commercial geography. The author's purpose is "to explain how man's industries are determined by his environment." His method is to give more attention to explanations than to facts. "The facts are there, but the important thing is that the meaning and causes of the facts are set forth as vividly as possible." Part 1, taking up more than half of the book, is devoted to the United States. In this part industries rather than states are made the basis of treatment. Part 2 is devoted to other countries, with special attention given to Latin America and the Orient because of probable trade expansion with these countries. Part 3 takes up World commerce and treats of the trade routes of the world. Maps, charts, diagrams and pictures are provided; also an index.

"It is too elementary for the college student or the general reader. Even for school boys the usefulness of a book may be doubted that compresses into so small a space a survey of the commerce and industry of the whole world. . . . The volume contains many interesting facts and some useful explanatory matter, but it is inadequate as a textbook. Perhaps its chief value would be for occasional quick reference, because of its thorough index." T: W. Page

+ Am Econ R 6:367 Je '16 530w

"A useful book for secondary and normal schools, and interesting enough for the general reader. Libraries which have the author's larger book, 'Industrial and commercial geography' which has its material grouped by industry, may not need this."

+ A L A Bk 12:457 Jl '16

"Barring questions which hinge on difference of opinion about method and material, the only adverse criticism must be based on the many inaccuracies of statement concerning details, which probably do not seriously affect its usefulness as a high school text." W. S. T.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:304 S '16 170w

Cleveland p60 My '16 70w

+ Educ R 52:425 N '16 30w

"Designed as a textbook, but is such good reading, so admirably illustrated by diagrams, maps and pictures, that anyone will find it interesting and will gain from it in a brief time a comprehensive view of natural resources and their modern utilization."

+ Ind 86:219 My 8 '16 50w

+ J Pol Econ 24:736 Jl '16 130w

"The book gives one the impression, when brought into comparison with the author's more extensive treatise on 'Industrial and commercial geography,' of being an abridgment of the latter, or, perhaps more accurately, of having been derived from it by being written down for a less advanced reader."

Nation 102:714 Je 29 '16 240w

"One defect of the larger work is illustrated in this book also. The author does not seem to be a very good proof-reader." G. G. C.

+ Nature 97:539 Ag 31 '16 430w

SMITH, JOSEPH RUSSELL. Elements of industrial management. *$2 (2½c) Lippincott 658.7 16-878

This book is based on a course in industrial management given to students at the Wharton school of finance and commerce where the author is professor of industry. It begins with a general survey of the subject, chapters being devoted to Service of organization in the business unit; Types of organization; The management of the industrial corporation, etc. Later chapters take up specific problems: The location of a factory; The model factory; The quality of labor; The wage question; The control of the working force, etc.

"The author's unfamiliarity with the practice of management has led him into several errors of fact or interpretation. It is hardly useful to point out the many inconsistencies of the work, inasmuch as they at least bring before the student conflicting views. The book is intended for 'popular' consumption. This fact, however, does not excuse the absence of a selected and classified bibliography, which would add greatly to the value of the book." C. B. Thompson

+ Am Econ R 6:377 Je '16 750w

SMITH, MARY PRUDENCE (WELLS). Three in a camp. il *$1.20 (2c) Little 16-21402

A story for boys and girls. When their mother and father go to California, Theodore, fourteen years old, and Betty, twelve, are left in charge of their Aunt Josie, who takes them to a camp in the Canadian woods. It is a camp where old and young live and work and play together. Its ideals are simple and wholesome and there is plenty of hearty fun for all. The author is said to have described a real camp.

"Either the author or the publisher errs in judgment in advertising these books as designed for boys and girls '6 to 12.' It would seem much better to say '40 to 15.'"

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 200w

SMITH, NORA ARCHIBALD. Old, old tales from the old, old Book. il *$1.50 (1c) Doubleday 221 16-21411

A book of Old Testament stories. "This simple book of old, old tales," says the introduction, "is an attempt to bring them before young people in a little more accessible form than that in which they are commonly presented and particularly, by divesting them of chronologies, genealogies, and repetitions to adapt them to the art of the story teller." The phrasing of the stories follows the King James version as closely as possible.

A L A Bk 13:228 F '17

"Miss Smith, in her re-telling of the Bible, has done her work feelingly and with proper spirit. My contention is that, as early as possible, children should be cultivated in the realization of style; this realization should go hand in hand with the natural desire for the story. In the Bible, the two are inseparable. That is why I prefer Miss Olcott's direct method."

+ Dial 61:546 D 14 '16 40w

Lit D 53:1565 D 9 '16 110w

SMITH, RANDOLPH WELLFORD. Benighted Mexico. *$1.50 (1½c) Lane 972 16-16335

The author says, "This work must not be interpreted as propaganda for any party or faction in or out of Mexico." Nevertheless it is from first to last a sweeping condemnation of the present administration in its Mexican policy. The recognition of Carranza is pronounced a tragic mistake. The hand of Germany is seen behind all Carranza's actions. The author does not seem to favor American intervention and has little hope for the country's future. Its only reign of prosperity seems to have existed under the tyranny of Diaz. Perhaps another tyrant must arise to save it.

"There is an interesting paper by E. N. Iturbide, filling several chapters, that narrates his own experiences as governor of the Federal district during and after Huerta's presidency that is worth while. . . . But Mr. Smith's manner of writing, a combination of sneer, invective, reckless statement and boiling indignation, does not inspire confidence in his trustworthiness. His book does not illumine the Mexican situation." F. F. Kelly

— Bookm 44:204 O '16 670w

"The book tells a story as horrible as it is humiliating. That Mexico endangers the peace of the United States is most evident. Mr. Bryan's policy that 'the public should not know' is that of the present administration, and in this policy is the greatest danger threatening the United States to-day. If this book will cause the public to demand the truth about Mexico, as it is written in the reports locked up in the State department, it will accomplish the end the author had in mind in writing it." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p3 S 13 '16 600w

"Valuable in spite of its extravagant style for the evidence it gives of Mexican atrocities."

— + Ind 88:33 O 2 '16 30w

"Mr. Smith's brief but perfervid review of the early history of Mexico is thoroughly inaccurate. His more extended treatment of recent happenings is marked by an insistent parading of pet aversions."

— Nation 104:53 Ja 11 '17 380w

"Why waste good space on the obvious quackeries and knaveries of a book like this? Because the Mexican problem is one on which we need light, not dust in our eyes." A. S. Johnson

— New Repub 8:329 O 28 '16 1150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:158 O '16

"When he is telling of affairs in Mexico Mr. Smith writes with authority, and there will be few to question his statements. When he attempts to trace the influence of Germany in the rise of Carranza, however, he passes into the realm of speculation, and will be read with less general acceptance. And when he denounces the policy toward Mexico of the Wilson administration he enters upon the grounds of political controversy and discusses matters which may not legitimately be considered in a purely literary review of his book. Of the manner of Mr. Smith's controversial writing, however, it may be said that it shows restraint and dignity—commendable and rare qualities in modern politics."

N Y Times 21:355 S 10 '16 1050w

R of Rs 54:456 O '16 170w

St Louis 14:406 N '16 20w

SMITH, STEPHEN. Who is insane? *$1.25 (3c) Macmillan 132 16-1993

The author was commissioner in lunacy of the state of New York from 1882 to 1888. His purpose in this book has been "to illustrate with as few technicalities as possible the illusive nature of insanity." The subjects covered by the five parts of the book are: Who is insane and what is insanity? Critical periods of life predisposing to insanity; Care and treatment of the insane; The lesson applied to the feeble-minded and criminal; A new institution—the dawn of a better day.

+ A L A Bkl 12:402 Je '16

"All of us expect to grow old, but few expect to undergo danger of insanity, and so Dr. Smith's chapter on old age will be of more general and direct interest than any other part of his book." M. P. Allison

+ Bookm 43:207 Ap '16 400w

"It is a book for the layman, and will be read with gratitude and enjoyment for its sanity, scientific spirit, and sound reasonableness."

+ Lit D 52:725 Mr 18 '16 350w

"In hardly any sense a scientific book, it is much more than a meagre monograph. Somewhat turgid in style and none too sharp in its critical distinctions, this little volume is of the kind that kindles the layman's hope and justifies the scientist's patience. It is an empirical statement that insanity is to a much higher degree functional than it is organic—which means that it is more amenable to control and cure than we had ever dared expect. Mr. Smith does not lay this down a priori, he gives case after case in substantiation. It is an encouraging and hopeful book, based on reality. Yet if only it awakened a new tolerance, if it but helped ever so little to dispel one of the blackest superstitions that has ever beclouded the human mind, it would still have been worth writing." H. S.

+ New Repub 6:195 Mr 18 '16 580w

+ R of Rs 54:123 Jl '16 200w

Reviewed by C. B. Farrar

+ Science n s 44:59 Jl 14 '16 580w

"Dr. Smith is in full accord with the enlightened methods of investigation and treatment of insanity now pursued, and describes recent progress in this respect in New York state. He considers the question in its broadest aspects."

+ Springfield Republican p13 F 7 '16 250w

SMITH, THOMAS F. A. What Germany thinks; or, The war as Germans see it. *$1.25 (1½c) Doran 940.91 (Eng ed 16-2402)

The author lets Germans speak for itself, quoting largely from newspapers. The Germans have an expressive word, "Stimmungsmacherei," meaning the creation of a state of mind. Not the least interesting parts of Mr. Smith's book are those chapters showing how public opinion was made at the beginning of the war. Other chapters, at the end of the book, show how that opinion, so far as it related to the English army underwent a change after contact with English troops. Another most illuminating chapter is devoted to The literature of hate. There are also discussions of the Belgian atrocities and the German attitude toward them.

"Dr. Smith's book will be of great use as a reference work."

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 3 '16 180w

"Disappointing in that it is not a personal review of a supremely momentous subject, but for the most part, a partisan treatise compiled from printed and verbal expressions of the German attitude toward the war. While everything republished or reported in Dr. Smith's book may be authentic, still there doubtless are contrary revelations of German thought not quoted which would relieve Germany, as a people, somewhat from the deliberate wickedness Dr. Smith sets forth to prove out of her own mouth."

— Ind 86:456 Je 12 '16 150w

+ N Y Times 21:108 Mr 26 '16 750w

"Dr. Smith has amassed much material on the Belgian question and on many other problems of the war which will give the reader a good idea of how the German mind is working at the present moment."

+ Spec 116:82 Ja 15 '16 1450w

"Dr. Smith lectured in the University of Erlangen for nearly 12 years and brings to his work insight and penetration into the German mind that many English and American writers lack. The book consists largely of excerpts and quotations from German newspapers, official speeches and government documents. By using this method of telling his story Dr. Smith has produced evidence that can hardly be refuted."

SMITH, THOMAS F. A.—Continued
+ Springfield Republican p13 Mr 27 '16 250w

SMITH, WILLIAM SPOONER. How one church² went through a war; being a selection of sermons from the note book of the octogenarian traveller. (Lib. of religious thought)
*$1 (3c) Badger, R; G. 973.7 16-13988

These sermons by W. Spooner Smith were preached to his congregation at Guilford, Connecticut, during the progress of the civil war. They are reprinted now "because it was thought that words written at the time might preserve some sense of that vital four years' crisis to a generation that can learn of it only from the fathers." (Preface)

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 2 '16 250w

SMYTH, NEWMAN. Meaning of personal life.
*$2 (1½c) Scribner 215 16-6912

"Life brings to us daily questionings concerning the meaning of things," says the author, "but the one question running through them all is: What do we mean to ourselves? The supreme problem of the world for us is: What is the ultimate meaning of the personal life?" The book is a continuation of the line of thought that found expression in the author's "Through science to faith," published in 1902, and represents a testing of the conclusions of that book in the light of later experience. Contents: The earliest signs of meaning; Beginnings of mind in nature; Personal dynamics; The relation of body and mind; Development of personality; Personal individuality; The fulfilment of personal life in Jesus Christ; The creative spirit of Christianity; The future personal life; Personal realism—Conclusion.

"Aside from the difficulties arising out of the unsolved scientific problems, objection may be taken to the fundamental assumption upon which his metaphysical interpretation rests." F. A. Starratt

Am J Theol 21:136 Ja '17 780w

+ A L A Bkl 12:451 J1 '16

+ Ind 86:553 Je 26 '16 300w

"The author's general line of argument is clearly set forth, and will awaken serious consideration of the great questions discussed."

+ Nation 103:517 N 30 '16 250w

"His book is, so to speak, an extract of all that is most hopeful, from the spiritual point of view, in the writings of modern scientists and philosophers. . . . On the whole, there is in his work rather more detail than penetration. . . . As a philosophic thinker he is hardly critical enough to be clear. He draws, for example, upon Bergson's vitalism, upon James's pragmatism, upon Clifford's peculiar form of idealism, without making it quite plain how much of these systems of thought we may safely accept, or precisely where lies their common ground. Nevertheless, the author does fairly achieve two worthy ends. First, he demonstrates the inadequacy of materialism. Secondly, Mr. Smyth makes credible the essential reality of the personal self."

+ No Am. 203:775 My '16 730w

+ R of Rs 55:210 F '17 90w

"He is perhaps most illuminating in his chapter on 'The future personal life,' but we doubt on the whole whether the careful thinker will derive very much substantial help from his pages."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p539 N 9 '16 210w

SNAITH, JOHN COLLIS. Sailor. il $1.40 (1c)

Appleton 16-15317

Something less than one fourth of this book is devoted to the hero's life at sea, yet because his experience on the "Margaret Carey" was the determining factor in the life of Henry Harper, this may be called a novel of the sea. Fear and terror were among the boy's earliest experienced emotions, and fear and terror accompany him on his first voyage around the Horn, and never leave him indeed in the seven years of his seafaring life. And it is the vividness of these emotions as they are depicted in his first novel that later win him fame. In the meantime there is the story of the boy's slow climb upward from the moment that "Klondyke," on board the "Margaret Carey," persuades him to learn to read and write. "Klondyke" is plainly of another world, and much later his meeting with Mary Pridmore, Klondyke's sister, is another determining factor in his career.

+ A L A Bkl 13:36 O '16

"As often with Mr. Snaith, we have a surface of realism, or more properly naturalism, and a structure and spirit of romance." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:182 O '16 420w

"Mr. Snaith tells the story with a fine reticence, with a Shakspearian compactness of phrase, and with the use of only such incidents as enable us to see and to visualize his hero. In 'The sailor' he has written a novel that grows in the mind after reading; in his hero he has confronted us with a real personality whose image will remain definitely before us. In this novel Mr. Snaith has certainly fulfilled the promise made by him years ago in 'Broke of Covenant.'" E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 9 '16 1300w

"If one can stand the accumulated misery of the beginning, one will like the book." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:195 S 21 '16 520w

+ Ind 87:389 S 11 '16 40w

Nation 103:351 O 12 '16 390w

"Interpretative, creative work of a very high order. It is also tremendously interesting. . . . It has been said that Mr. Snaith had Masefield in mind in writing this book. Possibly this is the case. Here he may have found his suggestion. But that, one fancies, is all. . . . This book is no biography, except in the sense that all true creative fiction is biography of a sort."

+ N Y Times 21:313 Ag 13 '16 970w

+ N Y Times 21:316 Ag 13 '16 230w

+ N Y Times 21:504 N 26 '16 120w

+ Outlook 114:615 N 15 '16 350w

Spec 117:268 S 2 '16 20w

"Literary merit, niceties of workmanship, and a complete mastery of the material are evident everywhere; but these considerations are completely overshadowed by the sheer fascination exercised by the vitally human qualities of the narrative."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 20 '16 680w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p270 Je 8 '16 400w

Wis Lib Bull 12:412 N '16 130w

SNEATH, ELIAS HERSHEY; HODGES, GEORGE; and TWEEDY, HENRY HAL-LAM. King's highway series. il *55c, *65c, *75c Macmillan 377.2

"The King's highway series embodies a graded system of elementary moral and religious training for the home and private school. It consists of eight books containing subject-matter relating to the virtues and vices peculiar to the age of children of the respective school grades. The method of training is the story method." (Preface) The eight volumes bear such titles as "The way of the hills," "The way of the green pastures," "The way of the stars," etc. Stories from the Bible, adaptations and selections from other works of literature, and quotations from both prose and poetry compose the contents.

"There is something just a little heavy about the entire undertaking, not only in the actual weight of the handsome volumes but in the general manner and matter of the contents." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:405 D '1' 90w

"The unfitted for public school use by reason of the diversity of religious belief there met with, they would add greatly to the curriculum of the private school for which they were intended."

+ Ind 87:237 Ag 14 '16 80w

Outlook 115:208 Ja 31 '17 30w

SNELL, ROY JUDSON. Little white fox and his Arctic friends. il *75c (4c) Little

16-17917

A book of animal stories for younger children. The characters are the animals of the polar regions, the white fox, the reindeer, the polar bear, the ptarmigan, the seal, etc. Altho the stories are fanciful the author seems to have held closely to the known facts of nature. Some of the stories appeared serially in the Continent.

A L A Bkl 13:185 Ja '17

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:406 D '16 60w

+ Ind 88:400 D 4 '16 40w

+ Nation 103:519 N 30 '16 20w

"The author has spent much time in the Arctic region, has watched the animals and studied them, so that he has been able to give stories based on their real struggles for existence in that dreary land."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 100w

SNYDER, FRANKLYN BLISS, and MARTIN, ROBERT GRANT, eds. Book of English literature. *$2.25 Macmillan 820.8 16-3786

Selections from English literature from Chaucer to Meredith. The volume has been prepared for college courses in the development of English literature, and the editors "have tried to give to the most important men a representation more adequate than they have been accorded in previous volumes of the kind." In addition, they "have included enough work by men of secondary importance to fill the gaps between the larger figures, and to make this text adequate for any survey of English literature . . . save in the fields of fiction and drama." (Preface) The authors are professors of English in Northwestern university.

"Appendix contains brief biographies and bibliographical notes. Author and title indexes. Not so full on the pre-Elizabethan period as Pancoast (Booklist, 12:330, Ap '16) and presents fewer names; but this gives somewhat longer selections and reads more easily because of the larger type."

+ A L A Bkl 13:23 O '16

"An admirable anthology, well chosen and well ordered, of the whole field of English literature, including both prose and poetry."

+ Educ R 52:205 S '16 180w

Ind 87:231 Ag 14 '16 40w

+ Lit D 53:468 Ag 26 '16 180w

"It does not differ very strikingly from the many other books of its kind, except (a matter of no small importance) as its wide margins and clear type combine to make a page less than ordinarily trying to the eye."

+ Nation 102:sup491 My 4 '16 70w

R of Rs 53:629 My '16 30w

SOLOGUB, FEODOR, pseud. (FEDOR KUZMICH TERNIKOV). Little demon; auth. tr. by J: Cournos and R: Aldington. *$1.50 Knopf 16-21979

"The little demon," one of Sologub's two long novels, is a remarkable work. On the surface, it is a story of the progressive insanity of Peredonov, a provincial schoolmaster, and of the meanness, ignorance, and dirt, moral and physical, of his immediate circle. . . . But in the picture of Peredonov, his natural stupidity and vileness merging insensibly into madness, of his mistress Varvara and her malicious friends, of Volodin, with his bulging ram's forehead and bleating voice, all forming a fringe upon the more reputable society of the place, yet mixing with it on occasion in a way that gives one a curious sense of the tolerance inherent in the Russian character, Sologub has a design, an intention, that puts him outside the school of naturalism where superficially he may seem to belong. All these people have turned their backs upon beauty. . . . The book is the Odyssey of such souls, whose end is darkness." —N Y Times

"The little demon' is the most striking of Sologub's novels. The principal character, Peredonov, is compact of all the evils of his generation, and has given his name to his period. In these days 'peredonovshchina' is used to describe the frowsy side of Russian petty officialdom of the period between 1880 and 1905."

+ Ath p187 Ap '16 600w

Reviewed by Winifred Smith

Dial 61:267 O 5 '16 250w

"This novel, despite reminiscences of other writers, has an uncanny power all its own, and is true to the Russian tradition in showing the unfeigned dislike of the author for the disgusting society that he depicts."

Nation 103:421 N 2 '16 730w

N Y Br Lib News 3:120 Ag '16

"Neither Tchekhoff nor Artzibasheff has portrayed lower middle-class society in a remote Russian town more mercilessly, with a brush dipped deeper in mud and in ashes. . . . The little demon' is not all horror, nor does it, for all its sordid realism, leave with the reader the nightmarish impression of some of the tales of Gorky. For Sologub resembles Gogol in a cheerfulness that plays upon the desolation of his materials like sunshine upon ruins, and his yearning over the 'afflicted souls' who have chosen the baser part gives a meaning and a dignity to what would otherwise appear a hopeless waste and confusion of life."

N Y Times 21:314 Ag 13 '16 550w

"The quality of the book, which, strangely enough, asserts itself as its beauty, is not merely a matter of the novelist's art, nor by any means only to be found in the episodic story of Liudmila and Pilnikov. Sologub so tells the tale of Peredonov, his cousin and mistress Varvara, and his stupid and vicious friends, as to let the reader feel that there is another kind of life."

The Times [London] Lit Sup p150 Mr 30 '16 800w

"His short stories are full of imagination, beauty, and charm—which will surprise those who are acquainted only with 'The little demon.' Yet his genius appears, though in a disagreeable form, in the full-length novel before us."

W: L. Phelps

+ — Yale R ns 6:210 O '16 210w

SOLOGUB, FEODOR, pseud. (FEDOR KUZMICH TERNIKOV). Old house, and other tales; tr. from the Russian by J: Cournos. *$1.50 Knopf (Eng ed 15-24551)

"The old house," which gives its title to the book, relates with a wealth of half-realistic, half-fantastic detail, yet with great simplicity, the story of a youth, hardly more than a child, who was led into revolutionary activities, given up by an agent provocateur, and hanged. In spite of the vividness and actuality with which the beautiful landscape setting and the small events in the daily life of the characters are depicted, it is not a realistic story. A glamour hangs over it. . . . One wonders, after reading this story and the allegory, 'Invoker of the beast,' what meaning Russian officialdom draws from them. To an outsider they seem to speak with a clearer voice of indignation and protest than much of the avowedly 'liberal' literature."

—N Y Times

"The honour of having introduced Sologub to the British public appears to belong to Mr. Cournos, one of whose translations appeared in the New Statesman in December, 1913."

Ath 1915,1:569 Je 26 480w

"He excels in fanciful realism. It is extremely grim, extremely powerful, and—in 'The old house'—very beautiful. No one who is interested in Russian literature, or in good literature irrespective of nationality, can afford to miss the opportunity to become familiar with at least this small portion of his work." R. M.

SOLOGUB, FEODOR, pseud.—Continued
+ Boston Transcript p23 J1 5 '16 820w

"Sologub has something in him that is akin neither to Chekhov nor to Poe; something that likens him to Hawthorne."

+ Nation 103:422 N 2 '16 210w

"The short stories range from realism to mysticism. Some of them are fairy tales, now light and charming, now gruesome enough to justify Mr. Cournos's comparison of him to Poe; but, read in the light of their author's passion for perfection and abhorrence of whatever willfully diverts from its pursuit, they become tragical little parables. . . . Of the stories in this book, two were included in 'The sweet-scented name,' published last year."

+ N Y Times 21:314 Ag 13 '16 570w

SOLOVIEV, EUGENII ANDREEVICH. Dostoevsky, his life and literary activity; a biographical sketch; tr. from the Russian by C. J. Hogarth. *$1.75 Macmillan A16-527

"So much of his own life has been woven by himself into his fiction that such a book as 'Dostoevsky: his life and literary activity' merely serves to emphasize what we already know about that famous Russian realist. It outlines the significant moments of a picturesque career that included years of exile in Siberia and years of struggle with the workings of a diseased brain and an abnormal mind."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 12:426 Je '16

"With no little wisdom, the writer of this book makes up its pages largely from Dostoevsky himself. Quotations from the novelist's own writings are frequent and liberal." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 22 '16 630w

"The book is a sort of review of previous biographies, and presupposes a considerable knowledge of the subject. The uninitiated reader gets little but a few scattering glimpses instead of a clear idea of the personality of the man, and misses a general discussion of his novels and literary craftsmanship."

Dial 61:271 O 5 '16 240w

"The sympathetic but critical study by Soloviev of this tragic figure is another example of that clear cut, bare, forceful writing which seems the inheritance of the Russian."

+ Ind 86:550 Je 26 '16 60w

"Corrects many misconceptions by a sympathetic analysis of his philosophic creed and mystical temperament, which must be understood before we can interpret novels so utterly different as his from the English attitude to life."

+ Library Association Record 18:123 Mr '16 50w

Lit D 52:980 Ap 8 '16 200w

+ Nation 103:356 O 12 '16 280w

+ R of Rs 53:631 My '16 150w

+ Spec 117:241 Ag 26 '16 190w

"Soloviev's book, written for a Russian audience, presupposes some knowledge of its subject, or, at least, a moderate degree of familiarity with Dostoevsky's writings. Possessed of so much preparation, the reader of the English version must find it illuminating. The treatment is scholarly and intelligent. The biographical element is centered in the period rather than in the man—one learns more of the influence of the times on Dostoevsky than of the man on his times. But the great episodes that find room for cataloging in the briefest accounts are enumerated here."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 520w

SOME Imagist poets, 1916. (New poetry ser.)
pa *75c Houghton 821.08 (15-8258)

The Imagist anthology issued last year contained by way of preface a statement of the aims and ideals of Imagist poetry. Because the movement is still misunderstood, its exponents have decided "to explain the laws which govern us a little more fully" in the present preface. "A few people may understand, and the rest can merely misunderstand again, a result to which we are quite accustomed." The explanation that follows is simple and lucid and should prove enlightening. The poets represented are those who contributed to the 1915 volume; Richard Aldington; H. D.; John Gould Fletcher; F. S. Flint; D. H. Lawrence; Amy Lowell.

A L A Bkl 13:23 O '16

"Miss Lowell's contributions to the volume are her famous 'Patterns,' 'Spring day' and the 'Stravinsky's three pieces "Grotesques" for string quartet.' 'Patterns,' whether we like it or not, I believe has taken its place among the poems of today that will be remembered. 'A spring day' is the best study one can make of the new method of poetic expression. It is simple and yet subtle." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 6 '16 2100w

— Nation 104:43 Ja 11 '17 370w

"The preface to this volume really disarms criticism. It is an honest, straightforward statement of the aims and purposes of the writers whose work is exhibited in the pages that follow. . . . The first poem 'Eros and Psyche' by Richard Aldington, is one of the best examples of contemporary Imagist art to be found anywhere. It has a powerful contrast, which gives the lyric a dramatic quality; it is a genuine interpretation of life; it has the very rapture of regret. It is real poetry." W. L. Phelps

+ Poetry Review 1:43 J1 '16 600w

R of Rs 54:233 Ag '16 140w

Springfield Republican p15 Ja 7 '17 590w

"The collection also seems to us of higher quality than the last, and in many instances far more likely to convince the old-fashioned that vers libre is a true and vital medium of poetic expression."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p11 Ja 4 '17 120w

"Of all these poets Mr. D. H. Lawrence is the most powerful, but he is also the one most infested by the ghosts of past poetry."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p19 Ja 11 '17 1600w

SOME stories by famous men. il *50c (2c)
Hearst's int. lib. 817 15-27626

A collection of some two hundred stories. The stories are attributed to famous men and women, but they are of the adaptable kind and might be attributed to any one. The collection as a whole is unhackneyed and seems to be quite free from vulgarity and cheap wit.

"Some stories are pretty old, but others are new enough to make up; and altogether it is a pretty fair collection, pocket size, uselessly adorned with the faces of a number of the alleged story-tellers."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Mr 14 '16 130w

SOMVILLE, GUSTAVE. Road to Liège; the path of crime, August 1914; tr. by Bernard Miall. *$1 (1c) Doran 940.91 16-18607

A French writer's report on Belgian atrocities. The book consists of an introduction (addresses to General von Bissing), and two parts. The crimes of the invasion and Critical remarks—the documents. The author says, in explanation of his arrangement of material, "The volume contains an episcopal section, dealing with the acts and conduct; and a critical section, dealing with the origins of the German doctrine, its Machiavellian system of application, and the verdict of international opinion." There is a preface by Henry Carton de Wiart, Belgian minister of justice.

"This book of M. Somville brings back to our minds—numbed by the thought of war as an everyday fact of months and years—something of the wild surge of indignant and incredulous wrath that swept this country in those August days two years ago."

+ N Y Times 21:531 D 3 '16 650w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p362 Ag 3 '16 620w

SORENSEN, HENRY RICHARD, and VAUGHN, SAMUEL JESSE. Hand-wrought jewelry. il $1 (5c) Bruce pub. co., Montgomery bldg., Milwaukee, Wis. 671 16-21714

A book for handicraft workers. The authors, one of whom is a practical jeweler, one a teacher of manual arts, say in their introduction, "It is the purpose of this book to describe in detail, the actual making of jewelry from the very simplest work, to the most difficult processes of working complicated patterns and mounting precious stones in gold." The work is fully illustrated.

Pratt p25 O '16 30w

St Louis 14:435 D '16

"Perhaps the distinctive contribution of this book to the literature of the subject is its last chapter, Precious stones. Information widely scattered through other books has been brought together here and put into the right form for junior craftsmen."

+ School Arts Magazine 16:89 O '16 130w

SOTHERN, EDWARD HUGH. Melancholy tale of "Me"; my remembrances. il *$3.50 (3c) Scribner 16-18618

"Me" was a little boy who refused to call himself I. The first part of this book is devoted wholly to the reminiscences of "Me," in other words to the childhood of E. H. Sothern. The second part is devoted to "Hugh," the uncle who always seemed to the writer the noblest and sanest of men, altho other people thought him "mad as a hatter." In part three, Mr. Sothern writes of his father, the great Edward A. Sothern, and in part four of "Myself." But it is not so much of himself that he writes after all, rather of the other great men of the stage who have been his friends. These reminiscences have appeared in part in Scribner's magazine.

+ A L A Bkl 13:71 N '16

"Its illustrations as well as its text contain much rare and curious material for the eye of the collector of theatrical miscellany." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 6 '16 750w

"His last chapter on the art of acting with his earnest plea for a national theatre is one of the best in the entire volume."

+ Cath World 104:557 Ja '17 160w

+ Cleveland p146 D '16 50w

"Even his snappiest stories cover some space, and few of them would look quite right out of their setting, therefore the best course to follow is to commend the book's entertaining quality to the reader who knows it not already from the pages of the periodical that first gave in serial form, the greater part, at least, of these richly reminiscent chapters." P. E. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:306 O 19 '16 1300w

+ Ind 88:238 N 6 '16 220w

+ Lit D 53:1555 D 9 '16 120w

+ — Nation 103:466 N 16 '16 980w

"So tender and humorous a book is like a gleam from vanished days." H. S.

+ New Repub 9:27 N 4 '16 1400w

"We should all have enjoyed the book more, reread it oftener and remembered it longer had Mr. Sothern thought less of what was of personal interest to himself and more of what would interest each and every one of us."

+ — N Y Times 21:446 O 22 '16 330w

"Mr. Sothern's exuberant volume, full of buxom humor, mock heroics and good fellowship, calls forth the cry of 'Pickwick!' the intonation of that cry depending entirely on the literary preferences of the individual." Doris Webb

+ Pub W 90:849 S 16 '16 630w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 29 '16 980w

SOUTHEY, ROBERT. Select prose of Robert Southey; ed. with an introd. by Jacob Zeitlin. *$1.50 (1c) Macmillan 820.8 16-6694

In choosing the selections for reprint, the first consideration has been readableness, says the editor. "Only such passages have been chosen as justify themselves intrinsically. Their representative character has been a secondary consideration, but it has fortunately been possible to give specimens of Southey's prose in a considerable variety of aspects, to suggest nearly all the forms in which he worked, and to give an impression of his mode of life, his opinions, and his character." (Preface) The work opens with a biographical introduction. The first group of selections is made up of literary comment, the second, of descriptions of the Lake country. The larger part of the book is then taken up with selections from "The doctor," followed by a small group of miscellaneous writings.

+ A L A Bkl 12:419 Je '16

"As a whole the selections give an exceptionally careful and judicious representation of his work."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ap 22 '16 530w

+ Dial 61:71 J1 15 '16 400w

"Mr. Zeitlin's volume, in which are the very best of the former laureate's contributions, judged strictly by their contemporaneous value, is well worth the perusal of those who have an interest in what is worth while in the literature of the past."

+ N Y Times 21:154 Ap 16 '16 380w

+ R of Rs 54:345 S '16 130w

+ Spec 117:348 S 23 '16 170w

"In the introduction Southey is treated departmentally, but with intelligence and sympathy. The biographical portion is less interesting than it would be if Mr. Zeitlin had availed himself of the material in the 'Life and correspondence of Robert Southey,' or the 'Selections from the letters of Robert Southey.' He has, however, relied upon several excellent biographers."

+ Springf'd Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 950w

SOUZA, CHARLES DE, count. Germany in defeat; second phase. *$2 Dutton 940.91

"The second volume of a strategic history of the war that has attracted much notice among military students in Great Britain. The author's thesis is that Germany was defeated at the Marne, that the destinies of Europe have already been settled in France. Although the complete crushing of Germany may require months and years of further sacrifice on the part of the Allies, the author maintains that she is actually in defeat, and in this second volume of his series he discusses what he calls the second phase of that defeat."—R of Rs

+ Ath p601 D '16 30w

"The maps and plans which accompany the book are extremely valuable and with the author's lucid manner of developing his subject help in making his work a document of solid worth to the student of strategy in military affairs. For such a student this book is doubtless one of the best that have appeared."

+ N Y Times 21:404 O 8 '16 210w

R of Rs 54:461 O '16 90w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p551 N 16 '16 90w

SPARGO, JOHN. Marxian socialism and religion. *$1 (2½c) Huebsch 335 16-9167

The author has attempted to determine, by a candid examination of both socialism and religion, whether or not they are opposed to each other. He says: "After a careful analysis of religion, ending with a definition of religion which is entirely candid and free from the charge of evasiveness, I have carefully outlined the Marxian synthesis, with special emphasis upon the one doctrine in it which has been held by most anti-socialist writers, and some socialist writers, to be incompatible with religious belief. I have tried to show that there is nothing in the Marxian theories, or in any of their necessary implications, which the essential principles of religion either explicitly or implicitly oppose or deny." (Preface).

+ A L A Bkl 13:13 O '16

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 4 '16 620w

SPARGO, JOHN—Continued

"The author is with little question the best man in America for the work, as the profound impression made a few years ago by his lecture on 'The spiritual significance of modern socialism' attests. The results of Mr. Spargo's new book will not be final, unhappily, but they can not fail to be commensurate with the effort. The most valuable single feature of this book is its review of the first Marxian theory, to which great violence has been done." T: P. Beyer

+ Dial 61:56 J1 15 '16 1500w
+ Ind 85:462 Mr 27 '16 300w

"Again, one must ask, to what order of minds does he suppose himself to be making an appeal? There is no profit in further discussion of a book like this. It is an irritating mass of pretentious sophistries which, one must suppose, would be equally revolting to the honest 'Marxian' and the honest 'believer.' As every one who is acquainted with the subject knows, it is precisely the 'determinist' character of 'Marxian socialism' which gives it its 'scientific' character, and distinguishes it from all the various 'Utopian' and 'ethical' brands, which it was Marx's boast to have destroyed. And it is precisely this determinist element in it which separates it by an impassable gulf from religion."

— Nation 102:257 Mr 2 '16 1600w

N Y Br Lib News 3:40 Mr '16 50w

"It is rather Spargoism than socialism that he preaches. His voice cries aloud and alone in the wilderness of error among those who dislike his views."

— N Y Times 21:278 J1 9 '16 880w

"A characteristically thorough and painstaking analysis of the history and principles of a relationship which has long been a subject of much earnest controversy."

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 29 '16 800w

SPARKS, FRANK MELVILLE. Business of government: municipal. *$1.25 (1½c) Rand 352 16-7687

The key word to this book is to be found in the title. To the author government is a business. This is the new theory that takes place of the old one; government is politics. 'Office holding is no longer mere honor. It is a job. . . . This book is designed to set forth in simple, understandable language the fundamental principles of the business of municipal government.' (Foreword) The book is made up of 52 short chapters devoted to the commission and other forms of municipal government, to the different departments of municipal government, and to such subjects as Assessment of property, The budget, Bond issues, Purchasing, Conservation, Sanitation, Recreation, Franchises and Public utilities. There is no index.

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 5 '16 400w

N Y Br Lib News 3:90 Je '16 50w

Pittsburgh 21:303 Je '16 10w

+ Pratt p10 O '16 30w

"Every word in the book means just what he wants it to mean, and every chapter could be outlined down to the shortest sentence. Combined with his thorough knowledge of his subject, this extreme clearness makes the book as useful as a dictionary. Schools and prisons are the only two matters that have not received their due amount of space and attention. Perhaps at just this moment they may both be taken for granted—being directly in the public eye." E. P. Wyckoff

+ Pub W 89:1327 Ap 15 '16 600w

SPEARMAN, FRANK HAMILTON. Nan of Music mountain. il *$1.35 (1½c) Scribner 16-8460

A story of the West, located indefinitely somewhere in the Rocky mountains in the vicinity of rich gold mines. A stage line, under the management of the railroad, runs out from the town of Sleepy City to the mines. At the opening of the story Henry de Spain has just been offered a tempting salary if he will accept the management of this line, it being understood that his rapidity in gun play is the quality that prompts the offer. For there has been one hold-up too many and the outlaw Morgans of Morgan's Gap have gone a step too far and there is a feeling that the time has come to clean them out. De Spain accepts the offer and from the beginning his task, difficult as it is at best, is complicated by the presence of Nan Morgan in the Gap. How he wins his fight and the girl too makes an exciting story in which one thrilling adventure follows rapidly on the heels of another.

"Appeared in Everybody's magazine."

+ A L A Bk1 12:432 Je '16

"Girl-and-gun romance in its purest distillate, though a slight thing after 'Whispering Smith.'" Wilson Follett

Atlan 118:493 O '16

"I have simply been moved to commend this tale as notably good of its kind." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:536 J1 '16 350w

Boston Transcript p6 Je 10 '16 120w

+ Cath World 103:700 Ag '16 110w

"It is a very good story of its kind, which means that it is good in incident, strong on local color, and not without some impressions of character." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 61:26 Je 22 '16 330w

"If you like exciting stories, stories full of hard riding and gun play, stories where the hero would have died seven times before the happy ending, if he had not been the hero, then read 'Nan of Music mountain.'"

+ Ind 86:220 My 8 '16 70w

+ Nation 103:85 J1 27 '16 180w

"Mr. Spearman's story is characteristically American, and as true as it is graphic in its local color. But the feature of 'Nan of Music mountain' that most frequently makes the reader remember 'Lorna Doone' is the quality of the romantic spirit in which it is written. It is a romantic story because it deals simply and realistically with the fine, true, elemental things of life and sees them with fresh and reverent eyes."

+ N Y Times 21:129 Ap 9 '16 770w

"A veritable 'Lorna Doone,' brought up to date and served with the sauce piquant of American gun-play! Of course, the Victorian leisure, revelling in fine pictures, profound introspection, and wealth of detail, is absent from Mr. Spearman's book and will undoubtedly be missed by lovers of 'Lorna Doone.' However, the spirit and dash of the action in 'Nan of Music mountain' tend to make up for the absent features, and the essential idea of the old favorite is present in attractive garb." Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 89:1026 Mr 18 '16 650w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 320w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 50w

SPEER, ROBERT ELLIOTT. Unity of the Americas. 25c (1c) Missionary educ. movement 918

A little book written in the interests of a better understanding between Anglo-America and Latin America. The four chapters are devoted respectively to the political, commercial, educational and religious relationships between the two continents. The work is to some extent a compilation, the author quoting liberally from such writers as Federico Alfonso Pezet, F. Garcia Calderon, James Bryce, Hiram Bingham and E. A. Ross.

SPENCER, ELLEN LANE. Efficient secretary. *$1 (2c) Stokes 652 16-5318

This is a practical, concise statement of the principles which, when followed, lead to efficiency in secretaryship and of the duties of the efficient secretary. It is planned to be of use to employers in telling them what they have a right to expect, and to employees as setting a high standard against which they may measure their work. It is especially designed to help the clerical worker who would rise professionally. In many cases this can be accomplished by following the sound advice given in Choosing the right vocation; The importance of proper dress and food; Essential points; Economy; Loyalty, and 12 other chapters of equal or similar value.

+ A L A Bkl 12:413 Je '16

"Although mainly designed for those engaged in business life, the book contains hints of value to stenographers and assistants not affiliated with commercial work."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 19 '16 330w

"Its terse and lucid manner, its special reference to the so-called unessential details, and its direct appeal, make it of value to those who aspire to 'success and financial reward.'"

+ Ind 85:465 Mr 27 '16 60w

Pittsburgh 21:242 My '16

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:269 Je '16 20w

SPENDER, HAROLD. General Botha, the career and the man. il $2.50 (3c) Houghton 16-26931

"While writing this book," says the author, "I have felt all the time that it was in truth 'war work.' For what better work could one do in war-time than to mirror, as faithfully as one can, the actual figure and performance of a man like Louis Botha? One who is as daring and swift in battle as he is wise and merciful in victory, as skilled a craftsman of peace as he is a master of war, as cunning in cure as he is potent in punishment?" The first chapters are concerned with Childhood and home, Youth and adventure, and The "new republic." The titles of those that follow show how closely the life of General Botha has been knit to the history of South Africa: War (1899-1900); The war in flood (1900); The war in ebb (1901); Peace (1902); Salvage (1903-5); The Transvaal premiership (1906-10); The coming of union (1908-9); The Union premiership (1910); The Hertzog split (1912); The labour crisis (1913-14); The rebellion (1914); The German war (1915); The man.

+ A L A Bkl 13:121 D '16

"A condensed account of an interesting personality told in a brisk and popular manner." Ath p290 Je '16 80w

"A distinct illumination of a by no means inconsiderable portion of the history of our own times." W. R. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 30 '16 1500w

+ Cleveland p160 D '16 40w

"Without attempting a formal biography, Mr. Spender has established Louis Botha's position as one of the great men in modern history and one of the noblest; and he has stirred desire to the point of insistence on a true biography to follow."

+ Dial 61:273 O 5 '16 370w

+ Ind 88:122 O 16 '16 210w

"The treatment of the Boer war by the English author calls for not a little display of tact. On the whole Mr. Spender has negotiated the difficulties that confronted him with a good deal of skill. . . . The chapters on Peace and on Salvage are particularly good, bringing out the patience and sound sense displayed, on the one side, by Botha, and, on the other, by Lord Kitchener."

+ Nation 103:612 D 28 '16 1050w

"The author, a correspondent of the London Daily News, has filled a need in this biography not supplied in the brief popular histories of South Africa by Tilby and Scully, nor the authoritative 'Times history,' hardly accessible to American readers."

+ N Y Times 21:479 N 12 '16 1400w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 8 '16 750w

"Frankly, the result is disappointing. As a portrait-study Mr. Spender's sketch fails. He misses the 'atmosphere.' It is just in the intimate circumstances which most reveal the character of a man that the book is barren. Worse, it is much too often inaccurate about well-ascertained facts. . . . We can imagine General Botha reading most of the book with genuine amusement. It reveals on almost every page the fact that the author has 'got up' his subject from a distance."

—The Times [London] Lit Sup p267 Je 8 '16 1350w

SPERLING, HARRY. Playground book. il $1.80 Barnes 793 16-26858

"Playground teachers will be glad to have 'The playground book,' by Harry Sperling. It presents a fairly limited choice of the best games and dances adapted to playground conditions and purposes in order that novices may refer with confidence to them for help and inspiration. There are singing games and folk dances with music, playground athletic games, also class-room games, suggestions, talks, etc., and a bibliography for playground workers. It is a large-sized book like a folio of music, well printed from large type, with excellent illustrations."—R of Rs

+ A L A Bkl 13:72 N '16

Ind 87:349 S 4 '16 10w

N Y Br Lib News 3:69 My '16

+ R of Rs 54:349 S '16 90w

"Any one having children's play to direct will find helpful suggestion here."

+ Springfield Republican p6 N 28 '16 60w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:319 J1 '16 20w

SPOFFORD, HARRIET ELIZABETH (PRES-COTT) (MRS. RICHARD S. SPOFFORD). Little book of friends. $1.25 (4c) Little 920.7 16-19447

The friends of whom the author writes are Annie Fields, Sarah Orne Jewett, Anne Whitney, Celia Thaxter, Gail Hamilton, Mary Louise Booth, Jane Andrews, Louisa Stone Hopkins, Rose Terry Cooke and Louise Chandler Moulton. Many of the friendships go back to girlhood and the author writes simply and intimately of her happy relationships with these distinguished women.

"Written with the enthusiasm and intimate knowledge of personal friendship. The essay on Gail Hamilton is the most able and entertaining."

+ A L A Bkl 13:121 D '16

+ Dial 61:472 N 30 '16 150w

Ind 88:239 N 6 '16 60w

R of Rs 54:570 N '16 60w

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 29 '16 350w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:410 N '16 70w

SPRAGUE, HOMER BAXTER. Studies in Shakespeare (first series). $1.25 Pilgrim press 822.3 16-11035

The four papers presented here constitute studies of four periods in Shakespeare's career. The first is Shakespeare's cradle and school, a study of his early environment and his genius for labor. Those that follow are: Shakespeare's early manhood, a study of his marriage, pedagogy, law, and foundations; Shakespeare's sword and musket, a study of the military element in the man and his dramas; Shakespeare's wand and sceptre, a study of his imagination and points of superiority. The author has written other works on Shakespeare and has edited volumes of the plays.

"Mr. Sprague gives us a better book on Shakespeare than these portents prepare us for, although it is of course questionable whether he says anything new enough to warrant its addition to the already overwhelming collection of Shakespeareana." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Je 17 '16 470w

N Y Times 21:336 Ag 27 '16 60w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 29 '16 280w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE. Gold trail; a romance of the South Seas (Eng title, Reef of stars). $1.30 (1c) Lane 16-15154

Past the Heads of Sydney harbor the 50-foot yawl Barracuda put out to sea, manned by five adventurers and bound for New Guinea. Months later she returned with two of her crew missing, with a half-breed Dyak girl in her cabin, and with gold overflowing her hold and her fo'c'sle. This is the story of how the gold was won. Deaths by scorpion, gorilla, head-hunters, poisoned spear, and starvation figure in the pages, with man's greed, treachery and loyalty, and woman's hate and love as determining motives for all that happened.

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE —Continued

A L A Bkl 13:86 N '16

+ Ath p435 S '16 120w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:67 S '16 370w

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 9 '16 350w

"Tropical psychology occupies this writer less than the pictorial aspects of sub-equatorial regions. One is likely to remember the adventure as incidental to its scene and atmosphere."

+ Nation 103:399 O 26 '16 270w

+ N Y Times 21:281 JI 16 '16 650w

+ Springfield Republican p15 JI 30 '16 250w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Ag 31 '16 580w

STANFORD, SIR CHARLES VILLIERS, and FORSYTH, CECIL. History of music. II
*$2 (1c) Macmillan 780.9 16-22267

The purpose of this book is to give the student and the general public "a short, easily read account of the whole course of musical history." Musical history is divided into three periods: Ancient music, 900 A. D.; Medieval music, 900-1600; Modern music, 1600 to the present. To the treatment of ancient music four chapters are given: The origins of music; The Egyptians, Assyrians and Babylonians, Hebrews, Arabians, Indians, Chinese; The Greeks; Rome and the dark ages. Medieval music is treated in six chapters: Scales and notes; The less dark ages; Dunstable, Dufay, Des Près; The golden age; The palace of Greenwich, January 26, 1595; Song and folk song. The remainder of the book is given up to modern music with chapters on: The secular century; The eighteenth century; The Viennese masters; The contemporaries of Beethoven; The post-Beethoven period; Nationalism, modern schools. The two authors contribute separate and distinct chapters to the book.

"The chapters on mediaeval music are perhaps the most important, as that period has a real relation to our own; they are also, we think, of greater value than the final chapters on relatively and actually modern music. This is, after all, largely a matter of opinion, and excellent as is Sir Charles Stanford's contribution here, he is covering fairly well-known ground, whereas his colleague is giving what must be to many readers fresh information."

+ Ath p589 D '16 110w

"Of especial value to the wide-awake musician is the final chapter on Nationalism and modern schools, in which the characteristics of the music of various countries, Russia, France, England, America, Germany, etc., are presented."

Musician 21:772 D '16 140w

+ R of Rs 55:219 F '17 80w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p635 D 28 '16 800w

STANWOOD, EDWARD. History of the presidency. 2v *$4.50 Houghton 329 16-26861

v 2 This is a second edition of the second volume of Mr. Stanwood's history of the presidency. The first volume, "History of the presidency, 1878-1897," was published in 1898. The second, published in 1912, continued the history to that year. This new edition brings the work down to date to 1916. Contents: "Imperialism" the "paramount" issue; Roosevelt's election for a "second term"; The era of "progressive" insurgency; The republican schism; The evolution of the presidency.

"The changes have occurred in volume 2 only, and consist of one new chapter 'The republican schism,' the index enlarged to include those of volumes 1 and 2, and a new appendix which describes 'Conventions, candidates, and platforms' of 1916 instead of 1912 as did the old edition of volume 2."

A L A Bkl 13:95 N '16

Ind 88:506 D 18 '16 40w

+ R of Rs 54:683 D '16 40w

STARCH, DANIEL. Educational measurements. II *$1.25 Macmillan 371 16-15046

"Professor Starch, who has carried on a great many quantitative experiments in education, has brought together in a single volume a number of the tests which can be used in measuring ability in elementary-school subjects. The standard scales prepared by other authors are reproduced in this volume, and Professor Starch has given very fully those tests which he himself has worked out."—El School J

"Dr. Daniel Starch presents a very good statement of work already undertaken in this field, and wisely protects himself from criticism by stating that most of the measurements are yet in the experimental stage. He might have added that most of them, from their very character and from the nature of the case, will always remain there."

Educ R 52:527 D '16 80w

"The book contains very little descriptive material. Indeed, the novice who undertakes to work with these tests would find it difficult to use the material which is published in this book without some further explanation than is here offered. This statement constitutes, we believe, a serious criticism of the volume. . . . By the time one has taken up these various considerations he wonders why the book is published."

— El School J 17:84 O '16 500w

N Y Br Lib News 3:143 S '16

"The reader unfamiliar with the literature of this field, will welcome the volume. To those who have kept abreast of the developments in standard scales and tests in education, the book will probably prove both a surprise and a disappointment; a surprise because the author has overlooked so much of the material available that should be digested in such a book, and a disappointment because so many of the tests included are extremely amateurish, while others upon the same subjects of proved value are not even mentioned. . . . All in all, the author is to be commended mostly for organizing for the casual reader a possible course in educational measurements." E. J. Lewis

— + School R 25:62 Ja '17 350w

STARR, LOUIS. Adolescent period, its features and management. *$1 Blakiston 136.7 15-28166

"The emphasis is [placed] on the physical side—growth, the development of the muscular system, physical education, the diseases of adolescence, etc. There is a brief discussion of the 'faults' of adolescence, in which some of the normal symptoms of youth are treated from the point of view of the offensive and criminal and otherwise undesirable forms that they may take."—Ind

+ A L A Bkl 12:403 Je '16

"The book is primarily a useful and simple handbook from the medical point of view. It tells the story directly for the benefit of parents and those who have responsibility for the young. It is safe and sane, especially on sex matters, and generally full of good counsel; it is cautious without being alarming, and includes enough of various matters to make a rounded whole."

+ Dial 61:32 Je 22 '16 100w

Ind 85:461 Mr 27 '16 90w

"Written in simple, straightforward style. It contains nothing especially new, but it is sensible and trustworthy. It collects the essential facts and presents them with the least possible use of technical terms. Parents who are looking for practical suggestions rather than for entertaining reading, will find this little book very helpful."

+ Nation 102:sup486 My 4 '16 140w

"This book is either a remarkable coincidence or a bit of straight plagiarism. No one who has braved the 1337 pages of G. Stanley Hall's heroic volumes on adolescence is likely to forget the experience. Wherefore one does not read many lines of Dr. Starr's book without noticing an extraordinary similarity of plan and even of phrasing." Gertrude Seymour

+ Survey 36:294 Je 10 '16 320w

"Will meet the average teacher's need for aid in the subjects for which Hall's 'Adolescence' and Moll's 'Sexual life of the child' are recommended in most reading lists."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:142 Mr '16 70w

STATESMAN'S year-book, 1916: statistical and historical annual of the world; ed. by J. Scott Keltie, assisted by M. Epstein. 53d annual publication, rev. after official returns. *$3.50 Macmillan 305

In spite of war time conditions, the editors state, they have been able to obtain recent statistics from most of the belligerent countries. Facts and figures relating to Germany "have been brought up to date in accordance with the latest officially published information." All the matter relating to the principal allied states and the neutral countries has been revised and Japan and Spain have been given special attention. The maps deal with subjects of present interest: Railway schemes in Asiatic Turkey, Distribution of Germans throughout the world, etc.

"The material relating to the Far East, especially that relating to China, has been considerably enlarged." L. S. R.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:319 S '16 90w

Eng Hist R 21:676 O '16 120w

"There is an illuminating summary which deals with the great war in regard to population, books, loans, and war finance."

+ Nature 97:479 Ag 10 '16 230w

"The chapter on Germany naturally does not tell us what we want to know about her remaining reserves, but it gives the figures of the 1916-17 budget and other recent information."

+ Spec 117:192 Ag 12 '16 180w

"For the naval information contained in the volume, for which the late Mr. F. T. Jane was for some years responsible, the responsibility is now transferred to the very competent hands of Mr. John Leyland. . . . The map of 'Railway schemes in Asiatic Turkey, 1916,' is not altogether accurate in that it shows only one gap in the so-called Baghdad railway—that of the Cilician gates—between the Bosphorus and the point where its completion is suspended in Mesopotamia. The account given of this railway under 'Turkey' in the body of the volume shows, however, that there are other gaps in its continuity besides that of the Cilician gates."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p344 J1 20 '16 650w

STEELE, L. M., pseud. Dr. Nick. 1l *$1.40 (1c) Small 16-26998

Nikon, a little Russian immigrant boy, is saved from deportation by Dr. Rideau, adopted by him and brought up to be a physician. As an interne in the hospital, he meets Naida, a nurse, who as a child had had a bringing up as unusual as his own. Naida is represented by the author as a woman in whom the instinct for motherhood has reached its highest development. In Dr. Nick she recognizes the "One" for whom she has waited. But he, less mature at the time than she, and absorbed in his work, is not ready for marriage and parenthood. He lets the opportunity for great happiness slip by him. Naida marries another and both pass thru deep tribulation before they are free to come into their own.

"The problems of the novel are unique, and the handling of them lifts them away from any charge of sensationalism." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 1 '16 930w

"A remarkable book, worthy of much more than a casual reading of the thoughts expressed, and containing at least one vital character which will not be readily forgotten."

+ N Y Times 21:490 N 19 '16 600w

STEELE, ROBERT, ed. Russian garland of fairy tales. 1l *$1.50 (2½c) McBride

A book of Russian folk tales translated from a collection of peasant chap-books made in Moscow in 1830. The foreword says: "It is not necessary to dilate upon the peculiarities of chap-books and their methods: in the conditions of their existence many of the finest qualities of the primitive stories are eliminated, but on the other hand certain essentials are enforced. The story must be direct, the interest sustained, and the language, however fine, simple and easily understood. It is to be hoped that some of these merits have been preserved in this translation: for this book is intended to appeal to a class of severe and incorruptible critics—the children of to-day." There are pictures in color by R. de Rosciszewski.

+ N Y Times 21:523 N 26 '16 60w

+ Spec 115:838 D 11 '15 30w

"Much of the directness, sustained interest and easily understood language—essentials necessary to the success of the original stories—have been preserved in the translations."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 180w

STEFANSSON, JON. Denmark and Sweden, with Iceland and Finland; with a preface by Viscount Bryce. 1l *$1.50 Putnam 948

16-25248

"This short history of Scandinavia, which of course includes Norway, although the title-page omits it, is a useful addition to the 'Story of the nations' series. . . . The author, as an Icelander, very properly emphasizes the achievement of Iceland—a nation of seventy thousand people—in maintaining a high civilization for a thousand years in the far north."—Spec

"The best sections of the book are those on Gustavus Vasa, Sweden and the reformation, and Gustavus Adolphus. The great part played by Sweden in the thirty years' war is well described. There is a concise account of the struggles of the Finns; and the synchronistic tables of events in Sweden, Denmark and Norway, with the conspectus of the reigns of kings and regents, will be of service to students."

+ Ath p550 N '16 150w

"A rich epitome, which students and journalists should value as a work of reference."

+ Sat R 122:484 N 18 '16 1200w

"Even in a brief sketch like this, the intensely dramatic character of Sweden's history is manifest. The author is biased against Russia."

+ Spec 117:sup610 N 18 '16 140w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p515 O 26 '16 90w

"It is, so far as the present writer is aware, the only English book which deals comprehensively and in a moderate compass with the history of the countries it concerns. For the late Mr. Nisbet Bain's 'Scandinavia' covered only the period from 1513 to 1900, while Mr. Stefansson begins with the origins and carries his story down to the eve of the war. . . . Much light is thrown by this book on the historical causes of the attitude of the various Scandinavian peoples towards the present war. . . . A serious omission is that of a list of authorities."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 11 '17 1200w

STEINER, EDWARD ALFRED. Confession of a hyphenated American. *50c (4c) Revell 325.7

"I plead guilty to the charge of being a hyphenated American according to Webster—not

STEINER, EDWARD ALFRED—Continued
 according to Roosevelt," says the author. And according to Webster hyphenated means "something which is united by hyphens." Mr. Steiner is optimistic in his belief that there are many others of his kind in America, men and women of foreign birth who feel that this is their country. No one can read the little book without gaining some understanding of what it feels like to be a hyphenated-American. It is a reprint of a lecture first delivered under the auspices of the League for political education, New York city.

Reviewed by H. A. Miller
 + Am J Soc 22:269 S '16 950w
 + A L A Bkl 12:457 J1 '16

"The author speaks with the natural authority of a loyal American. His arguments are clear and he opens eyes to the injustice of the ordinary agitator. Every suggestion here in regard to better and more tolerant citizenship is worth careful and thoughtful reading."

+ Lit D 52:916 Ap 1 '16 200w

"In this time of many strident voices and much overinflamed feeling, it is balm to the mind and the spirit to come upon pages so sane and wise and so thoroughly imbued with the finest and truest of American ideals as can be found in 'The confessions of a hyphenated American.' The little book deserves the widest reading."

+ N Y Times 21:172 Ap 23 '16 200w
 + Springfield Republican p15 J1 30 '16 170w
 + Wis Lib Bull 12:268 Je '16 60w

STEINER, EDWARD ALFRED. America. *$1 (2c) Revell 325.7 17-219

Six Chautauqua lectures delivered during a week devoted to "Americanization" form the basis for this book. Other chapters bearing on the same subject have been added. The author is a loyal and patriotic American whose "Americanism" rests on an ideal and on hope for the future rather than on reverence for a traditional past and which expresses itself in desire for service. His patriotism is not that of the militarist. "I repudiate any attempt to make of us merely another world power, another armed camp, another huge, man-eating, national monster, whether of the German, French or English type," he says. He believes in the future of America: "We are a people still in the making and our pains are growing pains, not the pains of death or decay." Contents: The nation's pulse; Nationalism; The land and the people; Language and the nation; The stomach line; History and the nation; The schools and the nation; The churches and the nation; Nationality and the immigrant; A word to the unwise.

"Professor Steiner avoids arguments and eschews statistics. He generalizes about American life and purposes along the broadest lines and in the most assimilative phrases; if anything more is wanted these sociological hors-d'oeuvres are not the thing. But they make easy reading."

Dial 62:74 Ja 25 '17 100w

Springfield Republican p6 N 27 '16 180w

"Though covering a greater variety of subjects than it is possible to recall on laying down the book . . . these lectures develop a systematic program in logical sequence." B. Lasker
 + Survey 37:343 D 23 '16 380w

STEINMETZ, CHARLES PROTEUS. America and the new epoch. *$1 (2c) Harper 330.9 16-21734

Whatever its military and political results the war will bring about a general industrial reorganization. The individualistic era of the past will be replaced by a co-operative era. This change has already taken place in some of the countries of Europe and if the United States is to hold her own among the nations of the world, she must reorganize her industries on a like principle. The organization will take a different form however, for the difference between the democratic and the monarchical temperament is that for the one movement must always be from the individual to the central government, rather than from the center outward. The type of organization which should be perfected on a national scale is furnished by the great industrial corporation. This is the thesis set forth by the author, who is an American citizen of German birth, a socialist, and a distinguished scientist.

"In spite of its lack of intellectual flexibility, in spite of its dogmatism and its unrealistic narrowing of the field of discussion to easily formulated issues, the little book has a few high qualities of thought."

+ — New Repub 9:103 N 25 '16 350w

"The book gains no little of its large value from this quality of personal testimony by a qualified observer who has experienced both systems. As such he has taken and presents a bird's-eye view of world industries, and speaks industrially where all others are speaking in terms of politics, war, and diplomacy. It is a stimulating volume presenting points of view which ought not to be so novel."

+ N Y Times 21:574 D 31 '16 800w

"Unquestionably one of the most important contributions yet made in this country to socialist thought."

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 31 '16 920w

STEINMETZ, CHARLES PROTEUS. Theoretical elements of electrical engineering, 4th ed rev 11 *$3 McGraw 621.3 15-24253

"The present edition is not merely a reprint from former ones but has been thoroughly revised and rewritten. Some matter which appeared in former editions has been withdrawn and new matter has been added with the idea of preserving the unity of the book and at the same time making it representative of theory and practise as it exists to-day."—Science

"The book that is now considered a classic in literature on electrical engineering, a book the presence of which in an engineer's library is a very good index to the owner's familiarity and appreciation of the work of modern genius and the absence of which from a library reflects unfavorably upon his comprehension of the essential literature of his profession."

+ Elec World 67:948 Ap 22 '16 500w

"Originally written in 1901, and in 1915 ran through its fourth edition. The great expansion of the art and science in this period had brought so many actual and proposed additions to the text that it was found impossible to continue the issue of this work and its companion, 'Alternating current phenomena.' A radical rearrangement, therefore, has been started of both volumes. It is planned to withhold part of the material finally available for these two volumes and to incorporate it in a third member of the series. The detailed treatment is that made familiar for several years by the author and needs no discussion here. There is one notable change, however—the substitution of the standardized 'crank diagram' of vector representation for the author's preferred polar diagram, which gives an apparently anti-clockwise vector rotation."

+ Engin N 75:944 My 18 '16 210w

"The treatment in the main, is of course scholarly and thorough. Dr. Steinmetz's ability to use mathematics to elucidate difficult electrical phenomena is too well known to need mention. The book should find a more extended use in the class room than its predecessors, and no teacher can afford to be without it."—Electrical Review and Western Electrician, My 13, 1916."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p10 My '16 140w
 Pittsburgh 22:52 Ja '17 80w

"Many readers of electrical literature have all of Steinmetz's books; certainly every one should have at least this elementary text on alternating current circuits and machines." J. H. M.

+ Science n s 43:574 Ap 21 '16 400w

STEPHENS, ETHEL, comp. American popular magazines. (Bul. of bibliography pamphlets, no. 23) pa 25c Boston Bk. 016.05 16-6557

"Miss Ethel Stephens, of the Library school of the University of Wisconsin, has prepared a 32-page bibliography of 'American popular magazines.' Periodical articles about our best-known magazine, about writing for the magazines, and on other kindred subjects, furnish the greater number of entries, with occasional references to books. The term 'magazine' is made so inclusive as to embrace other than monthly publications, as for instance the Nation and the Dial.—Dial

"Exhaustiveness is not claimed for this modest bibliography, but it is a useful work in a field comparatively uncultivated by the bibliographer."

+ Dial 60:478 My 11 '16 100w
Pittsburgh 21:185 Ap '16 30w
St Louis 15:5 Ja '17 50w

STEPHENS, JAMES. Insurrection in Dublin.
*$1.25 (6c) Macmillan 941.5 16-20562

In seven chapters Mr. Stephens writes of what was happening in Dublin during the week following Easter, 1916. "The few chapters which make up this book are not a history of the rising. . . . What I have written is no more than a statement of what passed in one quarter of our city, and a gathering together of the rumour and tension which for nearly two weeks had to serve the Dublin people in lieu of news. It had to serve many Dublin people in place of bread." At the close of this day-by-day record there are five chapters: The insurrection is over; The volunteers; Some of the leaders; Labour and the insurrection; The Irish questions.

+ A L A Bkl 13:216 F '17
Reviewed by Van Wyck Brooks
+ Dial 61:458 N 30 '16 390w
+ Nation 103:587 D 21 '16 160w

"The value of his book is naturally not in its information, but in the quality of its perceptions and reactions, the sincerity of its judgments and the pathos of its direct and disinterested transcription of events. It is a detached account of the rebellion, the account of one interested yet aloof and questioning, the account of one brooding. But it has the veracity of genius, the ability to handle a new set of situations without conventionalizing them or without dislocating the old arrangement of life." F. H.

+ New Repub 9:52 N 11 '16 2000w

"He has caught with wonderful accuracy and vividness the various notes that made up the emotional tone of Dublin during the rebellion. . . . Mr. Stephens has provided an adequate answer to the question, 'What was it like?' with which Dublin residents were bombarded for a couple of months after the trouble was over; but when he comes to deal with the eternal 'Why?' of it all, he gets on unaccustomed ground and his hand loses its cunning."

+ — Spec 117:631 N 18 '16 720w

"Mr. Stephens's query whether it will avail anything to describe these things to English readers may be answered with the assurance that only books about Ireland like this one are of any real help to the English reader just now. This queer, quiet book, written with an almost inhuman detachment and yet with passionate interest, makes one see with an altogether unusual vividness certain acts and events of Easter week as the writer saw them, and—more valuable to the English reader—his comments on the whole help one to understand something of the Sinn Féin point of view."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p485 O 12 '16 980w

STEPHENS, KATE. Mastering of Mexico. il
*$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 972 16-5717

The story of the conquest of Mexico by Cortez based on the narrative of one of his companions, Bernal Diaz de Castillo. Miss Stephens has made use of "Memoirs of the conquistador, Bernal Diaz del Castillo," by John Graham Lockhart, published in 1844, and other works. The first person form of narrative is preserved.

"Bernal Diaz did not write his account of the matter until fifty years later when old age had brought leisure. But his memories were so full and sharp and he must have lived it all over again so keenly as he wrote that he visualises every happening with as much vividness as if he had been writing of things he had seen and done an hour before. He even remembers and sets forth with due appraisal the appearance and quality of each of the horses of the scanty troop." F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:420 Je '16 750w
+ Boston Transcript p4 My 24 '16 620w
+ Cath World 104:254 N '16 210w

"The narrative is vivid and direct and emphasizes the phases which would naturally interest one who was a man of action rather than an historical student. A book which would interest some children."

+ Cleveland p98 J1 '16 60w
+ Ind 86:183 My 1 '16 60w

"One of the chief criticisms to which Miss Stephens's book is open is its brevity. She does not make clear just how much comes from Diaz, but it appears that her work is almost wholly a condensation and abbreviation of the conquistador's tale. Not only does she condense extremely, but she omits nearly all that precedes and follows the narrative of the actual conquest of the City of Mexico. Except for one plate, facing page 158, all the illustrations to Miss Stephens's 'Mastering of Mexico' are repeated from traditional sources. Even of paintings and monuments easily accessible, new cuts were not prepared."

+ — Nation 102:595 Je 1 '16 1050w

"Puts the account of the journey and the conquering of Montezuma into terse, idiomatic English, befitting the character of the Spanish soldier of fortune and author."

+ N Y Times 21:265 J1 2 '16 70w
R of Rs 53:754 Je '16 50w

Springfield Republican p15 Ap 11 '16 170w

STEPHENS, KATE. Workfellows in social progression. *$1.50 (3c) Sturgis & Walton
814 17-272

A volume made up of six essays with a prologue. The prologue asks the question Is there social progression? and answers it affirmatively. The first of the essays that follow is a friendly and sympathetic study of the country newspaper as a social institution. Two of the essays relate to the progress of women, one of them being devoted to Forerunners of women's collegiate education, with special reference to Mary Astell, the other to Uses and abuses of two English words, female and woman. The three remaining essays are: Plato's imperishable epigram; and its trail of light; Fables of bronze and iron ages; of to-day; "Tobacco battered and pipes shattered" by Joshua Sylvester, Puritan.

"As a whole it bears the mark of vigorous study on the part of its author, and is interesting as a general review of the subjects treated therein. But it contributes little really new to our knowledge or to our enjoyment."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 6 '17 200w

STERLING, FRANK WARD. Small boat navigation. (Outing handbooks) il *70c (2½c)
Outing pub. 527 16-13862

A practical, concise handbook for the young seaman. The first section covers navigation, navigational instruments, books, records, the vessel's position and dead reckoning. The second part is on seamanship and discusses soundings, tides, the light and buoy system of the United States, weather and rules of the road. The terminology of the sea is carefully defined and explained.

+ A L A Bkl 13:206 F '17
+ Ind 87:32 J1 3 '16 40w
N Y Br Lib News 3:107 J1 '16

STERLING, GEORGE. Caged eagle, and other poems. $1.50 Robertson 811 16-14902

"Mr. Sterling is not a native of the Pacific state. But his love for her [California] and her people has made him a true citizen and a true poet of her life and nature. He reflects this in his work. Something of her bounteous largeness of spirit and scenery; of her ripe and golden moods, works in his poetry. . . . His interests or subjects are not limited by local influences. It were an offense to mention the impossibility of this, even. But, his style largely formed by them, it is of particular importance to note that his whole spiritual temper is made significant by the unusual quality this large power has upon his nature." (Boston Transcript) The three poems on the Panama-Pacific exposition that were published in a separate volume are reprinted here.

STERLING, GEORGE—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 20 '16 950w

"Passion, imagination, and dignity are characteristics of Mr. Sterling's work; he is never trivial, never sensational."

+ Lit D 53:198 J1 22 '16 580w

STERLING, GEORGE. Evanescence city. il 75c
Robertson 811 16-13535

"Three poems by George Sterling, whose home is in California at Carmel-by-the-Sea, are issued in attractive gift-book edition by A. M. Robertson. They are: 'The evanescent city,' which is the city of the Panama-Pacific exposition, an ode 'Yosemite,' and 'Ode on the exposition.' They are exquisitely printed, and the two first mentioned are illustrated with cuts from photographs." (R of Rs) "The evanescent city" first appeared in the Sunset magazine.

"The three slim but eloquent volumes show the exaltation of the poet as a Californian and a humanist." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '16 600w

+ Ind 86:23 Ap 3 '16 20w

"For felicitous phrasing, melody, and adherence to classical standards, the poetry of George Sterling is unexcelled among that of American poets."

+ R of Rs 53:375 Mr '16 140w

+ St Louis 14:400 N '16 20w

STERRETT, FRANCES ROBERTA. Mary Rose of Mifflin. il $1.25 Appleton 16-6200

Tells how a little orphan was adopted by the janitor of a big apartment building in the face of the owner's ruling that "children, cats and dogs" were not allowed on the premises. Mary Rose was a "friendly little creature who expected every one to be nice and kind and friendly to her. Of course she revolutionized the big apartment house, putting on neighborly terms tenants who had never before spoken to one another, and playing an important part in two love affairs. Moreover, she never got into mischief, was always cheerful, good-natured, obedient, and helpful." (N Y Times)

+ — Boston Transcript p9 N 29 '16 210w

"Mary Rose is one of those little angels so frequently encountered in fiction. The story is described on the cover as one 'of good cheer,' and contains enough sentiment for at least a dozen tales. It has some amusing bits, and George Washington, Mary Rose's 'self-supporting cat,' is quite attractive."

+ — N Y Times 21:208 My 14 '16 270w

"Mary Rose is quaint, and her observations and optimism are happy phases of a pleasantly sentimental story."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 Je 18 '16 180w

STEVENI, WILLIAM BARNES. Petrograd, past and present. il $3 Lippincott 914.7
(Eng ed 16-1467)

The author tells the story of Petrograd "from its beginning to the present day, describing all the attractions of Russia's capital, its historical growth and development, its fortresses, the wonderful Neva, the unique 'Nevsky Prospekt,' its police system, and its people. In describing the beautiful buildings, the author betrays the personalities and characteristics of their inhabitants and different members of the royal family. In and out of the narrative is woven a history of Russia's rulers from Peter the Great to the present Czar Nicholas." (Lit D)

+ A L A Bk1 12:477 J1 '16

"An intimate and gossiping narrative of life and institutions in Russia by one who entered the country at the age of sixteen and lived there for twenty-seven years. The book is interesting, although the style demands leisure and some patience. The book is copiously and excellently illustrated."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 1 '16 190w

"An exhaustive description of physical Petrograd and its 'key,' Cronstadt. It is full of reminiscences, personal comments, and well-written descriptions of historical events, and contains much valuable and interesting information."

+ Lit D 52:916 Ap 1 '16 150w

N Y Times 21:340 Ag 27 '16 630w

"There is only one caution which it will be well to bear in mind. However true his account of Petrograd in the past, it has very little relation to the Petrograd of the present or, as we may confidently hope, of the future."

+ Spec 116:195 F 5 '16 400w

STEVENS, BERTHA MORTON. Boys and girls in commercial work. il 25c (1/2c) Cleveland foundation, Survey committee; Russell Sage foundation 370.91 16-6255

This report brings out the important fact that at present commercial high schools are offering training that is better adapted to the needs of girls than to those of boys. The positions open to girls are those demanding an exact knowledge of something, usually type-writing and stenography. Boys, on the other hand, are expected to begin at the bottom and learn the business. Specific training of any sort is not desired by employers. The report covers an investigation into transportation and public utilities, the retail store, the wholesale business, manufacturing, banking, and civil service.

+ El School J 16:464 My '16 900w

+ Ind 86:219 My 8 '16 90w

Pittsburgh 21:242 My '16 70w

STEVENS, THOMAS WOOD. Lettering. il $2
Prang 745 16-21715

"This book is a welcome addition to the literature of the subject for several reasons: The examples of good lettering are large enough to be easily studied; they present a wide variety of beautiful forms; they show the work of many of the foremost American designers of good lettering—Goudy, Bradley, Hapgood, Dwiggins, Brown, Hall, Cooper, Gage, and others."—School Arts Magazine

+ A L A Bk1 13:160 Ja '17

+ Cleveland — D '16 20w

+ Ind 88:127 C 16 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:122 Ag '16 40w

"Should be of especial value because of the large amount of text which explains the use of tools and materials; the authoritative technical instruction; the explanation of the historical significance of the various forms, and suggestions for their most appropriate use. Contains more than sixty plates of alphabets, also many examples of lettering in cover-designs and title-pages."

+ Pittsburgh 21:570 D '16 50w (Condensed from Inland Printer, 1916)

"Finely illustrated."

+ Pratt p23 Ja '17 15w

"The text is the sort that a teacher likes to read—it yields its thought easily, and the thought is good."

+ School Arts Magazine 16:45 S '16 100w

STEVENSON, AUGUSTA. Dramatized scenes from American history. il $60c Houghton 812 16-6250

Historical plays suitable for upper grade pupils. The author says, "These plays are really dramatic pageants, and the various acts are, with few exceptions, episodes, with different characters and representing different periods of time. . . . Infinite pains were taken in the preparation of the plays. . . . The best historical sources were sought and all facts verified by the highest authorities." Contents: A dream of gold; or, The settlement at Jamestown; A dream of freedom; or, The Puritans of Scrooby; Troubles on land and sea; or, The pilgrims and their journeys; The Boston tea party; or, Descendants of the pilgrims; When courage was needed; or, The first continental congress; A brave deed by brave men; or, The declaration of independence; The man who bore the burden; or, General George Washington.

A L A Bkl 12:390 My '16
St Louis 14:407 N '16 30w

"Accurate, interesting and suitable for reading or acting."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:187 Ap '16 10w

STEVENSON, AUGUSTA. Romantic Indiana. *$1 Bobbs 812 16-15651

A dramatic pageant in three acts with prologue and tableaux. The prologue shows Indiana claimed for France by La Salle. The three acts show: Indiana under France; Indiana under the English; Indiana under the Stars and stripes. The tableaux which complete the pageant show scenes from later Indiana history. The three acts are made up of "episodes." Some of these may be found suitable for presentation by school children as one-act plays.

"Throughout, all the details of stage direction are clearly given, and everything necessary for successful presentation, either for an indoor performance or an outdoor pageant is carefully explained. The dialogue is spirited."

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 4 '16 270w

STEWART, MARY. Tell me a hero story. il *$1.25 (3c) Revell 17-94

Sigurd, Roland, King Alfred, Robin Hood and other favorites will be found in this book, together with others who will be new to young readers, for the author has drawn her tales of heroism from the folk literature of many lands, including Egypt, Japan, China, Serbia and Poland. In addition there are two stories of heroes of to-day.

Ind 88:399 D 4 '16 30w

"The author employs simple, direct language in each case but preserves the stirring quality of the original incidents."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 9 '16 180w

STILES, PERCY GOLDTHWAIT. Nutritional physiology. 2d ed il *$1.25 Saunders 613.2 15-25084

"This is the second edition of Professor Stiles's useful manual, the first of which appeared about three years ago. Although its chief object (alimentation, digestion, metabolism) is expressed in the title, other related portions of physiological science, such as the circulation, the ductless glands, and even the nervous system are considered briefly. The main subject is treated from the point of view of energetics, and we can trace throughout the influence exercised by Prof. Graham Lusk, to whom the book is dedicated."—Nature

"Seventeen pages of new material have been added, containing the findings in the science which have occurred since the publication of the first edition. The changes, however, are not so extensive as to warrant discarding the old edition."

+ A L A Bkl 12:396 My '16
+ Nature 97:140 Ap 13 '16 100w

STILGBAUER, EDWARD. Love's inferno; tr. by C. Thieme. *$1.35 Brentano's 16-16260

"A novel of unique character is this story of the war. . . . The author is a German and wrote his novel in that tongue. His material viewpoint is from the German side, as the action all takes place either in Germany at the beginning of the conflict or later on within the German lines in the battle zone. But spiritually the book is the agonized cry of a revolting conscience against what the author's own country has done. . . . It was published in a Dutch translation in Holland a year ago, and appeared in German in Switzerland last spring. The primary purpose of Dr. Stilgebauer is to scourge the makers of the war mainly by picturing the awful deeds of the battlefield. But as a vessel in which to offer the draft of human blood, he fashions a human, pitiful love story."—N Y Times

"No Belgian, no writer of any other nation, has voiced more poignant or more beautiful laments over the ruin of her cities than does this German."

+ N Y Times 21:352 S 10 '16 720w

+ Spec 117:135 J1 29 '16 30w

"The story is both commonplace and poorly achieved. . . . Possibly a resident of Germany, or of Switzerland is handicapped for much real information damaging to the Kaiser; this may account for the hectic atmosphere and the raucous shrieks of most of the charges."

— Springfield Republican p6 S 25 '16 230w

"The plot of the book is not remarkable. . . . The merit and life of the book lie in the descriptions of the horrors of war—the burning of a village, the fighting on the bridge at Ypres, and finally the rise of the waters when the Belgians let in the North sea. Whether the last be accurately described or not, it is described with much imaginative power."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p322 J1 6 '16 430w

STILL, ALFRED. Principles of electrical design; d. c. and a. c. generators. il *$3 McGraw 621.3 16-15079

"The text obviously is not a compendium for the student, but rather a convenient guide to be supplemented by lectures, further book study, and home work with design problems. The author's method seems to be so far as possible to proceed logically from fundamental principles, neglecting the practical short cuts which experience generally places in the practiced designer's hand. . . . The course starts off with the magnetic circuit and electromagnets, then goes into direct-current dynamo-electric machinery and finally ends with alternators." Engin N

"A unique feature of the book is the first or introductory chapter which gives some sound advice on qualifications to be cultivated by the student who aspires to be a good designer—on acquiring sound knowledge of engineering principles, respect for ability to draw and write, development of self-confidence, self-reliance and personality."

+ Engin N 76:943 N 16 '16 130w

N Y Br Lib News 3:125 Ag '16

"Reviewed in Electric Journal, Aug., 1916, p. 22."

N Y P L New Tech Bks p10 Ag '16 130w

St Louis 14:394 N '16

STIMPSON, MARY STOYELL. Child's book of English biography. il *$1 (2c) Little 920 16-6952

A companion volume to "The child's book of American biography," published last year. The author presents short and entertaining sketches of the lives of Queen Elizabeth, William Shakespeare, Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Francis Drake, Oliver Cromwell, John Bunyan, Samuel Johnson, James Watt, and others. From more modern times she chooses Florence Nightingale, Charles Dickens, Queen Victoria, Thomas Huxley, William Ewart Gladstone and Robert Louis Stevenson.

STINDE, JULIUS ERNST WILHELM. Hausfrau rampant; condensed tr. by E. V. Lucas. *$1.30 (1½c) Doran 16-16388

"The Buchholz family," an amusing chronicle of German domestic life which ran to four or more volumes, was published in Germany in the '70's. Mr. Lucas has made selections from the English translation. "My work," he says, "has been to extract what seemed to me the most entertaining passages. . . . and join them together with some explanatory cement." Frau Buchholz is her own chronicler, and with unconscious humor she describes her domestic trials

STINDE, JULIUS ERNST WILHELM—Cont. and difficulties, her methods of managing her husband and her match-making maneuvers in the interest of her daughters.

+ A L A Bkl 13:86 N '16

"In their four English volumes, all out of print, the series of tales is successively entitled 'The Buchholz family,' 'The Buchholz family, second part,' 'Frau Wilhelmine' and 'The Buchholzes in Italy.' . . . Out of these four volumes Mr. Lucas has made with rare skill a condensed collection of the Buchholz papers that represents completely their wisdom and humor. He includes in his introduction a biographical sketch of their author, who was a professional chemist as well as a writer. He was born in 1841 and died in 1905." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 16 '16 1050w

+ Ind 89:73 Ja 8 '17 110w

+ Nation 103:444 N 9 '16 370w

"In company with few translators, Mr. Lucas has retained the spirit of the original author, and one knows no loss at meeting Dr. Stinde's amusing characters through the medium of a third person."

+ N Y Times 21:363 S 17 '16 600w

Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 70w

STIRLING, MRS. ANNA MARIA DIANA WILHELMINA (PICKERING), Painter of dreams, and other biographical studies. il *$3.50 (4c) Lane 920 16-2950

Biographical sketches drawn from the annals of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. The "painter of dreams" was the author's uncle, Roddam Spencer Stanhope, a pre-Raphaelite painter. This sketch, which occupies the last place in the book, brings the work down close to modern times. In the first paper "A Georgian scrap-book" we are introduced to a very different world, one in which ladies of fashion filled in their leisure hours by the creation of these wondrous scrap-books, miscellanies of quotation, epigrams, anecdotes, riddles and bits of curious lore. The one from which the author quotes is the "Book of extracts" of Diana Bosville, a work of somewhat higher order and possessed of considerable historical interest. Other interesting figures treated by Mrs. Stirling are Elizabeth Patterson, who married Jerome Bonaparte, and the three beautiful Caton sisters of Baltimore.

"With that freshness and vitality which only true biography can give, a group of striking personalities of the late Georgian and early Victorian eras are presented in this series of sketches, each of which has a special charm and value. It is wellnigh impossible to discriminate between these fascinating studies. Among them, however, 'A Georgian scrap-book' has an appeal distinct from the others."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Mr 11 '16 300w

"An entertaining and often amusing book. Fifteen full-page illustrations are inserted."

+ Dial 60:343 Mr 30 '16 200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:41 Mr '16 20w

Pittsburgh 21:295 Je '16 90w

R of Rs 53:499 Ap '16 130w

"No reader need feel called upon to travel through the book from page 1 to page 345. Any one of the seven papers makes an excellent beginning, a delightful recreation, for here is a 'bedside book,' to be enjoyed at random, in a rambling routine of our own making."

+ Sat R 121:188 F 19 '16 700w

"It is difficult to stop quoting from this altogether delightful correspondence."

+ Spec 116:442 Ap 1 '16 800w

"Those who have an acquaintance with the entertaining volumes which have been written by Mrs. A. M. W. Stirling will welcome another book of biographical sketches from her pen. Part of the material has been previously published, but the great part is now introduced to the public for the first time. In her preface the author mentions the sources from which her information was drawn, in most cases probably inaccessible to the average reader."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 600w

STOCK, EUGENE. Story of the Bible. il *75c (2c) Dutton 220

A book prepared for young people of confirmation age. The author has attempted to tell "in a brief form, and in simple and colloquial language, the story of the Bible from the early ages in which parts of the Old Testament were written to the latest missionary versions in heathen lands. And the last two chapters are designed to confirm the faith of the young reader in the Scriptures as in a very real sense the word of God, and to guide him in his personal study of it." (Preface) He says further that he writes as one who is not afraid of Biblical criticism.

"Teachers and parents will find this the handiest of reference books on a familiar but little understood topic."

+ Ind 84:403 D 6 '15 50w

"While his modern scholarship shows him to be aware and unafraid of critical problems, he avoids mere denials and strengthens faith by letting the Bible and its versions tell their own story, which he illuminates by lights from the history and experience reflected from successively contemporaneous times." G. T.

+ Survey 35:522 Ja 29 '16 110w

STOCK, RALPH. Chequered cruise; a true and intimate record of strenuous travel. il *$2.50 (5c) Dodd 919 16-20886

Something of the author's personality and style will be known to readers of "Confessions of a tenderfoot," published in 1913. This volume is a record of travel, including a voyage from England to Australia on an emigrant ship and a cruise among the South Pacific islands in a small yacht. The members of the party were two men and a woman and their various adventures, including a shipwreck, are related amusingly. The story comes to an end with the declaration of war when the "firm" is broken up by the enlistment of one of its number as a member of the Australian expeditionary force. There are a number of good illustrations.

+ A L A Bkl 13:120 D '16

"As illuminating as it is entertaining."

+ Boston Transcript p4 O 11 '16 350w

"There is little definite information about the islands visited. However, the trivial happenings of the voyage are minutely and amusingly recorded."

Cleveland p157 D '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:157 O '16 40w

"What Mr. S. . . has to tell us of Pacific island life is nothing new; neither does he put the old things with the freshness that marks his treatment of the passage out in a 'one-class' steamer and his excellent account of the run of the Wanderlust from Sydney to Lord Howe Island."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p210 My 11 '16 520w

STODDARD, WILLIAM OSBORN, Jr. Farm that Jack built; making good on the farm. il *$1.35 Appleton 16-7499

"Even while Jack was pitching for the winning team in school, his thoughts were centred on the course in the agricultural college, and the farm that would subsequently be his. When the practical test came, his neighbors in the country scoffed loudly at his scientific methods—loudly, but not long. He soon proved their efficacy, won several of the prizes offered by the Department of agriculture, and even inspired his fellow-farmers with the desire to know how it was done."—Boston Transcript

"The story is a good one for country or city boys, for it tells of a thoroughly healthy life, and of natural and healthy ambitions."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ap 26 '16 120w

"The author develops his subject in a very interesting manner, and interlards his exposition of scientific cultivation with much humor drawn from the opposition of the old school."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 130w

STODDARD, WILLIAM OSBORN, Jr. Making good in the village. il *$1.35 Appleton 16-7662

"A story for boys. The hero begins his active career as an errand boy in a New York hardware store. He does not shirk any of the tasks allotted him. In addition, he makes a close study of the buying and selling of the stock with a view to advancement in the business. Before he is able to progress materially, his mother's failing health compels removal from the metropolis to a distant village. Apparently, the only way there of earning needed money is by turning to farm labor. But the boy's training and ambition help him to see greater possibilities in the village's dilapidated hardware store. . . . The boy takes hold, and by applying up-to-date methods revives the dormant business and makes it successful."—Springfield Republican

+ A L A Bkl 12:483 J1 '16

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 180w

STOKES, ANSON PHELPS. What Jesus Christ thought of himself; an outline study and interpretation of His self-revelation in the Gospels. *$1 (5c) Macmillan 232 16-6625

The author says: "My main purpose has been to try to show in clear, compact form, and in untechnical language, what any scholarly student of the New Testament may find out for himself as to Jesus' view of his own person. A secondary purpose has been to interpret this self-revealed personality." (Preface) The Bible has been used as the primary source and references are most carefully cited. The study is made up of four parts. An introduction, treating of the significance of the subject, sources, method of treatment, etc., discussions of The human side of Jesus Christ and The divine side of Jesus Christ, and a conclusion giving the author's interpretation of the self-revealed Christ.

"Throughout the entire book there is found the constant tendency to treat New Testament records as 'ipsissima verba' of Jesus and to ignore the view-point of the individual writers of these different documents. . . . The last chapter dealing with the author's interpretation of the self-revealed Christ is a distinct contribution. The book, we have no doubt, will be read widely. Whether or not it brings us to the portals of Jesus' mind is another matter." T. W.

Am J Theol 20:623 O '16 430w

+ Bib World 48:62 J1 '16 90w

"To those already convinced of its conclusions, the little book will be of much comfort; but if, perchance, the author is aiming to appeal to the indifferent, the aim is very much beside the mark. He seems to be touched by the higher criticism, but not enlightened. . . . Despite the above, there are many valuable constructive hints in the volume, and the collation of gospel quotations may be found of great use to students."

+ Dial 61:30 Je 22 '16 330w

+ Ind 89:117 Ja 15 '17 50w

N Y Times 21:303 J1 30 '16 50w

"Dr. Stokes has rendered a real and important service to the Christian church, and especially to young and thoughtful men and women, by this statement of spiritual faith in the terms of a rational philosophy." Lyman Abbott

+ Outlook 113:62 My 10 '16 1500w

+ R of Rs 55:210 F '17 70w

"The divinity of Christ is stated in a new and modern way, which must commend itself to both those who accept the ancient creeds and those who do not. An outstanding feature of the book is the real effort on the author's part to build up rather than demolish, and his desire to reconcile the varying points of view."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 200w

STOKES, HUGH. Belgium: with an introd. by Paul Lambotte. il *$3.50 Stokes 949.3 A16-830

"This very handsome volume, of quarto size, has been made and published for the benefit of the Belgian relief fund. Its outstanding feature is the contribution of Frank Brangwyn, who in fifty-two engraved illustrations, offers views of the famous architecture and city scenes which embodied so much of the history of Belgium. . . . The text, by Hugh Stokes, is a singularly vivid and interesting account of the life and history of the chief cities of Belgium. . . . His account is hardly more a narrative than it is a succession of brilliant pictures of the life of court and guildhall during the centuries when these cities were proud and powerful and were helping to write the history of civilization."—N Y Times

+ Ath p470 O '16 820w

+ Int Studio 60:96 Ja '17 70w

"Mr. Stokes has added to the interest and individuality of the book by old tales and incidental pictures of the life of the common people which enable one to glimpse both its inner and its outer aspect."

+ N Y Times 21:67 F 27 '16 370w

"Apart from the subject, the book has this artistic interest, that it is illustrated by woodcuts."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p452 S 21 '16 1100w

STOKES, ROSE PASTOR (WIESLANDER) (MRS. JAMES GRAHAM PHELPS STOKES). Woman who wouldn't. *$1.25 Putnam 812 16-22658

A play in three acts, giving a picture of life in a mining town. All the scenes take place in the home of John Lacey, a miner. His daughter, Mary, a girl of nineteen, is the woman who would not marry the man who has ceased to love her even to save herself from disgrace and to give her child a name. She is turned out of her home by her father, to return to it later an acknowledged labor leader, her strength of character having triumphed over all circumstances.

"In Mrs. Stokes' play, propaganda and people strive for mastery and the victory turns now to one and now to the other. She loves the poor as people and she treats them with warm tenderness. . . . But she also loves the poor as texts and in their most poignant moments as Mary or John or the labor leader, she pauses to describe our social chaos." C. K. Kruesi

+ — N Y Call p14 N 26 '16 380w

"For with all its pitiless realism, the play ends on a note of hope and faith and kindness; and its central character, restoring her broken life in work for her fellow-workers, is a heroine whom the readers will not easily forget."

+ — N Y Times 21:578 D 31 '16 350w

"The play is sincere and straightforward, and Mrs. Stokes has shown skill in her picture of the terrible struggle for existence among the poverty-stricken miners."

+ R of Rs 54:677 D '16 70w

STONE, HARLAN FISKE. Law and its administration. *$1.50 (2½c) Columbia univ. press 340 16-25308

For descriptive note see Annual for 1915.

+ A L A Bkl 12:361 My '16

"It is a welcome relief to find in Dr. Stone's work a sane, impartial treatment of a subject which is usually approached with prejudice or prepossession. The lectures deal satisfactorily with many of the most important problems in the administration of the law, besides giving a clear general outline of its history. It requires no little experience and ability to give a technical subject such a simple, thorough presentation as is found in these lectures." J. J. S.

+ Ann Am Acad 64:248 Mr '16 230w

Cleveland p107 Ag '16 10w

"The qualities of clear thinking, of thorough knowledge, and of lucid expression, which have won Dean Stone eminence as a lawyer and teacher, enabled him to hold the attention of his Cooper Union audiences, and make his exposition of the fundamental notions underlying our legal system simple, readable, and instructive."

STONE, HARLAN FISKE—Continued

In no other publication can the layman find a more interesting or satisfactory interpretation of the genius of the common law."

- + Nation 102:314 Mr 16 '16 650w
- + Pratt p12 O '16 20w
- + Special Libraries 7:109 Je '16 300w

STOPEs, MRS. CHARLOTTE CARMICHAEL.
Shakespeare's industry. *$3.25 Macmillan 822.33 (Eng ed 16-19837)

"Twenty-three essays, supplemented by a series of notes, make up the contents of Mrs. Stopes's latest volume. In them she discusses 'Shakespeare's treatment of his originals,' 'Elizabethan stage scenery,' 'Shakespeare and war,' 'Shakespeare's legal transactions,' 'The Kenilworth festivities' and other topics, at the same time discussing some of the most complex problems of plot presented by 'A midsummer night's dream,' 'The taming of the shrew,' 'Hamlet' and 'Macbeth.'"—Boston Transcript

"Of the students who have sought to clear up various Shakespearean puzzles, no one has done more solid work than Mrs. Stopes. . . . With her we always get details of place and date and language used in old records, though this accuracy is not always extended to details easy to settle, such as quotations. . . . On the story and sources of 'Hamlet' and 'Macbeth' Mrs. Stopes writes at some length, and, it seems to us, with varying insight. Here, as elsewhere, her matter is not so well presented as it might be, and there is a plethora of italics which should not be needed to make points clearly."

- + Ath p169 Ap '16 1400w
- Boston Transcript p9 My 20 '16 570w

"On the whole, the articles of most original value in this collection have, strictly speaking, little or nothing to do with Shakespeare. We refer to those which treat of renaissance 'Books of fortune' (giving answers on love, matrimony, trade, etc.), in Italian and in English, and to the final group on the 'Court of Venus'—an objectionable sixteenth-century song-book, which is no longer extant—and its influence on contemporary writers, especially on Sir Thomas Wyatt."

- + Nation 102:714 Je 29 '16 500w

"Mrs. Stopes has succeeded in making interesting and difficult discoveries among these old-time volumes, and she has set them forth for the present-day reader in thoroughly entertaining form. Among the papers dealing especially with Shakespeare's own work and the concrete sources of his plays, her three essays on Macbeth are particularly interesting. Her book as a whole is original, scholarly, and popular."

- + N Y Times 21:212 My 21 '16 420w
- Spec 117:sup609 N 18 '16 180w

STORK, CHARLES WHARTON. Sea and bay. *$1.25 Lane 811 16-8921

"'Sea and bay,' a gracious tale of New England [in verse], tells the life-story of Alden Carr. His life is divided into three parts—the boy's experiences in the sheltered haven of the 'Bay'; the man's adventurous years on the 'Sea,' and the quiet years of later life when he has returned to the Bay."—R of Rs

"Dispersed throughout Mr. Stork's narrative are several songs of a fine, lyrical quality, gathering the significance in their brief outburst of the various parts of the poem. Mr. Stork's accomplishment in this narrative, besides its poetic quality, has that story interest which should make it a favorite companion to take on a vacation." W. S. B.

- + Boston Transcript p6 Je 3 '16 1450w
- + Cleveland p104 Ag '16 60w
- + R of Rs 53:632 My '16 90w
- + Springfield Republican p6 Ja 4 '17 500w

STOUT, WILLIAM B. Boy's book of mechanical models. il *$1.50 Little 680 16-22158

The author has given directions for making fascinating mechanical toys out of the simplest materials. Almost all of the toys described are constructed with an ordinary cigar box as a base. Every toy described will work, the author says, if directions are carefully followed. A mechanical duck, a cigar-box automobile, a cigar-box dump car, a toy cash register, a telephone line, a grain elevator, a walking horse and a walking policeman are some of the toys that can be so made. The book is illustrated with diagrams and working drawings.

- + A L A Bk 13:228 F '17
- + Ind 88:405 D 4 '16 60w
- + Lit D 53:1616 D 16 '16 90w
- + Quar List New Tech Bks Ja '17 20w
- + Springfield Republican p15 D 2 '16 100w

STOWELL, ELLERY CORY, and MUNRO, HENRY FRASER. International cases. 2v v 1 *$2.50; v 2 *$3.50 (1½c) Houghton 341 (16-9557)
v 1 Peace.

"This volume is the first of a series and its sub-title is Peace. It is a collection of arbitrations and incidents illustrative of international law as this has been practised in times past by independent states." (Educ R) "Professors Stowell and Munro show by important and typical examples the rights and duties of ambassadors and other national agents; how they conduct their business; how treaties are made and applied; what substantive international law is recognized by nations as binding. . . . Most of the cases are condensations or extracts from the works of Professor John Bassett Moore." (Ind)

v 2 War and neutrality.

The second volume of "International cases" is made up of two parts devoted respectively to war and neutrality. Part 1 has chapters on: Measures short of war; The interruption of peaceful relations; The laws of war; The termination of hostilities. The chapters of part 2 are given up to such matters as The declaration of neutrality; The duty of neutral states to refrain from participation; Duties relative to the police of neutral territory and jurisdiction; The restrictions placed upon the commercial transactions of neutral individuals, etc.

"While the selection displays a decided catholicity of spirit and an international point of view, it lacks proportion." J. S. R.

- + Am Hist R 22:440 Ja '17 300w
- Am Pol Sci R 10:758 N '16 80w

"Probably the experienced teacher will prefer to make his own selection of cases adapted to the needs of his particular class, prescribe in conjunction the best text-book he can find, and assign such cases as he deems most useful and available. By filling the library shelves with duplicates of Moore's 'Digest,' Scott's 'Cases,' and other leading authorities and collections on international law, he will have a good working library. To such a collection, this volume will prove a most valuable, indeed, an indispensable addition. The cases are carefully selected and well edited." A. H.

- + Ann Am Acad 68:334 N '16 200w
- + Educ R 52:204 S '16 70w

"A book from which the layman can gather generously and that the student, too, will welcome."

- + Ind 87:462 S 25 '16 180w
- Nation 103:516 N 30 '16 380w

"First author is associate professor, second author is instructor in international law, Columbia university, N. Y."

St Louis 15:9 Ja '17 15w

STRAYER, GEORGE DRAYTON, and others.
Some problems in city school administration. il $1.50 World bk. co. 370.91 16-19813

The scope of the "School efficiency series," planned first to include only reports on the New York City schools, has been extended to take in surveys made in smaller cities. The present volume contains the report of the school survey made in Butte, Montana. Butte is a city of 39,000. Some of its peculiar characteristics are:

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

a large percentage of native born with one or both parents foreign born; a large percentage of foreign born; the small number of children in proportion to the population; the large number of adults between the ages of 25 and 40 and the correspondingly small number over 65. These facts all have a bearing on the adaptation of the school system to the needs of the community. The report consists of two parts: The administrative problem; The instructional problem.

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 11 '16 120w

"Lays stress upon the formal elements and gives model forms, records, etc."

+ Ind 89:196 Ja 29 '17 70w

STREETER, BURNETT HILLMAN, ed. Concerning prayer; its nature, its difficulties and its value; by the author of "Pro Christo et ecclesia"; Harold Anson [and others]. *$3 Macmillan 264 16-15873

"The volume contains essays by eleven writers, and we are told in the preface that, while each is alone responsible for his opinions, there have been discussions between them, and the rewriting of drafts in consequence of the discussions. Three of the writers belong to the Nonconformist bodies; the rest are Anglicans. While there remain interesting differences of detail, the book, taken as a whole, shows a virtual unity of standpoint. . . . Its appeal is chiefly to the thoughtful person whose difficulties on the subject of religion—and, in particular, of prayer—are not concerned with any one religious system, but with the great fundamental problems of religion as such."—Ath

"Whether one agrees or not with this or that contention, one cannot fail to be stimulated by the spirit animating the whole group: its mingling of reverence and intellectual courage, its simplicity and earnestness. . . . At the same time the plan shows the defects of its qualities. . . . The main difficulty we feel about this book is its attitude, all through, to Christianity."

+ — Ath p414 S '16 900w

Cleveland p106 Ag '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:141 S '16

+ Sat R 122:sup3 O 14 '16 150w

"Those who make the strong mental effort required to get through five hundred pages of close theological reasoning will not be without considerable mental and spiritual profit. . . . The question of prayer for material benefit is more or less juggled with throughout most of this volume. For instance, the essay on faith-healing is quite inconclusive. Mr. Bevan alone meets it quite fairly, or should we say squarely? The most arresting of the essays is, we think, the one by the writer of 'Pro Christo et ecclesia.' Mr. Streeter's 'Worship' also will, we are sure, be widely read. Professor Rufus Jones's article on 'Mysticism' is, considering the subject, quite extraordinarily lucid."

+ Spec 117:240 Ag 26 '16 1550w

STREIGHTOFF, FRANCES DOAN, and STREIGHTOFF, FRANK HATCH. Indiana. $1.25 (1½c) W. K. Stewart co., 44 E. Washington st., Indianapolis, Ind. 917.72 16-6033

The authors have made a social and economic survey of the state of Indiana. Their book is a contribution to the Indiana centenary celebration, but instead of dealing with the century just past, it considers the present and looks to the future. Contents: The physical basis; Trees; Agriculture; Manufactures; Transportation; Labor; Labor legislation; Government; Finances; Constitution; Charities and corrections [this chapter contributed by Cecil Clare North]; Education. A list of selected references is given in an appendix.

"Like most books that are inspired by commercial opportunity rather than by a complete mastery of the subject, this study leaves much to be desired. The chapters are concise and there is much that is suggestive in the comments, but one feels that the authors have drawn upon their knowledge of economic phenomena in general where specific information on Indiana was lacking. There are many omissions of matters that might fairly have been looked for; for instance there is nothing on population and immigration, on marketing, on banking, or on cultural development. . . . The chapters on manufactures and labor are particularly unsatisfactory, being scrappy and undigested."

E. L. Bogart

+ Am Econ R 6:622 S '16 320w

"An admirably planned and well executed work." T. W. V. M.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:313 S '16 30w

"A concise and readable account of present-day Indiana, with no effort to gloss over her short-comings and no wasting of space in empty paeans. . . . Such books have a value in the schools as yet ill-appreciated, and this one might well find imitators."

+ Nation 103:18 J1 6 '16 130w

STRICKLAND, FRANCIS LORETTE. Foundations of Christian belief; studies in the philosophy of religion. *$1.50 (2c) Abingdon press 201 15-26891

"These pages are addressed to all who have an interest in the deeper problems of present-day religious thinking. The purpose is to draft sound philosophy into the service of religion. . . . It is hoped that these pages may afford some guidance to thought, so that even though modifications of belief may become necessary, the deeper convictions may not be weakened nor religious faith lose its spiritual content." (Preface) Contents: The aim and method in the philosophy of religion; Christianity and philosophy; The philosophic world-views; Knowledge, belief, and faith; The growth of the Christian idea of God; The meaning and implications of personality; Divine personality; Conceptions of the divine activity; The revelation of God in nature; The revelation of God in the non-Christian religions; The revelation of God in human personality; The revelation of God in individual experience; The Bible as a record of divine revelation; The place of the supernatural in the Christian revelation; The Christian faith in immortality.

"It is doubtful whether the author has reached the best philosophical solution of the relation of natural and supernatural. The contribution of this book lies in its clear and popular presentation of a wide range of the best present-day thought favorable to Christian faith in a way to assist the intelligent young person to readjust, clarify, and confirm his ideas of religion." E. A. Cook

+ Am J Theol 20:447 J1 '16 330w

"It is the sort of book that we have been looking for to put into the hands of college students who are troubled by such fundamental matters as immortality, Jesus Christ, and the importance of the Bible. Dr. Strickland does not attempt to settle all the questions which a technical theologian would raise. Some difficulties he does not mention. But his book will help its readers to outgrow the point of view from which most religious difficulties spring."

+ Bib World 47:123 F '16 220w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 10 '16 430w

+ Ind 87:351 S 4 '16 40w

N Y Times 21:254 Je 18 '16 70w

"Dr. Strickland writes clearly, but does not sacrifice depth for lucidity. The book, although dealing with a large subject, will be read easily and with profit by the general public."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 6 '16 120w

STRINDBERG, AUGUST. Plays; fourth series; tr. with an introd. by Edwin Björkman. *$1.50 Scribner 839.7 16-2912

The four plays included in this volume are The bridal crown. The spook sonata. The first warning, and Gustavus Vasa. The first is a play of Dalecarlia, the province of which Selma Lagerlöf writes. The fourth is the historical drama, looked on by many as his greatest work.

A L A Bkl 13:74 N '16

"Of the four plays in the volume, while we realize the historical value and the popularity of Gustavus Vasa, the free swing of the Strind-

STRINDBERG, AUGUST—Continued
 bergian imagination in 'The spook sonata' and the comedy of 'The first warning,' we find 'The bridal crown' significant in a larger and more vital sense. It is founded upon legend, and is one of those plays which is more readable for the notes of the editor, who shows us the significance of many bewildering passages. Mr. Björkman's introduction is exceedingly valuable in lending us understanding of the peasant beliefs." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 1 '16 1150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:44 Mr '16

+ R of Rs 53:376 Mr '16 50w

"Remarkable, both for the wide diversity of subjects skilfully treated, for the intensely imaginative conceptions in 'The bridal crown' and 'The spook sonata,' and the wild, almost extravagant, but usually comprehensible symbolism employed by the writer."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 28 '16 130w

"Shows Strindberg at his pleasantest and sanest. 'The spook sonata' must be excepted. It is as horrible as anything that Strindberg ever wrote. 'The bridal crown,' on the other hand, is a play with much beauty and emotion about it."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p304 Je 29 '16 320w

STRINGER, ARTHUR JOHN ARBUTHNOTT.
 Door of dread; a secret service romance. il $1.25 (2c) Bobbs 16-12750

German agents have obtained United States army and navy secrets. Reports and plans are in their hands. It is the duty of the Federal secret service to find the spies and get back the stolen matter. For this purpose two men and a woman, patriotic, and experienced in the doings of the underworld in both Europe and America are employed. The adventures are stirring, with their scene moving from California to New York. The story is mainly told by the woman in what she characterizes as "Eight" ward talk."

"The dangers the heroine endures added to love interest win the sympathy of the reader to her in spite of her sophistication and flippancy."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 Jl '16

"There is a suspense and a thrill in every page."

+ N Y Times 21:239 Je 11 '16 350w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 150w

STRONG, EUGÉNIE (SELLERS) (MRS. S. ARTHUR STRONG). Apotheosis and after life. il $3 Dutton 246 16-17716

"Roman art as it developed under the influence of the imperial apotheosis, and as it appears in the symbolism of the after life on later Roman tombstones is the subject of the lectures in this volume. One lecture discusses the apotheosis, and two discuss the after life; but both subjects are preceded by an introductory lecture on Rome and the present state of Roman studies. The lectures are intended primarily for students."—Boston Transcript

"The book, as is meet, is beautifully illustrated. Notes and references are abundant enough to satisfy the most industrious students."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ag 23 '16 50w

"Mrs. Strong's interpretations are bound to interest even those who differ from them. . . . We have considered this book more from the scholar's point of view than from the antiquary's standpoint. But we must add that it has special claims upon the archaeologist's attention." Lucian the Less

+ Sat R 122:90 Jl 22 '16 1150w

"The well-known schemes of Roman historical monuments were taken over by Christian art, and nothing is more instructive in Mrs. Strong's book than the parallels which she draws, e.g., between pagan and Christian monuments. In every product of the time—in the work of the ivory-carver and the silversmith as much as in that of the monumental sculptor—the process by which Christianity entered into the heritage of the imperial art-tradition can be clearly traced, and in no other book can it be studied with the aid of such well-chosen and admirably illustrated examples."

+ Spec 116:578 My 6 '16 1450w

STRYIENSKI, CASIMIR. Eighteenth century (crowned by the Académie des sciences morales et politiques); tr. from the French by H. N. Dickinson. *$2.50 (2c) Putnam 944.03 16-20287

This volume is the fourth in the series devoted to the "National history of France." It is preceded in time of issue by "The century of the renaissance in France" by L. Batiffol, and "The French revolution," by Louis Madelin. The history of the eighteenth century is begun with 1715 and is treated under five headings: Regency of the Duc d'Orléans; The Duc de Bourbon and Cardinal Fleury; Louis XV; Louis XVI; The artistic and literary movement. The author is a distinguished Polish historian.

"Not so satisfactory on the military and diplomatic side as Perkins (A L A Catalog 1904) and passes lightly over the social and intellectual life of the century. 'What we get on the other hand . . . is a wonderfully full and skilfully written personal history of the French monarchy in the period.'"

A L A Bkl 13:216 F '17

"He shows great judgment in his selection and emphasis, no less than in the clearness of his writing. Especially valuable is his account of the artistic production of the century. . . . M. Stryienski's work should receive a warm reception by students and by the greater public." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 7 '16 850w

"We remember with regret the masterly chapters in the Lavissee 'History' dealing with these [omitted] subjects and their influence. Such a loss is ill compensated by anecdotes, however amusing or characteristic."

+ Dial 62:74 Ja 25 '17 240w

+ Ind 88:368 N 27 '16 40w

"He has not written a history of the people in the eighteenth century, but he makes it evident how terrible was the burden the people bore, how essentially wrong and cruel and monstrous was the régime of privilege for the few and toil and privation for the many."

+ N Y Times 21:535 D 3 '16 700w

+ Pittsburgh 21:505 N '16 60w

R of Rs 54:571 N '16 40w

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 1 '16 230w

"M. Stryienski writes tersely and clearly and he has managed to work a great many events into his narrative without becoming tedious. The result is that his book can be read easily by the frivolous who have never heard of Alberoni or Kaunitz. . . . Though his style is very lucid, his reading of events is not always as clear. . . . But a popular historian cannot be expected to do everything. . . . Regarded as old-fashioned history corrected by modern lights, M. Stryienski's book is quite a good specimen."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p329 Jl 13 '16 920w

STUART, MRS. RUTH (MCENERY). Plantation songs, and other verse. il $1.25 Appleton 811 16-14815

"'Plantation songs' reveals the keen insight and intelligent sympathy and affection for her negro types that have always characterized Mrs. Stuart's work, so that the reader seems to hold the original documents in the case, to be present at the actual scenes described in many of these selections. One can hardly conceive of darky songs without humor, and Mrs. Stuart's verse reveals many clever turns."—N Y Times

"Negro dialect songs of the best type, gay, humorous, rollicking and tender, full of sympathy and rioting with color. . . . Her serious poems, for the most part devotional, are unfortunately not so successful as the plantation songs."

+ A L A Bkl 13:213 F '17 (Reprinted from Poetry 9:54 O '16)

+ N Y Times 21:457 O 29 '16 340w

St Louis 14:438 D '16

STUDIO year-book of decorative art, 1916, ed.
by Charles Holme. il $3 Lane 728.6

The Studio year book is "a review of the latest developments in the artistic construction, decoration and furnishing of the house." The volume for 1916 includes, in addition to the sections on Great Britain and the United States, reviews of recent work in the British colonies.

Cleveland p135 N '16 30w

+ Nation 103:68 J1 20 '16 280w

+ R of Rs 54:236 Ag '16 100w

St Louis 14:397 N '16

STURGEON, MARY C. Studies of contemporary poets. $1.50 Dodd 821.09 16-26934

The contemporary poets of whom studies are offered in this volume are: Lascelles Abercrombie; Rupert Brooke; William H. Davies; Walter de la Mare; Wilfrid Wilson Gibson; Ralph Hodgson; Ford Madox Hueffer; Rose Macaulay; John Masefield; Harold Monro; Sarojini Naidu; "John Presland"; James Stephens; and Margaret L. Woods. In addition there is a chapter devoted to An Irish group, and treating of the work of Padraic Colum, James Cousins, Susan M. Mitchell and others. Many quotations from the work of the poets under consideration help to make this an interesting contribution to the literature of modern verse.

"Sympathetically and thoughtfully written with well chosen quotations, and the book is made particularly useful as it contains a bibliography of these minor poets."

+ A L A Bkl 13:113 D '16

"It will be useful, as there is little biographical and critical material on the subject outside of magazines."

+ Cleveland p128 N '16 190w

St Louis 14:400 N '16

"The verbosity and affectation of her remarks are some way off the contact with life and naturalness which is one of the chief claims of her examples. Commonplaces elaborately tricked out as if they were new vie with superlatives. . . . We see little use in this pretentious pre-ciosity."

— Sat R 122:92 J1 22 '16 380w

SULLIVAN, FRANCIS PAUL. Portion of a champion. $1.35 (1½c) Scribner 16-8695

A romance of Ireland in the fifth century. The story opens with a scene in the banquet hall of Mesgedra who is apportioning out the roast meats according to the rank of his guests. The thigh, the "portion of a hero," he is about to keep for himself when to the surprise of all a young stranger rises to claim it. This one is Conal, son of Cathbar, who in his own Ulster is accounted "king material." But Conal is not yet judged worthy of the hero's portion, and this story has to do with his winning of the right to it, together with the hand of Etain, daughter of Mesgedra. His adventures take him on a raid into Gaul. The author uses the early form of his name, o Sullivan tighe, on the title page.

"Mr. Sullivan's characters are of their own age, and they are also soundly and historically Irish, 'Ulster against Leinster' and a Con-naughtman fair game. The author deserves warm praise for the simplicity and sincerity and the honest historical spirit in which he has written 'The portion of a champion.'" F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:323 My '16 400w

"Singulantly free as it is from the affectations which mar many romantic tales, it will appeal to everyone who likes a straightforward story of adventure of the olden times."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 24 '16 280w

Reviewed by E: E. Hale

+ Dial 60:553 Je 8 '16 650w

"Filled with exciting adventures and interesting pictures of the ancient manners and customs of Eirinn. There is plenty of hard fighting, with a little love making to flavor it."

+ Ind 86:342 My 29 '16 50w

+ N Y Times 21:149 Ap 16 '16 450w

R of Rs 54:124 J1 '16 220w

"If one does not inquire too closely into the historical accuracy of 'The portion of a champion' he is assured of a period of unmixed excitement and not a little pleasure."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 210w

SULLIVAN, FRANCIS WILLIAM. Star of the North. il $1.35 (2½c) Putnam 16-12401

Mr. Sullivan in his "Children of banishment" and his "Alloy of gold" has written of the far north and of New York. He now combines his knowledge of life in both places by bringing rival motion picture companies to the Canadian woods to get material for "A wilderness idyl" and "A Magdalene of the snows." Losing his way, Paul Temple, leading man of the Graphic company, finds June Magregor, the beautiful, unsophisticated daughter of a Scotch factor of the Hudson Bay company. She has seen few educated white men in her life and he protects her from the dishonorable attentions of Jack Baillie, a lesser member of the company. But, though Paul loves her, he is unable to tell her so, since he contracted an unfortunate early marriage with Gertrude Mackay, now leading woman of the rival company. Unknown to him, his wife is not many miles from him in the wilderness and she takes shelter with June and her father in a blizzard. For the purposes of the tale she dies from her own rash exposure to the cold. Paul is free to marry June and adopts the (to the reader) somewhat doubtful experiment of taking her to New York, where this daughter of the woods is to figure on the films as the "Star of the North."

+ Ath p482 O '16 60w

"'Star of the North,' with its conventional method and its puppetlike characters, is far below the fine work and splendid promise of Mr. Sullivan's first novel, 'Children of banishment.' . . . Mr. Sullivan knows his wilderness thoroughly and loves it devotedly, and his setting throughout the book is realistic and interesting. The narrative moves swiftly and smoothly, and there are plenty of dramatic scenes. But the trail of the moving-picture scenario is over it all."

— + N Y Times 21:239 Je 11 '16 320w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p467 S 28 '16 170w.

SUMMERVILLE, AMELIA SHAW. Why be fat? *80c (8c) Stokes 613 16-5163

The author is an actress and the demands of her profession have led her to work out a system for weight-reduction and the preservation of health and beauty. She begins with a warning against "obesity cures." "The safest and surest way is to correct your diet and wait for the good results that right living is bound to bring," is her advice. The book closes with a number of recipes and menus.

"Told with notable brevity and with an economy in the use of words. . . . Concerning some of her dicta it would be just as well to have expert medical opinion before following her advice. But her menus and recipes will be found useful by those who wish to follow her method, after they have assured themselves that the always-to-be-considered factor of individual idiosyncrasy is not opposed." M. P. Allison

+ Bookm 43:208 Ap '16 160w

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 90w

N Y Br Lib News 3:62 Ap '16

Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 110w

SUMNER, HELEN LAURA, and MERRITT, ELLA ARVILLA. Child labor legislation in the United States. pa 65c Supt. of doc. 331.3 16-26153

No. 1 of the Industrial series, issued by the Children's bureau, gives the texts of all Child labor laws in force on October 1, 1915. These are preceded by a tabular analysis of the most important provisions, minimum age, requirements for entering employment, compulsory school attendance, etc. The volume is indexed.

A L A Bkl 12:350 Ap '16

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

SUMNER, WILLIAM GRAHAM. Challenge of facts, and other essays; ed. by Albert Gallowsay Keller. il $2.25 (2c) Yale univ. press 304 14-20793
For descriptive note see Annual for 1914.

"The chief question that has recurred to the reviewer in perusing this handsomely printed volume is, What was the use? For does not every one know what Professor Sumner's views were? To ask busy people of today to read old editorials on old issues seems a misconception of the economy of publishing. By what right are these early and unpublished fragments dug up? The only serious purpose that they can serve, beyond placing at the disposal of the many former students of Sumner an interesting collection of his well-known views, is as source material to some future historian of the evolution of social philosophy in America. Perhaps the most striking testimonial of the greatness of Sumner's personality is the fact that he was able to carry over, impressively, the hard and fast ideals of the old individualism into the era of governmental responsibility in social matters and of concerted cooperation of social groups for common ends." A. B. Wolfe

— + Am Econ R 6:105 Mr '16 250w

SWEETSER, ARTHUR. Roadside glimpses of the great war. il $1.25 (2½c) Macmillan 940.92 16-4436

The author, a Boston journalist, started for Europe immediately on receiving news of the first declaration of war. He traversed the war zones of Belgium and northern France on a bicycle and gives an unusually spirited account of his experiences. Contents: The lure of war; From the French lines to the German; In the wake of Von Kluck; Prisoner of the Germans; Prisoner of the French; Uhlans and taubes; A report to the state department; Germany in the suburbs of Paris; Prisoner again; How a spy would feel; From France's calmness to Belgium's agony; Belgium's hopeless heroism.

"As one of these chapters in the completed history of the struggle, Mr. Sweetser's volume will always have a high value. His experiences were exciting and characteristic. His vision of what is sure and he knows the meaning of what he went through."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 8 '16 370w

"It is his clear, independent view of the reality of war which makes his book illuminating for those occupied with the prevailing topic of American preparedness."

+ Ind 86:68 Ap 10 '16 390w

"The wonder that he was not shot he naively shares with his readers, and that wonder appears to have wrought a wholesome clarifying of his haphazard impressions before his tutelary genius returned him unscathed to Boston."

+ Nation 102:258 Mr 30 '16 190w

"He shows war from an angle somewhat different from that of the average correspondent or soldier. He was an individual pursuing his own course apart from the armies. The average war writer is attached in some way or other to the organized forces, and is ever with a definite unit; Mr. Sweetser was not. He tells his story with the swing of the trained newspaper man. It is good reading, with few of the horrors of war to harrow the feelings, and a very considerable amount of humor. In his last few pages about Belgium he makes two statements of considerable historical interest."

+ N Y Times 21:84 Mr 12 '16 500w

R of Rs 53:502 Ap '16 20w

+ St Louis 14:179 My '16 10w

"It is this attitude of regarding danger not as something to be afraid of, but as something to be looked for that makes his new book different from all the other war books that have preceded it. . . . It is, altogether, war in its elemental, human terms, always terrible, sometimes humorous, not always heroic, that he pictures." J. T. Chapman

+ Seven Seas 2:37 My '16 350w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Mr 13 '16 530w

SYKES, SIR MARK, bart. Caliphs' last heritage. il $6.25 Macmillan 949.6 16-20458

"The title of this timely and instructive book is a misleading one. . . . For, whereas the first 294 of its 551 pages are devoted to a most able treatise on the past history of the countries constituting the Turkish empire, the second part comprises the author's extensive travels in Asiatic Turkey, much of them over virgin ground." (Sat R) "Syria, Mesopotamia, Kurdistan, Asia Minor—these are the chief fields; but Turkish Armenia is visited, and we have a short record of a journey in lower Egypt." (Nature) "The third part, indeed, though only an Appendix of forty closely printed pages, is by far the most valuable. It is a catalogue raisonné of all the Kurdish tribes which Sir Mark Sykes met or heard of during his travels over some seven thousand miles in their country. The list is classified, and a map of the distribution of the tribes, carefully numbered, is prefixed." (Ath)

"Practically no authorities are mentioned, and the traditional accounts are followed uncritically. But the story is told with fire and life, and an actual contribution to knowledge is made by explaining former events in the light of personal observations." A. H. Lybyer

+ Am Hist R 21:844 Jl '16 420w

"These diaries abound in interest. They are written with the utmost verve. Sir Mark's way is not to mince his words or hide his opinions, which are always unmitigated, and often rather violently expressed."

+ Ath 1915,2:359 N 20 2600w

"The book is to be commended as worth preserving. For it, the publishers might well have recognized the need of a more enduring physical frame than they have given. Cloth covers, an extremely fragile binding and the stuffing of maps and plans within one of the covers have given a highly perishable character to the volume."

+ Boston Transcript p20 D 29 '15 220w

"Interesting chapters are those on the Crusades and on geographical conditions as factors in historical development."

+ Cleveland p29 Mr '16 40w

"He is too apt to assume the absence of other books, and especially of those of recent years, bearing on the subjects of which he writes. . . . I have not found any allusion either in the text or index to Von Hammer-Purgstall's re of facts, both from Turkish and Christian sources. Apparently he is unacquainted with Jorga's 'Geschichte des Osmanischen reiches,' which, although not complete, gives a large amount of valuable information from Turkish sources. . . . It is likely that Sir Mark's judgment would have been influenced in several matters had he been aware of the facts adduced in them. . . . The author allows his prepossessions to run away with his judgment. He can see nothing but evil in connexion with American Protestant missions in Turkey. . . . Whether the missions be Catholic or Protestant, I have always found the mission stations to be centres of light and civilization." Edwin Pears

+ Eng Hist R 31:299 Ap '16 1250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:29 F '16

"At the present time, his actual personal experiences are of greater interest than his historical matter. The former is accessible from other sources, whereas the latter are in their way unique and most valuable. . . . What will appeal to everyone, to scholar and general reader alike, are the vivid impressions made in diaries of five journeys in the years 1906, 1907, 1908, 1910 and 1913, during which Sir Mark traversed thousands of miles in searching out the remote byways of Asiatic Turkey. These are illustrated by maps and plans and sections, which in themselves possess no small geographical value." Sidney Whitman

+ Sat R 120:516 N 27 '15 1450w

"In a word, Sir Mark Sykes confirms the testimony of all other competent witnesses. The Young Turk has proved a complete failure." [Earl of] Cromer

+ Spec 115:742 N 27 '15 1800w

SYMONS, ARTHUR. Tragedies. $1.50 Lane 822 16-18324

The three plays in this volume are The harvesters, a Cornish tragedy in three acts in verse, and The death of Agrippina, and Cleopatra in Judæa, both one-act plays. The Cornish tragedy is the story of Mary Raven, who kills her false lover and is acquitted after her child has died within the prison walls. From her father, who offers her shelter and bread in her extremity but not kindness and sympathy, she turns away to share the lot of Vecchan, a half-witted girl, who like the Shakespearean fool fills the place of "chorus" in the play. The two one-act plays are character studies, the first of Nero, the second of Cleopatra.

+ A L A Bkl 13:162 Ja '17

"Mr. Symons may be congratulated on a 'tour de force,' but we fear that his tragedies will follow much more blank verse into the limbo of forgetfulness."

Ath p528 N '16 250w

"The phantom of a beautiful age is re-arisen in these tragedies of a poet who has the most delicate texture of emotion, the most elaborately decorative moods, the most consistently heated imagination, of any modern English poet." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 23 '16 1650w

+ Cleveland p146 D '16 90w

"In sheer beauty of language few poets have excelled him at any time. . . . 'The harvesters,' quâ drama, is unexceptionable. It would act well. Terror is there, and pity, and the metaphysical horror. . . . 'The death of Agrippina' is intensely dramatic. What we have are historic characters treated romantically, as Marlowe might treat them, instead of classically, as Racine might treat them. 'Cleopatra in Judæa' is the least remarkable of the three plays. The intrigue is a little common." V. O'S.

+ New Repub 9:sup11 N 18 '16 1300w

N Y Br Lib News 3:170 N '16

+ R of Rs 54:567 N '16 140w

"The three 'Tragedies' that make up this book were written presumably for reading and not for acting. Dramatic they are not. They lack movement and driving force, but as literary exercises they are excellent. . . . In days of slipshod English it is good to have Arthur Symons, to lose oneself in the beaten harmony of his language, the rhythmic movement and colour of his lines."

+ Sat R 122:323 S 30 '16 750w

+ — Springfield Republican p13 N 5 '16 820w

"The harvesters' shows the fire of genuine feeling, which is rare among writers of tragedy in modern times. And Mary, like Mr. Masefield's Nan, we take to be a genuine figure of tragedy according to the rules. . . . Undoubtedly, Mr. Symons has given us a temperament for his Nero, and chosen a good moment for showing its extremes in action; but the play as a whole is laborious and conscientious. . . . 'Cleopatra in Judæa' is interesting as putting dramatic life into yet another link of the famous story that has material in it still for many playwrights: but, for all Mr. Symons's care to give it colour and warmth of person and of period, it remains a little dull and cold."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p439 S 14 '16 1300w

SYRETT, NETTA. Rose Cottingham (Eng title, Victorians). $1.35 (1c) Putnam 15-25938

This story of a young girl's development gives an interesting, sometimes an amusing, picture of the later Victorian era in England. Of particular interest, now that the higher education of women is a generally accepted fact, is the account of its early beginnings and of Rose's none too happy experience in Quayle college, described as a type of the most advanced school of its day for girls. In the story of Rose's career the author gives glimpses of three worlds that existed contemporaneously, the stodgy, stolid social world, now stigmatized as "Victorian," the pseudo-literary and artistic world that followed the cult of Aubrey Beardsley, and the much more vital world of the awakening labor movement. Rose, a vivid young creature who does not fit at all into the first of these, altho it is the one into which she is born, is followed only to her twenty-first year. If ever a novel cried out for a sequel it is this.

— Boston Transcript p24 Mr 8 '16 220w

"Where an author found so many disagreeable characters, it is difficult to understand. The story lacks in motivation and cohesion, attempts to picture the socialist and esthetic craze of thirty years ago, and does so in wearying, lugubrious pages which do not seem to get anywhere."

— Lit D 52:724 Mr 18 '16 200w

— Nation 103:156 Ag 17 '16 230w

"Rose herself is charming, portrayed not only with care and deftness, but with a courage and frankness which even venture to touch on certain portions of a girl's psychical and physiological development that the average novel ignores. The book is well written, and its minor as well as its principal characters are real people. Finish and dignity, too, the book has, and it holds the reader's attention from beginning to end. Altogether, Netta Syrett may be congratulated upon having written a thoroughly worth while novel."

+ N Y Times 21:50 F 13 '16 900w

"A novel that has all the glamour of youth and the sparkle of genius."

+ R of Rs 53:378 Mr '16 40w

"Miss Netta Syrett, from the high pinnacle of modern fiction-writing, condemns with possible justice but with evident enjoyment the whole system of the upbringing of children half a century ago, and shuts her eyes to the fact that its austere methods did turn out great men and famous—greater and more famous than our ultra-sympathetic education shows any signs of producing."

— + Spec 115:547 O 23 '15 220w

"A novel of the late Victorian period by a novelist who is rather oppressively of to-day. The ogreish grandmother, in whom you do not for a moment believe, holds that woman's only sphere is marriage; Rose falls in with radicals who think differently, and gets some of the ferment of the Yellow book revolution into her veins. Miss Syrett has some cleverness, but her preoccupations antagonize her artistic principles. The work thus wobbles to an argumentative end, it has little vividness as a picture of late Victorian society, and the glimpses of the early socialists and the artistic innovators of the 1890's are not of value."

— Springfield Republican p15 F 6 '16 450w

T

TAFT, WILLIAM HOWARD. Our chief magistrate and his powers. $1.50 (3¼c) Columbia Univ. press 353 16-10804

"The six chapters included in this book were originally delivered by Mr. Taft at Columbia university, during the winter session of 1915-16, as the Blumenthal lectures, under the general title: 'The presidency, its powers, duties, responsibilities and limitations.' With this title, in accordance with the usual custom, they were also presently announced by the Columbia university press as a forthcoming publication. Since a similar title had already been given to a course of three lectures delivered by Mr. Taft at the University of Virginia, in the academic year 1914-15, the publication of which had been undertaken by Charles Scribner's sons, the title of this volume has been changed, at the author's suggestion, to its present form." (Preface) The topics considered are: the distribution of governmental powers, the power of veto, of appointment, of pardon, and the foreign power, the minor powers of the president and the limitations of his powers, the duty of the president to take care that laws are executed and his powers and duties as commander-in-chief. There is a full index.

"He has made an admirable presentation of the defects in the methods of managing our national finances and the need of a correct budgetary system under executive control and responsibility." W: A. Schaper

TAFT, WILLIAM HOWARD—Continued
+ Am Pol Sci R 10:778 N '16 1150w

"Especially interesting is the chapter on the appointing power, in which the evils of the present system of dispensing patronage, as well as certain defects in the civil-service system are clearly brought out." R. G. G.
+ Ann Am Acad 68:330 N '16 110w

"He has spoken and written for the general reader rather than the special student." Lindsay Rogers

+ Dial 61:135 S 7 '16 240w

+ Educ R 52:424 N '16 60w

Ind 87:67 J1 10 '16 150w

"A delightful humor, which now and then breaks out into an almost audible Taft chuckle, makes the book very easy and pleasant reading."

+ J Pol Econ 24:920 N '16 170w

"Comparison shows that not only are the two volumes essentially identical in substance, with the same order of topics, the same suggestions and conclusions, and many of the same historical illustrations, but that large portions of the earlier volume have been reproduced, either word for word or with slight verbal alterations, in the later one. The only real difference between the two is one of quantity."

+ Nation 103:16 J1 6 '16 550w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

"The substance of the two volumes is very much the same, but the second is somewhat more full, and is enlivened by a certain number of illustrations from personal experience."

+ N Y Times 21:211 My 21 '16 220w

Pittsburgh 21:361 J1 '16 20w

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 28 '16 1200w

TAFT, WILLIAM HOWARD. Presidency: its duties, its powers, its opportunities and its limitations. *$1 Scribner 353 16-10311

"Three lectures delivered on the Barbour-Pape foundation at the University of Virginia, 1915. . . . Mr. Taft's Columbia university lectures, 'Our chief magistrate and his powers,' covers the subject in much the same way but somewhat more fully and with some personal illustrations."—A L A Bkl

+ Am Hist R 22:203 O '16 300w

+ A L A Bkl 12:457 J1 '16

+ Dial 61:135 S 7 '16 240w

+ Ind 87:66 J1 10 '16 200w

"The more readers it finds in the next six months the sounder will be public opinion as to the issues to be determined in November. It is singularly lucid and direct, and marked when the occasion solicits by a view of not unkindly but pungent humor."

+ N Y Times 21:211 My 21 '16 1100w

Pittsburgh 21:361 J1 '16 10w

+ R of Rs 54:118 J1 '16 30w

TAGGART, MARION AMES. Hollyhock house. il *$1.25 (2c) Doubleday 16-5584

The story of the Garden girls, Mary, Jane and Florimel, who had bloomed in their garden under the guardianship of their father's friend and their young half-uncle. After their father's death, their mother had left them for the glamour of the footlights. But when they were grown to womanhood and had learned that she had lost her beautiful voice, they gladly welcomed her back, and with the help of their garden and their friends tried to make her happy. It was not until Mary met with a serious accident that Mrs. Garden realized all that she had lost when she left her babies.

"The plot is of the slimmest and some of the characters very poorly done. . . . As for the three girls who lived in Hollyhock house and whose story this is, they are interesting and loveable and well done. . . . If the critic does find much to disparage in 'Hollyhock house,' he can also praise its sweet wholesomeness and occasional charm."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 230w

+ Nation 103:111 Ag 3 '16 90w

"The audience of young girls for whom it is meant will find it a charming story from which they will unconsciously absorb the ideals of daily conduct and have freshened and strengthened their love of growing things."

+ N Y Times 21:153 Ap 16 '16 210w

TAGORE, SIR RABINDRANATH (RAVIN-DRANATHA THAKURA). Fruit-gathering. *$1.25 Macmillan 891.4 16-22358

The significance of the title and the spirit of this book of poems can be best conveyed by quoting one of them:

"My life when young was like a flower—a flower that loosens a petal or two from her abundance and never feels the loss when the spring breeze comes to beg at her door.

"Now at the end of youth my life is like a fruit, having nothing to spare, and waiting to offer herself completely with her burden of sweetness."

+ A L A Bkl 13:212 F '17

"Written in the unmetrical, rhythmic diction with which we are now familiar, several are as perfect in form as they are beautiful and poignant in content."

+ Ath p594 D '16 420w

"As the successive books that followed 'Gitanjali' came to us, beautiful as they were, some of us began to feel that all together they could add nothing to the wonderful message contained in the mystical visions of those song-offerings, but once again I believe in 'Fruit-gathering' he shows us a shining pathway up which we can confidently travel to those regions of wisdom and experience which consciously or unconsciously we strive to reach." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 11 '16 1200w

+ R of Rs 54:671 D '16 30w

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 500w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p559 N 23 '16 700w

TAGORE, SIR RABINDRANATH (RAVIN-DRANATHA THAKURA). Humorous stories, and other stories. *$1.35 (2c) Macmillan 16-22773

Unlike some of the author's later work, these stories were first written in his native tongue. They have been translated especially for this volume. In his study of Rabindranath Tagore, Mr. Ernest Rhys devoted one chapter to his short stories, saying that many critics who know his writings intimately in their original form hold that his finest work lies, not in his songs or in his plays, but in his short stories. The stories in this volume give one an opportunity to test the truth of this. They vary in theme. Some are stories of every day life in Bengal, some are dream stories, some are loving and tender studies of childhood.

+ A L A Bkl 13:223 F '17

"Sir R. Tagore's medium is not prose fiction. . . . Several of these stories take us into eternity, and these are better than the lighter tales, for certainly the humour of the Bengali is a little thin or too lacking in something to touch the western mind."

+ Ath p597 D '16 160w

"Tagore draws upon the experience and the knowledge of his readers. . . . It is when he writes of children that Tagore strikes the tenderest and the truest note. . . . This new volume of his work which introduces him to English readers as a short-story writer is as significant of his power as are the verses that have preceded it." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p5 N 22 '16 550w

"The thing that makes the book remarkable (for it certainly is remarkable) is not that it is Indian, but that it is very human." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:468 N 30 '16 200w

+ N Y Times 21:465 N 5 '16 1100w

"It would be a mistake, of course, to condemn any story simply on the ground that it does not conform to conventional standards, yet one may hazard the guess that because of a certain fluidity in his conception of the short story, Tagore will not permanently appeal as a story-writer to American readers."

+ No Am 205:149 Ja '17 700w

+ R of Rs 54:679 D '16 150w

+ Springfield Republican p7 N 25 '16 1250w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p560 N 23 '16 120w

TAGORE, SIR RABINDRANATH (RAVIN-DRANATHA THAKURA). Stray birds. il $1.50 Macmillan 891.4 16-23050

A book of brief paragraphs recording flitting thoughts and fancies. Oftentimes the expressions are epigrammatic: "It is the tears of the earth that keep her smiles in bloom"; "If you shed tears when you miss the sun, you also miss the stars."

+ A L A Bkl 13:212 F '17

"To those who have known and loved 'The gardener,' the little book of 'Stray birds' seems like so many lost lines from the earlier book."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 14 '17 80w

TALLEY, GEORGE A. Panama canal: an elucidation of its governmental features as prescribed by treaties. il $2 (3½c) G: A. Talley, Marcus Hook, Pa. 341 16-12258

A 1916 revision of a book published in 1915. Data are given down to November 1, 1915. It deals almost wholly with the legal status of the canal, its main purpose being to preserve the arguments for and against toll exemptions. There are given full copies of the Hay-Pauncefote and Panama treaties; the address of President Wilson to Congress March 5, 1914, recommending repeal of exemption; twenty-four pages of the address of Senator Root before the Senate in 1914 in favor of the repeal bill and eleven pages of Senator O'Gorman's address in opposition to the appeal. The author discusses Fortification; Neutralization; Treaty rights; Historic pledges; National sovereignty; Exemption and political platforms; The peace societies and Constitutional equality, etc.

TARBELL, IDA MINERVA. New ideals in business, an account of their practice and their effects upon men and profits. il $1.75 (2c) Macmillan 331.8 16-23449

Miss Tarbell has made a study of the various industries in different parts of the country that are trying out experiments in shortening hours, providing better working conditions, etc. She also touches on the activities of states and municipalities in establishing employment bureaus and in providing emergency work for the unemployed. Parts of the book have been appearing in the American magazine under the title "The golden rule in business." Contents: Our new workshops; "A fine place to work"; The gospel of safety; Health for everyman; "Sober first"; Good homes make good workers; A man's hours; A man's hire; Experiments in justice; Steadying the job; The factory as a school; Our new industrial leader.

+ A L A Bkl 13:151 Ja '17

"Whether the revolution has progressed as far and has accomplished as much as Miss Tarbell has been led to believe may be fairly open to question." H. S. K.

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 9 '16 600w

"It is thoroughly informing; it reveals not only details of management, but also the personal reactions of employers and employes. . . . The movement for the employment of higher ideals in business is bigger than the average man realizes, and Miss Tarbell's book is a book to read."

+ No Am 205:151 Ja '17 380w

+ R of Rs 55:109 Ja '17 100w

Reviewed by W: M. Leiserson

Survey 37:498 Ja 27 '17 950w

TARKINGTON, BOOTH. Penrod and Sam. il $1.35 (2c) Doubleday 16-22263

Another book of the adventures and misfortunes of Penrod in his twelfth year. The book opens with an outburst of militarism and ends with a party. Now Penrod and his friend Sam Williams were seldom invited to small parties; they were considered too imaginative; but Baby Rennsdale's party was a large one and they were included. Imagination got in its work with dramatic results. Between the opening military encounter and the final social event, there are other adventures, participated in by Penrod's various acquaintances, Georgie Bassett, Maurice Levy, Roddy Bitts, and the two colored retainers, Herman and Verman.

+ A L A Bkl 13:178 Ja '17

"Quite as amusing as the first set of stories."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 30 '16 170w

+ Cath World 104:556 Ja '17 220w

"It is safe to say that nobody who has read Booth Tarkington's 'Seventeen' will ever quite dare to be seventeen again. But 'Penrod and Sam,' its successor, though quite as jolly, has exactly the contrary effect of making the reader long for a return of the conscienceless, adventurous age of ten."

+ Dial 61:587 D 28 '16 230w

+ Ind 88:330 N 20 '16 50w

+ N Y Times 21:466 N 5 '16 990w

Reviewed by Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 90:1404 O 21 '16 540w

"Amusing, pathetic, and profound in power of psychology by turns, it gives the most amazing whiffs of real boyhood and the best-written stories of juvenile prankishness that have ever been written."

+ R of Rs 54:679 D '16 60w

+ Springfield Republican p13 D 24 '16 450w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D 13 30w

TARKINGTON, BOOTH. Seventeen; a tale of youth and summer time and the Baxter family, especially William. il $1.35 (2c) Harper 16-6604

Mr. Tarkington knows what it is to be a boy, and seventeen, and in love, and to have a small sister Jane who eats bread and butter spread with apple sauce on the public streets, and a father who does not appreciate his son's need of a dress suit. All this he tells in the story of William Baxter's seventeenth summer, the summer of his love for Lora Pratt, she of the adorable eyes and the inane, babyish lisp. His father hadn't much patience with Willie, neither had his sister Jane, nor the infuriated Mr. Parcher at whose house Miss Pratt was a guest, but his mother seemed to understand. She knew that all young people do strange things and that they in turn grow up and become middle-aged and look with amazement on the strange things the new young people are doing.

+ A L A Bkl 12:386 My '16

+ Ath p384 Ag '16 60w

"'Seventeen' is a diverting record of calf-love; but Willie Baxter will be a calf at twenty-seven, or fifty-seven—and he will never be called anything but 'Willie.'" Wilson Follett

+ Atlan 118:501 O '16 30w

"For a day which, with its shoddy 'boy's book,' seems bent upon giving youth a false glamour of dignity and heroism in its own eyes, such an interpretation as this should be good medicine." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:204 Ap '16 220w

"Mr. Tarkington has written wisely and well in 'Seventeen' for he has written in it a story which enables us to see ourselves as others once saw us. It is a diversified comedy that never allows the reader to grow weary." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 15 '16 1050w

"Youthful love is an old, old story, but no one has ever before depicted it with such skill and humor."

+ Cath World 103:266 My '16 170w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

TARKINGTON, BOOTH—Continued

+ Cleveland p34 Ap '16 50w

"To be perfectly frank about this book, I should say that it was the most dreadful combination I had met with in years, but very funny." E: E. Hale

+ — Dial 60:426 Ap 27 '16 450w

"The real thing—the real thing at last." . . . Thus unintentionally William achieved the rare distinction of reviewing his own book, "Seventeen."

+ Ind 86:252 My 15 '16 600w

+ Lit D 52:978 Ap 8 '16 350w

"Aside from the fact that it is one of the most laughter-provoking tales of the year, Mr. Tarkington's story is also, beneath all its fun, a notable study of the psychology of the boy in his latter teens. Many a parent will learn something to the advantage of his relations with his children while he laughs at William's grotesqueries. . . . The illustrations, of which there are twelve, by Arthur William Brown, part full page and the rest double page and all in tint, deserve mention for the subtlety and comprehension with which the artist has caught the author's spirit and the sense of humor with which they are drawn."

+ N Y Times 21:73 Mr 5 '16 1600w

+ N Y Times 21:505 N 26 '16 80w

"Booth Tarkington's humorous, sympathetic and understanding stories of William Sylvanus Baxter at 'Seventeen,' age of portentous seriousness, painful self-consciousness and utterly unconscious absurdity reveal this admirable artist at his best. As a craftsman, as a master of the resources of the English tongue, able to make it do his bidding with unflinching precision and lucidity, he deserves a place beside William Dean Howells."

+ N Y Tribune p8 Mr 18 '16 60w

"One person, however, will not care for the book, will not appreciate it—that is Seventeen himself. He will call it 'darned crazy.'" Robert Lynd

+ Pub W 89:1023 Mr 18 '16 650w

+ R of Rs 53:505 Ap '16 200w

+ Spec 117:162 Ag 5 '16 1050w

"Mr. Tarkington declines to take his hero seriously; hence the fun."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 420w

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p359 Jl 27 '16 140w

TASSIN, ALGERNON DE VIVIER. Magazine in America. il *$2 (1½c) Dodd 051 16-13360

An informal history of the magazine movement in America from its beginning in the middle of the eighteenth century to the end of the nineteenth. In the early chapters we are taken back to the Columbia Magazine or Monthly Miscellany, the Lowell Offering and Godey's Lady's Book. Later chapters treat of the beginnings of the Atlantic Monthly and Harper's, and still later comes the rise of the popular magazine, stimulated by Mr. Munsey and Mr. McClure. The author has not attempted to write a history, but he has brought together for the first time an amount of widely scattered material relating to the literary activities of a century and a half. Many of the chapters of the book have appeared in the Bookman.

"The author, who is assistant professor of English at Columbia, has collected a fund of scattered and interesting material for his book, the main criticism of which has been a certain lack of system in its arrangement."

+ — A L A Bkl 13:54 N '16

"Written in sprightly fashion, and they make no attempt at a formal history, being an arrangement of the widely scattered and submerger material relating to one of the most picturesque sections of our literary progress."

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 31 '16 1150w

+ Boston Transcript p7 Je 10 '16 530w

N Y Br Lib News 3:104 Jl '16

+ — N Y Times 21:337 Ag 27 '16 850w

Pittsburgh 21:367 Jl '16 80w

"Unfortunately, little can be said in praise of Mr. Tassin's editing—if one may call it that—of his material. Everything about the book is desperately popular. There are chapter-headings designed to catch the eye of the casual magazine-reader of to-day. 'Willowly Willis and Piratical Poe' is journalism at its cheapest. . . . Mr. Tassin brings together much interesting matter, but frequently takes the edge off it by trying to make it more interesting."

+ — Springfield Republican p8 Je 29 '16 680w

"Entertaining, indeed rather flippant."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:408 N '16 40w

TATLOCK, JOHN STRONG PERRY, and MARTIN, ROBERT GRANT, eds. Representative English plays, from the middle ages to the end of the nineteenth century; ed. with introd. and notes. *$2.50 Century 822 16-15902

"It is a splendid pageant that is spread before us. We find the noble beginnings of the English drama represented . . . by three miracle plays and the famous 'Everyman.' For the spacious days of Elizabeth, Lyly, Marlowe, Dekker, Heywood, Beaumont and Fletcher, Ben Jonson, Middleton and Rowley stand forth. The restoration period gives us three plays, the eighteenth century takes us from the sedate Addison to the gay Sheridan. The nineteenth century has Shelley's 'Cenci,' Bulwer-Lytton's 'Lady of Lyons,' Browning's 'Blot in the 'scutcheon,' and Wilde's 'Lady Windermere's fan.'"—N Y Times

+ Cath World 104:410 D '16 290w

"The bibliography is on a sensible scale and it is well adapted to the general purposes of the book."

+ — Dial 61:540 D 14 '16 520w

"A most useful selection. . . . The book is in pleasant, clear type, two columns with the briefest footnotes. There is a helpful bibliography, and the short essays introducing each play are excellent."

+ Ind 87:232 Ag 4 '16 60w

+ Lit D 53:1042 O 21 '16 330w

"Scrupulous care is evident in the texts, which are reprinted from the best editions."

+ — Nation 103:447 N 9 '16 460w

N Y Br Lib News 3:139 S '16 170w

"As a supplement to a course in the history of the English drama, there is perhaps no single volume more obviously useful than this. The editors have shown scholarship and discrimination in their selections, and their notes are marvels of conciseness and common sense."

+ N Y Times 21:375 S 24 '16 200w

+ R of Rs 54:677 D '16 90w

"The volume seems intended for fairly elementary students, since it includes the plays one invariably chooses first for studious reading and presents introductions designed for the beginner rather than for the advanced student. . . . Occasionally these introductions seem a bit too elementary. . . . They are also not remarkable for careful statement, though not marred by glaring blunders. . . . Lastly, at times even the English is hurriedly and carelessly written. . . . After all, in such a textbook it is usually the choice of material, rather than comment on the material, that makes the book useful. The choice of plays here is excellent, except for the inclusion of 'The Cenci' and 'The blot in the 'scutcheon.'" G: Sherburne

+ — School R 24:709 N '16 580w

TAUSSIG, FRANK WILLIAM. Some aspects of the tariff question. (Harvard economic studies) *$2 (1c) Harvard univ. press 337 15-9435

This book is based in part on articles that have appeared in the Quarterly Journal of Economics and the Atlantic Monthly and on lectures delivered at the Lowell Institute in Boston in 1912. It represents the conclusions arrived at after more than twenty-five years of study into the tariff problem. Part 1 is made up of three chapters: Duties, imports, prices; Protection to young industries; The principle of comparative advantage. These chapters, the author says, summarize his main conclusions. The three parts that follow "give illustrations and verifications drawn from the history of several industries—sugar, iron and steel, and textiles."

"Professor Taussig's method, long familiar to students in this field, is the method of refined common sense applied to complex problems—close reasoning from general principles, checked up by careful accumulation and interpretation of all relevant facts. . . . The whole volume centers around the concept of comparative advantage. In its emphasis on the human element in that principle, and in the application of it to the United States, Professor Taussig's work far surpasses anything heretofore published. . . . His conclusion is not unfavorable to protection as it is based on the young-industries argument, and he regards other economic claims as unwarranted. In his desire to be fair to the protectionists, he seems to me to yield too much." H. R. Mussey

+ Am Econ R 5:876 D '15 1250w

"The work is in no significant sense a reprint of earlier writings. Many topics and many details on different topics were required for completeness in the 'Tariff history of the United States' that are omitted here. He deals here only with the sugar, iron and steel, copper, wool and woollens, and cotton industries." J: H. Gray

+ Am Hist R 21:371 Ja '16 500w

Reviewed by A. B. Wolfe

+ Am J Soc 22:268 S '16 750w

"Clear in style, accurate, scholarly, useful in large or special libraries in connection with his standard 'Tariff history of the United States.'"

+ A L A Bkl 12:169 Ja '16

"Taken as a whole, the most readable and satisfactory of recent contributions to tariff literature. . . . It can and should be read with understanding and pleasure by everyone who feels the responsibility of a correct individual decision on a fundamental national issue." H. P. Willis

+ J Pol Econ 25:119 Ja '17 2150w

"The care with which each theoretical proposition is enunciated, and hedged about with all necessary qualifications, finds its counterpart in the scrupulous accuracy which Professor Taussig applies to the portrayal of industrial facts in the survey of the story of sugar, of iron and steel, and of textiles, which forms the bulk of his book. But while it is always with an eye to their economic interpretation that the facts are put forward, there is never for a moment the feeling that a selection is made with a view to the supporting of any preconceived conclusion."

+ Nation 102:165 F 10 '16 1100w

"Our national policy is in the melting pot, just at the time that the world's trading nations are projecting economic alliances corresponding to their military alliances. What is to be the position of the United States? . . . Americans owe it to themselves to have opinions based upon principles. It is troublesome, no doubt, but Professor Taussig makes the trouble little for anybody. For those who like the topics he makes the study entrancing."

+ N Y Times 21:196 My 7 '16 900w

TAYLOR, ALBERT D., comp. Partial list of plants available for various uses in general landscape planting. 75c A. D. Taylor, 1900 Euclid av., Cleveland, O. 716.2 16-11237

The author, a landscape architect in Cleveland and non-resident professor of landscape architecture at Ohio state university, has prepared this book for the amateur. Its purpose is to answer the many questions asked about plants for specific purposes. The plants included are adapted to the climate of northern Ohio and regions having approximately the same growing season. The arrangement is by groups; Plants for hedges; Plants for ground cover; Plants for border planting; Plants valuable for specimen use and for accent purposes; Plants for street and avenue planting, etc.

Cleveland p154 D '16

Pittsburgh 21:486 N '16 60w

TAYLOR, ARTHUR ORISON, ed. Persistent public problems; unemployment, social and industrial righteousness. *$2 A. O. Taylor, box 3507, Boston 331 16-3122

"A book that will be of value to any one wishing to have at hand the opinions of a number of economists, executives and publicists on unemployment and related topics. The book is made up in part of reprints of magazine articles or chapters from books and in part of material prepared especially for this volume. Included in the list of contributors are Roger W. Babson, statistician; Richard T. Ely, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin; Henry A. Atkinson, secretary of the Social service committee of the Congregational church; George W. Perkins, chairman of the board of directors of the International harvester company; Scott Nearing, professor of economics at Toledo university, and Louis D. Brandeis."—Survey

Boston Transcript p6 F 12 '16 400w

+ Ind 87:351 S 4 '16 60w

+ Survey 36:440 J1 22 '16 130w

TAYLOR, E. A. Paris, past and present; ed. by Charles Holme. il *$3 Lane 914.43 15-25075

"It is not the Paris of the conventional tourist that we find between these covers, but rather the Paris of the painter and engraver—not the Paris of gay shops, trim boulevards and busy restaurants, but the Paris of the sluggish bridge-bound Seine, of gray-towered and quaintly carved churches, of crooked, grimy, twilighted streets and time-worn shambling houses. While there are several short chapters on these subjects, they are nearly crowded out by the large and comprehensive collection of nearly two hundred etchings, lithographs and drawings." (Boston Transcript) "The book is divided into three sections: The first dealing with 'The river, bridges, and quays'; second, 'Old streets and markets'; third, 'The public buildings, monuments, and gardens.'" (Lit D)

"A valuable feature is the comparison which may be made between the work of the older engravers, like Meryon for instance, and the most ultra-modern school. The press work is good and in many of the plates the depth of color and atmosphere of the original etchings is suggested to quite a remarkable degree."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ja 8 '16 180w

"The reproductions of Monsieur Bezot's etchings are wonderfully attractive, so are those of Mr. F. M. Armington, whose drawings were made especially for this volume. A book of delight for the student or traveler, and a happy reminder for lovers of Paris."

+ Lit D 52:915 Ap 1 '16 160w

TAYLOR, EMERSON GIFFORD. Practical stage directing for amateurs; a handbook for amateur managers and actors. il *$1 (3½c) Dutton 792 16-8086

Mr. Taylor asks for higher standards in amateur performances, higher on the part of actor and of critic. "Select a play worth the trouble and time that must be spent on it," is his advice in the chapter on The choice of a play. Other chapters consider Organization, Rehearsing, The amateur actor's A-B-C, Make-up, and The stage and the scenery. A stage diagram showing the meaning of L. U. E., R. C., etc., and a glossary of stage terms are features of the book.

+ A L A Bkl 12:416 Je '16

"Written by a man who evidently knows what he is talking about."

+ Nation 103:161 Ag 17 '16 330w

N Y Br Lib News 3:69 My '16

Pratt p26 O '16 10w

"A most suggestive manual."

+ R of Rs 54:676 D '16 40w

St Louis 14:194 My '16

"Promises to be a very valuable hand-book for those who attempt the staging of amateur performances on a fairly pretentious scale."

+ Springfield Republican p6 S 12 '16 180w

+ Ws Lib Bull 12:269 Je '16 30w

TAYLOR, GRIFFITH. With Scott; the silver lining. il *$5 (3c) Dodd 919.9 16-26935

Mr. Taylor was one of the geologists with the Scott expedition. His sojourn in the Antarctic was devoted to the study of some of the problems of glacial geology which can only be solved in the ice covered polar regions. The results of his investigations, made more clear by the general reader by diagrams and drawings, are presented in this book, together with a most interesting account of the day-by-day life of the men. One interesting feature of the work is the inclusion of some of the lectures prepared by members of the expedition for delivery before the others during the long winter days. Mr. Taylor was one of the fortunate ones who returned safely on the "Terra Nova," in March, 1912. The tragic fate of Captain Scott's own party is referred to briefly in a final chapter. In addition to one large folding map there are many smaller sketch maps, and numerous illustrations from drawings and photographs.

"Together with Priestley's record of the northern party (Booklist, 11:363, Ap 15) this completes the supplement to the official narrative. Many new illustrations and maps."

+ A L A Bkl 13:120 D '16

"As Mr. Huxley hints in his admirable preface, the reader will be grateful not only for Dr. Taylor's literary skill, but also for the radiant cheerfulness of his book. . . . His geological notes are interesting even to the unscientific reader."

+ Ath p197 Ap '16 300w

+ Ind 88:410 D 4 '16 90w

+ Nation 104:107 Ja 25 '17 620w

N Y Br Lib News 3:125 Ag '16

"More than all, there is the presentation of Captain Scott as his companions knew him amid the difficulties of polar life."

+ N Y Times 21:428 O 15 '16 1550w

"Nearly 200 illustrations, all entertaining, add very much to the historic value of this chatty, delightful book, and the maps could not well be bettered. . . . Every boy in the realm would read himself into lasting friendship with Mr. Taylor if only he had a fair chance."

+ Sat R 121:306 Mr 25 '16 1500w

"The biologist, the geologist and other scientists will find much information along lines usually ignored by polar authors. These data are most welcome as the detailed memoirs, on the very extensive and most varied scientific researches of Scott's expedition, will not be completed for several years." A. W. Greely

+ Science n s 44:860 D 15 '16 930w

TAYLOR, JAMES MONROE, and HAIGHT, ELIZABETH HAZELTON. Vassar. (American college and university ser.) il *$1.50 Oxford 376.8 15-15161

"A survey of Vassar's scholastic and social development, an interpretation of the Vassar spirit and an estimate of the significance of the college in the field of women's education, by the former president of the college and an associate professor of Latin, a member of the class of '94." (Cleveland) It contains a "Partial list of sources for the history of Vassar college."

"Especially interesting sections are those on student life, student publications, and the relation of the college to problems of the day. Rather a book for alumnae and friends of the college, than for parents considering where to send their daughters."

+ Cleveland p7 F '16 90w

"The authors present their facts from a point of view distinctly that of administrators; student activities are not omitted from the story, but they are somewhat slighted, and less attention is given to the influence of student and alumnae criticism on the college development than strict fairness demands."

+ Dial 60:84 Ja 20 '16 430w

Reviewed by W: H. Carpenter

+ Educ R 52:511 D '16 1550w

N Y Br Lib News 3:29 F '16

TAYLOR, W. WHITE. Chemistry of colloids and some technical applications. il *$2 Longmans 541.3 GS15-791

"The author is a lecturer in chemistry at the University of Edinburgh, and the book owes its birth, as is the case of many scientific books, to a series of lectures given by the author before a class of advanced students. . . . If one is interested in obtaining a statement of the principal facts of colloidal chemistry unencumbered with too much theory, the book is to be recommended." (Science) "Part 1 (163 pp.) deals with general properties of colloids; part 2 (56 pp.), with methods of preparation; part 3 (42 pp.), with surface phenomena or adsorption; and part 4 (56 pp.), with applications of colloid chemistry (semi-colloids, dyeing, tanning, soil, purification of sewage, and applications to biology)." (Bot Gaz)

"Those interested only in the general principles of the subject will find this little book most satisfactory." W: Crocker

+ Bot Gaz 61:345 Ap '16 80w

"This is the first attempt at an original textbook in English dealing with the important subject of colloidal chemistry. It will undoubtedly prove useful, not only to the student, for whom it will save laborious note-taking; but also to the instructor, who will benefit by the mass of arranged facts which the book offers. For the professional worker in the field of colloidal chemistry, the book has little to offer, first because of its brevity and second because of the fact that although dated January, 1915, many of the results of recent research are not to be found in the book." W. A. Patrick

+ Science n s 43:746 My 26 '16 250w

TCHEKHOV, ANTON PAVLOVICH. Darling, and other stories; tr. from the Russian by Constance Garnett. *$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 16-21395

This is the first volume of a new translation of Tchekhov's tales. "It presents a few aspects of his incomparable gift," says Edward Garnett in the introduction. "All who want to know modern Russia, especially the life of the educated class, must read Tchekhov," he adds. The first story, The darling, is a satire on the type of woman who takes all her ideas from the man she happens to be interested in. Tolstoy, however, found something besides satire in the story and his criticism of it is given second place in the volume. The remaining stories are: Ariadne; Polinka; Anjuta; The two Volodyas; The trousseau; The helpmate; Talent; An artist's story; Three years.

+ Ath p595 D '16 30w

+ Dial 61:470 N 30 '16 220w

"Most writers are specialists. They know certain strata of society and when they venture into other fields their step becomes uncertain. Tchekhov's material is only delimited by humanity." Thomas Seltzer

+ N Y Call p15 D 24 '16 1000w

"We have few, if any, short story writers in English who can compare with Tchekhov in range, and none to equal him in grip and power. His stories bite into the memory."

+ Sat R 122:532 D 2 '16 650w

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 12 '17 140w

TCHEKHOV, ANTON PAVLOVICH. Duel, and other stories; from the Russian by Constance Garnett. *$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 16-23209

"The duel," a long story occupying about one half the book, and seven shorter tales make up this collection. "The duel" is a story of a little village on the Black sea and of a man and a woman who have fled there from conventional society, to find an ideal existence in a life of simplicity and hard work. The remaining stories are: Excellent people; Mire; Neighbours; At home; Expensive lessons; The princess; The chemist's wife.

"Though resembling Guy de Maupassant in certain respects, he surpasses the great French writer in tenderness and humanity, without being any less truthful. In 'The duel,' 'The princess' and 'At home' are perhaps the most successful."

+ Ath p595 D '16 40w

"A wonderful study in the conflict between good and evil, and in the struggle between the merciless ethics of science and the merciful ethics of Christianity. . . . The story, like a thrilling personal experience, is something to ponder for a lifetime."

+ No Am 205:152 Ja '17 380w

R of Rs 55:103 Ja '17 60w

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 12 '17 90w

TCHEKHOV, ANTON PAVLOVICH. Plays, second series; tr. with an introd. by Julius West. *$1.50 Scribner 891.7 16-6252

"Of the eight plays in this volume, only one, 'The cherry orchard,' has been published before in book form in England or America." (Nation) "They show different phases of the life of the Russian people. 'On the high road' is a character study. 'The proposal,' 'The bear,' 'The wedding,' and 'The anniversary,' are humorous plays displaying great variety. 'The three sisters' and 'The cherry orchard' are tragedies of inactivity. They expound the belief that all human unhappiness is the result of some slovenliness of 'thought and execution, education and ideal.'" (R of Rs)

A L A Bkl 13:114 D '16

"Mingling with his humor and saved by it from turning too strenuously inward is his interest in psychology. Too much introspection means the death of creative power, and even in the shorter plays we see the mingling of the two tendencies. When we come to 'The cherry orchard,' the best known as well as the finest of Tchekoff's plays, we find it almost too full with psychological introspection to win us at a first reading. . . . While the setting of the play is Russian, we cannot escape the feeling that the author has written something of a universal significance." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p25 F 16 '16 950w

"Includes 'The bear,' which was produced this season by the Washington Square players in New York."

+ Ind 86:75 Ap 10 '16 80w

"Will repay perusal as intimate satirical studies of certain phases of Russian life and character, although the dramatic, or at any rate the theatrical, value of most of them, especially the more ambitious efforts, is altogether inconsiderable. The interest in them is almost exclusively literary and ethical. He knew his Russia, the feudalistic, superstitious, patient, inert, fatalistic Russia of a few years ago—and had the courage to expose and ridicule the intellectual and moral dry-rot which perpetuated tyranny and sapped all her potential energies. He did not live long enough to recognize the signs of the awakening that he longed for." J. R. Towse

+ Nation 102:419 Ap 13 '16 870w

"'The three sisters' is the most characteristic of all of Tchekov's plays, for here, even more than in 'Cherry orchard,' he has set himself to overcome the difficulties of realism in their most treacherous forms. . . . It may not be difficult to impart a sense of Tchekov's realism, but it is enormously difficult to convince those who have not seen productions of his plays at the Moscow Art theatre of his idealism." G. B. King

New Repub 7:256 Jl 8 '16 1900w

N Y Br Lib News 3:43 Mr '16

Pratt p33 Ap '16

R of Rs 53:377 Mr '16 70w

+ Spec 116:264 F 19 '16 180w

"Some of the shorter plays, 'The wedding,' 'The proposal,' 'A tragedian in spite of himself,' show that Tchekoff had a sharper wit and a merrier humour to indulge at the expense of the vulgar and the foolish than he uses in his longer plays. He is not a profound thinker, a great tragedian, or a mighty poet; he is an individual and attractive dramatist, and a craftsman whose skill is an inexhaustible delight." + The Times [London] Lit Sup p304 Je 29 '16 750w

TEELE, RAY PALMER. Irrigation in the United States; a discussion of its legal, economic and financial aspects. *$1.50 Appleton 631 15-27649

"The book is the result of many years of study of the subject in connection with the investigations of the Department of agriculture and of the census, making available in convenient form the larger conclusions derived from these very elaborate undertakings. . . . Proceeding from the elementary historic statements and description of climatic conditions in the arid regions, there is taken up the matter of water supply and crops, but the principal part of the work and one which gives the largest amount of original information is under the head of legislation, irrigation investigations and the organization and operation of irrigation enterprises. A clear but simple analysis of these is given, and it is shown that 'the financial success of a project depends upon rapid and successful settlement of the lands to be reclaimed.'"—Engin Rec

Reviewed by F. H. Newell

+ Am Econ R 6:623 S '16 950w

A L A Bkl 12:325 Ap '16

"Some important aspects of irrigation are omitted, and there is lack of proportion between others. The outline followed leads to needless repetition, and the evident desire for brevity apparently is responsible for certain incomplete statements. On the whole, the book is a review of the subject, valuable for reference, rather than a contribution to existing knowledge. The author's conservative and almost pessimistic view of the immediate future of irrigation and his proposal for publicly subsidizing irrigation works are interesting features of the book." T. R. T.

+ Ann Am Acad 66:276 Jl '16 200w

Boston Transcript p22 F 2 '16 240w

Engin N 76:118 Jl 20 '16 220w

"Had this little book and the information it contains been available to engineers and investors two decades ago, it would undoubtedly have saved the loss of many millions of dollars. It is not too late, however, for its value to be appreciated." F. H. Newell

+ Engin Rec 73:120 Ja 22 '16 500w

"The book should be read and studied by national and state legislators, who have to do with the making of irrigation laws; by the projector of new irrigation enterprises; by the investor; by the man on the irrigated farm, and by all who are interested in the gigantic movement to conquer all of our great west for the use of man. Mr. Teele is particularly well fitted to speak with authority on irrigation subjects. Through his editorial hands have passed practically every irrigation publication issued by the U. S. department of agriculture since 1899." J. A. Widtsoe

+ Science n s 43:467 Mr 31 '16 500w

TEMPLE, REV. WILLIAM. Church and nation; the Bishop Paddock lectures for 1914-15. *$1 Macmillan 261.7 16-14113

"This little volume is a large and reshaping outlook on the world as it has appeared since the first of August, 1914. The six Paddock lectures deal with 'The kingdom of freedom'; 'Church and state'; 'Justice and liberty in the state'; 'Holiness and catholicity in the church'; 'The citizenship of heaven'; and 'God in history.' There are also five appendixes which contain important supplementary matter."—Bib World

+ Bib World 47:341 My '16 180w

"Mr. Temple is a leader among the younger high churchmen. His temperate, illuminating, closely reasoned discussion of the relations of church and state meets point by point the argument of M. Loisy. . . . The religious mind, as met in this book, is neither moribund nor cloistered. It is bowed down by penitence, it gropes bewildered among shadows, it contradicts itself often. But it lives and wakes and seeks." V. D. Scudder

TEMPLE, REV. WILLIAM—Continued

+ Dial 60:382 Ap 13 '16 250w

"Throughout Dr. Temple is the exponent of the via media, the typical Anglican and Englishman, of the best type, radical in essence, conservative in practice, advancing by compromise and opportunism."

Nation 102:679 Je 22 '16 350w

TEMPLE, REV. WILLIAM. Plato and Christianity. *75c Macmillan 184

"This book consists of three lectures delivered during the extension summer meeting of August 1915, at Oxford, upon the relation of Plato's philosophy to Christianity. Of the three lectures, which are an exceedingly able and lucid exposition of the subject, the first deals with the general philosophy of Plato in outline, the second with Plato's ethics and politics, and the third and most interesting with the number of points in which Plato approaches to and prepares for the Christian view of life."—Int J Ethics

+ Int J Ethics 27:127 O '16 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16

"Mr. Temple's volume of lectures displays the clearness of thought and gift for interpretation, as well as the breadth of sympathy, which have made his previous books popular among that large and increasing number of persons who, without being students themselves, are keenly interested in the results of modern theological study."

+ Spec 117:587 N 11 '16 150w

"It is a pleasure to hear ideas expounded by a man whose grasp of them is so firm, and whose statement is simplicity itself."

+ Spring'd Republican p15 Ja 14 '17 1000w

TERMAN, LEWIS MADISON. Measurement of intelligence. (Riverside textbooks in education) il *$1.50 Houghton 136.7 16-14608

The use of intelligence tests in school education is the subject of this book. More particularly it deals with the revision and extension of the Binet-Simon tests worked out at Leland Stanford Junior university. Part 1 is devoted to Problems and results, with chapters on: The uses of intelligence tests, Sources of error in judging intelligence, Description of the Binet-Simon method, etc. Part 2 consists of a Guide for the use of the Stanford revision and extension. A list of references is given at the end. The preface says: "The aim has been to present the explanations and instructions so clearly and in such an untechnical form as to make the book of use, not only to the psychologist, but also to the rank and file of teachers, physicians, and social workers." The author is professor of education at Leland Stanford.

+ Dial 61:316 O 19 '16 370w

El School J 17:87 O '16 450w

"Invaluable for teachers and those having to do with sub-normal or unusually gifted children, and with vocational guidance."

+ Ind 87:349 S 4 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:123 Ag '16

Pittsburgh 21:448 O '16 20w

Pratt p15 Ja '17

TERRY, CHARLES SANFORD. Short history of Europe from the dissolution of the Holy Roman empire to the outbreak of the German war, 1806-1914. new ed. il *$2 Dutton 940.9 16-20459

"The last of a series of three volumes in which the author attempts to cover the history of Europe since the 'fall of Rome' in 476. The present volume begins with the dissolution of the Holy Roman empire [1806] and closes with the outbreak of the great European war. . . . Professor Terry's treatment of his theme differs from that of conventional histories in that he deals almost exclusively with large movements of international importance and ignores everything that is isolated and unrelated to the larger politics."—Dial

"The author is to be congratulated on his presentation of so much history in well-proportioned compass. The introductory review is good, but the method leads to a good deal more repetition than is necessary even in treating different countries separately. Some strain is put upon facts in certain instances to make them square with theories, and there are some disputable generalizations."

+ — Ath p71 F '16 200w

"The book is remarkable for its condensation, literary style and broad grasp of the factors that caused the revolutions of 1830 and 1848, that formed the modern kingdom of Italy and the German empire, and that led to the present European conduct. . . . He shows no grasp whatever of papal infallibility, which, he declares, 'riveted the fetters of liberalism on the church.'"

+ — Cath World 103:553 J1 '16 220w

"As the author holds a professorship in the University of Aberdeen, the work is naturally written from the British viewpoint. But except for a few pages of the introduction and the closing chapter, Professor Terry's history will be found profitable and enjoyable reading by all, even by those whose sympathies at present are with the Central powers."

+ Dial 60:386 Ap 13 '16 290w

THAYER, MRS. EMMA REDINGTON (LEE). When mother lets us draw. il *75c Moffat 740 16-19076

"The seventeenth volume in the 'When mother lets us' series. . . . The endeavor of the author is 'to make drawing interesting and amusing to children of different ages,' and to give them 'some hints' of such essentials as 'perspective, composition, light and shade, and so forth.'"—School Arts Magazine

+ A L A Bkl 13:186 Ja '17

"The explanations of perspective, composition, and other art terms are simple and enlightening with attractive suggestions for subjects."

+ Ind 88:405 D 4 '16 40w

+ N Y Times 21:580 D 31 '16 50w

"The style is conversational and playful. The illustrations are good (except for a few slips in perspective), and in many cases excellent."

+ School Arts Magazine 16:168 D '16 80w

THAYER, WILLIAM ROSCOE. Germany vs. civilization; notes on the atrocious war. *$1 (2½c) Houghton 940.91 16-6793

In the first chapter the author arraigns his own country for its inactivity during the invasion of Belgium. The remainder of the book is an arraignment of Germany. He says: "In this sketch I have purposely assembled a sufficient body of the characteristic doctrines of the shapers of Prussian policy, from Frederick the Great to General Bernhardi, to remind the reader of the essential German elements underlying the atrocious war. These will enable him to see that my own conclusions are based on German premises and facts, and not on calumnies invented by foreigners." There are chapters on: Atavism; Manipulating Teutonic traits; The Kaiser and Gott partnership; Kultur; Prussianizing Germany; The plot to Germanize America, etc.

"With accusing sternness toward the atrocities committed by Germany and with intense passion for the inner fruits of democracy, the author traces 'the stages by which the ancient pagan ideals revived in Prussia, and how Prussia has diffused them—a moral Prussian acid—through Germany.' Covers some of the same ground that Hueffer does in 'When blood is their argument.'"

+ A L A Bkl 12:424 Je '16

"The unmeasured condemnation and the unqualified denunciation necessarily weaken the force of what is true in the indictment and are only convincing to the already convinced."

— + Am Pol Sci R 10:581 Ag '16 110w

Ind 86:456 Je 12 '16 370w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"The book is remarkable in many respects. As a literary production it takes its place easily on the 'thin red line' of war-books worth reading. The validity of its thesis, however, is perhaps open to question."

+ — Lit D 52:1285 My 6 '16 350w

"At once popular and authoritative, Mr. Thayer's short volume is among the best written on the contentions of the war. Style and argument are alike admirably clear, and throughout the author sticks close to the thesis expressed in his title. The position which he takes is not that of counsel, even for the prosecution. It is frankly that of judge. . . . One serious fault should not go unnoticed. That is an occasional tendency, surprising in an historian of Mr. Thayer's distinction, to repeat scraps of gossip. . . . When he deals, as he does in a few chapters, with the war's reactions in America, he falls under suspicion of being more partisan and less judicial."

+ — Nation 103:64 J1 20 '16 850w

+ N Y Times 21:132 Ap 9 '16 680w

"Of American books about the war, this of Mr. Thayer's is perhaps the most genuinely unpassioned and the most effectively rhetorical that has been written. One expects much of Mr. Thayer; but unfortunately it cannot be said that his book is in any respect a valuable contribution to the subject which forms its theme. The defect is not merely that Mr. Thayer has nothing new to offer in the way of explanation or philosophic forecast. There is, besides, a certain superficiality of thought throughout the book, and a tendency toward sweeping generalization."

— + No Am 203:777 My '16 450w

R of Rs 53:628 My '16 20w

+ Sat R 122:232 S 2 '16 150w

+ — Springfield Republican p17 Mr 28 '16 870w

THIERS, LOUIS ADOLPHE. Memoirs, 1870-1873; tr. by F. M. Atkinson. *$2.50 Pott (Eng ed 16-25139)

"When the crash came at Sedan M. Thiers was 73 years old, but with the vigor, endurance, and alertness of middle life. He was called, and promptly responded, to the task of seeking aid for the suddenly born 'republic' at the courts of England, Austria, Russia, and Italy. Mr. Atkinson has admirably translated a portion of M. Thiers's memoirs beginning with this extraordinary mission and covering his presidency of the republic to the spring of 1873."—N Y Times

"The present volume of his memoirs is intensely interesting. It fairly vibrates with the vitality of its remarkable author. There is not a dull page in it."

+ N Y Times 21:535 D 3 '16 480w

Reviewed by the Earl of Cromer

Spec 116:290 F 26 '16 2200w

THOM, DE COURCY WRIGHT. Midsummer motoring in Europe. il *$2.50 (4c) Putnam 914 16-20731

A record of a motor journey taken thru central Europe in the summer of 1910, including an account of the passion play at Ober-Ammergau. The table of contents follows the route traveled: From Maryland to Antwerp; Belgium; Normandy, Brittany; Through France, Baden-Baden, Wurtemberg, and Bavaria to Ober-Ammergau and its "passion play," and then via Bavaria, Wurtemberg, Switzerland, Baden-Baden, and France to Paris; Paris, London, and across the Atlantic, Home. There are about twenty-five illustrations.

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 21 '16 240w

+ — Dial 61:476 N 30 '16 200w

+ Lit D 53:1558 D 9 '16 150w

N Y Br Lib News 3:157 O '16 40w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 28 '17 70w

THOMPSON, DANIEL V., ed. British verse for boys. $1.25 Holt 821.08 16-12270

"All anthologies are experiments" says the author. "This one is an experiment in a peculiar degree, for it undertakes to present, in three hundred pages, the whole field of so-called modern, British poets, from Chaucer to Alfred Noyes, to that imaginary but oft-invoked reader, the average boy." The poems are arranged chronologically and not only are the great names in English poetry represented; there are a number of selections from lesser authors chosen "chiefly because their work offers some special vantage ground for the young student's consideration." Critical and biographical notes are grouped at the end of the volume. The compiler is head of the department of English in the Lawrenceville school.

N Y Br Lib News 3:143 S '16

"The reviewer knows of no other satisfactory anthology covering the field of this volume and he feels that it will be of service not only in schools for boys but for occasional use by the teacher in all intermediate institutions where poetry is taught as a living art." T. B. Hinckley

+ School R 24:780 D '16 350w

THOMPSON, DAVID. David Thompson's narrative of his explorations in western America, 1784-1812. il Champlain soc., Toronto, Canada 917.1 16-20530

"Thompson was the discoverer of the Canadian northwest and properly holds a place as one of the greatest geographers of the world. To give him the place which rightly belongs to him, the Champlain society has had printed, for the first time, the journals and note-books of this intrepid explorer, whose remains now lie in an unmarked grave in the cemetery of Mount Royal in Montreal. This truly splendid work, which fills a volume of some 580 pages, has been carefully edited, with notes, by J. B. Tyrrell, and is issued in an edition of only 550 copies."—Boston Transcript

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 15 '16 2050w

"Apart from the scientific value of its account of the Indian tribes of western America, and of the animal life and geography of the great north-western plains and the Rocky mountains, as to which it must be a very high authority for its period, the narrative itself, simple, clear, intelligent, the record of a whole life spent in close touch with nature and with primitive peoples, is of singular interest, and ranks high amongst stories of travel. . . . The volume is beautifully printed." E. A. B.

+ Eng Hist R 21:671 O '16 370w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p377 Ag 10 '16 1100w

THOMPSON, ELBERT NEVIUS SÈBRING. John Milton. *$1.15 Yale univ. press 012 16-13999

While preparing his "Essays on Milton," published by the Yale university press in 1914, the author collected for his own use the material of this bibliography. It has been arranged for publication in the belief that it will be helpful to other students of Milton. The material is arranged topographically with a chronological order of titles under each heading. There is an index to authors at the close.

+ Ath p543 N '16 50w

"A work of much practical value. It is not in any sense a complete bibliography, but rather a compilation of selected references. . . . Yet the scholar and bibliophile will find the work only partially useful. . . . The British museum catalogue—oddly omitted here—still stands as the best guide for eighteenth century editions, translations, and second-rate writings of the older critics."

+ Dial 61:358 N 2 '16 320w

Springfield Republican p8 S 22 '16 60w

"Taken all round, this work, though useful, might have been made much more useful if it had been compiled on a more scientific plan and with more regard to the relative merits of the items entered; simple enumeration, whether complete or only partial as in this case, is not enough for really instructive bibliography."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p454 S 21 '16 340w

THOMPSON, SILVANUS PHILLIPS. Elementary lessons in electricity and magnetism. il *$1.50 Macmillan 537 15-20927

"When the 'Elementary lessons in electricity and magnetism' was first issued in 1881, it was at once accepted as a standard text. Due to frequent revision it has held its place ever since. The present, and seventh, edition has again been rewritten and brought up to date." (Nation) New chapters have been added on Wireless telegraphy and Electron theory of electricity.

+ A L A Bkl 12:495 J1 '16

+ Nation 102:sup502 My 4 '16 50w

THOMPSON, VANCE. Carnival of destiny. il *$1.25 Moffat 16-8810

"Mr. Thompson's new book is founded on the theory of reincarnation. Eight short stories compose the volume; the first is placed in those dark ages when man had just evolved from the animal; the next, thousands of years later, when a certain Pilatus was governor in Jerusalem, and gave a man from Nazareth to be crucified that the mob might be appeased; then comes the day when Attila and his Huns swept ravaging over the empire, and so on through mediaeval times and those just preceding the English Restoration to imperial France and New York in 1849, with Edgar Allan Poe as the central character. And in each story appears a woman with dull red hair, a woman supposedly one and the same, incarnate in red-haired Magdalen and queen and gypsy girl and demoiselle, bringing vague recollections from her former lives, and recognizing each time with lightning swiftness the man, like herself incarnate in many diverse forms, whom she is destined to love through the ages."—N Y Times

"Were the symbolism of the tales either clearer or more subtle, they would be more worthy of interest. One feels that the author had a good idea, which he lacked either the skill or the inspiration to carry out to the full."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 210w

"The stories, while often fairly clever, lack dramatic power. There is material here for a succession of vivid pictures, but the magic touch which might make them glow and thrill is absent. Perhaps the best story of the collection is the one entitled 'The king of Scotland's daughter.'"

+ N Y Times 21:179 Ap 23 '16 170w

"Generally, the stories are fanciful, some having a somewhat allegorical atmosphere; but all command the reader's attention and will be found diverting."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 180w

THOMSON, JAMES ALEXANDER KER. Greek tradition; essays in the reconstruction of ancient thought. *$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 880.4 16-6208

Nine essays on classical themes. Professor Gilbert Murray in his introduction calls attention to an interesting change of emphasis that has taken place in the study of Greek, "a change, we may say, from morphology toward semantics: from the study of forms towards the study of meanings." The author of these essays, like Professor Murray himself, represents the newer attitude. Contents: On an old map; Thucydides; Greek country life; Mother and daughter [a rendering of the Demeter myth in drama form]; Alcestis and her hero; A note on Greek simplicity; Lucretius; The Springs of poetry; Some thoughts on translation. These are followed by a note on authorities and an index.

+ A L A Bkl 12:375 My '16

"There is nothing new in the book, but what we knew already is put in such perfect form that it is hard to lay it down. We commend especially the essay on Greek country life, and that on the so-called simplicity of Greek art."

+ Ath p19 Ja '16 200w

"Several of these essays are in hitherto untrodden fields, though the author does not seem deliberately to have gone out into the by-ways of learning, but rather to have gone thither quite naturally and as if he were well acquainted with the way. The volume is one for the perusal of thoughtful people, rather than for the general public."

+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 1 '16 450w

+ Cleveland p18 Mr '16 50w

"One would hesitate to recommend the volume except to classical scholars who are in a position to check the author's contentions by their own knowledge and investigation. However, most other readers will be warned off by the general title, although it ought to be most attractive; so we need not worry on that score. Readers of the prescribed type will enjoy the book; but will always be under arms."

+ Dial 60:283 Mr 16 '16 300w

+ Library Association Record 18:82 F 15 '16 50w

"Whether Mr. Thomson is a pupil of Murray's or not, we do not know, but a glance at his pages will show that he has thoroughly imbibed the spirit of the Oxford professor, and by this affiliation his work is to be judged for good and for ill. . . . His virtue is his modernism; his vice is an excess of the same spirit. . . . This reverence for tradition and convention might be held to justify Mr. Thomson's insistence on the influence of primitive customs and superstitions even in the most artificial works of Greek literature; and, in fact, it does justify him to a certain point. Our quarrel with him is that he carries his theory altogether too far. In some cases he is, we think, led by his theories into downright misinterpretation."

+ Nation 102:289 Mr 9 '16 650w

N Y Br Lib News 3:23 F '16 30w

Pittsburgh 21:280 Je '16 30w

"He has all the qualities of the scholar, but imagination is added to them, and makes them at times seem comparatively unimportant. He does not give pride of place to the routine of expert commentary, and this, seeming like a neglect of his true craft, is resented by the orthodox. . . . Two of the most interesting chapters in Mr. Thomson's book deal (1) with the difficulty, the virtual impossibility, of translating the Greek poets into English, and (2) with the so-called 'simplicity' of the Greek poets. . . . He writes in every line with a wide understanding and a scrupulously careful use of the right word. At every turn we feel safe with Mr. Thomson. We always know what he is talking about. Among the papers we are unable to touch upon at all are an excellent essay upon Thucydides, a very fine study of Lucretius, and a charming reconstruction of the realities of Greek country life."

+ Sat R 121:230 Mr 4 '16 1450w

"It is a brilliant book, so clear and vivid in its thought and expression that it will delight any reader of taste. For the Greek student of inquiring mind it will be an intellectual treat. Many of the author's generalizations are cast in pregnant, thought-provoking form. If some of his points are debatable, they are at least plausible. They contain enough of insight to merit patient correction or refutation. But he does overstate."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 6 '16 1400w

THOREAU, HENRY DAVID. Canoeing in the wilderness; ed. by Clifton Johnson. il *$1 (3c) Houghton 917.41 16-11058

"Canoeing in the wilderness" is a reprint of the second part of Thoreau's "The Maine woods." In the present edition "various details and digressions that are not of interest to most readers have been omitted, but except for such elimination Thoreau's text has been retained throughout. It is believed that nothing essential has been sacrificed." (Introd.)

"An abridgement for young people of the latter half of 'Maine woods.' The first part of 'Maine woods' has already been abridged and listed, 'Katahdin and Chesuncook' in Booklist 6:62 O '09."

+ A L A Bkl 12:495 J1 '16

"Tho the Maine woods and ways of camping have changed a bit since 1857, Thoreau, the forerunner and the master of all our prophets of the woods and hills, never loses his charm."

+ Ind 86:398 Je 5 '16 100w

"A genuine service to Thoreau and to the boy reader has been performed by Clifton Johnson."
+ Nation 103:158 Ag 17 '16 150w
+ N Y Times 21:237 Je 11 '16 90w
+ R of Rs 53:757 Je '16 40w
+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 30 '16 80w

THORNDIKE, ASHLEY HORACE. Shakespeare's theater. il $2.50 (2c) Macmillan 792 16-7218

A study of the theater in Shakespeare's time. The author's aim has been to present in one volume a synthesis of all that is known on the subject. Contents: The place of Shakespeare's theater in the history of the English stage; Shakespeare's London; The playhouses; The physical stage; Stage presentation; The court theater in the reign of Elizabeth; The court theater in the reigns of James I and Charles I; Governmental regulation; The dramatic companies; The leading companies in the reign of Elizabeth; The leading companies in the reigns of James I and Charles I; The dramatists; Actors and acting; The audience. There are about thirty illustrations and sixteen pages of bibliographical notes.

+ A L A Bk1 12:466 J1 '16

"The book should be an authoritative compendium for reference."

+ Ath p286 Je '16 40w
+ Dial 61:108 Ag 15 '16 360w
+ Ind 86:183 My 1 '16 60w

"The author is himself one of our best known students of the Elizabethan drama. In the many disputed questions with which the present treatise has to deal, his judgment will carry an independent weight. . . . Despite all that has been written on these subjects, it seems to us that Professor Thorndike, in these pages, has given us the truest picture we have of the conditions under which Shakespeare and his fellows composed their plays, of the characteristics of the histrionic art of the age, and of the distinctive qualities and outlook of the audiences they addressed. The last subject, especially, offers a problem of great complexity."

+ Nation 102:545 My 18 '16 1350w
+ N Y Times 21:320 Ag 13 '16 650w
+ Pittsburgh 21:245 My '16 80w
+ St Louis 14:194 My '16
+ Spec 117:268 S 2 '16 300w

"Dr. Thorndike is well up in his subject, and has investigated it for himself. His mind is cautious, pliable, judicial. He has no pet theory to advance. He keeps one fact steadily before him; that the period which is commonly called, in this connexion, the Elizabethan covers some seventy years. There must have been changes in theatrical practice during that long time. . . . Nothing in Dr. Thorndike's book is more admirable than his chapters on 'Actors and acting' and on 'The audience.'"

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p258 Je 1 '16 1600w

THORNTON, LIONEL SPENCER. Conduct and the supernatural. $2.25 Longmans 171 A15-2526

"This essay, in a slightly different form, gained the Cambridge Norrisian prize for the year 1913. The title which it then bore—'Christian ethical ideals and modern reactions from them'—indicates more precisely than the present one the aim and scope of the work. For it is really an apology, based upon a criticism of certain ethical systems which illustrate the reaction from Christianity, for the Christian ethic itself. . . . The critics of the Christian ethic whose doctrines he considers are Nietzsche, John Davidson, Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and H. S. Chamberlain. . . . In the second of the two parts into which the book is divided the author gives a very fresh exposition of the two principles which form the basis of the Christian ethic, viz. the Otherworldly principle and the Ascetic principle."—Int J Ethics

"One who is accustomed to take seriously the investigation of ethical problems on the basis of natural experience and reason will find the material selected by Mr. Thornton decidedly unsatisfactory." G. B. Smith

— Am J Theol 21:131 Ja '17 850w

"This book is heartily welcome. This new writer is one who is likely to go far. He is lucid and self-controlled, and has a power of architectonic arrangements coupled with an easy style. He knows what he thinks, and he does not turn his back upon the men who are making the world we live in. Furthermore, he is always urbane."

+ Ath 1915.2:239 O 9 1400w

"The weakness of such a line of argument is, like that of Bossuet's famous argument for authority, evident. For it does not follow from the failure of reactions from Christianity that Christianity is true, nor does it follow from the inadequacy of certain naturalistic and rationalistic systems of ethics that our only resource is supernaturalism. It should be added that the essay is written in a vigorous and effective style." G. A. Johnston

+ Int J Ethics 26:439 Ap '16 300w

Nation 102:316 Mr 16 '16 320w

Pittsburgh 21:101 Mr '16 120w

"The desire to tune the ears of his readers to the heavenly harmony runs like a great undertone beneath all that Mr. Thornton writes."

+ Sat R 120:615 D 25 '15 1150w

THORNTON, MARY TAYLOR. When Pan pipes; a fantastic romance. $1.35 (1c) Doran 16-22600

Figures of speech drawn from the old fairy tale are carried out in this pretty story. We have the swineherd, the goose girl, the princess, the black and the white knight. The story begins with the play days of a group of children, Jerry, whose father in dying has left him in care of an old nurse, Betty the adopted daughter of a farmer, and little Lady Mary, the princess of the tale. Jerry, whose father had been a sculptor, struggles to follow in his footsteps. Lady Mary, whose father is embittered by the faithlessness of his young wife, is destined for a convent. Betty grows up to be a beauty and almost makes the mistake of choosing the wrong knight. But as in the fairy tale of old, things turn out just as they should for all of them. The time of the story is the decade that began with 1830.

"The air of old-fashioned romance hangs about this tale of elopements, duels, forgeries, murders and peasant girls and boys, who turn out to be lords and ladies in disguise. We could easily have dispensed with the impossible priest and the dour Catholic lord."

+ Cath World 103:693 Ag '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:120 Ag '16

+ N Y Times 21:267 J1 2 '16 430w

THORP, FRANK HALL. Outlines of industrial chemistry; with assistance in revision from Warren K. Lewis. il $3.75 Macmillan 660 16-12396

"As the second edition of this well-known text-book appeared in 1905, a material revision of its pages was found necessary and many sections have in consequence been altogether rewritten with elimination of obsolete matter and introduction of new material."—Science

"Great technical detail is not presented, the author relying on his selected bibliography to guide the student and casual seeker to more extended discussions. The wide range for such a moderate-sized volume precludes the possibility of mathematical treatment of phenomena involved."

+ Engin N 76:554 S 21 '16 170w

"The third edition of Thorp's 'Outlines of industrial chemistry' shows the amazing progress recently made in this field."

+ Ind 87:240 Ag 14 '16 30w

"The new edition of Professor Thorp's book covers a great range of important subjects and covers them well, presenting the outlines of processes clearly and making the subject interesting to the reader or student. As an illustration we would note the article on glass manufacture. . . . The same may be said of the section on pigments, which is excellent in form and substance. If we may be allowed to criticize the treatment of some of the sections, we would say that the asphalt section is hardly adequate in its handling of either the chemistry or the technology of this important subject. . . . The modern theories with regard to colloids are noted."

THORP, FRANK HALL.—Continued
S. P. Sadtler
+ Science n s 44:205 Ag 11 '16 580w

THUREAU-DANGIN, PAUL MARIE PIERRE.
2
The Catholic revival in the nineteenth century; rev. and re-ed. from a trans. by Wilfred Wiberforce. 2v il $11 Dutton 283 (Eng ed 15-7035)

"The greater part of these two volumes is devoted to the Oxford movement and the Ritualistic movement in the Church of England that developed out of the Oxford movement. But in recounting, always with sympathy and always with clear and painstaking detail, the history of these two movements, M. Thureau-Dangin also tells to a considerable extent the history of the revival of the Catholic church in England—the revival that came after Catholic enfranchisement in 1829, and particularly in the period after 1850 during which Wiseman, Manning, and Vaughan were successively archbishops of Westminster. . . . Another characteristic of the book that ensures it a permanent value is the series of pen-portraits of the men of all three movements."—Am Hist R

"Among histories of religious movement and religious thought in England this book must take a first place by reason of its comprehensiveness and of the thoroughness with which the work has been done."
+ Am Hist R 21:802 Jl '16 680w

Boston Transcript p7 Ag 9 '16 1050w

+ Cath World 102:695 F '16 600w

"It forms a most useful supplement, for English readers, to Mr. Ward's delightful books on the subject, and especially to his monumental life of Newman. . . . There is no indication who it was that 'revised and re-edited' it after the translator's death. In fact, the translation has the appearance of a work to which the author's last hand has not been given, though even this does not account for its most inexcusable fault, that of not accurately representing the original. Much of it indeed is not translation at all, but free paraphrase. . . . Many passages are omitted altogether, among them numberless foot-notes and three valuable bibliographies." C: A. Wager

+ — Dial 61:393 N 16 '16 1550w

"The greatest merit of the book is its fairness and impartiality."

+ Nation 103:328 O 5 '16 780w

THURSTAN, VIOLETTA. People who run. map $1 (3c) Putnam 940.91 16-15267

Miss Thurstan is the English nurse who told of her early war experiences in Belgium and Russia in "Field hospital and flying column." The title page of her second book bears the quotation, "The greatest tragedy of the war is not seen upon the battlefield." It is an account of the refugees in Russia, literally the "people who run," for so the Russian word for refugee should be translated. With the advance of the Germans into Russia in 1915, thousands of peaceful peasants from Poland, Lithuania, Galicia and Ruthenia fled eastward before the oncoming cannon. With characteristic pity and kindness the Russian peasants received them, but facilities for efficient relief are lacking, and Miss Thurstan's book is an appeal for outside aid.

"Very wisely she is content to leave the complexities of the Russian character alone, and she confines herself to describing, in a simple and straightforward manner, the relief work that is being done in Russia."

+ N Y Times 21:364 S 17 '16 580w

+ Spec 117:320 S 16 '16 200w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p299 Je 22 '16 180w

"There is a specially interesting chapter on the Jewish refugees and a conclusion and appendix dealing with the numbers of the fugitives—probably about five million—who have fled to Russia for help and succour."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p303 Je 29 '16 950w

THURSTON, CARL HAMMOND PHILANDER.
Art of looking at pictures. il $1.50 Dodd 759 16-23393

"This is necessarily a rudimentary book. It is not for the connoisseur or the initiated, but for the neophyte without the gates. It tells not merely what to look for in the work of a painter, but where to look, and how. It is not meant to be read, but to be applied, sentence by sentence, to pictures or print. . . . It is a reference book to which anyone who dislikes the old masters may apply for help in learning to understand them." (Foreword) In selecting painters for inclusion in the volume, the author has kept in mind four qualifications: æsthetic value, difficulty of comprehension, strategic value, and frequency of distribution along the route of the average tourist. By "strategic value" he means "pictures whose mastery will do most to make the appreciation of all the others easy." The book is provided with bibliography, key to pronunciation, indexes and chronological chart, and thirty-two illustrations.

"Attractive, convenient, and genuinely useful little volume. . . . Instructors and students in formal courses in the history and appreciation of art should consider whether it might not serve among textbooks."

+ Dial 62:30 Ja 11 '17 420w

"Mr. Thurston's short chapter, 'How to visit a gallery,' should be memorized by everyone who has not by instinct or by study learned how to appreciate pictures of all periods."

+ R of Rs 55:107 Ja '17 160w

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 9 '16 370w

THURSTON, ERNES, TEMPLE. Five-barred gate. $1.40 (2c) Appleton 16-22144

The "five-barred gate" is the fifth year of married life. To Jim and Beatrice Nairn the first intimation that romance has departed comes on the morning of their fifth anniversary, when it appears that each has forgotten the day. So Jim puts away the little gold brooch; for if Beatrice had forgotten, you may be sure he was not going to let her know that he remembered! And Beatrice locks the meerschaum pipe in a drawer; for, Jim having forgotten, why should she show that she remembered! Matters go from bad to worse, and who can say how it would have ended had not Mr. and Mrs. Beavers, serving man and maid, been going thru a like experience! The Beavers have also come to their five-barred gate and the chief difference between their affair and that of the master and mistress is that it is more vociferous. It all comes to an amusing climax in a chapter called "Class distinctions with no human differences."

+ Ath p435 S '16 50w

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 27 '16 1100w

Reviewed by E. P. Wyckoff

+ Pub W 90:2071 D 9 '16 400w

"The gentle, often penetrating touch of the man who wrote 'The city of beautiful nonsense' is exercised in this story with a deal of skill. . . . The five barred gate' is certainly clean, creditable, and charming."

+ N Y Times 21:554 D 17 '16 620w

TICKNOR, CAROLINE. Poe's Helen. il $1.50 Scribner 16-20464

A biography of Sarah Helen Whitman to whom Poe was once engaged to be married. "Much of the material included in this volume, as Miss Ticknor frankly states in her preface, had already been given to the world. . . . But we have also considerable new material. Now more fully than ever before we have the story of Mrs. Whitman's early years, of her friendship with Curtis and Greeley and Hay, and of her home life in Providence during her later years. We have also sundry new letters touching Poe's strange career,—some from the poet's mother-in-law, Mrs. Clemm, some from Griswold, some from Mrs. Whitman herself." (Dial)

"It is, of course, simply one among many volumes that make pleasant the diverting byways of literary personality." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 16 '16 900w

Reviewed by Killis Campbell
Dial 61:395 N 16 '16 820w

Reviewed by Killis Campbell
+ Lit D 53:1558 D 9 '16 820w

"An unromantic ill-made book."
— Nation 104:81 Ja 18 '17 400w

"Well written, conscientious, concise, and not too long, the book is a contribution the value of which, to our knowledge of the most interesting figure in our literature, cannot well be overestimated."

+ N Y Times 21:425 O 15 '16 2200w

St Louis 14:441 D '16 10w

+ Springfield Republican p6 N 6 '16 520w

TILNEY, FREDERICK COLIN. Appeal of the picture: an examination of the principles in picture-making. il $2.50 Dutton (*6s Dent, London) 759 16-8484

"A series of twenty-three very sober and very sensible and instructive chapters on such topics as the ordinary reader, whether artist or mere picture lover, delights in hearing discussed by the expert. These are some of his themes: the point of view of the public, subject-matter, size as a factor, tone, tonal effect, color, composition, realism and idealism, naturalism, . . . mood, feeling, the romantic and the picturesque, landscape, impressionism, development, quality, mural painting, genre, portraiture, background, photography, archaisms, fears and hopes."—Dial

+ A L A Bkl 13:72 N '16

"Mr. Tilney's discussions of color, of tone and of composition should be read by all amateurs, whether painters or observers, for no one after reading them can look at a picture without seeing far more deeply into its qualities than he has ever seen before."

+ Boston Transcript p24 F 23 '16 430w

"Mr. Tilney is conservative but temperate. He gives due credit to those who have represented real progress in painting, opposing only the exaggerated claims of the extremists. He insists on the essential correctness and value of traditional principles. Mr. Tilney insists also on the partnership of the people in art." Grant Showerman

+ Dial 60:421 Ap 27 '16 1150w

+ Int Studio 58:283 Je '16 350w

Pittsburgh 21:408 O '16

"Any person of average intelligence who will carefully study this book will not only find his way happily about art galleries and exhibitions, but he will be able to express opinions based on discrimination and sound judgment. The text is illustrated with many reproductions of paintings and diagrams that give point to the author's arguments."

+ R of Rs 53:763 Je '16 250w

"This thoughtful book ought to succeed. Mr. Tilney sets thought astray in the young on a great many useful and necessary things, producing, not a grammar of assent, but a grammar of evolutionary change. . . . He has too many names in some pages. A writer who not only loves to explain, but who has the gift of art-teaching, is so valuable to the public that he should not pass in two pages through Dürer and Holbein to Hals, Rembrandt, Velasquez, Dou, Sargent, Whistler, and Mr. G. A. Storey."

+ Sat R 121:42 Ja 8 '16 800w

TIPPLE, EZRA SQUIER. Francis Asbury, the prophet of the long road. il $1.50 Meth. bk. 16-6744

"A sketch of the first great bishop and prophet of American Methodism." (R of Rs) "Dr. Tipple's book is a picture of this remarkable man, whom he calls 'the prophet of the long road,' because he never knew home and had no wife or family, but lived all his life on the road, moving from place to place, preaching and organizing. . . . It is not a systematic account of Asbury's life. Dates, events, sequences are not clearly set forth. Sometimes the iterations and reiterations help, however, to give a more vivid picture of the man and his surroundings." (Nation)

"Mr. Tipple shows a thorough knowledge of his subject, his previous work in editing selections from Asbury's journal having helped to prepare him for this more ambitious undertaking. Illustrations and facsimiles add no little to the interest of the book."

+ Dial 60:479 My 11 '16 170w

Ind 86:305 My 22 '16 50w

"He left a record, in his diary and his life, which no other preacher ever paralleled, and which make it fit that a volume like this shall mark the centennial of his death."

+ Lit D 52:1291 My 6 '16 320w

"The England of to-day would not be what it is in moral strength without Wesley, and the American nation owes much in every way to the religious movement which Francis Asbury organized and developed in this country. This book is written by a Methodist, in Methodist fashion, for Methodists. At times the enthusiasm of the writer brings a stirring appeal into his story, giving a vivid and graphic picture and carrying the reader along by force. On the whole, however, the book is not well organized. It is, moreover, intensely partisan, an admiring indiscriminating appreciation of Asbury, but it is far from being a history of the man or his work."

+ Nation 102:413 Ap 13 '16 1200w

N Y Times 21:278 Jl 9 '16 60w

Pittsburgh 21:251 My '16

"A facsimile reproduction of a letter of John Wesley to Asbury is one of a group of documentary illustrations that add interest to the text. While Dr. Tipple's excellent book will appeal especially to Methodists, it has permanent value as a contribution to the history of American religious life and development."

+ R of Rs 53:499 Ap '16 110w

TITCHENER, EDWARD BRADFORD. Beginner's psychology. il $1 Macmillan 150 15-26892

The author is Sage professor of psychology at Cornell university. "One of the distinctive features of the book consists in questions and exercises at the end of each chapter designed to stimulate and guide the student in the work of reflection, experiment, and discovery; at the same time there is added a well-selected list of references in English for further reading. The unity of the whole is maintained by rigid adherence to the adopted point of view, a thing on which the author now places more emphasis than on knowledge, and by frequent precise page references to exposition and discussion in earlier portions of the work when such references are needed to clarify discussion in the later." (Nation)

+ A L A Bkl 12:403 Je '16

"A clear, readable and authoritative introduction to the subject which will meet a general demand. The book is not a revision of the 'Primer of psychology,' as in the years since its publication in 1903 the author has changed his attitude and now 'lays less stress upon knowledge and more upon point of view.'"

+ Cleveland p20 Mr '16 90w

+ Dial 61:70 Jl 15 '16 130w

+ Ind 88:553 D 25 '16 50w

"The fourth and best of the textbooks, other than the laboratory manual, published by this most indefatigable, learned, expert, and scientifically minded of psychologists. Among the ruck of books pretending to a similar purpose, this is a work of distinction. . . . The student will find all this very helpful. The judicious teacher also should be able to use the book with profit, even if he disagrees with the author's point of view."

+ Nation 102:sup499 My 4 '16 480w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

TITCHENER, EDWARD BRADFORD—Cont.

"Of extraordinary value for those who really wish to distinguish between fact and fable in psychology." G: R. Dodson

+ St Louis 14:137 Ap '16 150w

"As a beginner's book it should require little supplementation; yet it is quite certain that need of it would be felt, for unfortunately most students who begin psychology in American colleges and normal schools do not have the background, either historical or philosophical, that Professor Titchener had when he began to psychologize. It need hardly be said that no systematic treatment of the nervous system is included. To those already familiar with the writings of this author it is unnecessary to remark upon the excellence of his expository style." H. D. Kitson

+ School R 24:486 Je '16 700w

TITUS, HAROLD. "—I conquered." il $*1.25

(2c) Rand 16-6822

Back to New York from college, where he had wasted his opportunities, Danny Lenox is greeted by his father with "How much will you take to go?" Denounced for his extravagance and his debauchery Danny is first stunned then piqued into replying "Keep your money. . . I'll get out without your help. Some day I'll show you what a puny thing this faith of yours is!" There is money enough in his pocket to buy a ticket to Colt, Colorado, whither he goes without plan or prospect. He falls in with a kindly old ranchman who needs a man, and his serious business of regeneration begins at once. The story is one of his fight to make a man of himself.

+ Boston Transcript p7 J1 8 '16 200w

Reviewed by E: E. Hale

Dial 61:26 Je 22 '16 140w

"The grip drink has upon its victims and the life-and-death struggle needful to be freed are strongly drawn. 'I conquered' will peculiarly appeal to the boy reader, for whom it holds not only the action and romance he loves, but a vital message as well."

+ N Y Times 21:272 J1 2 '16 170w

"The story carries a spirited, rapid action and, while conventionally 'western,' is largely free from the artificialities of language, generally found in this type of story."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 180w

TOBENKIN, ELIAS. Witte arrives. il $*1.25

(2c) Stokes 16-16687

A story which tries to tell what America may mean to the immigrant, and what the immigrant in return may give to America. The Witkowski family, mother and three children fresh from the Russian pale, arrive in America in 1890. In the small city, a day's journey out of Chicago, where the husband and father has made a home for them, the family name is shortened to Witte, and the process of Americanization is begun. Emil, the youngest, is ten at the time of arrival, and it is his story that the author tells, his progress thru high school and university, his struggles as a poorly paid reporter in Chicago, his early marriage and the death of his young wife, his later struggles in New York where in time he wins recognition and marries a woman of Gentile blood.

"Published in the New York Herald."

+ A L A Bkl 13:37 O '16

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:383 O '16 370w

"In these pages we learn more than most people know of the way in which the United States takes care of the immigrants and helps them on their journeys."

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 20 '16 1100w

Reviewed by E: E. Hale

+ Dial 61:194 S 21 '16 600w

"It is interesting, but the author has become so engrossed in the movement of his story that he has missed some golden opportunities to throw light on the position of the Jew in America."

+ Ind 88:33 O 2 '16 50w

"We think the publisher's reader who hailed this as 'the great American novel' went too far, but we should have agreed with him that it is an American novel of uncommon sincerity and force."

+ Nation 103:304 S 28 '16 450w

"Apparently this is the author's first book. But it is one of those revealing books for which all Americans ought to be thankful, the immigrant American, at least the Russian Jew immigrant, because it interprets him as he has never been interpreted before, and the native American because it lets him know vividly and humanly what his country means and what he ought to mean to that immigrant."

+ N Y Times 21:334 Ag 27 '16 1200w

"Like many writers of his race, Mr. Tobenkin reveals the influence of the Russian school of novelists. He inclines to somberness, and to analysis, rather than to action; and his political leanings are frankly socialistic."

+ Springfield Republican p3 D 9 '16 350w

TODD, JOHN A. World's cotton crops. il $*4

Macmillan (*10s Black, London) 338.1

15-14232

The author "therefore considers the great problem for cotton manufacturers to be: 'Whence are larger supplies of raw cotton to be obtained in the future?' In order to shed light upon this question, this book has been written. It furnishes a description of the present conditions and future prospects of raw cotton production in all parts of the globe. Especial attention is paid to the experiments which are being carried on with the assistance of cotton-growing associations and government aid in Asia and Africa. For each district a description is given of the agricultural and climatic conditions, methods of cultivation, transportation facilities, ginning, baling, and pressing methods, and other factors affecting raw cotton production. . . . A concluding chapter summarizes some of the effects of the war upon the cotton trade during the autumn of 1914. Useful statistical tables are given in the appendix."—Am Econ R

Reviewed by M. T. Copeland

Am Econ R 5:843 D '15 630w

"The book is an invaluable addition to the literature of cotton. The author's treatment covers the whole ground in very readable, interesting form, and is supported by well-arranged tables, illustrations, maps, and appendices, with diagrams and a businesslike index. With his conclusions one may not always agree, but he invariably supplies data for individual judgment."

On p. 2 of the introduction, statistical table 'f' appears to be somewhat misleading."

+ Ath 1915:2:31 J1 10 650w

"It should prove invaluable alike to merchant and planter. It is fully illustrated with views of the cotton fields, the methods of transport, as well as numerous local incidents of interest in planting life. It moreover furnishes a series of ten maps to show the countries of production, the cotton areas of each being indicated by patches of vivid green. We would venture the suggestion that in addition to denoting the localities of recent expansion it would have been of advantage had some system of shading been pursued to indicate relative importance."

+ Nature 95:697 Ag 26 '15 420w

"His description of the Egyptian crops is perhaps somewhat more exhaustive than his treatment of some other countries; but he has visited practically the whole of the American cotton belt, and in all cases he has taken the greatest care to have his work revised and checked by first-hand authorities. The result is a highly interesting and valuable book, which will be recognized as a standard work among those engaged in the multifarious branches of cotton industry."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p22 S '15 300w

(Reprinted from the Journal of the Royal Society of Arts, London, p819 J1 30 '15)

Spec 114:900 Je 26 '15 70w

TODMAN, FREDERICK SIMSON. Brokerage accounts; a treatise on the business of brokerage, its accounting books and records. (Ronald accounting ser.) $3.50 Ronald 657 16-7054

"While many other phases of our security and produce markets have been treated in books and articles, no attempt worth mentioning, except in relation to clearing-house records, had previously been made to present in detail and in classified form the numerous books of record that are generally used by stock and produce exchange firms. . . . There are 34 chapters grouped into 5 parts: 1, Stock brokerage; 2, Cotton brokerage; 3, Produce brokerage; 4, Brokerage auditing; and 5, Forms."—Am Econ R

"A timely and able treatise. As the author states, 'the work is of a pioneer nature.' Mr. Todman's book is to be commended for its detailed classification and simple style, the work aiming to serve a textbook use. Careful students of a subject usually welcome a detailed presentation of forms used in business. Mr. Todman has fortunately seen fit to supply a voluminous list of such forms." S. S. Huebner
+ Am Econ R 6:649 S '16 420w

N Y Br Lib News 3:95 Je '16
St Louis 14:396 N '16

TOLAND, EDWARD D. Aftermath of battle; with the Red cross in France; with a preface by Owen Wister. il $1 (3½c) Macmillan 940.91 16-3454

"When the war commenced and the banking business shut down temporarily, I found myself with nothing to do. In a short time I made up my mind to go to Paris; my idea being simply to see the excitement and the French people in war-time." But once arrived in Paris Mr. Toland found it impossible to remain a mere spectator. He offered his services to one of the newly equipped war hospitals and was accepted. He later went to the front with one of the units of the American ambulance. The book consists of his diary from day to day. Details of horror are not spared. It is a book for those who are willing to look the facts of war in the face.

+ A L A Bk 13:27 O '16

"The most pathetic of the many pathetic pictures which 'The aftermath of battle' naturally presents is that of the wounded Germans."

+ Bookm 43:11 Mr '16 350w
+ Ind 87:102 J1 17 '16 130w

"The shock of great events in which these writers have been participants has sufficed to bring out qualities of elemental simplicity and spontaneous expression which a sophisticated author might well envy. This artlessness, which has nevertheless the effect of high art, is to be found in many letters from the front, in the diaries of soldiers, etc. It appears in a marked degree in the diary-jottings of a young Princeton graduate, Mr. Edward D. Toland."

+ Nation 102:315 Mr '16 '16 280w

"Mr. Toland has done the difficult thing—set down the things that happened around him in all their simple horror without shrinking and without philosophizing—and in his brief narrative he has taught us far more of the horrors of war and its effect on the individual who is thrown into it than volumes of those who know it merely as spectators or fear to depict its awful details. Not all of his book, however, deals with the miseries of those few days, or perhaps no one would care to read it. Through it all shines the cheery, strong personality of Mr. Toland, and his readers will feel that if ever it were their fate to be carried into a crowded field hospital it would be well if he were one of the orderlies."

+ N Y Times 21:53 F '13 '16 750w
+ R of Rs 53:381 Mr '16 130w

"It should be borne in mind that it only concerns the first six months of the war and is therefore late in its appearance; the criticisms of French hospital organization have become out of date."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p310 Je 29 '16 70w

TOMLINSON, EVERETT TITSWORTH. Places young Americans want to know. il $1.50 Appleton 917.3 15-19358

"The book contains twenty-seven short chapters, each one describing and telling the story of some place important in the history or the fame of the United States. Several chapters deal with places and events of consequence in the birth of the nation, such as Plymouth rock, Independence hall, Concord and Lexington, Bunker hill, Jamestown, and others. . . . His method is to tell in outline and with some colorful detail the story of what took place, and then to point out its significance, relate it to our own life and describe the appearance of the scene."—N Y Times

"The author has tried to combine description and story, with a result not altogether pleasing. However, the book will be useful as it answers many questions asked daily in children's rooms. The illustrations are not always satisfactory; no index."

+ — A L A Bk 12:245 F '16

"The volume can be recommended for supplementary or even class reading in the grammar school grades."

+ N Y Times 21:35 Ja 30 '16 270w

"The book should prove an impetus to young America's patriotism and should foster the impulse to 'see America first.'"

+ Springfield Republican p19 N 27 '15 210w

TOMLINSON, EVERETT TITSWORTH. Scouting with Kit Carson. (Pioneer scout ser.) il $1.25 (2c) Doubleday 16-12237

A story for boys of the days of the fur trade in the great west. Reuben Benton is making his first journey into the fur country in company with Jean Badeau, a French trapper. He becomes separated from his companion and wanders alone on the plains until he falls in with Kit Carson and his band. He is made a member of the party and shares their adventures. The story proper ends with their return to St. Louis, but two concluding chapters give the later events of the famous scout's life.

"Prosaic story. There are plenty of adventures with Indians, bears and buffalos, but none are made particularly thrilling."

A L A Bk 13:89 N '16

"The story is interesting, but from a literary standpoint it is weak in the joints."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 J1 2 '16 160w

TOMPKINS, JULIET WILBOR (MRS. JULIET WILBOR TOMPKINS POTTLE). Seed of the righteous. il $1.25 (1c) Bobbs 16-10121

A statue, erected to the memory of Sereno Gage stood in a crowded city square. He had been known as the friend of children and contributions of pennies from all over the United States had gone to erect the statue. The family of Sereno Gage were, like him, devoted to high causes—to diet kitchens and mothers' outings and eugenics. And secure in the faith that their causes were worthy and that as the children of Sereno Gage they had rights, they let themselves be supported—by rich relatives, by wealthy friends, by philanthropists who had been associated with their father. This is particularly the story of Chloe, the youngest of them, who is led to rebel against the "Gage way" of living and to strike out for herself. Chloe is the heroine but the outstanding personality is Mrs. Gage, a noble figure in spite of eccentricities.

"Appeared in Good Housekeeping."

+ A L A Bk 12:433 Je '16

"The person who may be likely to please the middle-aged reader particularly is Alex's father, Chloe's 'Uncle Harry,' every one of whose few words is as pungent and as subtle as a grain of pepper,—a real person and a true American type."

H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:418 Je '16 430w

Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 230w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 60:508 My 25 '16 650w

TOMPKINS, JULIET WILBOR—Continued

"This writer . . . ever shows a penetrating understanding of character and an artist's choice of theme."

+ Nation 103:399 O 26 '16 390w

"The charm, the naturalness, the underlying ironic humor, touched always with just a hint of pathos, and the entertaining story combine to make 'The seed of the righteous' one of the most enjoyable among the lighter novels of the season."

+ N Y Times 21:170 Ap 23 '16 470w

"It is pleasing to find the story a most genial and captivating one. The subject matter, moreover, is sufficiently unusual to arouse a real concern in the fate of the characters." Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 89:647 F 19 '16 320w

"An intelligent original story."

+ Springfield Republican p15 My 15 '16 450w

"A pretty little story, which will interest older girls as well as adults."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 70w

TOOKER, LEWIS FRANK. John Paul Jones. il *50c (1c) Macmillan 16-23455

One of the favorite heroes of boyhood is the subject of this biography, newly added to the "True stories of great Americans." There are chapters on: An adventurous boyhood, Some early victories, Preparing for Europe, Saluting the stars and stripes, Fights in the Irish sea, The trials of a victor, In the bay of Biscay, Delays and discouragements, "Going into harm's way," The great fight, The little man in blue, The enmity of Landais, Storm and sunshine, With the Russian fleet, Friendships and honors.

"Mr. Tooker draws with too flattering a pen for strict historical truth. He is happily confident enough of the maturity of his readers to include several of Jones's long letters."

+ — Nation 103:567 D 14 '16 80w

"The author has chosen his material wisely and with a due regard to proportion. He has written a good, compact narrative, omitting none of Jones' exploits that were of real importance."

+ R of Rs 55:215 F '17 70w

+ Springfield Republican p8 D 15 '16 230w

TOPHAM, ANNE. Memories of the Fatherland. il *3 (4c) Dodd 943.08 (Eng ed 16-24324)

This book supplements the author's earlier work, "Memories of the Kaiser's court." That book dealt with her relations with the royal family, in particular with the little princess, who was her pupil. This book gives impressions of German life in general. There are chapters on: First impressions; German militarism; The German soldier; The German officer; German education; German womanhood; The Prussian court; The Kaiser; etc.

"The chapters on 'Gardens and Zeppelins' and 'British blunders' are specially readable."

+ Ath p483 O '16 80w

"It is in her portrait of the Kaiser that Miss Topham has done her most admirable work; in a way remarkable in its fairness." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 8 '16 600w

"She presents the saner Germany that we all knew and admired in happier times."

+ Lit D 53:1558 D 9 '16 120w

N Y Br Lib News 3:191 D '16

"Her book is extremely interesting—not the less so for its freedom from the prevalent ran-cour of the hour."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p451 S 21 '16 880w

TOWNE, CHARLES HANSON. Today and tomorrow. *$1 Doran 811 16-6637

The author thanks the editors of eighteen well-known periodicals for permission to reprint the poems contained in this volume. They range in topic from "The shot" (a poem to Edith Cavell) and "On the sinking of the Lusitania" to "A ballad of love in London" and "Racing with the rain."

"The poems are not sustained in their quality, but show occasional poetic insight and a straightforward fitting of the word to the thought."

+ A L A Bkl 13:23 O '16 (Reprinted from Open Shelf, Cleveland.)

Reviewed by W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 1 '16 1500w

"There are many delicate and graceful lyrics in 'To-day and to-morrow,' lyrics that show that the author of 'Manhattan' and 'Youth' is steadily acquiring new mastery over words and—what is more important—new sympathy with mankind."

+ Lit D 52:741 Mr 18 '16 1100w

"He is a writer of genuine poetic feeling, and he is not lacking in ideas. But he rhymes with overfacility."

+ N Y Times 21:173 Ap 23 '16 430w

Reviewed by R: Le Gallienne

+ Pub W 89:1323 Ap 15 '16 200w

St Louis 14:438 D '16 20w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 25 '16 470w

TOWNE, EZRA THAYER. Social problems. (Social science text-books) il *$1 Macmillan 330 16-13754

"A book for secondary schools by Prof. Ezra Thayer Towne of Carleton college. Its aim is declared by its author to be 'to bring before the students of social problems the facts regarding present-day conditions, to indicate certain weaknesses in our social order, to show what has already been done and is being done toward the elimination of these weaknesses and to impress upon these students, through the presentation of such facts, the possibilities of wise, sane, constructive social action.' It is a book of facts rather than of theories. . . . The chapters are topically divided for the help of the student and there are lists of questions, references for supplementary reading and useful hints to the teachers."—Springfield Republican

Reviewed by C: A. Ellwood

Am Econ R 6:880 D '16 170w

+ A L A Bkl 13:62 N '16

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:757 N '16 50w

"An introduction to sociology giving in simple, concrete form much material that has hitherto been obtainable only in more advanced books."

+ Cleveland p106 Ag '16 20w

"Unfortunately, the student can 'learn' all that the book offers and pass his examinations satisfactorily without ever discovering the interrelations of the various problems to each other and to more fundamental problems. However, it is a good beginning."

+ — Ind 88:32 O 2 '16 90w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 Jl '16

Pittsburgh 21:509 N '16

+ R of Rs 54:456 O '16 80w

"The many well-selected illustrations are also a valuable feature."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Jl 30 '16 180w

"The best introduction to the study of present day social conditions which has yet appeared for the use of high school and undergraduate college students. It will be equally valuable as the basis for instruction and discussion in classes conducted by men's and women's clubs and by church classes for adults." G. T.

+ Survey 36:544 Ag 26 '16 180w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:451 D '16 60w

TOWNSEND, FRANK SUMNER. Hugh Graham; a tale of the pioneers. il *$1.35 Abingdon press 16-6644

"A stirring tale of pre-revolutionary days in western Pennsylvania, describing the border warfare between white and red men. . . . The hero is the son of an Irish gentleman but a fugitive for resisting injustice with fatal effect. He learns the life of the forest and the frontier, performs many daring exploits, is a captive, doomed to Indian torture, and . . . gets the girl he wants and lives happy ever after. The author has followed history closely."—Springfield Republican

"It is no derogation from the merit of this novel to say that its historical interest surpasses its interest as fiction. It gives an unusually picturesque and readable account of pioneer life in the central Alleghany district in the days just before the revolution."

+ Nation 103:157 Ag 17 '16 190w
+ Pittsburgh 21:483 N '16 20w
+ R of Rs 53:636 My '16 60w
+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 9 '16 180w

TOWSE, JOHN RANKEN. Sixty years of the theater; an old critic's memories. il *$2.50 (2½c) Funk 792 16-22354

For forty-three years the author was dramatic critic for the New York Evening Post, in the pages of which these reminiscences have been appearing. They begin with the year 1853 in London, where the author witnessed his first pantomime, and the same chapter has something to say of Some famous British stock companies. There are later chapters on: The stage in New York in 1870; Wallack's in the days of John Gilbert; Daly's stock company in the seventies; Adelaide Neilson and the Union Square stock company, etc. Other chapters are devoted to Edwin Booth, Irving and Terry, Richard Mansfield, Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern, and Herbert Beerbohm Tree. There are many illustrations.

"It is not so comprehensive as Winter's 'Wallet of time' nor is the criticism so mellow and penetrating; but there is a good general view, much entertaining personal comment and reminiscence, and certain phases of early theatrical events are given which are not found elsewhere."

+ A L A Bkl 13:111 D '16

"If at times his book seems gossipy, its gossip is not of the trivial sort, but elevated and elevating. . . . To read Mr. Towse's book is to have one's interest in both acted drama and literature stimulated." Grant Showerman

+ Dial 61:463 N 30 '16 1500w

+ Ind 88:236 N 6 '16 310w

"A word should be added for the illustrations, which consist of reproductions of portraits and views, many of them rare and unusual, especially those chosen to represent the earlier days."

+ Lit D 53:1179 N 4 '16 720w

+ Lit D 53:1558 D 9 '16 370w

N Y Br Lib News 3:171 N '16

N Y Times 21:446 O 22 '16 160w

+ Pub W 90:2080 D 9 '16 870w

"Mr. Towse has been one of the shaping influences of the American stage. He has the rare gift of discerning the psychology of players, therefore his criticism is formative."

+ R of Rs 54:678 D '16 130w

"One of the most interesting works of the season. . . . His book is exactly critical, yet its tone is genial; more genial, in fact, than many of the criticisms of contemporary offerings that Mr. Towse puts into his columns of the Evening Post. And this brings one to Mr. Towse's limitations as a critic—a somewhat pedagogical method and deficiency of humor. . . . But one does not look to him for charm. His pen is not as creative, as poetic or as picturesque as Mr. Winter's; but in sobriety of judgment he is Mr. Winter's superior."

+ — Springf'd Republican p14 D 2 '16 1500w

TOYNBEE, ARNOLD JOSEPH. New Europe; some essays in reconstruction; with an introd. by the Earl of Cromer. *$1 Dutton 320.4 16-17406

"The essays contained in Mr. Toynbee's new volume are complementary to his earlier and larger book, 'Nationality and the war.' In them he attempts to analyze the forces of nationality which lie behind the great upheaval of today.

He first defines the two ideals of nationality represented by England and Germany. . . . 'Nationality,' says the author, 'is a "will to cooperate," and a nation is a group of men bound together by the immanence of this impulse in each individual.' The ties of nationality, however, have a two-fold foundation, both fundamental—the political and the economic. And it is quite possible that the two may conflict. . . . How are we to reconcile the two? Mr. Toynbee raises but does not answer the question." (Boston Transcript) The essays are reprinted from the Nation [London].

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 380w

+ Ind 88:329 N 20 '16 40w

"Originally a series of papers written for the London Nation, it was admirable as a hasty summary of its subject. But as a book it is a thin and meagre production. It contains nothing at all novel, and it is not sufficiently argumentative to be really arresting. . . . Far more important than the volume proper is the introductory review of it by Lord Cromer. We have rarely been afforded so valuable an insight into the mind of a great pro-consul." H. J. L.

+ — New Repub 8:121 S 2 '16 750w

"Some of his ideas, notably that of the economic right of way and that of federation as a method of dealing with weak peoples advancing toward nationhood, have not had wide consideration. These, as well as other phases of the question, he treats tersely and cogently. The book deserves the attention of American readers because it puts before them with remarkable lucidity and in brief space the important phases of a problem which will have importance for this country."

+ N Y Times 21:301 J1 30 '16 900w

"It cannot honestly be said that Mr. Toynbee elicits any new facts, or that he adduces any arguments with which politicians, who have considered this subject, may not be held to be fairly familiar. Nevertheless, his essays stimulate political thought. They afford a very useful vade-mecum of the principles which should be borne in mind, and, perhaps, still more, of those which should be abjured, in treating the question of reconstruction." [Earl of] Cromer

+ Spec 116:320 Mr 4 '16 2150w

"A thoughtful and suggestive discussion of the claim of nationality to be the basis of political divisions, and of some claims, put forward in the name of nationality, that will not bear scrutiny. . . . The book is written in the just and generous spirit that will have to prevail in the settlement if Europe is to survive."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 Ag 6 '16 1000w

TOYNBEE, PAGET JACKSON, ed. Correspondence of Gray, Walpole, West and Ashton. (1734-1771). 2v il *$6.75 Oxford 16-8837

"The most interesting feature of Dr. Paget Toynbee's edition of 'The correspondence of Gray, Walpole, West, and Ashton' is that, of the 248 letters it contains, 111 are printed for the first time (89 by Gray, 5 by Walpole, 9 by West, 8 by Ashton), and 21 are now first given in full. The unpublished letters were found in the possession of the late Capt. Sir Francis E. Waller of Woodcote, Warwick, who gave permission for their publication. . . . The discovery of 89 new letters written by Gray was in itself ample justification for gathering into one collection all the correspondence of the 'Quadruple alliance.' Obviously the first duty of an editor who undertakes such a book is to supply an accurate text, and that Dr. Toynbee seems to have done. . . . We have further an annotated and able introduction, a full index, a chronological table, and other useful appendices."—Ath

"The letters show every sign of having been scrupulously copied and accurately printed. There are very few misprints, and these are quite unimportant. The editor's second task is to put before the reader such facts as will enable him clearly to understand the general course of the correspondence. This also has been done briefly and well. . . . Dr. Toynbee has also attempted to provide a commentary on the whole series of letters, but this part of his work is, it must be confessed, much less satis-TOYNBEE, PAGET JACKSON, ed.—Continued factory. In the course of our reading of the two volumes we have noticed nearly fifty places which require annotation or are inadequately explained. . . . If a man would forget for a day the weariness, the fever, and the fret of the world, these volumes contain the means of forgetting."

+ Ath p124 Mr '16 880w

Boston Transcript p26 Ja 19 '16 100w

+ Eng Hist R 31:519 J1 '16 350w

"Wine so good as this scarcely requires advertisement. . . . Mr. Toynbee is to be congratulated on his discovery and to be thanked for his presentation of it. His notes are in general helpful, and, when persons are in question, they are exhaustive. We have only one small complaint to make. References to contemporary political events are not always sufficiently elucidated."

+ Sat R 121:494 My 20 '16 1350w

"Some account of their youthful alliance and its course was given to the world five-and-twenty years ago by the late Mr. D. C. Tovey in a pleasant little volume entitled 'Gray and his friends.' Dr. Toynbee's presentation, thanks partly to his lucky but well-deserved discovery, partly to his rare industry and knowledge, is far more complete. These two handsome volumes are, so far as they go, as definitive as they are delightful."

+ Spec 116:528 Ap 22 '16 1950w

TRACY, LOUIS. Day of wrath. *$1.25 (2c) Clode, E: J. 16-10839

A story of the early days of the war. Captain Arthur Dalroy and Irene Beresford meet on the platform of a Berlin railway station. He renders her a service in difficulty and the two travel together toward the Belgian border. Before they reach it war is declared between Germany and England and together they endure the hardships of aliens in an enemy's land. But greater trials are before them. They cross the border only just ahead of the invading Germans, and thereafter their lot is thrown in with that of the persecuted Belgians. The dramatic moment of the story comes with their rescue by a party of newly arrived "Tommies."

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:222 My 28 '16 470w

R of Rs 54:117 J1 '16 30w

"Mr. Tracy invests his story with an atmosphere of spirited action that keeps the reader's interest at high pitch from start to finish."

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 28 '16 170w

TRACY, LOUIS. His unknown wife. *$1.35 (1½c) Clode, E: J. 16-20556

Philip Alexander Maseden, American ranchman, victim of the revenge of a newly-made head of a Latin American republic, is sentenced to be shot. Half an hour before the sentence is carried out and for reasons not explained to him, he is asked to marry a veiled woman. Through the circumstances of this marriage he effects his escape and, disguised as a native, takes passage for the United States on the "Southern Cross." The ship is wrecked and Maseden saves the lives of the woman who is his wife and her sister, but does not know which of the two he has married. Sturgess, a young New Yorker, is also saved. These four have many adventures on a desert island, finding clothes and provisions washed ashore from the wrecked ship, in true Swiss Family Robinson fashion, with added Aztec treasure. They go to sea on a raft, are attacked by natives and finally rescued by a passenger steamer. The story is eventful enough to furnish scenes for moving pictures.

"Altogether exciting and as easy to enjoy as it is easy to forget."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 13 '16 160w

"Mr. Tracy has done better work than 'His unknown wife.' Those who remember 'The wings of the morning' will be disappointed in this the author's latest book."

+ — N Y Times 21:578 D 31 '16 180w

TRAFTON, GILBERT HAVEN. Bird friends; a complete bird book for Americans. il *$2 (3c) Houghton 598.2 16-19975

"It has been the purpose of the author to gather within one set of covers a brief discussion of the essential facts concerning bird life that are of general interest, which are now scattered through many books, bulletins, and magazines." (Preface) He is particularly interested in movements for bird protection. The book is intended for the general reader, but the author says that he has had especially in mind one group of readers who have something of a professional interest in the subject, the teachers of the country who are teaching children about birds and forming bird clubs. Among the sources drawn on in preparing the book are the bulletins of the Bureau of biological survey. The book is made up of four parts: The value of birds; Enemies of the birds; Bird-protection; Bird-study in schools. The illustrations are from photographs and from drawings by Louis Agassiz Fuertes and R. Bruce Horsfall.

+ A L A Bkl 13:157 Ja '17

"A delightful and valuable book, not only for the bird-lover and student but for anyone interested in community welfare."

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 25 '16 500w

"The book is plentifully illustrated, entertainingly written and deserves hearty commendation."

+ Cath World 104:559 Ja '17 90w

+ Cleveland p150 D '16 40w

"We can recommend 'Bird friends' because of the encyclopedic knowledge it can throw on the special subject which other authorities, like Nellie Blanchan and Olive Thorne Miller, can not touch."

+ Dial 61:548 D 14 '16 30w

+ Lit D 53:1617 D 16 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:190 D '16

"By means of illustrations and carefully worked out tables the service of the birds in the destruction of insects and noxious weeds is effectively presented. . . . Instead of the usual generalizations which are so unsatisfying to one who desires information, accurate data are used in presenting these subjects. . . . A very desirable volume for both public and private libraries." Ethel Golden

+ School R 25:67 Ja '17 460w

TRASK, KATE (NICHOLS) (MRS. SPENCER TRASK) (KATRINA TRASK, pseud.). Invisible balance sheet. *$1.40 (1½c) Lane 16-22851

A choice between the girl he loves and a fortune of many millions is placed before young John Wright. He has known poverty and struggle, and the temptation proving too dazzling, chooses wealth. The story follows the course of his social life in New York to his final realization of the sacrifice he has made. He wishes to turn back but circumstances make it impossible and a bullet from the hand of an assassin, one of the disinherited who look with hatred on all possessors of great wealth, puts an end to his career.

"The plot of 'The invisible balance sheet' is rather improbable in its premises—not impossible but at least unusual. . . . The most significant part of the book lies not in the story itself nor the moral to which it points, but in the very natural and realistic pictures of society life and the dialogue which the author has introduced and handles with great skill."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 D 16 '16 380w

"There is much in the book that may easily be interpreted as allegorical; in such a book there ought to be. But in the simplicity and force of its narrative it brings home its theme, its warning, its complexity, its hope with a directness and a human sympathy that give it high rank as a story—a story of marked significance."

+ N Y Times 21:489 N 19 '16 1250w

R of Rs 55:103 Ja '17 190w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

TREDWELL, WINIFRED VAN SCHAICK (REED) (MRS. ROGER CULVER TREDWELL). Chinese art motives interpreted. il $1.75 (14c) Putnam 738 16-2184

The author offers a key to the stories that Chinese artists have told on their vases and woven into their fabrics. She says, "There is no more delightful introduction to the soul of China than her art, into which has been woven, to the perfection of beauty, much that is frankly humorous, whimsical and profound." (Foreword) Contents: The story on your Chinese vase; Taoist subjects in art; Confucianism and scholarly attributes; Buddhist and non-religious subjects in art; Historical outline (960 A. D.-1911); Index.

Ath p282 Je '16 30w

"In the midst of her discussions we never doubt her knowledge, while on the other hand, she has managed to convey it so cleverly that the book reads like a story."

+ Boston Transcript p24 F 23 '16 380w

"A rather slight and casual compilation of the chief subjects which appear on Chinese porcelains and textiles. It will meet the needs of those who want bare elements, but even for these it is marred by the forced flippancy of the style. There are twenty-three well-chosen illustrations."

+ Nation 102:655 Je 15 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:28 F '16

"It makes readily available much useful information which formerly could be found only in technical descriptions of art collections."

+ Springf'd Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 300w

"Miss Tredwell has produced a useful book, and she knows her subject well. But she would have done better if she had not tried so constantly to be vivacious."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p295 Je 22 '16 570w

TREITSCHKE, HEINRICH GOTTHARD VON. Politics; tr. from the German by Blanche Dugdale and Torben de Bille; with a foreword by A. Lawrence Lowell. 2v $7 (2½c) Macmillan 320 16-22684

"These handsome volumes, with their admirable print and an introduction in which Mr. Balfour neatly points out the limitations of their author, should pass into many a library as the most cultivated exposition available of the political creed of modern Germany." (Sat R) "Until the war broke out, few Englishmen had ever heard Treitschke's name. Even now, as Mr. Balfour points out in his brilliant introduction to the book under review, few have read his writings. It is probable that even amongst the very limited number who were familiar with his works before the war, many regarded his teaching as merely representing the fantastic vagaries of a pseudo-philosophic lecturer, and did not realize . . . that it was seriously intended for rigorous application in the camp and in the council-chamber. Every thinking Englishman should avail himself of the opportunity now afforded to him of acquainting himself at first hand with what Treitschke really taught and thought." (Spec)

Ath p280 Je '16 120w

— Ath p367 Ag '16 820w

"Certainly he surpasses both von Sybel and Droysen in the popularity he has attained. He wrote his history with a superb sense of the picturesque. He had a veritable genius for narration. . . . Political science has rarely undergone so elaborate and vicious a simplification as here. . . . Treitschke, whatever he was, was not a scholar. He had no idea of handling evidence. He was not in the least careful of truth." H. J. Laski

— Dial 61:456 N 30 '16 1300w

"In spite of his sneers at an America of whose history and spirit these pages display abysmal ignorance, von Treitschke would have at least agreed with John J. Ingalls that the ten commandments and the golden rule have no place in practical politics. It is needless to say that we do not so interpret history."

— Nation 104:105 Ja 25 '17 1250w

"The thoughts of men like Gierke and Ehrlich in Germany, of Saleilles and Demogue in France, of Ferrara in Italy, have political consequences so vast in permanent significance as to render it very necessary that their books should be in the hands of every student of the process of government. To minds of such enduring quality, indeed, it is not probable that Treitschke's can be compared. His book is rather a brilliant 'tour de force,' a splendid and arresting pamphlet than a serious piece of political theory. Its importance derives rather from the external fact of its immense popularity than from any special mental power it displays. Vigor, indeed, and eloquence it possesses in abundance; but it lacks subtlety, it is superficial, it is often inaccurate, and, above all, it is an ungenerous book." H. J. L.

— New Repub 9:sup20 N 18 '16 1600w

"One curious impression remains with the reader of these impassioned lectures—that they are already out-of-date."

N Y Times 21:562 D 17 '16 670w

Reviewed by Lyman Abbott

— Outlook 114:779 D 6 '16 1850w

R of Rs 55:108 Ja '17 120w

"An impartial critic will, we think, find on occasion good sense, vigour, and admirable powers of expression in Treitschke; but it is difficult to do him justice for this in view of his entirely pernicious theories and ideals. In modern history Treitschke is so weak and ignorant as to call for little notice."

— + Sat R 121:618 Je 24 '16 680w

"To produce a good English version of his political writings required both a very thorough knowledge of German and great facility in the manipulation of literary English. It is clear that both of these qualities are collectively possessed in a high degree by Mrs. Dugdale and Mr. Torben de Bille. Their translation is altogether admirable. . . . Strange as it may appear to any one whose intellect is not dominated by Prussianism and whose moral sense is not deadened by the glamour of Hohenzollern superiority, Treitschke evidently believed in his own philosophy. His earnestness and sincerity are attractive. . . . The pages of these two volumes abound with gross misstatements of fact, some of which have been exposed by Mr. Balfour, sweeping generalizations based on false premises and advanced without any serious attempt to prove their correctness, and distortions of the views set forth by past historians and philosophers." [Earl of] Cromer

Spec 117:74 JI 15 '16 1850w

— Springf'd Republican p15 N 26 '16 1150w

"Mr. Balfour's introduction, entertaining as it is, should not be read in advance, if the reader wishes to be fair to himself." E. T. Devine

Survey 37:315 D 16 '16 730w

"The main interest of these volumes lies in Mr. Balfour's introduction, in which, with his unflinching lucidity, subtlety, and distinction, he explains and defines the essence of Treitschke's teaching. . . . Mr. Balfour examines the structure of these lectures, so much vaunted by young Germany, and says enough to amaze readers that Treitschke could ever have obtained the high praise given to him by Lord Acton, and to convince them of the shallowness of his knowledge and the curious limitations of his vision. Treitschke has been called a German Macaulay. We can fancy the latter exposing Treitschke's errors in facts and chronology. It would have been a massacre."

The Times [London] Lit Sup p283 Je 15 '16 1450w

TREMAUDAN, A. H. DE. Hudson Bay road (1498-1915). il $2.50 Dutton 917.1

"The declared purpose of the writer is 'chiefly to tell of the country along the Hudson Bay railway now under construction, of Hudson Bay, the Mediterranean sea of North America, and of the resources to be found in Manitoba's new territory, including the great inland sea on which it borders.' But the scope of the book is somewhat more comprehensive. . . . The first 6 chapters are devoted to the achievements of the early discoverers and explorers of Hudson

TRÉMAUDAN, A. H. DE—Continued
Strait and Bay. . . . Three chapters treat of Lord Selkirk and his Red river colony. . . . The remainder of the book (chs. 8 to 15 and 18 to 21) deals with the practicability of the route through the bay and strait, the history of the Hudson Bay railway project, and the economic advantages to be expected from the opening up of this northern commercial route."—Am Econ R

"The book makes its appearance at an opportune moment, when the long desired and much discussed Hudson Bay railway is at last on the way to completion." A. B. Clark

+ Am Econ R 6:887 D '16 680w

+ Sat R 120:523 N 27 '15 160w

TRENT, WILLIAM PETERFIELD. Daniel Defoe, how to know him. il *$1.25 (1½c) Bobbs 823 16-19238

Defoe is known to many only as the author of "Robinson Crusoe." This book will introduce him as essayist, poet, and pamphleteer, as well as author of other works of fiction. Professor Trent quotes liberally from Defoe's writings, but says that the selections are inadequate because of his "almost unrivaled copiousness and versatility." Among the essays is one, published in 1687, advocating "an academy for women."

A L A Bkl 13:114 D '16

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 23 '16 620w

+ Cath World 104:406 D '16 200w

+ Dial 61:402 N 16 '16 600w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:151 O '16

+ N Y Times 21:390 O 1 '16 900w

+ R of Rs 54:565 N '16 150w

"Professor Trent has made of his discussion of the life and letters of Daniel Defoe a work that is almost as entertaining to the adult mind as was 'Robinson Crusoe' to his childish thought. Through his happy choice of selections from the less known works as well as from 'Robinson Crusoe,' Professor Trent re-vivifies the author and evaluates him in the world of letters. . . . The edition is recommended particularly to schools where reference facilities are limited." E. M. Geyer

+ School R 24:777 D '16 480w

TREVENA, JOHN, pseud. (ERNEST GEORGE HENHAM). Adventures among wild flowers. il *$2 Longmans 824 (Eng ed 15-26769)

"John Trevena has written 'Adventures among wild flowers,' from a standpoint which may not be wholly new to the gardener's bookshelf, but which is interesting because it is his own standpoint, and not some one else's occupied for the time being by him. He tells us not only about his flowers, but what they remind him of—a childish memory of a search for pasque flowers, and three sovereigns which sixty blossoms earned for a boy of twelve; edelweiss and a truculent German professor who took off a monstrous hat to flowers which he loved; an Italian child who suddenly became afraid of the cruelty of the world; a pedlar shouting with laughter over the wickedness of a lunatic; the spell of Italian beer; his own belief that the Creator's favourite colour is dark blue."—Spec

A L A Bkl 12:230 F '16

"Mr. Trevena is a traveller as well as a novelist; he adds to the sights he has seen the story which he imagines, and contrives to set new individualities among the Alpine flowers which are his favourites."

+ Spec 113:893 D 19 '14 180w

TREVENA, JOHN, pseud. (ERNEST GEORGE HENHAM). A Drake, by George! (Eng title, Captain's furniture). *$1.50 (2c) Knopf 16-23091

Captain Drake, who appropriately named himself Francis altho he had been christened William, built a house in Devonshire, furnished it with an amazing collection of curios about which he invented highly colored tales, then died leaving his relatives to contend over the disposition of his effects. To add to the confusion, Maria, his wife, who dies shortly after, leaves a variety of wills, and George and Percy, the nephews, and Kezia and Bessie, the servants, are more than ever in doubt as to the ownership of the two Chinese vases, the Egyptian mummy and other items. And Miss Sophia Yard, Maria's sister with her weak wits and short memory, is anything but a source of enlightenment.

"As long as the Captain, that soft-hearted and harmless liar, who deceived himself quite as much as he ever did anybody else, occupies the centre of the stage this story is altogether amusing and delightful. Unfortunately, he dies in the fourth chapter, and with him expires all the geniality of the tale. It remains comedy, but comedy with an acid flavor. . . . It is a very far cry, indeed, from the mystic beauty of 'Sleeping waters' or the grim power of 'Granite' and 'Wintering' hay' and 'Furze the cruel,' and the rest, to this bitter farce-comedy."

+ N Y Times 21:466 N 5 '16 720w

"The humour (it is really only facetiousness) is persistent; but Mr. Trevena seems to have very little power of judging his own jests. . . . The readers who will get most amusement out of the book are those who like to be able to recognize in their fiction characters who remind them of local 'characters' they have actually known."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p358 J1 27 '16 770w

TRIANA, SANTIAGO PÉREZ. Some aspects of the war. *3s 6d T. Fisher Unwin, London 940.91

"Señor Triana is a Colombian and to a certain extent speaks for Latin America. He is also an ex-member of the Court of arbitration at The Hague. . . . Señor Triana believes the Monroe doctrine ought to be upheld and cherished by all the American republics in the present crisis. He urges all Spanish-Americans to bear in mind what a Prussian victory in Europe would mean for them." (N Y Times) "To the pacifists the author looks for salvation: 'The pacifists are seers; historically they are in the right, although the facts at a given moment are against them. We must attack the evil in the minds of men; we must root out prejudices and overcome the vested interests of commercialism, high finance and the privileged castes and classes.'" (Boston Transcript)

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 8 '15 430w

Nation 101:783 D 30 '15 110w

+ N Y Times 20:306 Ag 29 '15 620w

"Señor Pérez Triana, formerly of the Permanent court of arbitration at The Hague, has made one serious mistake in this book. In an appeal to the British public he had no right whatever to make an attack on Russia. That a sometime official of the Hague court of arbitration should write with so fierce an ignorance is strange—more especially as in other parts of the book there are views worth reading, particularly by those who like to study the drama of a temperament; more especially, too, as Señor Triana is one of the most deeply informed men on some subjects and a personality whose force and charm has been felt and recognised by all his friends."

+ Sat R 120:404 O 23 '15 290w

TROTTER, W. Instincts of the herd in peace and war. *$1.25 Macmillan 301 (Eng ed 16-6406)

"The general purpose of Mr. Trotter's book is to suggest that the science of psychology is capable of becoming a guide in the actual affairs of life, and of giving an understanding of the human mind that may enable us in a practical and useful way to foretell some of the peculiarities of human behavior. It is not essentially a war book, but the author has some illuminating paragraphs dealing with certain aspects of the war that are a real contribution to this growing literature. . . . Mr. Trotter maintains that sociology is but another name for psychology in the widest sense, and he discusses first of all the herd instinct and its bearing on the psychology of civilized man. . . . In his chapter on gregarious species at war Mr. Trotter goes with detail into the question of national psychology, and this leads him to compare the national morale of England with that of Germany."—N Y Times

"The worst and the best that can be said about a book of this kind is that it is suggestive. It entertains, it enlivens, it starts a flock of ideas, but it settles nothing. It offers no firm and safe abiding-place for the thoughts it starts in motion. . . . Mr. Trotter, like so many of the rest of us, is still an explorer." R. E. Park

Am J Soc 22:410 N '16 1050w

"To me it has proven one of the most attractive of recent European books." Carl Kelsey

+ Ann Am Acad 69:289 Ja '17 310w

+ Library Association Record 18:169 Ap 15 '16 20w

Nation 103:426 N 2 '16 380w

+ Nature 97:159 Ap 20 '16 '330w

"In 1908 and 1909 an Englishman, Mr. W. Trotter, published two articles in the Sociological Review which produced an extraordinary effect on those who read them. . . . These essays are now reprinted, and immensely enriched by contact with those later developments of abnormal psychology which are due to Professor Freud. . . . The importance of Trotter's book is that he has suggested this new orientation to the analyses of Freud. What Freud calls the censor, Trotter calls gregariousness or herd instinct. The illumination is reciprocal." Walter Lippmann

New Repub 9:sup16 N 18 '16 1350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:108 Jl '16 30w

"Mr. Trotter's book furnishes a certain working knowledge of the attitude of the English mind, but it is doubtful whether his estimate of the phenomena of the German mind at the present time can be regarded as anything more stable than a series of hypotheses."

+ N Y Times 21:376 S 24 '16 670w

TRUDEAU, EDWARD LIVINGSTON. Autobiography. il *$2 (3½c) Lea 15-27954

The experiences which have revolutionized the treatment of tuberculosis are all related in this book. Dr. Trudeau tells how he cared for his sick brother, living and sleeping in the room with him and obeying strictly the doctor's injunction to keep the windows closed. Then he tells of his own bitter hours on learning that the disease had fastened itself on him, of his journey into the Adirondacks with no hope of a cure for himself, of his growing belief in the efficacy of a fresh air treatment, of the experiments in his little laboratory, and of the growth of his sanitarium. But there is more to the book than this; there are chapters on his boyhood days in Paris with an amusing account of a wartime encounter with Slidell, the representative of the confederacy; also a chapter devoted to his acquaintance with Stevenson.

+ A L A Bkl 12:286 Mr '16

"Characteristically unpretentious in its title, but rich in human interest and almost as remarkable for what the discerning eye reads between the lines as in what those lines themselves explicitly set forth." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 60:110 F 3 '16 160w

"He is so human and whimsical in his book that it in no way becomes oppressive, but describes seriously and interestingly the wonderful achievements of medical science in fighting the world's great curse and menace."

+ Lit D 52:731 Mr 18 '16 200w

"It is simple and candid with his own simplicity and candor; it is detailed without being monotonous, and intimate without being indecorous. The sympathetic reader will find this volume a more sincere soul-portrait than are many of the sensationally labeled 'Diaries' and 'Confessions.'"

+ N Y Times 21:19 Ja 16 '16 400w

+ Pratt p51 Ap '16 40w

St Louis 14:169 Ap '16 30w

"More than 500 similar sanitariums have followed in his steps in this country, and he has blazed the trail to the conquest of humanity's worst scourge. The story is fascinating, both for actual results and for the picture of a man that would 'never say die' and finally passed on at 67 instead of 24."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 27 '16 630w

Reviewed by Gertrude Seymour

+ Survey 36:103 Ap 22 '16 730w

TRUTH about the theater. *$1 (4c) Stewart & Kidd 792 16-18617

"The author of this book is one of the best known theatrical men in New York," says the unsigned Foreword, continuing, "Young men and women ambitious to go on the stage, to write plays or to associate themselves in some other manner or capacity with the theater will find in what he has written the plain facts as he knows them—without adornment, exaggeration or excuse." He writes of the moral laxity of the stage and of the pitfalls it offers to young girls who come to New York to try for success, of the almost unsurmountable difficulties that face the unknown playwright, and of the business hazards that lie before the would-be producer. The only real names mentioned are those of the great managers and producers, whom the author appraises in his next to the last chapter. There is also some mention of the Drama league.

Cleveland p146 D '16 90w

— Dial 61:590 D 28 '16 560w

Ind 88:331 N 20 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:155 O '16 40w

+ R of Rs 54:677 D '16 120w

"With all its harsh suggestions, 'The truth about the theater' contains a respectable amount of information about contemporary stage figures. This is of some value. The rest has all been said (or whispered) before, and retelling in this fashion brings to the statements no greater power of conviction."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 180w

TRYON, LILLIAN (HART) (MRS. WINTHROP PITT TRYON). Speaking of home; being essays of a contented woman. *$1 (4c) Houghton 814 16-18496

A group of pleasant essays on the art of house-keeping and related subjects. Contents: On being a housewife; On keeping house by ear; Abolishing the parlor; Wild grapes for jelly; On staying late in the country; On buying at the door; Piazza conversation; The conversation of shabbiness; On being too kind; Pussy-cat, Pussy-cat; Ragbags and relics; On being a hostess. The essays have been appearing in the House Beautiful under the title "Reflections of a housewife."

+ A L A Bkl 13:162 Ja '17

"A book so sensible and witty as this little volume deserves to be widely read."

+ Cath World 104:409 D '16 130w

"If Mrs. Tryon is as good a housekeeper as she is a writer, hers is a fortunate family."

+ Dial 61:403 N 16 '16 270w

N Y Br Lib News 3:171 N '16 50w

+ Springfield Republican p8 N 2 '16 520w

TUCKER, BEVERLEY RANDOLPH. Nervous children, prevention and management. il *$1.25 (4c) Badger, R: G. 618.9 16-6458

The author is professor of neurology and psychiatry in the Medical college of Virginia. His purpose in this book has been "to give his readers as clear an understanding as possible of the fundamental principles underlying the rearing of children from a standpoint of their nervous and psychic development so that their knowledge and judgment will lead them not only to understand the child but to train it to avoid the neuro-psychopathic pitfalls which are found everywhere in its path." (Preface) Contents: The formation, physiology and psychology of the child's nervous system; Heredity and environment; The nervous and mental development of the child and its personality; Habit;

TUCKER, BEVERLEY RANDOLPH—Continued Eugenics and sexual hygiene; The cause and prevention of nervousness in children; The training of nervous children; Defective and feeble-minded children; Certain nervous and mental diseases of childhood; Puberty and adolescence.

N Y Br Lib News 3:125 Ag '16

"Suggestive to the physician, the school teacher, the mother, and the intelligent nurse."
+ Pratt p23 O '16 40w

TUCKER, HENRY ST. GEORGE. Woman's suffrage by constitutional amendment. *$1.35 (4c) Yale univ. press 324.3 16-20450

This volume is not an argument for or against woman suffrage. It is a consideration of the separate and distinct powers of the federal and state governments under the constitution. The author argues the necessity "for maintaining those powers in a just equilibrium for the preservation of the liberty of American citizens," and the proposed federal amendment granting suffrage to women is treated "as one of the attempts to break down that equilibrium." The chapters, originally delivered as the Storrs lectures at Yale, are: Suffrage derived from the states; Varying conditions of suffrage; Amendment, an organic change; Analogy of fifteenth amendment; Meaning of local self-government; Federal and state governments.

"A singularly futile performance. . . . Legally, Mr. Tucker's discussion is an extremely able one. But the final impression is of a false fore-shortening of the whole issue." H. S.
— New Repub 9:361 Ja 27 '17 560w

"The point of view which Mr. Tucker urges should not be dismissed until we have heard a better advocate."
+ Pol Sci Q 31:661 D '16 390w

Springfield Republican p8 N 30 '16 210w

TUCKER, JAMES IRWIN. American road; a non-engineering manual for practical road builders, treating the construction, administration and economics of improved earth roads. il $1 American road, Norman, Okla. 625.7 16-6271

"The volume deals with what it styles the 'cheap' roads and stops just short of the macadam road, with its modern variations. The illustrations are a striking feature. . . . The necessity of skilled engineering control of highway work is strongly emphasized throughout. Among the subjects dealt with are: General conditions and preliminary studies, road economics, administration, convicts and road work, earth road construction and maintenance, waterways, bridges, finance, stone roads, gravel roads, sand clay roads, building with oils, and needed legislation."—Engin Rec

"It contains many homely truths that cannot have too wide a circulation or make too deep an impression."
+ Engin N 76:745 O 19 '16 180w

"This is a non-technical manual for practical road builders, though by the thorough manner in which he has dealt with the various subjects, the author has earned a place for his work on the library shelf of the highway engineer."
+ Engin Rec 74:87 Jl 15 '16 140w

N Y Br Lib News 3:170 N '16

"Concise, simply-written, and well illustrated."
+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p9 Ag '16 50w

TUCKER, WILLIAM JEWETT. New reservation of time, and other articles. *$1.50 (3½c) Houghton 304 16-23788

The author is president emeritus of Dartmouth college, and the articles that make up this book were written after he had retired from active service. The growing tendency to provide for the retirement of men at a fixed age limit is the subject of the title essay. How shall this time be used and what may be the reactions of this reservation on society? The other articles, with one exception, reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly, are: Undergraduate scholarship; The goal of equality; Notes on the progress of the social conscience; The ethical challenge of the war; The crux of the peace problem; On the control of modern civilization; The new movement in humanity—from liberty to unity.

Cath World 104:546 Ja '17 310w

"It is an interesting fact that Dr. Tucker's thinking and writing gain in vitality as he drops the theme of his main life work."
+ Nation 104:55 Ja 11 '17 780w

TURCZYNOWICZ, LAURA (BLACKWELL) DE GOZDAWA. When the Prussians came to Poland. il *$1.25 (2c) Putnam 940.91 17-207

The author is an American woman whose husband, a Russian Pole, is serving as inspector-in-chief of sanitary engineers in the Russian army. She was living quietly with her three children in their Polish country home when war came, and she describes all that followed, the horrors of invasion, her battle with typhus, the sufferings of the people, the ruin and devastation of the country. After her return to America she was asked how much of current newspaper reports were to be believed. She answered: "Multiply by twenty, then you will have a faint idea of what is happening in Poland."

"Evidently unused to literary composition, she writes simply, naively, the sentences seeming fairly to pour out from a heart ready to break with the agony it has seen and suffered. . . . Entirely aside from Pan-Slav and Pan-German propaganda, ambitions and mutual suspicions and fears, it will enable the people of this country to get a better idea of how German occupation of Poland was accomplished, what it has meant for the Poles, and what will be the outlook for them with a kingdom of their own under German supervision."
+ N Y Times 22:3 Ja 7 '17 520w

TURNBULL, MARGARET. Handle with care. il *$1.35 (1½c) Harper 16-1398

In spite of warnings of danger Janet Blackthorne dared to take a hand in the regeneration of Steve Warren's wasted life. Ordered to take a six months' rest she finds a quiet country retreat and settles down to obey her doctor's orders. But country retreats are quiet only in theory; they have their own human turmoils and tragedies. Janet finds herself involved in one when she interests herself in the young station agent who is plainly on the road to ruin. He is a man of evident culture and education and under Janet's influence he takes a new grip on himself, overcomes his enemy drink, and makes himself worthy of the girl who is not afraid to link her life with his.

"Above the average, with some good country characters, and will be popular."
+ A L A Bkl 12:291 Mr '16

"'Handle with care' is not perfect. It is a more interesting if not a better thing than that. We have an author of insight and ability gradually possessing herself of her medium, in which her books already entitle her to a position of her own. If the next novel of Margaret Turnbull shows as great an advance in art as does 'Handle with care,' there can be small doubt concerning the author's position in the world of novel writing." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p26 Ja 19 '16 1100w
+ Cleveland p17 Mr '16 80w

"There is a refreshing absence of false sentiment, and a good deal of humor in the telling."
+ Nation 102:461 Ap 27 '16 150w

"Miss Turnbull has told, and told well, an interesting story. It touches upon alcoholism and deplorable prison conditions, with suggestions of methods of reform, but it is pre-eminently a story. Better and more natural than the plot are the country people, altogether racy and delightful, especially Mr. Rodney. The book is in every way a marked advance upon the author's earlier story, 'Looking after Sandy.'"
+ — N Y Times 21:78 Mr 5 '16 320w

"The scene is in a New Jersey village, inhabited by 'natives' at one end, and by a colony of artists and writers at the other. Among the former is an ancient keeper of a toll bridge, whose unconsciously humorous philosophizing on men, women, life, motives and ambitions, is sufficiently diverting to make the book a success."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 20 '16 270w

"A fresh clothing of a hackneyed plot—a young woman's attempts to reform a dissipated youth. The health-restoring New Jersey hamlet and its inhabitants are well pictured and the story's interest is unflagging."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:90 F '16 30w

TURNER, WINIFRED. Great schools of painting: a first book of European art. il $*1.50
Lippincott 759 15-26768

"This book treats of the schools of Italy, Flanders, Germany, and Spain. The method is simple: A little general history, a little artist biography, comment on a few typical paintings. There are thirty-two well-chosen plates." (Nation) "One chapter devoted to the pictured stories of various saints is likely to be particularly helpful in school work. . . . The majority of pictures described as well as more than half the illustrations are from the National gallery in London." (School Arts Magazine) There is a bibliography at the end of each chapter.

"Aside from its omission of the English school, covers the same period as Head's 'How to enjoy pictures' but is for older children."

+ A L A Bkl 12:225 F '16

"Among the most successful of the numerous introductions to the study of European art which have lately come before us. . . . We could have wished that Miss Turner had left the history of painting even more severely alone than she has done and had avoided such equivocal statements as, that: 'After Veronese Venetian art died out.'"

+ Ath 1915.1:363 Ap 17 750w

"As sensible a little book as we have seen. . . . The slurring and inadequate treatment of Titian, Rubens, and the more drastic genre painters of the north is a more serious drawback. Offsetting this is the real skill with which the material of legend and symbolism are taught without too much breaking the continuity of the chapters."

+ Nation 101:789 D 30 '16 130w

"Good for the beginner because it gives biographical information about the artists, explains symbolism used in religious pictures, includes legends of the saints and reconciles the manner of the primitives with modern standards by a sympathetic treatment of contemporary history." J. G.

+ St Louis 14:159 Ap '16 50w

"Delightfully adapted in style and method to the enjoyment of juvenile readers."

+ School Arts Magazine 15:521 Mr '16 130w

U

UNITED STATES. INTERIOR. DEPT. OF. National parks portfolio. il Scribner 711
16-26613

"The Department of the interior has recently issued a book of views of our principal national parks—Yellowstone, Yosemite, Sequoia, Mount Rainier, Crater Lake, Mesa Verde, Glacier, Rocky Mountain and the Grand Canyon. There are between 20 and 30 pictures of each park—most of them very fine photographs, reproduced by means of uncommonly excellent engraving work. Maps showing railway routes to these national beauty spots will be of use to the prospective tourist."—Springfield Republican

+ Ind 87:390 S 11 '16 50w

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 3 '16 100w

UNITED STATES. LABOR STATISTICS, BUREAU OF. Summary of the Report on condition of woman and child wage earners in the United States, December, 1915. (Bul. 175; Women in industry ser. no. 5) pa U. S. Labor statistics; 45c Supt. of doc. 331.4
L16-14

The full report, of which this is a summary, was published in 19 volumes in 1910-13, and relates for the most part to conditions east of the Mississippi as they were found in 1908. The edition of the report was practically limited to 2,500 copies. To the numerous and repeated demands for it in excess of the supply the compilation of this summary is due. The bulletin begins with a study of the cotton, men's ready-made clothing, glass and silk industries as employers of women; there are three related chapters on miscellaneous industries, three on child-labor problems, three on historical matters, four which deal with questions of health and one each on family budgets, the relation between occupation and criminality of women, and labor laws and factory conditions. There is a digest of significant points and an index.

Reviewed by Edith Abbott

+ Am Econ R 6:662 S '16 850w

+ A L A Bkl 13:48 O '16

UNITED STATES. LABOR STATISTICS, BUREAU OF. Vocational education survey of Richmond, Va. (Bul. no. 162; Miscellaneous ser. no. 7) pa U. S. Labor statistics; 40c Supt. of doc. 371.42
L16-8

"This Richmond report contains a detailed analysis of the various trades that are practiced in the city. These trades are analyzed with reference to the number of men engaged in them, the kind of training which they have, and the kind of training which they ought to receive. The relation between school work and the trades is constantly brought out by statements of the wishes of employers in regard to the training of their employees and by statements with regard to the actual experiences of those who are in the trades."—El School J

"The form in which the analysis of the trades is presented in this report is such as to bar the ordinary reader from the use of the document. Long technical tables and analyses give the results of an elaborate study. There is here a great mass of material which will be very valuable to anyone organizing courses for these different trades, and the achievement which this report marks is to be described by the statement that henceforth industrial education has a substantial scientific foundation for the description of the needs of children who are preparing for the trades."

+ El School J 16:457 My '16 1550w

UNTERMAYER, LOUIS. "—and other poets." il $*1.25 Holt 817 16-9421

In this clever volume Mr. Untermeyer parodies the work of his contemporary verse makers. At the "Banquet of the bards," which is presented as Part I of the book, John Masfield, pressed for a narrative, tells the true story of "Tom, Tom, the piper's son," Robert Frost relates "The death of the tired man," Edgar Lee Masters adds a tombstone from "The East River anthology," Sara Teasdale, looking as Sapphic as possible, recites "A song," etc. In Part 2, "Attempted affinities" the author shows what might have resulted from collaborations between Shelley and Laurence Hope, and others. Part 3, "Pierian handsprings," is a miscellaneous collection of light verse.

+ A L A Bkl 12:419 Je '16

Reviewed by W: S. Braithwaite
+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 1 '16 1400w

"Very enjoyable in small doses."
+ Cleveland p104 Ag '16 70w

Reviewed by R. M. Alden
Dial 61:64 Jl 15 '16 400w

"In the ricochet of another man's laugh, he is sufficiently enjoyable; but when he succumbs to anticlimax and actually ridicules serious writers like John Masfield or Sara Teasdale, he sinks in their fall." O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 102:670 Je 22 '16 250w

"The verse does not parody individual poems, but the whole spirit of the singer; not infrequently to our humble way of thinking, it betters the original. We know of no other group of parodies that touches it for individual and collective excellence." Clement Wood

+ N Y Call p15 My 21 '16 850w

"There is real rollicking fun in this volume of parodies by Mr. Untermeyer, and besides the fun an amazing power of mimicry, a grasp of the workings not only of the pen of those he parodies but of the mind. . . . When it comes to Vachell Lindsay it is not only the verses of that writer that dance in cap and bells before the reader, but the writer himself, in one of his recitations, which any one who has seen as well as heard is not likely to forget."

UNTERMEYER, LOUIS—Continued

+ N Y Times 21:111 Mr 26 '16 530w

+ R of Rs 53:762 Je '16 70w

"In the second part of his book Mr. Untermyer has not been so successful."

+ — Springfield Republican p15 Mr 5 '16 550w

"These poems are more than burlesques; they are subtle criticism. E. B. Reed

+ Yale R ns 6:419 Ja '17 130w

UPDEGRAFF, ROBERT RAWLS. Obvious Adams. *50c (7c) Harper 659 16-17755

The story of a man who won business success by always seeing and doing the obvious thing. In his case it happened to be advertising, but the moral of the story may apply in other lines as well.

Cleveland p152 D '16 20w

"The young man who is going to seek his fortune in the advertising business should have 'Obvious Adams' for a hand-book. Indeed, any young man who is going to seek his fortune in anything might be aided by the common sense and business acumen displayed in this little volume."

+ N Y Times 21:449 O 22 '16 200w

St Louis 14:403 N '16

UPTON, GEORGE BURR. Structure and properties of the more common materials of construction. il $2.50 Wiley 620.1 16-879

"Largely theoretical and based upon a laboratory course given to the juniors in Sibley college, Cornell university. The first part deals with the determination of the properties of materials by means of engineering testing, no attempt having been made to give collections of data on the results of tests, although there is an attempt to teach how to interpret and criticize results. The second part deals with the nature and control of the internal structure of materials. The principles of physical chemistry are presented simply and with helpful diagrams. Certain parts of the book are stated to be new, the details of which have not before appeared in print."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

Cleveland p113 Ag '16 30w

"This book is different from any other on the subject which has come under the observation of the writer, in that the discussion is almost entirely theoretical, and that it contains no data on the results of tests. It would seem to the writer that more specific instructions as to the selection, methods of making and interpretation of tests might well have been included. This would have greatly increased its value to the practicing engineer. The book is designed to be used as a supplement to the usual laboratory courses in materials of construction and as such will no doubt find a wide adoption." C. T. Morris

+ — Engin N 75:746 Ap 20 '16 530w

"The book is written in a dogmatic style, and many of the statements are open to criticism. Except in the last two chapters references are usually not given. . . . Having pointed out some of the faults of the book it must be said that it contains much valuable matter treated in a stimulating manner. It is a book which will be read with profit by all interested in the subject."

+ — Engin Rec 73:459 Ap 1 '16 650w

+ — Nature 97:518 Ag 24 '16 430w

N Y Br Lib News 3:25 F '16 100w

"The form and presentation of the subject and its analytic treatment give the book distinct value as a text."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p11 F '16 130w
 (Reprinted from Engineering & Contracting 45:73 Ja 19 '16)

Pittsburgh 21:196 Ap '16

St Louis 14:189 My '16 20w

USHER, ROLAND GREENE. Challenge of the future; a study in American foreign policy. *$1.75 (2c) Houghton 327.73 16-6214

The preparedness which the author advocates includes more than an increase in armaments. The causes of war, as he sees them, are economic and the American policy which he advocates as the first essential to national defense must take account of our economic position and its disabilities. "In last analysis, preparedness means the deliberate formulation of an American foreign policy, embracing on the one hand a careful definition of American interests and extending on the other to the ideals and aims of American democracy." These things once determined, the organized force necessary, as a last resort, for their maintenance must be provided. But other measures take precedence over force, first of them a European alliance, preferably with Great Britain. Other measures necessitated by our economic position are the abandonment of the Atlantic to Great Britain, of the Pacific to Japan and the partial renunciation of the Monroe doctrine.

"Prof. Usher will make many Americans angry, but it must be confessed that he will also make them think. . . . Few writers will accept the writer's premises or conclusions, but they will find his chapters an excellent mental stimulant and a clarifier of their own views and of their reasons for holding them."

+ — Advocate of Peace p154 My '16 220w

"His conclusions regarding a wise policy, though bound to provoke discussion, are well grounded in facts, ably and clearly set forth."

+ A L A Bkl 12:361 My '16

"He possesses a brilliancy and lucidity of style which carries the reader forward with great ease and rapidity. Every striking idea or form of expression that comes to the author is set down in utter disregard of its conflict with other ideas and statements already set forth. The task of reconciling them would involve the ruthless sacrifice of high-sounding phrases and glittering generalities, and such a sacrifice the author is apparently incapable of making. To what he calls 'academic accuracy' he has not thought it worth while to make any concessions." J. H. Latané

— Am Pol Sci R 10:373 My '16 500w

"Startling views set forth with sufficient clearness and force to provoke heated discussion."

Cleveland p62 My '16 90w

Ind 86:26 Ap 3 '16 320w

— Lit D 52:1285 My 6 '16 270w

"Little in the book seems real. It is a sort of huge mental vacuum, in which the reader, gasping for breath, perceives the author also almost exhausted by his efforts to live in the inane. The 'Challenge of the future' is a mass of assumptions, of unverified hypotheses, of undefined terms."

— Nation 102:390 Ap 6 '16 370w

"Doctrine such as this will be hard to many persons, but it is expounded in no jingoistic or partisan spirit. Dr. Usher backs his assertions with argument and writes with studied consideration. He has undoubtedly a viewpoint different from the average writer on the international relations of this country, but his book will be read with care by any thoughtful man and be reckoned a notable addition to the literature of the subject."

+ N Y Times 21:84 Mr 12 '16 1050w

"Mr. Wilson is perhaps a representative American in still accepting the tradition of isolation. He has not appreciated the wisdom of President McKinley's announcement fifteen years ago, that the period of isolation was over. It is the great merit of Professor Usher's book that it tears this inherited superstition to tatters."

+ N Y Tribune p8 Mr 18 '16 2400w

"Whatever else may be said about Professor Usher's new volume, there can be no question that it is extremely stimulating. Whether we agree with him or not, it helps to crystallize our opinions and beliefs. . . . The difficulty with Professor Usher is simply this: He takes too literally the word 'stewardship'; he thinks too much in terms of prosperity, and population and economic growth. As a matter of fact, a first-class nation worthy of the name is not a guaranty and trust company for future generations; there are times when it stands rather in the position of the head of a proud old family, ready to sacrifice the last penny of the estate to maintain an ideal or hand down an unsullied name." F: T. Cooper

+ — Pub W 89:1035 Mr 18 '16 950w

R of Rs 53:501 Ap '16 50w

+ St Louis 14:182 My '16 40w

Spec 117:316 S 16 '16 920w

"Roland G. Usher's new book, 'The challenge of the future' touches upon a number of questions that are in the minds of Americans. Unhappily, little can be said in praise of his treatment of these questions. He is a very facile writer, but his view of issues is based upon a speculative vision of political conditions that is characterized by no very firm grasp of underlying facts."

— Springfield Republican p15 Mr 20 '16 400w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p335 J1 13 '16 220w

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p422 S 7 '16 2000w

"Interesting but not important."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:183 Ap '16 120w

UTTER, ROBERT PALFREY. Every-day words and their uses; a guide to correct diction. $1.25 Harper 425 16-21117

"This book explains the meaning and use of a thousand or more every-day words and expressions which are frequently misused or misunderstood." (Introd.) In part 1, which serves as a brief introduction, the author discusses Guiding principles in the use of words. Part 2, which composes the main body of the book, gives in alphabetical arrangement the list of "every-day words." Part 3 is a glossary of grammatical and other terms used. The author is associate professor of English in Amherst college and has published an earlier book, "A guide to good English."

+ A L A Bkl 13:202 F '17

Ind 88:553 D 25 '16 30w

"The average man needs a book of this sort constantly at hand. The special merits of this one are good sense and simplicity."

+ Nation 103:567 D 14 '16 80w

Pittsburgh 21:593 D '16

Pratt p17 Ja '17

Public Libraries 22:37 Ja '17 200w

St Louis 15:11 Ja '17 10w

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 30 '17 400w

V

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY. Quinneys'. $1 Doran 822 A16-718

A four-act play made from the author's novel of the same name. "Quinneys" is the name of a curio shop and Joe Quinney is the dealer who goes in for "quality" in the articles he handles, and who also prefers, as his wife says, "things to persons." The incidents of the play are taken from the later part of the book, centering about the love affair of Posy, Quinney's daughter.

A L A Bkl 12:419 Je '16

"Probably it owes its success in about equal parts to the novel and attractive setting, to the character of Quinney, and to the pretty and not altogether unreal love story. The changes from novel to play might be made the text for a little disquisition on the limitations which the taste of the theatre-going public imposes on the playwright." H. E. Woodbridge

+ Dial 60:469 My 11 '16 520w

"It is a gently-tinted water-color cartoon of a Yorkshire family in London, and repays reading nearly as well as it does observation on the stage."

+ Springf'd Republican p15 Ap 28 '16 160w

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY. Triumph of Tim. $1.40 (1c) Doran 16-12752

This is one of those novels that follow the long years of a man's life from boyhood to maturity. Tim White's boyhood is spent in an English vicarage. He was too big for Little Pennington and it was inevitable that he should leave it. The specific cause of his leaving is Ivy Jellicoe, one of those morally irresponsible creatures for whom science has a special classification. A voyage around the Horn takes the boy to San Francisco. Here he spends ten years, making a fortune and losing it, marrying and losing, after a few years of happiness, his wife and child. Paris, where he indulges for a time in the pursuit of arts and letters, is the scene of the next period of his career. Finally, having written one great novel, the story of his own wanderings, he comes back to Little Pennington to take up life with his father and his son, this child of his early indiscretion having long since been given a home in the vicarage.

"There is a great deal of vivid description here and of sincere purpose, but I cannot help feeling that Mr. Vachell has written several books which have attempted less and achieved decidedly more. There is strain and effort about the book somewhere, and perhaps it is enough to say that our belief in Tim grows feeblér rather than stronger, the more we hear about him." H. W. Boynton

+ — Bookm 44:261 N '16 450w

"Nowhere in 'The triumph of Tim' does Mr. Vachell fail to view life whole and to view it sanely. In it he has written an extraordinarily believable story of a young man's conflict with life." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 4 '16 1400w

+ Dial 61:589 D 28 '16 160w

+ Ind 88:234 N 6 '16 120w

+ Lit D 53:1479 D 2 '16 160w

"As artistic as 'Quinneys,' 'The triumph of Tim' is in every way a bigger book than that delightful tale of an antique shop. It represents the best and most mature work of a writer who has grown steadily and noticeably in literary stature since the publication of his early novels."

+ N Y Times 21:449 O 22 '16 1000w

"Frankly, this is not a story to be taken seriously. It is an entertainment, with a variety of well-staged scenes."

+ Sat R 121:565 Je 10 '16 820w

"The prevailing quality is a somewhat hectic sentiment. Whether good, bad, or indifferent, the characters are all of them inclined to be melodramatic. . . . A course of Trollope, or even of George Gissing may be recommended as an excellent after-cure to those who find the diet provided in 'The triumph of Tim' too rich for their blood."

— + Spec 116:635 My 20 '16 830w

+ — Springfield Republican p13 N 12 '16 430w

"The adventures are good fun, the sentimentalism is in a vein long sanctified by tradition; but when it comes to showing how men and women feel and to moralizing—Mr. Vachell's timid little peeps beyond the trite—then one feels that he is a little too glib and altogether too commonplace. The one thing that makes this tolerable is that Mr. Vachell is himself deceived by his own faculty."

— + The Times [London] Lit Sup p224 My 11 '16 700w

VAIZEY, JESSIE (BELL) (MRS. GEORGE DE HORNE VAIZEY) (JESSIE MANSENGH). College girl. il $1.25 (1½c) Putnam A16-1548

American girls will enjoy this story of jolly, wholesome English school life. There are three Garnett girls, Clemence, Darsie, and Lavender, but this is Darsie's story. It is Darsie who is chosen by Aunt Maria as a companion for the summer when that austere and somewhat awesome lady comes to pay a visit of appraisal. So while her sisters and their friends, the Vernons, go off for a merry holiday at the seashore, Darsie is left behind to accompany Aunt Maria to her stately home. But the happy outcome of that summer for Darsie is the prospect of four years at Newnham college. The college experiences of Darsie and her chum, "plain Hannah" Vernon, take up the second part of the book.

VAIZEY, JESSIE—Cont.

- "Good mediocrity." G. I. Colbron
- + — Bookm 44:409 D '16 30w
- + N Y Times 21:456 O 29 '16 50w
- + Springfield Republican p15 D 17 '16 60w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 60w

VAN DOREN, MARK. Henry David Thoreau; a critical study. *$1.25 (4c) Houghton 16-18495

A study of Thoreau based almost wholly on the "Journals." It throws new light on his puzzling and ever interesting personality, and confutes some of the earlier conclusions concerning him, particularly those of Stevenson. The material of the book is arranged under the headings: The solitary; Friendship; Nature; Expansion; The specific; Reading; Position. There is a bibliographical note at the end.

Cleveland p138 N '16 30w

"To put into words this essential quality is only partially possible. So far as it could be done, it has been well done by this latest interpreter of an extremely baffling personality."

+ Dial 61:357 N 2 '16 280w

"For solid, demolishing criticism of Thoreau, one will look in vain for anything more effective than the present volume. . . . Yet in the end one cannot help wondering why Thoreau should have so impressive a following if he is not more deserving of esteem than Mr. Van Doren conceives him."

— + Nation 103:614 D 28 '16 360w

N Y Br Lib News 3:151 O '16

"A remarkable, well-written book, a treasure for students, and of fresh and universal interest to the general reader."

+ R of Rs 54:365 N '16 60w

VAN DRESSER, JASMINE STONE. Gibby of Clamshell alley. il *$1.35 (1c) Dodd 16-6722

Clamshell alley is the street along the waterfront of a New England fishing village. Here Gibby, a little wail who hasn't even a name of his own, having borrowed the one he uses, Gibson Emory, from a ship, lives in the inhospitable home of Burly McGregor. Later he finds a happier home with Granny, who is as much alone in the world as he is. Granny has a wholesome horror of the poorhouse and Gibby exerts himself to keep her from the fate she dreads. After her death he learns that she was really his granny, and he finds another grandparent too and is given a real home and a real name.

"Gibby is a real boy though the dialect in which the story is written will become tiresome to some readers."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:386 My '16

"It is a book that ought to prove thrilling to all boys and it will do them good as well as fascinate them." P. G. Hubert, Jr.

+ Bookm 43:539 J1 '16 180w

"The real interest of the story centers in the life of the people of the little New England coast town, and in the fortunes of Gibby. The author is inclined toward the sentimental, but the boy is nevertheless a genuine boy, in whom every lover of youth will rejoice."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 210w

"Our young hero goes through wonderful experiences, thrilling vicissitudes, and exciting adventures which are almost incredible. Gibby is a unique character bound to become popular."

+ Lit D 52:1105 Ap 15 '16 220w

"The illustrations by William Van Dresser are unusually appropriate and attractive."

+ — Nation 103:14 J1 6 '16 320w

"The fact that Mr. Van Dresser's older son was the model for his Gibby adds interest to the admirable illustrations, of which the group on the 'jacket' is such a speaking assemblage of the characters of the story that one regrets its position upon anything so ephemeral as a 'scrap of paper.' Each face is eloquent of its personality as portrayed by the author."

+ — N Y Times 21:199 My 7 '16 250w

+ R of Rs 53:759 Je '16 120w

"The story is told in the illiterate vernacular of the boy hero, which is one of its most agreeable qualities. Gibby and his friends are always boys. They do not evince undue precociousness or accomplish impossibilities."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 200w

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Mountain; renewed studies in impressions and appearances. il *$1.25 (2½c) Scribner 551.4 16-9162

A dozen chapters devoted to impressions of the mountains in their many aspects. The author says, "My interest is with the beauty of the mountains rather than their science, their history, or their conquest by alpinists. I have used science herein by way of illustrating the bases of form and color and used history and narrative merely as a setting for the picture." He writes chiefly of the Rockies, but draws illustrations from the Alps, the Carpathians, the Apennines, and other ranges. The first chapter describes the approach to the mountains across the Dacotahs in the seventies, before the prairies were broken. Other chapters are devoted to Mountain-making, Foot-hills and rock bases, The timber-line, The uplands, Mountain waters, Glaciers and avalanches, The snow-line, etc.

+ A L A Bkl 12:462 J1 '16

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:546 J1 '16 300w

+ Boston Transcript p7 My 20 '16 400w

+ Dial 60:555 Je 8 '16 480w

+ Ind 86:402 Je 5 '16 50w

"Would that he had submitted his text to some up-to-date geological friend! If one can skip the science—which is quite possible—and read the art, one will find 'The mountain' a most rewarding book."

+ — Lit D 53:622 S 9 '16 270w

"This emotional inadequacy aside, the book is a welcome supplement and correction of Ruskin's 'Modern painters' volume on 'Mountain beauty.' . . . It brings us close to the mountain. And yet one remains, at the last page, unsatisfied. The mystery inherent in the beauty and grandeur remains as dark as ever. Only a seer (Ruskin, for one, was something of a seer in these matters) could illuminate that mystery, make us feel that we are not shut out absolutely from the holy of holies. And Professor Van Dyke, with all his keen perceptiveness, is no seer."

+ — Nation 103:15 J1 6 '16 450w

"Both the esthetic and the scientific aspects of the subject are treated with a degree of literary charm quite unusual in technical descriptions. In form and method the book is a fitting sequel to 'The desert.'"

+ R of Rs 53:631 My '16 100w

Springf'd Republican p13 My 28 '16 150w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p473 O 5 '16 960w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:320 J1 '16 60w

VAN SCHAICK, GEORGE GRAY. Girl at Big Loon post. il *$1.35 (2c) Small 16-18023

That mixed marriages are not always unhappy and that the white man who marries an Indian maid is not always faithless are points brought out in this story of the far north. When Lawrence Loveland, the Hudson Bay company's assistant agent at Big Loon, starts out on a long journey into unknown country, he leaves his wife, Ameou, behind him with regret, but with no fears for her safety. But there was ground for fear, had he but known it, for his chief, Boyce Curran, who has always coveted the beautiful Indian woman, now has an added reason for wishing Loveland out of the way, having learned of a rich inheritance that is coming to him from England. The story follows the outwitting of his villainous plans.

A L A Bkl 13:127 D '16

"An exceedingly thrilling tale."

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '16 450w

+ Ind 88:76 O 9 '16 50w

"Those who care for stories of wilderness life will find the book an interesting and well-told tale, having much knowledge and appreciation, though little of the poetry and subtle charm, of the wilderness."

+ N Y Times 21:356 S 10 '16 570w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 90w

VAN VORST, MARIE. War letters of an American woman. il *$1.50 (2c) Lane 940.91 16-6225

Miss Van Vorst was in Paris when war was declared. She crossed to London and went into training for Red cross service. After passing her examinations she returned to Paris, joined the American ambulance and went on active duty. After a few months of service she came to America in the interests of the ambulance work, and again returned to France. Her letters written to her family and friends during these experiences are presented in this book. The letters are vivid, interesting, and full of deep feelings.

"More than most writers she has been able to give us a vivid picture of the actual way in which life has been going on in Paris."

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 3 '16 500w

+ Ind 87:316 Ag 28 '16 30w

"It may be doubted if the war inspires another volume more suggestive, more personal, and more appealing."

+ Lit D 52:1855 Je 24 '16 190w

"Her volume, in the main, is both interesting and valuable because of the light of personal knowledge and experience it throws upon certain phases of the war about which little has been written and because of the intimate touch with which these are narrated."

+ N Y Times 21:108 Mr 26 '16 530w

R of Rs 53:627 My '16 80w

"The wild rumors afloat, the fantastic stories of atrocities and cruelties, together with the nervous anticipation of the people behind the front, are vividly reproduced in the letters."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ap 3 '16 420w

"As a whole the book is autobiography, containing much that is irrelevant and of little interest to a reader who wants 'a book on the war.' The sprightly, nervous style is familiar to those who know the author's novels."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:186 Ap '16 90w

VARNUM, WILLIAM HARRISON. Industrial arts design; a textbook of practical methods for students, teachers, and craftsmen. (Vocational education ser.) il *$1.50 Scott 745 16-14922

"Mr. William H. Varnum, assistant professor of drawing and design, University of Wisconsin, has rendered manual arts teachers a great service by gathering together, classifying, and sifting current information on the theory and practice of making things in clay, wood, and metal. The net result is presented in this volume. . . . Marginal captions, chapter summaries and review questions, together with a complete index help to make this an indispensable addition to the working library of any teacher of the arts."—School Arts Magazine

+ A L A Bkl 13:160 Ja '17

N Y Br Lib News 3:188 D '16

St Louis 15:16 Ja '17

"There is no waste matter in text, nor amongst the 500 illustrations. It is all clear and graphic."

+ School Arts Magazine 16:168 D '16 70w

VASARI, GIORGIO. Lives of the most eminent painters, sculptors and architects. 10v v 4-10 il ea *$7 Macmillan 759.5 12-24295

This ten volume edition of Vasari's lives, the publication of which was begun in 1913, is now complete. "The work is projected under the auspices of the Medici society, the translation by Mr. De Vere is entirely new, and the volumes are liberally illustrated with five hundred pictures both in color and in monochrome. No attempt is made to cumber them with introductory or explanatory matter. Everything included is Vasari's own, with the exception of a prefatory note to the first volume covering less than two pages. In his translation Mr. De Vere has sought to retain the structure of Vasari's sentences, and to give as literal an English interpretation of his meaning as possible." (Boston Transcript)

+ Ath 1913,2:565 N 15 100w (Review of v 5)

+ Ath 1914,2:185 Ag 8 420w (Review of v 7)

"From a more popular standpoint the great feature of this edition is the profusion of its illustrations, and particularly the number of the plates in colour. Colour-printing, it can not too frequently be insisted upon, is still in its infancy, and it is too much to expect in every colour reproduction the subtlety and finesse of the original; but the colour-prints in this series certainly maintain a high level of excellence, and it would be impossible to give them higher praise than to say that they are worthy of the publisher to the Medici society."

+ Ath 1915,1:241 Mr 13 450w (Review of v 8)

"Good as the plates in monochrome are—and we could not wish for better—we feel how much is lost with Titian when we lose his colour. And that colour it is beyond the power of contemporary science to give in facsimile."

+ Ath 1915,2:233 O 2 620w (Review of v 9)

"Of Vasari the chronicler and critic we have ample evidence through every one of the individual records in these ten volumes. Prefixed thereto he wrote an essay on technique, but it is not included in this edition because it has no immediate connection with the lives themselves, and because Miss MacLehose's admirable translation is easily available." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p11 Ap 22 '16 1150w (Review of v 1-10)

"A special feature of the fifth volume of this new edition of Vasari's 'Lives,' which is as admirably translated as its predecessors, is the inclusion amongst the illustrations of a number of fine sculptures and paintings that are little known out of Italy. The chief interest of the sixth volume centres in the account of the early engravers of prints."

+ Int Studio 52:169 Ap '14 230w (Review of v 5 and 6)

"An undertaking which will earn the appreciation of all students of the history of Italian art."

+ Int Studio 57:146 D '15 150w (Review of v 7-9)

+ Int Studio 58:283 Je '16 110w (Review of v 10)

"There is, save the indexes, no apparatus of any sort. One may sail by Vasari's most picturesquely wide misstatements without the discomfort of a danger-signal. The long preface on technique, being accessible in Prof. Baldwin Brown's admirable edition, is omitted. Otherwise the text is given complete, down to the smallest academician. All this is as it should be. Where a fine connoisseurship does come into this volume is in the illustrations. For one who knows his galleries, a re-reading of Vasari in the light of these illustrations would be the equivalent of an æsthetic grand tour under the most delightful personal conduct."

+ Nation 102:526 My 11 '16 830w (Review of v 1-10)

"No such translation of Vasari as Mr. de Vere's exists; both in completeness and technique his is excellent."

+ Sat R 117:118 Je 24 '14 100w (Review of v 5 and 6)

"In conclusion, we can only say that it is impossible not to be astonished at the inclusion in so fine and scholarly a work of the really terrible colour reproductions of some of the pictures. There is one, for instance, of the 'Sacred and profane love' of Titian which is revolting, while the caricature of the Borghese 'Education of Cupid' is even worse. A book like this should be free from such outrages."

VASARI, GIORGIO—Continued

+ Spec 117:553 N 4 '16 1050w (Review of v 1-10)

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p232 My 18 '16 320w (Review of v 10)

VASSAR, MATTHEW. Autobiography and letters of Matthew Vassar. il $2 Oxford 16-11280

"A volume meant to serve as a memorial of the man who established the great institution at Poughkeepsie which has done so much for the higher education of women. The volume contains the story of the origin and founding of Vassar college as it is told by Mr. Vassar in his brief autobiography, his diary, and his letters, which the editor, Elizabeth Hazelton Haight, wisely gives us just as they come written, making no corrections in the spelling and grammar of the manuscripts. 'Matthew Vassar,' the editor remarks, 'presents the curious paradox of an uneducated business man who is a pioneer in education. His own letters show the keenness of his mind, and the originality with which he turned his practical common sense upon educational problems. Irregularities in spelling can hardly belittle his memory.'"—N Y Times

+ Educ R 52:423 N '16 30w

+ Nation 104:110 Ja 25 '17 500w

+ N Y Times 21:312 Ag 6 '16 130w

"A biographical volume of quaint interest."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 580w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p526 N 2 '16 130w

VASSAR COLLEGE. Fiftieth anniversary of the opening of Vassar college, October 10 to 13, 1915. il $1.50 (2c) Vassar college, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. 376.8 16-13061

This is the official record of the celebration which took place last spring in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Vassar college and of the inauguration of Henry Noble MacCracken as president. The volume contains the anniversary sermon by William Herbert Perry Faunce, the anniversary addresses by President Emeritus James Monroe Taylor, Ellen Churchill Semple, Julia C. Lathrop, and others, the inaugural addresses, accounts of the pageant of Athena and of other features of the celebration, a complete program of the celebration, lists of delegates, etc. The illustrations are from drawings.

"Will interest most immediately those who are already friends of the college; it should also win for the college some new friends, for fully half of it is devoted to speeches which make excellent reading, full of reminiscence, as is fitting, earnest, and aspiring, as one would have it, yet with the saving humor of Professor Kittredge, and of others."

+ Nation 103:284 S 21 '16 140w

Springfield Republican p17 Je 11 '16 230w

VAUGHAN, HENRY (THE SILURIST, pseud.). Works; ed. by Leonard C. Martin. 2v $5.75 Oxford 821 16-13364

"No complete uniform edition of Vaughan's works has been published hitherto, with the exception of Grosart's, which, as Mr. Martin reminds us, was 'in no sense trustworthy.' . . . Mr. Martin's aim, besides the provision of a sound text, has been to preserve the essential features of the original editions, nothing being discarded except a few old forms of type, and such printers' errors as wrong fonts or turned letters. Seventeenth-century variants in the text are recorded in foot-notes, as well as the more important modern readings and conjectures."—Ath

"Will be of the greatest value to students of literature. The treatment of the text as a whole inspires a conviction of its complete trustworthiness. Mr. Martin adds a few pages of concise, but valuable notes, devoted for the most part to the citation of parallel passages."

+ Ath 1915,1:521 Je 12 1250w

+ Nation 102:247 Mr 2 '16 4900w

"The translations have many amplifications by Vaughan, which are all carefully marked by the editor of this edition. We give, then, a very hearty welcome to Mr. Martin's book. The text is for the first time set out with the careful collation due to a classic author; the notes are not numerous, but they are for the greater part original, and imply much labour of research, and the printing is in the best manner of the Oxford press."

+ Spec 115:543 O 23 '15 1100w

VELIMIROVIC, NICOLAI. Serbia in light and darkness; with preface by the Archbishop of Canterbury. il $1.20 Longmans #49.7 16-16682

"Through the Serbian priest, Father Nicholai, Serbia speaks, very simply, to the English world. She speaks, in this volume, primarily to England. For the greater part of the book is made up of lectures delivered by Father Nicholai in England, expressing the gratitude, the appeal, the protest, the friendship of Serbia to her ally. But in voicing these, Father Nicholai offers one word-picture after another of Serbian life, tales of Serbian history, the expression of Serbian pride and love and hatred and patriotism."—N Y Times

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 20 '16 250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:140 S '16

"In its very simplicity his book flames out for us with the intensity of all that he feels. . . . Yet, as a book, this is no record of war-time horrors, no harrowing pictures of devastation, no recital of atrocities. The greater part of the volume is taken up with a picture of Serbia at peace. . . . An unusual book, a rarely sympathetic addition to the great 'war library.'"

+ N Y Times 21:376 S 24 '16 1050w

+ Spec 117:217 Ag 19 '16 200w

VERHAEREN, ÉMILE. Cloister; tr. by Osman Edwards. (New poetry ser.) 75c Houghton 842 15-19841

A play in four acts, written partly in rhymed verse, partly in prose. The scene is a monastery ruled over by an autocratic stern-willed old prior who, recognizing the approaching end of his long reign, is about to choose a successor. His choice is Balthazar, a brilliant, passionate man, possessed of the qualities of leadership. But Balthazar deems himself unworthy. The past crime which the prior assures him has been expiated weighs on his mind. Influenced by a brother monk, Mark, he makes confession of his guilt. The prior, still resolved that Balthazar shall succeed him, decrees that the confession shall be kept secret within the cloister, but the guilty monk, resolved on full expiation, flings his story abroad to the world and the prior, unable to forgive a disgrace brought on the cloister's good name casts him out and appoints another in his stead.

"In making this notably capable and appreciative translation of Émile Verhaeren's remarkable play 'The cloister,' Mr. Osman Edwards . . . has succeeded in reflecting not only its keenness of spiritual and intellectual analysis and remarkable—in view of the comparative lack of external action—dramatic interest, but, in a considerable measure its poetic beauty and imagination. First published in 1900 this tragedy long ago achieved an international reputation. Here is a very great drama, logical, realistic, imaginative, eloquent, enthralling." J. R. Towse

+ Nation 102:262 Mr 2 '16 900w

VERHAEREN, ÉMILE. Sunlit hours; tr. by C. R. Murphy. $1 Lane 841 16-24600

A book of love songs, one to be added to the small but distinguished group of poems that celebrate wedded love. And the background for the poems, a garden, is no less beautiful than their sentiment.

+ Dial 62:73 Ja 25 '17 160w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"The poems of this collection were written to his wife. They are in delicacy and spiritual interpretation of romantic love equal to the greatest English love poetry ever written."

+ R of Rs 55:96 Ja '17 450w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. A-B-C of automobile driving. (Harper's A-B-C ser.) il *50c (2c) Harper 629.2 16-10497

"The object of this book is twofold: first, to teach beginners how to manage an automobile; and second, to show those who know how to operate a car the proper way to drive in order to minimize the danger of accidents. . . . It is not intended as a treatise on the mechanics of the automobile nor as a guide for those who desire to repair, adjust or overhaul the motor or the car." (Foreword) Explicit directions with diagrams are given to the beginner in the chapters Mastering the car, First steps, Learning to drive. The discussions of driving in traffic, skidding, speed, etc., are intended for the second class of readers. Chapters on Obeying the law and Getting out of difficulties complete the information which when followed should result in "Safety first."

"No index."

+ A L A Bkl 13:69 N '16

+ Cleveland p92 Jl '16 30w

"The chapter on Getting out of difficulties is packed with ingenious first-aid suggestions, and the introductory talk on Safety first ought to be 'required reading' for every licensed operator."

+ Ind 86:404 Je 5 '16 50w

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p3 My '16 60w

+ Quar List New Tech Bks Ja '17 20w

"It would be desirable to have every driver pass an examination on the contents of this book before receiving a license. There is more in it than some chauffeurs know."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 19 '16 140w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Book of the motor boat. il *$1 Appleton 797 16-5596

"The author has had much practical experience with many kinds of motor boats, of every size and type, and he writes from a personal knowledge of the subject. With this book for a guide the amateur is enabled to undertake to manage his boat in all weathers and under all conditions. There are additional chapters on short cuts and handy hints to repairs, simple navigation, safety appliances, simple explanations of motors and the way they operate and a discussion of the parts of the boats, their names and purposes."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 12:463 Jl '16

"All of it is in the highly readable and entertaining style of Mr. Verrill, which enables him to give out a wide variety of facts without allowing his text ever to become dry."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ap 1 '16 220w

+ Cleveland p151 D '16 30w

"Practical. Has a well-arranged chapter on motor troubles and their remedies."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p20 My '16 12w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Book of the sailboat. il *$1 Appleton 797 16-5597

"Young skippers could hardly do a wiser thing before their summer of sailing begins than to master the information offered them in Mr. Verrill's 'The book of the sailboat.' From a short history of boats the writer proceeds to a description of various types of sailing craft and their suitability to different waters. The various parts of boats are described in detail and the veriest landlubber ought to understand the many rigs after a careful reading of this informing volume."—Boston Transcript

"The chapter on 'Simple navigation' with its list of the rules of the road at sea, of lights, beacons and signals, is one of general interest as are those on knots, fully illustrated and the list of nautical terms and their meanings."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Jl 5 '16 150w

N Y P L New Tech Bks p21 My '16 50w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Golden city. *$1.25 (3c) Duffield 16-17072

A tale of adventure in unknown Guiana. Frank Ellis, an American boy who has accompanied his father on a business trip to Georgetown, is allowed to carry his explorations of British Guiana further in company with a mining engineer. Their journey takes them up the Essequibo river into what is said to be unexplored country. For the first part of the trip they meet with the quieter sort of adventures that might fall to the lot of any one in the tropical forests, but as they enter the interior their experiences are more thrilling. They escape from a tribe of cannibals and discover an ancient city, rich in gold.

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 44:410 D '16 120w

"The first part of the book comes near in spots to prosiness. . . . It is almost too informative. But the wild excitements of the second half of the volume very quickly tip the scale. The story is written in a 'straightaway' narrative style, lucid, unaffected, without distinction to be sure, but interestingly and well."

+ N Y Times 21:395 O 1 '16 270w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 9 '16 150w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Jungle chums. il *$1.35 (3c) Holt 16-16934

A story of adventure for boys. Eric Marvin is taken by his father on a business trip to British Guiana. While Mr. Marvin is engaged in straightening out the affairs of a business concern which a dishonest agent has sadly tangled up, Eric is left free to explore the country in company with Hermanas, an Indian boy of his own age. Eric is kidnapped by Indians in the employ of his father's enemy, the dishonest agent, and carried into the interior. After a week or more of strange adventures he is rescued by the faithful Hermanas.

"This book is perhaps the most entertaining Mr. Verrill has yet produced."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 17 '16 190w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Marooned in the forest. il *$1.25 (2½c) Harper 799 16-11583

The story of a primitive struggle for life in the forests of the far north. Lost in the heart of the great woods without food, fire, weapons or compass, a youth of ingenuity and courage fights for his life amidst conditions as primitive as any cave dweller ever faced. He snares game by means of rude traps and dead-falls; he hunts bears and deer with the arrow heads he chipped from quartz as any Indian might have done; and he fashions clothing from the skins of animals. Boys who delight in camp life will find this hero's experiences full of valuable suggestions.

+ A L A Bkl 13:41 O '16

"The story is far more interesting and exciting than most of those which describe life in the open."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 320w

"An impossible tale, but it gives an amount of miscellaneous information most attractive to any boy or girl who loves adventure and the woods."

+ Ind 86:403 Je 5 '16 50w

+ N Y Times 21:314 Ag 13 '16 270w

+ R of Rs 54:122 Jl '16 20w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 27 '16 190w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Ocean and its mysteries. il *$1.25 (4c) Duffield 551 16-5702

The author is the son of a distinguished zoologist and authority on marine fauna. He was fortunate as a boy in having unusual opportunities to become familiar with the life of the ocean, and he has attempted here to write for other boys such a book as he would have appreciated in his own youth, a simple, untechnical book, giving the facts and explaining some of the mysteries about the sea. Contents: The depths of the sea; Currents and streams; Derelicts and icebergs; Tides and waves; Safeguards of the sea; Life in the great depths; Life at and near the surface; The story the sea has told; The battle between sea and land; Human life under the sea.

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT—Continued

+ A L A Bkl 13:16 O '16

"Such men as Baird, Goode, Bean, Morse, Hyatt, Rathbun and his own father were his companions and instructors. The author is filled with enthusiasm for the story that the sea has left for scientists to read and interpret."

+ Boston Transcript p7 My 20 '16 250w

"A good book to take to the seashore, where it will answer many questions for grown-ups as well as youngsters."

+ Ind 86:403 Je 5 '16 30w

N Y Br Lib News 3:77 My '16

+ R of Rs 54:461 O '16 60w

St Louis 14:432 D '16 20w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Real story of the whaler; whaling, past and present. il *$2 (4½c) Appleton 639 16-5335

Of all the brave men who have followed the sea, none, in the opinion of the author, excelled in bravery and daring the Yankee whalemén. "To the Yankee whalers our country owes a debt of gratitude which can never be repaid," he says. He has written this book to give "a true and unvarnished idea of the whalemén's lives, their adventures and hardships, the means by which their quarry was sought and captured, their vessels and their voyages." There are chapters on: What we owe the whaler; Whales and their ways; How the whales are caught; Whaling ships and their crews; Outward bound; True stories of whaling; The log of the whalemán; Leisure hours; The rise and fall of whaling; The passing of the whaler.

"Much concerning the evolution of the industry is omitted, better treated by Tower, and little attention is paid to its economic and social significance in the development of New England. The book is in no sense a scientific study of the subject but it is written in popular style, without a bibliography, citations, or index. Nevertheless the author has used much original material of the kind which has to do with the actual processes of whaling and the life of the whaler. In this respect it is, in the opinion of the reviewer, one of the most interesting and best books yet written on the subject." M. W. Jernegan

+ Am Hist R 22:206 O '16 450w

+ A L A Bkl 12:363 My '16

"There are many pictures from original drawings and paintings reproduced in Mr. Verrill's book, which help to make it a valuable record." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 15 '16 650w

+ Ind 86:220 My 8 '16 60w

"The book is not written in a glowing or pictorial style. Its first object is to assemble all available facts of significance to the theme. On the other hand, it is keenly alive to the romantic or historic interest of those facts. The result is a volume in which you may learn, in brief compass, much about the history of American whaling, the technique of the trade or the craft, and notable exploits or adventures connected therewith."

+ Nation 102:623 Je 8 '16 870w

"Illustrated with admirable photographs and reproductions of significant pictures and prints, so that the book, interesting as it is, amounts to a popular monograph on the now almost extinct industry."

+ N Y Times 21:269 Jl 2 '16 500w

"The records of a bygone American industry have been ransacked by the author of this book, and the result is the thrilling narrative of old-time Yankee enterprise and daring."

+ R of Rs 53:500 Ap '16 40w

VICTOR, E. A., ed. Canada's future, what she offers after the war; a symposium of official opinion. il *$1.50 Macmillan 917.1 16-26014

"A collection of over fifty short papers on the resources, economics, industries and social life of Canada by leading Canadians—opening with a page on Canada's outlook by Sir George Foster. 'Canada's future within the empire' is discussed by Sir Sam Hughes. Two chapters and an introduction are contributed by the editor." The Times [London] Lit Sup

+ A L A Bkl 13:172 Ja '17

N Y Br Lib News 3:157 O '16

+ N Y Times 22:10 Ja 14 '17 750w

"Valuable for reference."

+ Ontario Library Review 1:45 S '16 60w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p442 S 14 '16 70w

VIERECK, GEORGE SYLVESTER. Songs of Armageddon and other poems. *$1 Kennerley 811 16-14274

Allegiance to Germany and the German cause is the keynote of the war verse in this little volume. The star of Frederick the Great and the God of Bismarck are invoked as guide and shield for the Kaiser—"For if thou fall, a world shall fall!" The second part, "The book of the dead," contains verses to Huerta—"No textbook pedant, but a man." The third division, "The book of Helen and Marguerite," is mainly made up of poems of the senses.

Boston Transcript p6 Jl 26 '16

—Ind 87:316 Ag 28 '16 30w

+ Lit D 52:1785 Je 17 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 Jl '16

"War poems—the most spirited expressions of the German point of view that have been made in English verse."

+ N Y Times 21:508 N 26 '16 30w

R of Rs 55:211 F '17 80w

VINOGRADOV, PAVEL GAVRILOVICH. Self government in Russia. *$1.25 Dutton 947 (Eng ed 16-12746)

A book of four chapters. "The first three chapters are historical, and show the conflicting influences of the bureaucracy, which tends to centralize all government, and of the vast size of Russia, which makes it natural that localities should live their own lives and settle their own affairs. The third chapter, dealing with education, is full of encouragement, though the war is acting as a severe check and the struggles between the Holy Synod and the secular influences remind us of educational strife elsewhere. The fourth chapter is more topical, and gives us some idea of the single-minded determination of the whole people to defeat its enemies; in particular, it deals with the spontaneous unions of the zemstvos and municipalities formed to deal with the sick and wounded and to do other war work." (Spec)

+ Ind 88:205 O 30 '16 100w

"The pages are quiet, thoughtful, and judicious; there is no propaganda, and great events fall one by one into their right places in the perspective of a long and vast development."

+ Sat R 121:185 F 19 '16 1200w

+ Spec 116:443 Ap 1 '16 230w

"Prof. Vinogradoff's English style is somewhat matter-of-fact, but his knowledge and his liberal mind make him a useful guide to any subject of jurisprudence or political history which he seeks to illuminate."

+ Springfield Republican p8 S 14 '16 560w

VISSCHER, CHARLES DE. Belgium's case; a juridical enquiry. *$1 (3½c) Doran 940.91 17-1488

The author is professor of law in the University of Ghent and his book has been translated from the French by E. F. Jourdain, principal of St. Hugh's college, Oxford, and published with a preface by J. van den Heuvel, Minister of state, and Belgian minister to the Holy See. It is an attempt to meet and refute all the arguments of Germans justifying their invasion of Belgium and the conduct of their campaign on Belgian soil.

"To the student of international law this little volume must prove illuminating. Its close adherence to the judicial point of view, its careful analysis, step by step, of the questions involved—they can hardly be called at issue, in the light of known facts—its final and complete exposure of the shifting of the German position as dictated by military expediency, can hardly [fail] to impress the American reader who views the deeper aspects of the present European struggle with more than a passing interest." G. H. S.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '17 650w

VIZETELLY, ERNEST ALFRED. In seven lands. il *$4 (4c) Duffield 914
(Eng ed 16-22255)

This is the third volume of the author's reminiscences, following "My days of adventure" and "My adventures in the commune." Nearly one-half of the book is given up to Germany, which was visited just after the Franco-Prussian war. The remaining "lands" are Austria, Hungary, Bohemia, Spain, Portugal and Italy.

"Mr. Vizetelly has the advantage of a highly retentive memory and of a narrative style, which lends a compelling charm to what he has to tell." H. S. K.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '16 520w

"The illustrations are chiefly from 'The Illustrated London News,' and greatly help to take us back to the times under consideration."

Dial 61:476 N 30 '16 200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:125 Ag '16

+ Spec 117:448 O 14 '16 130w

W

WADDELL, JOHN ALEXANDER LOW. Bridge engineering. 2v il *$10 Wiley 624
16-14846

"The aim of the book is stated in the preface as follows: 'In writing this book it has been the author's aim to give to his readers, concerning every branch of bridge work, all the information he has been able to accumulate during a practice of forty years. Nothing of any value has been omitted, except such matter as can readily be obtained from other books.' . . . The glossary of terms covers 223 pages, the index 60 pages. The first volume is the more technical; the second, the more general of the two. While the work is not primarily concerned with the development of formulas, it contains many such, especially for use in the design of reinforced-concrete bridges. . . . In relation to its field of usefulness the author states: 'Primarily the book should prove useful to all engineers who are engaged either directly or indirectly in the designing and building of bridges, and especially to the younger ones.'"

Engin Rec

A L A Bkl 13:157 Ja '17

"Notwithstanding the idiosyncrasies that it has seemed needful and proper to point out, too much credit and praise cannot be given the author. . . . Financial profit there will be none. The compensation to the author will be the satisfaction of having contributed his share to the progress of bridge engineering, and a most valuable share it is." Gustav Lindenthal

+ Engin N 76:1174 D 21 '16 6000w

"It is the interesting, personal, almost autobiographical, narrative of a notable professional career. It holds the reader not solely because of the value of the subject matter, but because it is a very readable book, full of personal, often humorous, incidents and touches.

. . . Dr. Waddell certainly merits the thanks of all engineers." F. H. Constant

+ Engin Rec 74:417 S 30 '16 950w

N Y Br Lib News 3:141 S '16

"Of especial value are the diagrams of metal weights, quantities of masonry, cost of construction, and economic functions."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p10 N '16 170w

"The book makes for the highest class of bridge engineering. It seems likely to prove indispensable to most engineers, and it is certainly a veritable mine of information for all beginners."

+ Pittsburgh 21:499 N '16 140w (Reprinted from Canadian Engineer, 1916)

"In two beautifully printed volumes of over 1,000 pages each he unfolds the whole science and art of bridge construction as known to the experts of the twentieth century. 'Waddell on bridge engineering' is an encyclopædia, a whole library of bridge lore in itself."

+ R of Rs 54:459 O '16 190w

Reviewed by G. F. Swain

+ Science ns 45:66 Ja 19 '17 700w

WADE, FRANK BERTRAM. Diamonds: a study of the factors that govern their value. il *$1.25 (6c) Putnam 553.8
16-8720

A monograph intended primarily for those who buy and sell diamonds. "Some of the information contained in this volume is the common property of all who have given attention to the subject. Part of it is to be found already in print, in larger and more pretentious works. A modest portion of the material is the result of original study at first hand, especially such part as attempts to analyse various effects and to determine and explain their causes." (Foreword) Contents: Colour; Flaws; "Make"; Repairing and recutting; Mounting; Buying the engagement ring.

"His book is brief, clearly and cogently written, and offers itself as a handbook of practical value."

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 6 '16 170w

N Y Br Lib News 3:94 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:303 Jl 30 '16 70w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 23 '16 180w

WADE, MRS. MARY HAZELTON (BLANCHARD). Pilgrims of to-day. il *$1 (2c) Little 16-17669

The author has prepared biographical sketches of some of the more recent comers to America who in their various ways have enriched our national life. The men and women she has chosen are: John Muir, Jacob Riis, Mary Antin, Edward A. Steiner, Carl Schurz, Nathan Straus, and Joseph Pulitzer.

A L A Bkl 13:186 Ja '17

+ Springfield Republican p6 N 7 '16 280w

"WAGGER," pseud. Battery flashes. *$1 Dutton 940.91
(Eng ed War16-135)

"The author of this book is an Englishman, a gunner in the Royal field artillery. . . . The narrative is in the form of letters, a series dating from Aug. 13, 1914, to Feb. 2, 1916. The letters begin with military experiences right away, so 'Wagger' must have joined in the early days of the war. . . . The multitude of detail that goes to make up the life of an artilleryman on the firing line, little and great deeds of heroism, the horrors of gas effects, the scarcity of food, all find their place in this narrative, and the author relates his own part with a characteristic modesty. . . . There are some poems in the volume by the author of more than ordinary interest, coming, as they do, white hot from the very heart of the battlefield."—N Y Times

Boston Transcript p7 D 2 '16 270w

Ind 88:72 O 9 '16 80w

Lit D 53:904 O 7 '16 400w

N Y Br Lib News 3:120 Ag '16

"WAGGER," pseud.—Continued

"A soldier's story through and through."
+ N Y Times 21:364 S 17 '16 500w

R of Rs 54:460 O '16 20w

"A book of war sketches interesting chiefly for their intimacy."

+ Springfield Republican p13 S 24 '16 250w

WAGNER, FREDERICK HENRY. Coal and coke. il *$4 McGraw 662.6 16-6119

"This book gives a compilation of articles and reports of investigations published during recent years upon various subjects connected with the carbonization of coal. Under the heading Coal are treated the origin and varieties, the theory of spontaneous heating and combustion, the analysis and the storage of that material, together with the characteristics of coking and gas coals. Under Coke are included carbonization for the production of gas in horizontal, inclined and vertical retorts and chamber ovens and for that of coke in beehive and by-product ovens; the general principles of the gaseous combustion of solid fuel; the heat balance of carbonization in retorts; low-temperature carbonization; the utilization for producing steam of the heat still remaining in the flue gases when they leave the recuperators or regenerators; and the quenching, screening and loading of coke at by-product oven plants. The descriptive matter is plentifully illustrated by cuts and plates."—Engin N

A L A Bk1 12:413 Je '16

Cleveland p75 Je '16 30w

"The author seldom gives his own opinion, and some discrepancies and inaccuracies were noticed which show lack of careful reading of the matter used. One instance of this, which is apt to mislead the reader unfamiliar with the subject, credits the Koppers ovens in Vienna with a gas-making capacity nearly ten times too large. The book, however, by means of its full résumé of recent literature, gives a good general treatment of the subjects covered."

+ Engin N 75:943 My 13 '16 280w

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p6 My '16 120w

"Most valuable part of the book is that on coking practice, though the subject is treated from the standpoint of gas manufacture rather than that of production of metallurgical coke. Describes some apparatus now obsolete and some but little developed in America, but is in general a useful book."

+ Pittsburgh 21:293 Je '16 48w

"Largely a compilation from U. S. government documents and other sources."

+ Pratt p26 Jl '16 40w

St Louis 14:191 My '16

WALDRON, WILLIAM HENRY. Scouting and patrolling. il 25c U. S. infantry assn. 355 16-14656

"This little book has been prepared with the idea of placing before the regular soldier and the citizen soldier in readable form and in its logical sequence the information that may be of assistance in preparing him for the duties that may fall to his lot in time of war. . . . The first six chapters are devoted to the subjects that affect the training and methods of the individual scout. The seventh takes up the operations of a detachment of scouts called a patrol, and the remainder of the volume is designed to supply a text book covering the military subjects he will need to study to perfect himself as a scout."—Introd.

"The dozen chapters of the little book not only instruct the soldier thoroughly in the duties of reconnaissance but place at his disposal a valuable store of information as to military messages, signaling, map-making and reading, first aid and kindred subjects. The work is an authoritative text-book for the use of military students, but it will likewise be found most useful to Boy scouts or others interested in woodcraft."—V: Slayton

+ Cleveland p148 D '16 60w (Reprinted from the Cleveland Leader)

"The book is thoroughly practical and its arrangement is admirable."

+ N Y Times 21:446 O 22 '16 120w

WALDSTEIN, ABRAHAM SOLOMON. Evolution of modern Hebrew literature, 1850-1912. (Columbia univ. oriental studies) *$1.25 (3c) Columbia univ. press 892.4 16-7654

"Hebrew literature did not end with the close of the canon of the Old Testament," says the author, "but has continued its existence through all the devious paths of Jewish history down to our own time, always expressing the spirit, the influences, the material and spiritual condition of the Jewish people during the long ages of its struggle and suffering." He has chosen for study the period between the fifties of the last century and our own time and he is concerned mainly with belles-lettres. There is an introduction dealing with Post-Biblical Hebrew literature and The evolution of post-Biblical Hebrew.

Ath p542 N '16 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:88 Je '16

St Louis 14:400 N '16

"The difficulties of making a readable account of this subject have been ably overcome by Dr. Waldstein, and the book is a valuable critical study."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ag 25 '16 600w

WALDSTEIN, SIR CHARLES. Aristodemocracy, from the great war back to Moses, Christ, and Plato. *10s 6d John Murray, London 327 (Eng ed 16-13762)

"Sir Charles deprecates pacifist agitation during the war. He advocates the subsequent establishment of an 'International court backed by power.' The British empire must increase its military strength and retain unimpaired its command of the sea. The United States will probably follow suit, but they have lost one of the greatest opportunities in history to affect the course of humanity by their failure to protest against the violation of international law on the ground, not of national, but of international interests. The four parts treat of 'The disease of war and its cure,' tracing the origin of this war in the Bismarckian policy; 'The inadequacy of modern morals—Nietzsche,' 'The moral disease and its cure,' and an 'Outline of the principles of contemporary ethics.' The author thinks that 'ultimately a new conception of nationality and internationality will be ushered in, in which loyalty to the narrower relations will in no way prevent loyalty to the wider. It will be the era of patriotic internationalism.'"—Ath

Ath p236 My '16 140w

+ Ath p367 Ag '16 300w

"Perhaps a little too much affected by distinctions of nationality; but we may forgive this weakness in Sir Charles Waldstein's argument; since, in the main, he is scrupulously fair and he is altogether correct in his ultimate conclusions."—C. D. Burns

+ Int J Ethics 27:264 Ja '17 230w

"By advocating a policy of universal tyranny as a cure for occasional wars he shows contempt for the intelligence of his readers. Sir Charles should try to remember that British pacifism has had a very bad record for a hundred years; and he should remember also that he deceived himself in the pre-war times, when he imagined that his policy was 'based upon ideas which unite, and not upon race which severs.' 'Germany,' he added, 'which stands before the world as a great leader of human intelligence, will be with us.'"

—Sat R 121:518 My 27 '16 1550w

"It would be little short of criminal to discourage or to scoff at efforts which are directed towards the attainment of ends whose nobility and utility cannot be called in question. At the same time, it would be foolish not to recognize the very serious difficulties which stand in the way of adopting any such proposal as that put forward by Sir Charles Waldstein. Attention can here only be drawn to a very few of those difficulties." [Earl of] Cromer.

+ Spec 116:688 Je 3 '16 2200w

"Few of the many books which the war has called forth merit more careful consideration than Sir Charles Waldstein's 'Aristodemocracy.' His long and varied experience, his scholarship and residence in foreign countries, including Germany, give great weight to his judgments upon men and affairs. His is no bookman's book. He is able to draw upon interesting facts and materials within his own special knowledge, and to enrich and strengthen his argument with reminiscences of a kind rarely found in war literature often hastily compiled."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p255 Je 1 '16 1250w

WALLACE, DILLON. Bobby of the Labrador. 3 il *$1.25 (2c) McClurg 16-2392

There was a mystery connected with Bobby's coming to the Labrador. As a little boy of three he had been picked up in an open boat by Abel Zachariah, and it is in the cabin of Abel and Mrs. Abel, Christianized Eskimos, that he spends his boyhood. His nearest and dearest friends are Skipper Ed and Jimmie. Skipper Ed teaches him to speak English in addition to the Eskimo that he picks up readily in Abel's cabin, and teaches him as well to read and love books. Jimmie, a boy somewhat older than he, is his partner in many stirring adventures and narrow escapes. In the end there is a clearing away of the mystery; also an explanation of Skipper Ed's presence on the lonely coast.

WALLACE, EDGAR. Clue of the twisted candle. il *$1.25 (2c) Small 16-2290

A vivid detective story. The scene is laid mainly in London but the motive power comes from Albania in the person of a young Greek, Remington Kara, who with his wealth, culture, and cruelty dominates the tale. He hates John Lexman, the novelist, because Lexman has married the woman he desired. By a subtly laid plot he effects Lexman's imprisonment for murder and also, by motor and aeroplane, his escape from jail. Lexman is carried off to a dungeon in Albania while his friend, T. X. Meredith, assistant commissioner of police in Scotland Yard, searches for him in vain. The dénouement of the story turns on a woman, a Patagonian explorer, and a murder.

+ N Y Times 21:549 D 10 '16 300w

"A cleverly conceived and always interesting tale."

+ Springfield Republican p13 N 12 '16 250w

WALLACE, MALCOLM WILLIAM. Life of Sir Philip Sidney. *$3.25 Putnam 16-13323

"The author devotes little space to the purely literary criticism of the works, and even less to the general intellectual background of the age. His book is mainly a straightforward, business-like narrative of Sidney's career. Ample consideration, however, is given to the political setting—the powerful family influences which so largely determined the course of Sidney's life, the nightmare of Irish misrule in which his father was involved, the tortuous and interminable negotiations concerning the French marriage, the political and religious conflict on the Continent to which ultimately Sidney himself fell a victim." (Nation) "Mr. Wallace is the associate professor of English literature in the University college of Toronto." (Sat R)

+ A L A Bkl 13:81 N '16

"Several important details are added to what has been previously known of Sidney's life; notably the quaintly fascinating account of his school days at 'King Edward's public school at Shrewsbury,' based upon the 'Marshall manuscript,' discovered by Mr. Wallace at Penshurst." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p27 Ja 5 '16 1050w

"This book incorporates many facts which have come to light since the publication of Mr.

H. R. Fox Bourne's revised 'Memoir,' twenty-five years ago. Mr. Wallace's treatment of vexed questions is generally judicious and carries conviction." G. C. M. Smith

+ Eng Hist R 31:322 Ap '16 950w

"A thoroughly competent piece of work, and may confidently be accepted as the best authority on Sidney's life. Unlike most books on the subject, Fox-Bourne's 'Memoir' excepted, it is based on a first-hand examination of all the sources of information."

+ Nation 102:388 Ap 6 '16 1450w

"Every chapter is alive; and sometimes the narrative rises from amusing facts into dramatic perception."

+ Sat R 120:565 D 11 '15 1500w

WALLING, WILLIAM ENGLISH; STOKES, JAMES GRAHAM PHELPS; and others, eds. Socialism of to-day. *$1.60 (1c) Holt 335 16-12406

"A source-book of the present position and recent development of the socialist and labor parties in all countries, consisting mainly of original documents." (Sub-title) The work is edited by a group of socialists, members of the Intercollegiate socialist society. William English Walling, J. G. Phelps Stokes, Jessie Wallace Hughan and Harry W. Laidler are those whose names appear on the title page. The articles and speeches chosen for reprint cover all phases of the socialist movement. The one subject not covered fully is the relation of socialism and the war which was adequately covered in a similar volume edited by Mr. Walling last year. Part 1 is devoted to The socialist parties of the world; Part 2 to The socialist parties and social problems.

Reviewed by E. L. Earp

Am J Soc 22:555 Ja '17 430w

+ A L A Bkl 13:63 N '16

"The book as a whole is well-printed, carefully prepared, and is well nigh indispensable to those desirous of a 'bird's eye view' of socialism in its present stage of transition." J. Q. Dealey

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:790 N '16 300w

"No such comprehensive source-book has yet appeared. Even Central and South America, China and South Africa are included in the documentary presentation. Invaluable as a work of reference, it removes any excuse for ignorance of what organized socialism stands for." R. C. McC.

+ Ann Am Acad 67:313 S '16 100w

+ Ind 87:280 Ag 21 '16 140w

N Y Br Lib News 3:90 Je '16

"Every Socialist should have it on his shelves."

+ N Y Call p6 My 23 '16 210w

+ N Y Times 21:498 N 19 '16 250w

"Its publication marks a distinct advance in the scientific discussion of the socialist movement."

+ R of Rs 54:118 Jl '16 70w

St Louis 14:387 N '16

"There is evidence of scrupulous care to give every considerable variety of opinion within the socialist ranks fair representation through a competent spokesman. A possible exception may be noted in the failure to include a quotation from such American socialists as Charles Edward Russell or W. J. Ghent on the question of preparedness."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 18 '16 210w

WALLIS, LOUIS. Struggle for justice. pa *25c Univ. of Chicago press 16-2872

"This little monograph is a condensed statement of the social philosophy underlying the religious evolution of the present—a brief survey of the evolution of religion through the stage of conflict between the one God and the gods of greed and graft as represented in Baal, through the strife as to how God is to be worshipped, whether by dogma or ritual or by righteousness, to the present struggle over the question of the individual or social interpretation of righteousness. It is his larger work on

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

WALLIS, LOUIS—Continued
 "The sociological study of the Bible" epitomized."—Ann Am Acad

Ann Am Acad 66:266 J1 '16 90w

"To the innumerable company of simple folk who, in these troublous times, are daily groaning under the burden of an unintelligible world, the recently published little book, 'The struggle for justice,' following upon the same author's larger work, 'A sociological study of the Bible,' to which it forms an addendum, will serve to illuminate some of the dark places in our historical retrospect, and to throw a ray of light upon the path to be followed in the immediate future." Alex. Mackendrick

+ Dial 60:418 Ap 27 '16 3100w

WALPOLE, HUGH SEYMOUR. Dark forest.
 $1.35 (1c) Doran 16-6603

Hugh Walpole has written a story of Russia and of the war that offers studies of types of Russian and English character and goes to show that generalizations about national characteristics are unsafe. For of the two men of the story who are pitted against one another, Trenchard, the Englishman, is sensitive, moody, introspective and unsure of himself, while Semionov, the Russian, is brisk, business-like, confident and self-possessed. The members of a Red cross unit who follow the Russian armies on their advance and retreat are the actors in the story. Each of these men and women is highly individualized, and as the author somewhere says, if he were to draw a conclusion as to the effect of war on the human soul, using any one of his companions as a basis, the conclusion would be a different one for each.

+ A L A Bkl 12:484 J1 '16

Reviewed by Wilson Follett

+ Atlan 118:502 O '16 340w

"This is not a chronicle or a diary or a series of sketches from the front. It is a finished piece of literary art. . . . The extraordinary merit of the book is its rendering of the atmosphere of war and of the intensifying, and even purifying through that atmosphere of a natural human motive." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:531 J1 '16 970w

"It is no less a record of events because it is a novel; it is no less a novel because it is a record of events. The very spirit of Russia is here." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 20 '16 1200w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:66 J1 15 '16 650w

"There is here a lift to the spirit even in defeat and disaster, a triumph over death itself, that we never find in Tolstol. The people of 'The dark forest' have found something, have proved themselves; they won courage out of terror if nothing more, and that makes it a brave book."

+ Ind 87:66 J1 10 '16 220w

"Some time ago we gave an account of a French novel, 'Gaspard,' by René Benjamine, declared by Frenchmen to be the best so far produced by the war. A reviewer in the New York Sun selects 'The dark forest,' as the greatest, 'in almost every way, that has come forth from England. . . . A few years ago they said of Hugh Walpole that he might some day approach Galsworthy in the delicacy of his storytelling. Lèse majesté tho it be, we must still keep the two of them apart; but now it is Walpole who will be the standard. For along with all the smoothness, the grace, and purity which Galsworthy's style possesses, Mr. Walpole has acquired a power, a force, a depth of feeling, which has been every year more noticeably lacking in his master."

+ Lit D 52:1780 Je 17 '16 600w

+ Nation 103:111 Ag 3 '16 570w

"'The dark forest' for the first time embodied the war in a work of true literary art. In this story the war is not made copy of, it exists, as the scene and background and atmosphere of a poignantly simple human action." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 103:508 N 30 '16 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Beach

+ New Repub 7:281 J1 15 '16 850w

"Slowly, as you read the story of this group of persons, these Russians and English, you perceive who is the real enemy and what the triumph, and to you, too, comes some conception of that happiness, that exultation of which hints and gleams are given throughout the book. You understand what is the real half of life, and that it does not matter if the other half is lost."

+ N Y Times 21:222 My 23 '16 1200w

+ N Y Times 21:502 N 26 '16 120w

"Unqualifiedly a great book."

+ R of Rs 54:234 Ag '16 330w

"Although it is written in terms of narrative and interwoven with a love story, its fascination lies not in the tale but in its atmosphere. There are many vivid impressions of actual warfare in the book, and there is one that is indelible. It is a picture of the officers 'almost crying with despair' because there is no ammunition."

+ Sat R 121:304 Mr 25 '16 850w

"Though its theme is deeds of mercy, the book itself ruthlessly tears away the veil from the illusions which surround the pageant of war. Even the heroism of the Russian Red cross 'Otriad,' the unit with whose deeds the book is concerned, hardly redeems some of the actors of the drama from the crudeness and brutality of their mental processes. The realism is unsparing, and the sordid and tragic love-story which is woven through the fabric of the book helps the reader to realize how primitive are the emotions produced by the excitements and exultations of war."

+ Spec 116:608 My 13 '16 1800w

"Mr. Walpole's events have that quality of inevitability as they unexpectedly occur. When one has read this book one feels certain, at least, of knowing some Russians and one tiny phase of the war."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p50 F 3 '16 650w

WALPOLE, HUGH SEYMOUR. Joseph Conrad. (Writers of the day) il *50c (2½c)
 Holt 823 (Eng ed 16-15115)

It is one of the excellences of this study that it is not limited to its immediate subject. Joseph Conrad is not treated as an isolated figure, unique in that he is a non-English author of books in English. He is considered in his relation to the whole field of modern literature. As an outsider he brought to English literature new qualities which will, Mr. Walpole believes, direct the trend of the novel of the future. In him two diverse strains are blended, the romantic and the realistic, and already his influence is beginning to tell in the work of the younger school, including Mr. D. H. Lawrence, Mr. J. D. Beresford, Mr. Gilbert Cannan, Miss Viola Meynell, and others. Another writer than the author of this little book might also have included Mr. Hugh Walpole.

"Condensed, yet sufficiently comprehensive to give a clear idea of his method, his style, and his peculiar art to those who have not read the novelist, and interesting to those who have."

+ A L A Bkl 13:121 D '16

Ath p283 Je '16 20w

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 13 '16 250w

Boston Transcript p8 D 9 '16 700w

+ Cath World 104:247 N '16 310w

"Excellent in discussing his author's novels, though when he strays into comparative criticism his verdicts on general tendencies in fiction and on the novels of other English and American writers are to be distrusted."

+ Nation 103:516 N 30 '16 100w

"It gives the general reader new perceptions and added zest. This book will make one more watchful of Mr. Walpole. He is fine about his 'métier,' but how far will he go with what seem like public-school boy shynesses? Perhaps it is a real misfortune that Conrad makes him uncomfortable as soon as he shows in his Polish way too much enthusiasm about the soul of man." Edith Borie

+ — New Repub 9:sup4 N 18 '16 970w

"Mr. Walpole has written a book which will add to his reputation. . . . Seldom does a novelist write about an older colleague with the discrimination, justice, sympathy, and acumen with which the author of 'The duchess of Wrexhe' has written about the author of 'Lord Jim.'" + N Y Times 21:385 O 1 '16 500w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p263 Je 1 '16 30w

"Mr. Walpole's appreciation of Joseph Conrad has that zest and eagerness which one expects in the record of a soul's adventures among masterpieces, it also resembles the hasty pursuit, with a pinch of salt, of a formidable and exhaustively elusive bird. . . . Haste is manifest in Mr. Walpole's arrangement of his material, in his thought and in his expression of it."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p270 Je 8 '16 1000w

WALSH, JOHN HENRY. Cam Clarke. il $1.35 (1½c) Macmillan 16-6056

Washtucna, Washington, in the days when Washington state was still a territory, is the scene of this story. But Washtucna is more than the scene, it is a character. For this is the story of one year in the life of a frontier town and a record of a transition period that is common to all frontier communities, the period in which the "bad man" and the adventurer pass on to make way for the farmer and settler. Cam Clarke, who gives his name to the story, is a boy of twelve. Mart Campin, a youth of like age, who tells the story, is his admirer and chum. These two youngsters manage to be in the thick of things that happen in Washtucna in that eventful year, but several other people are of equal importance in the action of the story, first of them, Sarah Clarke, Cam's mother.

+ A L A Bkl 12:433 Je '16

"The material of an epic tale, treated in the comic spirit." F. F. Kelly

+ — Bookm 43:321 My '16 380w

"Here is the story of a real boy, and if he is not quite like Mark Twain's boys, for nobody has equalled them, he is the next best."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 300w

+ Ind 8&68 Ap 10 '16 100w

"As a boy, however he is rather disappointing. He is normal enough in most respects, but a little too self-satisfied and sure of himself. Cam is the sharp, smug, and wide-awake business man in miniature. Such a boy may be destined to succeed in life, but he is not lovable. The publishers' suggested comparison with Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn is deadly to Cam Clarke. And Cam's mother, the beautiful and saintly Sarah Clarke, who is the Madonna of the town, looks a great deal too much like a Christmas card. Far more attractive are some of the pioneers of Washtucna. . . . These old fellows are vigorously drawn."

+ — Nation 103:14 Jl 6 '16 320w

"The book is written with a quiet humor which is often entertaining, though it is not without dull spots. Washtucna becomes a real place to the reader, but it must be admitted that certain of its grown-up inhabitants are better and more convincingly depicted than are the two boys for whose sake it is professedly written."

+ — N Y Times 21:100 Mr 19 '16 480w

"There's a plot and a good love story in the book, but the real boy is best of all. The frontispiece is an exquisite drawing by William Van Dresser."

+ R of Rs 53:759 Je '16 150w

+ Spring'd Republican p15 Mr 26 '16 220w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:272 Je '16 60w

WALTERS, FRANCIS MARION. Principles of health control. il $1.50 Heath 16-6264

"An earnest effort to place every phase of hygiene upon the basis of cause and effect, and to eliminate guess work in the teaching of the subject has been made by Francis M. Walters.

Health control, from the author's viewpoint, presents a negative and a positive phase. The negative phase, he points out, has to do with the causes of disease and bodily weakness, which are to be avoided; while the positive phase has to do with the building up of weak parts and developing the natural defenses of the body." (Springfield Republican) "The chief topics studied are personal hygiene, public and general hygiene, vocational or special hygiene, environmental or sanitary hygiene, corrective hygiene, and the prevention through hygienic and medical means, of particular diseases." (Boston Transcript)

"Some of the illustrations, though doubtless sufficiently explanatory, are very crudely drawn."

Ath p587 D '16 110w

Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 430w

"The book is marred by its extreme and unwarranted assertions in regard to alcohol."

+ — Educ R 52:424 N '16 50w

Ind 87:238 Ag 14 '16 20w

"The author is professor of physiology and hygiene in the State normal school at Warrensburg, Mo."

St Louis 15:13 Ja '17 16w

"While departing from the usual methods of discussing the subject, Mr. Walters has produced a commendable work, which should prove of interest to secondary school students."

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 180w

WANG YANG-MING. Philosophy of Wang Yang-ming. $2.50 (1½c) Open ct. 181 16-11982

Wang Yang-ming was a Chinese philosopher who belonged to the late fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries. Dr. Henke of Allegheny college, who has lived long in the East as a missionary and as a professor of philosophy in Nanking university, presents here a translation of his "Biography," "Instructions for practical life," "Record of discourses" and "Letters." "Wang Yang-ming," says Dr. Henke, "was an idealist of the monistic type. For him mind covered the entire gamut of existence; he thought that nothing exists independent of and apart from mind." The book has an introduction by Professor James H. Tufts of the University of Chicago, who says that it will "suggest to the student of western ethics that seekers for truth speak a common language."

"Too much credit cannot be given to Dr. Henke for this translation. He not only adds to the western library of philosophy a volume most valuable in its original but also does this without any predetermined purpose either to prove that the thought of the Orient is inferior to that of the Occident or to solicit followers for him whose work he presents." Kia-Lok Yen

+ Int J Ethics 27:241 Ja '17 870w

"While its readers will probably be confined to students of comparative literature, philosophy, or religion, those students will acknowledge gratitude to one of the few Sinologists in American academic life."

+ Lit D 53:418 Ag 19 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:123 Ag '16

"Professor Henke has accomplished this fine and scholarly work in the hope that students will gain further knowledge of the achievements of the Chinese, and form a deeper appreciation of their worth. When every indication points to the increase of our commercial and political relations with the East, it is important that the West should understand the thought that has molded the civilization of China."

+ R of Rs 54:460 O '16 200w

Springfield Republican p15 S 3 '16 370w

WARD, REV. BERNARD NICOLAS. Sequel to Catholic emancipation. 2v il $6 Longmans 282 16-913

"These volumes form a worthy sequel to 'The dawn of the Catholic revival in England' and 'The eve of Catholic emancipation'; and bring to a successful close the arduous task undertaken

WARD, REV. BERNARD NICOLAS—Cont.
by the author, of writing the history of English Catholicism from 1780 till the re-establishment of the hierarchy. . . . Throughout the work the central figure is Cardinal Wiseman, whose important rôle and far-reaching influence Monsignor Ward adequately presents. . . . Among the minor actors on the scene who receive considerable yet not excessive notice, are Pugin, Lucas, the missionary fathers, Dominic, Gentili, and Ignatius Spencer. There is a brief account of the Oxford movement. . . . One potent influence in the Catholic revival which has been accorded but a passing reference by some other writers who have treated the matter, is here emphasized: that is, the Irish famine, and the consequent immigration of Irish Catholics into England."—Cath World

"The men who have laboured in the dawn are so often ignored that Mgr. Ward's recognition of the worth of the vicars apostolic is most welcome."

+ Ath p182 Ap '16 550w

"The generous scale of the work allows the author to trace the history of events, and the doings of individuals, with satisfying detail. The reader who looks for brilliant pages or purple patches will be disappointed but he will find, in compensation, evidence, on the part of the author, of a conscientious, careful purpose to present a full and exact record of men and events; and a good deal of matter hitherto unpublished; notably, for example, a chapter dealing with the movement to establish diplomatic relations between England and the Holy See in 1835. The work has numerous interesting illustrations, and each volume contains an excellent index."

+ Cath World 102:697 F '16 430w

"Monsignor Ward's fairness of judgment and moderation of language are not less noteworthy than in the earlier instalments of his work."

W. H.

+ Eng Hist R 31:341 Ap '16 520w

+ Nation 103:180 Ag 24 '16 1050w

Princeton 21:306 Je '16 20w

"Monsignor Ward writes with grace and accuracy."

+ Sat R 120:616 D 25 '15 60w

"He repudiates utterly the view of those Catholics who seem to think it treason to the church to recall the scandals by which in the past her life has been troubled. 'If the lessons of history are to be learned,' he says truly, 'it is necessary that we should be willing to face such matters.' And he does face them, and so inspires confidence, as a writer not of pious fiction but of history. His attitude towards Protestants, though quite uncompromising, is always courteous and even sympathetic."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p63 F 10 '16 1950w

WARD, CLARENCE. Mediaeval church vaulting. (Princeton monographs in art and archaeology) ll *$4 Princeton univ. press 721.4 15-25961

"'Medieval church vaulting,' by Clarence Ward, classifies and discusses in a systematic manner the problems of substituting for the wooden roof of the early Christian basilica a covering of solid masonry. Attention is called to the intimate relation of the problems of vaulting and lighting. The contents cover Nave and aisle vaults; Transept and crossing vaults; Apse vaults and Ambulatory vaults. The author is associate professor of architecture in Rutgers college and lecturer on architecture at Princeton university."—R of Rs

"The study of origins and motives, however, is too attractive to permit the author to forego it, in spite of the limitations of his systematic formula; and many of his most interesting observations deal with questions of such a character. In fulness and logic of presentation the book adequately fulfils its purpose; while unacknowledged photographs, clear typography, and becoming form make it a pleasure to read."

+ Dial 60:37 Ja 6 '16 140w

"The book is splendidly illustrated."

+ R of Rs 53:253 F '16 100w

"A technical treatise of much value. Special emphasis is laid on the connection between the problems of vaulting and lighting. There are nearly 100 illustrations, and a serviceable bibliography."

+ Springfield Republican p13 F 7 '16 90w

"It is a complicated subject; and, in Professor Ward's hands, it loses none of its difficulty. Yet it need hardly be presented in so deterredly technical a fashion. We wish he had used more recent authorities."

— + The Times [London] Lit Sup p160 Ap 6 '16 950w

WARD, HARRY PARKER. Some American college bookplates. ll *$4 Champlin ptg. co., Columbus, O. 097 15-23626

The subtitle to this book reads: "A presentation of plates, old and new, used by educational institutions, individuals, fraternities and clubs, to which are added those of a few learned societies." The college plates range from that of Harvard's first president in the 17th century to that of the library of the Ohio state university which won a prize in 1916. The book contains 333 full size reproductions with descriptions, and ten inserts on Italian paper together with an article on A defense of bookplates by Theodore W. Koch, late librarian of the University of Michigan; a checklist of bookplate literature containing 628 titles by Winward Prescott; a list of 84 designers, and a full index.

"The work is done with a thoroughness which appeals to any book-lover and it is presented in a form which makes a direct appeal to the lover of the artistic. Not that all the plates are beautiful, for the aim has been to show bookplates (and a few labels) as they are in actual use in educational institutions in America. Nearly two-thirds of the plates presented, however, are what might be called good. Some are reproduced in color, and the frontispiece is the beautiful 'Jewel' plate of the library of Leland Stanford, Jr., university. It is a monumental work. The volume is teeming with suggestions to the collector and the institutional librarian, and is of interest to any book-lover, whether or not the special subject may appeal to him."

+ Boston Transcript D 1 '15 530w

"Splendid contribution to the bibliography of the bookplate. The mechanism of the book is superb from brilliant cover to closing page."

+ Columbus Dispatch N 20 '15 350w

"An addition of genuine value to book-plate literature. The reproduction is skilfully done. Mr. Ward has had the coöperation of Mr. Theodore Wesley Koch, librarian of the University of Michigan, who contributes a very interesting 'Defense of book-plates,' embracing some sensible suggestions to anyone who may wish to secure a plate for his own books. Mr. Winward Prescott, a well known authority and member of the best book-plate societies in this country and Europe, contributes a check-list of bookplate literature covering nearly fifty pages, the most complete bibliography of the kind yet presented. This is prefaced by some good suggestions to the collector."

+ Dial 60:127 F 3 '16 230w

"The strength of the volume lies in its illustrative reproduction of many bookplates of the various colleges, some of which are in color. The admirable list of bookplate literature, and of the names and addresses of the leading bookplate designers, will be useful to amateurs and collectors."

+ Ind 85:284 F 21 '16 70w

"The collection is particularly rich in examples of the work of American designers and engravers. A number of plates reproduced in Mr. Clifford N. Carver's charming little volume 'Bookplates of Princeton and Princetonians' (1912) are included. A lengthy list of advance subscribers is printed, and it is gratifying to note that this attractive volume will find a place in many of the leading libraries, where it may be enjoyed by those who care for bookplates, but who are unable to purchase the work for their own shelves."

+ Nation 101:754 D 23 '15 320w

"The legends accompanying the plates give information of historic value, making the book of inestimable help along this line. The checklist of book-plate literature is an important feature of the volume. It enables the lover of bookplates to secure facts regarding his hobby that can be obtained through no other single source."

+ Printing Art Ja '16 450w

WARD, MARY AUGUSTA (ARNOLD) (MRS. HUMPHRY WARD). England's effort; letters to an American friend. *$1 (3c) Scribner (*2s 6d Smith, Elder, London) 940.91 16-15067

A book written in answer to an American correspondent's question; "Has England done all she could?" To answer it fully Mrs. Ward made personal investigations, obtaining permission from the government to visit many places not accessible to the general public. Particularly inspiring is her story of what the women are doing, their cheerfulness, courage and devotion. Mrs. Ward, with her daughter, visited munition plants, the fleet in the north, Red cross hospitals at home and in France, and other places where England is showing her spirit. Joseph H. Choate in his preface says, "No one who reads this book can doubt for a moment, I think, that England has done all she could, has put forth efforts worthy of her history and of her great traditions." The English edition has a preface by Lord Rosebery.

+ A L A Bkl 13:28 O '16
+ Ath p292 Je '16 30w
+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 3 '16 1500w
+ Ind 87:348 S 4 '16 60w
+ Lit D 53:751 S 23 '16 280w
+ Nation 102:713 Je 29 '16 400w

"Doesn't pretend to be much more than frankly ephemeral propaganda. Only—unlike most propaganda—it happens to be well written."

+ — New Repub 8:229 S 30 '16 470w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 Jl '16

"All this, it may be said, is interesting. But that is all. Her tendency is to substitute statement for argument, to give statistics without giving also her authority for them, and to present trivial anecdotes and passing impressions as if they were of historical and logical importance. In general it may be said that the book itself, as a piece of propaganda, is uncalled for."

+ — N Y Times 21:221 My 23 '16 800w

+ N Y Times 21:532 D 3 '16 370w

Pittsburgh 21:358 Jl '16 30w

"Of especial interest is Mrs. Ward's account of the astonishing part played by English women in the equipment and energizing of the nation for its tremendous task."

+ R of Rs 54:116 Jl '16 160w

+ Spec 116:752 Je 17 '16 2050w

"The censorship, which has made it necessary for Mrs. Ward to write her letters, in order to remove false impressions in America, has, with the mischief-making Northcliffe press, led to grave misrepresentations of England's effort in the countries of her allies. Mrs. Ward does well to point out the absurdity of the notion that the quarrel was provoked by manufacturers and merchants eager to capture German trade."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Je 2 '16 350w

"The book is not a rhapsody. It is a sober account of the good and the evil which she has seen for herself."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p279 Je 15 '16 580w

WARD, MARY AUGUSTA (ARNOLD) (MRS. HUMPHRY WARD). Great success. il *$1.25 (4c) Hearst's int. lib. 16-6820

Doris Meadows is the practical wife of brilliant, lazy young Arthur Meadows. His lectures on political celebrities tend to make him one of the literary lions of the London season. Lady Dunstable takes him up and promises herself he will succeed under her patronage, to be later dropped at her pleasure. The common-sense of Doris, who forms no part of Lady Dunstable's scheme, prevents catastrophe. A fortunate opportunity enables her to prevent the marriage of Lord Dunstable's son and heir to an adventuress and win for herself the affection and regard to which she is entitled. The scene moves from London to a country house in the Scottish highlands. Mrs. Humphry Ward's usual great personages move through the pages.

"We are grateful that this novel was not extended to the ordinary length. If it were not for its style, we should have surmised that it was an early attempt, now published as a stop-gap. What the 'great success' was we are not sure. Did it belong to the author who soared like a rocket and came down like a stick, or to the demure little wife who finally established her acquaintance over him."

— Ath p196 Ap '16 70w

Boston Transcript p22 Ap 19 '16 1350w

"An amusing trifle—short and pleasantly delivered. It is read in a couple of hours. It is a simple tale of the kind with which young ladies are wont to solace themselves, who, on the further side of the gate, wistfully behold the social Eden. It differs from them only in the greater skill of its progress and the author's acquaintance with the life she describes. Here in brief, is Mrs. Humphry Ward showing us exactly how this sort of thing should be done."

+ Sat R 121:283 Mr 18 '16 730w

Spec 116:471 Ap 8 '16 950w

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 7 '16 400w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p126 Mr 16 '16 800w

WARD, MARY AUGUSTA (ARNOLD) (MRS. HUMPHRY WARD). Lady Connie. il *$1.50 (1c) Hearst's int. lib. 16-21051

Lady Constance Bledlow is the orphan daughter of the Earl of Risborough. After a cosmopolitan life in Italy and southern Europe she finds herself transplanted to the home of her uncle and guardian in Oxford, and to her at first "Oxford's all very well but it isn't the world." She is a typical Mrs. Humphry Ward heroine and her lover, Douglas Falloden, Greek scholar and "blood," athlete and heir to a fortune and a title, is a typical Mrs. Humphry Ward hero. But the interest of the book lies not so much in the fortunes of these two as in the description of life in Oxford in the 80's. Mrs. Ward passed much of her girlhood in Oxford, lived there in the early years of her marriage and is said to have painted portraits of that time. And though in thirty years the social life may have altered and the city have stretched out widely to the north, the meadows and the river, the "High" and the "House" remain the same and the book holds their charm.

"Interesting though not one of Mrs. Ward's best novels."

+ A L A Bkl 13:127 D '16

"We had almost decided that Mrs. Humphry Ward had passed out of the ranks of those whose work must receive the most careful attention, and so it is a particular pleasure to recommend her latest novel to our readers. She shows in it not only a breadth of outlook which we had begun to despair of in her case, but also a modern point of view which is the more convincing because it is balanced by the knowledge of bygone days."

+ — Ath p482 O '16 200w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

Bookm 44:391 D '16 430w

"It was never more clear than in the pages of 'Lady Connie' that Mrs. Ward holds firmly a place of her own in English fiction. Her latest novel has in it no such distinction as may be found in 'The Coryston family,' but it is nevertheless an excellent story, and a graphic exposition of the English world she knows so thoroughly." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 25 '16 1250w

WARD, MARY AUGUSTA—Continued

"We feel that we have had a pleasant glimpse at an interesting life, but after all it is the way spectators might look at a great ball." E: E. Hale

+ — Dial 61:396 N 16 '16 730w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

Nation 103:508 N 30 '16 100w

Nation 103:588 D 21 '16 450w

+ — N Y Times 21:460 O 29 '16 1050w

"Mrs. Ward either never learnt her Oxford thoroughly or her memory has failed her. We, too, knew Oxford in the 'eighties, and we cannot accept her hero, Falloiden, as a possible undergraduate, or 'Marmion,' as the least like any college of that or any subsequent date. . . . The part of this novel which is really good is the description of the Hooper family in Holywell street."

— + Sat R 122:371 O 14 '16 800w

"As a study of complex and rather sophisticated modern temperaments the book is interesting. But to the present reviewer its chief attraction is to be found in its tribute to the imperishable glamour of Oxford."

+ Spec 117:447 O 14 '16 870w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p474 O 5 '16 850w

WARD, WILLIAM HAYES. What I believe and why. *$1.50 Scribner 239 15-18897

"It appears from this book that the foundations of Dr. Ward's religious beliefs have never been shaken by the results of scientific research, although in his lifetime the controversies that followed the general acceptance of the principle of evolution began and culminated. . . . The message that he has for the present generation is summed up in these words: 'The best human reason,—I think I do not err,—whether it looks outward or inward, finds God. He is in nature about us; He is in the reason within us; it is not simply that we wish to find God, but we find Him whether we wish it or not.'"—R of Rs

"Any man who wants to put himself thru a course of straight and severe thinking on the deepest themes with which the human mind can grapple, would do well to read it. It is not technical; the argument can be followed by any fairly intelligent man; and the exercise will be mightily invigorating." Washington Gladden

+ Ind 84:105 O '18 '15 800w

"The confession of faith of a scholar trained to examine the ground of his beliefs, and to state them distinctly and frankly. Whether or not one agrees with all his reasonings, there will be no doubt in the reader's mind that Dr. Ward's volume is a sincere and able search for a spiritual religious faith in harmony with human reason. The essence of Christianity, he says, is love, and that man is a Christian, whatever the details of his theological creed, who lives a life of love for man and spiritual union with God."

+ Nation 102:112 Ja 27 '16 580w

+ R of Rs 53:249 F '16 290w

"Whether one is aware beforehand, or not, of Dr. Ward's vast erudition, the fact impresses itself page by page. . . . This volume is autobiographical in its source and filled with a fine spirit of inquiry rather than assertion. Men who would shy at the title of 'Evidences' will perhaps get hold of this book and dip into it. If they do, one dip will not satisfy. And the spirit of the author will lead them on convincingly to a clearer understanding of themselves and of a rational faith."

+ Springfield Republican p13 My 21 '16 670w

WARDEN, ARCHIBALD A. Common-sense patriotism. *$1 (3½c) Dillingham 940.91

The preface which Norman Angell contributes to this book is a discussion of the terms on which Great Britain should make peace and a plea for democratic control of foreign policy. Mr. Warden's plea (written early in 1916) is for a statement from each of the two sides in the contest as to their purpose in entering the war and the terms of peace they are ready to propose or accept. He laid his plan before the German, Austro-Hungarian, and British ministers at Berne and his book records their attitudes toward it. About one third of the book is taken up with Open letters.

R of Rs 53:757 Je '16 50w

WARDLE, ADDIE GRACE. Handwork in religious education. (Pub. in religious education) il *$1 Univ. of Chicago press 377 16-15072

A book for the Sunday school worker, published as one of a series devoted to Principles and methods of religious education. Part 1 covers the general and theoretical aspects with chapters on: The presentation of the subject; The relationships of the subject; The vision of the teacher in relation to handwork; Laws of education as applied to expression work; The preparation of the religious educator in expression work. Part 2 takes up the practical problems in four chapters: Expression work applied to the developing stages of life; Suggestions for expression work in the Sunday school; Detailed suggestions for expression work; Permanent form for the handwork. The chapters are provided with references for study and there is a general bibliography at the end.

"Kindergarten and manual training plans from paper tearing to book binding are described in 'Handwork in religious education.' Few of these are practicable for the Sunday school hour, in which, after all, surely less roundabout methods of teaching may be made interesting. They would be, however, useful for mid-week work for the primary classes."

+ — Ind 88:166 O 23 '16 60w

N Y Br Lib News 3:143 S '16

"A contribution of real interest and merit to the field of religious pedagogy."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 10 '16 90w

WARFIELD, WILLIAM. Gate of Asia; a journey 'om the Persian Gulf to the Black Sea. il *$2.50 (2½c) Putnam 915 16-14446

The author states: "I would therefore draw the line between East and West in such a way as to leave the Turkish empire to the west and Persia to the east. . . . It is the line that separates the lowlands of the Mediterranean basin from the Iranian plateau and the Indian Ocean. It is a line drawn from the Persian Gulf to the Black Sea, which thus become the gateposts, between which have passed back and forth the armies of the rival empires that have sought in vain to cross the natural boundary line, the real boundary line between Europe and Asia. This then is the Gate of Asia. Its historical interest may well be imagined. Its ethnic interest is no less, for in it the rival civilizations are still struggling incessantly for supremacy. Its scenic beauty may be inferred from the fact that its mountains and plains have proved such effective barriers in the past. . . . It is to give the reader some idea of this important but obscure part of the world that I have written the following pages."—Chapter 1

"The book is of interest, and the illustrations are good; but a grave defect is that there is neither map nor index."

+ — Ath p547 N '16 80w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 1 '16 730w

"Mr. Warfield has given us a scholarly work."

+ Cath World 104:542 Ja '17 150w

"For the theological student, a careful study of the Christian churches in Asia Minor, their relations toward each other historically and dogmatically, should win for the book a place in the college library. But it contains also the spice of adventure."

+ Ind 89:153 Ja 22 '17 150w

+ Lit D 53:472 Ag 26 '16 400w

"His leisurely record contains pages that will bear fruitful reading after the war. Nowhere else, perhaps, will problems of geographic and political interest take precedence over these of Mesopotamia and Persia, of the southern hinterlands of Russia, when the readjustment of territory and spheres of influence takes place. . . . It is a pleasure to read Mr. Warfield's anecdotes of our sturdy American missionaries in these oppressed sections of the Ottoman empire."

- + Nation 103:403 O 26 '16 420w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16
- + R of Rs 54:458 O '16 120w
- Sat R 122:628 D 30 '16 220w
- + Springfield Republican p15 J19 '16 950w
- + The Times [London] Lit Sup p516 O 26 '16 100w

WARNE, FRANK JULIAN. Tide of immigration. il $2.50 Appleton 325.7 16-17444

"The author's qualifications for his task are based on the fact that he served as special expert on foreign-born population in connection with the thirteenth census and also as secretary of the New York state commission of immigration. . . . Mr. Warne states with impartiality the case of the two groups—the restrictionists and those who style themselves 'liberal' immigrationists, each of which bases its position upon patriotism and humanitarianism. He discusses in detail the status of the alien and the native worker, as well as the alien contract law, and the literacy test—vetoed by three presidents—which, he believes, would not be a departure from the fundamental basis underlying our traditional policy. He deals also with a number of other issues, including that of distributing immigrants through the country."—N Y Times

- + A L A Bkl 13:151 Ja '17

"A plea for the adjustment of admission to assimilation and a strong, convincing treatise that it would be well for all responsible citizens to read soberly, and to ponder upon with earnestness." S. L. C.

- + Boston Transcript p9 N 4 '16 450w

"The book is entertainingly written. Dr. Warne is frankly partisan, and sometimes uses arguments which belong on the other side of the question to bolster up the demand for a restriction of immigration. . . . The author is not fair to the reader in presenting the majority report of the Commission on industrial relations as unbiased testimony in favor of restriction without explaining that three out of the four signers of the report were leaders of organized labor—in other words, that it was a partisan report. Similar liberties are taken with the reader in presenting the testimony of the Immigration commission."

- + Cath World 104:249 N '16 630w

"The temptation is simply to drop his arguments as having no real relation to actual conditions, and to turn the attention elsewhere. But they have at least this relation to actual conditions, that they are written with a certain air of finality which, so far as conclusions are concerned, may easily carry conviction to readers who run over the text too carelessly to note the weakness of the premises and the gaps in the logic."

- Nation 104:104 Ja 25 '17 1550w
- N Y Br Lib News 3:153 O '16

"The book is a sane and intelligent contribution to the literature of a serious problem that is intimately connected with the future welfare of the nation and can no longer be regarded with complacency. An unusually elaborate index adds to its value."

- + N Y Times 21:474 N 5 '16 1650w
- R of Rs 55:108 Ja '17 50w
- St Louis 15:8 Ja '17 20w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:451 D '16 80w

WARNOD, ANDRÉ. Prisoner of war; tr. by M. Jourdain. il $1 Lippincott 940.91 (Eng ed 16-14088)

"M. Warnod's book, the fourth in the series of 'Soldiers' tales of the great war,' describes the experiences of a French prisoner of war in a huge German prison camp. His first few pages tell of his service as a private soldier during a week or two at the beginning of the war. . . .

The prison camp was at Merseburg, where 20,000 prisoners were herded together in a great flat plain of mud or dust, where was neither tree nor blade of grass, inclosed within a barricade of barbed wire. They were separated into divisions of about 1,500 men each, who were packed into six wooden huts covered with tarred paper. . . . He spent nine months in the camp, when it was his good fortune to be returned to France. . . . The author is also an artist, and sixty drawings of scenes and individuals in the camp, some of them full page and others text illustrations, add to the vividness of the narrative."—N Y Times

Reviewed by Travis Hoke

- + Dial 61:190 S 21 '16 200w

"The account of the long trip in the crowded prison train is written, with true French vividness, in brief sentences that, while they merely outline the picture, make it so colorful and so moving that it stands out unforgettably before the reader's mind."

- + N Y Times 21:285 J1 '16 '16 620w
- R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 130w

"In its simplicity of style, however, the work presents a vivid picture of a phase of the war which has no elements of glamor."

- + Springfield Republican p8 J16 '16 300w

WARWICK, ANNE, pseud. (MRS. RUTH [CRANSTON] NEWLIN). Unpretenders. *1.20 (3c) Lane 16-5186

Ten short stories more or less linked together. The characters are a group of charming, everyday sort of people and the incidents of the stories are the little events of everyday life. Anne—just a plain woman; Timothy—only a writer; Gladys-Marie—merely a maid; Sheila—simply a society person; and so on, are the titles.

- + A L A Bkl 12:385 My '16 40w
- + Boston Transcript p8 Je 24 '16 400w

"The characters are all posed, self-conscious, and 'smarty'; conceived in that spirit of sentimental facetiousness which passes for humor with a surprisingly large number of people of whatever sex." H. W. Boynton

- Nation 102:520 My 11 '16 120w

"The central idea of these ten stories is rather a good one, but used again and again it becomes a trifle fatiguing. The tales are conventional bits of fiction—so conventional that the climax of each is perfectly apparent to the reader before he has finished a third of it. Anne Warwick can do much better work than this."

- + N Y Times 21:208 My 14 '16 250w

"The incidents forming the tales occur near New York; but the author, who is an Englishwoman, has some difficulty in creating an American atmosphere."

- + Springfield Republican p15 J1 '16 '16 220w
- + Wis Lib Bull 12:187 Ap '16 40w

WARWICK, FRANCES EVELYN (MAYNARD) GREVILLE, countess of. A woman and the war. il $2 (3c) Doran 940.91 16-23379

During the progress of the war, the Countess of Warwick has been frequently out of sympathy with those in authority. She has voiced many protests and it is some of these protests that are gathered together in this book. She writes of: King Edward and the Kaiser; England's drink legislation; War and marriage; Two years of war—woman's loss and gain; Child labour on the land; Youth in the shambles; Race suicide, etc. The work is not wholly critical; it is constructive, looking to the future. "Just as a kingdom at war calls for men to man the trenches," she says, "so a return of peace calls for its heroes of thought to do battle with all the evils that make it possible for men who have no quarrel to assemble their millions for mutual destruction."

"Her candidly expressed opinions are not the results of hearsay. They are woven of personal experience and observation, a long study of social and political conditions, a keenly critical judgment, and an intuition unusually sensitive."

E. F. E.

- + Boston Transcript p8 Ja 27 '17 900w

WARWICK, F. E., Countess of.—Continued
+ N Y Times 22:9 Ja 14 '17 800w

"Lady Warwick's papers on the war are somewhat vague and colourless, but here and there she speaks out clearly on the grave danger of 'race suicide' through the refusal of wives to assume the duties of motherhood, on the weakness of the government in dealing with the drink traffic, on the under-payment of women workers, and on the grievous wrong done to the labourer's children by taking them away from school prematurely because there is a temporary lack of men."

Spec 117:660 N 25 '16 80w

"Her intentions are undoubtedly patriotic, even when she is wrong. In many cases we feel that she is half right, half wrong; fumbling after a truth of some value, but failing to make her meaning absolutely clear."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p488 O 12 '16 300w

WASHBURN, CHARLES GRENFILL. Theodore Roosevelt; the logic of his career. il $1.50 Houghton 16-5065

"I have known Theodore Roosevelt since we entered Harvard together in the autumn of 1876," says the author. "Through all these years I have had very definite views of his character which I have never seen any occasion to change. . . . This is in no sense a history or even a finished sketch of his life. It is a record of my personal impressions, fortified by such facts as would seem to justify my conclusions." Some of these conclusions are that Roosevelt has never been a "politician," that his views have always been carefully considered before they found expression, and that in the campaign of 1912 he was not moved by personal ambition. Contents: From the time of his going to college in 1876 to his accession to the presidency in 1901; Changing social and industrial conditions; Roosevelt and the Monroe doctrine; The African and European trips; Roosevelt's personal characteristics.—Conclusion. Roosevelt's speech made in Carnegie Hall, under the auspices of the Civic Forum of New York city, on March 20, 1912, is given in an appendix.

"Pure advertising cant." T. C. Smith
— Am Hist R 21:861 J1 '16 420w

"Mainly a popular, readable résumé of what Mr. Roosevelt has accomplished."

+ A L A Bkl 12:381 My '16

"If the little work is intended as a Republican peace-offering, it is a singularly left-handed performance. It paints him wholly sincere, modest, consistent, and retiring, heaven save the mark, at the expense of the commanding qualities which even his dearest foes concede him: inexhaustible energy, courage, sagacity, and relentless purposefulness in the pursuit of la gloire."

— Nation 102:649 Je 15 '16 900w

"There are those who will question the soundness of his appraisement, which, indeed, is so high that it would open the eyes of the Colonel's most ardent supporters, but everybody with a noble soul, whether he be Republican, Democrat, or Progressive, will applaud Mr. Washburn's loyal, persistent, and evergreen affection for one to whom he gave his heart many years ago."

+ N Y Times 21:112 Mr 26 '16 300w

"The most valuable parts of the book are those which trace Mr. Roosevelt's attitude towards the interests of the laboring class and show the influences which led to his advocacy of the recall of judicial decisions."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:360 Je '16 110w

"Both friends and opponents of the ex-president will find Mr. Washburn's analysis and comments entertaining and thought-provoking."

+ R of Rs 53:498 Ap '16 70w

+ Spec 117:376 S 30 '16 120w

Spring'd Republican p15 J1 16 '16 1000w

"A direct, businesslike, and readable biography, coloured throughout by the loyal admiration of a friend."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p442 S 14 '16 180w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:271 Je '16 50w

WASHBURN, EDWARD WIGHT. Introduction to the principles of physical chemistry from the standpoint of modern atomistics and thermodynamics; a course of instruction for students intending to enter physics or chemistry as a profession. il $3.50 McGraw 541 15-24872

"This volume constitutes a marked departure from the conventional method of treatment which most authors have followed under the influence of the early spirit of physical chemistry which found concrete expression in Ostwald's 'Lehrbuch der allgemeinen chemie.' . . . The division of the subject-matter is excellent, on the whole, but it is to be noted that the greater portion of electrochemistry is omitted. Gaseous equilibria, in fact, equilibria in general, with the exception of electrolytic equilibria, are treated very briefly. . . . Nearly all of the important physical chemical relationships are expressed in mathematical form. The derivation of those relationships which are based on thermodynamic principles is given in an appendix."—Science

"Teachers and students alike should be grateful to Prof. Washburn for supporting the use in physical chemistry of the differential and integral calculus, which he introduces freely in the work now under review. . . . The chapters on electro-chemistry are decidedly good, but we should prefer, for teaching purposes, a different order. Equilibrium, especially in solutions, is treated with a thoroughness unusual in introductory textbooks. Mention is made of many recent advances in physical chemistry, and valuable references to literature help to make up for the rather scanty account given of some sections of the subject. There are brief biographical footnotes, numerous cross-references, and problems for practice in calculation. The printer's errors are few and not at all serious. This excellent work is well worthy of the earnest study of both teachers and students." F. W. Gray
+ Nature 97:277 Je 1 '16 500w

"The treatment of the subject is distinctly along original lines. The book is well written, and the subject-matter is presented in a manner which retains the interest of the reader. A large number of very excellent figures are given, many of them being original. The numerous problems appearing throughout the text are well selected. The biographical references will prove of interest to the student. The volume should find its way generally into the chemist's library. In the hands of a competent instructor it should prove an admirable text for classroom use." C. A. Kraus
+ Science n s 43:604 Ap 28 '16 1000w

WASHBURN, STANLEY. Victory in defeat; the agony of Warsaw and the Russian retreat. $1 Doubleday 940.91 16-9554

As an American and the special correspondent for the London Times Mr. Washburn had considerable access to at least the rear of the Russian fighting lines. "He presents an account of the campaign in Galicia and the retreat through Poland. The book is a detailed narrative of the causes and effects of the military operations with a technical explanation of the method of the retreat, its significance and its accomplishments, in the eyes of pursuer and pursued. . . . Several maps amplify the text and show the shifting of positions up to November, 1915, when the winter lines were established which have since been maintained or yielded, if slightly, to the Russian offensive. An unrelated chapter discusses the possibilities of American trade with Russia, which Mr. Washburn calls 'an empire of American opportunity.' (Springfield Republican)

"Largely reprinted from the Chicago Tribune."

A L A Bkl 13:28 O '16

"America has often been talked of as the goal of the hard-worked, oppressed Russian peasant. Today, if we would believe Mr. Stanley Washburn, war correspondent for the London Times with the Russian army, Russia is America's land of the future." D. L. M.
+ Boston Transcript p6 My 13 '16 830w

Ind 86:399 Je 5 '16 120w

"It is conceptual, diagrammatic, massive, with pictures of mobile forces, bending and adjusting themselves to stresses and strains. There is a good deal of first-rate strategic analysis in Mr. Washburn's little book. He visualizes the condition of the entire line, with fine journalistic intuition catches the spirit of the retreating army. He explains the reasons for the retreat."

+ New Repub 7:125 Je 3 '16 500w

"The chapter on the commercial opportunities that Russia now offers to this country is well worth the study of every one interested in the extension of American trade. Although Mr. Washburn presents the Russian side of the campaign he treats their opponents fairly and impartially. . . . But his work suffers deplorably from the haste with which it must have been written and put through the presses."

+ N Y Times 21:248 Je 18 '16 800w

R of Rs 53:627 My '16 90w

Springfield Republican p17 My 2 '16 300w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p363 Ag 3 '16 300w

Wis Lib Bull 12:270 Ja '16 50w

WASHINGTON Square plays. (Drama league ser. of plays) il *75c Doubleday 812 16-23444

Four plays from the repertory of the Washington Square players of New York have been chosen by the Drama league as worthy of a place in this series. There is an introduction by Walter Prichard Eaton in which the place of the one-act play on the American stage is considered. In addition there is a preface by Edward Goodman, director of the Washington Square players. The plays themselves are noteworthy as representative of the work of the younger American dramatists. Two of them "The clod," by Lewis Beach and "Overtones," by Alice Gerstenberg, have passed from the repertory theatre to the vaudeville stage. The two others are "Eugenically speaking," by Edward Goodman; and "Helena's husband," by Philip Moeller.

WATSON, JOHN R., and REES, ARTHUR J.
Hampstead mystery. *$1.35 (1c) Lane 16-21060

Printed in straggling letters on cheap writing paper, this note comes to Scotland Yard: "Sir Horace Fewbanks was murdered last night. Who did it I don't know so it is no use trying to find out who I am. You will find his dead body in the library at Riversbrook. He was shot through the heart." All of this proves on investigation to be true. Scotland Yard sets in motion the machinery that should solve the mystery, but as usual in stories of the kind, an amateur detective provides the solution.

+ Spec 117:837 D 30 '16 10 w

"The story is well developed and the interest is highly stimulated throughout."

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 240w

WATSON, VIRGINIA CRUSE. Princess Pocahontas. il *$2.50 Penn 16-21140

"A tale of the beautiful Indian girl, in which facts and romance are combined. A feature of the book is the nine full-page colored illustrations by George Wharton Edwards."—N Y Times

"The author has supplied the atmosphere but has not overdrawn the picture. An attractive gift book for children about twelve."

+ A L A Bkl 13:186 Ja '17

+ Nation 103:518 N 30 '16 80w

+ N Y Times 21:525 N 26 '16 40w

WATSON, WILLIAM. Climbing plants; with introd. by W. Robinson. (Present-day gardening) il *$1 (3½c) Stokes 716.2 (Eng ed A15-2758)

An English work devoted to the place of climbing plants in gardens. Contents: Climbing plants in gardens and in nature; Hardy climbers; Greenhouse climbers; Stove climbers; Construction of pergolas; Climbers for verandahs, house walls, and arbours; Climbers on trees; Climbing roses; Clematis; Ivies; Vines; Ornamental gourds; Aroids; Climbing orchids; Alphabetical list of genera. There are eight plates in color and sixteen in black and white.

+ Ath 1915,2:147 Ag 28 650w

"The name of Mr. William Watson on the title-page of a gardening book is a sufficient guarantee of the accuracy of its contents, and this handy volume on climbing plants is a most welcome addition to gardening literature." F. C.

+ Nature 96:140 O 7 '15 200w

WATSON, WILLIAM. Pencraft. *$1 (7c) Lane 804 16-23960

Mr. Watson's "plea for the older ways" is a plea for literature for its own sake. In an American publisher's advertisement he has read of "that now discredited word literary." His purpose here is to restore the word to its original position of dignity and honor.

+ A L A Bkl 13:213 F '17

+ Ath p576 D '16 750w

"Will give pleasure to the little brotherhood of good writers, and will perhaps provoke yawns and witticisms from the younger generation of penmen."

+ Nation 103:568 D 14 '16 400w

"It is doubtful whether any sincere lover of literature will cavil with the essential spirit of Mr. Watson's criticism, but in some of its concrete applications—reflecting naturally the critic's individual tastes and preferences—agreement is much more difficult."

+ N Y Times 21:546 D 10 '16 870w

"Quite apart from the fact that 'Pencraft' is in itself, if not 'literature,' a choice and fine exemplification of the art which the novel term describes, it is true that the author by merely launching this term, with its needful expository sails and tackle, upon the sea of literary discussion has done a real service to criticism."

+ No Am 205:147 Ja '17 800w

+ Sat R 122:483 N 18 '16 900w

"Mr. Watson's protest is, in the main, thoroughly sound, though his examples are not wholly fortunate."

+ Spec 118:48 Ja 13 '17 650w

"His feeling is held under subjugation to critical judgment, but it nevertheless lends vitality and poetic richness to the most bracing and sensible literary admonition the year has produced."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 10 '16 1750w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p539 N 9 '16 100w

WATSON, WILLIAM HENRY LOWE. Adventures of a despatch rider. map *$1.25 (2c) Dodd 940.91 (Eng ed 16-1674)

This book is based on the letters written by the author to his mother during the first eight months of the war. He says, "I have filled in the gaps these letters leave with narrative, worked the whole into some sort of connected account, and added maps and an index." In an introductory letter to a friend and fellow soldier he makes a boyish apology for the intrusion of the personal element, "It may not interest you to know when I had a pork-chop—though, as you now realize, on active service a pork-chop is extremely important—but it interested my mother." A tragic touch that brings home the cruelty of war is given by the announcement of this friend's death. The author points out that the letters were censored. "This book contains nothing but the truth, but not the whole truth," he says.

A L A Bkl 13:166 Ja '17

+ Boston Transcript p6 S 27 '16 420w

Cleveland p138 N '16 30w

+ Ind 88:72 O 9 '16 130w

+ Nation 103:425 N 2 '16 530w

WATSON, WILLIAM HENRY LOWE—Cont.

"Has a peculiarly appealing and pathetic quality because of the youthfulness that is evident throughout its pages. . . . Insignificant as much of the matter is in any large sense, it is wonderfully vivid and it helps to give a truthful and accurate conception of life just behind the fighting lines."

+ N Y Times 21:345 S 3 '16 550w

R of Rs 54:461 O '16 40w

Spec 116:262 F 19 '16 170w

WATTS, MARY STANBERY. Rudder. il $*1.50

(1c) Macmillan

16-6609

The story opens with a college commencement at Cambridge (Ohio) and is thereafter more or less concerned with the fortunes of two of the graduates, Amzi Loring, class champion in athletics and T. Chauncey Devitt, valedictorian. Fortune makes of Amzi, whose father is a millionaire, a professional baseball player, and of T. Chauncey, son of an Irish contractor, a "peerless" orator of the "silver-tongued" order. It is called by the author a novel with several heroes, but it is questionable whether either of these two young men has a right to the title. There is, however, a heroine, the girl who marries Amzi. The marriage is doomed to failure from the beginning and Eleanor finds her way out of it and into practical charity work. An incidental character whose personality wins for him a high place in the reader's regard is Marshall Cook, Eleanor's uncle, a successful novelist, whose occasional visits to his home city coincide with events narrated and thru whose eyes much of the action is seen.

+ A L A Bkl 12:484 J1 '16

"In 'The rudder' Mrs. Watts creates one delightful personage—Marshall Cook the novelist; he is an American cousin of Mr. De Morgan's Alfred Challis. But he is there as observer and interpreter, not as protagonist; and his keenness is expended upon people in whom we half cease to believe as soon as we see them in important actions." Wilson Follett

— + Atlan 118:502 O '16 50w

"'The rudder' appears to have no big idea or big feeling behind it. . . . The discouraging thing about the book is that it contains no human figure—not one among them all—who strongly engages the reader's sympathy and interest." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 43:318 My '16 500w

"The novelist has apparently no sense of avoidance of repetition. . . . We are certain that Mrs. Watts does not intend her novel to be a study of intellectual dishonesty and insincerity, yet it is consistently pervaded by those characteristics. . . . To read 'The rudder' is like reading scrappy news of unimportant events in the lives of a group of people as they are chronicled in the daily papers. And the style of the novel exhibits all too frequently traces of that yellow style which is doing its best to lower the English language from its high estate. 'He leaned back, champing his toothpick with conviction.' . . . The story contains too many heroes, too many heroines, too many plots. The reader becomes dazed by them; his wits are bewildered." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 1650w

— Cath World 103:692 Ag '16 200w

"Almost everybody feels that there is something worth while in life,—something beyond mere stoical endurance; and if one's novelist does not perceive anything, one believes there must be a false view somewhere. So I think that Mrs. Watts has this time not got her focus quite right." E. E. Hale

— + Dial 60:552 Je 8 '16 680w

"Except for a superfluous and obvious love-story, which provides a smooth ending for the book, the whole novel—broader and better balanced than the others—is a well-constructed picture of thoroly interesting people."

+ Ind 86:66 Ap 10 '16 160w

+ Lit D 52:1462 My 20 '16 420w

"The total effect of the book is feebly ironic, rather than soundly realistic. The fatal fact is that neither persons nor action seem quite worth our trouble."

— Nation 102:380 Ap 6 '16 300w

"Dreadily complacent book."

— New Repub 9:57 N 11 '16 380w

"Reading one of her books, particularly this latest book, is a great deal like going to visit a city of the middle west and becoming more or less involved in the fortunes of several groups of its citizens. Mrs. Watts's work is the work of one who sees and describes with telling detail and an arresting vividness what she sees. She is the observer, not the creator. . . . Her books are clever and they are true to life; yet they are not life."

+ N Y Times 21:106 Mr 26 '16 1000w

"It has not been like reading a book, it has been like a sojourn 'back home.' It does not matter whether our home city is Hartford or Cincinnati, the people of 'The rudder' are our people." M. L. Eaton

+ Pub W 89:1319 Ap 15 '16 900w

"An intimate study of a group of American men, and the effect of environment and changing conditions upon their lives and affairs. Women have a relatively small place in it."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 16 '16 450w

"Less noteworthy in its theme than its predecessors but as convincing in its character study."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 110w

WATTS, RALPH LEVI. Vegetable garden.

(Outing handbooks) il *70c (2c) Outing pub.

635

15-22248

The author of this manual is dean and director of the School of agriculture and experiment station of the Pennsylvania state college. He gives in 10 chapters plain exhaustive directions which should cover questions raised by the amateur who may wish to become professional. There are helpful chapters on hotbeds, fertilizers, marketing, home gardens, etc., besides definite cultural directions for each vegetable.

+ Ind 86:403 Je 5 '16 40w

N Y Br Lib News 3:31 F '16

WATTS-DUNTON, THEODORE. Old familiar faces. $*1.75 Dutton 820.4

A16-566

Essays reprinted from the Athenæum. There are studies of Tennyson, Swinburne, William Morris, George Borrow, and others. "In 'Old familiar faces' Watts-Dunton is insistent on the sanctity of the private life of a man of letters."

The world is the poorer for Watts-Dunton's oversensitive conception of the duties of friendship." (Ath)

A L A Bkl 12:381 My '16

"We feel some natural diffidence in reviewing articles which must appear old familiar friends, if not faces, to readers of the Athenæum. But we will venture to say this, that their reperusal confirms Watts-Dunton's position as a thoroughly equipped critic who took as his standards the classics and the laws of English prosody, not the passing modes of the circulating library."

+ Ath p16 Ja '16 650w

"As a series of critical portraits of eminent Englishmen of art and letters, as a revelation of its writer's own critical characteristics, and as an addition to the meagre library of Theodore Watts-Dunton contributions to literature, this volume of 'Old familiar faces' is worthy, a permanent place among literary personalia." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 1 '16 1350w

"A record of friendship from first to last." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 60:272 Mr 16 '16 1550w

+ Ind 86:252 My 15 '16 160w

+ Lit D 52:1104 Ap 15 '16 750w

"It will sound heretical to some admirers of Watts-Dunton the critic, but we have no great admiration of his philosophy, while holding him quite delightful as a gossip. At least, there is something rather incongruous in the philosophical paragraphs that are plumped here and there into these otherwise light and personal articles."

+ — Nation 102:363 Mr 30 '16 350w

"In this book Watts-Dunton has drawn that part of his own character which explains why he had so many good friends." P. L.

+ New Repub 6:321 Ap 22 '16 1100w

"In style these essays are a delight—so clear, so delicate, with a simplicity that holds all the charm of direct conversation. They should take their place among permanent contributions to English literary criticism."

+ N Y Libraries 5:124 Ag '16 220w

Pittsburgh 21:208 Ap '16 20w

+ R of Rs 53:629 My '16 110w

+ Sat R 120:591 D 18 '15 1150w

"Americans who see Watts-Dunton's personality reflected in these chapters may be reminded of Charles Eliot Norton. In both men the love of letters was connected with high-mindedness and delicacy, as well as with a profound humanism of character. It is one value of 'Old familiar faces' that it reminds us of a period when men of letters were great personalities."

+ Springfield Republican p15 F 27 '16 1100w

WAUGH, JOSEPH LAING. Betty Grier. Il
*$1.25 (2½c) McKay 16-26550

A Scotch story in which an old nurse is the central character. Her "Maister Weelum," who had been her charge in childhood, returns to her in manhood, broken down in health and in need of her kindly ministrations. "Maister Weelum," who is William Russell, an Edinburgh attorney, tells the story himself, giving first place to Betty, but finding room too for the affairs of other village people and for the happy romance that grows out of his meeting with charming Désirée Stuart.

+ A L A Bkl 12:484 Jl '16

"Includes a delightful character study of a Scottish nurse. Here may be found the sentiment as well as the sly humour of Scotland in an abundance of expressive words and phrases."

+ Ath 1915:2:481 D 25 110w

"A quiet, restful story."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 12 '16 290w

WAXWEILER, ÉMILE. Belgium and the great powers: her neutrality explained and vindicated. *$1 (3½c) Putnam 940.91 16-21546

The author's purpose in this book is to answer three charges brought by Germany against Belgium: (1) "From the standpoint of a wise policy, Belgium's resistance is incomprehensible"; (2) "Belgium resisted because she was pledged"; (3) "Belgium was not called upon to resist, for her territory was not inviolable." The book supplements the author's "Belgium, neutral and loyal," published in 1915. He says: "A year has passed; upon no point, however small, has it been possible to contradict the facts set forth in that work. What I have still to say is an addition to what I have already said, and neither corrects nor modifies it in any respect." The French edition is issued under the title "Le procès de la neutralité belge."

"The eminence of the author entitles it to a high place in the mass of written matter, claims and counter-claims, that have come to light in the last two years. Dr. Waxweiler was a director of the Solvay Institute of sociology at the University of Brussels and a member of the Royal academy of Belgium."

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 2 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:185 D '16

"Like 'Belgium under the German eagle,' this book will take its place among the documents of the war's history. It is both convincingly and spiritedly written."

+ N Y Times 21:497 N 19 '16 450w

R of Rs 54:573 N '16 90w

"A technical work which will increase in importance as the years pass."

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 17 '16 80w

WEBB, CLEMENT CHARLES JULIAN. Group theories of religion and the individual. *$1.75 Macmillan 204 A16-938

"In 1914 Mr. Clement Webb delivered a course of lectures at Oxford on certain sociological theories of religion. In their present form they are still lectures. They contain a most interesting commentary for anyone who is reading the works of Durkheim and Lévy-Bruhl; and they constitute a very able polemic. . . . When we examine Mr. Webb's objections one by one, we find that they may be summed up in two classes: one religious, the other philosophical. He objects on religious grounds, because he believes that the tendency of the group theory is to reduce all religion to illusion, to 'objectifications of feeling.' He objects on philosophical ground, because the theory of the 'social origin of the categories' seems to invalidate all human knowledge."—Int J Ethics

"It is as a polemic that the book must be read; not as an exposition or a detailed criticism." T. S. Eliot

+ — Int J Ethics 27:115 O '16 880w

N Y Br Lib News 3:123 Ag '16

St Louis 14:384 N '16

"Mr. Webb might have strengthened his case on this side; but his book is a very timely protest against a treatment of the whole subject of faith which insidiously assumes that of course there is really nothing in it."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p269 Je 8 '16 950w

WEBB, CLEMENT CHARLES JULIAN. Studies in the history of natural theology. *$3.40 Oxford 210 16-6131

This work "contains the substance of three courses of lectures delivered by the author in Oxford. The first course was a general introduction to the subject; the second dealt with the natural theology of Plato as expounded in the tenth book of the 'Laws'; and the third with mediaeval natural theology as represented by St. Anselm, Abelard, St. Thomas Aquinas, Raymond of Sebonde, Pietro Pomponazzi, and Lord Herbert of Cherbury. In the introduction the relation between religion and philosophy is incidentally discussed, and it is maintained that to philosophy the religious experience, like every other form of experience, supplies data."—Hibbert J

"These lectures are a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject. The few points which had been noted for criticism are relatively unimportant and do not detract from the general excellence of the work. Even radical dissent from some of the positions taken by the author would not justify a different verdict. Mr. Webb has given us an illuminating discussion which no one interested in the great themes of which it treats can affect to ignore. It is especially commended to those, if there be any such, who cherish the conviction that natural theology is a thing that has had its day and ceased to be." T. B. Foster

+ Am J Theol 20:444 Jl '16 1300w

"The closeness and vivacity of his thought are equally impressive."

+ Ath 1915:1:500 Je 5 1750w

Reviewed by G. D. Hicks

Hibbert J 13:898 Jl '15 420w

"He scans a wide horizon, but his look is fixed mainly on the middle ages, which he interprets with the sure familiarity of a master. . . . It is pleasant to have an interpretation of mediaeval thought from one who not only admits the indebtedness of the schoolmen to the Greeks, but himself knows more of Plato than what the schoolmen can teach."

+ Nation 103:132 Ag 10 '16 1150w

WEBB, ROBERT C. Real Mormonism. *$2 (½c) Sturgis & Walton 298 16-8831

The author's aim, as stated on his title page, is to give "a candid analysis of an interesting but much misunderstood subject in history, life and thought." Mormonism is described as "a system of large things. It is large in claims, large in efforts, large in results, large in reputation, and very large in importance, if judged by the opposition it has evoked. . . . Like all else in this world, however, it has its own side of the matters with which it is concerned, and deserves pure, simple justice, if nothing more. But justice it has never received." The work is divided into seven sections: Mormonism and its founder; The fruits of Mormonism; The teachings of Mormonism; Mormon marriage institutions; The Mormon organization; Truth, justice and Mormonism; Anti-Mormon explanations.

WEBB, ROBERT C.—Continued

Cleveland p106 Ag '16

"This bulky volume presents the Mormon case in good temper, if not convincingly or very interestingly."

+ Ind 86:305 My 22 '16 70w

St Louis 14:385 N '16 20w

"The author quotes freely from hostile critics as well as from Mormon leaders and advocates so that the book covers the subject as fairly as could be expected of a frankly partisan work. . . . He is somewhat diffident about advocating polygamy, but he has a good deal to say in justification of it as consistent with Christianity and as beneficial in its results."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Ag 1 '16 230w

WEBSTER, ANGUS DUNCAN. Tree wounds² and diseases; their prevention and treatment; with a special chapter on fruit trees. il $2.50 (7c) Lippincott 634.9

This English work has been written "with the distinct object in view of bringing home to owners of trees, or those in charge of such, that, at a small outlay of labour and expense, the life-time of old, historic, or accidentally damaged specimens may be greatly extended." (Introd.) Contents: The management of decaying trees; Hollow trunks and their treatment; Supporting heavy and diseased branches; Injured bark on root and stem; Pruning diseased trees; Injurious influences from soil or atmosphere; Fungus growth on trees; Insect attacks and their remedies; Injuries from animals and birds; Fruit trees and their enemies; Preventing disease; Accidents and diseases to which trees are liable; Preservatives and materials. Plates and text illustrations add to the book's value.

Ath p476 O '16 270w

"Any tree lover, even if he is already himself an expert in the business, will welcome Mr. Webster's manual."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p460 S 23 '16 920w

WEBSTER, EDWARD HARLAN. English for business; as applied in commercial, technical and other secondary schools. il $1.20 Newson 652 16-14124

"This work is designed particularly to furnish practical sources of training in English for the large number of pupils in the secondary schools of the country who upon graduation, engage in some business or technical pursuit. . . . The author has given particular attention to oral composition and grammar, with the view of providing a sufficient number of exercises to develop the speaking ability of the pupil."—Springfield Republican

"The book is crammed with practical advice, information, and exercises, not only on the usual topics, but also on advertising, business letters, after-dinner speeches, and journalism. It is a question whether more might not have been accomplished by taking up fewer matters and dealing more thoroughly with each."

+ Nation 103:239 S 7 '16 120w

+ Springfield Republican p6 S 21 '16 350w

WEBSTER, HENRY KITCHELL. Painted scene. il $1.50 (1½c) Bobbs 16-20110

Ten short stories of the theater, eight of them stories of the "Globe" theater in Chicago which figured, it will be remembered, in Mr. Webster's novel, "The real adventure." In one of the stories there is a young man from the east who comes to the Globe seeking "the real dope about musical comedy"—he called it "the truth." And that, it will appear to an outsider who knows nothing about it, is what Mr. Webster has given in these ten stories. They are reprinted from the Saturday Evening Post, McClure's and Collier's and the titles are: The painted scene; The spoon tune; Brunette medium; The spring of the year; The high-brow lady; Heart of gold; The redeemer; The only girl; The real dope; How to appreciate Henry.

+ A L A Bkl 13:127 D '16

"By one who knows the field." P. G. Hubert, Jr.

+ Bookm 44:279 N '16 110w

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 3 '17 360w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:270 O 5 '16

+ Ind 88:126 O 16 '16 50w

"The sketches in which the author uses the medium of pathos are those in which he is at his best. 'The spoon tune,' 'The spring of the year,' 'Heart of gold,' and 'How to appreciate Henry,' are especially pleasing."

+ Lit D 53:1481 D 2 '16 130w

"These are excellent examples of the American magazine story. They have the dramatic quality, the picturesqueness, the snap and the kick, which, in the conspicious of 'O. Henry,' have become almost matters of prescription with many publications. They are refreshing for their wholesome treatment of material which has been grossly or morbidly handled by many of Mr. Webster's contemporaries. Here is plenty of uncompromising detail, and yet the book has a charm denied to naturalism."

+ Nation 103:483 N 23 '16 290w

"Sometimes the characters are not realized. Sometimes there is a tendency to 'smartiness' and then the reader wants instead the author's delightful and discriminating comment. The best of the stories, 'Heart of gold' and 'The painted scene,' are full of delicacy, penetration and charm."

+ New Repub 9:133 D 2 '16 190w

+ N Y Times 21:496 N 19 '16 930w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 7 '17 380w

WEBSTER, HENRY KITCHELL. Real adventure. il $1.50 (1c) Bobbs 16-26125

The adventure on which Rose and Rodney embark after an impetuous courtship is marriage. It has an auspicious start, with youth, vitality and love to insure its success. But to Rose the adventure is everything, to Rodney it is only an incident—a big incident to be sure, but one that cannot interfere with the serious business of life. Rose tries to study law in her desire to be a companion to her husband. Her foolish little attempt proves futile. She fails to find an occupation aside from his. Her perfectly appointed house does not afford it; even motherhood does not give her what she needs. So the break comes and she goes away by herself to struggle and to work out the problem alone. The struggle lasts for a year and a half; then comes the beginning of the real adventure, on which husband and wife set out on more nearly equal terms. Chicago gives the story its setting with a few additional scenes in New York and on the "road" with a theatrical company.

"Appeared in condensed form in Everybody's magazine."

+ A L A Bkl 12:292 Mr '16

"I do not know anywhere in recent fiction two characters having more in them of the vital, worth-while stuff of which life is made than his Rose and Rodney Aldrich. The story is so real and so vivid, and it is so solid a contribution to the study of our social life that one regrets the impossibility of saying pleasant things about the manner of its writing. For the style is verbose and slovenly, lacking in distinction and often even in dignity." F. F. Kelly

+ Bookm 43:79 Mr '16 750w

"The fact that the author does not strive for the bizarre while he does achieve the interesting, is one great thing to be said for him; another is, that he doesn't try for a moment try to be European—he is nothing if not American, and he is not ashamed of it; a third is, that he does not try to be up-lifting. He is a story teller with a true gift and a love for narrative, with a keen observation, a keen interest, in human nature and in human development." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 29 '16 600w

"The whole story is improbable and artificial, although it shows clearly what the modern unmoral woman is capable of doing with sentiment alone as her guide."

— Cath World 103:410 Je '16 110w

+ Cleveland p18 Mr '16 90w

"Mr. Webster certainly does one thing worth doing: he takes the real woman's view. Not that all women would do just what his heroine did,—of course not; few would do such things, and not many more would approve of them. But a woman would understand why she does what she does, why she feels as she is said to feel. The problem is still abstract, but the point of view is right. And that (when it comes to thinking) is a very important thing." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 60:214 Mr 2 '16 1650w

+ Ind 85:461 Mr 27 '16 210w

"While we may balk at the acceptance of such wonderful executive ability in one so young and inexperienced, the discussions of personal points of view, and the arguments used by both Rose and Rodney stimulate thought and discussion of the real live problems that confront all of us."

+ Lit D 52:724 Mr 18 '16 230w

"Through the first fifty pages of our acquaintance with Rose Stanton and Rodney Aldrich, we are amazed at their vitality and verisimilitude. But the moment Mr. Webster begins to develop his idea, they begin to suffer vainly in its name. . . . There is much that is suggestive, there are many fragments of truth involved in Mr. Webster's narrative; but we cannot believe his story, because he has enslaved it to a theory, because he has stultified his human figures in order—to interpret life!"

— + Nation 102:257 Mr 2 '16 550w

+ New Repub 6:48 F 12 '16 1750w

+ N Y Times 21:26 Ja 23 '16 1200w

Pittsburgh 21:210 Ap '16 90w

"It's a wonderful tale—this story of how the lazy, beautiful, superficially clever young thing grew in the working out of her problem from a charming child to a woman who knew herself and her powers and her husband—and made him see her ideal of married life as a possibility and a finer thing than he had dreamed." E. P. Wyckoff

+ Pub W 89:189 Ja 15 '16 800w

+ R of Rs 53:245 F '16 130w

"There is, obviously, an absence of reality about the whole situation. Different married types, and homes, are sharply contrasted; Chicago society is thoroughly analyzed; stage life is gone into deeply, and the prejudices of 'society' in a middle-western small city are thrown into high relief. It is for this high-colored narrative, not for the problem, that the novel really exists."

— + Springfield Republican p15 F 6 '16 650w

"Despite its length, it is an absorbing story, and will have special interest for thoughtful readers."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:147 Mr '16 90w

WEBSTER, HUTTON. Rest days; a study in early law and morality. *$3 Macmillan 394 16-12253

"In this work Hutton Webster, professor of social anthropology in the University of Nebraska, presents an enlarged and revised edition of a monograph that appeared in 1911 in the University studies of the institution with which he is associated. In this new edition the author exhibits interesting data with respect to rest days in all parts of the world and in all times of which there are historical records. A special chapter deals with the history of the week, the Babylonian 'Evil days,' and the Hebrew sabbath."—N Y Times

"An important contribution to the history of culture. . . . Professor Webster handles both anthropological and historical data with equal competence." J. T. Shotwell

+ Am Hist R 22:366 Ja '17 750w

"The author hardly makes a statement of fact for which he does not give his authority. One may or may not agree with him in his theory, but we will have to grant that the author has presented facts in abundance. The book commends itself as the product of the best scholarship." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 16 '16 520w

+ Int J Ethics 27:122 O '16 190w

"The volume is a notable contribution to the literature on primitive law or custom."

+ Lit D 53:418 Ag 19 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:107 Jl '16 10w

+ N Y Times 21:369 S 17 '16 90w

+ St Louis 14:430 D '16 40w

+ Spec 117:379 S 30 '16 200w

"This interesting book appears at a moment when the question of periodical holidays as a physical necessity is being put to a searching test, and the evidence seems to be pointing to a falling off in efficiency, if not in output, through driving the working machine too hard."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p353 Jl 27 '16 1950w

"The ground covered in this essay need not be gone over again for a long time. We can go on now, so far as this subject is concerned, from this point. Here is a real block of substance to build with." A. G. Keller

+ Yale R ns 6:422 Ja '17 680w

WEBSTER, NESTA H. Chevalier de Boufflers; a romance of the French revolution. *$4 Dutton

"It is a curious psychological fact that among the many romances which have for their background the French revolution, the most famous of all, that of the Chevalier de Boufflers and the Comtesse de Sabran, has been comparatively unknown, the present biographer of these 'true lovers' being the first to present in comprehensive form the story their voluminous correspondence reveals. . . . The story of their loves is included in three great periods of French history: the old régime, which their childhood and youth knew; . . . the 'golden age,' when seigneurial France swept blindly forward to its tragic fate; and that of the revolution."—Boston Transcript

"Throughout, the changing backgrounds of the romance are finely indicated. Equally clearly are visualized the famous men and women, nobles, prelates, scholars, soldiers and litterateurs who thronged the salons of Paris and of Versailles two hundred years and more ago." F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 30 '16 1000w

"This memorial is neither a necessary nor a welcome product, written as it is for the purpose of exploiting and sentimentalizing over a connection maintained for years in defiance of both religious and civil law."

— + Cath World 104:552 Ja '17 90w

"Their letters express the reactions of those vivid days on intense, sincere, and brilliant minds. Their lives are well worth study. Mrs. Webster is to be thanked for presenting them for the first time to English readers in such a thorough and sympathetic way." R: E. Danielson

+ Dial 61:582 D 28 '16 1150w

"The account of the Chevalier's expeditions to Senegal add a touch of the unusual."

+ N Y Times 21:447 O 22 '16 470w

Reviewed by the Earl of Cromer

+ Spec 117:237 Ag 26 '16 2000w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p234 My 18 '16 1650w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

WEDGWOOD, JULIA. Personal life of Josiah Wedgwood, the potter. il $3.75 Macmillan 16-26228

"Miss Julia Wedgwood died two years ago in her eightieth year, and the preparation and writing of this memoir occupied the last five years of her life. . . . Professor C. H. Herford, of Manchester university, has written for this book an appreciative sketch of her life and character. He has also edited the memoir, and in an introduction has discussed the connection and influence of Wedgwood's artistic work with and upon the culture of his time. An appendix by Dr. J. W. Mellor, principal of the School of technology, Stoke-on-Trent, treats of Wedgwood's work as an industrial chemist. These papers supply what is absent from Miss Wedgwood's book, which keeps pretty closely to its intention of being a personal account of her ancestor, and of his descendants and their friends whom she knew herself or of whom she had heard through their contemporaries. . . . His circle included many of the men who were changing the life of the country by manufactures and science: the Duke of Bridgewater, Brindley, Boulton, Watt, and Priestley."—Sat R

+ A L A Bkl 12:337 Ap '16
+ Sat R 121:495 My 20 '16 1400w
+ Spec 116:441 Ap 1 '16 1550w

WEED, HENRY TOWNSEND. Chemistry in the home. il $1.20 Am. bk. 540 15-16779

"Chemistry in the home' is designed for use in high schools, and, according to the preface, 'aims to train students in scientific thinking, and to give them a fund of information concerning the chemistry of everyday things, related to industries and the home. . . . There are chapters on photography, textiles, dyes, baking powders, oils, fats, and soap, and sixty-eight pages devoted to foods. . . . Statements are made of the laws of definite and multiple proportions; there is a brief chapter on the atomic theory, and another on formulas, equations, and valence. Short descriptions of the preparation and properties of hydrogen, oxygen, and chlorine are given; a few pages are allowed to the metals and their compounds; and other substances usually considered of importance, even in elementary chemistries, are relegated to a final chapter on 'Some common chemicals.'"—Nation

+ A L A Bkl 12:413 Je '16
+ Ind 87:238 Ag 14 '16 30w

"As an introduction to chemistry, its value is extremely slight. There is nothing in this book which will 'train students in scientific thinking.' It may inform, but will not educate; and our high schools are throwing away golden opportunities if they substitute such texts as this for those which offer real instruction in elementary science."

— + Nation 102:sup502 My 4 '16 340w

WEEKS, ARLAND DEYETT. Avoidance of fires. il $60c (2½c) Heath 614.8 16-9287

Arland D. Weeks, professor of education in the North Dakota agricultural college, has prepared this little book on fire prevention for use in schools. The way in which the book is to be used is not prescribed; it may form the basis for a special series of lessons or may be used for correlated work in language, civics or other classes. Some of the chapters are: Why teach fire prevention in school? What fire is; What fire means; Matches and fires; The dangers of kerosene; The dangers of gasoline; Spontaneous combustion; Chimneys and stoves; Christmas trees and bonfires; The celebration of Independence day. Each chapter is followed by suggestions for the recitation, and a bibliography and an index are provided.

"Didactic and not very interesting, but for lack of better material may serve to arouse in the boys and girls an interest in the avoidance of fire waste and fire danger."

+ A L A Bkl 12:463 Jl '16 50w
Cleveland p133 N '16 20w

"An excellent set of questions review each chapter. So great is the call for such training that the wise teacher will welcome the book as an addition to practical civic work."

+ Ind 87:237 Ag 14 '16 50w

"Although designed for use in the school-room the lessons of this suggestive little book might well be taken to heart by the parents."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p19 Ag '16 60w

WELD, LOUIS DWIGHT HARWELL. Marketing of farm products. $1.50 Macmillan 338 16-1411

"This book aims to set forth the fundamental principles of market distribution as applied to the marketing of agricultural products. It begins by pointing out the place that marketing occupies in the general field of economics. It then explains the general organization and methods of marketing, beginning with marketing at country points, and passes on to a description of the methods and functions of the various classes of wholesale dealers. . . . A number of special problems are treated, such as price quotations, transportation, future trading, inspection and grading, public markets, co-operative marketing, etc." (Preface) There is a bibliography of nine pages.

Reviewed by W: R. Camp

+ Am Econ R 6:640 S '16 1400w

+ A L A Bkl 12:320 Ap '16

"Professor Weld's book in considerable part is a defence of the existing system. The advantage of speculation, the astonishing cheapness of transportation, and the enormous difficulty of the task of marketing the numerous foodstuffs are adequately described. On the other hand, there is very little of constructive suggestion."

+ Nation 102:sup498 My 4 '16 270w

"A valuable feature in so new a subject is that full references are given for all the data." E. J. R.

+ Nature 98:245 N 30 '16 110w

N Y Br Lib News 3:40 Mr '16 90w

"Author is (1916) professor of business administration in Sheffield scientific school, Yale university, and was formerly chief of Division of agricultural economics, University of Minnesota."

+ Pittsburgh 21:187 Ap '16 80w

"Considered by good authority the best book on the subject. A simple exposition of the whole field, treated untechnically by an expert."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:144 Mr '16 30w

WELD, LOUIS DWIGHT HARWELL. Studies in the marketing of farm products. (Studies in social sciences) il pa 50c Univ. of Minn. 338 15-8854

"Of the eight papers represented, Dr. Weld contributed the first, 'Market distribution,' the seventh, 'Coöperative marketing of grain in western Canada,' and the eighth, 'The food supply of the Iron Range.' The other papers deal with 'The marketing of live-stock products in Minnesota' (by K. F. Warner), 'Coöperative potato marketing in Minnesota' (by O. B. Jessness), 'The marketing of Minnesota poultry' (by S. H. Thompson), 'Milk distribution in Minneapolis and St. Paul' (by W. L. Cavert), and 'Minneapolis central city market' (by R. M. Peterson), and consists of studies made under the direction of Dr. Weld by his students. The central point of interest in these studies is the determination of what portion of the price which the consumer pays for agricultural products the farmer secures. . . . Professor Weld believes that the coöperative movement has assumed such proportions in Minnesota, at least, that it is in need of direction rather than encouragement."—Am J Soc

Reviewed by J: M. Gillette

+ Am J Soc 21:104 Jl '15 630w

"It comprises both a careful compilation of data and an attempt to interpret these data in terms of results achieved."

+ A L A Bkl 12:218 F '16

"Every serious student of the problem of agricultural marketing methods should welcome this substantial contribution to the somewhat scanty literature of the subject. The various students who participated in this work were of different degrees of maturity and training, and allowance for this fact is to be made in judging the different contributions. The different papers contain price tables of considerable interest, and numerous charts and two illustrations materially supplement the text." E. G. Nourse

+ J Pol Econ 23:634 Je '15 800w

WELLMAN, WALTER. German republic. *$1
(4c) Dutton 940.91 16-14355

The author begins with an analysis of the German mind and of the astounding spectacle of national unity presented by the German people at the outbreak of the war. It is attributed to the survival in a modern nation of the tribal spirit. Germany is "the greatest tribe in the world." But after the first few chapters the discussion enters the realm of speculation. Using the present awakening of new forces, which report says is now taking place in Germany, as a starting point, the author assumes the establishment of a democratic form of government after the war and outlines its principles.

A L A Bkl 13:166 Ja '17

Army and Navy Journal 53:1513 Jl 22 '16 90w

Reviewed by F. F. Kelly

Bookm 43:629 Ag '16 370w

Boston Transcript p6 Jl 19 '16 420w

"The book was put forward in all seriousness, but the most that can be said for it is that it injects a touch of humor into a grim subject."

Dial 61:357 N 2 '16 190w

"If Mr. Wellman's forecast of the future comes true he will deserve to be called the greatest of prophets, for nothing is more improbable."

Ind 88:27 O 2 '16 110w

"Whatever the reader of Mr. Wellman's book may think of the author's crudities of style, of his knowledge of Germany, whether deep or shallow, or of his gifts as a prophet, there can be no doubt that Mr. Wellman expresses the earnest wish of many who honestly consider themselves loyal friends of the German people."

Nation 103:358 O 12 '16 230w

N Y Times 21:266 Jl 2 '16 980w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 60w

Survey 37:342 D 23 '16 330w

WELLS, CAROLYN. Bride of a moment. *$1.25
(2c) Doran 16-16389

One minute after the conclusion of the marriage service, Ethel Moulton drops dead at the altar. She has plainly been shot, for there is a bullet hole in her temple, but no one in the crowded church has heard a sound. Suspicion falls first on the bridegroom, who is in love with the bridesmaid, then on the best man who was his cousin's [the bride's] heir. When the conventional detective has exhausted all the clues offered, Alan Ford, one of the new type of psychological experts, is called in and the crime is fixed on one man on whom suspicion has not fallen.

+ — Boston Transcript p6 Ag 30 '16 210w

"In all her several tales of crime and its detection there is none which exceeds this in the ingenuity of its plot machinery and in the cleverness with which the reader is kept on false scents while the evidence is accumulated with which to surprise him and capture the real villain."

+ N Y Times 21:321 Ag 20 '16 680w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 20 '16 190w

WELLS, CAROLYN. Curved blades. Il *$1.35
(1c) Lippincott 16-5580

The inmates of Miss Carrington's house at the time of the murder are Pauline Stuart, her niece, Anita Frayne, her secretary, Gray Haviland, her cousin, and two guests, Stephen Illsley and Count Henri Charlier. Miss Carrington is a tyrant and her display of temper and other disagreeable qualities in the first two chapters forestall any regrets that might arise when she is found dead in the third. All of the group around her are of course implicated in the murder mystery, which Fleming Stone is called in to solve. Fleming Stone, who has worked out many a previous mystery for Miss Wells, is shown in a new guise in this story, for he falls in love with one of the two charming girls.

A L A Bkl 12:485 Jl '16

"She rather gives away the denouement, as far as the correct theory of the crime goes, before the final chapter is reached. But all in all it is a good readable yarn of its order."

C. H. O.

+ — Boston Transcript p25 Mr 22 '16 600w

"Miss Wells's knowledge of coroners' inquests and legal proceedings is limited."

+ — Ind 86:66 Ap 10 '16 60w

"The reader will not be satisfied until he reaches the final explanation, but he will have to close his eyes, and let his brain go off duty for a time."

+ — Lit D 52:910 Ap 1 '16 250w

"The reader will find the story interesting. It is ingenious, well worked out, and more plausible than the average tale of its kind."

+ N Y Times 21:82 Mr 12 '16 300w

Reviewed by R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 89:1027 Mr 18 '16 670w

+ — Sat R 122:138 Ag 5 '16 140w

"Quite the best of Miss Wells's Fleming Stone series."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 180w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p311 Je 29 '16 50w

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. Mr. Britling sees it through. Il *$1.50 (1c) Macmillan 16-18291

This novel of England in wartime which has been running serially in Collier's has a particular interest for Americans, for it is thru the eyes of an American visitor that Mr. Wells first shows us Matching's Easy, with its light-hearted, inconsequential life running with such ordered smoothness in spite of its seeming disorder. All thru the story Mr. Direck remains as representative of America, torn between two conflicting states of mind by the war, in the same way that Herr Heinrich, the German tutor, simple, methodical to the point of absurdity, yet in his way lovable, stands for Germany, the Germany that has been Prussianized. But in its essentials this is the story of Mr. Britling himself. It is in the person of Mr. Britling that we see what the war is doing to England. War does its worst to Mr. Britling in taking from him his best loved son, but it compels him to look beyond personal love, beyond the borders of nationalism to find a meaning which will justify the sacrifice.

+ A L A Bkl 13:87 N '16

"When we leave him, sobered by the war and the loss of his son, he is spending much of his time redrawing the map of Europe, and still committing his vapourings to paper. 'Vapourings' will probably appear a harsh word to apply to many of the noble sentiments which find expression, more particularly in the closing pages. Yet surely the term is applicable to the outpourings of a man who, intent on putting the world right, fails to see that one of the roots of the trouble lies in the lives of thousands of his fellows who are, like himself, big consumers and small producers."

+ — Ath p472 O '16 500w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:257 N '16 800w

"Its quality is journalistic, and therefore largely ephemeral, but it is none the less a valuable contribution to the great mass of writing brought forth by current events. It is many-sided, and perhaps because its form is fiction it expresses better than can be signified in any other way the vigorous thought of the time." E. F. E.

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE—Continued

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 23 '16 1900w

+ Cath World 104:405 D '16 310w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:314 O 19 '16 1050w

"But the old Wells magic is no sooner revived than a rude hand brushes over it and blots it out. This quick flop into religion, this opening of the flood-gates by the letter to the parents of the dead Heinrich, this unstemmable plunge into the emotional abyss, with never a recovery or hint of a recovery, takes the breath away in dismay." Randolph Bourne

— + Dial 61:563 D 28 '16 1550w

+ Ind 88:162 O 23 '16 800w

+ Lit D 53:1341 N 18 '16 380w

"Mr. Britling is a transparent portrait of Mr. Wells—an amazingly frank portrait. He has never before produced so engaging a likeness of himself. We are not speaking about his private life, of which we know nothing, but of his ideas, his imaginative sympathies, his character as a man of letters."

+ Nation 103:397 O 26 '16 2800w

+ New Repub 8:248 O 7 '16 1700w

"He has come nearer than any other writer to making a novel out of the war—not out of one campaign, not out of one soldier's adventures, but out of the war as a whole. . . . This is the most thoughtfully and carefully worked-out book that Mr. Wells has given us for many a year. . . . He who has read it seems to have passed through a strange emotional experience rather than merely to have enjoyed a work of fiction."

+ N Y Times 21:373 S 24 '16 1650w

"Beyond question the greatest novel of the year."

+ N Y Times 21:502 N 26 '16 230w

"The book really does give one courage, and it actually makes one glad to be a man and to be alive in the year 1916."

+ No Am 204:939 D '16 1000w

+ Outlook 114:570 N 8 '16 600w

+ Pittsburgh 21:483 N '16 60w

"The incredulous doubt of the first days of the war, the official confusion and muddlement of the first months, the mounting tide of quiet patriotism and self-sacrifice are vividly pictured. The note isn't forced." Fremont Rider

+ Pub W 98:42 S 16 '16 580w

"It is a remarkable commentary—the most remarkable that has appeared—on the sorrows, pains, and consternations of that part of the war which is likely to leave the deepest mark on the memories of Englishmen. . . . The end of the book is the tenderest and truest part and touches nobility."

+ — Spec 117:476 O 21 '16 1850w

"What Mr. Britling does is true to this character (evidently a composite of several living men of letters, including, clearly, Lowes Dickinson and, possibly, Mr. Wells himself) for he does nothing but talk. . . . Mr. Britling's experiences have no psychological depth. A novel in an artistic sense the book is not. But parts of it make very good reading."

+ — Springfield Republican p13 O 8 '16 1050w

"After a plentiful crop of novels in which the mightiest blow that has ever fallen upon the world has been used for giving a fresh appeal to old vulgarity, the free sincerity of this book, with its unflinching distinction of tone, is beautiful enough even to cover its staring defects."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p451 S 21 '16 1050w

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. What is coming? a European forecast. *$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 940.91 16-12241

The first difficulty in the way of establishing world peace is that it is nobody's business in particular. Everybody wants peace, but nobody is responsible for it. More intelligence is concentrated on the manufacture of cigarettes or hairpins than upon the establishment of a world peace. For hope in such a situation Mr. Wells turns to war itself. As it grows more terrible, more impersonal, less considerate of noncombatants, it may tend to create the state of mind and the energy that will in turn create the needed organization for a world federation. He believes that the present war is already having that effect. His prediction as to the war itself is that it has now entered on its last stage, having become a matter of exhaustion, thus vindicating Jean de Bloch's theory that any great modern war between fairly equal powers would end in a deadlock. Other matters included in the author's forecast for the future are: The new education; What the war is doing for women; The new map of Europe; The outlook for the Germans.

+ A L A Bkl 13:28 O '16

"To read Mr. Wells's book would widen the outlook in a most salutary way of a great many good Americans."

+ Bookm 43:626 Ag '16 750w

Boston Transcript p4 My 31 '16 1700w

"One of the best chapters, 'The outlook for the Germans,' describes the essence of the difficulty so clearly that we hope it may have some effect even on Germans who chance to read it." T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 61:53 J1 15 '16 1700w

+ Ind 87:313 Ag 28 '16 570w

Lit D 53:1344 N 18 '16 430w

Nation 103:157 Ag 17 '16 930w

"Mr. Wells thinks that the world peace is coming soon through universal self-sacrifice; it is a guileless notion. Peace will come to the world by such a loss of its wealth as people do not think about—the exhaustion of its coal." J. F.

— Nature 97:478 Ag 10 '16 800w

N Y Br Lib News 3:105 J1 '16

"Of widest interest and consequence are Mr. Wells's study and discussion of those present international tendencies, nascent needs and movements toward friendship out of which will have to grow, whose probable growth, indeed, he forecasts, some sort of leaguering together of the nations looking toward a greater measure of peace than the world has heretofore enjoyed. . . . In 'The outlook for the Germans' there is some fresh and unconventional writing about Germany and the German character, entirely destitute of ill-feeling, prejudice, and narrowness, that will stimulate to thinking about war problems along new lines."

+ — N Y Times 21:221 My 28 '16 1500w

"Some of Mr. Wells's views are not unfamiliar; others are strongly colored with socialistic desires. But the shrewd, plausible, imaginative, and hopeful way in which these views are set forth makes the book 'What is coming?' a most enjoyable and suggestive discussion of post-war problems."

+ No Am 204:303 Ag '16 1200w

Reviewed by Lyman Abbott

Outlook 113:457 Je 28 '16 1750w

Pittsburgh 21:361 J1 '16 60w

R of Rs 54:117 J1 '16 60w

Spec 117:133 J1 29 '16 570w

"Mr. Wells's treatment is light and superficial; he rambles or rattles pleasantly on. Obviously such a book does not invite serious criticism. If it did the critic would hardly know where to begin or end, for it bristles with mis-statements of fact, disputable assumptions, and unsound inferences. But that matters very little, provided that readers do not take it too seriously."

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p244 My 25 '16 1000w

Wis Lib Bull 12:321 J1 '16 140w

WELLS, JOHN EDWIN. Manual of the writings in Middle English, 1050-1400; pub. under the auspices of the Connecticut academy of arts and sciences. *$5 Yale univ. press 016.82 16-12265

"This manual makes the first attempt to treat all the extant writings in print, from single lines to the most extensive pieces, composed in English between 1050 and 1400. . . . The work is not a history, but a handbook. It seeks to record the generally accepted views of scholars on pertinent matters, and does not pretend to offer new theories or investigations." (Preface) The contents are arranged under Romances; Tales, Chronicles; Works dealing with contemporary conditions; Homilies and legends; Works of religious information; Proverbs and precepts; Translations and paraphrases of the Bible, and commentaries; Dialogues, debates, catechisms; Science, information, documents; Rolle and his followers; Wycliffe and his followers; Pieces lyrical in impulse or in form; Dramatic pieces; The "Pearl" poet; Gower; Chaucer. Each poem is given separate treatment, with a synopsis of the longer pieces and details as to date, dialect, etc. Extensive bibliographical notes are appended and there is an index. The author is professor of English literature in Beloit college.

Ath p431 S '16 190w

"Not often has an American scholar produced a reference book more urgently needed and more thoroughly welcome. . . . This splendid volume of 941 pages, beautifully and carefully made, betokens either extreme philanthropy on the part of the publishers, or an awakening of interest in the literature of the fascinating late English middle age. . . . There is an abstract of each piece of any importance. At the end a complete bibliography is given in the order of their description, with abundant cross-references which give the work a high degree of efficiency for the student."

+ Dial 61:111 Ag 15 '16 350w

N Y Times 21:333 Ag 27 '16 90w

+ Springfield Republican p6 S 11 '16 190w

"We note one omission. No mention is to be found of 'Iacob and Iosep,' a thirteenth century poem of some importance."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p443 S 14 '16 460w

WELSH, ROBERT EMMET. A-B-C of motion pictures. (Harper's A-B-C ser.) il *50c (2c) Harper 778 16-9041

This A-B-C book has chapters on: History and principles of motion pictures; The mechanics of picture making and showing; Motion-picture subjects; Staging a picture; The factory; The business side; Practical hints on photoplay-writing; Technique of the photoplay; Picture-producing by amateurs. For the benefit of those who aspire to write photoplays the author issues a warning against the rosy advertisements of correspondence schools. Writing the plays is no easy task, and selling them is still more difficult.

"A possible little book because of its price. . . . Not essential but may fill a need if library has not already one of the better books."

+ A L A Bkl 13:111 D '16

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 3 '16 100w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:79 My '16

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:452 D '16 30w

WEMYSS, MARY C. E. (MRS. GEORGE WEMYSS). Jaunty in charge. *$1.35 Dutton 16-16522

"'Jaunty,' the 'short' for Johnson, was 'not exactly a butler,' but served in that capacity in the family of the most unpractical of men. . . . When, after a too brief dream of unalloyed happiness, the young wife of the unpractical Mr. Lawrence died, Jaunty affirmed that with her last breath 'she had looked from him to her children, and from her children back to him,' and thenceforth he considered himself 'in charge' of the two motherless little girls of about 10 and 12 years. How he fulfilled this supposed trust, considered a ridiculous assumption by the village of Panslea, is the subject of Mrs. Wemyss's story."—N Y Times

A L A Bkl 13:128 D '16

"Some of the characters are rather well done but the style of writing is annoyingly silly."

+ Ind 87:33 Jl 3 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 Jl '16

"Delightful story, full of original characters, irradiated with gentle humor, and fragrant with romance."

+ N Y Times 21:283 Jl '16 350w

"A light, whimsical tale, told in a gale of conversations and a labyrinth of subsidiary romances."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 13 '16 210w

"A pleasantly fresh and humorous romance."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:272 Je '16 40w

WERGELAND, AGNES MATHILDE. History of the working classes in France. *$1 (3½c) Univ. of Chicago press 330.9 16-20593

This work is a review of Levasseur's "Histoire des classes ouvrières et de l'industrie en France avant 1789." Its author was professor of history in the University of Wyoming. The preface, signed K. M., says: "This review of Levasseur's great work is not merely an ordinary review. It is rather a running commentary in brief, for which the author himself showed warm appreciation. It throws emphasis on the chief features of the work and arouses the English reader's and the student's desire for further acquaintance with the original. This is the justification for reprinting it as a separate volume. It appeared first in the Journal of Political Economy."

Reviewed by R. F. Clark

+ Am J Soc 22:558 Ja '17 200w

"An interesting piece of work and well written."

+ J Pol Econ 25:128 Ja '17 80w

N Y Br Lib News 3:186 D '16

N Y Call p14 D 10 '16 40w

Reviewed by H. R. Walter

+ Survey 37:341 D 23 '16 300w

WERGELAND, AGNES MATHILDE. Slavery in Germanic society during the middle ages. *$1 (3c) Univ. of Chicago press 326.9 16-20594

This study of the place of slavery in early Germanic society appeared first in the Journal of Political Economy. It is reprinted in book form now after the author's death. The study shows that slavery as it existed in the middle ages was not a form of serfdom, but a separate and distinct status. "That slavery comparatively early passed into serfdom cannot change the fact that for centuries it existed as a recognized and feared state of extreme servitude, of which the harsh features were often German and Roman combined." (Author's preface)

J Pol Econ 24:1024 D '16 90w

N Y Br Lib News 3:186 D '16

"The economic aspects of the institution are especially analyzed and its legal status made clear at successive stages by extensive reference to Germanic law." H. R. Walter

+ Survey 37:341 D 23 '16 90w

WESLEY, JOHN. Letters; with introd. and biographical notes by G. Eayrs, and a chapter on Wesley, his times and work, by Augustine Birrell. *$2.50 Doran (*10s 6d Hodder & Stoughton, London)

"John Wesley had nearly all the qualities of a perfect letter-writer. He wrote clearly, simply, quickly, pungently, with transparent sincerity, and he hardly ever used two words where one would do. His letters, indeed, are the letters of an honest man who conceals nothing, sets down naught in malice, but much in candour, and has for supreme interest nothing but goodness and those who do good. Mr. Eayrs has done a most praiseworthy thing in making a selection of them: it is a large one, not a little of it is comparatively new, and while very few pages lack serious value, a great many contain delightful passages of humour and vivacity."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

Boston Transcript p7 N 25 '16 900w

* This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

WESLEY, JOHN—Continued

"It is their vivacity which makes Wesley's letters immortal. . . . Mr. Bayts has done no slight service in compiling this book. We regret that we are unable to say the same of the chapter contributed by Mr. Birrell."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p461 S 28
'16 1600w

WESSELITSKY, GABRIEL DE. Russia and democracy; the German canker in Russia; with a preface by Henry Cust; published for the Central committee for national patriotic organizations, 62 Charing Cross, London. *75c (5c) Duffield 947

"M. de Wesselitsky is a Russian who has for many years been the London correspondent of the Novoe Vremya. Before that he resided for several years in Berlin and was well acquainted with Bismarck. Moreover, long before the war he took a most active part in promoting a better understanding between Russia and England, and for the last fifteen years has been president of the Foreign press association [in London]. . . .

Put briefly, the argument of the book is this:—that Russia, real Russia, is at heart democratic; that autocracy was acquiesced in as a necessary means of unifying the nation; and that her rulers even when thoroughly patriotic in their desire to civilize and de-orientalize Russia, turned to Germany for the instrument of education and organization, and placed implicit confidence in German agents and German sovereigns." (Spec) The history of Russia is discussed under its rulers in 10 chapters, the first being from the foundation of the Russian state to the accession of Peter the Great (A. D. 862-1682), the last, The present reign: period of progress (1905-1915). These are followed by a Recapitulation, a prophetic Postscript and an Index.

"The book has been issued under the auspices of the Central committee for national patriotic organizations. It is undoubtedly an able disclosure of German intrigues. To be quite fair to the author, his ex-parte statement against Germany does not go to the length of suggesting that the democratic institutions of Russia, such as they are, stand in any danger from German aggression. The omission of inconvenient facts is the principal charge we have to make against the author."

+ Ath 1915.2:94 Ag 7 280w

"An admirably condensed statement of Russian history from the foundation of the state to the present time."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ap 15 '16 290w

+ Ind 88:286 N 13 '16 40w

"As a summarizer of a national history, he is to be congratulated. . . . His attempt to prove German rule in Russia is extremely weak, resting his case upon unsubstantiated assertions of diplomats and friends whose names are not even mentioned." J. G. Glassberg

+ N Y Call p15 N 26 '16 630w

"There are less than a hundred pages to this book; but they are highly explosive for the many popular mistakes and prejudices which still linger among us as to the character of our ally. Reading this short story of Russia's past, the significance of the present war for Russia's future renaissance appears even greater than many of us yet suspected."

+ Sat R 120:113 J1 31 '15 870w

"Some of M. de Wesselitsky's statements undoubtedly lay themselves open to criticism. His treatment of the repressive policy adopted towards the revolutionists is perfunctory even in a work where condensation is inevitable. And he says practically nothing at all about the Jews. But, with all deductions, this is a valuable and enlightening book."

+ Spec 115:244 Ag 21 '15 2350w

WEST, JULIUS, G. K. Chesterton. 11 *$2 (6c) Dodd 16-10835

In this critical study Chesterton is treated of as The romancer, The maker of magic, The critic of large things, The humorist and poet, The religion of a debater, The politician who could not tell the time, and A decadent of sorts.

He is characterized as a "Crusader" who sallied forth "against the political and literary Turks who had unjustly come into possession of a part of the heritage of a Christian people." And Chesterton's methods are further described by this distinction between Crusader and Christian: "The latter attempts to show his love for his enemy by abolishing his unchristianness, the former by abolishing him altogether."

+ A L A Bk 13:32 O '16

"He has a critical understanding of his man, he divides his criticism into proper headings, and expatiates on these with lucidity and insight, and now and again he has a phrase which shows the real Chesterton. But this reality is, in more than one case, obscured by an inexact appreciation of details in the theme."

+ Ath p74 F '16 1000w

"We shall learn little from it that cannot be as easily discovered in Chesterton's own books. In his final pages Mr. West gives a brief Chestertonian bibliography, extending from 1900 to July, 1915." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 19 '16 720w

"Finding himself pretty generally in disagreement with Mr. Chesterton's views, Mr. West remains, it seems to me, admirably fair." G. B. Donlin

+ Dial 61:460 N 30 '16 1250w

"A merit of Mr. West's book is the copious quotation, particularly from the poems."

+ Nation 102:597 Je 1 '16 500w

"He writes so gayly, so honestly, so entertainingly that no one can doubt that Chesterton himself read the book with much delight. Perhaps the work is most clearly described by saying that it is in every respect the direct opposite of Mr. Joseph McCabe's book on Bernard Shaw."

+ N Y Times 21:189 My 7 '16 550w

"Mr. West disagrees with Mr. Chesterton on many points, but his book is the sincerest form of flattery. Mr. West, who is no doubt an unconscious imitator, outdoes Mr. Chesterton himself in carelessness of language. We wish that he would avoid common errors of criticism, and that he would not try to make them uncommon by exaggerating them. In fact, Mr. West puts us out of conceit with Mr. Chesterton, which is not fair to Mr. Chesterton. He has imitated Mr. Chesterton's peculiar unscrupulousness of thought and expression, yet he, like his model, does not need to be unscrupulous."

— The Times [London] Lit Sup p31 Ja 20 '16 1400w

WEST, REBECCA. Henry James. (Writers of the day) 11 *50c (2½c) Holt 813 (Eng ed 16-17881)

Miss West gives the first chapter of her study to the incidents of Henry James's childhood and youth, putting a high estimate on their importance in his life and art. "There is nothing," she writes "in all the innumerable volumes that Mr. James was to pour out in the next forty-five years of which the intimation is not present in these first adventures." The second chapter, The international situation, is devoted to those early novels which record the reaction of the American consciousness to European culture. The next chapter treats of the work of the transition period when the novelist was beginning to think and feel as a European. The work of his prime and of his later period is dealt with in two chapters named The crystal bowl and The golden bowl. What was almost the final act of his life, his renunciation of American citizenship, is referred to briefly at the close. "And on 28th February," records Miss West, "he died, leaving the white light of his genius to shine out for the eternal comfort of the mind of man."

"She is censorious always, critical at intervals, and unjust throughout." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p7 Ag 23 '16 200w

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 21 '16 670w

Reviewed by W: B. Cairns

+ Dial 61:344 N 2 '16 2100w

"With all its brilliant arrogance and cockiness, with all its impatience at the difference between yesterday's mode and to-day's, with all its failures in sympathy and in understanding—there is an amazingly unperceiving passage about 'The awkward age'—the book does glow with such a beauty of admiration of Henry James that one gets the strongest incentive to read him all over again." Philip Littell

+ New Repub 9:sup2 N 18 '16 1200w

+ Pittsburgh 21:564 D '16 40w

"This spirited little essay in the 'Writers of the day' series, is worth reading for two reasons. It recalls to one's mind many of Henry James's earlier stories that one has forgotten or never seen, and secondly, it gives a very modern Englishwoman's view of the novelist's heroines. . . . Like others who have written on Henry James, Miss West has, consciously or unconsciously, imitated too often his tricks of style."

+ Spec 117:242 Ag 26 '16 120w

"The 'Writers of the day' series, to which this study of Henry James is added, has proved of little value. But this is the only book of the series in which the author has treated the subject with complete irresponsibility."

— Springfield Republican p9 D 3 '16 250w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p335 J1 13 '16 30w

WESTERVELT, WILLIAM DRAKE, comp. and tr. Legends of gods and ghosts. il $1.75 Ellis 398 16-1737

This is Mr. Westervelt's second collection of Hawaiian folk legends. "Legends of old Honolulu" was published last year. "The mythology of Hawaii follows the laws upon which all myths are constructed. The islanders have developed some beautiful nature myths. Certain phenomena have been observed and the imagination has fitted the story to the interesting object which has attracted attention." (Boston Transcript)

"Out of this rich material Mr. Westervelt makes an interesting book. Most persons never outgrow fairy stories, and these have novelty and the glamour that we associate with far-off tropical Polynesia."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 22 '16 550w

"Mr. W. D. Westervelt has lived for many years in the Hawaiian Islands, and this interpretation of Hawaiian mythology shows a depth of sympathy commensurable with that of Lafcadio Hearn for the Japanese. Some of the stories, as for example the last in the volume 'The bride from the under-world,' are told with spirit and charm."

+ Dial 60:343 Mr 30 '16 90w

"Not only to the anthropologist but to the general reader as well these myths have their appeal, and the debt to Mr. Westervelt for collecting and translating them is far from small."

+ Springfield Republican p17 F 8 '16 260w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p161 Ap 6 '16 950w

WHARTON, EDITH NEWBOLD (JONES), ed. Book of the homeless (Le livre des sans-foyer). il *$5 Scribner 940.91 16-2385

"A very remarkable and a very beautiful book is this which Mrs. Wharton has put together. . . . Its beneficiaries will be the American hostels for refugees and the Children of Flanders rescue committee. In the preface Mrs. Wharton tells briefly how the work of these two organizations started, how dire was the need that called them into existence, what they have done, and what are their present necessities. . . . Of poetry, prose, and music there are forty-two contributors, and fifteen of illustrations, the lists containing some of the most famous names of English, French, and American men and women. And the book is peculiarly distinguished by the fact that these famous contributors have given of their best."—N Y Times

"Besides editing the volume, Mrs. Wharton has enriched its pages with an original poem and with numerous English renderings, remarkable in quality, of the poems contributed by French writers. These, and the offerings of Henry James, Mr. Joseph Conrad, Mr. John Galsworthy, and Mrs. Humphry Ward, seem to us the most notable items on the literary side."

+ Dial 60:386 Ap 13 '16 500w

"A brilliant mosaic of story, verse, pictures and music."

+ Ind 86:29 Ap 3 '16 60w

"Mrs. Wharton's preface strikes the keynote of the book in its direct, simple, and graphic style, its personality, and its singleness of heart. Notwithstanding the few lines of statistics sandwiched between its sections, it is, as also is almost every contribution, a piece of real literature. . . . The book itself is a most satisfactory specimen of American book making, an achievement of which its printers, the Merrymount press, Boston, can well be proud. The illustrations retain their artistic values, the binding has the workmanlike quality which makes the turning of the leaves a pleasure, while in type and printing each page is a work of art."

+ N Y Times 21:37 Ja 30 '16 750w

R of Rs 53:381 Mr '16 110w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 30 '16 700w

"Since the war began many books have been produced, singly or in cooperation, in aid of war relief and war charities, but none has had a worthier object than this 'Book of the homeless,' and probably none has equalled it from a literary point of view. It should be added that there are original illustrations by Messrs. Sargent, J. E. Blanche, Claude Monet, Renoir, Rodin, and others; and that each of two composers, MM. d'Indy and Stravinsky, contributes a page of music."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p116 Mr 9 '16 950w

WHARTON, EDITH NEWBOLD (JONES). Xingu, and other stories. *$1.40 (1c) Scribner 16-21972

The eight short stories included in this volume are representative of the author's work of the past five years. The satire on culture which gives title to the book appeared in Scribner's magazine for December, 1911. The concluding story, Bunner sisters, is reprinted from the October and November issues for the present year. The other stories are: Coming home; Autres temps; Kerfol; The long run; The triumph of night; The choice.

A L A Bk1 13:179 Ja '17

"'The long run,' with its portrayal of two kindred souls, two âmes d'élite, who might have lived greatly had they dared to sin boldly, is one of those ironic analyses of the inner life that the author of 'What Maisie knew' and 'The lesson of the master' might have been content to own."

+ Ath p598 D '16 120w

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 28 '16 1400w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:586 D 28 '16 570w

+ Ind 88:552 D 25 '16 50w

"In the telling of 'Xingu' there is hardly a trace of the Mrs. Wharton with whom we are familiar. It is a delightful and fairly exuberant piece of humor. . . . With its truth and its fun and its most amusing dialogue, it is a very jewel of a story to read aloud."

+ Nation 104:20 Ja 4 '17 360w

"Regarded in connection with its author's other work, it shows a deeper humanity."

+ N Y Times 21:465 N 5 '16 1100w

"It includes, beyond the title story, 'Autres temps,' perhaps the best study of changing social conditions ever written, and a story that is at once a lesson to weaklings and an artistic triumph, 'The long run.'"

+ R of Rs 54:679 D '16 90w

"There is something inhuman in the detachment of her method and in her absolute self-effacement. And there is no doubt that she has a peculiar talent for the dissection of disillusioned, unhappy, uncomfortable, or disagreeable natures."

+ Spec 117:836 D 30 '16 760w

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ja 14 '17 320w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p572 N 30 '16 520w

WHAT happens after death? *75c Funk 218
A16-1504

"A symposium by leading writers and thinkers on the possibility of life after death and its probable conditions. The articles are reprints from an English newspaper discussion of the subject. All schools and shades of thought are represented in the book. Canon Horsley, Dr. Robert F. Horton, the late Mgr. Robert Hugh Benson, Dr. A. C. Dixon, Mrs. Annie Besant, Dr. Max Nordau and Rev. D. T. Young are among the contributors."—Springfield Republican

Ind 87:351 S 4 '16 40w
+ Lit D 53:467 Ag 26 '16 350w
N Y Br Lib News 3:76 My '16 50w
N Y Times 21:283 J1 16 '16 90w
St Louis 14:384 N '16 30w

"The outstanding fact of interest is that the preponderance of the evidence presented is for a future life. Interesting, too, is the method by which most of the writers approach the subject. It is scientific and logical, rather than dogmatic or emotional. The book will appeal to the reader who wants to get at a glance the gist of present-day belief in immortality."

+ Springfield Republican p15 My 15 '16 210w

WHEELER, DANIEL EDWIN. Abraham Lincoln. (True stories of great Americans) il
*50c (1c) Macmillan 16-6689

An intimate and personal account of Abraham Lincoln written for young readers. The early years are dwelt on at some length with a deserved tribute paid to the two women who were the guiding influences of his boyhood, his mother and his stepmother. His young manhood and his entrance into politics are also given considerable space while the later and darker times are touched on more lightly.

"Other lives of Lincoln for young readers have been written, but there remained room for this one, because it was evidently intended to meet youthful readers where they are and to make division of space such as youthful interest demands. In this little book historical facts are set forth with appropriate brevity."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Ap 12 '16 350w

"The prime excellence of the series is that it possesses maturity of tone."

+ Nation 103:546 D 7 '16 40w
+ R of Rs 53:754 Je '16 20w

"Mr. Wheeler has written a story that men and women will enjoy, and it is good enough to be liked by boys."

+ Sat R 121:519 My 27 '16 1100w

"All through the book the details are pruned to the right point, and the reader must keep step with the steady march of the hero to the end of the story."

+ Springfield Republican p17 My 16 '16 170w

WHEELER, HAROLD FELIX BAKER. Boys' life of Lord Kitchener. il *$1.50 (2c) Crowell A17-51

Altho nominally for boys, this is a complete biography of Lord Kitchener, giving very fully the details of his military career. There are chapters on: A field-marshal in knickerbockers; Exploring the Holy Land; Peaceful Cyprus and stormy Egypt; Gordon and the Mahdi; In command at Suakin; Sirdar of the Egyptian army, etc. The two final chapters deal with Kitchener's part in the European war.

+ A L A Bkl 13:228 F '17
+ Lit D 53:1722 D 30 '16 260w
+ Nation 103:519 N 30 '16 70w
+ R of Rs 54:682 D '16 20w

"A popular biography considerably more detailed than any that has yet appeared, and written in a clear, readable and intelligent way; fully appreciative of Kitchener's greatness, but unmarred by any fulsome eulogy. Mr. Wheeler deals sensibly enough, without insisting on any special view of his own, with such criticisms as were passed on parts of Kitchener's work during the early period of the war."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p406 Ag 24 '16 60w

WHIBLEY, LEONARD, ed. Companion to Greek studies. il *$6.25 Putnam 913.38

"When the first edition of this handbook appeared in 1905, it represented what were supposed to be the sound and safe conclusions of the last quarter of the nineteenth century. . . . Since the second edition is practically the same as the first, a new edition was needed. The more important additions are ten carefully written pages on 'Ethnology' by Mr. Wace of the British school at Athens; and new articles on 'Bronzes' and 'Jewellery' by Mr. H. B. Walters. Waldstein's chapter on 'Sculpture' has been revised by Professor Bosanquet, who gives most of his extra space to the archaic period. Mr. Wace discusses the 'Prehistoric house.' Lady Evans adds four pages on 'Minoan dress.' But the most useful addition is the twenty-four new pages on 'Pre-historic art' by Mr. Wace, fully illustrated from Cretan remains. In fact, more than one hundred pages have been added to the volume, and about fifty illustrations."—Class Philol

"As a test of the scope of the work and the thoroughness of the revision I looked up the Oxyrhynchia Hellenica discovered after the publication of the first edition. It is not mentioned in the revised section on Literature, nor among the sources in the section on History. Full use is made of the document in the section on Constitutions, but it has not been used in the chronological tables to correct the date of Timocrates' mission to Greece at the instance of Pharnabazus, not Tithraustes." R. J. B.

Class J 12:76 O '16 300w

"It is the inevitable fate of a book like this that it should fail at almost every point to satisfy the special student who looks up his favorite subject. That does not mean that it is not a most useful work, whose reappearance will be welcome to English-speaking scholars. And the editor may well retort to his critics that he has room only for ascertained facts. I ask them only for more facts. For instance, the bibliographies are unnecessarily meager, and lack the dates of publication, an omission which makes a bibliography almost useless." W. C. Wright

+ — Class Philol 12:102 Ja '17 500w
Pittsburgh 21:504 N '16

WHICHER, GEORGE FRISBIE. Life and romances of Mrs. Eliza Haywood. *$1.50 (2c) Columbia univ. press 823 15-19906

In this volume of the Columbia university studies in English and comparative literature is offered a study of one of the minor eighteenth century novelists. Her importance to the student of English literature is purely historical. "Her romances of palpitating passion written between 1720 and 1730 formed a necessary complement to Defoe's romances of adventure. . . . The domestic novels of her later life foreshadowed the work of Miss Burney and Miss Austen, while her career as a woman of letters helped to open a new profession to her sex." (Preface) The book contains a twenty-nine-page bibliography.

"Like the rest of the 'Columbia university studies in English and comparative literature,' it is thoroughly done, with abundant quotation and critical apparatus. It deals not only with her short romances of passion, the secret histories, etc., and her beginnings of the domestic novel, but also with the Duncan Campbell pamphlets, in which she collaborated with Defoe, her letters and essays and her severe treatment by Pope. The bibliography is admirably executed."

+ Ath p37 Ja '16 130w

"No student of the eighteenth century, or, indeed, of English fiction, can afford to neglect so complete and careful an account."

+ Ath p125 Mr '16 340w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"Present day readers will feel hardly more than an antiquarian interest in her work. Yet 'The history of Miss Betsy Thoughtless' (1751) is not without merit as an experiment in the fiction that draws upon everyday life. Dr. Whicher's monograph is vivaciously written, and presents its subject with much interesting and informing detail."

+ Dial 60:128 F 3 '16 170w

"In this book the sense of humor is not lacking. It is precise in details, but handles them with a lightness of touch that leaves them bright rather than dusty. It is a 'literary obituary' more readable to-day than the works it commemorates."

+ Nation 102:711 Je 29 '16 1350w

WHIFFEN, THOMAS. North-west Amazons; notes of some months spent among cannibal tribes. il $3 Duffield 918 (Eng ed 15-24479)

"Twelve months, from the spring of 1908 to that of 1909, were spent by Captain Whiffen traveling and observing in the extreme north-west of the Amazon country in the watershed of the northwest tributaries of the Amazon river. With Indian and half-caste attendants and carriers he journeyed among the Indian tribes of that region, studying their customs, speech and other characteristics. His account of what he saw and did will be of value especially to ethnologists, although geographers and students of animal and plant life will find matter of interest in its pages."—N Y Times

"The modesty with which the author submits his own observations where they do not confirm those of other writers is a feature of his work which is pleasant to recognize."

+ Ath 1915,2:196 S 18 1050w

"It is simply another book on the Amazon country written by a traveller with scientific aspirations rather than with scientific training. Many of the explanations of the data are open to question. To the anthropologist the principal interest naturally centres in the appendix, where there is a discussion of the physical characteristics."

+ — Nation 102:317 Mr 16 '16 200w

"Besides a large map, and a small one for the chapter on languages and dialects of these very locally and sparsely populated wildernesses, the book is embellished with many, mostly excellent, photographs, which are a record of industry and patience where films proved useless on account of the moist climate. The groups of natives were always taken as they lived, according to climatic and psychological essentials."

+ Nature 96:678 F 17 '16 950w

+ N Y Times 21:20 Ja 16 '16 180w

"More than once by personal observation he has been able to correct false impressions made by other travellers who have taken native talk as evidence. Not only is he an intrepid explorer, but he is also—rare combination—a thorough scholar and the master of a capital style of narrative. The merely romantic idea of Amazonia as a virgin land ready presently to flow with milk and honey he dispels entirely, yet his book creates the thought that of all regions of the earth there can be no other with equal interest for the anthropologist."

+ Sat R 121:68 Ja 15 '16 750w

WHIPPLE, WAYNE. Story of young Abraham Lincoln. il 75c (2c) Altemus 16-902

For this new life of Lincoln the author has collected as many as possible of new and authentic Lincoln stories and has woven them into a connected narrative. Some of them appear here for the first time. Others are old stories that have been corrected from data supplied by Robert Lincoln. Since he has aimed to tell only the story of Lincoln's boyhood and youth, the author carries his account only to the Springfield days and the partnership of Lincoln and Herndon.

WHIPPLE, WAYNE. Story of young George Washington. il 75c (2c) Altemus 15-15356

The author tells the story of Washington's life up to the time of his marriage. How he was called away from his quiet Virginia estate "to endure eight years of struggle, privation, and sorrow," is said to be "the subject of another story." There are chapters on: Washington's fighting ancestors; The little boy Washington; The big boy Washington; George's first survey and journal; Young Major Washington, etc.

"Wayne Whipple performs something in the nature of a patriotic labor by retelling the life story of the first president in such simple terms as will hold the close attention of young readers. The author has exercised excellent judgment in selecting his matter and a capital story results."

+ Springfield Republican p19 N 27 '15 170w

WHITE, EDWARD LUCAS. El supremo: a romance of the great dictator of Paraguay. *$1.90 Dutton 16-21974

"A little known country, a little known people, and a fragment of little known history form the material out of which Mr. White has made his novel. His scene is Paraguay, his time is 1815 and the years immediately following, his characters are the Spanish, the aborigines and the mixed population inhabiting that country, and his central figure is Dr. José Gaspar Rodríguez de Francia, the man who ruled it with an autocratic hand from 1813 to 1840. . . . Around the personality of William Hawthorne, an American adventurer who after having taken part in South American revolutions, comes to Paraguay for the purpose of overthrowing Francia's autocratic power, revolves the plot of 'El supremo.'"—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 13:224 F '17

"A fine, big, human treatment of what, rather against expectation, turns out to be a worthy theme." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 44:504 Ja '17 610w

"Unquestionably a novel of great importance. . . . Of such a people and such a civilization we have rarely been given before so complete a literary study either by means of history or fiction." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p4 N 22 '16 1800w

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 6 '16 1050w

+ Cath World 104:538 Ja '17 130w

"A singularly interesting book, one that people will read with intense pleasure. Mr. White possesses a remarkable historical imagination, of greater scope than intensity, perhaps, but still sufficient to give him that sense of reality which he succeeds in passing on to his readers. Certainly the book lives and we live in it." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 61:468 N 30 '16 820w

"This novel is one to read all day and all night until it is finished."

+ Ind 89:114 Ja 15 '17 140w

"We submit the impression of a powerful work of the imagination, a work of genius such as might have pleased Carlyle himself."

+ Nation 104:162 F 8 '17 820w

"'El supremo' has a most readable plot to be sure. But it is packed full of interesting history, a mine of fascinating information. Therein lies its one weakness. It is too full. The canvas is crowded. There are too many people, too many events. The book is not only too long, it is actually confusing. . . . And this defect is the more to be lamented just because the book is so unusual and so good."

+ — N Y Times 21:467 N 5 '16 780w

"He has written a novel on the scale of a 'Richard Carvel,' and like it, has made live in its entirety a remote period." Algernon Tassin

+ Pub W 90:1403 O 21 '16 670w

"It is a monumental volume of fiction, but the colorful pictures and dramatic incidents that the author packs into it do not yield a dull paragraph in the 700 closely printed pages."

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 31 '16 650w

WHITE, STEWART EDWARD. Leopard woman. il *$1.35 (1½c) Doubleday 16-21129

A romance of central Africa. Culbertson, an Englishman, is journeying into the interior on a mission for his government when he meets the Leopard woman. She is beautiful and sinu-

WHITE, STEWART EDWARD—Continued
ous as the animal from which she takes her native name. About her presence in this unexplored country, there is a mystery, and it is long before Culbertson learns that it has a bearing on his own mission. She represents the German government as he does the British. Later they learn that their two countries are at war. There is much in the story of native customs and belief in magic, and not the least interesting character is Winkleman, the scientist, to whom war is foolishness, because it interferes with his investigations.

A L A Bkl 13:179 Ja '17

"Though his story is not without its touches of reality either European or African, its main interest will be as a story of adventure." E: E. Hale

+ Dial 61:352 N 2 '16 450w

"The novel is a somewhat mechanical, though unfailingly interesting, story of modern adventure. Its narrative style is terse and vigorous, and its glimpses of African country and customs are often illuminating."

+ N Y Times 21:448 O 22 '16 600w

"Appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, v. 139, July 29-Sept. 16, 1916."

Pittsburgh 21:569 D '16 30w

"In its convincing picture of natives and native life and the supremacy of the white man over the savage lies its virtue—rather than in the sensational suggestion of the title."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p550 N 16 '16 130w

"Not a pleasing story but absorbing, and the desert and its life are realistically drawn."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 70w

WHITE, WILLIAM ALANSON. Mechanisms of character formation. *$1.75 (3c) Macmillan 130 16-22292

This work, called "an introduction to psychoanalysis," will serve to make clear to many the position of the Freudian psychologists, often misunderstood and misinterpreted. The Freudian interpretation of the unconscious, which makes a distinction between the "fore-conscious" and the "unconscious," the Freudian theory of symbolism in the interpretation of dreams and the Freudian use of terms, which has been the cause of much of the misunderstanding, are some of the matters explained. It will appear from a reading of this book that the psychoanalysts base their position on a study of abnormal states. The author says: "A new psychology has come into existence, borne of the sufferings and the heartaches of the mentally ill . . . This is a psychology which had its origin in trying to help sick people, in trying to alleviate their sufferings and from the very first dealt with men and women in the raw, as they really were."

WHITE, WILLIAM ALLEN. God's puppets. 11 *$1.25 (2c) Macmillan 16-6288

Five stories, two of them too long to be classed as "short stories," make up this book. The first four are related. They are all social studies of a small city west of the Mississippi. The last story, a whimsical little sketch, is in a class by itself. It was written by the author of "The court of Boyville," just as the others were written by the author of "A certain rich man." Contents: A social rectangle; "The one a Pharisee"; "A prosperous gentleman"; The gods arrive; The strange boy.

"Partly reprinted from Collier's Weekly."

+ A L A Bkl 12:485 J1 '16

"The tales are sufficiently vivid and powerful to avoid the danger of purely local interest. He is inclined to a certain pessimism in his choice of smug and prosperous hypocrisy, disillusion, and other depressing aspects of humanity, which he depicts and develops relentlessly."

+ — Ath p289 Je '16 50w

"Mr. White's corrupt banker, and luxury-bred Dallah, and 'grafting' politician, have the vividness of convention-bound melodrama and movie, rather than the reality—the embodiment of type in individual—which marks the higher art of the novelist." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:315 My '16 570w

"Real short stories, thoroughly American, and thoroughly worth while." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 29 '16 430w

"Humanly interesting and squarely true to life."

+ Ind 36:486 Je 19 '16 110w

+ Lit D 52:1106 Ap 15 '16 170w

"On the evidence of his stories, a foreigner would be justified in concluding that American banking is an affair both haphazard and corrupt. . . . Mr. White's present tales show every sign of having been prepared for consumption by that magazine reading public which is so much given to gloating over evil in high places."

— Nation 103:179 Ag 24 '16 400w

"The art of Mr. White does not blink facts in the slightest. It accepts all the insipidity and banality which repel the supercilious from outside. If it does not seem significant, this life of Kansas, to the eye of the outsider, it is because the outsider is not alive to significances. To the poet in William Allen White it is just as much the domestication of eternity and infinity as the battleground of Verdun or the court of Versailles. One of the tales, 'A prosperous gentleman,' seems to me unsuccessful." F. H.

+ New Repub 6:270 Ap 8 '16 1500w

N Y Br Lib News 3:188 D '16

"There is in it satire as pitiless, although not so caustic, as etched the pictures of the 'Spoon River anthology.' It is of a different sort, more tolerant and more human, and there is in it now and then a glimpse of that love for one's fellow beings that can forgive all because it understands all."

+ N Y Times 21:93 Mr 19 '16 650w

"The stories are much out of the ordinary, but one feels that Mr. White is writing for the story-teller's effect rather than for conviction."

+ Springfield Republican p15 S 3 '16 250w

"Five short stories, of which all but the last are less fiction than social studies of a middle west town. The qualities which 'A certain rich man' showed—sympathy, tolerance, and understanding of human nature—give them interest to the thoughtful student of life, but they are not specially successful as fiction."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 50w

WHITEING, RICHARD. My harvest. *$2.50 (2½c) Dodd 16-26323

A delightful volume of reminiscences. Mr. Whiteing is known chiefly as the author of "No. 5 John street"; but the greater part of his life was given up to an active journalistic career. He entered journalism in the sixties and his duties subsequently took him to the capitals of Europe and on several visits to America, and brought him into contact with the great figures of Victorian England. The final chapter, Threshing out, is something of a summing up of what life and work have meant to him.

+ A L A Bkl 12:381 My '16

"In every page of the book stands the man as he really is, acute, broad-minded, finely intellectual, cheering, optimistic, vivacious, full of humor and the joy of living. Continually one gets the impression that its author, during his three-score years of intercourse with the great ones of his time, met the people of whom he writes with a gladness of heart and a deep appreciation of his splendid opportunities. He never lets you know in the written line that these people were equally glad to know him. That is one of the charms of Mr. Whiteing's book." J. W. Smith

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 24 '15 2750w

"It is the work of a writer who could never be commonplace and who could never abide by set rules. It is the work of the novelist who wrote 'The Island,' 'No. 5 John street' and 'The yellow van.'" E. F. B.

+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 15 '16 650w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"... There is much else that is sane and of wholesome influence in the book thus brought to a close. It will repay careful reading." F. F. Bicknell

- + Dial 60:375 Ap 13 '16 1300w
- + Ind 86:185 My 1 '16 70w
- + Nation 103:403 O 26 '16 430w
- + N Y Times 21:128 Ap 2 '16 880w

"His reminiscences, as we had expected, are worthy of their author, and show how, even in the exacting school of journalism, a man may preserve his independence and remain an idealist. Mr. Whiteing writes freely of the living as well as the dead, but without malice. In literature and art he is content in the main to stand on the ancient ways. In politics he is guided largely by sentiment, and the measure of his optimism may be found in the ingenuous belief that the Snowdens, the MacDonalds, and the Keir Hardies will soon rid politics of the curse of syndicalism."

- + Spec 115:832 D 11 '15 2250w

"Mr. Whiteing has much to tell that is of interest to the reader possessed of normal human curiosity. The book is, moreover, to some extent an autobiography. Mr. Whiteing knows how to select his material. His writing is workmanlike. It reflects the seasoned and vigorous intelligence of the author, who occasionally pauses to make some wise observation."

- + Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 1450w

WHITMAN, STEPHEN FRENCH. Children of hope. il $1.40 (1c) Century 16-9958

The story of Aurelius Goodchild and his daughters, the three Graces, of Zenasville, Ohio, and of their year spent in Italy. Aggie (Aglaia), the eldest of the Graces, has dreamed of an operatic career, Frossie (Euphrosyne), the second, wants to be a great writer, Thallie (Thalia) is to be a painter. All these dreams had their birth in the little yellow house in Maple lane. Their realization seemed still far off when the legacy of one hundred thousand dollars dropped into Aurelius's hands. Of the use made of it, of the responses made by the three girls to the opportunities offered them, of the friendships, loves and tragedies that came to the three and their quaint lovable father this entertaining story tells.

"Appeared in the Century."

- + A L A Bkl 12:485 Jl '16

"The book represents much cleverness and much labour, but I for one have laid it down with the reluctant admission that it is not a thing of life, but an article made out of whole cloth." H. W. Boynton

- + Bookm 43:417 Je '16 530w

"Mr. Whitman keeps his characters essentially American and wholly unspoiled, though they meet triumphs and defeats in Europe. With Thallie and her father his treatment is especially sympathetic. The gentle eccentricities of Aurelius awaken a chord of sympathy in the reader." D. L. M.

- + Boston Transcript p4 Ap 26 '16 950w

"The book depends for its interest on its picture of life abroad, chiefly in Florence, on its touching upon a hundred things of interest in the current art and life of to-day,—and also, if rather less, on some of its characters and on the general impression of life and reality that it gives." E: E. Hale

- + Dial 60:507 My 25 '16 570w

"Almost every one of the troops of people in the book is an individual, vital creation. And that is a noteworthy achievement in any novel. Mr. Whitman has weakened his story with the multitude of furnishings he has crowded upon his stage. If he had paid rather less attention to these and had developed the father of his 'three Graces' with more care, incisiveness, and prominence Aurelius Goodchild would have been one of the outstanding characters in American fiction."

- + N Y Times 21:213 My 21 '16 550w

"The work of Stephen French Whitman has been brilliant from the beginning. His short stories won instant attention and the unusual novel, 'Predestined' placed him in the front ranks of American novelists. He has made a long stride forward to solid ground in 'Children of hope.' ... F. R. Gruger has furnished some exceedingly good illustrations."

- + R of Rs 54:235 Ag '16 350w

"It is rare that a more likable group than the Goodchilds is met with in contemporary fiction. Each is depicted so as to emphasize every side of his or her character, but in each instance the traits that endear always predominate."

- + Springfield Republican p15 My 15 '16 750w

WHITMORE, CHARLES EDWARD. Supernatural in tragedy. $1.75 (1½c) Harvard univ. press 809.2 16-2250

A thesis prepared by a candidate for a doctor's degree at Harvard in 1911. The author says: "It makes no pretence to exhaust the field which it undertakes to survey; indeed, I hope that its publication may serve to stimulate additional research." The book is made up of three parts, devoted to: Antiquity; The middle ages and the renaissance; Some modern aspects. Part 2, the longest of the three sections, contains chapters on: The mediæval sacred drama; The renaissance in Italy; The Elizabethan age in England. In Part 3, Ibsen, D'Annunzio and Maeterlinck are among the modern dramatists touched on. There is a concluding chapter on Function of the supernatural in tragedy, followed by a bibliography and an index.

- + Boston Transcript p22 F 9 '16 520w

"Such a task involves the outlining of many plots, than which nothing is more painful reading, and in the work before us it is accomplished without the slightest charm of style."

- Dial 61:216 S 21 '16 410w

- Ind 86:30 Ap 3 '16 60w

"We should qualify Mr. Whitmore's exaltation of the supernatural as the chief inspiration of the noblest tragedy by a distinction which he in practice neglects or attenuates—the distinction between the religious use of the supernatural and its superstitious or mystic abuse."

- + Nation 103:514 N 30 '16 810w

- Spec 117:21 Jl 1 '16 380w

WHITNEY, CASPAR. What's the matter with Mexico? (Our national problems) *50c (1c) Macmillan 972 16-20736

The author is one of those who believe that a ruler of the Diaz type is what Mexico needs. He holds that the Wilson administration has been mistaken in its Mexican policy, for the people are incapable of constitutional government. The present struggle is not, as we have been led to believe, "a popular uprising for land." It is due to "the revolutionary habit of the politically ambitious and socially radical." "Free land" has been but a catchword and, in listening to it, President Wilson has revealed himself as "a very casual reader of Mexican history." Unless she can produce a strong leader Mexico must "accept the strong helping of another nation." These are the main and more temperate conclusions of the book.

"He does not clearly show us the way out of the present welter of blood and pillage; nor does he convince us that the policy of the present administration has been wholly injudicious."

- + Dial 61:589 D 28 '16 350w

WHITNEY, WILLIAM T. Moral education; an experimental investigation. diagrs 75c Phillips, Leroy 377 15-24515

"This book is a study of the home and school life of six hundred boys and six hundred girls from the fourth to the eighth grade of the elementary school over a period of five years. The object of the study was to determine the relation between religious training and deportment, and home training and deportment, and the effect of deportment on scholarship. There was found to be a close correlation in each of these relations. As a supplement to this study, though not dealing with the same children, the author gives the results of a study of 500 elementary-school boys and 200 high-school boys from the point of view of their occupational success after leaving school, showing unmistakably the value of the high-school training."—School R

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

WHITNEY, WILLIAM T.—Continued

Ind 85:235 F 14 '16 120w

"The author's chief contribution toward moral education in the schools is a demand for reconstruction of the recitation. The logic of his arguments if carried further would seem to lead not only to an improvement of the recitation but to the kind of school work explained by Dewey's 'School and society.'" J. H. T.

+ Int J Ethics 20:570 J1 '16 350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:108 J1 '16

"While the results of these studies were doubtless to be expected, the investigation was thoroughly worth while and suggests a method which might well supplant the loose and unscientific methods which have usually been employed in discussion of the moral problems in school administration." F. W. Johnson

+ School R 24:240 Mr '16 160w

WIGGIN, KATE DOUGLAS (SMITH) (MRS. GEORGE CHRISTOPHER RIGGS). Romance of a Christmas card. il $1 (6c) Houghton 16-21128

A story originally published in two parts in the Delineator for December, 1915, and January, 1916, with the title "The card." Reba Larrabee, the minister's wife, has a pretty talent for writing verses and painting pictures. She designs a Christmas card, and this little story tells how it goes out into the world to bring two prodigals home.

+ A L A Bkl 13:179 Ja '17

"Stories with the true Christmas spirit are never easy to find, but Kate Douglas Wiggin in 'The romance of a Christmas card,' has succeeded well in divining and crystallizing this spirit."

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 16 '16 200w

+ Cath World 104:395 D '16 250w

+ Dial 61:480 N 30 '16 110w

+ Ind 88:467 D 11 '16 50w

"Written with the sweet tenderness and human sympathy characteristic of Mrs. Wiggin."

+ Lit D 53:1559 D 9 '16 170w

+ N Y Times 21:523 N 26 '16 70w

"A good story, worthy of Mrs. Wiggin's pen."

+ Springfield Republican p7 N 25 '16 180w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 40w

WILDE, PERCIVAL. Confessional, and other American plays. $1.20 Holt 812 16-5175

In his preface the author compares the one-act play with the longer drama, holding that the former is a distinct dramatic form. "It is not an abbreviated play; much less, as a rule, is it the material out of which a longer play can be made." The five one-act plays in this book are: Confessional; The villain in the piece; According to Darwin; A question of morality; The beautiful story.

+ A L A Bkl 13:24 O '16

"There is present in some of them sufficient body and strong enough character interest to make their presentation seem possible of success. Indeed, already Emanuel Reicher has announced 'According to Darwin,' for performance."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 10 '16 450w

"The subjects are those of most interest today, the treatment is fresh and sincere, and the author shows a keen sense of dramatic values."

+ Ind 86:75 Ap 10 '16 60w

"All of them would act well, or, in other words, are shaped well for actual representation, but all of them are too tricky and insincere to have much real dramatic value."

+ Nation 103:616 D 28 '16 250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:63 Ap '16

"These plays are excellent for reading as well as for the stage."

+ R of Rs 53:634 My '16 70w

St Louis 14:237 Je '16

WILDER, MRS. LOUISE (BEEBE). My garden. il $1.50 (2c) Doubleday 716 16-22572

One purpose in writing this book has been "to answer for others some of the questions which sorely perplexed me in my early gardening days." Her foreword is a plea to women to take up gardening for their own enjoyment, and she also advocates it as a profession for women. Among the chapters are: In the making; The nursery; The day before spring and the next; May in the garden; June magic; July problems; Waning summer; Autumn beauty; Border roses and climbers; Border irises; The lure of the lily.

"All books of garden lore are delightful. This is an axiom accepted by garden lovers. But some are specially delightful. To the latter class this of Mrs. Wilder belongs. . . . The concluding chapter 'The herb garden,' has a peculiarly insistent appeal."

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 6 '16 470w

"Inspiration, even more than guidance, is found in the agreeable pages of this horticultural enthusiast. . . . Useful flower-lists are given here and there, but no index points the way to any particular topic."

+ Dial 61:480 N 30 '16 200w

"There is a very decided point of view. It is that of the gardener who likes to work in the garden and enjoys the result of such labor in the beautiful scenes created, rather than that of the sentimentalist who loves flowers. There is just enough about soils, diseases, winter protection, culture and lists of varieties, and there is a great deal of good advice about color and arrangement, which, for its common sense, will be welcomed by the landscape architects."

+ Landscape Architecture 7:101 Ja '17 410w

WILE, FREDERIC WILLIAM. Assault; Germany before the outbreak and England in war-time. il $1.50 (1c) Bobbs 940.91 16-6503

The author was a resident of Berlin as the representative of three American newspapers and one London paper. On the strength of the latter connection he was arrested as a spy and compelled to leave Germany. His stay in the war capital was therefore cut short at the very beginning of activities, but because he is a man who had long been on the "inside" of things, his interpretation of events in those few pregnant days around August 1, 1914, is important. His narrative begins with Kiel week. His later account is concerned with London; it touches on British feeling toward America and with American sentiment with regard to the war as it impressed him while on a visit home. The author states in the beginning that his book is pro-Ally, but he hopes that it will not be looked on as anti-German. He lays the blame for the war on the German war-party, but exonerates the German people as a whole.

+ A L A Bkl 12:422 Je '16

"Mr. Wile, an American, was for thirteen years a newspaper correspondent in Germany, first for the New York Times and later for the London Daily Mail. His business in Berlin was news, and his instinct was trained for news. His account is a straightforward narrative of what he saw and learned in his last days in Germany and during his subsequent stay in England." R. M.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 500w

+ Ind 87:102 J1 17 '16 120w

"Mr. Wile's work is frankly a journalist's account of the world in which he lives. Exception may be taken to this statement or that, and fault may be found with his failure to co-ordinate and explain one fact by another, but his book remains a vivid account of the things of which he has personal knowledge, and so it will stand as an interesting and valuable record of the early days of the great war."

+ N Y Times 21:95 Mr 19 '16 1150w

+ R of Rs 53:628 My '16 100w

St Louis 14:179 My '16

+ Spec 116:721 Je 10 '16 420w

"The record has a real and deep importance. From it we learn, as we could in no other way, to appreciate and understand the Germany of the war, the Germany with which we have to deal; for behind all the military events we are always conscious that the real problem is the German nation. . . . The book begins with a description of Germany; it ends with a criticism of England—a criticism friendly but forcible."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p183 Ap 20 '16 1000w

"Will interest only those who have a good command of the facts and want detailed and personal impressions and opinions."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:271 Je '16 60w

WILES, ROBERT. Cuban cane sugar. il *75c (8c) Bobbs 633 16-6661

With sugar assuming so important a place as a factor in the high cost of living, it is well for us to know something about it and the processes by which it is produced and marketed. It is information of this kind that the author has aimed to give in his little volume. His treatment is limited to the sugar industry in Cuba. The last chapter points out the undeveloped opportunities offered to American capital.

N Y Br Lib News 3:75 My '16

"The author tells his story in an interesting fashion and without technicality. The valuable feature of the book is its apparent reliability. The author does not spare criticism of the sugar industry in Cuba, but his criticism is constructive. He shows the extent of the business, its weaknesses, and the most acceptable methods of improving it."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 180w

WILEY, HARVEY WASHINGTON. 1001 tests of foods, beverages and toilet accessories, good and otherwise; why they are so; arranged by Anne Lewis Pierce. il *50c Hearst's int. lib. 614.3 16-11291

"A revision of a 1914 book with changes in the ratings of various articles to conform with later facts and with the addition of many more ratings on products examined since the first publication. The latter are in a second division."—Wis Lib Bull

A L A Bkl 12:496 Jl '16

N Y Times 21:278 Jl 9 '16 50w

Wis Lib Bull 12:452 D '16 50w

WILKINSON, ALBERT EDMUND. Apple. (Country life education ser.) il $2 (1c) Ginn 634 15-24706

This book was prepared to meet the need for a single volume that would present the most essential of the recent practical ideas and methods in apple culture. It is intended for farmer and fruit specialist and for the student as well; it is adapted for use in a systematic course in apple growing. Among the subjects treated are: Selection of site; Adaptation of varieties to soils; Orchard heating; Selection of the trees; Windbreaks; Laying out an orchard; Proper pruning; Cover crops; Fertilizing; Insects; Diseases, etc. The volume has a colored frontispiece and numerous other illustrations. The author is a member of the faculty of the department of horticulture at Cornell, and he naturally gives chief attention to the part of the country he knows best, the east. There is a brief treatment of the Pacific northwest and other regions.

"While fairly technical and largely dealing with conditions in the eastern states, it will have value for the apple grower in the middle or far west. Very fully and adequately illustrated."

+ A L A Bkl 12:326 Ap '16 (Reprinted from Wis Lib Bull)

+ Ind 85:356 Mr 6 '16 30w

"Abounds in sound and useful information on every section of commercial apple-growing, yet it neither mentions nor describes any form of training other than that for the production of a 'vase'-shaped (open-headed) or pyramidal standard. . . . So long as information has a commercial bearing it may be included, even though it lacks precision. Needless to say, the chapters on spraying and on insect and other pests are well done. The book is well written by the hand of an expert." F. K.

+ — Nature 97:277 Je 1 '16 750w

N Y Br Lib News 3:31 F '16

St Louis 14:190 My '16

"The author has succeeded in presenting in a logical manner the most essential of the recent practical ideas of growing, harvesting and marketing the fruit. The treatise contains so large a body of experimental evidence that its value as a textbook will be generally recognized. It should prove a valuable help to students seeking a systematic course in apple growing."

+ Springfield Republican p17 D 10 '15 220w

WILKINSON, LOUIS UMFREVILLE. Buffoon. *$1.50 Knopf 16-9542

"This story concerns Edward Raynes during a period of two or three weeks in which the comfortable monotony of his bachelorhood is interrupted by a human comet in the person of Jack Welch, a radical lecturer. Under Welch's stimulation Raynes's sluggish mentality is aroused; he is introduced to an entirely new set of ideas; has a brilliant though brief experience with the apostles of 'new' art—poetry, painting, and what not—; becomes infatuated with the 'Queen' of the sacred circle, and then relapses into his former mode of living with enough to think about all the rainy days of his life."—Dial

"The author is very explicit, and realistic to the point of caricature—readers will perhaps recognize more than one of the characters; but he avoids incident severely."

+ Ath p58 D 16 40w

"This is Mr. Wilkinson's first novel. If it is a just example of the way his mind envisages life it is fervently to be hoped that it will also be his last." F. F. Kelly

— Bookm 43:324 My '16 150w

"If one enjoys that elusive cynicism which made Wilde the master of what we may term 'prose de société,' he will find much to his liking in this story of English town and country life. There is more than an evanescent brilliance here, however. There is also ruthless veracity and a certain brutal sanity which gives the book a fresh and invigorating interest."

+ Dial 61:469 N 30 '16 260w

"This is a 'first novel' of extraordinary cleverness and uncertain promise. It belongs in a negative way to the Wellsian school. The central figure, that is, represents a revolt against the conventions which formerly governed the composition of heroes of fiction."

+ — Nation 103:84 Jl 27 '16 400w

"It is a book that will forever repel and bore the multitude; for it is blistering in its affront to sentimentalism, and it is compounded almost wholly of brain-stuff. In recent fiction we can think of nothing in English to measure it against, for satirical deadliness, save the transcendent 'Boon' of Mr. Wells. The author of 'The buffoon' has not the amplitude and the energy of that surprising genius; but he is subtler, more acid, more delicately ferocious." Lawrence Gilman

+ No Am 204:751 N '16 1950w

"There is an immense deal of cleverness in the book, but it is quite undisciplined."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p626 D 21 '16 200w

WILKINSON, NORMAN. Dardanelles. il *$4 Longmans 940.91 16-4733

"One of the unusual features of the war, remarks Norman Wilkinson, R. L., in the preface to the book he has just published, is the lack of records in color of its scenes and incidents. As far as Gallipoli is concerned he has removed that reproach. . . . Most impressive of all Mr. Wilkinson's pictures perhaps are the views of Anzac and the formidable cliffs, up which at dawn on April 25 the Australians and New Zealanders made their magnificent assault. They show what an impossible country the Gallipoli peninsula is to invade in the face of modern weapons, and they make clear the reasons for the final retirement. . . . Very enlightening, too, are the marine pictures."—N Y Times

WILKINSON, NORMAN—Continued

"In spite of what we feel to be the inadequacies of the text, the book is a constant pleasure because of the quality of Mr. Wilkinson's pictures. They make the war intimate to us in a sense which none of the stories of war experiences, the newspaper pictures or the moving pictures, which lack so noticeably the element of color, have done." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 15 '16 680w

"With its thirty plates in color, admirably reproduced from water color sketches made on the spot, it illustrates the country which the British attacked, and imparts a new meaning to the dispatches that told the story of their gallant failure. Mr. Wilkinson has prefaced his pictures by a brief account of what he personally saw and did. He pretends in no way to give an account of the expedition, but he touches on a few intimate experiences in an interesting way."

+ N Y Times 21:119 Ap 2 '16 420w

WILKINSON, SPENSER. French army before Napoleon. *$1.75 (5c) Oxford 355 War16-35

A series of lectures delivered at Oxford in 1914. Contents: The history of the study of Napoleon; Theory and practice during the seven years' war; Guibert and Du Teil; A new system of warfare; Reforms; The officers and the nation; Regulars, volunteers, conscripts.

"The seven lectures brought together by Professor Wilkinson in book form are of somewhat unequal quality. The second is by far the best. . . . One feels that his work is somewhat lacking in theoretical cohesion." J.

+ — Am Hist R 21:852 Jl '16 250w

"The real value of these lectures lies in the lucidity and thoroughness with which the author explains the methods by which the new military machine was fashioned." W. B. Wood

+ Eng Hist R 31:323 Ap '16 530w

"The most readable chapters of Professor Wilkinson's book are those which describe the military reforms which led to the creation not only of new armies but of a whole new military system by France in the throes of new birth. He shows us the forging of the unrivalled instrument of war which the genius of Napoleon handled with such world-shaking results."

+ Spec 115:340 S 11 '15 350w

WILLARD, WILLIAM CLYDE. Maintenance of way and structures. il *$4 McGraw 625 15-28161

"Fundamental principles and theory are stated and are illustrated from representative examples of actual railway practice. Intended for the university engineering student and the maintenance-of-way engineer. Considers organization, road-way, ballast, wooden ties, substitute ties, timber preservation, rails, track fastenings, spikes, stresses, design, bridges, switches, records, accounts, and the many other specific details, which makes it the most comprehensive of the recent books." (A L A Bkl) There are over 200 illustrations.

+ A L A Bkl 12:463 Jl '16

"A useful addition to the rather limited literature on railway track and maintenance, although it follows largely on lines already covered. It is brought up to date, but goes rather outside its scope to deal with matters that have little relation to maintenance. The use of copious extracts from specifications and reports is hardly a commendable feature, as such matters can be and should be presented more effectively and much more concisely in a book of this kind. The index is so arranged as to waste considerable space, and although extensive, it is not systematic. The printing and illustrations are excellent."

+ — Engin N 75:511 Mr 16 '16 270w

"The book will be heavy and uninspiring reading for the student, but it is carefully prepared and technically accurate in the main, and should prove an excellent reference book."

+ — Engin Rec 73:120 Ja 22 '16 970w

WILLIAMS, MARY WILHELMINE. Anglo-American Isthmian diplomacy, 1815-1915. (Prize essays of the American historical association, 1914) $1.50 Am. hist. assn. 327.73 16-9663

"A thesis which was written in connection with the author's candidacy for the Ph. D. degree at Leland Stanford university and which was awarded the Justin Winsor prize in American history. The author covers new ground in an exhaustive study of the diplomacy of England and this country regarding Central America from earliest time down to the present. . . . The study includes the British aggression, the Clayton-Bulwer treaty of 1850, the attempts at readjustment under a new treaty, the Bay Island colony, the new interpretation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, 1852-54, the American defiance of British claims, 1853, the crisis of 1855 and the adjustment in accordance with the American view, 1856-60. In the later chapters are presented the rise of American opposition to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, the new canal treaties and the new conditions in Central America."—Boston Transcript

"It is the most important exposition, historically speaking, of the subject to which it relates. For the first time, by reason of the use of manuscripts in the Public record office in London and the Department of state at Washington, but particularly of those in London, the actual course of the negotiation of the celebrated Clayton-Bulwer treaty is disclosed."

+ — Am Hist R 22:185 O '16 1150w

"Useful as the volume is, it is lacking in the power to seize the truly vital, to bring out with distinctness the larger aspects of the topic." R. T. Crane

+ — Am Pol Sci R 10:798 N '16 250w

Boston Transcript p11 My 27 '16 200w

+ Nation 103:242 S 7 '16 350w

St Louis 14:428 D '16 20w

"A valuable historical monograph, dealing as it does with a phase which, probably for lack of space, has been lightly passed over by other historians. It is written in painstaking fashion, with copious footnotes, and an extensive bibliography at the end."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 9 '16 800w

WILLIAMS, TAUNTON. Royal auction bridge, including 'nullos.' *75c (4c) McBride 795

"This little book is the outcome of a wide and varied observation of the needs of those good people who love to take a hand but are frequently at sea as to the best way to play it." (Intro.) Contents: Misnomer of "royal" auction; Some reflections on the game; Points from the rules; Declarations—1; Declarations—2; No trumps to score—the problem illustrated; Nullos—the poor man's chance [two chapters]; Nullos problem—illustrated; On doubling and some problems illustrated; Royal auction cut-throat; The eleven rule; Laws of royal auction.

WILLIAMS, WAYLAND WELLS. Whirligig of time. il *$1.30 (1½c) Stokes 16-9781

The relationship between two brothers is the theme of this novel. The story begins with their childhood and carries them well along toward middle life. For seven of their impressionable years they are separated. James, the elder remains in America and goes to an American preparatory school, while Harry, his younger brother, is taken to England by an uncle and aunt. He spends his school days at Harrow and returns to his native land very much anglicized. James is a junior at Yale when Harry enters as a freshman. The two are not at all alike in their tastes; they follow different pursuits, but neither years of absence nor conflicting ideals can break the bond of affection that holds them together. In their love affairs, too, there is danger of a clash between them, but this is averted, largely by the wisdom and forbearance of the elder brother.

+ — A L A Bkl 13:87 N '16

"After a truly plausible account of the making of a playwright, the story abandons its real theme, the relation of the brothers, and becomes a long digressive loop of love story." Wilson Follett

+ — Atlan 118:499 O '16 50w

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

Bookm 43:540 J1 '16 220w

"A distinct contribution to the temporary literature that deals intelligently and sympathetically with the undergraduate life in our American colleges. Mr. Williams has written, in a charming narrative style, a sincere and positive study of the lives of two brothers."

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 3 '16 200w

"His comments on American as contrasted with English undergraduate life are illuminating. Mr. Williams has a vigorous style, and certain whimsical flashes of humor brighten his pages."

+ N Y Times 21:191 My 7 '16 430w

"It is too discursive; too much matter is used in its making, and the author seems to be in deadly fear all the while that he will omit even the most irrelevant detail touching the life and affairs of his principal characters. . . . The story has many features to recommend it, among which the author's evident sincerity and intelligence are not among the least."

+ — Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 670w

"An uneven story, the plot interesting, but crudely and unconvincingly handled at times."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:228 My '16 60w

WILLIAMS, WYTHE. Passed by the censor; with an introd. by Myron T. Herrick. il $1.50 (3c) Dutton 940.91 16-10486

Baffled in his attempts to get to the front, the author, Paris correspondent of the New York Times, joined the Red cross, and spent two months of 1914 in its service as orderly on a motor ambulance. Some of the descriptions in this book are written from that experience. Others are based on his reports sent to his paper when later, in 1915, he secured the necessary credentials that admitted him to the French lines. The volume contains a military map reproduced by permission of the French ministry of war.

"Although this writer tells us no new facts, he has an original style and at times almost an astonishing faculty for truthfulness. He gives us many new anecdotes and discredits certain familiar tales that long ago crossed the Atlantic and occupied space in our American papers for many weeks."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 330w

"Frigid indeed would be the nature that could not experience a touch of emotion at his portrayal of Chenal singing the 'Marseillaise.' That picture is a masterpiece."

+ Ind 87:280 Ag 21 '16 160w

+ Lit D 53:312 Ag 5 '16 470w

Reviewed by Harold Stearns

+ New Repub 9:sup24 N 18 '16 110w

"Mr. Williams tells more fully than anyone else has done—though not yet has the full account been made—a story that all Americans ought to know. It is the story of the ability and the tact with which the American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, filled his difficult position. Mr. Williams says of him that at the beginning of the war he was 'easily the most remarkable figure in Paris.'"

+ N Y Times 21:241 Je 11 '16 630w

St Louis 14:382 N '16

"A highly detailed map of the sector north of Arras is an interesting enclosure."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 13 '16 250w

WILLIAMSON, CHARLES NORRIS, and WILLIAMSON, MRS. ALICE MURIEL (LIVINGSTON). Lightning conductor discovers America. il $1.50 (1½c) Doubleday 16-13974

It is ten years since the first Williamson success, "The lightning conductor," appeared. In this story the hero and heroine of that tale celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary in America. Captain Winston, having been wounded while "doing his bit" for his country, is slowly convalescing, and his American wife,

Molly, takes advantage of the opportunity to bring him on his first visit to her own country. The scenes of the story are laid chiefly on Long Island, with a motor journey up the Hudson and into New England. There is a pleasing romance in which the Winstons take a hand and in which an obnoxious villain is successfully foiled. Attractive photographs of the country described illustrate the book.

"Will not be as popular as the first book, 'The lightning conductor.'"

A L A Bkl 13:37 O '16

+ Ath p482 O '16 60w

"Just now it happens to be the fashion to 'see America first,' and the joint authors are anything but dilatory in the matter of fashions. Their timeliness resembles the other qualities of their writing in being rather cleverly superficial. But it is clever, it is interesting, it is up-to-date."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 24 '16 300w

Reviewed by E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:94 Ag 15 '16 680w

"Like all the Williamsons' novels, sugar-cooky characters spread with romantic jam, served on china plates overpainted with scenery."

+ — Ind 87:315 Ag 28 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

+ N Y Times 21:244 Je 11 '16 420w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 27 '16 450w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p479 O 5 '16 70w

WILLIAMSON, CHARLES NORRIS, and WILLIAMSON, MRS. ALICE MURIEL (LIVINGSTON). Where the path breaks (Eng title, The war wedding). il $1.30 (3c) Century 16-6475

A story that begins in a German war hospital. Sir John Denin has been severely wounded. Only a miracle of scientific skill saves his life. At first on regaining consciousness he has no sense of his own identity but gradually memory returns and bit by bit he pieces together his past. The outstanding figure in it is Barbara Fay, the girl he had married at the hour of his leaving for the front. But his joy at thought of returning to her is short lived, for almost at once comes the crushing news that within the eight months since his supposed death she has married again. He goes to America and begins a new life under a new name. He publishes a book which creates an international sensation, and among the letters that come to him is one from Barbara. A long correspondence follows and leads in the end to a meeting between the two and a solution to their problems.

+ — A L A Bkl 12:429 Je '16

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 43:541 J1 '16 320w

"The plot, in many respects an excellent one, is spoiled in the telling by an atrocious amount of sentimentality, no less deplorable in its 'frightfulness' than other concomitants of the war."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 J1 5 '16 320w

"It is not a book which is likely to excite very animated discussion. In a way, it is 'up to date,' since it deals with a hero of the present war; but its atmosphere is frankly sentimental and 'Victorian'; the atmosphere, let us say, of such a novelist as Lady Clifford (Mrs. Henry de la Pasture). The tale, such as it is, is 'well written'; that is, the effect sought for is attained, the style is adequate for the substance, which—if one tries to relate it to any act of reality—is very flimsy indeed."

+ — Nation 102:410 Ap 13 '16 310w

"The book is an unusual war story, because it is full to overflowing of a philosophy of love, not only in the written words of its chief character but in his actions and his motives; a love that is Christlike in its self-abnegation on one side and in its all-embracingness on the other. This fact, coupled with the beautiful and reassuring theories of which it gives glimpses

WILLIAMSON, C. N. and A. M.—Continued as to the meanings of death and the possible compensations of this war's awful harvest of death, will probably bring the book many appreciative readers."

+ N Y Times 21:93 Mr 19 '16 700w

"Although the novel opens in a hospital it depicts none of the physical horrors of war. It is a tale of pure idealism, with its two leading figures always on the heights." R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 89:1024 Mr 18 '16 420w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Ap 30 '16 300w

— + The Times [London] Lit Sup p370 Ag 3 '16 80w

WILLIAMSON, OLIVER KEY. Prevention of the common cold. (Stokes' health ser.) *50c (2c) Stokes 616.2 16-24217

An English work that covers its subject very thoroly, beginning with a non-technical description of the structure of the nose and throat. While it is now recognized that a cold is a germ disease, there are predisposing causes which are under control, and it is to these that Dr. Williamson gives attention. In addition to an introductory chapter and the one above mentioned, there are chapters on Causation, Prevention, and Prevention in children.

+ Ath p282 Je '16 40w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:139 S '16
Pratt p23 Ja '17

WILLIBALD, presbyter, 8th cent. Life of Saint Boniface; tr. into English for the first time with introd. and notes by G. W. Robinson. (Harvard translations) *$1.15 Harvard univ. press 16-5312

The translator is secretary of the Harvard Graduate school of arts and sciences. This is the first English version of the Latin text. "Willibald's 'Life of Boniface' was written a few years after the archbishop's death [755] at the request of Lul, his successor in the see of Mainz, and of Bishop Megingoz, of Würzburg. The author was an English priest, who had not himself known Boniface, but who was able to draw on the knowledge of those who had been intimate with him. . . . The best text of the Life is that edited for the series of the Rerum Germanicarum Scriptores, in 1905, by W. Levison. It is from this that Mr. Robinson has made his translation, and the English version he has given us is a scholarly piece of work. The difficulty of rendering Willibald's longwinded sentences into readable English must have been considerable, but has been happily overcome; while the introduction and notes supply all the information required for understanding the Life. A list of editions and translations, and two good indices, add to the value of the present translation." (The Times [London] Lit Sup)

"The historical value of Willibald's 'Life of Saint Boniface' has long been appreciated and Mr. Robinson, by translating it, has done a second service to the study of medieval history in America, commensurate to that made by his translation of the 'Life of Saint Severinus.' The rendition into English is at the same time both literal and smooth. . . . Some of the notes appended to the text might have been profitably amplified." J. W. T.

+ Am Hist R 21:841 Jl '16 450w

"The additional material which Mr. Robinson's book gives is noteworthy."

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 13 '16 200w

"The translation is excellent, and brings out clearly the spirit and tone of the original text."

+ Cath World 103:406 Je '16 150w

+ Nation 103:160 Ag 17 '16 300w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p272 Je 8 '16 850w

WILLIS, HENRY PARKER. American banking. $2 (2c) La Salle extension univ. 332.1 16-5653

A concise, practical handbook for both student and general reader. The scope of the work is indicated by the chapter headings: Modern banking functions; Classes of banks; The bank loan; Special problems in loans; Bank deposits; Domestic exchange; Foreign exchange; Bank notes; Clearing houses; Bank organization and administration; Capital and reserves; The bank statement; Government and banking; History of banking in the United States; The national bank act; The federal reserve act; Control of the federal reserve system; Government finances and the reserve system; The federal reserve system in operation; Banking in the United States and abroad; Problems of American banking.

Reviewed by G. W. Dowrie

+ — Am Econ R 6:670 S '16 550w

"It is specially good in its explanations of clearing house work and in the clear exposition of the changed methods of business and banking brought about by the passage of the federal reserve act."

+ A L A Bkl 12:407 Je '16

"The treatment of domestic and foreign exchange (chaps. 6, 7) is unnecessarily involved. The financing of foreign trade is admirably described, but the factors determining the rate of exchange are not carefully worked out nor clearly stated. . . . Despite these and other minor errors, the book will fill its obvious purpose—to introduce the American business man or academic student to the essence of modern banking with especial reference to the federal reserve system of the United States." J. F. Ebersole

+ J Pol Econ 24:916 N '16 1450w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:123 Ag '16
Pratt p11 O '16

"The writer's intimate knowledge of the American banking system, especially under the federal reserve act, gives the work the stamp of authority that is desired in a manual of this kind."

+ Springfield Republican p17 Mr 31 '16 280w

WILSON, ELIZABETH. Fifty years of association work among young women, 1866-1916. il $1.35 (1½c) Y. W. C. A. 267 16-3631

A history of the young women's Christian association in the United States. The volume is divided into three parts. Part 1 is devoted to Preliminary organizations in Great Britain and America. Part 2, covering the years 1866 to 1906, is devoted to the growth of local and national organization. Part 3 covers the present activities of the association—student work, work with city girls, country girls, girls in industry etc. One of the purposes of the book is to show that this half century of work constitutes but the beginning of the movement. There is an appendix giving a chronology, a list of associations, etc., and an index.

+ A L A Bkl 13:7 O '16

+ Ind 85:318 F 28 '16 60w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:57 Ap '16
Pittsburgh 21:101 Mr '16

"It is a fascinating story, in spite of its 400 pages, of work for and with young girls and older girls, in city and country, in school, college, shop and factory, and would prove instructive reading for those who think the Y. W. C. A.'s activities are limited to prayer meetings and homes for young women. They are as wide as the needs." A. M. McLean

+ Survey 37:209 N 25 '16 240w

WILSON, GEORGE GRAFTON, ed. Hague arbitration cases. maps *$3.50 Ginn 341.1 15-19436

"In this work Professor Wilson has compiled the decisions in the fifteen important cases presented to the Tribunal of arbitration of The Hague since its establishment in 1899. While the author has not included the arguments of counsel, he has given the terms of submission of each case together with the decision of the tribunal, furnishing a complete history of the case, and a full exposition of the principles governing the decision. . . . The value of Professor Wilson's volume is greatly increased by the publication of an appendix containing the Hague arbitration conventions of 1899 and 1907." (Ann Am Acad) "All documents in foreign languages have been translated into English." (Nation)

"This volume shows probably more clearly than any publication that has appeared in recent years not only the possibilities of international arbitration, but the real achievement of the past seventeen years. The record is one that may well strengthen the faith of those who believe that the judicial settlement of international disputes must supplant our present plan, if civilization is to be preserved." L. S. R.

+ Ann Am Acad 64:253 Mr '16 220w

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 23 '15 700w

"Will receive a hearty welcome. It is the first attempt to bring together in a single collection the decisions of the Hague tribunal under the conventions of 1899 and 1907 for the specific settlement of international disputes. . . . Some of the awards possess little value as precedents for the determination of future controversies. On the other hand, the award in the dispute between Russia and Turkey over 'Interest on indemnities' lays down in definite terms three legal propositions which will undoubtedly be accepted as controlling precedents."

+ Nation 102:24 Ja 6 '16 500w

"It might have been conceivable that such questions should have led on to wars instead of arbitration: therefore the tribunals may be congratulated. But nobody doubts now, and statesmen never doubted, that though such disputes may furnish casus belli to aggressive states, they are not truly causæ belli."

+ Spec 116:472 Ap 8 '16 120w

WILSON, HARRY BRUCE, and WILSON, GUY MITCHELL. Motivation of school work. *$1.25 (2c) Houghton 371.3 16-11279

The preface says, "In the twenty or more years of their experience in rural, grade, and high schools, both as teachers and superintendents, the authors came to see clearly the large gains in the speed, thoroughness, and scope of the work when pupils were trying to do things of personal concern to them." It is on this experience that their book dealing with the problem of inducing personal interest and motive in school work is based. Part 1 consists of four general chapters: The present need in education; The meaning of motivation; The psychological basis of motivation; The origin and sources of motives. Parts 2 and 3 are then devoted to concrete illustrations of the theory as applied to the subjects of the common school curriculum, the chief aim of the book being, "to furnish concrete help of a fundamental kind in solving the daily problems of every teacher." One of the two authors is superintendent of schools in Topeka, Kansas, the other is professor of agricultural education in the Iowa State college of agriculture.

+ A L A Bk 13:105 D '16

+ Cleveland p110 Ag '16 30w

"Many of the problems will be quite as artificial from the point of view of the children as the problems which are now used in the schools. . . . Furthermore, it seems to the present writer that this book and many of the recent discussions in education fail altogether to realize the fact that children have logical interests. . . . The book stimulates anyone who reads it to vigorous educational thinking and, whatever may be one's view with regard to the proper motivation of school work, he will find in this volume many interesting and useful devices and much stimulating material."

+ — El School J 17:81 O '16 1100w

N Y Br Lib News 3:95 Je '16

"The practical recommendations are well balanced and sane. The theoretical discussions in the first part of the book are not so clear or judicious as are the practical parts. The authors express extreme views, which would not meet with general agreement on the part of students of education, when they exalt the importance of motivation by denying the existence of fatigue in the school or of general training. . . .

Teachers and administrators will unquestionably find this book very useful for the wealth of suggestion for practical procedure which it contains." F. N. Freeman

+ — School R 24:708 N '16 350w

WILSON, HARRY LEON. Somewhere in Red Gap. il $1.35 (1c) Doubleday 16-19217

Mrs. Lysander John Pettengill, "Ma" Pettengill, is the center of interest in most of these stories of Red Gap, Washington. In some of them she is the narrator. In the first she tells of what happened when Wilfred Lennox, the hobo poet, reached Red Gap on his coast-to-coast walking tour. In the second, she tells of one of her match-making endeavors, carried out with the assistance of the "Song of songs"—"The rosary." The remaining stories are: The real Peruvian doughnuts; Once a Scotchman, always; Non-plush ultra; Cousin Egbert intervenes; Kate; or Up from the depths; Pete's brother-in-law; Little old New York.

"The stories are good for reading aloud."

+ A L A Bk 13:87 N '16

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 14 '16 130w

"Take 'The red splash of romance,'—there is much in the story: if people would read it and take it to heart where they need to, our great American audience would be vastly improved in æsthetic taste and perhaps moral character. . . . 'Somewhere in Red Gap' is at least American; no other nation could have produced it." E. E. Hale

+ Dial 61:27 O 5 '16 470w

+ Ind 88:467 D 11 '16 40w

"The stories are all entertaining, and if not quite so mirth-provoking as were the adventures of Ruggles, are nevertheless very funny. Many of our old friends appear in them."

+ N Y Times 21:400 O 8 '16 530w

Reviewed by Joseph Mosher

+ — Pub W 90:1410 O 21 '16 600w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 1 '16 180w

WILSON, JAMES HARRISON. Life of John A. Rawlins. il $3 Neale 16-20263

John A. Rawlins, assistant adjutant-general and chief of staff in the civil war, and secretary of war during Grant's first term, was the man most closely associated with Grant. The author, himself an army officer, says, "John A. Rawlins, all things considered, was the most remarkable man I met during the civil war, and although he came from the plain people and always held a subordinate position in the army, it was his good fortune to exert a tremendous influence not only upon persons of high rank but upon events of transcendent importance."

+ Ath p531 N '16 180w

Ind 88:242 N 6 '16 30w

Pittsburgh 21:580 D '16

R of Rs 54:569 N '16 200w

St Louis 15:23 Ja '17 20w

+ Springfield Republican p8 O 17 '16 850w

WILSON, RICHARD, ed. Russian story book. 2 il $2.25 Macmillan 398.3

"From the 'song cycle,' or folklore tales, of Kiev and Novgorod and other early sources Richard Wilson adapts the fifteen stories in the volume. . . . In compiling the book Mr. Wilson hopes 'to show by means of some of the early legends the ideals and points of view of the Russian nation.'"—Springfield Republican

"The stories will help to make young people understand the ideals that molded the beginnings of the Russian nation."

+ R of Rs 55:102 Ja '17 40w

+ Sat R 122:sup10 D 9 '16 90w

"These tales of Ilya Murometz, the Cossack hero, and of Nikitch and other legendary paladins of Novgorod or Kiev are wonderfully vivid and thrilling; although the barbaric vigour of the originals has been judiciously toned down. English children are puzzled by the genuine Russian fairy-tale such as one finds in Mr.

WILSON, RICHARD, ed.—Continued
Leonard Magnus's admirable collection, but they will delight in this version of the adventures of Ilyra and his peers."

+ Spec 117:sup684 D 2 '16 150w

"The stories are fascinating and something quite new in juvenile fiction."

+ Springfield Republican p14 D 17 '16 250w

"A genuine volume of Russian fairy tales, and one of the best that has yet appeared. It is a good selection, well told. . . . The illustrations are clever, but should have been done by a Russian, or taken from Russian sources. It is impossible to improvise the detail in a Russian picture, and Mr. Frank Pape's illustrations are almost entirely devoid of the Russian spirit. . . . Nevertheless, because of the letterpress, an excellent volume!"

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p607 D 14 '16 200w

WILSON, SAMUEL GRAHAM. Modern movements among Moslems. *$1.50 Revell 16-9046

"The nine chapters of this volume are composed from the author's intimate acquaintance with his subject. He writes of innovations in Islam, the revival of Islamic missions, Mahdist movements, Neo-Islam and society, Political movements among Moslems, and Political reforms in the Turkish Empire, including in the last the preaching of the 'jahab' [religious war] in 1914 and giving reasons for its failure outside of Turkey. He has shown also how various forces have worked to the modification of the faith of 200 millions."—Lit D

"In the light of the present European conflict, this book has unusual significance. . . . Far from being a dead faith, hopelessly outclassed by Christianity, Dr. Wilson proves that Islam is thoroughly awakened by a great revivalistic spirit, and by its political hope of one day bringing the whole world under its way. . . . All of the Turkish-Mohammedan movements are full of new meaning when this viewpoint is kept well in mind."

+ Bib World 48:127 Ag '16 160w

"Commencing with the accepted hypothesis of several scholarly writers that Islam is impervious to outside influence and therefore incapable of change, the author demonstrates that the currents of modern thought are breaking thru the barriers of Mohammedan dogmatic absolutism. . . . Apart from his direct objective, in the main successfully accomplished, Dr. Wilson illumines social conditions in various parts of the Mohammedan world."

+ Ind 86:254 My 15 '16 230w

"Dr. Wilson, resident for thirty-two years in Persia, almost entirely Mohammedan in its religion, is one of the keener students among Christian missionaries. His knowledge of the native genius of Islam is profound; and his insight into its modern tendencies and sects is clear."

+ Lit D 52:1853 Je 24 '16 280w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:76 My '16 20w

+ Springfield Republican p13 O 8 '16 130w

WILSON, WOODROW. John Wesley's place in history. *50c Abingdon press 16-11270

"This is the address which President Woodrow Wilson, then president of Princeton university, delivered at Wesleyan university on the occasion of the Wesley bicentennial in 1903."—Springfield Republican

"A sympathetic character study. It is highly interesting aside from historical and literary values, as a bit of perspective on Mr. Wilson's feeling for a certain kind of executive efficiency."

+ R of Rs 53:507 Ap '16 130w

"Interest in the life of John Wesley is rapidly expanding. . . . One can think of no higher praise for Mr. Wilson's address than to say that it is worthy to be placed beside Mr. Birrell's. It emphasizes a different side of 18th-century life. Mr. Birrell concerns himself primarily with the ecclesiastical and intellectual background of Wesley's evangelism. Mr. Wilson gives it a social and economic setting."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ja 16 '16 1650w

WILSON, WOODROW. On being human. *50c (1c) Harper 814 16-8261

Like "When a man comes to himself" this little book is a reprint of an earlier essay by President Wilson. It appeared in the Atlantic Monthly in 1897. But, the written nearly two decades ago, many of its utterances are significant today. The ideals expressed are clearly those by which Woodrow Wilson has lived.

"Even more now than on its original appearance are the calm, wise counsels of the brief treatise needed by the public whom the author addresses."

+ Dial 60:478 My 11 '16 130w

"Its smooth and flowing sentences bespeak the mind in constant training for graceful utterance. Nevertheless, it speaks certain truths with such simplicity and clarity that, whatever its date, they are as true now as then, and as characteristic of their author."

+ N Y Times 21:123 Ap 2 '16 1100w

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 9 '16 250w

WILSON, WOODROW. President of the United States. *50c (6c) Harper 353 16-15819

"This essay was first published in 1908 in Woodrow Wilson's 'Constitutional government in the United States,' and is now issued in separate form for the first time. Then the author was president of Princeton university, and this essay was his theoretical interpretation of what the office of president had been and should be."

The great point which Mr. Wilson stresses is that the president 'has become the leader of his party and the guide of the nation in political purpose, and therefore in legal action.' By constant repetition Mr. Wilson impresses the reader that the president not only has become the leader of his party and of the nation, but that he should be both. And this theory of the presidency Mr. Wilson has done his utmost to put into practice."—Boston Transcript

A L A Bkl 13:96 N '16

Boston Transcript p6 Ag 30 '16 720w

+ Ind 88:33 O 2 '16 50w

Nation 104:136 F 1 '17 310w

"Whether we regard this essay as the fruit of study by an independent and disinterested publicist, as it was in 1908, or as an exposition of the views of his office by a president seeking re-election—and now it clearly is that also—it is a document of extraordinary interest. . . . He invites general comparison of his conduct and his character with the lofty standard elaborated in his study. It is the act of a strong and courageous man."

+ N Y Times 21:324 Ag 20 '16 900w

+ R of Rs 54:455 O '16 170w

Springfield Republican p6 Ag 31 '16 830w

WILSTACH, FRANK JENNERS. Dictionary of similes. *$2.50 Little 808 16-23135

The incidental labor of many years has gone to the making of this book of similes. As far back as 1894 the lack of such a volume was brought to the compiler's attention and from that time on he has made a practice of noting all the similes in every book he read. Finding his collection useful to others, he began systematically to assemble all the worth-while similes from Chaucer to our own time. He says, "It seemed an endless undertaking; but I pursued the work with growing interest and delight." The quotations are arranged under subjects, the keyword of the simile in each case supplying the subject heading. There is an author index.

"The very title of the book speaks for it, and should serve to give it a place on library reference shelves by the side of Bartlett's 'Dictionary of quotations' The mechanics of the book are well high perfect. One exception may be taken, and that is to the weight of the book." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 16 '16 410w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

New Repub 9:99 N 25 '16 1200w

"For congressmen, political orators, very minor poets, third-rate editorial writers, fourth-rate clergymen, authors of best-sellers, Chautauqua moralists—for all those who have a fatalistic conception of style—this book will be manna. But for self-respecting writers, it will be useful chiefly as a deterrent." Lawrence Gilman

No Am 205:137 Ja '17 1950w

WILSTACH, PAUL. Mount Vernon, Washington's home and the nation's shrine. il $2 (2½c) Doubleday 16-19653

Mr. Wilstach has written the first complete history of Mount Vernon, Washington's home. The book has an introduction by Lawrence Washington, who says: "Much of what, in the past, has been said and written about Mount Vernon has been based on tradition, and while Mr. Wilstach's careful investigation has confirmed many of these traditions, some of what has been believed has been found not entirely accurate, and his patient research has brought to light much that was not known." There are about fifty attractive illustrations.

"The book will amply satisfy the general reader and Mount Vernon pilgrim. An undeveloped critical faculty, however, betrays the author at times into historical exaggeration that makes the volume uneven." J. C. Fitzpatrick

+ — Am Hist R 22:446 Ja '17 270w

+ A L A Bkl 13:166 Ja '17

"The book is copiously illustrated, handsomely printed, ornately bound, and neatly boxed."

+ Dial 61:475 N 30 '16 190w

+ Ind 88:409 D 4 '16 80w

+ Lit D 53:1560 D 9 '16 130w

"This vivid knowledge of what Mount Vernon was like only increases our appreciation of Washington's courage and vision. . . . His phrase about dedicating his 'fortune' to the sacred cause was no idle one. Mr. Wilstach has not merely made a distinct and interesting contribution to our store of knowledge. Unconsciously perhaps, but still truly, he has quickened our sense of the human dignity of Washington."

+ New Repub 8:334 O 28 '16 400w

+ N Y Times 21:512 N 26 '16 120w

"In general, it may be said that his book will have greater popular than historical interest."

+ Springfield Republican p15 O 15 '16 500w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:409 N '16 60w

WINANS, JAMES ALBERT. Public speaking: principles and practice. $1.50 Century 808.5 16-736

This volume is an outgrowth of a pamphlet, "Notes on public speaking," published in 1911. It is based on the author's class room experience, as teacher of public speaking in Cornell university, and is intended for text-book use in classes in public speaking. The book is given up to the discussion of the subject, not to long extracts from speeches. Such illustrative matter as it contains is limited to brief paragraphs. The author says, "I have wished students using this book to become intelligent on the subject, not merely to learn rules, I have therefore explained much."

+ A L A Bkl 12:470 Jl '16

+ Educ R 52:314 O '16 50w

+ Ind 88:30 O 2 '16 30w

"Succeeds in infusing the subject with vitality, now and then to the extent of flippancy."

+ — Nation 103:239 S 7 '16 160w

"With 'attention' as the keyword, Winans has written a book at once sound psychologically, free from the common external, mechanical approach to specific problems, and clear, simple, interesting. This book is probably not the last word on the psychology of public speaking. Its author neither claims nor desires it to be. But it is, it seems to me, the most authoritative word that has ever been spoken on this subject. No teacher who has to do with the teaching of original speaking, in any grade, under any circumstances, by whatsoever methods, should omit a careful study of this book." J. M. O'Neill

+ School R 24:396 My '16 750w

"Based on experience with college students, it is designed specially for their aid but might well be used in the high school or by the individual. Good chapters on 'Selecting the subject' and 'Finding material.'"

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:408 N '16 50w

WINCH, WILLIAM HENRY. Children's perceptions. $1.50 Warwick & York 136.7 15-2814

"This is no. 12 of the Educational psychology monographs, edited by Professor Whipple. It gives the detailed results of Professor Winch's experiments with children from three to thirteen years of age in reporting what was observed in a picture. . . . The purpose of the experiment was to determine the perceptions of children of different ages and their tendency to resist suggestion. Professor Stern, of Germany, first attracted attention to this method of investigation, and Professor Winch's experiment is in reality a repetition of experiments previously made by Professor Stern." (School R) Mr. Winch was inspector of schools for the London county council.

"It is Mr. Winch's endeavor to follow up the suggestions of Binet and Stern in the field of child psychology and to make an original contribution to experimental pedagogy. The author has done this and has done it well."

+ Educ R 51:414 Ap '16 70w

"The present writer thinks there is opportunity for richer psychological interpretation of the data derived from this experiment than Professor Winch has made. The book will be of particular interest to practical people who have not been students of child psychology. It is full of concrete details which will be suggestive to people who are actually in charge of young children. For psychologists it presents data which will be of service in the development of the psychology of perception in childhood and youth." M. V. O'Shea

+ School R 24:236 Mr '16 1150w

WINCHESTER, CALEB THOMAS. William Wordsworth; how to know him. il $1.25 Bobbs 821 16-9042

Believing that the way to know Wordsworth is to read his poetry, the author has quoted generously. The titles of 42 poems which are given either in full or in part in the text of the book are listed. Chapters are devoted to: The early years; Racedown and the early poetry; Alfoxden and Grasmere; Limitations and defects; Characteristic merits; Humble and rustic life—poetic diction; Nature; His philosophy of life; The latest years.

"One of the series for beginning students and uninitiated general readers. A reliable, serious, and readable study."

+ A L A Bkl 12:420 Je '16

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '16 430w

+ Cath World 103:687 Ag '16 220w

"There could scarcely be a happier moment than the present for Dr. C. T. Winchester's volume. For it is in Wordsworth that the Englishman of to-day will find expression of the deepest needs of the present hour. The best of these sonnets were written one hundred and fourteen years ago; but they embody as ringing a call for to-day, toward loftier ideals and a higher national life."

+ Dial 60:556 Je 8 '16 470w

+ Ind 87:104 Jl 17 '16 50w

"Professor Winchester, it must be admitted, has to answer for certain faults which cannot be charged to the general scheme of the series. He is occasionally careless in the statement of facts. . . . His account of Wordsworth's earlier years and connection with the French revolution is inadequate even for a work professedly elementary, and in general his relation of Wordsworth to the whole romantic movement is superficial. Against these defects may be set the geniality of the writer, the pleasant ease of his style, his honesty, and the wholesomeness of his taste."

WINCHESTER, CALEB THOMAS—Continued

+ — Nation 102:547 My 18 '16 250w

"Mr. Winchester does not write good English. . . . Furthermore—and this is more important—he is so lacking in sympathy with Wordsworth that the reader cannot but wonder why he was selected to write this book."

— N Y Times 21:357 S 10 '16 280w

"One cannot imagine such a lover of literature as Prof. Winchester writing such a book as he has done and not thoroughly enjoying it, and he must certainly project much of that same quality of enjoyment on the reader."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 190w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:226 My '16 30w

"Occasionally, for criticism we have those popular half-truths which are the chief enemies of men like Wordsworth, Blake, and Browning. In general, however, the book is well written, reveals good pedagogical sense, and has a pleasant aroma about it from years of sympathetic companionship. Its criticism is usually sound and at times markedly penetrating." F: E. Pierce

+ — Yale R ns 6:215 O '16 170w

WINNIFRITH, DOUGLAS P. Church in the fighting line with General Smith-Dorrien at the front; with a foreword by the Lord Bishop of London. il *$1 Doran 940.91

War15-213

"To the many accounts of war as envisaged by the different occupations of those engaged in it is now added this by a chaplain who was with the Fourteenth infantry brigade field ambulance from the beginning of the war. His narrative covers the time from the latter part of August, 1914, when he crossed to France with the British expeditionary force, until the early spring of 1915. . . . Throughout, his point of view is that of the fighting churchman, who, although he does not bear arms himself, is with the fighting men in spirit."—N Y Times

"The terseness of his style and his typically 'British' restraint strengthen the appeal of a chronicle of brave deeds by a brave man, which brings out vividly the courage and devotion of the whole surgical and medical staff and of the stretcherbearers."

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 8 '16 380w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:39 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:345 S 3 '16 300w

WINTER, NEVIN OTTO. Texas, the marvelous, the state of the six flags. (See American first ser.) il *$3.50 Page 976.4 16-1461

"All aspects of Texas life, Texas history, the Texas people and Texas topography are brought into Mr. Winter's book. It is a narrative of a state that is imperial in size, in opportunities, and in prospects. It awakens us to a realization of the illimitable extent of the United States and to an understanding of the future. He describes one after another the characteristics of the Texan cities. . . . It contains a map and many full page pictures in color and in black and white."—Boston Transcript

"Make-up too expensive."

+ A L A Bkl 13:172 Ja '17

+ Boston Transcript p9 JI 29 '16 650w

"A combination of history and travel, rather unfinished and disconnected in style, but giving much useful information. By the author of like books on Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Guatemala, Mexico, Poland and Russia."

+ Cleveland pl57 D '16 30w

+ Lit D 54:206 Ja 27 '17 100w

+ N Y Br Lib News 3:140 S '16

WINTER, WILLIAM. Shakespeare on the 2^d stage. 3d series il *$3 Moffat 822.3 16-24572

"Eight plays form the subjects of these chapters—'Cymbeline,' 'Love's labour's lost,' 'Coriolanus,' 'A midsummer night's dream,' 'King Henry IV,' 'The merry wives of Windsor,' 'Anthony and Cleopatra' and 'King John.' Mr. Winter follows the method of the previous volumes; that is, he provides historical and critical data about the play itself, gives a record of the important productions from the 17th century down to our own times, and adds his impressions of the performances that he has seen."—Springfield Republican

+ A L A Bkl 13:214 F '17

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 20 '16 2000w

"The facts in it, of course, are not new, but, collected as they are from many different sources, they offer valuable facilities for reference. Apart from this aspect of the volume, especial value and interest attach to the purely personal contribution of Mr. Winter which constitutes the greater half. . . . When he discusses the proper functions of the theatre, the principles of the great art of acting, and the inherent quality, literary or dramatic, of plays or characters, he speaks with the authority of a wide experience and the knowledge of a keen student."

+ Nation 104:135 F 1 '17 500w

"It is a book which both author and publisher may be proud of, eloquently and engagingly written, handsomely, almost luxuriantly, printed and illustrated."

+ Outlook 115:77 Ja 10 '17 50w

"The index is admirable, a word of biography being given for each person listed. The book is profusely illustrated. The combination of history and vivid comment will be relished by the intelligent playgoer of experience. For younger readers it will afford an initiation into a high tradition."

+ Springfield Republican p6 D 11 '16 600w

WINTERBURN, FLORENCE MAY (HULL)
(MRS. GEORGE WILLIAM WINTERBURN).
Liberty Hall. il *$1.25 (2c) Harper 16-17495

Alberta Lewis, the heroine of this story for girls, is a girl of determined character and splendid spirit. With her little sister Doty she comes to make her home in a little Kentucky village. She has heard much of Kentucky hospitality, but her welcome to her new home is disappointing. Her aunt is a crabbed, unsympathetic woman who looks on her nieces' arrival with disfavor, altho Alberta has been led to believe that, as their father's heirs, they are rightfully entitled to an income from the small family estate. Gradually she makes friends with the southern girls and boys, who at first have seemed light-minded and frivolous, and when her aunt's sudden departure to join a vagabond husband in Tennessee leaves her in charge of the house, she puts it to good uses, making it a home for school girls and something of a social center.

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

Bookm 44:408 D '16 40w

+ Springfield Republican p15 D 9 '16 80w

WINTON, ANDREW LINCOLN, and others.
Microscopy of vegetable foods; with special reference to the detection of adulteration and the diagnosis of mixtures. il *$6.50
Wiley 614.3 16-3163

"The second edition has incorporated the results of ten years of activity in the examination of human and cattle foods. Among the features of the edition are additions to the sections on wheat and flour; a complete revision of such parts of the chapter on oil seeds as treat of mustards, rapes, cruciferous weed seeds, and linseed; a description of the histology of alfalfa; and a revision of the sections on pomes and drupes."—Bot Gaz

"Revision is so slight that those having the original will probably not need this."

+ A L A Bkl 12:496 JI '16

"The arrangement of material, analytic keys, lists of adulterants, and the suggestions as to diagnosis are of great practical service in the campaign against sophistication by unscrupulous manufacturers and dealers." J. M. C.

+ Bot Gaz 62:242 S '16 130w

+ Cleveland p112 Ag '16 30w

"An enormous amount of valuable information is collected and collated. The text is illustrated with no fewer than 635 figures, and concludes with a full bibliography, glossary, and index."

+ Nature 97:500 Ag 17 '16 250w

N Y Br Lib News 3:154 O '16

"Has an excellent bibliography."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p6 Ag '16 70w

WISE, GEORGE. Campaigns and battles of the Army of northern Virginia. il *$3 (1½c) Neale 973.7 16-5328

A history of the military operations of the civil war from the confederate point of view. The author enlisted in April, 1861, and served thru the war as a military engineer. He writes from personal knowledge of events, but quotes liberally thruout from official documents.

"His account is extraordinarily vivid."

+ Ath p531 N '16 180w

Ind 88:242 N 6 '16 40w

R of Rs 54:571 N '16 40w

"He gives a very fair and unbiased account of the war from the southern point of view, although like most confederate authors, he persistently exaggerates the strength of the union army and underrates the rebel forces."

+ — Springfield Republican p8 O 26 '16 270w

WISE, JENNINGS CROPPER. Long arm of Lee. 2v il $4.50 (1c) Bell 973.7 16-10313

"The history of the artillery of the Army of northern Virginia, with a brief account of the Confederate bureau of ordnance." (Subtitle) The account of the Bureau of ordnance is given a place as part 1 of volume 1. Part 2 follows the history of Lee's artillery down to the battle of Chancellorsville in 1863. Volume 2 carries the history thru the war. The author says, "Should the narrative seem to ignore the part played by the other arms of the service, it must be recalled that this work professes to be but a history of the field artillery."

WISWELL, LEON ORLANDO. How to use reference books. il *60c Am. bk. 028.7 16-14609

This elementary guide to the use of reference books is designed for the use of teachers and parents. It is the author's belief that instruction of this character should be given to children early in school life and the book is planned as a help to those who should have this instruction in charge. Contents: The library; indispensable reference books [dictionary, cyclopedia]; Reference works in particular subjects; Organization and equipment; Course of instruction. The author is school libraries inspector for the New York state education department.

N Y Br Lib News 3:172 N '16

Pittsburgh 21:514 N '16

Pratt p5 Ja '17

WITH my regiment from the Aisne to La Bassée. (Soldiers' tales of the great war.) *$1 Lippincott 940.91 (Eng ed 16-2151)

"Platoon commander's descriptions of trench fighting and trench life on the Aisne and La Bassée have already attracted attention in various journals, and here we have them in a volume. The chapters form a sequence from the time when the author went out with his draft to his return home badly wounded."—Spec

+ Ath p22 Ja '16 270w

"There is not a really new thing in the entire volume. And yet by means of sheer joviality, a very readable style, and good lively descriptions, he 'gets away' with it. It is an amusing, rather sentimental and most readable account."

+ — Boston Transcript p7 Ag 30 '16 250w

"He frankly states the less conspicuous an infantry officer is, the better, and has sense enough to perceive that by throwing away his life he is merely serving the object of the enemy."

+ Ind 87:421 S 18 '16 100w

+ Lit D 53:751 S 23 '16 380w

+ Nation 103:402 O 26 '16 40w

N Y Br Lib News 3:120 Ag '16 70w

R of Rs 54:237 Ag '16 10w

"Platoon commander" has seeing eyes and a pleasing power of restrained irony. He notes facts about the psychology of soldiers which, though they are small, paradoxically show that he thinks largely about life."

+ Spec 116:261 F 19 '16 400w

WITHERS, HARTLEY. International finance. *$1.25 Dutton 336 16-16048

"The present volume, as Mr. Withers explains in a very brief preface, goes over a good deal of ground which he covered in his earlier books. The work, he tells us, was written by the request of the Council for the study of international relations, and is intended to explain 'what the City really does, why it is the centre of the world's money market,' &c. Of the eight chapters the first four deal with elementary matters . . . such as the nature of capital, banking, investments, finance and trade. As Mr. Withers disposes of these matters in about 80 pages out of the 180, it need hardly be said that his treatment of them is not exhaustive. . . . The chapters on Banking machinery and on Investments and securities are very good, and set the reader on the right track for learning what the money market and the stock exchange are. . . . The whole volume is a plea for courage and faith in the future based, we believe, on a correct conception of the intrinsic power of the United Kingdom and the British empire."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"It is authoritative, Mr. Withers being the author of 'The meaning of money,' 'Poverty and waste,' 'War and Lombard street,' and joint author of the 'English banking system.'"

+ A L A Bkl 13:63 N '16

"We believe that Mr. Withers has not the full courage of his convictions. We pounce at once upon his support of the payment of interest on capital. . . . Mr. Withers really is at one with us in recognizing present financial evils, but argues that it is no use debating a more ideal system until it 'becomes a matter of practical politics.' But how are we to bring it nearer to practical politics unless we debate it? Frankly, we are working towards the elimination of unearned income."

+ — Ath p272 Je '16 700w

+ Cath World 104:116 O '16 120w

Cleveland p131 N '16 20w

"The book is an explanation of the mechanism of international finance, and its clarity is as remarkable as its suggestiveness. Given the fact of capital Mr. Withers discusses the function of the financier in its manipulation. He is everywhere illuminating. His style is dextrous and straightforward. His outlook is consistently progressive." H. J. L.

+ New Repub 9:23 N 4 '16 1350w

N Y Br Lib News 3:138 S '16 30w

"Those who read Mr. Withers will find their instruction made easy. His style is attractive and his prestige is great. He was long the financial editor of the London Times, more recently was the adviser of the British treasury, and now is editor of a financial weekly of world influence [the Economist]. The point which he stresses is the relation between international finance and domestic trade. . . . The solid foundations of many a modest competence, and of a national strength surpassing anything the world has ever witnessed, are offered to those who grasp the truths which are expounded to us by this Englishman. No American has written with such authority and lucidity upon these subjects."

+ N Y Times 21:322 Ag 20 '16 1400w

Pittsburgh 21:511 N '16 30w

St Louis 14:429 D '16 20w

+ Spec 117:587 N 11 '16 800w

WITHERS, HARTLEY—Continued

"International finance" may seem to some to combine elementary information with thoughtful obiter dicta on general economic matters. It neither covers its own field nor pays sustained attention to the various other questions that it gathers up. . . . At the same time, these imperfections of method once recognized, Mr. Withers's book can be unreservedly commended for the illumination which the author is able to throw upon every aspect of every question which he touches, for the well-balanced and unbiased mind which is apparent in his frequent criticism of existing arrangements, and for the ease and attractiveness of his writing."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 3 '16 1050w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p218 My 11 '16 1250w

WITTE, EMIL. Revelations of a German attaché; ten years of German-American diplomacy. *$1 (1½c) Doran 327.73 16-16544

This is a translation of "Aus einer deutschen botschaft," a work published in Leipzig in 1907. Its revelations of diplomatic secrets were intended for German readers rather than for Americans. The author was one of the editors of the Deutsche Zeitung in Vienna at the time of the Spanish-American war and he is said to have been about the only editor in either Austria or Germany who upheld the United States. It was at this time that the idea came to him of going to Washington to act as correspondent for the German and Austrian press. The matter was arranged but he found on arriving in America that instead of acting as a free correspondent he was expected to act as a secret agent in the interests of Germany. The central fact brought out by his revelations is that there was, just at this time, a sudden and complete reversal of the German attitude toward the German population of America, it having occurred to those in power that the "German-American vote" could be made a potent instrument. Many names now prominent are mentioned in the narrative.

"What amazes the reader is that Herr Witte had the courage to name every one of these men in this book which was published in Leipzig, Saxony. The book is startling in its revelations. The facts are given with too much detail to be denied. Persons involved are boldly named. As the publishers say, this book is 'not merely history—but a solemn warning.' All those interested in the safety of America should read it."

+ Boston Transcript p8 S 6 '16 750w

N Y Times 21:291 J1 23 '16 1100w

St Louis 15:8 Ja '17 10w

WODEHOUSE, PELHAM GRENVILLE. Psmith, journalist. il *$1.25 Macmillan (Eng ed 16-17497)

"Psmith, tired of the monotony of a student's life at Cambridge [England], spends his long vacation by coming to New York. He hopes to find adventure, and when he meets Billy Windsor of Wyoming, acting editor of Cosy Moments, he is on the trail. Psmith sees a group of crowded filthy tenements and suggests that Windsor change the policy of his paper while the boss is away, and 'get after' the owner of the property. The suggestion is adopted, and its carrying out leads to about 100 pages of ambushes and hairbreadth escapes, at the end of which the owner of the tenement pays Psmith $5,000 with which to remodel them, and Psmith, who in the meantime has bought Cosy Moments, restores it to its pristine cosiness. At the end of the book, he is dozing in his room in Cambridge."—Springfield Republican

"We recommend the book cordially to all who wish for an hour or two of unqualified amusement. It will bear reading a second and even a third time."

+ Ath 1915,2:263 O 16 210w

"One of Wodehouse's earlier books burlesquing the seamy side of New York life for English consumption."

+ Cleveland p18 Mr '16 70w

"A decidedly lively yarn."

+ N Y Times 20:527 D 26 '15 320w

"The humor of the book is characteristic of English humor since Gilbert, in that the author keeps a perfectly straight face while he draws his long bow."

+ Springfield Republican p13 N 29 '15 280w

WOLF, ABRAHAM. Philosophy of Nietzsche. (Studies in economics and political science) *$1.50 Macmillan 193 (Eng ed 15-26893)

"Dr. A. Wolf's lectures, delivered in February, 1915, at University college, London, have been published at an opportune moment, and will probably be widely read. Dr. Wolf begins by repudiating the charge that Nietzsche wittingly incited Germany to a war of aggression. So far from encouraging German megalomania, Nietzsche was one of its most scathing critics. . . . After dealing with Nietzsche's method and with the motive of his philosophy, Dr. Wolf devotes two interesting chapters to his theory of knowledge and his theory of the universe. . . . The book concludes with a well-written chapter on Nietzsche's theory of life and conduct."—Hibbert J

"Dr. Wolf begins with a chapter which we can only call misleading. . . . The book has, as we have said, its defects; but it is a careful and systematic attempt to place Nietzsche in the history of philosophy, and, on the whole, commendably free from partisanship."

+ Ath 1915,2:139 Ag 28 2550w

"Dr. Wolf has given us the best English exposition of Nietzsche's philosophy, if philosophy it can rightly be called." G. D. Hicks

+ Hibbert J 14:186 O '15 450w

"Nietzsche is one of those writers whose philosophy evaporates when detached from its literary qualities. . . . It is instructive to view the result when a professional philosopher of the competence of Dr. Wolf attempts an introduction to his philosophy, omitting all detail of Nietzsche's career, and with little reference to his extra-philosophic interests. In this short series of lectures, interestingly, if rather carelessly written, Dr. Wolf has given us an admirable piece of simplification; in one hundred and sixteen pages he has presented an excellent outline of all that is strictly philosophic in Nietzsche's writings. . . . We leave chapter 4 (Nietzsche's theory of knowledge) with the suspicion that the simplification has simplified the philosophy away. . . . In treating Nietzsche's theory of the universe, Dr. Wolf is more successful. . . . The last two chapters are the best of the book." T. S. Eliot

+ Int J Ethics 26:426 Ap '16 700w

WOLF, EMMA. Fulfillment. *$1.35 (2c) Holt 16-9068

In its opening chapters the story introduces two interesting characters, Deborah and Gwen Heath, daughters of a college professor, who are left at their father's death in possession of a small income and a little house high up on one of San Francisco's hills. One feels that Deborah, the elder, would be worth knowing better, but thruout the story she forms only a background for her young and beautiful sister, whose love story and marriage occupy first place. Gwen marries George Leland in a reaction from a passionate love affair with a man who, as she learns too late, is already married. In the absorption of motherhood she forgets the other man and finds in time that her real love is given to her husband.

"There is not a little wit in it, and much eloquence, some faithful reporting, and a vast amount of emotion. All that it lacks of a sincere story is one or two real people and a few real happenings." H. W. Boynton

+ Bookm 43:318 My '16 210w

Boston Transcript p7 Je 17 '16 280w

"It would be difficult to tell just why this emotional novel takes such a strong hold on the reader's sensibilities, even when the situations seem incredibly theatrical, unreal, and impossible, but there is a fascination in the theme—a sort of modern 'Iron master'—and an unusual freshness in the conversation that stimulate keen interest."

+ Lit D 53:80 J1 8 '16 270w

"The book drags badly every now and then, and the style is uneven, sometimes good, sometimes rather stiff, occasionally a little high flown."

+ N Y Times 21:146 Ap 16 '16 430w

"It is convincing, idealistic, and breathes the best of our traditions of true Americanism as expressed in the family life."

+ R of Rs 54:124 J1 '16 110w

"An old-fashioned love story with a modern setting. . . . The emotional phases are developed in quiet tones without loss of strength or appeal, and the characters are portrayed with clearness and consistency."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 25 '16 250w

WOLMAN, LEO. Boycott in American trade unions. (Studies in historical and political science) $1.25 Johns Hopkins 331.89 16-888

"As a very complete statement of the circumstances of all the more important boycotts that have been carried out in this country; as a presentation of the arguments of the opposing sides; and as a clear sketch of the localized economic conditions that favor or discourage boycotts, the treatise is very useful in giving the reader all sides of a very complex form of industrial trouble."—Boston Transcript

"The quarter-million-dollar fine in the Danbury Hatters' case and the recent Clayton amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law have combined to make Mr. Wolman's monograph of particular interest and value. His study is an admirable complement to former researches. The special contribution of the book is the analysis of the boycott on materials." H. W. Laidler

+ Am Econ R 6:393 Je '16 900w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Je 3 '16 270w

"Not until Laidler's 'Boycotts and the labor struggle' was published in 1914 was there any American book comprehensively discussing the boycott. Now we have a second book upon this subject, based principally upon the publications of labor unions and employers' associations. An important contribution made in this monograph relates to the question, What is the boycott? This monograph also advances our knowledge as to why labor unions boycott. Other questions upon which Wolman throws new light are, How do labor unions boycott? and, When are boycotts successful? To the vital question, What should be the public policy toward boycotting? this book gives no answer. This is the more to be regretted because it is the work of a thorough scholar. Yet he who would solve this problem will here find much that is enlightening." E. E. Witte

+ J Pol Econ 24:616 Je '16 450w

R of Rs 53:244 F '16 20w

Reviewed by H. W. Laidler

+ Survey 37:72 O 21 '16 450w

WOLSELEY, FRANCES GARNET WOLSELEY, viscountess. Women and the land. *5s Chatto & Windus, London 630

"Lady Wolseley considers women well fitted for two classes of work: supervisory or advisory work for educated women belonging to the middle and upper classes; and light manual work connected with the dairy, poultry, bees, fruit, the house, etc., for the village girl. Facilities for training the advisers already exist, but little has yet been done towards teaching the more manual work. The author maintains, however, that it is not sufficient merely to turn women into the country; some sort of common tie must be kept up, and for this purpose the best arrangement is considered to be a colony on co-operative lines, where it would be possible not only to make good business arrangements for buying and selling materials, produce, etc., but where also opportunities for social life would be afforded. The details are discussed in successive chapters."—Nature

"The most striking feature of the book is the seriousness with which the whole subject is taken, and the clear recognition that a second education is the only sure basis for success." E. J. R.

+ Nature 97:320 Je 15 '16 570w

N Y Br Lib News 3:158 O '16

"Lady Wolseley writes never as a zealot, but collects evidence with judicious care, weighing and measuring difficulties, keeping facts calmly before her mind, and trying not to provoke the techiness of party politics."

+ Sat R 121:329 Ap 1 '16 1350w

"Though readers of many volumes on rural economy will not find much originality in this book, they will welcome it as an excellent summary of present movements, mainly from the woman's point of view, but not entirely, for there is frequent reference to men's duties and advantages. . . . Lady Wolseley has strong opinions upon peasant proprietorship, preferring the risks of ownership to the want of stimulus in working for others."

+ Spec 116:635 My 20 '16 280w

"She is very much in earnest, not only about the need for women to take a hand in work on the land during the present emergency, but about their place in a reformed constitution of the rural reign when the war is over. At times the argument is a little desultory, and leans rather too much on general principles; the book suffers from an occasional failure to distinguish clearly enough the accidental call for women's work on the farm, in the present lack of men, from the career open to them on the land in a well-ordered and peaceful state. The author has no illusions about the difficulty of persuading women of the working classes, who have a feeling that field labour is derogatory, to take a hand on the farm."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p170 Ap 13 '16 620w

WOMEN'S co-operative guild. Maternity; letters from working-women; with a preface by Herbert Samuel. *$1 Macmillan (Eng ed 16-12747)

"A small volume of letters from working-women collected by the Women's cooperative guild. . . . The writers of the 160 letters are working-class wives, who relate simply and literally just what it means to bear and rear children in working-class homes. Yet their confessions do not represent the worst conditions; for the letter writers, being guild members, are, therefore, the wives of the better paid, rather than the lowest paid, manual workers. . . . We can imagine what the lives of those even less fortunate must be when we know how intolerable were the conditions under which the writers of the letters bore their children."—Survey

"A book of such deep humane interest that it deserves a very wide circulation among specialist women. . . . The writer welcomes this little volume as a special 'gift from the gods,' which may help to bring back the maternity insurance provision into the Health insurance bill." I. M. Rubinow

+ N Y Call p14 My 21 '16 330w

St Louis 14:393 N '16

"There is no literary gloss to soften the physiological details for a timid reader."

Spec 115:405 S 25 '15 630w

"One of the most serviceable books published in England since the war began. . . . These modern letters on child-bearing by working-class mothers suggest a way to translate compassion into protection. For if we really care as much about motherhood as we say we do, we ought to be working for maternity insurance and a better national care of maternity." Katharine Anthony

+ Survey 37:343 D 23 '16 500w

WOOD, CHARLES ERSKINE SCOTT. Poet in the desert. $1 C: E. S. Wood, 419 Chamber of Commerce bldg., Portland, Ore. 811 15-14829

"The author is a retired army officer, who fought in several of our Indian campaigns. . . .

WOOD, CHARLES ERSKINE SCOTT—Cont.

In this long, blank-verse poem he endeavors to throw aside the trappings of civilization." (N Y Times) "Colonel Wood's poet goes into the desert to build his visionary structure of humanity. There he holds a dialogue with Truth, who sharing his vision also sees its reverse and darker side. Across that illimitable space there troopers before the vision of the two all the complex and complicated desires and facts of human existence. The details are sometimes a little too minute to keep that level of poetic fervor and passion of which the poet is capable in his most abstracted moments. The dialogue descends at these times into dialectics. . . . Poetically the finest passage of the poem is in the desert rhapsody in which the poet indulges as he retires to the desert for meditation, and before he evokes the image of Truth." (Boston Transcript)

"To compass the intricate development of Colonel Wood's philosophy in a short review is both impossible and undesirable. It is all too much a confused and tangled weaving of impulses and convictions, of an abstract and visionary evocation suspended above that eternal stream whence issues that 'still sad music,' which Wordsworth knew would never cease." W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 9 '16 1800w

"In a splendid tribute to the desert, wherein the poet talks with Truth, Mr. Wood makes a notable addition to our American verse."

+ Ind 85:317 F 23 '16 80w

"Without indorsing Mr. Wood's more violent passages, it may be said that he is a genuine poet and a bold, imaginative thinker. His style is reminiscent both of Walt Whitman and of the Hebrew prophets, but his ideas are his own. The book cannot be recommended to conventional folk, and some of its ideas cannot be commended at all; but it contains both truth and beauty, and its daring will give it zest for the intellectually adventurous."

+ — N Y Times 20:226 Je 20 '15 600w

WOOD, ERIC FISHER. Writing on the wall; the nation on trial. il *$1 (4c) Century 355.7 16-2415

Mr. Wood, author of "The note-book of an attaché," returned to America firmly convinced of the need for immediate action in the matter of national defense. The reasons for his belief are more fully set forth in this book. Universal compulsory military training based on the Swiss and Australian systems is advocated. Contents: Realities versus fancies; Precedents versus sophistries; Preparationists are pacifists; A warning and an example; Army reform; The Swiss system; Educational importance of military training; Temporary expedients; The essential basis of army and navy reforms; Essential supplementary reforms; The nation on trial.

+ A L A Bkl 12:362 My '16

"Distinctly inferior in quality to certain of its predecessors."

— Dial 60:344 Mr 30 '16 150w

"The most important of the later contributions to the momentous question of preparedness."

+ Ind 85:392 Mr 13 '16 170w

+ Journal of the Military Service Institute 59:161 Jl '16 200w

"Notwithstanding frequent evidence of that hysteria which has seized a few extremely vocal people in this country, Mr. Wood's little book has much in it that is well worth the reading of both the pro and the anti preparationists."

+ N Y Times 21:172 Ap 23 '16 330w

Pittsburgh 21:109 Mr '16 60w

"In a sense this book, which fails to rise above the average in plan or execution, is 'inspired' or semi-official. Every one of Mr. Wood's statements has had the full approval of prominent officers. 'Arbitration without preparedness is a contradiction of terms' is his doubtful motto."

+ Springfield Republican p19 Mr 16 '16 210w

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:183 Ap '16 60w

WOOD, SIR EVELYN. Our fighting services and how they made the empire. il *$5 Funk 942 (Eng ed 16-16683)

"Sir Evelyn Wood's enthusiasm in writing this record of men who fought for England, from the time of Alfred to the South African war, is likely to be met by enthusiasm in his readers. . . . He is arbitrary in his choice of subjects, even in his own field. . . . There is no account of the American revolutionary war; the names of Cornwallis, Burgoyne, and so on do not so much as appear in the index. There is no mention of the Afghan wars. . . . Although the book is a naval as well as a military history, according to the title, the navy suffers from more gaps than the army. . . . The truth is probably that Sir Evelyn Wood has followed the guidance of his own interests. He has written of the campaigns that fascinated him and passed over others."—Spec

N Y Br Lib News 3:70 My '16

"We cannot exactly define the art with which he holds the attention of his readers, but hold it he undoubtedly does. He has treated some wars so scrappily that we momentarily cry out against his sense of proportion. Nevertheless we never find that an inadequate chapter is the mere dry bones of dates and the names of men and places. It is always saved by one of the most interesting forms of criticism—the judgment of a soldier upon soldiers—and we read on very easily and profitably. His book is a soldier's book."

+ Spec 116:224 F 12 '16 1650w

"The book is full of good reading, in spite of its desultory form and its rather arbitrary selection of materials for appreciation and comment. But the comment itself is shrewd, luminous, often incisive, and always instructive. The many maps and plans with which the volume is illustrated are for the most part very indifferently executed."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p27 Ja 20 '16 1450w

WOOD, GRACE, and BURBANK, EMILY. Art of interior decoration. il *$2.50 (3½c) Dodd 747 16-23394

The four fundamental principles of interior decoration named by the authors are: good lines; correct proportions; harmonious colour scheme; appropriateness. The arrangement of the contents, rather surprising in a book that commends symmetry and order, is somewhat casual. A group of chapters devoted to furniture periods intervenes between chapters on Treatment of bathrooms and Treatment of an inexpensive bedroom, but this outline of historical periods is included, the authors say, "with a view to quick reference work," and its relative position may not matter. The chapters, tho brief, seem to touch on almost every phase of interior decoration. There are thirty-two good illustrations.

"While a long purse is needed if one is to make the best practical use of the book, a person of moderate means will find useful suggestions in its pages. The illustrations from photographs are of great beauty."

+ Dial 61:543 D 14 '16 140w

"One of the best books for the home-maker and amateur ever published."

+ R of Rs 55:106 Ja '17 140w

WOOD, LEONARD. Our military history; its facts and fallacies. il *$1 (4c) Reilly & B. 355.7 16-11153

General Wood has written this "brief review of our past military policy, its shortcomings and cost" in the hope that it may "aid in establishing an appreciation of our needs." Contents: The cost of unpreparedness; The struggle for peace; Past national policy; Lessons of the revolution; Seventy years of inefficiency; The price of unpreparedness in the sixties; The value of preparedness; What we should do; Constructive work of the army. An appendix gives outlines of the Australian and the Swiss systems.

A L A Bkl 13:13 O '16

"By one of the men who knows most about the military history of the United States and the present condition of our army." D. L. M.
+ Boston Transcript p7 My 20 '16 1050w

"Nowhere have we found a more sane and dispassionate plea for preparedness than in General Leonard Wood's book."

+ Dial 61:109 Ag 15 '16 450w

Ind 87:350 S 4 '16 60w

"General Wood is an American beseeching Americans not to impose but to defend the institutions and ideals of their state. We find in his utterances no apology for the iron heel, no glorification of war, it is not for but against these things that he would have us prepare. . . . As for his historical references, they are all frankly borrowed from General Emory Upton's 'Military policy of the United States' and the Huidekoper sequel."

+ N Y Times 21:205 My 14 '16 400w

Pittsburgh 21:593 D '16 30w

+ R of Rs 54:115 J1 '16 40w

"General Wood has to contend against the most widespread delusion which has ever visited any country—that national safety can be provided by words. . . . His cure for the weakness of his country is well known. He demands a strong navy, a highly trained mobile expeditionary force, and universal compulsory military training on the Swiss or Australian model. The citizen army would of course be a strictly federal force. Lord Roberts implored Englishmen to protect themselves by this identical scheme. They did not listen. We know the result. What may historians yet have reason to say of the United States and her warnings?"

+ Spec 116:689 Je 3 '16 215w

Springfield Republican p13 My 28 '16 300w

WOOD, MICHAEL. Double road. *$1.20 Longmans 16-17424

"How far one has a right to assume for another a sin he himself has not committed is a nice question of casuistry. . . . Such a questionable self-sacrifice is the central situation of 'The double road'—a sacrifice for which, however, there is much excuse, and which, whatever its results, cannot but be characterized as the noblest of faults. Kelly Dominick, Mr. Wood's hero, is finely drawn, as well as finely conceived. Presumably a Catholic, he belongs to the elect few who have risen above outward signs and material aids to faith into 'the practice of the presence of God.'" (N Y Times)
"The setting is an ancient English town and the full flavor of its quiet life, the reality of God to any traveller across the Great Downs, . . . the clash of the ephemeral with the eternal—these in the lives of himself and people of his home are brilliantly described." (Boston Transcript)

"Mr. Wood has written a powerful story of immense persuasiveness with a high moral purpose. And over and through it are woven the splendors of sky and leaf and flower and the perfect glory of a direct faith."

+ Boston Transcript p26 Ja 19 '16 150w

"Neither the story itself nor the hero's mysticism are true or convincing."

— Cath World 103:409 Je '16 140w

"The author's point of view, motive, and mode of expression are all frankly ecclesiastical, and it must be confessed that he is a better churchman than he is novelist. No secular writer who had as good natural taste, as fine a touch in pastoral description, and as true a love for all that is serene and venerable, would ever have been tempted to put so cheap a plot as this before his readers."

— + Nation 102:197 F 17 '16 310w

"The story is full of interest, and is written in a style of eloquent simplicity. The abiding impression of the book is one of rare and exquisite spirituality, the portrayal of which leaves its readers looking wistfully after such souls as those of Kelly Dominick, and saying with the inspired dreamer, 'Which, when I had seen, I wished myself among them.'"

+ N Y Times 21:90 Mr 12 '16 250w

WOOD, MICHAEL. Willow weaver, and seven other tales. *$1 Dutton

"Fascinating, musical, mysterious are 'The willow weaver and seven other tales,' by Michael Wood, tales dealing with the strange connection between man and the unseen. It is a not wholly unsuccessful attempt to handle the intangible and express the inexpressible."—Ind

+ Ind 88:33 O 2 '16 40w

+ N Y Times 21:393 O 1 '16 370w

+ R of Rs 54:679 D '16 70w

"These seven little stories are what is known as 'mystical.' Although some of them are very thin, they are for the most part, charmingly written."

+ — Spec 116:54 Ja 8 '16 20w

WOOD, RUTH KEDZIE. Tourist's Northwest. il *$1.75 (1c) Dodd 917.9 16-13325

Northwestern United States, including Glacier national park, and British Columbia and Alberta are covered by this guide book. Railway and water routes and motor roads are outlined with attention to hotels and other details of importance to the tourist. Notice is given to local celebrations, such as the Rose festival of Portland and the Round-up at Pendleton, scenic attractions, opportunities for hunting, fishing and other sports. There are a number of good illustrations and five maps. At the close there is a list of tourist towns with the names of principal hotels.

+ A L A Bkl 12:477 J1 '16

"One of those delectable travel books which not only direct but visualize. While wholly practical in detail, clear, concise and in arrangement admirable, the text holds bits of scenic description of unusual vividness, giving not only form but an actual sense of color."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 28 '16 300w

+ Nation 103:112 Ag 3 '16 330w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

"Any traveler bound for the northwest of our country or the southwest of Canada will find her volume a useful handbook."

+ N Y Times 21:237 Je 11 '16 120w

Pittsburgh 21:356 J1 '16 10w

+ R of Rs 54:121 J1 '16 80w

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 23 '16 210w

Wis Lib Bull 12:321 J1 '16 80w

WOOD, SAMUEL T. Rambles of a Canadian naturalist. il *$2 Dutton 570 16-18354

"Nearly a hundred brief essays comprise S. T. Wood's 'Rambles of a Canadian naturalist.' They deal with observations of plant and animal life in Canada, most of it so exactly or so nearly like our own that if the reader did not know the location he would think the pages had been penned by some observer of wild life in New York or Pennsylvania or New England. Beginning with rambles in the late winter and early spring in which he notes the signs among birds and plants of the coming rebirth of the world, the short papers carry the reader on through the summer and fall and close with observations of animal activities and the appearance of field and wood as winter takes them in its grip."—N Y Times

+ A L A Bkl 13:69 N '16

"Gently humorous and at times piquant in style, it entertains while it instructs." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:56 J1 15 '16 190w

"We cannot say that we have found anything very remarkable in these essays, but we find each of them too short—which points to fine quality. They are altogether wholesome and beautiful, indirectly educative in the best sense. Worthy of the highest praise are the characteristic colour illustrations—by Robert Holmes—of whip-poor-will, bloodroot, Frometha moth, lady's slipper, monarch butterfly, and winter's robin. There are also beautiful chapter-headings (of nature study inspiration) by students of the Ontario college of art. They are in fine harmony with the spirit of the book."

WOOD, SAMUEL T.—Continued

+ Nature 97:360 Je 23 '16 270w

N Y Br Lib News 3:94 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:237 Je 11 '16 120w

"He overdoes the elaborate adjective, and seems to be writing up scenes and effects which would appeal to us more in simpler language."

+ — Sat R 122:304 S 23 '16 290w

"Although the observations were all made in Canada, New England readers will scarcely notice that the author is not describing things which are familiar here at home."

+ Springfield Republican p15 J1 30 '16 100w

WOOD, WALTER. In the line of battle. *$1.75
Brentano's

"This volume is a companion to the editor's 'Soldiers' stories of the war,' and the narratives are told on similar lines. Personal interviews were followed by the writing of the accounts, and the typescripts were submitted to the tellers. The greatest difficulty to be overcome was the modesty of the soldiers in regard to their own achievements. The stories are the more impressive from the simplicity with which they are told."—Ath

+ Ath p439 S '16 70w

N Y Br Lib News 3:168 N '16 120w

WOODBIDGE, FREDERICK JAMES EUGENE. Purpose of history. *$1 (5c) Columbia univ. press 901 16-16533

"History is pluralistic and implies a pluralistic philosophy," writes Professor Woodbridge, who in these three essays, delivered first as lectures at the University of North Carolina, considers the purpose of history from the point of view of the modern philosopher. This is the point of view of one who sees the world in process of creation, not as a finished and completed product. To him history is "not only the conserving, the remembering, and the understanding of what has happened: it is also the completing of what has happened." The three essays are: From history to philosophy; The pluralism of history; The continuity of history.

Ath p550 N '16 150w

"A book from Professor Woodbridge is something of an event in philosophical literature. . . . He never discusses until he has understood; he never touches until he is able to enlighten." H. J. Laski

+ Dial 62:59 Ja 25 '17 1200w

"A profound and subtle study of the science of history as a branch of philosophy."

+ Ind 88:243 N 6 '16 40w

"A summary of the conclusions the author reached after much reflection, especially upon the writings of Bergson, Dewey, and Santayana."

+ J Pol Econ 25:128 Ja '17 160w

"The inquiring mind comes to the elemental problems of history with a firmer basis of criticism for having read it."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Ja 23 '17 730w

WOODS, FREDERICK ADAMS, and BALTZLY, ALEXANDER. Is war diminishing? a study of the prevalence of war in Europe from 1450 to the present day. diagrs *$1 Houghton 172.4 15-27721

The statistical studies that make up this book were begun some years ago by Professor Woods of the Massachusetts institute of technology and completed by Mr. Baltzly, Adams Woods fellow in Harvard university, 1913-1914. The authors were led to collect the facts presented, the introduction states, by "a wholesome disgust at the unscientific character of the publications of various peace societies." No hard and fast conclusion is reached. The general summing up seems to show a slight decrease in the time devoted to war, but a special study of the individual countries shows that in the larger nations there is no decline of warlike proclivities.

"The book is, in fact, not scientific. Time in history is not the important cohesive principle; the area and the population involved in a war are quite as important. There is also a confusion of terms. Finally, the exhaustiveness of research in listing wars is obviously all-important. To use information more exhaustive for one nation than another would destroy the balance. In this instance reliance is placed on various secondary works." E. Krehbiel

— Am Hist R 21:624 Ap '16 460w

+ Ann Am Acad 67:318 S '16 100w

"Dr. Woods's conclusions are at variance with those of most pacifists, who, until the outbreak of the present war, declared that the death of warfare was at hand. Moreover he is not so sure that its survival is not without its blessings. Whether we agree or disagree with his deductions, his study is unique and merits attention."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 4 '15 400w

Ind 85:201 F 7 '16 60w

— + J Pol Econ 25:127 Ja '17 260w

"The trouble with this kind of 'historiometry' is that phenomena are compared which are scarcely comparable, because of their difference in character and magnitude. An intermittent conflict in an outlying corner of the Pacific between English settlers and Maoris (1863-69) has six times as much the weight in the statistics as the Franco-Prussian war."

— Nation 102:652 Je 15 '16 500w

"No one can read this volume, without being impressed by the conscientious spirit in which Dr. Woods pursues his investigations, by the scrupulous impartiality with which he applies a scientific method to his material, and by the untiring industry which he brings to the service of a mind in which the microscopic and telescopic qualities are most happily blended." Alleyne Ireland

+ New Repub 6:271 Ap 8 '16 2050w

"The writers of this little book are to be congratulated upon the fact that they have called attention to the need of statistics in this most important field of international relationships. The charts presented will undoubtedly prove exceedingly useful to students. To the reviewer, however, there appear to be certain defects both in the terminology employed in this study, and in the interpretation of data." D. R. Taft

+ — Pol Sci Q 31:321 Je '16 1150w

"These men write as historians, rather than as moralists or biologists. The little book has its uses, although it is wholly lacking in the qualities of discriminating analysis."

+ — R of Rs 53:114 Ja '16 100w

St Louis 14:144 Ap '16 20w

"The book shows the value of the comparative method in historical generalization. With the conservatism of the true biologist, the author notes that though there is a falling-off in war in the last two centuries, the problem is so bound up with elemental human passions that 200 years do not count. A longer range of time, he asserts, would reverse this conclusion. . . . The fallacy of the authors' reasoning is that of all biologists who do not recognize the self-conscious factor in human evolution."

+ — Springfield Republican p17 Ja 28 '16 470w

"Dr. Woods sets himself as an 'historiometer' to a quantitative study of the prevalence of war, with an extraordinary blindness to the unscientific character of his procedure." E. G. Balch

— Survey 37:92 O 28 '16 80w

WOOLF, LEONARD S. International government. *$2 Brentano's 341 16-21152

This volume consists of two reports prepared for the research department of the Fabian society, with an introduction by Bernard Shaw, together with a project by a Fabian committee for a supernational authority that will prevent war. "One of these reports studies the causes of wars, the nature and bearing of international law, takes up the relation to international government of treaties, conferences, arbitration and judicial tribunals, and discusses the feasibility and nature of an international authority. The second report is devoted to the administrative and law-making problems with which such an international authority would have to deal and the internationalism of commerce, industry, labor and human society. The third section of the book consists of a complete scheme for the erecting of just such an international or super-national authority for the prevention of war, with the means and methods for the carrying out of its decisions." (N Y Times)

Cleveland p147 D '16 10w

"It is not too much to say that it not only refutes the unavoidable dilemma, but contains the most practicable and constructive suggestions for organization yet offered to a distracted world." E. D. Dickinson

+ New Repub 9:218 D 23 '16 1200w

N Y Br Lib News 3:153 O '16 40w

"There could hardly be a more timely book than this. . . . The volume ought to have wide reading in this country, where the activities of the League to enforce peace and President Wilson's several public addresses have already awakened much interest in the question. . . . Mr. Shaw's introduction is a characteristic bit of writing, although he is here, possibly more frankly serious than he usually permits himself to be."

+ N Y Times 21:350 S 10 '16 720w

"The great fault of the pacifists appears to me to be that they trust too much to machinery, and that they endeavor to establish a difference, which in democratic countries does not exist, between the wishes and habits of thought of the rulers and the ruled, whereas the former are generally in reality little more than the agents of the latter." [Earl of] Cromer

— Spec 117:475 O 21 '16 1100w

"Like everything that is attempted for the Fabian society, L. S. Woolf's 'International government' is a careful and well-considered book."

+ Springfield Republican p6 O 23 '16 1100w

"Though far from complete, his essay is a useful supplement to the investigation of others; for example those of Professor Reinsch."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p393 Ag 24 '16 850w

WORCESTER, REV. ELWOOD. Issues of life. $1.50 (5c) Moffat 240 15-2777

The rector of the Emmanuel church, Boston, states that in this book he has "tried once more to apply the principles of the Christian religion to the physical, moral and spiritual needs of men." Referring to the work of healing carried on for the past nine years by the church he says: "Not many men have had richer opportunities [than I] to judge of the practical effect of religion in the renewal of life, and I beg the reader to believe that in describing these phenomena I am not writing of that which I do not know." Among the 12 chapter headings are Keeping our hearts; Thought and work; The loneliness of the soul; Jesus; The sinking of the Lusitania.

+ A L A Bkl 12:314 Ap '16

"To all devout souls the essence of religion is the same; hence the cordial assent which thousands of readers of nominally different creeds will be able to give to the truth stated with the force of personal experience by the rector of Emmanuel church."

+ Dial 59:622 D 23 '15 130w

+ Ind 88:34 O 2 '16 50w

N Y Times 21:254 Je 18 '16 80w

"A book that will appeal to men of widely differing points of view. He has succeeded in giving the public a positive and uplifting view of the power of Christ's religion."

+ Springfield Republican p13 F 21 '16 250w

WRIGHT, CHARLES HENRY CONRAD. History of the third French republic. Il *$1.50 (5c) Houghton 944.08 16-11591

Altho the third republic came into being after the Franco-Prussian war, the author of this history has gone back some years for his starting point. The first chapter is devoted to The antecedents of the Franco-Prussian war, the second to the war itself. In the remainder of the book the history of modern France is followed, administration by administration, down to the year 1914.

"It is difficult to see how a book of this scope could be more instructive, more readable, or more impartial." C: D. Hazen

+ Am Hist R 22:156 O '16 610w

+ A L A Bkl 13:77 N '16

"The history of present-day France is brought down even to the point of the outbreak of the present conflict, a wonderfully valuable contribution to the history of our own day in western Europe." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 7 '16 700w

+ Dial 61:69 J1 15 '16 450w

Ind 88:286 N 13 '16 70w

+ Nation 103:241 S 7 '16 90w

N Y Br Lib News 3:104 J1 '16

"The account of the commune is tersely told—the little dashes of analytical comment here and there are worth a volume of prosily written histories of how Paris fought the rest of France. The references to the one-time Parisian idol Boulanger are of graphic portraiture. The style of Professor Wright is the epitome of unbiased narration. This history is, indeed, a thumbnail classic."

+ N Y Times 21:260 Je 25 '16 470w

"For American readers the story of that era has never before been so clearly told as in this book by the professor of the French language and literature at Harvard."

+ R of Rs 54:348 S '16 110w

"A clear, readable running story, which any one can read and absorb with a minimum loss of time. Scholars may go deeper by following the leads in the excellent bibliography that Prof. Wright has provided."

+ Springfield Republican p6 J1 21 '16 190w

WRIGHT, HAROLD BELL. When a man's a man. Il *$1.35 Book supply co. 16-16077

"As usual in his novels, Mr. Wright does a good deal of preaching in his new story, his theme being the mental, physical, and spiritual good that a man may derive from participation in the life of the southwestern plains and mountains." (N Y Times) "Although the plot is rather slight, it serves as a good expedient for introducing vivid and beautiful descriptions of ranch life in Arizona. 'Patches,' a young millionaire, disgusted with the hollowness of his life, flees incognito to the Baldwin ranch in Arizona, and there becomes new in body and soul under its genuine and invigorating atmosphere." (Springfield Republican)

"There are the usual intrepid 'broncho-buster,' the usual pretty daughter, the usual complications, and the usual popular and sentimental appeal."

A L A Bkl 13:128 D '16

"He knows as little about human nature as a caterpillar knows about the Halley comet. He knows a great deal about the topography of Arizona, about the management of a ranch, about the sentimentality of love and ambition, and he mixes what he doesn't know with what he knows, and produces a novel. . . . We don't suppose there is any reason, or any good, in trying to make the seven or more millions of readers of Mr. Wright's books believe that he never wrote a piece of literature in his life." W. S. B.

— Boston Transcript p8 Ag 19 '16 550w

+ — Ind 88:76 O 9 '16 50w

+ Lit D 53:1039 O 21 '16 240w

"He succeeds, in his descriptions, incidents, and some of his characters, in capturing not a little of the tonic quality of the life, the austere beauty of the land, the invigorating feel of air and sunshine. In that respect the story must be ranked among his best works, although it is marred, as his writing always is marred, by a meretricious tendency to use a high emotional key when emotion is not called for and to establish and emphasize a sort of sentimental suspense by way of creating an atmosphere of mystery, or of romance, or what not."

WRIGHT, HAROLD BELL.—Continued

+ — N Y Times 21:309 Ag 6 '16 350w

"A good, wholesome story, written with evident sincerity." Robert Lynd

+ — Pub W 90:1411 O 21 '16 630w

"Mr. Wright's psychology may not be always convincing, but the book's wholesomeness and manly strength are probably more characteristic of American life than some of this author's sophisticated detractors pretend."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 20 '16 120w

+ — Wis Lib Bull 12:454 D '16 60w

WRIGHT, HENRY COLLIER. American city; an outline of its development and functions.
 *50c (1c) McClurg 352 16-6489

"This little volume is the first of the National social science series edited by Frank L. McVey, Ph.D., LL.D., president of the University of North Dakota. Eight other books of this series are now ready and nine are in preparation." (Am Pol Sci R) Dr. Wright is first deputy commissioner of the Department of charities in New York city. He has written this book for the general reader, rather than for the student, in the hope of stimulating thought on the city as a social and governmental factor of our national life. There are chapters (subdivided into topics) on: The location and purpose of cities; Government; Finances of cities; Protection of property, life and health; Education and instruction; Municipal undertakings; Housing, transit, and location of factories; Effect of the city upon its citizens, followed by a one-page list of references and an index.

"As a rather minor criticism, it may be noticed that some of the statistics are not so recent as might be expected in a book published as late as February, 1916. A short but excellent bibliography concludes this commendable handbook." C. F. A. Currier

+ Am Econ R 6:681 S '16 150w

+ A L A Bkl 13:64 N '16

"Chapter 4, 'Property, life and health,' is made interesting by telling of such modern projects as high pressure water mains, day camps for children with whooping cough, and floating baths. Chapter 5, 'Education and instruction,' is too condensed for interest, and the Gary plan is conspicuous by its absence. Chapter 6, 'Municipal undertakings,' is one of the best. The views of the book are conservatively progressive, and it should be read by every urban dweller who does not have the time or price for a larger work, such as Zueblin's 'American municipal progress.'" F. A. Magruder

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:397 My '16 450w

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg

+ Dial 61:186 S 21 '16 90w

"For reading rather than reference. It professes to give 'a bird's-eye view of the city.' While it does not neglect detail—it has something to say about half a dozen cities in its chapter on Government, besides its general presentation of the topic—it is, in the main, general. One who sees only the trees in Professor Zueblin's recent work sees the forest in Mr. Wright's."

+ Nation 102:653 Je 15 '16 70w

R of Rs 54:118 Jl '16 90w

+ Springfield Republican p17 Mr 31 '16 300w

"A little book of 170 pages, it is easy reading, divided for use as a text and replete with up-to-date facts and figures." R. N. Baldwin

+ Survey 36:508 Ag 12 '16 100w

WRIGHT, RICHARDSON LITTLE, ed. Low cost suburban homes; a book of suggestions for the man with the moderate purse. Il
 *$1.25 McBride 728.6 16-10935

The first part of this book consists of contributed articles: The service of the architect, by Howard Hammitt; How to go about planning your home, by C. E. Schermerhorn; The cost of different kinds of building, by George Hunt Ingraham; and The promise of American house building, by Ralph Adams Cram. The remainder of the book is given up to pictures and plans, and the whole is prefaced by an introductory chapter by the editor. A list of the architects contributing plans to the book, with addresses, is given for the benefit of those who wish further information.

+ A L A Bkl 12:466 Jl '16

+ Ind 86:403 Je 5 '16 50w

N Y Br Lib News 3:95 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:312 Ag 6 '16 80w

Pratt p24 O '16

+ Springfield Republican p15 Jl 23 '16 230w

"Constructive work, originally appearing in House and Garden. The chapter on the evolution of the house from one room up furnishes unusual material, the chapter on bungalows is very suggestive, the floor plans and interior views are helpful and definite."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:319 Jl '16 60w

WRIGHT, WILLARD HUNTINGTON. Man of promise. *$1.35 (1c) Lane 16-5193

The influence of women on a man's intellectual life is the theme of this novel. His mother, his wife, and two women of the courtesan type and class who for a time serve his needs, all have the same effect on Stanford West: they turn him from his work. His father had destined him for a professorial chair in the small college of which he is president, but Stanford rebels successfully and pursues his own course as a writer. Against his mother, however, and later, his wife, he cannot rebel, and he is forced to let their influence shape his work. Instead of the big, radical and free work he would do, he is forced to produce the petty and conventional. Once he finds the woman who seems to offer him intellectual inspiration. He leaves his wife for her, only to meet another disappointment; she is a vampire like the others. In the end he rejoins his wife, who forgives him, and accepts the position he had once scorned in the small college, and is forced to this last step in the interests of his small daughter.

+ — Ath p598 D '16 80w

"Mr. Wright is one of those thinkers who seem to believe that slavery to the sex instinct is transformed into glorious freedom as soon as one calls it by a lot of fine names." Wilson Follett

— Atlan 118:499 O '16 80w

"There is a striking resemblance between this book and Mr. Dreiser's 'The genius.' Like the alleged hero of that dreary chronicle, Stanford West is a paltry figure from beginning to end. He is a wretched human insect, the slave of his momentary lusts." H. W. Boynton

— Bookm 43:202 Ap '16 620w

"Stanford West talked as if he had ideas, as if he were an intellectual giant; whereas he really was a muddle-headed sensualist. Mr. Wright has made a mistake in telling us that he wrote a beautiful play full of the Greek spirit. There is nothing in the book to show that he had any real comprehension of Greek culture. Mr. Wright is also mistaken in telling us that West wrote either articles or books which criticized the present social structure in a destructive and a constructive manner. Such a man could have done nothing of the sort." E. E. Hale

— Dial 60:552 Je 8 '16 770w

"There is, indeed, almost too harsh an earnestness in his book, and, by the same token, too meticulous a finish. As a document in psychology, it is too well-made, as the plays of Scribe were too well-made on the side of mere intrigue. One gets a sniff of the laboratory. . . . But even as it stands, it is incomparably above the common run of fiction in English." H. L. Mencken

+ — Forum 55:490 Ap '16 2750w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

— Nation 102:386 Ap 6 '16 400w

— New Repub 6:110 F 26 '16 1650w

"Mr. Wright has done a very clever thing in this intimate study of a character not, fortunately, common, yet still sufficiently well known to have given most of us at least a glimpse of him. At heart a cad, obsessed with the notion of his own importance, incapable of an act of real value, yet establishing a pinchbeck reputation for originality and daring by that easiest of all roads, opposition to accepted standards, whether of the conventions or of the deeper and truer elements on which is based whatever is most worth while in human life. There are dull pages in the book, for all its cleverness. This may be because of the didactic method, the long, close stretches of description and elucidation, the absence of a power to create any sense of burning reality. The writer seems to be so obsessed with the inherent coldness and lack of true virility in the figure he is depicting as not to be able to command these qualities himself."

+ — N Y Times 21:78 Mr 5 '16 850w

"This book suggests to us the droll and curious fancy that Mr. Robert W. Chambers, going suddenly and wildly insane, had made a meal of many printed pages torn from the writings of Strindberg, Nietzsche, Schopenhauer, and Bernard Shaw, and had then sat down and projected his resultant sensations into one of his own beloved and inimitable works." Lawrence Gilman

— No Am 203:769 My '16 1500w

"A story of many striking qualities, which will rank high among the notable first novels by American writers. It is the work of Willard Huntington Wright, a magazine editor, and art critic of some attainment, who has heretofore contributed nothing to fiction. The book shows care and method in writing, and its realistic phases are restrained and never overstep the bounds of artistic propriety."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Mr 19 '16 430w

— + The Times [London] Lit Sup p574 N 30 '16 250w

WUNDT, WILHELM MAX. Elements of folk psychology; outlines of a psychological history of the development of mankind; auth. tr. by E: Leroy Schaub. *$3.75 Macmillan 136.4 16-17195

"The author divides human progress into four main stages—primitive man, the totemic age, the age of heroes and gods, and the age of national states and national religions, in which there begins a development towards world religions, and corresponding to this expansion is 'a combination of national with universally human elements,' which when it is consummated will form a fifth stage. The book is concerned almost exclusively with the first three stages in the development of civilization."—The Times [London] Lit Sup

"The book may at any rate be recommended as a sort of anthropologist's holiday-ground. For the rest, the diction is crisp though for this the translator, not the author, is mostly to thank. . . . The book being almost devoid of references to sources, it is often hard to discover the precise facts on which the author holds himself free to draw for his highly synthetic characterizations of the various stages of human progress."

+ — Ath p609 D '16 1350w

"This book of Wundt's will probably remain as a classic of its kind. . . . But a book which can be thought of dispassionately as a classic almost upon its appearance—the German edition is of 1912—is already, in a sense, out of date. And Wundt's book really marks the end, rather than the beginning, of an epoch; his 'Folk psychology' is too near to philosophy, to the philosophy of history, to be valued apart from Wundt." T. S. Eliot

+ Int J Ethics 27:252 Ja '17 400w

"It is unnecessary to give further examples of misstatements. . . . On the other hand, there are many valuable suggestions and inferences which are worthy of the attention of students." A. C. Haddon

— + Nature 98:346 Ja 4 '17 500w

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16

Pittsburgh 22:51 Ja '17

St Louis 15:6 Ja '17

"The book is at once extremely interesting and extremely wearisome; not to be left unread, and yet much of it to be read without pleasure or profit."

+ — Sat R 122:sup10 O 14 '16 250w

+ — The Times [London] Lit Sup p423 S 7 '16 800w

WYLIE, IDA ALENA ROSS. Hermit doctor of Gaya (Eng title, Tristram sahib). il *$1.35 (½c) Putnam 16-5895

A story of Anglo-Indian life. Into the English colony at Gaya is introduced Sigrid Fersen, a Swedish dancer who has retired from her profession. She is loved by Dr. Tristram, a young English district medical officer of fine ideals, and by Barclay, a Eurasian, son of Tristram's father by a native woman. She marries Barclay who is unworthy of her. Tristram marries Anne, the daughter of the commander of the garrison. A native revolt is planned and both women sacrifice everything to aid in the quelling of the mutiny. Anne and Barclay die and Tristram and Sigrid gain happiness.

"The author's previous novel, 'The native-born,' proved her mastery of Indian conditions, racial and political. This adds proof to proof."

+ Boston Transcript p6 J1 12 '16 270w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 J1 '16

"The character drawing is excellent."

+ N Y Times 21:244 Je 11 '16 290w

"A novel of intensity, power and fine literary artistry."

+ R of Rs 54:125 J1 '16 30w

"An absorbing, colorful and dramatic piece of work. As a picture of the East it is notable."

+ Springfield Republican p13 Je 25 '16 230w

WYLIE, LAURA JOHNSON. Social studies in English literature. *$1.75 (2c) Houghton 820.4 16-2573

"The unity of the following studies consists in their common viewpoint, each essay tracing the relation between a certain body of literature and some aspects of the social conditions out of which it grew." (Preface) The four essays that make up the book are: The English essay; a study in literary development; The England of George Crabbe; The social philosophy of Wordsworth; Shelley's democracy. The book is published as one of the volumes that commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Vassar college. Dr. Wylie is a graduate of Vassar and a member of its faculty.

"Professor Wylie gives a penetrating survey of Crabbe and his relations to his time and his country. It is entitled 'The England of George Crabbe,' and it is the most interesting, because it traverses a lesser known subject, of the four papers in her volume." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 29 '16 1350w

"For her, however, as for Matthew Arnold, literature is essentially a criticism of life. From that point of view her essay on 'The England of George Crabbe' is a remarkably fine piece of work—the most illuminating twenty-five pages that the present reviewer has seen on this subject. . . . The critical balances which Professor Wylie keeps in hand throughout the 'Wordsworth' she pretty completely abandons in the 'Shelley,' and becomes a whole-souled exponent and advocate of the poet's moral and intellectual beauty."

+ Nation 103:512 N 30 '16 920w

N Y Br Lib News 3:43 Mr '16 20w

R of Rs 53:630 My '16 80w

² This book is mentioned for the first time in this issue

WYLIE, LAURA JOHNSON—Continued
St Louis 14:401 N '16

"Throughout the book, one is impressed with the writer's sensitiveness to the manifold aspects of truth, and her scrupulous nicety in statement. The thinking is so close that each sentence, like each paragraph, is a half-way house between what has gone before and what follows, so that to take it out of its connection changes its value. The only fault of the book is the extreme compression of its style. Professor Wylie has filled one volume with the thinking of years." Elisabeth Woodbridge
+ + Yale R n s 6:205 O '16 1150w

WYLLARDE, DOLF. Exile, an outpost of empire. *$1.35 (1c) Lane 16-6610

The characters of this story are a group of Anglo Saxon exiles in a settlement on the Arabian coast. A big, brutal engineer who wins women and throws them aside, a chief justice who is faithless to both public and private relations, his beautiful wife, who cherishes a secret love for the engineer, a pretty, heedless young girl who comes out from home to break the heart of the one decent man in the colony—these are some of them, and out of their interactions the story is woven.

"The characteristic which distinguishes the work of Dolf Wyllarde is her unflinching realism."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 24 '16 270w

"It is sordid and pathetic. Altho the book abounds in intensely exciting episodes, it is to be regretted that all the business is illegal and the love all illicit."

— Lit D 52:1463 My 20 '16 220w

N Y Times 21:136 Ap 9 '16 190w

"In spite of the melodrama and the falsity of the situations, Miss Wyllarde vividly brings out the influences of isolation and an alien atmosphere and environment upon the moral fabrics of each member of the group."

— + Springfield Republican p13 Je 4 '16 250w

WYMOND, MARK. Railroad valuation and rates. il $1.50 (1½c) Wymond & Clark 385 16-4102

Treats principles of rates and their relation to valuation and rate regulation. "The book may be considered as being divided into two broad divisions of Historical fact and a discussion of the Principles of rates. The first four chapters, namely, Historical, Promotion, Construction—Reconstruction and Capitalization, are descriptive and historical. The others, on Valuation and Rates, are devoted to the various phases of those subjects." (Foreword)

"The book is of special interest at the present time for the reason that most of the questions therein discussed are still in controversy before the Interstate commerce commission. Such an honest and clear statement of facts should do much to convince the partisans for the public of the injustice of many of their contentions. . . . Mr. Wymond's work is not a brief for the railroads. It is rather a recapitulation of all of the expenses which the railroads have incurred in creating their properties and of the various factors which must be considered in the preparation of rate schedules. On the other hand, it is a question whether some recognition could not well have been made by Mr. Wymond of the obligations of the railroads to the public. It is impossible for the public at large or for its representatives on railroad and public service commissions to accept many of Mr. Wymond's contentions." H. V. Hayes

+ Am Econ R 6:630 S '16 750w
Cleveland p152 D '16 30w

"While the book exhibits some of the idiosyncrasies that railroad men as a group possess in regard to matters of valuation and rates compared with other utility men, the volume will be welcomed for its candid and quiet statements. . . . There are some arguments that all readers may not accept. . . . Again, on pp. 209 and 211, the author upholds the contention of railroad men that all the component parts of a railroad may and do depreciate, but that the railroad cannot suffer depreciation. . . . These last few paragraphs disclose the comparative triviality of the criticisms that can be made—except as to the treatment of depreciation already noted."

+ Engin N 76:118 J1 20 '16 920w

R of Rs 53:508 Ap '16 70w

+ Springfield Republican p8 J1 7 '16 170w

Y

YALE UNIVERSITY. LIBRARY. List of newspapers in the Yale university library. (Yale historical publications, Miscellany, v. 2)
*$3 Yale univ. press 016.07 16-13335

"This list includes all the newspapers owned by the library from the earliest issues down to those of July, 1915, as well as a large number of South American papers deposited by Professor Hiram Bingham, and a complete file of the New Haven Register, deposited by that paper. The vexed question of what constitutes a newspaper has been settled for this list by including all periodicals whose main design is the publishing of news of general interest, issued more or less regularly once a week or oftener." (Preface) The arrangement is geographical; first the United States, with an alphabetical arrangement by states, then the other countries of the world. There is an index of titles at the end.

Pittsburgh 21:451 O '16

YAMADA, NAKABA. Ghenko; the Mongol invasion of Japan; with an introd. by Lord Armstrong. il *$2.50 Dutton 952 16-14933

"The narrative describes the rise to power of the Mongols, their methods and range of conquest, the growth of militarism in Japan, and the relations of each nation with China."—Boston Transcript

"His book will be found not only instructive but absorbing, also, as mere narrative." R. M.
+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 14 '16 750w

"As a history the book has its faults, and the English is not perfect; but those who read it will be inclined to agree with Lord Armstrong, who writes the introduction, that any one of them 'who tried to write a history of the Spanish Armada in Japanese would fall very far short of what Mr. Yamada has accomplished.' J. H. Gubbins

+ Eng Hist R 31:640 O '16 600w

N Y Br Lib News 3:104 J1 '16

"His style is colorful, picturesque. The book overflows with patriotism, and evidently was written largely to impress upon western readers the fact that the spirit of heroic self-sacrifice and national devotion which made Japan victorious in the wars with China and Russia are not new virtues, but have ever animated the Japanese."

+ N Y Times 21:375 S 24 '16 780w

"This is the first concise account in English of the defeat of the Mongol invasion of Japan in the thirteenth century."

R of Rs 54:348 S '16 30w

St Louis 14:441 D '16 20w

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p207 My 4 '16 1700w

YEATS, WILLIAM BUTLER. Responsibilities, and other poems. *$1.25 Macmillan 821 16-22396

"The poems in this volume have appeared in the Cuala press edition of the poet's work. Also, here included is the collection 'The green helmet and other poems,' and the 1912 version of the symbolic dramatic poem 'The hour glass.'—Boston Transcript

Ath p529 N '16 90w

"All the spontaneity, the enlivening of wonder and beauty, has gone out of Mr. Yeats's later work. . . . It may be that satiric pre-occupation which seems to command the poet in a number of poems in these pages, has killed in him the fine essence of his poetical temperament." W. S. B.

— + Boston Transcript p4 D 6 '16 1250w

"The disillusion of these new poems is felt in their mingled rhythms. . . . The poems must still be estimated with the greatest Irish poetry; they have rare returns to the old cloudy loveliness, but in the main the philosopher has mastered the singer."

+ R of Rs 54:675 D '16 250w

"His sincerity and independence and his mastery of words are rare to-day."

+ Sat R 122:460 N 11 '16 650w

"Mr. Yeats's rehandlings of his own plays and poems have before now worried other people than bibliographers; but, where the original prose 'Hour-glass' seemed to spoil itself by the medieval formalism of its central idea, the new 'Hour-glass,' in verse and prose, is not only a better-worked piece of drama but the expression of a great spiritual truth."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p499 O 19 '16 440w

YEATS, WILLIAM BUTLER. Reveries over childhood and youth. il *$2 (7c) Macmillan 16-10484

This is just such a book as its title proclaims it to be—a book of fragmentary memories. The author has not attempted to piece them together logically or to fill in gaps, and has not sought to verify incidents. It is a childhood as it exists in the memory of a grown man that he has pictured. In his prefatory explanation or apology he says: "I have changed nothing to my knowledge, and yet it must be that I have changed many things without my knowledge, for I am writing after so many years, and have consulted neither friend nor letter nor old newspaper and describe what comes oftenest into my memory. I say this fearing that some surviving friend of my youth may remember something in a different shape and be offended with my book." The illustrations are by the author's father and brother.

+ A L A Bkl 13:81 N '16

Ath p529 N '16 80w

"The book is a notable one. Its passages of intimate spiritual autobiography are especially good."

+ — Dial 61:68 J1 15 '16 350w

+ Ind 87:130 J1 24 '16 220w

"The book has a certain interest for those who like to study modern 'intellectualism' in one of its peculiar manifestations. Altho written in an affected style and with disregard for literary conventions (including grammar), the 'Reveries' contain much information about eminent contemporaries."

+ — Lit D 53:621 S 9 '16 370w

"His reveries—constantly interrupted by description and anecdote of widely varying importance and significance—have the charm of a self-revelatory frankness and felicitous phrasing."

+ Nation 104:28 Ja 4 '17 400w

New Repub 7:202 Je 24 '16 1300w

N Y Br Lib News 3:92 Je '16

+ N Y Times 21:328 Ag 20 '16 520w

"The excellence of the simple prose holds an indescribable charm. Much of the book tells of plain, every day experiences; but touched by this artist-pen, even ugly people and ordinary incidents have a strange glamour as well as a vivid reality." Caroline Giltinai

+ Poetry Review 1:45 J1 '16 970w

"The reveries are written in the intimate personal way that one writes a letter to an intimate friend. They are so simple that one remembers pages as easily as the pages of old fairy tales."

+ R of Rs 53:764 Je '16 470w

St Louis 14:405 N '16 10w

"The charm of an absolute sincerity is in this book."

+ Sat R 122:sup5 N 4 '16 530w

+ Spec 117:738 D 9 '16 100w

Reviewed by Barton Blake

+ Yale R n s 6:410 Ja '17 1050w

YEAW, FREDERICK LORING. Market gardening. (Wiley technical ser. for vocational and industrial schools) il *75c Wiley 635 15-14761

"A concise, essentially accurate little book on the methods and best practices of vegetable gardening, intended as an elementary text. Should be found useful in secondary schools where the subject of horticulture is taught under its separate divisions, and to the home gardener. Many good illustrations."—A L A Bkl

A L A Bkl 12:173 Ja '16

"Only an author well acquainted with his subject could have given so much trustworthy information in so small a space. We could wish that its admirable points had been still further elaborated for the use of beginners, who are assumed to know more of manual processes than is likely to be the case. Rotational and successional cropping are not mentioned at all. No help is given as to the selection of profitable varieties. The spade apparently finds no place even in the home garden, and many labour-saving devices, methods, and appliances well known here seem to be unknown there. More notes upon the cost of raising crops, the returns to be expected, and the like, would have been valuable; only here and there is this mentioned." F. J. C.

+ — Nature 96:284 N 11 '15 230w

YOST, CASPER SALATHIEL. Patience Worth; a psychic mystery. *$1.40 Holt 133.9 16-5963

One of the features which distinguish Patience Worth from other spirit communicants is her intellect. Another is the high literary quality of her communications. She first made known her presence in July, 1913, to two St. Louis women, Mrs. Curran and Mrs. Hutchings, who were amusing themselves with a ouija board. "Many moons ago I lived. Again I come. Patience Worth my name," ran her first greeting. Since that time she has been in constant touch with this world of reality thru Mrs. Curran. Her communications take the form of conversations, in which she shows a pretty wit, poems, dramas and short stories. She uses archaic English of the period of the Stuarts and her figures of speech are drawn from the life of an earlier period. All this is set forth in the present volume with many quotations from her literary output. The absolute integrity of all the parties concerned in this curious phenomena are vouched for by the author, who is editorial director of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and Mr. William Marion Reedy.

A L A Bkl 12:402 Je '16

"The story is just as remarkable if viewed as the manifestation of a rejected aspect of a complex personality that has somehow yielded to or chosen this secretive form of expression. It would be interesting to have a more explicit autobiographic confession of the wide-awake personality of Mrs. Curran."

+ Dial 60:556 Je 8 '16 470w

"Patience Worth can write real poetry and has a sense of humor that is rare in ghosts or secondary personalities."

+ Ind 87:68 J1 10 '16 260w

Lit D 52:911 Ap 1 '16 140w

"What makes the problem significant is the quality of Patience Worth's utterance. That she is sensitive, witty, keenly metaphysical in her poetry and finely graphic in her drama, no one can deny. Whoever or whatever she is, she meets the test that human beings meet. Mr. Yost has done his part admirably. He has respected rich data. He has had sufficient humility to postulate a mystery." F. H.

YOST, CASPER SALATHIEL—Continued

+ New Repub 6:220 Mr 25 '16 1150w

+ N Y Times 21:69 F 27 '16 1600w

"The transparent and palpable genuineness of the entire case, in all its aspects, is the chief impression you bear away with you from an unbiased study of it." Lawrence Gilman

+ No Am 203:915 Je '16 2700w

St Louis 14:146 Ap '16 10w

Springfield Republican p17 My 9 '16 370w

Wis Lib Bull 12:318 Jl '16 70w

YOUNG, ARTHUR NICHOLS. Single tax movement in the United States. *$1.50 Princeton univ. press 336.2 16-12744

A complete historical account of the single tax movement in the United States, together with a discussion of the tactics of the single taxers, their program, the present status of the movement, and its influence upon economic thought and upon fiscal and social reform. Contents: Anticipation of Henry George's ideas; The economic background of Henry George's doctrine; The reception of "Progress and poverty"; Henry George and labor politics, 1881-86; The events of 1887; Working out a single tax program, 1888-90; The single tax movement, 1890-1907; The Fels fund and the attempt to capture Oregon, 1908-14; The single tax movement in other western states; The single tax movement in Pennsylvania and New York; The tactics of the single tax movement; The single tax and the taxation of land values; Concluding survey.

"An excellent historical account, and it may be called fairly 'complete' as to the political side of the movement. Perhaps it would be too much to demand that it might have contained more concerning the disciples of Henry George and their writings. . . . The account of the 'land question' in California is slightly marred by a willingness to pass judgment on the merits of disputes on which history has not yet had its final say." C. C. Plehn

+ Am Econ R 6:926 D '16 980w

"He has apparently done his work so thoroughly that it will not be necessary to go over the ground again. Full references to the sources of information and a bibliography add greatly to the value of the work for students." H: B. Gardner

+ Am Hist R 22:420 Ja '17 380w

+ A L A Bkl 13:64 N '16

Reviewed by F. W. Garrison

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:789 N '16 450w

"The volume is scholarly throughout and its style is pleasing. Although the narrative requires careful attention to details, the accuracy of which is vouched for by voluminous references, it is readable from beginning to end. The author finds it impossible even in his narrative to conceal entirely his lack of sympathy with George's doctrine but nowhere does this difference of opinion become so pronounced as to prejudice the conclusions." E. M. Patterson

+ Ann Am Acad 68:322 N '16 350w

+ Boston Transcript p9 Jl 29 '16 190w

+ Cath World 103:821 S '16 1300w

+ Cleveland p148 D '16 30w

"So carefully has the role of the expositor been kept uppermost and dominant that no trace of the partisan can be discovered. That Dr. Young has been signally successful in laying before his readers the whole case, for and against, its failures and successes, its dangers and weaknesses as well as its essential elements of strength, every sincere critic must admit." Alexander MacKendrick

+ Dial 61:346 N 2 '16 2750w

+ Ind 88:164 O 23 '16 50w

"The book indicates with sharp definiteness the point at which the irresistible force of education was relegated to the background in favor of the always confusing and divisive force of political action. Had Dr. Young done no more than to lay his finger upon the strategic error which abruptly checked and for thirty years has hindered the progress of the single tax, he would have earned the gratitude of all who believe this movement to contain the potentiality of vast benefit to the human race."

C. B. Fillebrown

+ J Pol Econ 24:908 N '16 1100w

+ Nation 103:564 D 14 '16 1400w

N Y Br Lib News 3:106 Jl '16

+ N Y Times 21:447 O 22 '16 1650w

Reviewed by R. M. Haig

+ Pol Sci Q 31:643 D '16 400w

R of Rs 54:119 Jl '16 70w

St Louis 14:387 N '16

"Books on problems of taxation do not as a rule appeal to the general reader, but one ventures to predict, so forceful and scholarly is Prof. Young's presentation of the single tax ideals that few persons, even those who disagree with him, will put down his book, having once taken it up."

+ Springfield Republican p6 Jl 28 '16 470w

Reviewed by C. C. Williamson

+ Survey 37:153 N 11 '16 450w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p370 Ag 3 '16 130w

The Times [London] Lit Sup p376 Ag 10 '16 970w

YOUNG, F. E. MILLS. Bywonner. *$1.35 (1½c) Lane 16-11736

A story of life in South Africa with a contrast of the opportunities open to the Dutch and successful English farmers and the limitations of the educated Englishman who, through drink, has let himself down from his proper position. Ransom, with his son Tom and his daughter Adela, lives and works on another man's land, and to some extent the three depend on the charity of others. When the children grow up Adela becomes the mistress of Stephens, a white adventurer, and escapes disgrace by drowning. Tom steadily works his way upward and marries an English girl who has had the advantages denied to him. There is also the love story of Zirk, a Boer who cares enough for Adela to wish to marry her knowing the facts of her life, and of his sister Johanna, a Boer girl of eighteen who marries a rich old Boer.

— Boston Transcript p6 Jl 12 '16 210w

"The most interesting thing in the book is the picture it gives of the monotonous, hard-working lives of the women whose lot is cast on the lonely farms of the veldt."

+ N Y Times 21:253 Je 18 '16 180w

R of Rs 54:125 Jl '16 70w

+ Springfield Republican p13 Ag 13 '16 380w

"Miss Mills Young has always proved herself to possess more than a superficial understanding of the conditions of life in South Africa, from the Cape province to Rhodesia. It is then, unfortunate that her latest book should have been written around an erroneous idea; of the meaning of bywonner, which is the title and subject of her book. Now, a bywonner is nothing more or less than a tenant of farm-lands, with certain peculiar, but perfectly definite, conditions attached to his contract of tenancy. He pays rent either in kind or in service, and frequently in both. A bywonner does not receive remuneration for his services; nor does he ever act as a regular overseer. Finally, and this is the gravest error of all, a bywonner is not 'a poor white.' With this initial error, the book loses much of its value as a novel of South Africa. But in spite of this, and in spite of overmuch moralizing, the book will repay reading."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p262 Je 1 '16 450w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

YOUNG, GEORGE, ed. Portugal. il *$2.50 Oxford 869

The editor of this anthology was British secretary of legation in Lisbon in 1914. The preface is written by Dr. Theophilo Braga, poet and literary historian, the first president of the republic of Portugal. The editor's "guiding principle is plain enough; it aims at presenting only such poetry of Portugal as is really racy of the soil. Consequently several well-known writers are not included." (The Times [London] Lit Sup) "The authors chiefly represented are Gil Vicente, Camoens, João de Deus Ramos, Anthero de Quental, and Guerra Junqueiro, and a number of old and modern ballads and hymns of the revolution and the republic are given (three with music). The translations are on the pages facing the originals, and there are brief introductions, footnotes, and an index." (Library Association Record)

Library Association Record 18:175 Ap 15 '16 60w

"A work of fine scholarship, selective judgment, and critical knowledge, which should open up, even to those who cannot read Portuguese, a fair field of pure literature, covering 900 years."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p139 Mr 23 '16 1550w

YOUNG, GEORGE FREDERICK. East and West through fifteen centuries, being a general history from B. C. 44 to A. D. 1453. 4v v 1-2 il *$12 Longmans 940.1 (16-12243)

"These volumes are the product of the well-earned but laborious leisure of a distinguished soldier, to whom we already owe a book on the Medici. He has now set before himself a more ambitious task, the first half of which is already completed—that of retelling the tale which Gibbon summed up on his title-page as the 'Decline and fall of the Roman empire' and in his text as the 'Triumph of barbarism and religion.'" (The Times [London] Lit Sup) "He has published two volumes bringing the history of the Roman empire—a title which, in common with Professor Bury, he holds includes both its western and eastern branches—down to the death of Leo the Iconoclast in A. D. 740." (Spec)

"An examination of the 'points' on which the author especially prides himself shows the necessity of a warning to the 'general reader,' that usually when these are true they are not new, and when new they are not true. The most interesting portions of the work are some of the comments on military affairs, in which the author is especially versed." D. C. Munro

+ Am Hist R 22:139 O '16 800w

+ A L A Bkl 13:167 Ja '17

"The attractive work of which the first instalment is before us is designed for the general reader, and from this point of view it deserves success. . . . He writes clearly and con amore, provides maps and admirable illustrations, and gives much useful information in notes and appendices. . . . There is a table of modern 'authorities consulted' which can hardly be called comprehensive and is sometimes surprising. . . . The chief faults of the book are of omission. The constitutional and economic sides of imperial affairs are very slightly treated. The decay of the municipalities ought to have been treated more seriously. . . . The least helpful part of the book is that which has to do with church affairs. . . . On the whole, it is to be hoped that, in spite of limitations and inaccuracies, the book will find a public, since, though it will not help much towards the solution of historical problems, it may be taken as a frieze setting forth a great historic pageant." Alice Gardner

+ Eng Hist R 31:471 Jl '16 1050w

"So ambitious a plan runs the risk of falling between two stools. It is too long for educational purposes and for too busy men. It does not go sufficiently into detail to satisfy the skilled student of history, nor does it give him those references to the original authorities, or to the special treatises of recent writers, which we now expect from scientifically written histories. . . . In point of accuracy, which, after all, is the fundamental merit of every history, without which no other qualities avail much to give it value, this book stands pretty well the tests which we have applied."

+ Nation 103:512 N 30 '16 2200w

"The style is straightforward and reveals the honesty of purpose of the author, who as an amateur has done well. But this is not a task for amateurs."

+ Pol Sci Q 31:670 D '16 250w

"It fails to meet the needs either of the devoted student or of those persons who want to get wise quickly. General Young, however, has a pleasant style, as well as industry, and we have read his first two volumes with pleasure. As a rule, he is a shrewd judge of authorities, and concerning certain periods he has definite views of his own."

+ Sat R 121:353 Ap 8 '16 1150w

Reviewed by the Earl of Cromer

+ Spec 116:659 My 27 '16 1900w

"The book is illustrated with a number of reproductions of imperial portraits. The author would have done well to consult some archaeologist versed in Roman iconography, for the identifications are often more doubtful."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p147 Mr 30 '16 700w

YOUNG, GEORGE JOSEPH. Elements of mining. il *$5 McGraw 622 16-17110

"The author has fulfilled his promise when he says, 'the objective of 'Elements of mining' is to give the reader a comprehensive view of the mining problem.' Although the book does not contain a great deal that is new and original, it does present a vast amount of valuable information not usually found within the covers of a single volume. It is more a compilation of known and useful facts than a treatise on the problems of mining.' (Mining and Scientific Press)"—N Y P L New Tech Bks

A L A Bkl 13:157 Ja '17

N Y Br Lib News 3:154 O '16

"A better book could not be found by anyone desiring an encyclopedia of useful and practical information such as is needed in solving the problems encountered every day in mining operations."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p19 N '16 70w
(Reprinted from Mining and Scientific Press, Sept. 23, 1916)

Pittsburgh 21:499 N '16 20w

St Louis 14:394 N '16

YOUNG, JOHN PHILIP. Journalism in California. il $1.50 Chronicle pub. co., San Francisco 16-7225

"Mr. Young's work was first written for and published in the San Francisco Chronicle, of which he has been the managing editor for many years, where it appeared Jan. 16, 1915, to signalize the fiftieth anniversary of the foundation of that paper by Charles and M. H. de Young. . . . Beginning with the early days of California and the appearance of the first newspaper, Mr. Young carries his story along through three-quarters of a century to the present time, keeping prominent the central thread of the part played by the newspapers. . . . To the account as it appeared in the Chronicle has been added another chapter dealing with the exposition and the Chronicle's connection with it and with other recent matters. Included, also, are a hundred pages of biographies of prominent men of the Pacific coast."—N Y Times

"This carefully written volume has a scope wider than its title indicates, for it is, in effect, the story of the birth and growth of San Francisco and to a certain extent of California also. For the activities of the newspapers of a region must comprehend in large measure the history of the region and the development of its people."

YOUNG, JOHN PHILIP—Continued
+ N Y Times 21:126 Ap 2 '16 270w

"Libraries which receive this book will find that its readers are not confined to the newspaper business."

+ Springf'd Republican p17 My 19 '16 150w

Z

ZAHM, JOHN AUGUSTINE (H. J. MOZANS, pseud.). Through South America's southland. II *$3.50 (2c) Appleton 918 16-4105

This volume is the third of a South American trilogy. The two preceding it, "Up the Orinoco and down the Magdalena," and "Along the Andes and down the Amazon," were published under the author's pseudonym, H. J. Mozans. It was Mr. Zahm who interested Theodore Roosevelt in the southern continent and who organized the Roosevelt scientific expedition to South America, and this book also forms a complementary volume to Roosevelt's "Through the Brazilian wilderness." It narrates the incidents of the expedition and describes the places visited, omitting scientific details. The author says further: "In this, as in my preceding books on South America, I have had little to say of the material, political or economic conditions of the countries through which we journeyed. . . . My interests have been rather in the history, the poetry and the romance of the places visited." Brazil, Uruguay, Paraguay, Argentina and Chile were the countries visited. A map, many illustrations, a bibliography and an index are features of the book.

"The author is a comprehensive and appreciative observer, but at times a heavy writer, specially in his long accounts of the missionary explorers; otherwise his descriptions are good."

+ — A L A Bkl 12:380 My '16

"There is much in the volume from first to last that is not new. On the other hand, Mr. Zahm writes in an easy, rambling style which makes reading easy, and his interest is aroused by a wide range of objects." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 29 '16 750w

"Father Zahm's three volumes will do a great deal towards promoting more kindly feeling between the people of the United States and their neighbors in the South American republics. For he writes in full sympathy with a race whose religion is his own, and whose history, language and literature he thoroughly knows and loves."

+ Cath World 103:392 Je '16 870w

Reviewed by P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 61:24 Je 22 '16 270w

+ — Ind 87:202 Ag 7 '16 230w

"Dr. Zahm, the author of this scholarly book of travel, is a Catholic priest who has attained distinction not in literature alone, but in science as well."

+ Lit D 52:1109 Ap 15 '16 480w

"An Inca or a beef 'critter,' a horse or a humming bird, nothing is alien to him."

+ N Y Times 21:152 Ap 16 '16 1050w

Pittsburgh 21:267 Je '16 10w

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

Pub W 89:651 F 19 '16 900w

"Including just the detail that is calculated to interest Americans, particularly at the present time. The illustrations surpass those of any account of South American travel that has recently come to our notice, with the exception of Colonel Roosevelt's own work, 'Through the Brazilian wilderness.'"

+ R of Rs 53:504 Ap '16 200w

"In every chapter the reader will meet surprises, and for the banishing of one's ignorance it is to be hoped the book will have many readers. It is worthy of them."

+ Springfield Republican p8 Je 20 '16 600w

"The charm of the book and its chief value consist in its historical and biographical records and reminiscences. Everywhere we find ourselves treading in the footsteps of the Conquistadores. Here too the heroes of the war of independence find an honoured place."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p208 My 4 '16 1000w

ZANGWILL, ISRAEL. War for the world. *$1.50 (1c) Macmillan 940.91 16-15296

A collection of papers, all bearing more or less closely on the war. In a long introduction entitled "Some prognostications and a preface, with an apologia for not being pro-German," the author deplores the almost universal tendency to imitate German methods even while denouncing Germany. "Unfortunately," he says, "the effort to fight the Germans like the Germans" only begets more Germanism. "As a Jew he cannot look with equanimity on the alliance with Russia. This aspect of the problem is touched on in this introduction and again in several of the essays. Other subjects are: The war devil; The next war; The ruined romantics; The gods of Germany; Militarism, British and Prussian; The war and the drama; Novelists and the war; The war and the churches; The war and the women. There are also a number of poems.

"Of interest chiefly as coming from Mr. Zangwill."

+ A L A Bkl 13:77 N '16

"His criticisms are so discursive, and they cover such a large field, even including himself, that the reader finds himself wondering just what the author is aiming to do. . . . As one of the books prompted by the war it is unique. It is interesting, and in many ways it will prove valuable. The fine broad spirit of the author is evident throughout."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 Ag 16 '16 520w

Reviewed by T. D. A. Cockerell

Dial 61:187 S 21 '16 1300w

+ Ind 89:72 Ja 8 '17 130w

"We are grateful to a journalist who has given his work some of the point and polish of Heine." M. J.

Int J Ethics 27:267 Ja '17 300w

Nation 103:379 O 19 '16 750w

"This book is a precious possession which will long outlive the war. . . . It sets the perspective of a mighty theme. It never discusses save to illuminate. It touches nothing that it does not adorn." H. J. L.

+ New Repub 10:26 F 3 '17 1200w

"The volume contains a collection of newspaper and magazine articles, essays, and poems, with a long opening chapter written especially for the book. Several of the articles antedate the war, one at least going as far back as 1904."

N Y Times 21:317 Ag 13 '16 1250w

"To be told through a series of brilliant and artfully pointed paragraphs, and through striking metaphors, that civilization is at stake in the present war. . . . is in this third year of the European conflict simply nerve-racking. The fundamental defect in Mr. Zangwill's essays is that, while they very effectively emphasize principles and very skillfully disentangle logical snarls, they seldom go deeply into causes. Thus his discussions not infrequently issue either in truisms or in somewhat arbitrary assertions."

+ — N Am 204:632 O '16 750w

Pittsburgh 21:587 D '16 50w

"In none of these brilliant essays on the war is there a point of view which would be heartily endorsed by any section of public opinion as its official own. . . . Though in every essay every reader will find something dogmatically assaulting his own entrenched position, we name

'Arms and the man,' 'The ruined romantics,' 'The gods of Germany,' ' Militarism, British and Prussian,' 'The model monster,' 'Some apologists for Germany,' 'The military pacifists' and 'The absurd side of alliances' as deeply interesting at the present moment."

Sat R 122:278 S 16 '16 420w

+ Spec 117:217 Ag 19 '16 170w

"Mr. Zangwill has the courage of his convictions; what he lacks is conviction. Sympathy with 'movements' is more apparent than sympathy with the down-trodden and oppressed. A vague high-strung impatience is the keynote. But there is an exception to this. His sincerity in treating the questions affecting his race—the Hebrew—is one of the most commendable things in the book."

+ Springfield Republican p15 Ag 6 '16 700w

"His point of view is Hebraic rather than British; he probably would not resent being described as an English Jew who is more Jew than Englishman. England is not so much his nation as his melting-pot; and no man can be expected to love his melting-pot quite as he would love his country. That, as it seems to us, is the explanation of Mr. Zangwill's mental attitude. . . . As a critic of life, Mr. Zangwill is at once provocative and acute."

+ The Times [London] Lit Sup p318 Jl 6 '16 900w

ZAVALLA, JUSTO P. Canning of fruits and vegetables, based on the methods in use in California, with notes on the control of the microorganisms effecting spoilage. il $2.50 Wiley 664 16-12765

"The author of this practical and attractive treatise is a graduate of the College of agriculture of the University of California and has had personal experience in several of the factories of that state. Besides the subjects referred to in the title, there is a well illustrated section on the making of sanitary cans, as well as a plan for a modern canning plant."—N Y P L New Tech Bks

N Y Br Lib News 3:103 Jl '16

N Y Libraries 5:173 N '16 20w

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p6 Ag '16 110w
Pittsburgh 21:422 O '16 20w

"Thorough treatment of the preservation of fruits and vegetables on a commercial scale."

+ Pratt p24 Ja '17 12w

ZENNECK, JONATHAN ADOLF WILHELM. Wireless telegraphy; tr. from the German by A. E. Seelig. il $4 McGraw 654 15-24534

"Professor Zenneck's 'Lehrbuch der drahtlosen telegraphie' is well known to be a classic on radiotelegraphic theory and practice, but the fact that it appeared in the German language made it literally a closed book to many American and English radio engineers. Now that it has been so well translated into English by Mr. Seelig, it should find a far wider but equally appreciative audience. The scope of the book is broad, running from elementary treatment of condenser and antenna circuit currents through the important measurements of the art and explanations of coupled-circuit phenomena into technical descriptions of sustained and damped-wave apparatus. Progress up to 1912 is well stated."—Elec World

+ A L A Bkl 12:414 Je '16

+ Cleveland p8 F '16 20w

"Although the greatest benefit from a study of this book can be gained by the reader who is familiar with the calculus, there is in it so much intensely valuable practical matter that almost anyone interested in radio will be fully repaid for the time given to reading it. Although some of the historical statements may be questioned, the book is unqualifiedly recommended since its merits completely overshadow any disagreements in that direction. The press-work of this edition is admirable."

+ Elec World 66:1270 D 4 '15 200w

"A particularly full bibliography is appended."

+ Engin N 75:943 My 18 '16 250w

"As a reference work alone, recording and describing accomplishments in the radio arts, the book should be extremely useful to radio-engineers. As a text for a thorough course in both theory and operation of radio instruments its value can scarcely be overrated."

+ N Y P L New Tech Bks p15 F '16 220w
(Reprinted from Popular Science Monthly p153 Ja '16)

"Thorough treatment, of high technical value. The most comprehensive work published (1916). Chief attention to German apparatus. The bibliography is referred to by number throughout the text."

+ Pittsburgh 21:292 Je '16 30w

"It is really an abbreviation of the same author's more pretentious volume entitled 'Electromagnetische schwingungen und drahtlose telegraphie,' which has been the most thorough text on wireless telegraphy obtainable since its publication in 1905. The larger volume has not yet been translated into English, and it seems likely that the student of Seelig's translation of the shorter text will frequently be in difficulty because he cannot consult the larger volume for the derivation of some of the formulas, the derivations in the English text being very meagre and sometimes lacking altogether. Some of the figures are also described so briefly that it is difficult to understand them." J. H. Morecroft

+ School of Mines Quarterly 36:344 Jl '15 350w

ZUEBLIN, CHARLES. American municipal progress. (Social science text-books). il $2 (1½c) Macmillan 352 16-1412

A revised edition of a work published in 1902. "A record of typical instances of American municipal progress" the author calls it. It is "designed primarily to indicate to civic and social workers, public officials, and intelligent citizens the vast scope of municipal activity to-day. It can be made useful by comparing local conditions with the typical instances of excellence gathered from all the cities." (Preface) Chapters are devoted to: The conservation of the city; The city portal; Municipal railway regulation; The city street; The city's wastes; Water and sewerage; Public health; Protection; Justice and charity, etc. There are numerous illustrations, a bibliography and an index.

"Zueblin has given to American students of municipal government the most practical work yet published. His work would have been more complete if he had touched ever so slightly upon the credit system of the American municipalities. The enormous outstanding bonded indebtedness of American cities should inspire the historian of municipal progress to give it more than scant notice." D. H. Ramsey

+ Am Econ R 6:425 Je '16 570w

"It does for American cities what Frederic C. Howe's books have done for German cities. When visiting American cities hereafter I shall be tempted to take this book as my Baedeker or guide to their social activities." S. E. W. Bedford

+ Am J Soc 21:704 Mr '16 250w

"Practically a new book. The size of the page is larger, the new edition has twenty chapters where the old edition had ten; it contains 522 pages instead of the 380 of the old; the material has been brought to date; a bibliography (67p.) and forty-seven illustrations have been added."

+ A L A Bkl 12:308 Mr '16

"The book is most readable, as would be expected of a publicist. It is really an appeal for municipal ownership, and Cleveland which has had its Tom Johnson and three cent carfare is much to the author's liking. If a class in American municipal government has time for only three books an instructor might well use Munro's 'Government of American cities' for the framework of city government, Munro's 'Principles and methods of municipal administration' for the functions, and Zueblin's 'American municipal progress' for inspiration." F. A. Magruder

ZUEBLIN, CHARLES—Continued

+ Am Pol Sci R 10:383 My '16 650w

"The difficult task of presenting a mass of timely facts in an interesting and entertaining way has been accomplished most creditably. A very unusual style is partly responsible for this result." H. G. H.

+ Ann Am Acad 66:271 Jl '16 350w

+ Educ R 51:98 Je '16 30w

"The value of the volume lies in its comprehensiveness—it covers, or rather touches upon, everything from billboards to municipal universities, and has a bibliography that exhibits the same quality."

+ Nation 102:600 Je 1 '16 300w

"No reader will lay the book aside without knowing much more about our municipalities than he knew before. That the reader should exercise his critical faculty need hardly be enjoined. For after all the book reflects, from the socialist point of view, the spirit of the well meaning reformer, honest unquestionably, but not entirely emerged from the atmosphere of capitalist ideology, as where, for instance, he recommends a small unpaid council as supreme municipal power." Moses Oppenheimer

+ — New Review 4:86 Mr '16 1050w

+ R of Rs 53:379 Mr '16 100w

"While the author's attitude provokes disagreement, his collection of information has interest for all students of American city problems."

+ — Springfield Republican p17 F 15 '16 450w

Reviewed by R. N. Baldwin

+ Survey 36:507 Ag 12 '16 270w

"The work is necessarily rather cyclopedic in style, and is more useful for reference than for reading. Large classed bibliography (67p.) and full index (26p.)."

+ Wis Lib Bull 12:183 Ap '16 70w

ZWEMER, REV. SAMUEL MARINUS. Disintegration of Islam. il *$1.25 Revell 297 16-21985

A book based on lectures on missions delivered at Princeton theological seminary in 1915. "The author has considered the subject from the following points of view: 'The dead-weight of tradition,' a chapter in which he attempts to show that, backed by so unscientific a book as the Koran, the religion is greatly weakened; 'The revolt and its failure,' commenting on the establishing of new creeds and their failure to check the supposed disintegration of the religion; 'The political collapse,' in which the amount of territory annexed by Christian countries in recent wars is exhibited with pride; and, finally, two philosophical chapters on the new Islam and the present attitude to Christ and Christianity." (Springfield Republican)

+ A L A Bkl 13:146 Ja '17

"He writes with an authoritative knowledge of his subject, but with intense feeling that permits no dispassionate discussion."

Ind 88:166 O 23 '16 60w

N Y Br Lib News 3:156 O '16

"Throughout the book frequently statements of fact are open to doubt."

Springfield Republican p13 O 8 '16 240w

Quarterly List of New Technical and Industrial Books

Chosen and annotated for general libraries by the Applied Science Reference Department, Pratt Institute Free Library, Brooklyn, N. Y.

No. 1

JANUARY, 1917

Canning and how to use canned foods.

A. W. and K. G. Bitting. Wash., National Cannery Association. 191p.

Trade publication. Contains interesting matter on methods of canning by commercial and household processes; on the selection and preparation of the foodstuff to be canned; and has ninety pages of recipes for preparing the various fruits, vegetables, meats, fish, etc., for the table. Both authors are doctors of medicine.

Chemistry in the service of man. Alexander Findlay. Longmans. $1.60 net.

Written for the educated general reader interested in the important part which chemistry is performing in the world's progress. Treats briefly of chemical theory and discusses combustion, illuminants, fuels, explosives, cellulose products, fixation of atmospheric nitrogen, glass, soda, soap, colloids, synthetic chemistry, etc. Author is an eminent British authority.

Retail selling, a guide to the best practice.

J. W. Fisk. Harper. $1.00 net.

The author is in charge of the selling department of a New York department store and writes from large experience of the many factors entering into successful retail selling. Treats of store layout, advertising, discipline, decoration, treatment of customers, etc. Valuable to merchants, salesmen, and buyers.

Municipal engineering practice. A. P. Follwell. Wiley. 422p. $3.50 net.

Considers many features of city sanitation, adornment and other improvements. The style is non-technical, and the book would be of interest to young engineers having to deal with municipal problems, to city officials and public-spirited citizens interested in improvements. Does not deal with sewerage, water supply, or street paving. Author is editor of Municipal Journal.

Gray's plumbing design and installation; a veritable encyclopedia of modern practice based on work done by the author and other experts in every branch of the plumbing and allied trades and covering approved practice in every part of the country. W. B. Gray. Williams. $4.00 net.

Written by a practical plumber for master plumbers. Covers wide range of problems in installing and caring for indoor and outdoor plumbing and allied work such as a plumber is liable to meet in his everyday practice. Contains ninety-four chapters divided into five sections.

A more useful book for the apprentice and beginner wishing to learn the simple operations of the trade would be: Starbuck's "Standard practical plumbing." Henley. $4.00 net.

Automobile ignition, starting, and lighting; a comprehensive analysis of the complete electrical equipment of the modern automobile, including many wiring diagrams and details of all the important starting-lighting systems. C. B. Hayward. American Technical Soc. 381p. $2.00 net.

Up-to-date description of the electrical features of the gasoline automobile. Plainly written and well illustrated.

Another good book on this subject is: Pagé's "Starting, lighting and ignition systems," pub. by Henley at $1.50 net.

Ventilation hand book: the principles and practice of ventilation as applied to furnace heating; ducts, flues and dampers for gravity heating; fans and fan work for ventilation and hot blast heating. C. L. Hubbard. Sheet Metal Pub. Co. 218p. 5½x8. $2.00 net.

The author, a good authority, who has written advanced treatises on heating and ventilating, offers a simple book for readers of little technical training, which explains the underlying principles of warm air heating and ventilation, with methods of designing installations. The matter is arranged in question and answer form, and appeared originally in Sheet Metal.

Pasteurization of milk from the practical viewpoint; a handbook relating to the installation, operation and control of pasteurization plants. Useful to milk dealers, students in dairy schools, public officials having control of milk handling, and of interest to the general public. C. H. Kilbourne. Wiley. $1.25 net.

Treats of the pasteurization of city milk supplies, with illustrated descriptions of the apparatus employed. The author writes from experience as chief of the division of pasteurization plants, New York City Department of Health. Does not enter into home pasteurization.

Book of forestry. F. F. Moon. Appleton. 315p. $1.75 net.

A book for boys. The first part treats generally of ways in which forests are valuable, of the growth of trees, their protection and harvesting, etc. The second part describes the varieties of trees and shrubs separately, with pictures of their leaves, flowers, fruits and other distinguishing features, their geographical distribution and uses.

Well calculated to interest boys in the study of trees and shrubs and in their conservation. Good book for Boy Scouts.

Productive bee-keeping; modern methods of production and marketing of honey. F. C. Pellett. Lippincott. 302p. $1.50 net. (Lippincott's farm manuals.)

Treats fully the various problems involved in the keeping of bees: their care, breeding, sources of honey, the business of marketing the product, duties of inspectors, etc. A set of questions accompanies each of the fifteen chapters.

Author is State apiarist of Iowa.

Manual on explosives. A. R. J. Ramsey and H. C. Weston. Lond., Routledge, and N. Y., Dutton. 116p. $1.00 net.

Brief treatise addressed to the general reader wishing to know something about the nature, manufacture, and uses of explosives for naval, military and engineering purposes. Illustrated.

Motion picture handbook; a guide for operators and motion picture theatres. 3d ed. F. H. Richardson. Moving Picture World. 686p. $4.00 net.

Valuable reference book with detailed information about the operation and care of the electrical and mechanical apparatus employed in motion picture showing, together with much related matter concerning lenses, projection, screens, theaters, etc. Fully illustrated.

Applied electricity for practical men. A. J. Rowland. McGraw. 375p. $2.00 net.

Primarily a text book for trade and industrial schools but well suited to the use of men engaged in practical electrical work and lacking technical training. Explains in a clear and simple manner electrical principles and their practical applications to electric machinery, lighting and storage batteries. Each of the eighteen chapters is provided with questions and problems.

Based on the author's work with classes of practical electricians in Drexel Institute, where he is professor of electrical engineering.

Plain and ornamental forging. Ernest Schwarzkopf. Wiley. 277p. $1.50 net. (Wiley technical series.)

One of a series of text-books for trade and industrial schools. Takes up the forging of iron and steel from the beginning and has a section on art forging which leads up to advanced work.

Author is instructor at Stuyvesant High School, New York City.

Boys' book of mechanical models. W. B. Stout. Little. 278p. $1.50 net.

Working models of over thirty objects which a mechanically inclined boy could make. Inexpensive, easily obtained materials are used in all cases.

A B C of automobile driving. A. H. Verriill. Harper. 50c. (Harper's A B C series.)

Excellent little book containing information and advice about automobile driving in town and country which every beginner should read.

It has been suggested that The H. W. Wilson Company undertake the publication of a periodical list of new technical and industrial books. This would be in the form of a four-page leaflet, to be issued quarterly. Mr. Edward S. Stevens, Director and Librarian of the Pratt Institute Free Library, who suggested the publication of such a list, has generously proposed that the editorial work be done by the Applied Science Reference Department of Pratt Library and at no charge but merely for the good of the cause. He discusses the plans for the list as follows:

"It is a very simple proposition. To recommend current technical books for the smaller libraries to purchase and to provide leaflets for distribution at those libraries so that the books may be brought to the notice of the public. By brief annotations the character and scope of each book listed would be evident to the library buying and the reader borrowing. The selection of these books would be guided by the requirements of the average town library not specializing in technology. The books recommended would be such that every library ordering the leaflet should buy all the books named. Here and there a book might be omitted if not appealing to the public of that locality, but that need not affect the usefulness of the list in that place as the inappropriate book would not be asked for. In any event, such a special book would be available by borrowing from another library to meet an unusual need. The direct and non-mathematical manual for the worker would be favored in the selection over the advanced treatise for the engineer. Highly technical books would not be included."

The H. W. Wilson Company will be willing to undertake the printing and distribution of these four-page leaflets if a subscription of 10,000 copies can be secured. This would be equivalent to 100 subscribers for 100 copies each or 50 subscribers averaging 200 copies each. If this number of subscribers can be secured an annual subscription rate can be made of $2 a year for 100 copies each quarter. The minimum subscriptions taken will be for 50 copies for one year at $1; a library ordering 500 copies at $10 may have its own imprint without additional charge.

In case the publishing of this list is undertaken it would be desirable to issue the first number early in the new year. If libraries interested in this plan will notify us promptly of about how much support we may expect from them, it will enable us to formulate our plans.—Reprinted from The Wilson Bulletin, December, 1916.

The publishers announce that the response from the libraries has been such as to indicate the success of this undertaking.

Subject, Title and Pseudonym Index

To Author Entries, March, 1916—February, 1917

- "—and other poets." Untermeyer, L. (Mr '16)
A-B-C of automobile driving. Verrill, A. H. (Je '16)
A-B-C of cooking. Herrick, C. (Je '16)
A-B-C of correct speech. Hall, F. M. (Je '16)
A-B-C of golf. Dunn, J. D. (Je '16)
A-B-C of home saving. Farmer, L. C. (Ja '17)
A-B-C of motion pictures. Welsh, R. E. (Jl '16)
A-B-C of vegetable gardening. Rexford, E. E. (Mr '16)
- Ability tests
Starch, D. Educational measurements. (F '17)
- About Harriet. Hunt, C. W. (Ja '17)
About Miss Mattie Morningglory. Bell, L. L. (Je '16)
Above the battle. Rolland, R. (My '16)
Abyss. Kussy, N. (Mr '16)
- Academic freedom
Am. economic assn. Papers and proceedings of the twenty-eighth annual meeting. (Ap '16)
- Accidents
Rubinow, I. M. Standard accident table as a basis for compensation rates. (My '16)
- Prevention
Beyer, D. S. Industrial accident prevention. (O '16)
Cowee, G. A. Practical safety methods and devices. (D '16)
Accolade. Sidgwick, E. (Mr '16)
- Accountants, Public
Am. assn. of public accountants. Year book, 1916. (Ap '16)
- Accounting
Belding, A. G. Accounts and accounting practice. (Ag '16)
Todman, F. S. Brokerage accounts. (F '17)
Accounts and accounting practice. Belding, A. G. (Ag '16)
Acorn-planter. London, J. (Ap '16)
- Acrobats
Balch, E. B. Amateur circus life. (F '17)
Across the continent by the Lincoln highway. Gladding, E. P. (My '16)
- Acting
Hornblow, A. Training for the stage. (Ja '17)
Action front. Cable, B. (S '16)
- Actors and actresses
Eaton, W. P. Plays and players. (F '17)
Sothern, E. H. Melancholy tale of "Me." (N '16)
Towse, J. R. Sixty years of the theater. (D '16)
Winter, W. Shakespeare on the stage. (F '17)
- Adams, Charles Francis, 1835-1915
Adams, C. F. Charles Francis Adams, 1835-1915. (My '16)
- Adams, John Quincy, 1767-1848
Adams, J. Q. Writings of John Quincy Adams. (My '16)
- Adam's garden. Putnam, N. W. (Je '16)
- Adaptation (biology)
Crile, G. W. Man—an adaptive mechanism. (My '16)
- Address as temporary chairman of the New York Republican convention, February 15, 1916. Root, E. (O '16)
Addresses, 1906-1916. Hughes, C. E. (O '16)
Addresses on government and citizenship. Root, E. (F '17)
Addresses on international subjects. Root, E. (Je '16)
- Adolescence
Slaughter, J. W. Adolescent. (Je '16)
Starr, L. Adolescent period. (Je '16)
- Advance of the English novel. Phelps, W. L. (O '16)
- Adventure of a prodigal father. Cheley, F. H. (F '17)
- Adventures among birds. Hudson, W. H. (Je '16)
Adventures among wild flowers. Trevena, J., pseud. (My '16)
Adventures in common sense. Crane, F. (Je '16)
Adventures in Mexico. Ruxton, G. F. A. (Je '16)
Adventures in thrift. Richardson, A. S. (Je '16)
Adventures of a despatch rider. Watson, W. H. L. (O '16)
- Advertising
Adams, H. F. Advertising and its mental laws. (F '17)
Cherington, P. T. Advertising book, 1916. (My '16)
De Weese, T. A. Keeping a dollar at work. (Mr '16)
Hess, H. W. Productive advertising. (Ap '16)
Sales promotion by mail. (F '17)
Sherbow, B. Making type work. (Ag '16)
Updegraff, R. R. Obvious Adams. (Ja '17)
A. E., pseud. See Russell, G. W.
Aerial Russia. Roustam-Bek, B. (F '17)
- Aeronautics
Grahame-White, C., and Harper, H. Learning to fly. (F '17)
- Aeronautics, Military
Hearne, R. P. Zeppelins and super-Zeppelins. (Jl '16)
Lanchester, F. W. Aircraft in warfare. (Jl '16)
Roustam-Bek, B. Aerial Russia. (F '17)
- Aeroplanes
Cavanagh, G. A. Model aeroplanes and their motors. (D '16)
Judge, A. W. Design of aeroplanes. (F '17)
- Africa
Cureau, A. L. Savage man in Central Africa. (Ap '16)
Gibbons, H. A. New map of Africa (1900-1916). (Ja '17)
Roscoe, J. Northern Bantu. (Ap '16)
- Africa, East
Keable, R. City of the dawn [Mombasa]. (Je '16)
- Africa, South. See South Africa
- Africa, West
Mackenzie, J. K. Black sheep. (Ag '16)
After the manner of men. Lynde, F. (N '16)
Aftermath of battle. Toland, E. D. (Mr '16)
Afterwards. Rhodes, K. (F '17)
- Agee, Mrs. Hamilton Pope. See Lea, F. H.
- Agony column. Biggers, E. D. (Ja '17)
- Agricultural chemistry
Chamberlain, J. S. Organic agricultural chemistry. (S '16)
- Agricultural credit
Myrick, H. Federal farm loan system. (N '16)
Robins, K. N. Farm mortgage handbook. (O '16)
- Agricultural economics. Nourse, E. G. (F '17)
- Agricultural education
Foght, H. W. Rural Denmark and its schools. (Jl '16)

Agricultural education—Continued

General education board. General education board; an account of its activities, 1902-1914. (My '16)

Agriculture

Carleton, M. A. Small grains. (Ag '16)
Gardner, F. D. Successful farming. (F '17)
Goff, E. S. Principles of plant culture. (Jl '16)
Harris, F. S., and Stewart, G. Principles of agronomy. (Jl '16)
Montgomery, E. G. Productive farm crops. (F '17)

Economic aspects

Carver, T. N., comp. Selected readings in rural economics. (My '16)
Hall, A. D. Agriculture after the war. (O '16)
Nourse, E. G. Agricultural economics. (F '17)
Wolseley, F. G. W., viscountess. Women and the land. (S '16)

England

Fordham, M. Short history of English rural life. (S '16)
Gray, H. L. English field systems. (N '16)

New England

Bidwell, P. W. Rural economy in New England at the beginning of the nineteenth century. (F '17)

United States

Sanford, A. H. Story of agriculture in the United States. (O '16)
Aircraft in warfare. Lanchester, F. W. (Jl '16)

Airships

Hearne, R. P. Zeppelins and super-Zeppelins. (Jl '16)

Alcohol, Physiological effects of

Bowers, E. F. Alcohol, its influence on mind and body. (Ag '16)

Alcohol, Psychological effects of

Dodge, R., and Benedict, F. G. Psychological effects of alcohol. (O '16)

Alcohol and society. Koren, J. (S '16)

Alibi. England, G. A. (Ap '16)

Alice Devine. Jepson, E. (Ap '16)

Aliens

Borchard, E. M. Diplomatic protection of citizens abroad. (Ap '16)

Allied cookery. Harrison, G. C., and Clergue, G., comps. (S '16)

Allies' fairy book. (Ja '17)

Almanacs

Canadian almanac and miscellaneous directory for the year 1916. (Je '16)

Whitaker, C. W., ed. American Whitaker almanac and encyclopedia for 1916. (Mr '16)

Along New England roads. Prime, W. C. (Jl '16)

Alpha and omega. Harrison, J. E. (My '16)

Alps

Abraham, G. D. On Alpine heights and British crags. (Je '16)

Salisbury, F. S. Rambles in the Vaudese Alps. (F '17)

Álvarez Quintero. See Quintero, Álvarez

Amateur. Norris, C. G. (Ap '16)

Amateur army. MacGill, P. (My '16)

Amateur circus life. Balch, E. B. (F '17)

Amateur joinery in the home. Audsley, G. A. and B. (F '17)

Amateur theatricals

Taylor, E. G. Practical stage directing for amateurs. (Jl '16)

Ambitious woman in business. Gilbert, E., pseud. (F '17)

Ambulance number 10. Buswell, L. (F '17)

AmericaDiscovery and exploration

Biddle, R. Memoir of Sebastian Cabot. (Ag '16)

Bolton, H. E., ed. Spanish exploration in the Southwest, 1542-1706. (My '16)

Johnston, C. H. L. Our little Viking cousin of long ago. (F '17)

America and the canal title. Freehoff, J. C. (Mr '16)

America and the new epoch. Steinmetz, C. P. (D '16)

America and the Orient. Gulick, S. L. (D '16)

American ambulance field service

Buswell, L. Ambulance number 10. (F '17)

Friends of France. (N '16)

American and foreign investment bonds. Raymond, W. L. (Ag '16)

American banking. Willis, H. P. (Ag '16)

American Bible society

Dwight, H. O. Centennial history of the American Bible society. (Je '16)

American city. Wright, H. C. (Ag '16)

American civil engineers' pocket book. Merri-man, M., ed. (S '16)

American civilization and the negro. Roman, C. V. (Ag '16)

American crisis and the war. Eng title of Hesitations. Fullerton, W. M. (D '16)

American debate. Miller, M. M. (D '16)

American garland. Flirth, C. H., ed. (My '16)

American government and majority rule. Elliott, E. (Ag '16)

American labor year book, 1916. (Ja '17)

American literature

Fitch, G. H. Great spiritual writers of America. (N '16)

Collections

Bronson, W. C., ed. American prose (1607-1865). (O '16)

Foerster, N., ed. Chief American prose writers. (Ja '17)

American men of letters. Clarke, E. L. (O '16)

American municipal progress. Zueblin, C. (Mr '16)

American neutrality. Baldwin, J. M. (Je '16)

American patriots and statesmen from Washington to Lincoln. Hart, A. B., ed. (Ja '17)

American petroleum industry. Bacon, R. F., and Hamor, W. A. (F '17)

American plan of government. Bacon, C. W., and Morse, F. S. (Jl '16)

American poetryCollections

Braithwaite, W. S. comp. Anthology of magazine verse for 1916. (F '17)

Kreymborg, A., ed. Others; an anthology of the new verse. (Ag '16)

American popular magazines. Stephens, E., comp. (Jl '16)

American prose (1607-1865). Bronson, W. C., ed. (O '16)

American public health protection. Hemenway, H. B. (My '16)

American road. Tucker, J. I. (Ja '17)

American school. Hinchman, W. S. (Mr '16)

American trout-stream insects. Rhead, L. J. (Jl '16)

Americanism. Hill, D. J. (S '16)

Americanization. Dixon, R. (S '16)

America's foreign relations. Johnson, W. F. (Jl '16)

Amherst, Jeffery Amherst, 1st baron, 1717-1797

Mayo, L. S. Jeffery Amherst. (Jl '16)

Amiable charlatan. Oppenheim, E. P. (My '16)

Ammunition

Hime, H. W. L. Origin of artillery. (Je '16)

Among the ruins. Gomez-Carrillo, E. (Jl '16)

Amores. Lawrence, D. H. (Ja '17)

Ancestral voices. Hutton, J. A. (F '17)

Ancient times. Breasted, J. H. (D '16)

And thus He came. Brady, C. T. (Ja '17)

Androcles and the lion. Shaw, G. B. (Je '16)

Angell, Norman, pseud. See Lane, R. N. A.

Anglo-American isthmian diplomacy, 1815-1915.

Williams, M. W. (Ag '16)

Animals, Habits and behavior of

Auer, H. A. Camp fires in the Yukon. (My '16)

Berridge, W. S. Wonders of animal life. (F '17)

Seton, E. T. Wild animal ways. (Jl '16)

Animals, Legends and stories of

Harvey, G. C. Famous four-footed friends. (F '17)

Roberts, C. G. D. Secret trails. (Ja '17)

Snell, R. J. Little white fox and his Arctic friends. (N '16)

See also Fiction—Animal stories

Annual magazine subject index for 1915. Faxon, F. W., ed. (Je '16)

Antarctic exploration

- Doorly, G. S. Voyages of the "Morning." (O '16)
 Taylor, G. With Scott. (N '16)
 Anthology of magazine verse for 1916. Braithwaite, W: S. comp. (F '17)
 Anthracite. Nearing, S. (Mr '16)

Anthropology

- Duckworth, W. L. H: Morphology and anthropology. (Je '16)
 Antique Greek dance. Emmanuel, M. (O '16)
 Antwerp to Gallipoli. Ruhl, A. B. (My '16)
 Anzac book. (O '16)
 Apauk, caller of buffalo. Schultz, J. W. (N '16)
 Apology for old maids. Sedgwick, H: D., jr. (Ja '17)
 Apostle. Loyson, P. H. (Jl '16)
 Apotheosis and after life. Strong, E. (O '16)
 Appeal of the picture. Tilney, F: C. (Je '16)
 Apple. Wilkinson, A. E. (Je '16)
 Applied electricity for practical men. Rowland, A. J: (F '17)
 Appreciation of music. Mason, D. G. and M. L. (S '16)
 Appreciations of poetry. Hearn, L. (F '17)
Apprentices
 Fleming, A. P. M., and Pearce, J. G. Principles of apprentice training. (N '16)
 April airs. Carman, B. (Jl '16)
 Approach to business problems. Shaw, A. W. (F '17)
Arabian nights entertainments
 Dixon, E., ed. Fairy tales from the Arabian nights. (My '16)

Arbitration, Industrial

- Cohen, J. H: Law and order in industry. (Ap '16)
 Mote, C. H: Industrial arbitration. (My '16)

Arbitration, International

- Reely, M. K., comp. Selected articles on world peace. (Mr '16)
 Scott, J. B. Status of the international court of justice. (N '16)
 Stowell, E. C., and Munro, H: F. International cases. (F '17)
 Wilson, G: G., ed. Hague arbitration cases. (My '16)
 Woolf, L. S. International government. (D '16)
 Archaeological excavation. Droop, J: P. (Ap '16)

Archeology

- Droop, J: P. Archaeological excavation. (Ap '16)
 Handcock, P. S. P. Archaeology of the Holy Land. (Jl '16)
 Parkyn, E. A. Introduction to the study of prehistoric art. (Mr '16)
 Archaeology and the Bible. Barton, G: A. (Ja '17)
 Archer and the "Prophet." Brown, E. A. (N '16)

Architects

- Vasari, G. Lives of the most eminent painters, sculptors and architects. (Jl '16)

Law

- Blake, C. H., jr. Law of architecture and building. (S '16)
 Architects' and builders' pocket-book. Kidder, F. E. (My '16)

Architectural drawing

- French, T: E., and Ives, F: W. Agricultural drawing and the design of farm structures. (Ag '16)

Architecture

- Bennett, T: P. Relation of sculpture to architecture. (O '16)
 Hamlin, T. F. Enjoyment of architecture. (F '17)
 Kidder, F. E. Architects' and builders' pocket-book. (My '16)

Architecture, Colonial

- Chandler, J. E. Colonial house. (Ap '16)
 Seabury, J. S. New homes under old roofs. (O '16)

Architecture, Domestic

- Comstock, W: P., comp. Bungalows, camps and mountain houses. (Ap '16)

- French, T: E., and Ives, F: W. Agricultural drawing and the design of farm structures. (Ag '16)

- Garden City company of California, Los Angeles. Ideal homes in garden communities. (Ag '16)

- Seabury, J. S. New homes under old roofs. (O '16)

- Wright, R. L. Low cost suburban homes. (O '16)

Architecture, Ecclesiastical. See Church architectureArchitecture, Egyptian

- Bell, E: Architecture of ancient Egypt. (Ap '16)

Architecture, Gothic

- Cram, R. A. Gothic quest. (S '16)
 Jackson, T: G. Gothic architecture in France, England, and Italy. (Je '16)

- Architecture and the gardens of the San Diego exposition. (D '16)

Arctic exploration

- Alexander, P. F: North-west and North-east passages. (O '16)
 Bartlett, R. A., and Hale, R. T. Last voyage of the Karluk. (Ja '17)

Argentina

- Ross, G. Argentina, and Uruguay. (Ja '17)
 Aristodemocracy. Waldstein, Sir C: (S '16)

Arithmetic

- Collins, A. F: Short cuts in figures. (F '17)
 Armenian poems. Blackwell, A. S., tr. (F '17)

Armenian question

- Gibbons, H. A. Blackest page in modern history. (Ap '16)

- Arms and the boy. Gignilliat, L. R. (N '16)

- Arms and the map. Hannah, I. C. (Ap '16)

- Army ballads. Garrett, E. C. (S '16)

- Army of the people. Palmer, J: M. (Mr '16)

Art

- Brinton, C. Impressions of the art of the Panama-Pacific exposition. (Ap '16)
 Carus, P. Venus of Milo. (Ag '16)
 Mather, F. J., jr. Estimates in art. (Je '16)
 Phillips, L. M. Form and colour. (My '16)
 Tilney, F: C. Appeal of the picture. (Je '16)

England

- Brown, G. B. Arts in early England. (S '16)

New York (city)

- Levy, F. N., ed. Guide to the works of art in New York city. (Ja '17)

Art, American

- American art annual. (My '16)
 Gallatin, A. E. Certain contemporaries. (Ja '17)

Art, Chinese

- Tredwell, W. V. R. Chinese art motives interpreted. (Jl '16)

Art, Japanese

- Anesaki, M. Buddhist art in its relation to Buddhist ideals. (Mr '16)

Art, Primitive

- Parkyn, E. A. Introduction to the study of prehistoric art. (Mr '16)

Art, Roman

- Strong, E. Apotheosis and after life. (O '16)

Art, Russian

- Benois, A. N. Russian school of painting. (F '17)
 Newmarch, R. H. Russian arts. (D '16)

Art (vorticism)

- Found, E. L. Gaudier-Brzeska. (S '16)
 Art in dress. Bolmar, L., and McNutt, K. (F '17)

- Art of ballet. Perugini, M. E. (Ag '16)

- Art of interior decoration. Wood, G., and Burbank, E. (Ja '17)

- Art of living long. Cornaro, L. (S '16)

- Art of looking at pictures. Thurston, C. H. P. (Ja '17)

- Art of polychromatic and decorative turning. Audsley, G: A. and B. (F '17)

Artillery

- Hime, H: W: L. Origin of artillery. (Je '16)
 Artistic anatomy of trees. Cole, R. V. (Ap '16)

- Artistic and decorative stencilling. Audsley, G: A. and B. (F '17)

Artists

Lee, J. Unfinished portraits. (D '16)

Artists, American

Gallatin, A. E. Certain contemporaries. (Ja '17)

Artists and thinkers. Flaccus, L: W: (My '16)

Arts and crafts

Brown, G. B. Arts in early England. (S '16)
Eberlein, H. D., and McClure, A. Practical book of early American arts and crafts. (F '17)

Asbury, Francis, 1745-1816

Tipple, E. S. Francis Asbury, the prophet of the long road. (My '16)

Ashton, Thomas, 1716-1775

Correspondence. See Toynbee, P. J., ed.

Asia

Allen, N. B. Geographical and industrial studies; Asia. (Jl '16)

Description and travel

Graham, S. Through Russian Central Asia. (S '16)

Hubbard, G. E. From the Gulf to Ararat. (F '17)

Official guide to eastern Asia. (N '16)

Warfield, W: Gate of Asia. (Ag '16)

Intellectual life

Eddy, G: S. Students of Asia. (My '16)

Aspects of the infinite mystery. Gordon, G: A. (D '16)

Assault. Wile, F: W: (Ap '16)

Astell, Mary, 1666-1731

Smith, F. M. Mary Astell. (Ja '17)

Astrology

Craig, K. T. Stars of destiny. (Jl '16)

At school in the promised land. Antin, M. (Je '16)

At the door of the gate. Reid, F. (Ap '16)

At the war. Northcliffe, A. C: W: H., 1st baron. (Ja '17)

Athenæum subject index to periodicals, 1915. (F '17)

Athletics

Bancroft, J. H., and Pulvermacher, W: D. Handbook of athletic games for players, instructors, and spectators. (Mr '16)

Atlantic classics. Atlantic Monthly. (N '16)

Atlases

Robertson, C: G., and Bartholomew, J: G. Historical atlas of modern Europe from 1789 to 1914. (Je '16)

Smith, G: A., ed. Atlas of the historical geography of the Holy Land. (Ag '16)

Atoms

Erwin, M. Universe and the atom. (S '16)

Auction bridge

Ehlermann, C., jr. Neglected points of auction bridge. (Jl '16)

Foster, R. F: Auction bridge for all. (Jl '16)

Irwin, F. Complete auction player. (F '17)

Montgomery, G. G. C. Modern auction in ten lessons. (Je '16)

Shepard, E. V. Expert auction. (O '16)

Williams, T. Royal auction bridge. (My '16)

Auditing

Montgomery, R. H. Auditing, theory and practice. (S '16)

AustriaCourt and courtiers

Recollections of a royal governess. (O '16)

Ryan, N. My years at the Austrian court. (Mr '16)

Politics and government

Seton-Watson, R. W: German, Slav, and Magyar. (O '16)

Authentic history of the United States steel corporation. Cotter, A. (Jl '16)

Authors, American

Clarke, E. L. American men of letters. (O '16)

Fitch, G: H. Great spiritual writers of America. (N '16)

Spofford, H. E. Little book of friends. (D '16)

Authorship

Kane, W: R., comp. "1001 places to sell manuscripts." (Ap '16)

Phillips, H. A. Universal plot catalogue. (Je '16)

Quiller-Couch, A. T: On the art of writing. (Je '16)

Auto-biography. Peple, E: H: (Mr '16)

Autobiography and letters. Vassar, M. (O '16)

Automobile driving

Verrill, A. H. A-B-C of automobile driving. (Je '16)

Automobiles

Arnold, H. L., and Faurote, F. L. Ford methods and the Ford shops. (Ap '16)

Brookes, L. E. Automobile handbook. (O '16)

Duryea, C: E., and Homans, J. E: Automobile book. (Ap '16)

Hall, M. A., and Cravens, G: W. Automobile driving and repairs. (F '17)

Hayward, C: B. Automobile ignition, starting, and lighting. (F '17)

Homans, J. E: Homans' automobile handbook. (O '16)

Page, V: W. Automobile repairing made easy. (Je '16)

Page, V: W. Starting, lighting and ignition systems. (Ag '16)

Touring

Baker, L: H. Favorite motor ways of New England. (Je '16)

Gladding, E. P. Across the continent by the Lincoln highway. (My '16)

Hale, L. C. We discover the Old Dominion. (Ja '17)

Post, E. By motor to the Golden Gate. (Ag '16)

Scarborough's official tour book, 1916. (O '16)

Wood, R. K. Tourist's northwest. (Jl '16)

Average woman. Bank, W. D., pseud. (D '16)

Avoidance of fires. Weeks, A. D. (O '16)

Awake! U. S. A. Freeman, W., pseud. (Jl '16)

Awakening of business. Hurley, E: N. (F '17)

Babette. Smith, F. B. (My '16)

Baby of the frontier. Brady, C. T. (Mr '16)

Backward children

Holmes, A. Backward children. (Ap '16)

Backwash of war. La Motte, E. N. (N '16)

Baldy of Nome. Darling, E. B. (D '16)

Balkan states

Bailey, W: F: Slavs of the war zone. (O '16)

Courtney, L. H: C., baron, ed. Nationalism and war in the Near East. (Ap '16)

Forbes, N., and others. Balkans. (Jl '16)

Gordon, W. Woman in the Balkans. (N '16)

Ballads

Firth, C: H., ed. American garland. (My '16)

Ballads. Scollard, C. (F '17)

Ballads of battle. Lee, J. (F '17)

Banks and banking

Fowler, C: N. National issues of 1916. (My '16)

Moulton, H. G. Principles of money and banking. (D '16)

Scott, W: A. Money and banking. (D '16)

Willis, H: P. American banking. (Ag '16)

Banner of the bull. Sabatini, R. (Mr '16)

Banner of the white horse. Case, C. M. (N '16)

Bantus

Roscoe, J: Northern Bantu. (Ap '16)

Barnacles. Hay, J. M. (D '16)

Barnave, Antoine Pierre Joseph Marie, 1761-1793

Bradby, E. D. Life of Barnave. (My '16)

Bars of iron. Dell, E. M. (Je '16)

Barstow, Mrs. Montagu. See Orczy, E.

Baseball

Berry, E. Baseball notes for coaches and players. (Je '16)

Basketwork

Gill, A. A. Practical basketry. (F '17)

Bathing-man. Gwynne, A. (Ja '17)

Battery flashes. "Wagger," pseud. (N '16)

Battle. Gibson, W. W. (My '16)

Battle hymn of the republic

Hall, F. M. Story of the Battle hymn of the republic. (Ja '17)

Battle months of George Daurella. Dix, B. M. (Jl '16)

Beaconsfield, Benjamin Disraeli, 1st earl of, 1804-1881

Monypenny, W. F., and Buckle, G. E., eds. Life of Benjamin Disraeli, earl of Beaconsfield. (S '16)

Beasts of Tarzan. Burroughs, E. R. (My '16)

Because I am a German. Fernau, H. (Jl '16)

Beer, iron and wine. Lalt, J. (D '16)

Bees

Nelson, J. A. Embryology of the honey bee. (Je '16)

Pellet, F. C. Productive bee-keeping. (Ag '16)

Before, during, and after 1914. Nyström, A. K. (Jl '16)

Beggars on horseback. Jesse, F. T. (My '16)

Beginner's psychology. Titchener, E. B. (Je '16)

Beginning right. Fowler, N. C., jr. (Je '16)

Beginnings of Yale (1701-1726). Oviatt, E. (F '17)

Behind the bolted door? McFarlane, A. E. (Ap '16)

Behold the woman! Harré, T. E. (Je '16)

Being well-born. Guyer, M. F. (My '16)

Belfry. Sinclair, M. (Mr '16)

Belgians under the German eagle. Massart, J. (O '16)

Belgium

Book of Belgium's gratitude. (Ap '16)

Maeterlinck, M. Wrack of the storm. (N '16)

Description and travel

Edwards, G. W. Vanished towers and chimes of Flanders. (F '17)

Stokes, H. Belgium. (D '16)

History

Massart, J. Belgians under the German eagle. (O '16)

Stokes, H. Belgium. (D '16)

Neutrality

Davignon, H., comp. Belgium and Germany. (Jl '16)

Grondys, L. H. Germans in Belgium. (Je '16)

Labberton, J. H. Belgium and Germany. (Jl '16)

Visscher, C. de. Belgium's case. (F '17)

Waxweiler, E. Belgium and the great powers. (D '16)

Belle Jones. Meacham, A. (F '17)

Beloved physician: Edward Livingston Trudeau. Chalmers, S. (Mr '16)

Beloved son. Johnson, F. W. (D '16)

Beloved traitor. Packard, F. L. (Ap '16)

Belting

Kent, R. T. Power transmission by leather belting. (F '17)

Benighted Mexico. Smith, R. W. (O '16)

Benson, Robert Hugh, 1871-1914

Martindale, C. C. Life of Monsignor Robert Hugh Benson. (Jl '16)

Bergson, Henri Louis, 1859-

Cunningham, G. W. Study in the philosophy of Bergson. (D '16)

Miller, L. H. Bergson and religion. (S '16)

Bernard of Clairvaux, Saint, 1091?-1153

Bernard, St. Book of St. Bernard on the love of God. (O '16)

Best short stories of 1915. O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. (Jl '16)

Better man. Chambers, R. W. (My '16)

Betty at Fort Blizzard. Seawell, M. E. (F '17)

Betty Grier. Waugh, J. L. (S '16)

Between St. Dennis and St. George. Hueffer, F. M. (My '16)

Between two worlds. Curtiss, P. E. (D '16)

Beverages

Wiley, H. W. 1001 tests of foods, beverages and toilet accessories. (F '17)

Bible. Whole

Selections

Keeler, H. L., and Wild, L. H. Ethical readings from the Bible. (Je '16)

About the Bible

Brookshire, E. V. Law of human life. (S '16)

Canton, W. Bible story. (My '16)

Eckman, G. P. Literary primacy of the Bible. (Je '16)

Antiquities

Barton, G. A. Archæology and the Bible. (Ja '17)

History, Literary

Stock, E. Story of the Bible. (Je '16)

Societies

Dwight, H. O. Centennial history of the American Bible society. (Je '16)

Bible. Old Testament

Selections

Crafts, W. F., ed. Bible stories and poems. (My '16)

Howard, M., comp. "Truly stories from the surely Bible." (S '16)

Olcott, F. J., ed. Bible stories to read and tell. (F '17)

Smith, N. A. Old, old tales from the old, old Book. (F '17)

About the Old Testament

History

Peritz, I. J. Old Testament history. (Mr '16)

Parts of the old Testament

Pentateuch

Elselen, F. C. Books of the Pentateuch. (F '17)

Genesis

Patton, W. M. Israel's account of the beginnings. (D '16)

Bible. New Testament

Texts

Courtney, W. L. Literary man's New Testament. (O '16)

About the New Testament

Study and teaching

Goodspeed, E. J. Story of the New Testament. (F '17)

Parts of the New Testament

Gospels

Jacobus, M. W. Commentary on the Gospel according to Mark. (Ag '16)

Patton, C. S. Sources of the synoptic Gospels. (Je '16)

Epistles

Kent, C. F. Work and teachings of the Apostles. (Je '16)

Plummer, A. Critical and exegetical commentary on the Second epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians. (Je '16)

Ropes, J. H. Critical and exegetical commentary on the Epistle of St. James. (Jl '16)

Acts

Sitterly, C. F. Jerusalem to Rome. (Mr '16)

Bibliographies

Bacon, C., comp. Children's catalog of one thousand books. (N '16)

Ball, S. B., comp. 1600 business books. (Jl '16)

Brown, S. J. Ireland in fiction. (Ap '16)

Goldsmith, P. H. Brief bibliography of books in English, Spanish and Portuguese, relating to the republics commonly called Latin American. (My '16)

Griffin, G. G., comp. Writings on American history, 1914. (O '16)

Kimball, T. Classified selected list of references on city planning. (O '16)

Lange, F. W. T., and Barry, W. T. Books on the great war. (My '16)

Meyer, H. H. B. Brief guide to the literature of Shakespeare. (My '16)

New York. State library. Albany. List of books for prison libraries. (Jl '16)

Powys, J. C. One hundred best books. (Ag '16)

Yale university. Library. List of newspapers in the Yale university library. (S '16)

Big timber. Sinclair, B. W. (O '16)

Bildad the quill-driver. Caine, W. (Mr '16)

Billy Topsail. Duncan, N. (N '16)

Binding of books. Horne, H. P. (Ja '17)

Biography

- Bradford, G., jr. Portraits of women. (D '16)
 Bradford, G., jr. Union portraits. (Jl '16)
 Davies, R. Six centuries of painting. (Ap '16)
 Gardiner, A. G. Pillars of society. (F '17)
 Hamilton, A. M. Recollections of an alienist. (Ja '17)
 Russell, G. W. E. Portraits of the 'seventies. (Ja '17)
 Spofford, H. E. Little book of friends. (D '16)
 Stimpson, M. S. Child's book of English biography. (N '16)
 Wade, M. H. Pilgrims of to-day. (N '16)
 Watts-Dunton, T. Old familiar faces. (Ap '16)
 Young, J. P. Journalism in California. (Jl '16)

Dictionaries

- American art annual. (My '16)
 Hyamson, A. M. Dictionary of universal biography of all ages and of all peoples. (My '16)
 Bird house man. Eaton, W. P. (O '16)
 Bird of time. Naidu, S. (O '16)

Birds

- Ball, A. E. Year with the birds. (S '16)
 Chapman, F. M. Travels of birds. (S '16)
 Hudson, W. H. Adventures among birds. (Je '16)
 Hudson, W. H. Birds and man. (Ag '16)
 Ladd, N. M. How to make friends with birds. (F '17)
 Trafton, G. H. Bird friends. (N '16)

Birmingham, George A., pseud. See Hannay, J. O.

- Black and white in the southern states. Evans, M. S. (Ap '16)
 Black Eagle mystery. Bonner, G. (My '16)
 Black sheep. Mackenzie, J. K. (Ag '16)
 Blackest page of modern history. Gibbons, H. A. (Ap '16)
 Blackfeet tales of Glacier national park. Schultz, J. W. (Jl '16)

- Blake, William, 1757-1827
 Gardner, C. Vision and vesture. (S '16)
 Blind man's eyes. MacHarg, W., and Balmer, E. (Ap '16)
 Blind sight. Benediall, B. Y. (Mr '16)
 Blinded soldiers and sailors gift book. Goodchild, G., ed. (Mr '16)
 Blithe McBride. Dix, B. M. (D '16)

BloodCirculation

- Curtis, J. G. Harvey's views on the use of the circulation of the blood. (O '16)
 Blood and iron. McNair, W. (O '16)
 Bloom of youth. Gilman, D. F. (Mr '16)
 Blossomy Cottage. Perry, M. (Je '16)
 Blow the man down. Day, H. F. (S '16)
 Blue-china book. Camehl, A. W. (F '17)

Boat building

- Patterson, H. W. Small boat building. (S '16)

Boats and boating

- Sterling, F. W. Small boat navigation. (Ag '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Book of the motor boat. (O '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Book of the sailboat. (O '16)
 Bobby of the Labrador. Wallace, D. (F '17)
 Bodbank. Child, R. W. (N '16)
 Body and spirit. Quackenbush, J. D. (Ag '16)
 Body builder: Robert J. Roberts. Brink, B. D. (F '17)

Bogue, Mrs. Arthur Hoyt. See Bell, L. L.

Bonds

- Raymond, W. L. American and foreign investment bonds. (Ag '16)

Boniface, St., 680-755

- Willibald. Life of Saint Boniface. (Ag '16)
 Bonnie May. Dodge, L. (O '16)
 Bonnie Scotland and what we owe her. Griffiths, W. E. (F '17)

- Book about the theater. Matthews, B. (N '16)
 Book for Shakespeare plays and pageants. Hatcher, O. L. (Jl '16)

- Book-lover's holidays in the open. Roosevelt, T. (Ap '16)

- Book of Boston. Shackleton, R. (F '17)
 Book of electricity. Collins, A. F. (F '17)

- Book of English literature. Snyder, F. B., and Martin, R. G., eds. (Ap '16)

- Book of forestry. Moon, F. F. (F '17)
 Book of garden plans. Hamblin, S. F. (Ja '17)
 Book of homage to Shakespeare. Gollancz, I., ed. (S '16)

- Book of Italy. Piccoli, R., ed. (F '17)
 Book of Princeton verse, 1916. Noyes, A., ed. (S '16)

- Book of progress. Hopkins, A. A., ed. (Je '16)
 Book of public arms. Fox-Davies, A. C. (Ag '16)

- Book of St. Bernard on the love of God. Bernard, St. (O '16)

- Book of the homeless. Wharton, E. N., ed. (Mr '16)

- Book of the motor boat. Verrill, A. H. (O '16)
 Book of the sailboat. Verrill, A. H. (O '16)

- Book of the Yale pageant. Nettleton, G. H., ed. (D '16)

- Book of Winifred Maynard. Maynard, W., pseud. (F '17)

Bookbinding

- Bailey, A. L. Library bookbinding. (Je '16)
 Horne, H. P. Binding of books. (Ja '17)
 Booklover and his books. Koopman, H. L. (Ja '17)

Bookplates

- Ward, H. P. Some American college bookplates. (Ap '16)

- Books and libraries. Lowe, J. A. (F '17)

Books and reading

- Ingersoll, R. S. Open that door! (D '16)
 Kerfoot, J. B. How to read. (F '17)
 Koopman, H. L. Booklover and his books. (Ja '17)
 Powys, J. C. One hundred best books. (Ag '16)

Books for boys and girls

- Adams, H. M. When mother lets us model. (Ag '16)
 Adams, J. D. When mother lets us carpenter. (O '16)

- Allen, C. S. Chimney corner tales. (Ja '17)
 Allen, N. B. Geographical and industrial studies; Asia. (Jl '16)

- Allies' fairy book. (Ja '17)
 Altsheuler, J. A. Shades of the Wilderness. (Jl '16)

- Ashmun, M. E. Isabel Carleton's year. (N '16)

- Balch, E. B. Amateur circus life. (F '17)
 Banks, H. W. Boys' Prescott. (N '16)

- Barstow, C. L. Famous sculpture. (F '17)
 Bassett, S. W. Story of glass. (F '17)

- Bates, K. L. Fairy gold. (Ja '17)
 Beard, E. P. Jolly book of playcraft. (D '16)

- Bengston, N. A., and Griffith, D. Wheat industry. (My '16)

- Bond, A. R. On the battle front of engineering. (D '16)

- Booth, H. Toys and things. (N '16)

- Bowsfield, C. C. How boys and girls can earn money. (D '16)

- Brown, E. A. Archer and the "Prophet." (N '16)

- Browne, B. Quest of the Golden Valley. (D '16)

- Bryant, S. C. Stories to tell the little ones. (Ja '17)

- Burrill, E. W. Master Skylark. (Ap '16)
 Burritt, E. C., pseud. Boy scout Crusoes. (F '17)

- Camp, W. C. Danny, the freshman. (Je '16)
 Case, C. M. Banner of the white horse. (N '16)

- Cather, K. D. Boyhood stories of famous men. (N '16)

- Chase, M. E. Girl from the Big Horn country. (Je '16)

- Chatterton, E. K. Daring deeds of famous pirates. (F '17)

- Clark, H. H. Midshipman Stanford. (S '16)
 Collins, A. F. Book of electricity. (F '17)

- Collmann, S. M. Tales from the Old world and the New. (F '17)

- Colum, P. King of Ireland's son. (Ja '17)
 Coombs, L. U. S. Grant. (My '16)

- Coussens, P. W. Ruby story book. (D '16)
 Crow, M. Lafayette. (N '16)

- Crump, I. E. Boys' book of firemen. (N '16)
 Darling, E. B. Baldy of Nome. (D '16)

- Davison, G. L. Games and parties for children. (N '16)

- Delano, E. B. June. (N '16)
 Dix, B. M. Blithe McBride. (D '16)
 Dixon, E., ed. Fairy tales from the Arabian nights. (My '16)
 Duncan, N. Billy Topsail. (N '16)
 Eaton, W. P. Peanut-cub reporter. (F '17)
 Faris, J. T. Real stories from our history. (N '16)
 Finn, F. J. Cupid of Campion. (F '17)
 Fletcher, A. C. Indian games and dances with native songs. (Ag '16)
 Forbes, E. E., comp. Favourites of a nursery of seventy years ago. (D '16)
 Forbush, W. B. Young folks' book of ideals. (Ja '17)
 Foster, E. A., ed. Something to do,—boys! (D '16)
 Fryer, J. Mary Frances garden book. (My '16)
 Gaines, R. L. Treasure Flower. (Ja '17)
 Garland, J., pseud. Ross Grant, gold hunter. (N '16)
 Garnett, L. Master Will of Stratford. (Ap '16)
 Gilbert, H. Boys' book of pirates. (F '17)
 Graham, K., ed. Cambridge book of poetry for children. (S '16)
 Gregor, E. R. War path and hunting trail. (S '16)
 Gregory, Lady I. A. Golden apple. (D '16)
 Gulliver, L. Daniel Boone. (Ag '16)
 Hall, A. N., and Perkins, D. Handicraft for handy girls. (F '17)
 Harris, G. Trail of the pearl. (N '16)
 Harvey, G. C. Famous four-footed friends. (F '17)
 Hendryx, J. B. Connie Morgan in Alaska. (D '16)
 Herdman, M. L. Story of the United States. (Ja '17)
 Holland, R. S. Historic events of colonial days. (D '16)
 Hood, G. W. Practical school and home gardens. (F '17)
 Howard, M., comp. "Truly stories from the surely Bible." (S '16)
 Huerton, E. Prudence says so. (S '16)
 Hunt, C. W. About Harriet. (D '16)
 Ives, S. N. Key to Betsy's heart. (D '16)
 Jacobs, J. Europa's fairy book. (Mr '16)
 Johnston, C. H. L. Our little Viking cousin of long ago. (F '17)
 Judson, K. B. Early days in old Oregon. (S '16)
 Knipe, E. and A. A. Polly Trotter, patriot. (D '16)
 Knott, L. A. Vesper talks to girls. (Je '16)
 Lloyd, E. M. Tom Anderson, dare-devil. (F '17)
 McDonald, E. A. Chandra in India. (F '17)
 Mackenzie, D. A. Indian fairy tales. (Ag '16)
 McLaren, J. M., and Harvey, E. M. Hänsel and Gretel. (Jl '16)
 Malot, H. H. Nobody's boy. (Ja '17)
 Martin, G. M. Warwickshire lad. (Je '16)
 Marvin, E. Mary Allen. (Je '16)
 Marzials, A. M. Stories for the story hour from January to December. (N '16)
 Mathewson, C. First base Faulkner. (Je '16)
 Meigs, C. Master Simon's garden. (D '16)
 Meigs, C. Steadfast princess. (Ap '16)
 Merington, M. Fairy tale plays. (F '17)
 Mikels, R. M. R., ed. Short stories for high schools. (Je '16)
 Miller, W. H. Boy's book of hunting and fishing. (Ag '16)
 Molesworth, M. L. Edmée. (F '17)
 Moon, F. F. Book of forestry. (F '17)
 Morris, W. Stories from the earthly paradise. (Je '16)
 Munn, C. C. Camp Castaway. (Ag '16)
 Newbolt, Sir H. J. Tales of the great war. (F '17)
 Paget, S. Essays for boys and girls. (Ap '16)
 Paine, A. B. Hollow tree nights and days. (Ja '17)
 Perkins, L. F. Cave twins. (F '17)
 Perry, L. Full back. (F '17)
 Poast, F. M. Indian names, facts and games for Camp fire girls. (F '17)
 Porter, E. H. Six Star ranch. (N '16)
 Porter, G. Morning Face. (Ja '17)
 Poulsso, E. and L. E., trs. Top-of-the-world stories for boys and girls. (Ja '17)
 Pritchard, M. T., and Turkington, G. A. Stories of thrift for young Americans. (Mr '16)
 Pyle, K. Wonder tales retold. (D '16)
 Quirk, L. W. Ice-boat Number one. (Ag '16)
 Rhoades, C. H. Independence of Nan. (N '16)
 Rolt-Wheeler, F. Monster-hunters. (Ag '16)
 Roy, L. E. Woodcraft girls at camp. (F '17)
 St. Nicholas book of plays and operettas; second series. (N '16)
 Schoolcraft, H. R. Indian fairy book. (Ja '17)
 Schultz, J. W. Apauk, caller of buffalo. (N '16)
 Seaman, A. H. Sapphire signet. (N '16)
 Seton, E. T. Wild animal ways. (Jl '16)
 Smith, M. P. Three in a camp. (F '17)
 Sneath, E. H., and others. King's highway series. (F '17)
 Snell, R. J. Little white fox and his Arctic friends. (N '16)
 Stevenson, A. Dramatized scenes from American history. (Mr '16)
 Stewart, M. Tell me a hero story. (Ja '17)
 Stimpson, M. S. Child's book of English biography. (N '16)
 Stock, E. Story of the Bible. (Je '16)
 Stoddard, W. O., jr. Farm that Jack built. (Je '16)
 Stoddard, W. O., jr. Making good in the village. (D '16)
 Stout, W. B. Boy's book of mechanical models. (N '16)
 Taggart, M. A. Hollyhock house. (Je '16)
 Thayer, E. R. L. When mother lets us draw. (F '17)
 Thompson, D. V., ed. British verse for boys. (N '16)
 Tomlinson, E. T. Places young Americans want to know. (Mr '16)
 Tomlinson, E. T. Scouting with Kit Carson. (D '16)
 Valzey, J. College girl. (N '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Golden city. (N '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Marooned in the forest. (Ag '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Ocean and its mysteries. (Jl '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Real story of the whaler. (My '16)
 Wallace, D. Bobby of the Labrador. (F '17)
 Watson, V. C. Princess Pocahontas. (F '17)
 Whipple, W. Story of young Abraham Lincoln. (My '16)
 Whipple, W. Story of young George Washington. (My '16)
 Wilson, R. Russian story book. (F '17)
 Winterburn, F. M. Liberty Hall. (N '16)
See also Fiction—Stories for boys and girls
 Books of the Pentateuch. Eiselen, F. C. (F '17)
 Books on the great war. Lange, F. W. T., and Barry, W. T. (My '16)
 Boone, Daniel, 1734-1820
 Gulliver, L. Daniel Boone. (Ag '16)
 Border legion. Grey, Z. (Ag '16)
 Borderer. Eng title of Johnstone of the border. Bindloss, H. (O '16)
 Borst, Mrs. Theodore Franz. See Bryant, S. C.
Boston
Biography
 Lawrence, R. M. Site of Saint Paul's cathedral, Boston and its neighborhood. (Ja '17)
Description
 Shackleton, R. Book of Boston. (F '17)
Harbor
 Clapp, E. J. Port of Boston. (S '16)
Social conditions
 Dorion, E. C. E. Redemption of the South End. (Mr '16)
Streets
 Lawrence, R. M. Site of Saint Paul's cathedral, Boston and its neighborhood. (Ja '17)
Botany
 Keeler, H. L. Our early wild flowers. (Ap '16)
 Macbride, T. H. On the campus. (D '16)
 Piper, C. V., and Beattie, R. K. Flora of the northwest coast. (Ag '16)

- Botha, Louis, 1862-
 Ritchie, M. With Botha in the field. (My '16)
 Spender, H. General Botha. (O '16)
 Bottle-fillers. Noble, E. (Mr '16)
- Boufflers, Stanislas, marquis de, 1738-1815
 Webster, N. H. Chevalier de Boufflers. (N '16)
- Boxers
 Clements, P. H. Boxer rebellion. (My '16)
- Boxing
 Brady, W. A. Fighting man. (D '16)
 Boy scout Crusoes. Burritt, E. C., pseud. (F '17)
 Boy stories. Kipling, R. (Jl '16)
 Boy with the U. S. mail. Rolt-Wheeler, F. W. (Ja '17)
- Boycott
 Wolman, L. Boycott in American trade unions. (Jl '16)
 Boyhood of a naturalist. Muir, J. (N '16)
 Boyhood stories of famous men. Cather, K. D. (N '16)
 Boyology. Gibson, H. W. (Ja '17)
- Boys
 Bunker, M. N. Physical training for boys. (N '16)
 Gibson, H. W. Boyology. (Ja '17)
 Puller, E. S. Your boy and his training. (O '16)
 Boys and girls in commercial work. Stevens, B. M. (My '16)
 Boys' book of firemen. Crump, I. E. (N '16)
 Boys' book of hunting and fishing. Miller, W. H. (Ag '16)
 Boy's book of mechanical models. Stout, W. B. (N '16)
 Boys' book of pirates. Gilbert, H. (F '17)
 Boys' life of Mark Twain. Paine, A. B. (D '16)
 Boys' Prescott. Banks, H. W. (N '16)
 Breath of the dragon. Fitch, A. H. (Ja '17)
 Breathe and be well. Howard, W. L. (S '16)
 Breeds of live-stock. Gay, C. W., ed. (N '16)
 Bride of a moment. Wells, C. (O '16)
 Bridge of desire. Deeping, W. (Je '16)
- Bridges
 Hool, G. A. Reinforced concrete construction. (Je '16)
 Waddell, J. A. L. Bridge engineering. (Ja '17)
- Brief bibliography of books in English, Spanish and Portuguese, relating to the republics commonly called Latin American. Goldsmith, P. H. (My '16)
- Brief guide to the literature of Shakespeare. Meyer, H. H. B. (My '16)
- Brief history of Poland. Orvis, J. S. (F '17)
- Briefs
 Maxcy, C. L. Brief. (S '16)
- Bright eyes of danger. Foster, J. (O '16)
- British coal trade. Jevons, H. S. (Je '16)
- British empire
 Military history
 Wood, Sir E. Our fighting services. (S '16)
- British Guiana
 Verrill, A. H. Jungle chums. (D '16)
 British verse for boys. Thompson, D. V., ed. (N '16)
- Brittany
 Vagabond voyage through Brittany. Chase, Mrs. L. (Mr '16)
- Brokerage accounts. Todman, F. S. (F '17)
- Brontë, Charlotte, 1816-1855
 Goldring, M. Charlotte Brontë, the woman. (My '16)
- Brook Kerith. Moore, G. (O '16)
- Brown mare. Ollivant, A. (D '16)
- Browning, Robert, 1812-1889
 Harrington, V. C. Browning studies. (Mr '16)
- Buddhism
 Anesaki, M. Buddhist art in its relation to Buddhist ideals. (Mr '16)
 Coomaraswamy, A. K. Buddha and the gospel of Buddhism. (F '17)
 Buddhist art in its relation to Buddhist ideals. Anesaki, M. (Mr '16)
 Budget of paradoxes. De Morgan, A. (Ap '16)
 Buffoon. Wilkinson, L. U. (Ja '17)
- Building
 Kidder, F. E. Architects' and builders' pocket-book. (My '16)
 Shaw, F. L. Building trades. (My '16)
- Building laws
 Blake, C. H., jr. Law of architecture and building. (S '16)
- Building materials
 Burr, W. H. Elasticity and resistance of the materials of engineering. (Ap '16)
 Upton, G. B. Structure and properties of the more common materials of construction. (Je '16)
- Bungalows
 Comstock, W. P., comp. Bungalows, camps and mountain houses. (Ap '16)
- Business books
 Allen, F. J. Business employments. (Jl '16)
 Allen, I. R. Personal efficiency, applied salesmanship and sales administration. (My '16)
 Am. assn. of public accountants. Year book, 1915. (Ap '16)
 Ball, S. B., comp. 1600 business books. (Jl '16)
 Bamburgh, W. C. Talks on business correspondence. (O '16)
 Belding, A. G. Accounts and accounting practice. (Ag '16)
 Blanton, B. H. Credit. (Ap '16)
 Bolton, R. P. Power for profit; principles governing the use of machinery and labor in modern buildings. (Ag '16)
 Brisco, N. A. Fundamentals of salesmanship. (N '16)
 Cherington, P. T. Advertising book, 1916. (My '16)
 De Weese, T. A. Keeping a dollar at work. (Mr '16)
 Fisk, J. W. Retail selling. (O '16)
 Gahagen, W. R. How to conduct the real estate, insurance and general brokerage business. (Ag '16)
 Gantt, H. L. Industrial leadership. (Je '16)
 Gardner, E. H. Effective business letters. (Je '16)
 Gilbreth, F. B. and L. E. M. Fatigue study. (Ag '16)
 Guenther, L. Investment and speculation. (S '16)
 Hammond, H. W., and Herzberg, M. J. Style-book of business English. (Je '16)
 Hess, H. W. Productive advertising. (Ap '16)
 Hough, B. O. Practical exporting. (Je '16)
 Hudders, E. R. Indexing and filing. (Ap '16)
 Hurley, E. N. Awakening of business. (F '17)
 Kearney, L. C. What every business man should know. (F '17)
 Kearney, L. C. What every business woman should know. (S '16)
 Kilduff, E. J. Private secretary. (O '16)
 Marden, O. S., and MacGrail, J. F. Selling things. (D '16)
 Melberg, P. L. How to sell real estate. (Ag '16)
 Montgomery, R. H. Auditing, theory and practice. (S '16)
 Münsterberg, H. Business psychology. (My '16)
 Nystrom, P. H. Economics of retailing. (Ag '16)
 Raymond, W. L. American and foreign investment bonds. (Ag '16)
 Sales promotion by mail. (F '17)
 Sellers, E. A. Principles of depreciation. (O '16)
 Shaw, A. W. Approach to business problems. (F '17)
 Sherbow, B. Making type work. (Ag '16)
 Skinner, E. M., and others. Credits and collections. (O '16)
 Smart, W. K., ed. How to write business letters. (Jl '16)
 Smith, J. R. Elements of industrial management. (S '16)
 Spencer, E. L. Efficient secretary. (My '16)
 Willis, H. P. American banking. (Ag '16)
- Business education
 O'Leary, I. P. Department store occupations. (My '16)
 Stevens, B. M. Boys and girls in commercial work. (My '16)
 Business of being a friend. Condé, B. (S '16)

Business of government: municipal. Sparks, F. M. (Je '16)

Butler, Samuel, 1835-1902

Cannan, G. Samuel Butler. (S '16)

Harris, J. F. Samuel Butler. (O '16)

Butte, Montana

Public schools

Strayer, G. D. Some problems in city school administration. (F '17)

Buying a horse. Howells, W. D. (D '16)

By motor to the firing line. Hale, W. (Je '16)

By motor to the Golden Gate. Post, E. (Ag '16)

Bywonner. Young, F. E. M. (Ag '16)

Cab of the sleeping horse. Scott, J. R. (D '16)

Cabot, Sebastian, 1475-1557

Biddle, R. Memoir of Sebastian Cabot. (Ag '16)

Caged eagle. Sterling, G. (N '16)

Cairns, Kate, pseud. See Boshier, K.

Caliban by the yellow sands. MacKaye, P. (Je '16)

California

Newmark, H. Sixty years in Southern California. (F '17)

Young, J. P. Journalism in California. (Jl '16)

Description and travel

Saunders, C. F. Finding the worth while in California. (F '17)

History

Chapman, C. E. Founding of Spanish California. (D '16)

Californians. Jeffers, J. R. (F '17)

Caliphs' last heritage. Sykes, Sir M. (Je '16)

Callendar steam tables. Callendar, H. L. (My '16)

Cam Clarke. Walsh, J. H. (Ap '16)

Cambridge book of poetry for children. Graham, K., ed. (S '16)

Camera man. Collins, F. A. (D '16)

Camp Castaway. Munn, C. C. (Ag '16)

Camp fire girls

Poast, F. M. Indian names, facts and games for Camp fire girls. (F '17)

Camp fires in the Yukon. Auer, H. A. (My '16)

Campaigns and battles of the Army of northern Virginia. Wise, G. (Ja '17)

Campbell, Gabrielle Margaret Vere. See Bowen, M., pseud.

Camping

Kephart, H. Camping and woodcraft. (F '17)

Miller, W. H. Boys' book of hunting and fishing. (Ag '16)

Canada

Victor, E. A., ed. Canada's future. (F '17)

Army

Aitken, W. M. Canada in Flanders. (Je '16)

Description and travel

Brooke, R. Letters from America. (Mr '16)

Thompson, D. David Thompson's narrative of his explorations in western America, 1784-1812. (F '17)

Wood, R. K. Tourist's northwest. (Jl '16)

History

Campbell, T. J. Pioneer laymen of North America. (Je '16)

Parkman, F. Rivals for America. (Je '16)

Bibliography

Griffin, G. G., comp. Writings on American history, 1914. (O '16)

Statistics

Canadian almanac and miscellaneous directory for the year 1916. (Je '16)

Canadian annual review of public affairs, 1915. (D '16)

Cancer

Hoffman, F. L. Mortality from cancer throughout the world. (N '16)

Canfield, Dorothea Frances. See Fisher, D. F.

Canning and preserving

Bitting, A. W. and K. G. Canning and how to use canned foods. (D '16)

Zavalla, J. P. Canning of fruits and vegetables. (F '17)

Canoeing in the wilderness. Thoreau, H. D. (Jl '16)

Cap'n Gid. Gould, E. L. (Ja '17)

Captain Gardiner of the international police. Allen, R., pseud. (Je '16)

Captain Margaret. Masefield, J. (My '16)

Captain's furniture. Eng. title of A Drake, by George! Trevena, J., pseud. (F '17)

Capture of De Wet. Sampson, P. J. (Je '16)

Carbureters

Browne, A. B. Handbook of carburetion. (Jl '16)

Care and feeding of infants and children. Ramsey, W. R. (F '17)

Carfrae's comedy. Farrish, G. (Mr '16)

Caribbean interests of the United States. Jones, C. L. (O '16)

Caricatures and cartoons

Bishop, J. B. Presidential nominations and elections. (Ag '16)

Cesare, O. E. One hundred cartoons. (Ja '17)

Raemakers, L. Cartoons. (D '16)

Carlton, Robert, pseud. See Hall, B. R.

Carlyle, Thomas, 1795-1881

Kelly, M. Carlyle and the war. (My '16)

Carnival of destiny. Thompson, V. (Je '16)

Carpenter, Edward, 1844-

Carpenter, E. My days and dreams. (O '16)

Lewis, E. Edward Carpenter. (Je '16)

Carpentry

Audsley, G. A. and B. Amateur joinery in the home. (F '17)

Carrillo, E. Gomez-. See Gomez-Carrillo, E.

Carson, Sir Edward Henry, 1854-

Ervine, S. G. Sir Edward Carson and the Ulster movement. (D '16)

Cartoons. Raemaekers, L. (D '16)

Cartridges

Hamilton, D. T. Cartridge manufacture. (S '16)

Casco Bay yarns. Haynes, W. (N '16)

Case for the Filipinos. Kalaw, M. M. (Jl '16)

Case for the shorter work day. Frankfurter, F. (D '16)

Case of John Smith. Bisland, E. (Ag '16)

Castle of cheer. Lerrigo, C. H. (Ag '16)

Casuals of the sea. McFee, W. (N '16)

Cataloging

Mann, M. Subject headings for use in dictionary catalogs of juvenile books. (Mr '16)

Catalogue of technical periodicals. Gates, A. J., comp. (Je '16)

Catalysis

Jobling, E. Catalysis and its industrial applications. (N '16)

Caterpillars

Fabre, J. H. C. Life of the caterpillar. (Ja '17)

Cathedral singer. Allen, J. L. (Ap '16)

Cathedrals

Ditchfield, P. H. Cathedrals of Great Britain. (Ag '16)

Causes and consequences of the war. Guyot, Y. (N '16)

Cave twins. Perkins, L. F. (F '17)

Cavell, Edith, 1865-1915

Protheroe, E. Noble woman. (My '16)

Cecily and the wide world. Corbett, E. F. (D '16)

Cement

Dancaster, E. A. Limes and cements. (Jl '16)

Census of Shakespeare's plays in quarto, 1594-1709. Bartlett, H. C., and Pollard, A. W., eds. (Ag '16)

Centennial history of the American Bible society. Dwight, H. O. (Je '16)

Centrifugal pumps and suction dredgers. Sargent, E. W. (F '17)

Century of the renaissance. Batifol, L. (My '16)

Cerebro-spinal fever. Foster, M., and Gaskell, J. F. (O '16)

Certain contemporaries. Gallatin, A. E. (Ja '17)

Certain hour. Cabell, J. B. (F '17)

Challenge of facts. Sumner, W. G. (F, Ap '16)
 Challenge of the future. Usher, R. G. (Mr '16)
 Chandra in India. McDonald, E. A. (F '17)
 Changes in the food supply and their relation to nutrition. Mendel, L. B. (My '16)
 Chant of love for England. Cone, H. G. (Je '16)

Chapel. Lewis, M. (Jl '16)

Character

Jastrow, J. Character and temperament. (Ap '16)

Charles XII, king of Sweden, 1682-1718

Gade, J. A. Charles the Twelfth, king of Sweden. (F '17)

Chats on old silver. Hayden, A. (S '16)

Chemistry

Attack, F. W., ed. Chemists' year-book, 1916. (Ag '16)

Burton, E. F. Physical properties of colloidal solutions. (O '16)

Chamberlain, J. S. Organic agricultural chemistry. (S '16)

Findlay, A. Chemistry in the service of man. (N '16)

Gooch, F. A. Representative procedures in quantitative chemical analysis. (Jl '16)

Lewis, W. C. M. System of physical chemistry. (D '16)

Martin, G. Modern chemistry and its wonders. (O '16)

Ostwald, C. W. W. Handbook of colloid-chemistry. (Je '16)

Pope, A. E. Physics and chemistry for nurses. (F '17)

Taylor, W. W. Chemistry of colloids and some technical applications. (Jl '16)

Thorp, F. H. Outlines of industrial chemistry. (O '16)

Washburn, E. W. Introduction to the principles of physical chemistry from the standpoint of modern atomistics and thermodynamics. (S '16)

Weed, H. T. Chemistry in the home. (Jl '16)

Chequered cruise. Stock, R. (Ja '17)

Chess

Sergeant, P. W., ed. Morphy's games of chess. (Jl '16)

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith, 1874-

West, J. G. K. Chesterton. (My '16)

Chicago & Alton railroad

Kennan, G. Chicago and Alton case. (O '16)

Chicago. University

Goodspeed, T. W. History of the University of Chicago. (N '16)

Chicago poems. Sandburg, C. (Je '16)

Chief American prose writers. Foerster, N., ed. (Ja '17)

Chief British poets of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. Neilson, W. A., and Webster, K. G. T., eds. (S '16)

Chief European dramatists. Matthews, B., ed. (Je '16)

Child and country. Comfort, W. L. (Je '16)

Child, his nature and nurture. Drummond, W. B. (Ag '16)

Child in human progress. Payne, G. H. (Mr '16)

Child labor legislation in the United States. Sumner, H. L., and Merritt, E. A. (S '16)

Child study

Drummond, W. B. Child, his nature and nurture. (Ag '16)

Forbush, W. B. Child study and child training. (S '16)

Mumford, E. E. R. Dawn of religion in the mind of the child. (Ag '16)

Terman, L. M. Measurement of intelligence. (D '16)

Winch, W. H. Children's perceptions. (My '16)

Child welfare work in Pennsylvania. Slingerland, W. H. (Je '16)

Children

Forbush, W. B. Child study and child training. (S '16)

Hogan, L. E. Diet for children. (Ag '16)

Holmes, A. Backward children. (Ap '16)

Payne, G. H. Child in human progress. (Mr '16)

Care and hygiene

Coolidge, E. L. Home care of sick children. (D '16)

Dresslar, F. B. School hygiene. (Ag '16)

Drummond, W. B. Child, his nature and nurture. (Ag '16)

Ramsey, W. R. Care and feeding of infants and children. (F '17)

Read, M. L. Mothercraft manual. (Ja '17)

Sadler, W. S. and L. Mother and her child. (Ja '17)

Tucker, B. R. Nervous children. (F '17)

Charities, protection, etc.

Slingerland, W. H. Child welfare work in Pennsylvania. (Je '16)

Employment

Sumner, H. L., and Merritt, E. A. Child labor legislation in the United States. (S '16)

U. S. Labor statistics. Bureau of. Summary of the Report on condition of woman and child wage earners in the United States. (Je '16)

Management

Betts, G. H. Fathers and mothers. (My '16)

Cheley, F. H. Adventure of a prodigal father. (F '17)

Fisher, D. F. Self-reliance. (Ag '16)

Gruenberg, S. M. Sons and daughters. (Jl '16)

Kirkpatrick, E. A. Use of money. (Je '16)

Puller, E. S. Your boy and his training. (O '16)

Children of fancy. Holborn, I. B. S. (Mr '16)

Children of hope. Whitman, S. F. (Je '16)

Children's books. See Books for boys and girls

Children's literature

Bibliography

Bacon, C., comp. Children's catalog of one thousand books. (N '16)

Children's perceptions. Winch, W. H. (My '16)

Children's plays

Bates, K. L. Fairy gold. (Ja '17)

Burrill, E. W. Master Skylark. (Ap '16)

Garnett, L. Master Will of Stratford. (Ap '16)

Gregory, I. A., lady. Golden apple. (D '16)

McLaren, J. M., and Harvey, E. M. Hänsel and Gretel. (Jl '16)

Meigs, C. Steadfast princess. (Ap '16)

Merrington, M. Fairy tale plays. (F '17)

Olcott, V. Plays for home, school and settlement. (F '17)

Richards, L. E. Fairy operettas. (Ja '17)

St. Nicholas book of plays and operettas; second series. (N '16)

Stevenson, A. Dramatized scenes from American history. (Mr '16)

Children's poetry and rimes

Grahame, K., ed. Cambridge book of poetry for children. (S '16)

Child's book of English biography. Stimpson, M. S. (N '16)

Chimney corner tales. Allen, C. S. (Ja '17)

China

Bashford, J. W. China. (Ag '16)

China year book for 1916. (F '17)

Chu, C. Tariff problem in China. (F '17)

Hsu, M. C. Railway problems in China. (My '16)

Richard, T. Forty-five years in China. (Ja '17)

Description and travel

Daly, Mrs. de B. Irishwoman in China. (N '16)

Official guide to eastern Asia. (N '16)

Foreign relations

Clements, P. H. Boxer rebellion. (My '16)

Millard, T. F. F. Our Eastern question. (O '16)

History

Farjanel, F. Through the Chinese revolution. (Ap '16)

Politics and government

Harding, G. L. Present-day China. (Jl '16)

Hornbeck, S. K. Contemporary politics in the Far East. (N '16)

Chinese art motives interpreted. Tredwell, W. V. R. (Jl '16)

Chloe Malone. Lea, F. H. (O '16)

Chorus. Lynd, S. (N '16)

Christian art and symbolism

- Bailey, A. E: Gospel in art. (F '17)
 Drake, M. and W. Saints and their emblems. (O '16)
 Christian doctrine of prayer. Hastings, J., ed. (Je '16)
 Christian movement in the Japanese empire. Dearing, J. L., ed. (S '16)

Christian science

- Searle, G. M. Truth about Christian science. (F '17)

Christianity

- Carpenter, J. E. Phases of early Christianity. (S '16)
 Hügel, F. German soul in its attitude towards ethics and Christianity, the state and war. (O '16)
 Powell, J. W. What is a Christian? (My '16)
 Smith, G. W. Short apology for being a Christian in the XXth century. (Je '16)
 Temple, W. Plato and Christianity. (F '17)

Christmas

- Pringle, M. P., and Urann, C. A. Yule-tide in many lands. (N '16)

See also Fiction—Christmas stories

- Chronicles of the White mountains. Kilbourne, F. W. (Jl '16)

- Church and nation. Temple, W. (Jl '16)

Church and state

- Forsyth, P. T. Theology in church and state. (Ap '16)
 Temple, W. Church and nation. (Jl '16)

Church architecture

- Cram, R. A. Gothic quest. (S '16)
 Ward, C. Mediaeval church vaulting. (My '16)

Church history

- Carpenter, J. E. Phases of early Christianity. (S '16)
 Colligan, J. H. Eighteenth century noneconformity. (My '16)
 Hastings, J., and others. Dictionary of the apostolic church. (My '16)
 McConnell, S. D. History of the American Episcopal church. (Ja '17)
 Church in the fighting line with General Smith-Dorrien at the front. Winnifrid, D. P. (D '16)

Church of England

- Campbell, R. J. Spiritual pilgrimage. (F '17)
 Ollard, S. L. Short history of the Oxford movement. (My '16)

Church work

- Carroll, C. E. Community survey in relation to church efficiency. (Ap '16)
 Leete, F. D. Church in the city. (Ap '16)
 Churches of the Federal council. Macfarland, C. S., ed. (O '16)

Cincinnati

- Hebble, C. R., and Goodwin, F. P., eds. Citizens book. (Ag '16)
 Circuit rider's widow. Harris, C. M. (Ja '17)
 Circus. Kilmer, J. (F '17)

Cities and towns

- King, C. L. Lower living costs in cities. (F, Ap '16)
 Wright, H. C. American city. (Je '16)
 Citizens' army. Grande, J. (O '16)
 Citizens book. Hebble, C. R. and Goodwin, F. P., eds. (Ag '16)
 Citizens in industry. Henderson, C. R. (F, Ap '16)

Citizenship

- Borchard, E. M. Diplomatic protection of citizens abroad. (Ap '16)
 Field, J., and Nearing, S. Community civics. (S '16)
 McCall, S. W. Liberty of citizenship. (Mr '16)
 City of the dawn. Keable, R. (Je '16)

City planning

- Lewis, N. P. Planning of the modern city. (N '16)
 Nolen, J., ed. City planning. (My '16)
 Robinson, C. M. City planning. (Mr '16)

Bibliography

- Kimball, T. Classified selected list of references on city planning. (O '16)
 Civics for new Americans. Hill, M., and Davis, P. (My '16)

Civil engineering

- Lyle, W. T. Parks and park engineering. (D '16)

- Merriman, M., ed. American civil engineer's pocket book. (S '16)

- Civil law and the church. Lincoln, C. Z. (Ja '17)

Civilization, Medieval

- Ashley, R. L. Medieval civilization. (S '16)

- Clarke, William Newton, 1841-1912

- William Newton Clarke, a biography. (F '17)

Classical literature

- Sandys, J. E. Short history of classical scholarship. (S '16)

- Thomson, J. A. K. Greek tradition. (Ap '16)

- Classified selected list of references on city planning. Kimball, T. (O '16)

- Clemens, Samuel Langhorne (Mark Twain, pseud.), 1835-1910

- Paine, A. B. Boys' life of Mark Twain. (D '16)

Cleveland, O.Public schools

- Ayres, L. P. and M. School buildings and equipment. (My '16)

- Boughton, A. C. Household arts and school lunches. (D '16)

- Clark, E. Financing the public schools. (My '16)

- Hartwell, S. O. Overcrowded schools and the platoon plan. (My '16)

- Jessup, W. A. Teaching staff. (S '16)

- Johnson, G. E. Education through recreation. (My '16)

- Judd, C. H. Measuring the work of the public schools. (Je '16)

- Miller, H. A. School and the immigrant. (S '16)

- Mitchell, D. Schools and classes for exceptional children. (My '16)

- Perry, C. A. Educational extension. (My '16)

- Shaw, F. L. Printing trades. (N '16)

- Climbing plants. Watson, W. (S '16)

- Clipped wings. Hughes, R. (Mr '16)

- Clodd, Edward, 1840-

- Clodd, E. Memories. (D '16)

- Cloister. Verhaeren, E. (Je '16)

Clothing

- Baldt, L. I. Clothing for women. (D '16)

- Bolmar, L., and McNutt, K. Art in dress. (F '17)

- Clothing trade

- Bryner, E. Garment trades. (D '16)

- Cohen, J. H. Law and order in industry. (Ap '16)

- Cloud and silver. Lucas, E. V. (D '16)

- Clouds. Aristophanes. (O '16)

- Clover and blue grass. Obenchain, E. C. (N '16)

- Clue of the twisted candle. Wallace, E. (D '16)

Coal

- Cosgrove, J. F. Coal. (F '17)

- Jevons, H. S. British coal trade. (Je '16)

- Nearing, S. Anthracite. (Mr '16)

- Wagner, F. H. Coal and coke. (S '16)

Coal tar products

- Beacall, T., and others. Dyestuffs and coal tar products. (Ag '16)

- Coast of adventure. Bindloss, H. (Mr '16)

Coke

- Wagner, F. H. Coal and coke. (S '16)

- Cold (disease)

- Williamson, O. K. Prevention of the common cold. (D '16)

- Collected tales. Pain, B. E. O. (Mr '16)

Collectors and collecting

- Burgess, F. W. Old pottery and porcelain. (Ja '17)

- Candee, H. C. Jacobean furniture. (Ja '17)

- Eberlein, H. D., and McClure, A. Practical book of early American arts and crafts. (F '17)

- Hayden, A. Chats on old silver. (S '16)

- Lewis, J. S. Old glass and how to collect it. (F '17)

- Robie, V. H. Quest of the quaint. (Ja '17)

- College girl. Valzey, J. (N '16)

- College poetry

- Noyes, A., ed. Book of Princeton verse, 1916. (S '16)

Colleges and universities

- General education board. General education board; an account of its activities, 1902-1914. (My '16)
 Oviatt, E. Beginnings of Yale (1701-1726). (F '17)
 Taylor, J. M., and Haight, E. H. Vassar. (Je '16)

ColombiaForeign relations

- Freehoff, J. C. America and the canal title. (Mr '16)

Colonial house. Chandler, J. E. (Ap '16)Color

- Luckiesh, M. Color and its applications. (Jl '16)

Columbia river highway

- Lancaster, S. C. Columbia, America's great highway through the Cascade mountains to the sea. (My '16)

Come out of the kitchen! Miller, A. D. (Jl '16)Commencement days. Gladden, W. (Je '16)Commentary on the Gospel according to Mark. Jacobus, M. W. (Ag '16)Commerce

- Austin, O. P. Economics of world trade. (Ja '17)
 Brown, H. G. Principles of commerce. (D '16)
 Hough, B. O. Practical exporting. (Je '16)
 Smith, J. R. Commerce and industry. (Mr '16)

Bibliography

- Ball, S. B., comp. 1600 business books. (Jl '16)

Commercial correspondence

- Bamburgh, W. C. Talks on business correspondence. (O '16)
 Gardner, E. H. Effective business letters. (Je '16)
 Hammond, H. W., and Herzberg, M. J. Style-book of business English. (Je '16)
 Sales promotion by mail. (F '17)
 Smart, W. K., ed. How to write business letters. (Jl '16)
 Webster, E. H. English for business. (D '16)

Commercial mortmain. Dos Passos, J. R. (S '16)Commercial preparedness. National foreign trade council. (Ag '16)Commodities' clause. Kibler, T. L. (N '16)Common conditions. Brooke, C. F. T., ed. (Jl '16)Common-sense patriotism. Warden, A. A. (F '17)Commonwealth of nations. Curtis, L., ed. (D '16)Community civics. Field, J., and Nearing, S. (S '16)Community drama and pageantry. Beegle, M. P., and Crawford, J. E. (Ag '16)Community hygiene. Hutchinson, W. (My '16)Community survey in relation to church efficiency. Carroll, C. E. (Ap '16)Companion to Greek studies. Whibley, L., ed. (F '17)Comparative religion. Jordan, L. H. (Jl '16)Complete auction player. Irwin, F. (F '17)Complete gentleman. Lynch, J. G. B. (F '17)Concerning prayer. Streeter, B. H., ed. (D '16)Concrete construction*Hool, G. A. Reinforced concrete construction. (Je '16)Seaton, R. A. Concrete construction for rural communities. (O '16)Condé, Prince de (Louis II de Bourbon), 1621-1686*Godley, E. C. Great Condé. (S '16)Conduct and the supernatural. Thornton, L. S. (My '16)Conduct of life*Backus, W. V. Making happiness epidemic. (Ag '16)Forbush, W. B. Young folks' book of ideals. (Ja '17)Gladden, W. Commencement days. (Je '16)Hyde, W. D. Gospel of good will as revealed in the contemporary scriptures. (Je '16)James, G. W. Living the radiant life. (O '16)King, B. P. Worth of a girl. (F '17)Knott, L. A. Vesper talks to girls. (Je '16)Luccock, H. E. Fares, please! (My '16)Marden, O. S. Making life a masterpiece. (O '16)Marden, O. S. Victorious attitude. (Jl '16)Purinton, E. E. Triumph of the man who acts. (F '17)Slater, J. R. Living for the future. (F '17)Wilson, W. On being human. (My '16)Confederate and southern state currency.*Bradbeer, W. W. (Ap '16)Confession, Gorky, M., pseud. (Jl '16)Confession of a hyphenated American. Steiner, E. A. (My '16)Confessional. Wilde, P. (Jl '16)Confessions of two brothers. Powys, J. C. and L. (Ap '16)Confucianism*Armstrong, R. C. Light from the East. (My '16)Congregationalism*Campbell, R. J. Spiritual pilgrimage. (F '17)Connie Morgan in Alaska. Hendryx, J. B. (D '16)Conquest. Nyburg, S. L. (Mr '16)Conquest of America. Moffett, C. (Je '16)Conquest of Virginia; the forest primeval. Sams, C. W. (Ag '16)Conrad, Joseph, 1857-*Follett, W. Joseph Conrad. (Je '16)Walpole, H. S. Joseph Conrad. (O '16)Conried, Heinrich, 1855-1909*Moses, M. J. Life of Heinrich Conried. (D '16)Conscience and Christ. Rashdall, H. (F '17)Conscript mother. Herrick, R. (O '16)Constance Dunlap, woman detective. Reeve, A. B. (Jl '16)Constitutional government, Principles of. Goodnow, F. J. (S '16)Construction of roads and pavements. Agg, T. R. (D '16)Constructive rural sociology. Gillette, J. M. (Je '16)Contemporary politics in the Far East. Hornbeck, S. K. (N '16)"Contemptible." Casualty, pseud. (N '16)Content with files. Findlater, M. and J. H. (N '16)"Contraband." Parrish, R. (F '17)Contraband of war*Pyke, H. R. Law of contraband of war. (Jl '16)Control of hunger. Carlson, A. J. (F '17)Control of strikes in American trade unions. James, G. M. (F '17)Cookery*Congreve, A. E. One maid cookery book. (D '16)Ferguson, A. M., and Johnson, C. F. W. From house to house. (Je '16)Harrison, G. C., and Clergue, G., comps. Allied cookery. (S '16)Herrick, C. A-B-C of cooking. (Je '16)Kinne, H., and Cooley, A. M. Food and health. (F '17)Matteson, E. B., and Newlands, E. M. Laboratory manual of foods and cookery. (D '16)Neil, M. H. Salads, sandwiches and chafing dish recipes. (D '16)Nesbitt, F. Low cost cooking. (Je '16)Reed, M. Myrtle Reed cook book. (F '17)*See also FoodCookery (canned goods)*Bitting, A. W. and K. G. Canning and how to use canned foods. (D '16)Corn laws*Gras, N. S. B. Evolution of the English corn market from the twelfth to the eighteenth century. (Je '16)Corporation finance. Lyon, W. H. (F '17)Corporations*Cushing, H. A. Voting trusts. (F, Ap '16)Corpuence*Summerville, A. S. Why be fat? (My '16)Correspondence of Gray, Walpole, West and Ashton. Toynbee, P. J., ed. (Jl '16)Cost of living*Congdon, L. A. Fight for food. (F '17)Scott, H. P. New slavery. (O '16)

Cotton

Scherer, J. A. B. Cotton as a world power. (F '17)

Todd, J. A. World's cotton crops. (Je '16)

Counter-currents. Repplier, A. (Je '16)

Country chronicle. Showerman, G. (D '16)

Country life

Antrim, E. I. Fifty million strong. (Je '16)

Comfort, W. L. Child and country. (Je '16)

Dyer, W. A. Humble annals of a back yard. (Ja '17)

Fieid, J., and Nearing, S. Community civics. (S '16)

Gillette, J. M. Constructive rural sociology. (Je '16)

Sharp, D. L. Hills of Hingham. (Jl '16)

Course in household arts. Duff, L. B. (F '17)

Courtesy

Backus, W. V. Making happiness epidemic. (Ag '16)

Covent Garden Journal. Fielding, H. (Ap '16)

Credit

Blanton, B. H. Credit. (Ap '16)

Skinner, E. M., and others. Credits and collections. (O '16)

Crespigny, Charles de, pseud. See Williamson, C. N. and A. M.

Crete

Description and travel

Beggs, G. H. Four in Crete. (My '16)

History

Kerofilas, C. Eleftherios Venizelos, his life and work. (Ap '16)

Crime and criminals

Bonger, W. A. Criminality and economic conditions. (Ag '16)

Glueck, B. Studies in forensic psychiatry. (Ja '17)

MacBrayne, L. E., and Ramsay, J. P. One more chance. (S '16)

Osborne, T. M. Society and prisons. (S '16)

Scott, W., pseud. Seventeen years in the underworld. (O '16)

Crimes of England. Chesterton, G. K. (Mr '16)

Criminal law

Bar, L., and others. History of continental criminal law. (N '16)

Criminality and economic conditions. Bongor, W. A. (Ag '16)

Crimson gardenia. Beach, R. E. (My '16)

Crises in the history of the papacy. McCabe, J. (My '16)

Critical and exegetical commentary on the Epistle of St. James. Ropes, J. H. (Jl '16)

Critical and exegetical commentary on the Second epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians. Plummer, A. (Je '16)

Critical period, 1763-1765. Alvord, C. W., and Carter, C. E., eds. (My '16)

Criticism, Literary

Buck, G. Social criticism of literature. (Ja '17)

Howe, P. P. Criticism. (My '16)

Rannie, D. W. Elements of style. (D '16)

Cromwell, Oliver, 1599-1658

Ross, E. Oliver Cromwell. (S '16)

Cross of heart's desire. Pahlow, G. C. B. (D '16)

Crowds

Conway, M. Crowd in peace and war. (Mr '16)

Trotter, W. Instincts of the herd in peace and war. (N '16)

Cruise of the Jasper B. Marquis, D. (S '16)

Cruise of the Tomas Barrera. Henderson, J. B., jr. (Jl '16)

Crushed flower. Andreieff, L. N. (F '17)

Cuba

Description and travel

Henderson, J. B. Cruise of the Tomas Barrera. (Jl '16)

Cuban cane sugar. Wiles, R. (S '16)

Culture and war. Patten, S. N. (O '16)

Cupid in oilskins. Bell, J. J. (F '17)

Cupid of Campion. Finn, F. J. (F '17)

Curiosities in proverbs. Marvin, D. E., comp. (Ap '16)

Curious case of Marie Dupont. Luehrmann, A. (O '16)

Current events. See Yearbooks (statistical, historical, etc.)

Currier, Mrs. Thomas Parker. See Potter, M. K.

Curved blades. Wells, C. (Ap '16)

Cycle's rim. Dargan, O. T. (F '17)

D., H., pseud. See Aldington, Mrs. R.

Damaris. Harrison, M. S. (N '16)

Dams

Morrison, C. E., and Brodie, O. L. Masonry dam design. (Ag '16)

Danby, Frank, pseud. See Frankau, J.

Dancing

Crampton, C. W., comp. Second folk dance book. (Ja '17)

Emmanuel, M. Antique Greek dance. (O '16)

Kidson, F., and Neal, M. C. S. English folk-song and dance. (My '16)

Lamkin, N. B. Dances, drills and story-plays for every day and holidays. (N '16)

Perugini, M. E. Art of ballet. (Ag '16)

Dangers of half-preparedness. Lane, R. N. A. (Jl '16)

Danny, the freshman. Camp, W. C. (Je '16)

Dante Alighieri, 1265-1321

Brooks, A. M. Dante. (N '16)

Fletcher, J. B. Dante. (Jl '16)

Grandgent, C. H. Dante. (F '17)

Dardanelles. Wilkinson, N. L. (My '16)

Daredevil. Daviss, M. T. (Je '16)

Daring deeds of famous pirates. Chatterton, E. K. (F '17)

Dark forest. Walpole, H. S. (Jl '16)

Dark tower. Bottome, P. (N '16)

Darling. Tchekhov, A. P. (D '16)

Daughter of the storage. Howells, W. D. (My '16)

Daughter pays. Reynolds, G. M. (Ja '17)

Davenport. Marriott, C. (Ag '16)

David Blaize. Benson, F. F. (Ag '16)

Dawn of religion in the mind of the child. Mumford, E. E. R. (Ag '16)

Day by day with the Russian army, 1914-1915. Parés, B. (My '16)

Day of wrath. Tracy, L. (Jl '16)

Dead musician. O'Donnell, C. L. (D '16)

Dead yesterday. Hamilton, M. A. (N '16)

Deaf and dumb. See Lip reading

Debates

Bacon, C., comp. Selected articles on military training. (Je '16)

Bacon, C., comp. Selected articles on national defense. (Jl '16)

Beman, L. T., comp. Selected articles on prohibition of the liquor traffic. (F, My '16)

Bullock, E. D., comp. Selected articles on trade unions. (F '17)

Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on government ownership of railroads. (F '17)

Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on the American merchant marine. (N '16)

Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on the Monroe doctrine. (My '16)

Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on woman suffrage. (My '16)

Reely, M. K., comp. Selected articles on world peace. (Mr '16)

Debating

Brewer, J. M. Oral English. (Jl '16)

Mable, E. C., ed. University debaters' annual. (N '16)

Nichols, E. R., ed. Intercollegiate debates, v. 6. (Ja '17)

Phelps, E. M., comp. Debaters' manual. (F '17)

Decoration and ornament

Hamilton, A. D. F. History of ornament. (F '17)

Decorative design. Chase, J. C. (D '16)

Deeds of doing and daring. Johnston, W. A. (N '16)

Deeper causes of the war. Hovelaque, E. L. (N '16)

Defective and delinquent classes

Dooley, W. H. Education of the ne'er-do-well. (N '16)

Defective children

Mitchell, D. Schools and classes for exceptional children. (My '16)

Defoe, Daniel, 1661?-1731

Trent, W: P. Daniel Defoe. (D '16)

Dehan, Richard, pseud. See Graves, C. I. M.

De Jan, Mrs. Henry. See James, W. L.

Delane, John Thadeus, 1817-1879

Cook, E: T. Delane of The Times. (Ap '16)

Delight makers. Bandelier, A. F. A. (F '17)

Democracy

Elliott, E: American government and majority rule. (Ag '16)

Hyndman, H: M. Future of democracy. (Mr '16)

Michels, R. Political parties. (My '16)

Democracy and diplomacy. Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. (Jl '16)

Democracy and education. Dewey, J: (Jl '16)

Denmark

Foght, H. W. Rural Denmark and its schools. (Jl '16)

Stefánsson, J. Denmark and Sweden, with Iceland and Finland. (F '17)

Bibliography

Bay, J. C., ed. Denmark in English and American literature. (My '16)

Department stores

O'Leary, I. P. Department store occupations. (My '16)

Depreciation

Saliers, E. A. Principles of depreciation. (O '16)

Design, Decorative

Bragdon, C. F. Projective ornament. (My '16)

Chase, J. C. Decorative design. (D '16)

Drew, J. H. Embroidery and design. (Je '16)

Hamlin, A. D. F. History of ornament. (F '17)

Varnum, W: H. Industrial arts design. (F '17)

Design of aeroplanes. Judge, A. W: (F '17)

Desire of the moth. Rhodes, E. M. (Jl '16)

Desmond's daughter. Diver, K. H. M. (N '16)

Destiny. Buck, C: N. (Je '16)

Determined angler and the brook trout. Bradford, C: B. (Ag '16)

Development of the European nations, 1870-1914. Rose, J: H. (Ap '16)

Diabetes

Hill, L: W., and Eckman, R. S. Starvation treatment of diabetes. (Je '16)

Diamond from the sky. McCardell, R. L. (My '16)

Diamonds

Wade, F. B. Diamonds. (Jl '16)

Diary of the great war. Pepys, S: jr., pseud. (D '16)

Dickens, Charles, 1812-1870

Crotch, W. W. Pageant of Dickens. (S '16)

Dictionaries

Abelson, P., ed. English-Yiddish encyclopedic dictionary. (Jl '16)

Baker, A. E. Tennyson dictionary. (O '16)

Gould, G: M. Practitioner's medical dictionary. (Ag '16)

Hastings, J., and others, eds. Dictionary of the apostolic church. (My '16)

Hyanison, A. M. Dictionary of universal biography of all ages and of all peoples. (My '16)

Wilstach, F. J. Dictionary of similes. (Ja '17)

Diesel engines

Chalkley, A. P. Diesel engines for land and marine work. (O '16)

Diet

Christian, E. Eat and be well. (D '16)

Hill, L: W., and Eckman, R. S. Starvation treatment of diabetes. (Je '16)

Hogan, L. E. Diet for children. (Ag '16)

Rose, M. S. Feeding the family. (Ja '17)

Digest of state laws relating to public education. Hood, W: R., and others, comps. (S '16)

Digest of workmen's compensation laws in the United States and territories. Jones, F: B., comp. (Ag '16)

Dillingham Robert Barclay, pseud. See Foulke, W: D.

Diplomacy of the great war. Bullard, A. (Mr '16)

Diplomatic and consular service

Borchard, E. M. Diplomatic protection of citizens abroad. (Ap '16)

Diplomatic background of the war, 1870-1914. Seymour, C: (Jl '16)

Diplomat's wife in Mexico. O'Shaughnessy, E. L. (Jl '16)

Directories

American art annual. (My '16)

American iron and steel institute. Directory of the iron and steel works of the United States and Canada. (D '16)

Disarmament

Brailsford, H: N. War of steel and gold. (Jl '16)

Reely, M. K., comp. Selected articles on world peace. (Mr '16)

Diseases of poultry. Pearl, R., and others. (Jl '16)

Disintegration of Islam. Zwemer, S: M. (F '17)

Divine comedy. See Dante Alighieri

Divine egotist. Roe, V. E. (F '17)

Dixmude, Battle of, 1914

Le Goffic, C: Dixmude, the epic of the French marines. (O '16)

Dr. Nick. Steele, L. M., pseud. (D '16)

Dodd, Allen Robert. See Allen, R., pseud.

Dogs, Legends and stories of

Darling, E. B. Baldy of Nome. (D '16)

Dyer, W. A. Gulliver the Great. (N '16)

Mills, E. A. Story of Scotch. (D '16)

Saunders, M. Wandering dog. (F '17)

Dog's book of verse. Clauson, J. E., comp. (F '17)

Doing their bit. Cable, B. (S '16)

Domestic life in Rumania. Kirke, D. (Jl '16)

Domestic science

Boughton, A. C. Household arts and school lunches. (D '16)

Croy, M. S. 1000 shorter ways around the house. (D '16)

Duff, L. B. Course in household arts. (F '17)

Farmer, L. C. A-B-C of home saving. (Ja '17)

Richardson, A. S. Adventures in thrift. (Je '16)

Weed, H: T. Chemistry in the home. (Jl '16)

Dominie's log. Neill, A. S. (Ag '16)

Donald's trust. Eng title of Heir of Duncarron. McLaren, A. (My '16)

Door of dread. Stringer, A. J: A. (Je '16)

Dostoevskii, Fedor Mikhailovich, 1821-1881. Murry, J. M. Fyodor Dostoevsky. (D '16)

Soloviev, E. A. Dostoevsky. (My '16)

Double road. Wood, M. (Ap '16)

Drainage

Jeffery, J. A. Text-book of land drainage. (Ja '17)

A Drake, by George! Trevena, J:, pseud. (F '17)

Drama

Andrews, C. Technique of play writing. (My '16)

Havemeyer, L. Drama of savage peoples. (F '17)

Whitmore, C: E. Supernatural in tragedy. (Je '16)

History and criticism

Matthews, B. Book about the theater. (N '16)

Dramas

Aiken, E. Hate breeders. (Jl '16)

Andreleff, L. N. Life of man. (Mr '16)

Anspacher, L: K. Unchastened woman. (Mr '16)

Artsybashef, M. P. War. (F '17)

Barker, G. Marrying of Ann Leete. (S '16)

Barker, G. Voyage inheritance. (S '16)

Barker, G. Waste. (S '16)

Bechhofer, C. E., tr. Five Russian plays. (Ag '16)

Brieux, E. Woman on her own. (N '16)

Brighouse, H. Garside's career. (Mr '16)

Brighouse, H. Hobson's choice. (Je '16)

Brooke, C: F: T., ed. Common conditions. (Jl '16)

Burleigh, L., and Bierstadt, E: H. Punishment. (Jl '16)

Burrill, E. W. Master Skylark. (Ap '16)

Cheney, A. C. Nameless one. (My '16)

- Claudel, P. Tidings brought to Mary. (D '16)
 Colum, P. Three plays. (D '16)
 Currel, F. de. False saint. (F '17)
 Dreiser, T. Plays of the natural and the supernatural. (My '16)
 Ervine, S. G. Four Irish plays. (Ag '16)
 Fitch, C. Plays. (My '16)
 Goldberg, I., ed. and tr. Six plays of the Yiddish theatre. (Ja '17)
 Halbe, M. Youth. (Jl '16)
 Hauptmann, G. J. R. Dramatic works. (Mr '16)
 Hirschfeld, G. Mothers. (Jl '16)
 Hofmannsthal, H. H. Madonna Dianora. (O '16)
 Holley, H. Read-aloud plays. (Ja '17)
 Knoblauch, E. My lady's dress. (Ap '16)
 Ledoux, L. V. Story of Eleusis. (Ja '17)
 Lee, J. B. Symphony play. (My '16)
 London, J. Acorn-planter. (Ap '16)
 Loyson, F. H. Apostle. (Jl '16)
 MacKaye, P. Poems and plays. (S '16)
 Manners, J. H. Wreckage. (Je '16)
 Middleton, G. Road together. (N '16)
 Mooney, M. S., tr. Rosary of mystery plays. (O '16)
 Nirdlinger, C. F. Four short plays. (F '17)
 O'Brien, S. Duty, and other Irish comedies. (N '16)
 O'Connor, N. J. Fairy bride. (O '16)
 Parker, L. N. Mavourneen. (F '17)
 Quintero, S. and J. A. Malvaloca. (F '17)
 Shaw, G. B. Androcles and the lion. (Je '16)
 Stokes, R. P. Woman who wouldn't. (D '16)
 Strindberg, A. Plays. (My '16)
 Symons, A. Tragedies. (N '16)
 Tatlock, J. S. P., and Martin, R. G., eds. Representative English plays. (N '16)
 Tchekhov, A. P. Plays; second series. (Je '16)
 Vachell, H. A. Quinneys'. (Jl '16)
 Verhaeren, E. Cloister. (Je '16)
 Washington Square plays. (F '17)
 Wilde, P. Confessional. (Jl '16)
- Collections
 Matthews, B., ed. Chief European dramatists. (Je '16)
 Dramatic index. See Faxon, F. W., ed. (Je '16)
 Dramatized scenes from American history. Stevenson, A. (Mr '16)
- Drawing
Study and teaching
 Sargent, W., and Miller, E. E. How children learn to draw. (O '16)
 Thayer, E. R. L. When mother lets us draw. (F '17)
- Drawings
 Pennell, J. Wonder of work. (D '16)
 Drawn shutters. Redpath, B. (Mr '16)
 Dream of Gerontius. Newman, J. H. (Mr '16)
 Dreamer of dreams. Huckel, O. (Ja '17)
- Dredgers
 Sargeant, E. W. Centrifugal pumps and suction dredgers. (F '17)
- Dressmaking
 Baldt, L. I. Clothing for women. (D '16)
 Drifting waters. Macnamara, R. S. (Ap '16)
- Drills and marches
 Lamkin, N. B. Dances, drills and story-plays for every day and holidays. (N '16)
 Drink problem of today. Kelynack, T. N. (O '16)
 Drusilla with a million. Cooper, E. (Mr '16)
 Dubliners. Joyce, J. (F '17)
 Duel. Kuprin, A. I. (My '16)
 Duel. Tchekhov, A. P. (F '17)
 Dune country. Reed, E. H. (My '16)
 Durand, Mrs. Albert C. See Sawyer, R.
- Durkheim, Émile, 1858-
 Gehlke, C. E. Émile Durkheim's contributions to sociological theory. (Je '16)
- Duty, and other Irish comedies. O'Brien, S. (N '16)
- Dyes and dyeing
 Beacall, T., and others. Dyestuffs and coal tar products. (Ag '16)
- Dynamics
 Still, A. Principles of electrical design. (F '17)
- Early days in old Oregon. Judson, K. B. (S '16)
 Early diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico. Manning, W. R. (Je '16)
 Earth and new earth. Rice, C. Y. (O '16)
Earth pressure
 Cain, W. Earth pressure, retaining walls and bins. (D '16)
 Earth to earth. Graves, C. I. M. (N '16)
- East
Social life and customs
 Cooper, E. Harim and the purdah. (Mr '16)
 East and West through fifteen centuries. Young, G. F. (O '16)
- Easter
 Rice, S. T., comp. Easter. (Ag '16)
- Eastern question (Far East)
 Hornbeck, S. K. Contemporary politics of the Far East. (N '16)
 Millard, T. F. F. Our Eastern question. (O '16)
- Eastern question (Near East)
 Courtney, L. H. C. baron, ed. Nationalism and war in the Near East. (Ap '16)
 Forbes, N., and others. Balkans. (Jl '16)
 Eat and be well. Christian, E. (D '16)
- Economics
 Clay, H. Economics. (F '17)
 Fetter, F. A. Economics. (Ag '16)
 Ingram, J. K. History of political economy. (O '16)
 McPherson, L. G. How the world makes its living. (F '17)
 Nearing, S. Poverty and riches. (D '16)
 Economics of retailing. Nystrom, P. H. (Ag '16)
 Economics of war and conquest. Jones, J. H. (Jl '16)
 Economics of world trade. Austin, O. P. (Ja '17)
 Economy in secondary education. Russell, W. F. (N '16)
 Eden sphinx. Hale, A. R. (S '16)
 Edmée. Molesworth, M. L. (F '17)
- Education
 Clutton-Brock, A. Ultimate belief. (O '16)
 Dewey, J. Democracy and education. (Jl '16)
 Freeman, F. N. Experimental education. (S '16)
 Macbride, T. H. On the campus. (D '16)
 Morgan, A. Education and social progress. (O '16)
 Neill, A. S. Dominie's log. (Ag '16)
 Russell, W. F. Economy in secondary education. (N '16)
 Wilson, H. B. and G. M. Motivation of school work. (D '16)
- Asia
 Eddy, G. S. Students of Asia. (My '16)
- France
 Brown, R. W. How the French boy learns to write. (Je '16)
 Scott, J. F. Patriots in the making. (F '17)
- Germany
 Address, J. M. Johann Gottfried Herder as an educator. (F '17)
 Scott, J. F. Patriots in the making. (F '17)
- Japan
 Lombard, F. A. Pre-Meiji education in Japan. (S '16)
- Russia
 Vinogradov, P. G. Self-government in Russia. (S '16)
- United States
 Aurner, C. R. History of education in Iowa. (Ag '16)
 Cubberley, E. P., and Elliott, E. C. State and county school administration. (Ap '16)
 Flexner, A., and Bachman, F. P. Public education in Maryland. (D '16)
 General education board. General education board; an account of its activities, 1902-1914. (My '16)
 Hinchman, W. S. American school. (Mr '16)
 Knight, E. W. Public school education in North Carolina. (F '17)

Education, Moral. See Moral education

Education of children

- Comfort, W. L. Child and country. (Je '16)
 Fisher, D. F. Self-reliance. (Ag '16)
 Mitchell, D. Schools and classes for exceptional children. (My '16)
 Sanders, F. W. Reorganization of our schools. (O '16)

Education of the ne'er-do-well. Dooley, W. H. (N '16)

Education of women

Taylor, J. M., and Haight, E. H. Vassar. (Je '16)

Education through recreation. Johnson, G. E. (My '16)

Educational extension. Perry, C. A. (My '16)

Educational law and legislation

Hood, W. R., and others, comps. Digest of state laws relating to public education. (S '16)

Educational measurements. Starch, D. (F '17)

Effective business letters. Gardner, E. H. (Je '16)

Efficiency, Industrial

Gantt, H. L. Industrial leadership. (Je '16)
 Knoepfel, C. E. Industrial preparedness. (Ja '17)

Smith, J. R. Elements of industrial management. (S '16)

Efficient secretary. Spencer, E. L. (My '16)

Egotism in German philosophy. Santayana, G. (Ja '17)

Egypt

Balls, W. L. Egypt of the Egyptians. (Mr '16)

Bell, A. Spell of Egypt. (Ag '16)

Antiquities

Bell, E. Architecture of ancient Egypt. (Ap '16)

Eighteenth century. Strylenski, C. (Ja '17)

Eighteenth century nonconformity. Colligan, J. H. (My '16)

El supremo. White, E. L. (D '16)

Elasticity and resistance of the materials of engineering. Burr, W. H. (Ap '16)

Elections

Macauley, W. Reclaiming the ballot. (S '16)

Electoral reform in England and Wales. Seymour, C. (F, Ap '16)

Electric apparatus

Page, V. W. Starting, lighting, and ignition systems. (Ag '16)

Electric engineering

Baillie, T. C. Electrical engineering. (Je '16)
 Berg, E. J., and Upson, W. L. Electrical engineering, first course. (O '16)

Clewell, C. E. Handbook of machine shop electricity. (F '17)

Fowle, F. F., ed. Standard handbook for electrical engineers. (Je '16)

Homans, J. E. First principles of electricity. (Ja '17)

Rowland, A. J. Applied electricity for practical men. (F '17)

Steinmetz, C. P. Theoretical elements of electrical engineering. (Je '16)

Electric instruments

Murdoch, W. H. F., and Oschwald, U. A. Electrical instruments in theory and practice. (Ag '16)

Electric lighting

Schneider, N. H. Wiring houses for the electric light. (F '17)

Electric lines

Coombs, R. D. Pole and tower lines for electric power transmission. (O '16)

Electric machinery

Bailey, B. F. Principles of dynamo electric machinery. (Jl '16)

Lawrence, R. R. Principles of alternating current machinery. (F '17)

Electric railroads

Buck, A. M. Electric railway. (Mr '16)

Electric wire and wiring

Sharp, J. M. Practical electric wiring. (N '16)

Electrical engineering, first course. Berg, E. J., and Upson, W. L. (O '16)

Electricity

Collins, A. F. Book of electricity. (F '17)
 Homans, J. E. First principles of electricity. (Ja '17)

Pidduck, F. B. Treatise on electricity. (N '16)

Thompson, S. P. Elementary lessons in electricity and magnetism. (O '16)

Electrons

Cunningham, E. Relativity and the electron theory. (S '16)

Elementary civics. McCarthy, C., and others. (N '16)

Elementary forms of the religious life. Durkheim, E. (Je '16)

Elementary lessons in electricity and magnetism. Thompson, S. P. (O '16)

Elementary manual of radiotelegraphy and radiotelephony. Fleming, J. A. (O '16)

Elements of folk psychology. Wundt, W. M. (F '17)

Elements of industrial management. Smith, J. R. (S '16)

Elements of military hygiene. Ashburn, P. M. (Jl '16)

Elements of mining. Young, G. J. (F '17)

Elements of optics. Parker, G. W. (O '16)

Elements of public speaking. Houghton, H. G. (F '17)

Elements of style. Rannie, D. W. (D '16)

Elements of the great war; the second phase. Belloc, H. (O '16)

Elephant

Kunz, G. F. Ivory and the elephant in art, in archaeology, and in science. (Ja '17)

Elocution

Brewer, J. M. Oral English. (Jl '16)
 Lewis, C. L. Handbook of American speech. (O '16)

Embroidery

Drew, J. H. Embroidery and design. (Je '16)

Embryology

Nelson, J. A. Embryology of the honey bee. (Je '16)

Emigrant. Dostoevskaya, L. F. (Ja '17)

Emmeline. Singmaster, E. (Ap '16)

Emmy Lou's road to grace. Martin, G. M. (N '16)

Emperor of Portugal. Lagerlöf, S. O. L. (D '16)

Encyclopedias

Hastings, J., and others, eds. Encyclopaedia of religion and ethics. (S '16)

Hopkins, A. A., ed. Book of progress. (Je '16)

New international encyclopaedia. (Jl '16)

End of a chapter. Leslie, S. (Jl '16)

Engineer in war. Bond, P. S. (Ag '16)

Engineering

Kent, W. Mechanical engineers' pocket-book. (Mr '16)

Marks, L. S., ed. Mechanical engineers' handbook. (N '16)

Mead, D. W. Water power engineering. (Je '16)

Newell, F. H., and Drayer, C. E., eds. Engineering as a career. (Je '16)

Engineers

Newell, F. H., and Drayer, C. E., eds. Engineering as a career. (Je '16)

England

Antiquities

Brown, G. B. Arts in early England. (S '16)

Church history

Cadman, S. P. Three religious leaders of Oxford and their movements. (Je '16)

Ollard, S. L. Short history of the Oxford movement. (My '16)

Description and travel

Green, F. E. Surrey hills. (My '16)
 Rawnsley, H. D. Past and present at the English lakes. (F '17)

Economic conditions

Bowley, A. L., and Burnett-Hurst, A. R. Livelihood and poverty. (My '16)

Fordham, M. Short history of English rural life. (S '16)
See also Great Britain—Economic conditions

Social conditions

Warwick, F. E. G., countess of. A woman and the war. (F '17)

Social life and customs

Foakes-Jackson, F. J. Social life in England, 1750-1850. (F '17)
Stirling, A. M. D. W. Painter of dreams. (Ap '16)
England and Germany. Dillon, E. J. (O '16)
England and Germany, 1740-1914. Schmitt, B. E. (Je '16)
England; its political organization and development and the war against Germany. Meyer, E. (F '17)
England's effort. Ward, M. A. (Jl '16)
England's world empire. Granger, A. H. (F '17)
English and American tool builders. Roe, J. W. (O '16)
English Catholic revival in the nineteenth century. Thureau-Dangin, P. M. P. (F '17)

English drama

Brooke, R. John Webster and the Elizabethan drama. (F '17)
Tatlock, J. S. P., and Martin, R. G., eds. Representative English plays. (N '16)

English fiction

Phelps, W. L. Advance of the English novel. (O '16)
English field systems. Gray, H. L. (N '16)
English folk-song and dance. Kidson, F., and Neal, M. C. S. (My '16)
English for business. Webster, E. H. (D '16)
English grammar simplified. Fernald, J. C. (N '16)
English hymn. Benson, L. F. (O '16)
English influence on the United States. Cunningham, W. (D '16)

English language

Hall, F. M. A-B-C of correct speech. (Je '16)
Hammond, H. W., and Herzberg, M. J. Style-book of business English. (Je '16)
Kelley, J. P. Workmanship in words. (D '16)
Ranous, D. K. Good English in good form. (D '16)
Utter, R. P. Every-day words and their uses. (F '17)
Webster, E. H. English for business. (D '16)

Composition

Boynton, P. H. Principles of composition. (My '16)
Brewer, J. M. Oral English. (Jl '16)
Miller, E. L. Practical English composition. (S '16)

Grammar

Fernald, J. C. English grammar simplified. (N '16)

Study and teaching

Klapper, P. Teaching of English. (O '16)
Lelper, M. A. Language work in elementary schools. (S '16)

English literature

Benham, A. R. English literature from Widsith to the death of Chaucer. (D '16)
Cambridge history of English literature. (Mr '16)
Gerould, G. H. Saints' legends. (Ja '17)
Krapp, G. P. Rise of English literary prose. (O '16)
Powys, J. C. Suspended judgments. (F '17)
Quiller-Couch, Sir A. T. On the art of writing. (Je '16)
Raleigh, Sir W. A. Romance. (Ja '17)
Saintsbury, G. E. B. Peace of the Augustans. (Je '16)
Scott, D. Men of letters. (F '17)
Wylie, L. J. Social studies in English literature. (Je '16)

Collections

Bridges, R. Spirit of man. (Ap '16)
Goodchild, G. Lore of the wanderer. (Je '16)
Snyder, F. B., and Martin, R. G., eds. Book of English literature. (Ap '16)

Study and teaching

Bohlenius, E. M. Teaching literature in the grammar grades and high school. (Je '16)

English literature (Middle English)

Wells, J. E. Manual of the writings in Middle English, 1050-1400. (O '16)

English poetry

Cædmon. Cædmon poems. (D '16)
Hearn, L. Appreciations of poetry. (F '17)
Sturgeon, M. C. Studies of contemporary poets. (N '16)

Collections

Ayer, M. A., comp. Our mothers. (Jl '16)
Georgian poetry, 1913-1915. (Ap '16)
Grahame, K., ed. Cambridge book of poetry for children. (S '16)
Holt, L. H., ed. Leading English poets from Chaucer to Browning. (My '16)
MacDonagh, T., and others. Poems of the Irish revolutionary brotherhood. (Ag '16)
Neilson, W. A., and Webster, K. G. T., eds. Chief British poets of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. (S '16)
Richards, G. M., ed. High tide. (Je '16)
Some imagist poems, 1916. (S '16)
Thompson, D. V., ed. British verse for boys. (N '16)

English public health administration. Bannington, B. G. (D '16)

English-Serbian phrase book. (Ag '16)

English-Yiddish encyclopedic dictionary. Abelson, P., ed. (Jl '16)

Enjoyment of architecture. Hamlin, T. F. (F '17)

Enoch Crane. Smith, F. H. and F. B. (O '16)

Epic songs of Russia. Hapgood, I. F., tr. (My '16)

Epidemics

Prinzinger, F. Epidemics resulting from wars. (F '17)

Essays

Atlantic Monthly. Atlantic classics. (N '16)
Bridges, J. H. Illustrations of positivism. (Jl '16)
Brooks, C. S. Journeys to Bagdad. (Mr '16)
Burgess, G. Romance of the commonplace. (My '16)
Burke, T. Nights in London. (Jl '16)
Burroughs, J. Under the apple-trees. (Jl '16)
Crane, F. Adventures in common sense. (Je '16)
Cromer, E. B., earl of. Political and literary essays. (Ag '16)
Crothers, S. M. Pleasures of an absentee landlord. (Ja '17)
Dobson, A. Rosalba's journal. (My '16)
Furst, C. B. Observations of Professor Matutin. (Ag '16)
Galsworthy, J. Sheaf. (D '16)
Gosse, E. W. Inter arma. (Ag '16)
Harrison, J. E. Alpha and omega. (My '16)
Hutton, J. A. Ancestral voices. (F '17)
Jacks, L. P. From the human end. (N '16)
Kilmer, J. Circus. (F '17)
Leacock, S. B. Essays and literary studies. (Je '16)

Lucas, E. V. Cloud and silver. (D '16)
McArthur, P. In pastures green. (Je '16)
Macbride, T. H. On the campus. (D '16)
Mary Blanche, Sister. Idyls and sketches. (N '16)

Modern essays. (Je '16)

O'Hagan, T. Essays on Catholic life. (D '16)

Powys, J. C. Suspended judgments. (F '17)
Repplier, A. Counter-currents. (Je '16)

Russell, G. W. Imaginations and reveries. (My '16)

Sedgwick, H. D., jr. Apology for old maids. (Ja '17)

Stephens, K. Workfellows in social progression. (F '17)

Trevena, J., pseud. Adventures among wild flowers. (My '16)

Tryon, L. H. Speaking of home. (Ja '17)
Tucker, W. J. New reservation of time. (F '17)

Wood, S. T. Rambles of a Canadian naturalist. (O '16)

Zangwill, I. War for the world. (S '16)

Essays for boys and girls. Paget, S. (Ap '16)

Essays in experimental logic. Dewey, J. (S '16)

Essential place of religion in education. National education association. (O '16)

Essentials of effective gesture. Mosher, J. A. (S '16)

Esthetics

- Flaccus, L. W: Artists and thinkers. (My '16)
 Philipps, L. M. Form and colour. (My '16)
 Estimates in art. Mather, F. J., jr. (Je '16)

Etchers, French

- Bradley, W: A. French etchers of the second empire. (F '17)

Ethnology

- Hind, A. M. Van Dyck; his original etchings and his iconography. (O '16)
 Pennell, J. Wonder of work. (D '16)
 Eternal feminine. Andrews, M. R. S. (D '16)
 Ethical readings from the Bible. Keeler, H. L., and Wild, L. H. (Je '16)

Ethics

- Benson, A. C. Father Payne. (Mr '16)
 Clutton-Brock, A. Ultimate belief. (O '16)
 Groves, E. R. Moral sanitation. (F '17)
 Hastings, J., ed. Encyclopædia of religion and ethics. (S '16)
 Johnston, G: A. Introduction to ethics. (My '16)
 Mark, H. T. Factors in conduct. (Je '16)
 Thornton, L. S. Conduct and the supernatural. (My '16)
 Waldstein, Sir C: Aristodemocracy. (S '16)

Ethnology

- Bryan, W: A. Natural history of Hawaii. (Je '16)
 Cureau, A. L: Savage man in Central Africa. (Ap '16)
 Grant, M. Passing of the great race. (Ja '17)
 Hobhouse, L. T., and others. Material culture and social institutions of the simpler peoples. (My '16)
 Roscoe, J: Northern Bantu. (Ap '16)

Ethnopsychology

- Wundt, W. M. Elements of folk psychology. (F '17)

Eugenics

- Guyer, M. F: Being well-born. (My '16)

- Eugénie, empress consort of Napoleon III, 1826-1866, E: Empress Eugénie and her son. (Ja '17)

- Europa's fairy book. Jacobs, J. (Mr '16)

EuropeDescription and travel

- Salisbury, F. S. Rambles in the Vaudese Alps. (F '17)
 Thom, D. W. Midsummer motoring in Europe. (D '16)
 Vizetelly, E. A. In seven lands. (Ja '17)

History

- Ashley, R. L: Medieval civilization. (S '16)
 Bénézet, L: P. Story of the map of Europe. (Je '16)
 Robinson, J. H. Medieval and modern times. (O '16)
 Rose, J: H. Development of the European nations, 1870-1914. (Ap '16)
 Terry, C: S. Short history of Europe. (Je '16)

Maps

- Robertson, C: G., and Bartholomew, J: G. Historical atlas of modern Europe from 1789 to 1914. (Je '16)

Politics and government

- Brailsford, H. N. War of steel and gold. (Jl '16)
 Bullard, A. Diplomacy of the great war. (Mr '16)
 Cromer, E. B., earl of. Political and literary essays. (Ag '16)
 Dickinson, G. L. European anarchy. (Je '16)
 Dillon, E. J. From the triple to the quadruple alliance. (Jl '16)
 Hannah, I. C. Arms and the map. (Ap '16)
 Hayes, C. Political and social history of modern Europe. (Ja '17)
 Herbert, S. Modern Europe, 1789-1914. (O '16)
 Miynarski, F. Problems of the coming peace. (D '16)
 Mowat, R. B., ed. Select treaties and documents to illustrate the development of the modern European states-system. (Ag '16)
 Orth, S: P. Imperial impulse. (Ap '16)
 Radziwill, C., princess. Royal marriage market of Europe. (S '16)

- Radziwill, C., princess. Sovereigns and statesmen of Europe. (S '16)

- Rose, J: H. Nationality in modern history. (Jl '16)

- Seymour, C: Diplomatic background of the war, 1870-1914. (Jl '16)

- Wells, H. G: What is coming? (Jl '16)

- European anarchy. Dickinson, G. L. (Je '16)
 European regulations for prevention of occupational diseases. N. Y. (state). Labor, Dept. of. (Jl '16)

European war, 1914-

- American Jewish committee. Jews in the eastern war zone. (Ja '17)
 American Whitaker almanac and encyclopedia for 1916. (Mr '16)
 Annual register, 1915. (Jl '16)
 Anzac book. (O '16)
 Baldwin, J. M. American neutrality. (Jl '16)
 Beck, J. M. War and humanity. (Ja '17)
 Heith, J: H. First hundred thousand. (Mr '16)
 Belloc, H. Elements of the great war; the second phase. (O '16)
 Bergson, H. L: Meaning of the war, life and matter in conflict. (My '16)
 Bingham, A., ed. Handbook of the European war, v. 2. (Mr '16)
 Blakeslee, G: H., ed. Problems and lessons of the war. (Je '16)
 Bourne, R. S. comp. Towards an enduring peace. (Ja '17)
 Boutroux, E. Philosophy and war. (D '16)
 Brewer, D. C. Rights and duties of neutrals. (Ap '16)
 Buchan, J: Nelson's History of the war. (My '16)
 Chesterton, G. K. Crimes of England. (Mr '16)
 Davenport, B. History of the great war, 1914-. (Ap '16)
 Doyle, Sir A. C. History of the great war. (F '17)
 Gould, B: A. Greater tragedy. (Jl '16)
 Herrick, R. World decision. (Mr '16)
 Hind, C: L. Soldier-boy. (O '16)
 Huefer, F. M. Between St. Dennis and St. George. (My '16)
 Humphrey, A. W. International socialism and the war. (Ag '16)
 Kerr, S. P. What the Irish regiments have done. (My '16)
 Key, E. K. S. War, peace, and the future. (N '16)
 Leask, G: A. Heroes of the great war. (F '17)
 Le Bon, G. Psychology of the great war. (F '17)
 Lodge, O. J. War and after. (My '16)
 MacDonagh, M. Irish at the front. (Ag '16)
 MacGill, F. Red horizon. (My '16)
 McGuire, J. K. What could Germany do for Ireland? (Je '16)
 Meinecke, F. Warfare of a nation. (Jl '16)
 Münsterberg, H. Tomorrow. (D '16)
 Neibolt, Sir H: J. Tales of the great war. (F '17)
 Orth, S: P. Imperial impulse. (Ap '16)
 Paget, S. Essays for boys and girls. (Ap '16)
 Patterson, J. M. Note book of a neutral. (Mr '16)
 Philipson, C. International law and the great war. (O '16)
 Pratz, C. de. Frenchwoman's notes on the war. (D '16)
 Protheroe, E. Noble woman [Edith Cavell]. Radziwill, C., princess. Sovereigns and statesmen of Europe. (S '16)
 Red cross and Iron cross. (F '17)
 Reed, J: War in eastern Europe. (Je '16)
 Reilly, H: J. Why preparedness. (O '16)
 Reynolds, F. J., and others. Story of the great war. (F '17)
 Robertson, J: M. War and civilization. (S '16)
 Royce, J. Hope of the great community. (F '17)
 Sabatier, P. Frenchman's thoughts on the war. (Ap '16)
 Trotter, W. Instincts of the herd in peace and war. (N '16)
 Warwick, F. E. G., countess of. A woman and the war. (F '17)
 Waxweiler, E. Belgium and the great powers. (D '16)
 Wells, H. G: What is coming? (Jl '16)

Wharton, E. N., ed. Book of the homeless. (Mr '16)

Addresses, sermons, etc.

International crisis in its ethical and psychological aspects. (Je '16)

Maeterlinck, M. Wrack of the storm. (N '16)

Rolland, R. Above the battle. (My '16)

Zangwill, I. War for the world. (S '16)

Atrocities

Davignon, H., comp. Belgium and Germany. (Jl '16)

Gleason, A. H. and H. H. Golden lads. (My '16)

Maccas, L. German barbarism. (N '16)

Morgan, J.: H. German atrocities. (Je '16)

Somville, G. Road to Liège. (Ja '17)

Belgium

Book of Belgium's gratitude. (Ap '16)

Hunt, E.: E. War bread. (Ja '17)

Massart, J. Belgians under the German eagle. (O '16)

Visscher, C.: de. Belgium's case. (F '17)

Bibliography

Lange, F.: W. T., and Berry, W. T. Books on the great war. (My '16)

Campaigns and battles

Aitken, W.: M. Canada in Flanders. (Je '16)

Fortescue, G. R. Russia, the Balkans and the Dardanelles. (My '16)

Hamilton, Lord E. W.: First seven divisions. (Jl '16)

Le Goffic, C.: Dixmude, the epic of the French marines. (O '16)

Mallet, C.: Impressions and experiences of a French trooper, 1914-1915. (Ag '16)

Masefield, J.: Gallipoli. (N '16)

Newton, W. D.: Undying story. (My '16)

Patterson, J.: H. With the Zionists in Gallipoli. (Ag '16)

Recouly, R.: General Joffre and his battles. (D '16)

Simonds, F. H.: They shall not pass. (Jl '16)

Souza, C.: de. Germany in defeat; second phase. (N '16)

Washburn, S.: Victory in defeat. (Jl '16)

Wilkinson, N. L.: Dardanelles. (My '16)

Cartoons

Adam, H. P., ed. International cartoons of the war. (Ja '17)

Cesare, O. E.: One hundred cartoons. (Ja '17)

Raemaeker, L.: Cartoons. (D '16)

Causes

Bénézet, L.: P. Story of the map of Europe. (Je '16)

Beyens, E., baron. Germany before the war. (F '17)

Boudin, L.: B. Socialism and war. (Mý '16)

Bullard, A.: Diplomacy of the great war. (Mr '16)

Carpenter, E.: Healing of nations and the hidden sources of their strife. (Mr '16)

Dickinson, G. L.: European anarchy. (Je '16)

Fernau, H.: Because I am a German. (Jl '16)

Granger, A. H.: England's world empire. (F '17)

Guyot, Y.: Causes and consequences of the war. (N '16)

Hovelague, É. L.: Deeper causes of the war. (N '16)

Howe, F.: C. Why war. (Jl '16)

Kelly, M.: Carlyle and the war. (My '16)

Lincoln, I. T.: T. Revelations of an international spy. (Mr '16)

Meyer, E.: England; its political organization and development and the war against Germany. (F '17)

Milloud, M.: Ruling caste and frenzied trade in Germany. (Je '16)

Modern Germany. (Jl '16)

Muirhead, J.: H. German philosophy in relation to the war. (Je '16)

Nyström, A. K.: Before, during, and after 1914. (Jl '16)

Powers, H. H.: Things men fight for. (Ag '16)

Schmitt, B. E.: England and Germany, 1740-1914. (Je '16)

Seton-Watson, R. W.: German, Slav, and Magyar. (O '16)

Thayer, W.: R. Germany vs. civilization. (Ap '16)

Waldstein, Sir C.: Aristodemocracy. (S '16)

Diplomatic history

Bullard, A.: Diplomacy of the great war. (Mr '16)

Murray, G.: Foreign policy of Sir Edward Grey, 1906-1915. (Jl '16)

Seymour, C.: Diplomatic background of the war, 1870-1914. (Jl '16)

Drama

Aiken, E.: Hate breeders. (Jl '16)

Economic aspects

Cole, G.: D. H. Labor in war time. (Ap '16)

Ferguson, C.: Great news. (Mr '16)

Hobson, J.: A. New protectionism. (F '17)

Howe, F.: C. Why war. (Jl '16)

Jones, J. H.: Economics of war and conquest. (Jl '16)

Milloud, M.: Ruling caste and frenzied trade in Germany. (Je '16)

O'Laughlin, J.: C. Imperiled America. (Ag '16)

Steinmetz, C.: P. America and the new epoch. (D '16)

Fiction

See Fiction—European war

Finance

Noyes, A. D.: Financial chapters of the war. (F '17)

France

Baldwin, J. M.: France and the war. (Jl '16)

Drumont, Mme. E. A.: French mother in war time. (D '16)

France, A.: Path of glory. (Mr '16)

Gaëll, R.: Priests in the firing line. (D '16)

Johnson, O. M.: Spirit of France. (Mr '16)

Sabatier, P.: Frenchman's thoughts on the war. (Ap '16)

Germany

Eastman, M.: Understanding Germany. (D '16)

Hindenburg's march into London. (My '16)

Hugins, R.: Germany misjudged. (Jl '16)

Modern Germany. (Jl '16)

Smith, T.: F. A. What Germany thinks. (Ap '16)

Great Britain

Cable, B.: Doing their bit. (S '16)

Ward, M. A.: England's effort. (Jl '16)

Hospitals, charities, etc.

Barker, G.: Red cross in France. (F '17)

Boyd, W.: With a field ambulance at Ypres. (Ja '17)

Cator, D.: In a French military hospital. (Ap '16)

Dearmer, M.: Letters from a field hospital. (Ap '16)

La Motte, E. N.: Backwash of war. (N '16)

Livingston, S., and Steen-Hansen, I.: Under three flags. (O '16)

"Mademoiselle Miss." (O '16)

Toland, E.: D. Aftermath of battle. (Mr '16)

Van Vorst, M.: War letters of an American woman. (Ap '16)

Italy

Dillon, E. J.: From the triple to the quadruple alliance. (Jl '16)

Peace and mediation

Bourne, R. S., comp. Towards an enduring peace. (Ja '17)

Fried, A. H.: Restoration of Europe. (Ag '16)

Hugins, R.: Possible peace. (F '17)

Jordan, D.: S. Ways to lasting peace. (Mr '16)

Jordan, D.: S. World peace and the college man. (Je '16)

Mez, J.: R., comp. Peace literature of the war. (Jl '16)

Mlynarski, F.: J.: Problems of the coming peace. (D '16)

Warden, A. A.: Common-sense patriotism. (F '17)

Personal narratives

Aaronsohn, A.: With the Turks in Palestine. (Ja '17)

European war—Personal narratives —Continued

- Anzac, pseud. On the Anzac trail. (N '16)
 Boyd, W. With a field ambulance at Ypres. (Ja '17)
 Burgess, G. War—the creator. (O '16)
 Burke, K. White road to Verdun. (F '17)
 Buswell, L. Ambulance number 10. (F '17)
 Cable, B. Action front. (S '16)
 Campbell, G. F. Verdun to the Vosges. (O '16)
 Casualty, pseud. "Contemptible." (N '16)
 Coleman, F. From Mons to Ypres with General French. (S '16)
 Creighton, O. With the twenty-ninth division in Gallipoli. (D '16)
 Davis, R. H. With the French in France and Salonika. (Je '16)
 Doyle, Sir A. C. Visit to three fronts. (D '16)
 Dupont, M. In the field (1914-1915). (O '16)
 France, A., pseud. Path of glory. (Mr '16)
 Friends of France, (N '16)
 G., H. L. Meanwhile—a packet of war letters. (F '17)
 Gallishaw, J. Trenching at Gallipoli. (D '16)
 Gleason, A. H. and H. H. Golden lads. (My '16)
 Gomez-Carrillo, E. Among the ruins. (Jl '16)
 Gordon, J. and C. J. Luck of thirteen. (Ag '16)
 Grant, R. Their spirit. (F '17)
 Grondys, L. H. Germans in Belgium. (Je '16)
 Hale, W. By motor to the firing line. (Je '16)
 Hall, J. N. Kitchener's mob. (Jl '16)
 Huard, F. My home in the field of honour. (Jl '16)
 Hunt, E. E. War bread. (Ja '17)
 Johnson, O. M. Spirit of France. (Mr '16)
 La Motte, E. N. Backwash of war. (N '16)
 Lapradelle, A. G. de, and Coudert, F.; R., comps. War letters from France. (Ag '16)
 Le Guiner, J. Letters from France. (Ja '17)
 Livingston, S., and Steen-Hansen, I. Under three flags. (O '16)
 Lodge, Sir O. J. Raymond. (F '17)
 McClellan, G. B. Heel of war. (Mr '16)
 Macdonald, M. Some experiences in Hungary, August 1914 to January 1915. (N '16)
 MacGill, P. Great push. (O '16)
 McNair, W. Blood and iron. (O '16)
 Macnaughtan, S. Woman's diary of the war. (D '16)
 Mallet, C. Impressions and experiences of a French trooper, 1914-1915. (Ag '16)
 Martin, A. A. Surgeon in khaki. (Ap '16)
 Milne, J. News from "Somewhere." (My '16)
 Morgan, J. H. Leaves from a field note-book. (My '16)
 Morlae, E. Soldier of the legion. (Ag '16)
 Morse, J. In the Russian ranks. (Je '16)
 My secret service. (Ag '16)
 Northcliffe, A. C. W. H., 1st baron. At the war. (Ja '17)
 Pares, B. Day by day with the Russian army, 1914-1915. (My '16)
 Patterson, J. H. With the Zionists in Gallipoli. (Ag '16)
 Robinson, W. J. My fourteen months at the front. (My '16)
 Rosher, H. With the flying squadron. (Ja '17)
 Ruhl, A. B. Antwerp to Gallipoli. (My '16)
 Sweetser, A. Roadside glimpses of the great war. (Mr '16)
 Turczynowicz, L. de G. When the Prussians came to Poland. (F '17)
 "Wagger," pseud. Battery flashes. (N '16)
 Washburn, S. Victory in defeat. (Jl '16)
 Watson, W. H. L. Adventures of a despatch rider. (O '16)
 Wile, F. W. Assault. (Ap '16)
 Williams, W. Spurred by the censor. (Jl '16)
 Winniffrith, D. P. Church in the fighting line with General Smith-Dorrien at the front. (D '16)
 With my regiment from the Aisne to La Bassée. (O '16)

Poetry

- Cunliffe, J. W., comp. Poems of the great war. (Ja '17)
 Frankau, G. Song of the guns. (O '16)
 Gibson, W. W. Battle. (My '16)
 Lee, J. Ballads of battle. (F '17)
 Seaman, O. War-time verses. (My '16)

- Service, R. W. Rhymes of a Red cross man. (F '17)

Poland

- Turczynowicz, L. de G. When the Prussians came to Poland. (F '17)

Prisoners and prisons

- O'Rorke, B. G. In the hands of the enemy. (Mr '16)
 Pyke, G. To Ruhleben—and back. (My '16)
 Roxburgh, R. F. Prisoners of war information bureau in London. (Je '16)
 Warnod, A. Prisoner of war. (Ag '16)

Prophecies

- Wellman, W. German republic. (S '16)

Refugees

- Doroshevich, V. M. Way of the cross. (My '16)
 Jones, F. With Serbia into exile. (O '16)
 Thurstan, V. People who run. (O '16)

Religious aspects

- Campbell, R. J. War and the soul. (O '16)
 Foakes-Jackson, F. J., ed. Faith and the war. (Je '16)
 Gaëll, R. Priests in the firing line. (D '16)
 Henson, H. H. War-time sermons. (Je '16)
 Holland, H. S. So as by fire. (Ap '16)
 Loisy, A. F. War and religion. (Je '16)
 Osborne, C. E. Religion in Europe and the world crisis. (O '16)
 Plater, C., ed. Primer of peace and war. (Je '16)

Russia

- Child, R. W. Potential Russia. (S '16)
 Pares, B. Day by day with the Russian army, 1914-1915. (My '16)

Satire

- Pepys, S., jr. pseud. Diary of the great warr. (D '16)

Servia

- Askew, A. J. de C. and C. A. C. Stricken land: Serbia as we saw it. (F '17)
 Jones, F. With Serbia into exile. (O '16)

South Africa

- Ritchie, M. With Botha in the field. (My '16)
 Robinson, J. P. K. With Botha's army. (Ag '16)
 Sampson, P. J. Capture of De Wet. (Je '16)

United States

- Am. soc. of international law. Diplomatic correspondence. (Je '16)
 Baldwin, J. M. American neutrality. (Je '16)
 Fullerton, W. M. Hesitations. (D '16)
 Lee, G. S. We. (Je '16)
 Evanescent city. Sterling. G. (Jl '16)
 Every soul hath its song. Hurst. F. (D '16)
 Every woman's flower garden. Hampden. M. (Je '16)
 Everybody's business. Eisenman. C. (F '17)
 Every-day words and their uses. Utter. R. P. (F '17)
 Evil
 Glran, E. Modern Job. (Ja '17)
 Evolution of modern Hebrew literature, 1850-1912. Waldstein. A. S. (Ja '17)
 Evolution of Prussia. Marriott. J. A. R., and Robertson, C. G. (Je '16)
 Evolution of the English corn market from the twelfth to the eighteenth century. Gras. N. S. B. (Je '16)

Excavation

- Droop, J. P. Archaeological excavation. (Ap '16)

Executive ability

- Gowin, E. B. Executive and his control of men. (F, Ap '16)
 Exemption of improvements from taxation in Canada and the United States. Haig. R. M. (Je '16)

Exercise

- Cromie, W. J. Keeping physically fit. (Mr '16)

- Exlle. Wyllarde. D. (Jl '16)

- Expectant mother. Bandler. S. W. (F '17)

- Experimental education. Freeman. F. N. (S '16)

Experimental wireless stations. Edelman, P. E. (O '16)
Expert auction. Shepard, E. V. (O '16)
Explorers, Dutch
 Loon, H. W. van. Golden book of the Dutch navigators. (D '16)
Explosives
 Ramsey, A. R. J., and Weston, H. C. Manual on explosives. (O '16)
Export trade
 Hough, B. O. Practical exporting. (Je '16)
Exporting to Latin America. Flisinger, E. B. (D '16)
Expression in singing. Kirkland, H. S. (O '16)
Fabian society
 Pease, E. R. History of the Fabian society. (Jl '16)
Factors in conduct. Mark, H. T. (Je '16)
Factory management
 Arnold, H. L., and Faurote, F. L. Ford methods and the Ford shops. (Ap '16)
 Smith, J. R. Elements of industrial management. (S '16)
Fairy bride. O'Connor, N. J. (O '16)
Fairy gold. Bates, K. L. (Ja '17)
Fairy operettas. Richards, L. E. (Ja '17)
Fairy tale plays. Merington, M. (F '17)
Fairy tales
Allies' fairy book. (Ja '17)
 Dixon, E., ed. Fairy tales from the Arabian nights. (My '16)
 Jacobs, J. Europa's fairy book. (Mr '16)
 Mackenzie, D. A. Indian fairy tales. (Ag '16)
 Pyle, K. Wonder tales retold. (D '16)
 Steele, R., ed. Russian garland of fairy tales. (D '16)
History and criticism
 Kready, L. F. Study of fairy tales. (F '17)
See also Folklore
Faith and the war. Foakes-Jackson, F. J., ed. (Je '16)
Fall of a nation. Dixon, T. (Ag '16)
False gods. See Brieux, E. Woman on her own
False saint. Curel, F. de. (F '17)
Familiar letters, English and American. Greenlaw, E. A., ed. (Ap '16)
Family
 Goodsell, W. History of the family as a social and educational institution. (Je '16)
Family. Mordaunt, E., pseud. (Jl '16)
Famous four-footed friends. Harvey, G. C. (F '17)
Famous painters of America. McSpadden, J. W. (F '17)
Famous sculpture. Barstow, C. L. (F '17)
Far cry. Rideout, H. M. (F '17)
Fares, please! Luccock, H. E. (My '16)
Farm buildings
 French, T. E., and Ives, F. W. Agricultural drawing and the design of farm structures. (Ag '16)
 Seaton, R. A. Concrete construction of rural communities. (O '16)
Farm forestry. Ferguson, J. A. (Ja '17)
Farm mortgage handbook. Robins, K. N. (O '16)
Farm produce
Marketing
 Adams, A. B. Marketing perishable farm products. (D '16)
 Weld, L.; D. H. Marketing of farm products. (My '16)
 Weld, L.; D. H. Studies in the marketing of farm products. (My '16)
Farm that Jack built. Stoddard, W. O. (Je '16)
Father Bernard's parish. Olmstead, F. (Jl '16)
Father Payne. Benson, A. C. (Mr '16)
Fathers and mothers. Betts, G. H. (My '16)
Fatigue
 Gilbreth, F. B. and L. M. Fatigue study. (Ag '16)
Favorite motor ways of New England. Baker, L. H. (Je '16)
Favourites of a nursery of seventy years ago. Forbes, E. E., comp. (D '16)
Fear God and take your own part. Roosevelt, T. (Mr '16)

Federal council of the churches of Christ in America
 Macfarland, C. S., ed. Churches of the Federal council. (O '16)
Federal executive. Hill, J. P. (Jl '16)
Federal farm loan system. Myrick, H. (N '16)
Feeding the family. Rose, M. S. (Ja '17)
Felicity Crofton. Bryant, M. (Mr '16)
Fellow captains. Cleghorn, S. N., and Fisher, D. F. (Ja '17)
Fels, Joseph, 1854-1914
 Fels, M. Joseph Fels. (O '16)
Feminism
 Martin, J. and P. M. Feminism. (My '16)
 Fibble, D. D. Cobb, I. S. (D '16)
Fiction
 Phelps, W. L. Advance of the English novel. (O '16)

FICTION

Adventure

Bindloss, H. Coast of adventure. (Mr '16)
 Brady, C. T. Baby of the frontier. (Mr '16)
 Burroughs, E. R. Beasts of Tarzan. (My '16)
 Casey, P. and T. Strange story of William Hyde. (Ag '16)
 Grey, Z. Border legion. (Ag '16)
 Grimshaw, B. E. My lady of the island. (My '16)
 Haggard, H. R. Ivory child. (My '16)
 Hudson, W. H. Purple land. (O '16)
 Kendall, O. Romance of the Martin Connor. (N '16)
 Mundy, T. King—of the Khyber rifles. (F '17)
 Oyen, H. Snow-burner. (Ja '17)
 Parrish, R. "Contraband." (F '17)
 Rhodes, E. M. Desire of the moth. (Jl '16)
 Rideout, H. M. Far cry. (F '17)
 Rose, F. H. Golden glory. (S '16)
 Royle, E. M. Peace and quiet. (F '17)
 Spearman, F. H. Nan of Music mountain. (My '16)
 Stacpoole, H. D. Gold trail. (Ag '16)
 Tracy, L. His unknown wife. (F '17)
 White, S. E. Leopard woman. (D '16)

American Indians

New Mexico

Bandelier, A. F. A. Delight makers. (F '17)

Americans abroad

Andrews, M. R. S. Old Glory. (S '16)
 Whitman, S. F. Children of hope. (Je '16)

Animal stories

Curwood, J. O. Grizzly king. (N '16)
 Darling, E. B. Baldy of Nome. (D '16)
 Dyer, W. Gulliver the Great. (N '16)
 Paine, A. B. Hollow tree nights and days. (Ja '17)
 Roberts, C. G. D. Secret trails. (Ja '17)
 Saunders, M. Wandering dog. (F '17)

Army life

Kuprin, A. I. Duel. (My '16)
 Seawell, M. E. Betty at Fort Blizzard. (F '17)

Artist life

Gibbon, J. M. Hearts and faces. (Jl '16)
 Hodges, A. Pincus Hood. (N '16)
 Johnson, O. M. Woman gives. (S '16)
 Merwin, S. Trufflers. (D '16)
 Norris, C. G. Amateur. (Ap '16)

Authorship

Snaith, J. C. Sailor. (O '16)

Business life

Bartlett, F. O. Wall street girl. (N '16)
 Updegraff, R. R. Obvious Adams. (Ja '17)

Character studies

Chamberlain, G. A. John Bogardus. (Mr '16)
 Kaye-Smith, S. Sussex gorse. (Ja '17)
 Matheson, C. M. Generation between. (My '16)
 Sidgwick, E. Hatchways. (D '16)
 Steele, L. M., pseud. Dr. Nick. (D '16)

Cheerful stories

Barbour, R. H. Heart's content. (Mr '16)
 Bell, J. J. Cupid in oilskins. (F '17)

Fiction—Cheerful stories—Continued

- Bland, E. Incredible honeymoon. (Ja '17)
 Burnet, D. Shining adventure. (Ja '17)
 Burnham, C. L. Instead of the thorn. (Je '16)
 Cooper, E. Drusilla with a million. (Mr '16)
 Delano, E. B. When Carey came to town. (Je '16)
 Donnell, A. Miss Theodosia's heartstrings. (D '16)
 Doyle, L., pseud. Mr. Wildridge of the bank. (D '16)
 Gould, E. L. Cap'n Gid. (Ja '17)
 Hueston, E. Prudence says so. (S '16)
 Jepson, E. Alice Devine. (Ap '16)
 Johnston, A. Georgina of the rainbows. (Ja '17)
 Kerr, S. Love at large. (Ap '16)
 Lerrigo, C. H. Castle of cheer. (Ag '16)
 Locke, S. Samaritan Mary. (Je '16)
 Locke, W. J. Wonderful year. (N '16)
 Lowndes, M. A. (Belloc). Good old Anna. (Ag '16)
 McCutcheon, G. B. Light that lies. (My '16)
 Maniates, B. K. Mildew manse. (Mr '16)
 Mearns, H. Richard Richard. (D '16)
 Miller, A. D. Come out of the kitchen! (Jl '16)
 Peacocke, I. M. My friend Phil. (Ap '16)
 Peple, E. H. Auto-biography. (Mr '16)
 Perry, M. Blossomy cottage. (Je '16)
 Porter, E. H. Just David. (Ap '16)
 Putnam, N. W. Adam's garden. (Je '16)
 Richmond, G. L. Under the country sky. (Jl '16)
 Rowland, H. G. Filling his own shoes. (F '17)
 Sawyer, R. Seven miles to Arden. (Je '16)
 Smith, H. L. Other people's business. (D '16)
 Sterrett, F. R. Mary Rose of Miffin. (Ag '16)
 Tarkington, B. Seventeen. (Ap '16)
 Wemyss, M. E. C. Jaunty in charge. (O '16)
Christian science, mental healing, new thought Bell, L. L. About Miss Mattie Morningglory. (Je '16)

Christmas stories

- Brady, C. T. And thus He came. (Ja '17)
 Burnett, F. Little hunchback Zia. (N '16)
 Page, T. N. Shepherd who watched by night. (D '16)
 Sawyer, R. This way to Christmas. (F '17)
 Wiggin, K. D. Romance of a Christmas card. (N '16)

Country life

- Brunkhurst, H. Window in the fence. (Jl '16)
 Eaton, W. P. Bird house man. (O '16)
 Hammond, L. In the garden of delight. (F '17)
 Harris, C. M. Circuit rider's widow. (Ja '17)
 Showerman, G. Country chronicle. (D '16)

Crime

- Reeve, A. B. Constance Dunlap, woman detective. (Jl '16)

Criminal trials and prisons

- England, G. A. Alibi. (Ap '16)

Detective stories

See Mystery stories; Secret service

Engineering

- Brady, C. T. and C. T., jr. Web of steel. (My '16)

European war

- Benjamin, R. Private Gaspard. (S '16)
 Bourget, P. The night cometh. (Jl '16)
 Chambers, R. W. Girl Philippa. (S '16)
 Herrick, R. Conscript mother. (O '16)
 Hindenburg's march into London. (Jl '16)
 Leblanc, M. Woman of mystery. (F '17)
 Meynell, W. Halt! Who's there? (Jl '16)
 Ollivant, A. Brown mare. (D '16)
 Palmer, F. Old blood. (Ja '17)
 Sapper, pseud. Men, women and guns. (Ja '17)
 Sapper, pseud. Michael Cassidy, sergeant. (O '16)
 Stilgebauer, E. Love's inferno. (N '16)
 Tracy, L. Day of wrath. (Jl '16)

- Walpole, H. S. Dark forest. (Jl '16)
 Wood, W. In the line of battle. (Ja '17)

Finance

- Buck, C. N. Destiny. (Je '16)
 Hannay, J. O. Gossamer. (Mr '16)
 Lefevre, E. Wall street stories. (Mr '16)

Frontier lifeUnited States

- Grey, Z. Border legion. (Ag '16)

Great Britain in war-time

- Bindloss, H. Johnstone of the border. (O '16)
 Castle, A. and E. Little house in war time. (D '16)
 Copplestone, B. Jitney and the boys. (D '16)
 Hamilton, M. A. Dead yesterday. (N '16)
 Hannah, I. C. Quaker-born. (F '17)
 Lowndes, M. A. (Belloc). Good old Anna. (Ag '16)
 Lucas, E. V. Vermilion box. (D '16)
 Neilson, F. Strong man's house. (D '16)
 Onions, B. R. In another girl's shoes. (O '16)
 Palmer, J. L. King's men. (Jl '16)
 Sherwood, M. P. Worn doorstep. (D '16)
 Wells, H. G. Mr. Britling sees it through. (O '16)

Heredity and environment

- Comstock, H. T. Vindication. (Ap '16)
 Coxon, M. Individual. (Ap '16)

Historical novelsCanada

- Cooney, P. J. Kinsmen. (Ja '17)

Early Christians

- Schuyler, W. Hope of glory. (O '16)
Egypt (Alexandria) 4th cent. A. D.
 Harré, T. E. Behold the woman! (Je '16)

England

- Kingsley, C. Tutor's story. (D '16)
 McCarthy, J. H. In spacious times. (F '17)

France

- Castle, A. and E. Wind's will. (O '16)
 Margueritte, P. and V. Strasbourg. (My '16)

Italy

- Candler, P. Testore. (N '16)
 Sabatini, R. Banner of the bull. (Mr '16)

Netherlands

- Orczy, E. Leatherface. (D '16)

Palestine

- Moore, G. Brook Kerith. (O '16)

Scotland

- Foster, J. Bright eyes of danger. (O '16)

South America (Paraguay)

- White, E. L. El supremo. (D '16)

Spain

- Cresswell, C. M. Making and breaking of Almansur. (Mr '16)

United States

- Altsheler, J. A. Shades of the Wilderness. (Jl '16)
 Dickson, H. House of luck. (F '17)
 Goodrich, A. F. Sign of freedom. (S '16)
 Hough, E. Magnificent adventure. (N '16)
 Howells, W. D. Leatherwood god. (D '16)
 King, G. E. Pleasant ways of St. Médard. (O '16)
 McCoy, S. Tippecanoe. (My '16)
 Singmaster, E. Emmeline. (Ap '16)
 Townsend, F. S. Hugh Graham. (O '16)

Humor

- Anstey, F., pseud. In brief authority. (My '16)
 Caine, W. Bildad the quill-driver. (Mr '16)
 Caine, W. Great-snakes! (N '16)
 Cobb, I. S. Fiddle, D. D. (D '16)
 Dodge, H. I. Skinner's dress suit. (Ja '17)
 Fitch, G. Petey Simmons at Siwash. (N '16)
 French, A. Susan Clegg and her love affairs. (Je '16)

Marquis, D. Cruise of the Jasper B. (S '16)
O'Brien, S. Whale and the grasshopper. (F '17)

Rinehart, M. Tish. (S '16)
Stinde, J. E. W. Hausfrau rampant. (O '16)
Tarkington, B. Penrod and Sam. (N '16)
Wilson, H. L. Somewhere in Red Gap. (N '16)
Wodehouse, P. G. Psmith, journalist. (Je '16)

Immigrants in America

Miniter, E. M. Our Natupski neighbors. (Ja '17)
Tobenkin, E. Witte arrives. (S '16)

Intemperance

Johnson, F. K. Beloved son. (D '16)
Roe, V. E. Divine egotist. (F '17)
Turnbull, M. Handle with care. (Mr '16)

Jesus of Nazareth

Moore, G. Brook Kerith. (O '16)

Labor movement

Co-operative movement

Nexø, M. A. Pelle the conqueror: daybreak. (F '17)

Lawyers

Kelland, C. B. Hidden spring. (Jl '16)
Nyburg, S. L. Conquest. (Mr '16)

Lumber camps

Oyen, H. Snow-burner. (Ja '17)
Sinclair, B. W. Big timber. (O '16)

Marriage

Corbett, E. F. Cecily and the wide world. (D '16)
George, W. L. Strangers' wedding. (Mr '16)
Glasgow, E. A. Life and Gabriella. (Mr '16)
Hale, B. F. Nest-builder. (O '16)
Harraden, B. Guiding thread. (N '16)
Hewlett, M. H. Love and Lucy. (N '16)
Huston, E. L. Towers of Ilium. (Ja '17)
Lynch, J. G. B. Complete gentleman. (F '17)
Mackenzie, C. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce. (My '16)
Macnamara, R. S. Drifting waters. (Ap '16)
Morris, E. B. Our Miss York. (My '16)
Norris, K. Heart of Rachael. (S '16)
Sinclair, M. Belfry. (Mr '16)
Thurston, E. T. Five-barred gate. (Ja '17)
Webster, H. K. Real adventure. (Mr '16)
Wolf, E. Fulfillment. (Je '16)

Morphine

Frankau, J. Twilight. (Mr '16)

Musicians

Aumonier, S. Olga Bardel. (N '16)
Benson, E. F. Michael. (F '17)

Mystery stories

Atherton, G. F. Mrs. Balfame. (Mr '16)
Biggers, E. D. Agony column. (Ja '17)
Bindloss, H. Johnstone of the border. (O '16)
Bonner, G. Black eagle mystery. (My '16)
Brebner, P. J. Master detective. (Je '16)
Brodie-Innes, J. W. Tragedy of an indiscretion. (Ag '16)
Buchan, J. Power-house. (N '16)
Camp, W. House of fear. (D '16)
Drake, M. Ocean sleuth. (Ap '16)
Freest, F. Maelstrom. (F '17)
Green, A. K. To the minute. (N '16)
Hopkins, N. M. Strange cases of Mason Brant. (Ag '16)
Leblanc, M. Woman of mystery. (F '17)
Lefevre, E. Plunderers. (Ag '16)
Lincoln, N. S. I spy. (N '16)
Luehrmann, A. Curious case of Marie Dupont. (O '16)
McFarlane, A. E. Behind the bolted door? (Ap '16)
MacHarg, W., and Balmer, E. Blind man's eyes. (Ap '16)
Marquis, D. Cruise of the Jasper B. (S '16)
Norris, W. E. Troubled Tranton. (My '16)
Roche, A. S. Loot. (S '16)
Rohmer, S., pseud. Return of Dr. Fu-Manchu. (S '16)
Wallace, E. Clue of the twisted candle. (D '16)

Watson, J. R., and Rees, A. J. Hampstead mystery. (F '17)
Wells, C. Bride of a moment. (O '16)
Wells, C. Curved blades. (Ap '16)

Newspaper life

Eaton, W. P. Peanut—club reporter. (F '17)

Novels from plays

Ballard, F. Young America. (My '16)
Bell, J. K. Forked lightning (Play: The green flag). (Je '16)
Harcourt, C. Pair of silk stockings. (My '16)

Novels of locality

Africa

White, S. E. Leopard woman. (D '16)

Arabian coast

Wyllarde, D. Exile. (Jl '16)

Arizona

Wright, H. B. When a man's a man. (O '16)

Asia Minor

Pickthall, M. W. House of war. (Jl '16)

Australia

Praed, R. Lady Bridget of the never-never land. (Je '16)

California

London, J. Little lady of the big house. (My '16)

Canada

Curwood, J. O. Hunted woman. (Ap '16)
Parker, Sir G. World for sale. (O '16)
Patterson, I. Shadow riders. (Ap '16)
Proctor, G. A. Gleams of scarlet. (Ap '16)
Sinclair, B. W. Big timber. (O '16)
Van Schaick, G. G. Girl at Big Loon post. (O '16)

Chicago

Lewis, E. H. Those about Trench. (Mr '16)

China

Comfort, W. L. Last ditch. (D '16)
Fitch, A. H. Breath of the dragon. (Ja '17)

Constantinople

Grasp of the sultan. (Ag '16)

Cuba

Beach, R. E. Rainbow's end. (D '16)

Denmark

Nexø, M. A. Pelle the conqueror: daybreak. (F '17)

England (London)

McFee, W. Casuals of the sea. (N '16)
Ridge, W. P. Kennedy people. (Ag '16)

England (Oxford)

Ward, M. A. Lady Connie. (D '16)

England (provincial and rural)

Bank, W. D., pseud. Average woman. (D '16)
Benson, E. F. Oakleyites. (Mr '16)
Beresford, J. D. These Lynnekers. (Ag '16)
Booth, E. C. Fondie. (S '16)
Buckrose, J. E. Round-about. (Jl '16)
Butler, S. Way of all flesh. (Ag '16)
Cannan, G. Three sons and a mother. (S '16)
Gray, M., pseud. World-mender. (S '16)
Holme, C. Home coming. (Jl '16)
Kaye-Smith, S. Sussex gorse. (Ja '17)
Marshall, A. Watermeads. (N '16)
Moore, L. Wiser folly. (My '16)
Mordaunt, E. Family. (Jl '16)
Norris, W. E. Proud Peter. (F '17)
Phillipotts, E. Green alleys. (O '16)
Powys, J. C. Rodmoor. (D '16)
Riley, W. Netherleigh. (Ap '16)

France

Duryea, N. L. Sentimental dragon. (Ag '16)
Locke, W. J. Wonderful year. (N '16)
Packard, F. L. Beloved traitor. (Ap '16)
Smith, F. B. Babette. (My '16)

Georgia

Harben, W. N. Second choice. (N '16)
Harris, C. M. Circuit rider's widow. (Ja '17)

Fiction—Novels of locality—ContinuedGermany

Stinde, J. E. W. Hausfrau rampart. (O '16)

Greece

Dragoumis, J. D. Man of Athens. (F '17)

India

Diver, K. H. M. Desmond's daughter. (N '16)

Harrison, M. S. Damaris. (N '16)

Mundy, T. King—of the Khyber rifles. (F '17)

Tagore, Sir R. Hungry stones and other stories. (N '16)

Wylie, I. A. R. Hermit doctor of Gaya. (Ag '16)

Ireland

Doyle, L., pseud. Mr. Wildridge of the bank. (D '16)

Lyle, M. Unhappy in thy daring. (S '16)

Italy

Gwynne, A. Bathing-man. (Ja '17)

Lorimer, N. O. God's carnival. (Ja '17)

Kentucky

Cobb, I. S. Old Judge Priest. (Je '16)

Kelly, E. M. Kildares of Storm. (D '16)

Macdonald, E. Red debt. (Ag '16)

Obenchain, E. C. Clover and blue grass. (N '16)

Labrador

Wallace, D. Bobby of the Labrador. (F '17)

Latin America

Adams, S: H. Unspeakable Perk. (S '16)

Louisiana

King, G. E. Pleasant ways of St. Médard. (O '16)

Lea, F. H. Chloe Malone. (O '16)

Malay peninsula

Clifford, Sir H. C. Further side of silence. (D '16)

Harrison, C. W. Magic of Malay. (F '17)

Mexico

Royle, E. M. Peace and quiet. (F '17)

New England

Bates, S. C. Geranium lady. (My '16)

Brown, A. Prisoner. (Ag '16)

Eaton, W. P. Bird house man. (O '16)

Haynes, W. Casco Bay yarns. (N '16)

Johnston, A. Georgina of the rainbows. (Ja '17)

Kline, B. Struck by lightning. (Jl '16)

Lincoln, J. C. Mary-Gusta. (D '16)

Minitier, E. M. Our Natupski neighbors. (Ja '17)

New York (city)

Allen, J. L. Cathedral singer. (Ap '16)

Graeve, O. Keys of the city. (N '16)

Hodges, A. Pincus Hood. (N '16)

Hughes, R. Thirteenth commandment. (S '16)

Merwin, S: Trufflers. (D '16)

Norris, C: G. Amateur. (Ap '16)

Olmstead, F. Father Bernard's parish. (Jl '16)

Roof, K. M. Stranger at the hearth. (F '17)

Smith, E. H. and F. B. Enoch Crane. (O '16)

North Carolina

Haynes, W. Sandhills sketches. (N '16)

Pennsylvania

Martin, H. R. Her husband's purse. (Ap '16)

Philippine Islands

Carlson, E. S. Taming of Calinga. (F '17)

Russia

Walpole, H. S. Dark forest. (Jl '16)

See also Fiction—Russian novels and storiesScotland

Fleming, G. Play-acting woman. (S '16)

Hay, J. M. Barnacles. (D '16)

Waugh, J. L. Betty Grier. (S '16)

South Africa

Rose, F. H. Golden glory. (S '16)

Young, F. E. M. Bywoner. (Ag '16)

South America

Hudson, W: H. Purple land. (O '16)

Hudson, W: H. Tales of the pampas. (Ja '17)

Kendall, O. Romance of the Martin Connor. (N '16)

Verrill, A. H. Golden city. (N '16)

South Sea islands

Grimshaw, B. E. My lady of the island. (My '16)

Stacpoole, H: D. Gold trail. (Ag '16)

Sweden

Lagerlöf, S. O. L. Emperor of Portugallia. (D '16)

Switzerland

Bottome, P. Dark tower. (N '16)

United States (eastern)

Williamson, C. N., and A. M. Lightning conductor discovers America. (Jl '16)

United States (middle-western)

Anderson, S. Windy McPherson's son. (N '16)

Child, R. W. Bodbank. (N '16)

Watts, M. S. Rudder. (Ap '16)

United States (western)

Bingham, E. A. Heart of Thunder mountain. (My '16)

Bower, B. M., pseud. Heritage of the Sioux. (D '16)

Bower, B. M., pseud. Phantom herd. (Ap '16)

Carter, M. H. Souls resurgent. (N '16)

Cullum, R. Golden woman. (My '16)

Garland, H. They of the high trails. (Je '16)

Gregory, J. Outlaw. (Mr '16)

Gregory, J. Short cut. (F '17)

Lutz, G. H. Voice in the wilderness. (F '17)

Mason, G. S., and Hillard, J: N. Golden hope. (O '16)

Monroe, A. S. Happy Valley. (Ag '16)

Rhodes, E. M. Desire of the moth. (Jl '16)

Seltzer, C: A. Range boss. (Ja '17)

Spearman, F. H. Nan of Music mountain. (My '16)

Tish, H: "—I conquered." (Ag '16)

Walsh, J: H. Cam Clarke. (Ap '16)

Virginia

Robins, S. N. Man's reach. (My '16)

Wales

Lewis, M. Chapel. (Jl '16)

Novels of society

Curtiss, P. E. Between two worlds. (D '16)

Davis, C: B. Nothing a year. (Ap '16)

Deeping, W. Bridge of desire. (Je '16)

Forman, J. M. Twin sisters. (Ap '16)

French, A. W. Tigress. (Ag '16)

Graves, C. I. M. Gilded vanity. (Ja '17)

Hilton-Turvey, C. B. Van Haavens. (N '16)

Irwin, F. Road to Mecca. (S '16)

Morris, G. We three. (My '16)

Norris, K. Heart of Rachael. (S '16)

Peel, D. C. Mrs. Jones (A). (D '16)

Prouty, O. H. Fifth wheel. (Ap '16)

Roof, K. M. Stranger at the hearth. (F '17)

Trask, K. Invisible balance sheet. (Ja '17)

Ward, M. A. Great success. (My '16)

Patriotism

Bates, S. C. Vintage. (F '17)

Politics

Blythe, S: G. Western Warwick. (Jl '16)

Prisons and prisoners

Humphreys, E. M. J. Iron stair. (Mr '16)

Psychological novels

Blackwood, A. Julius LeVallon. (N '16)

Cleghorn, S. N. Spinster. (My '16)

Fisher, D. F. Real motive. (Jl '16)

Hardy, A. S. Helen. (Ja '17)

Lawrence, D. H. Prussian officer. (Ja '17)
 Marriott, C. Davenport. (Ag '16)
 Meynell, V. Narcissus. (S '16)
 Oxenham, J. My lady of the moor. (Jl '16)
 Palmer, J. L. King's men. (Jl '16)
 Powys, J. C. Rodmoor. (D '16)
 Reid, F. At the door of the gate. (Ap '16)
 Richardson, D. M. Pilgrimage: pointed roofs. (F '17)
 Sidgwick, E. Accolade. (Mr '16)
 Wood, M. Double road. (Ap '16)
 Wright, W. H. Man of promise. (Ap '16)

Religious psychology

Howells, W. D. Leatherwood god. (D '16)

Roman Catholic church

Maher, R. A. Shepherd of the North. (Ap '16)

Romance

Hewlett, M. H. Frev and his wife. (My '16)
 Hudson, W. H. Green mansions. (Je '16)
 Norton, R. Unknown Mr. Kent. (Ja '17)
 Roland, J., pseud. Six-pointed cross in the dust. (D '16)
 Sullivan, F. P. Portion of a champion. (Je '16)

Russian novels and stories

Andreieff, L. N. Crushed flower. (F '17)
 Dostoevskii, F. M. Raw youth. (Je '16)
 Dostoevskaya, L. F. Emigrant. (Ja '17)
 Gogol, N. V. Mantle. (S '16)
 Gorky, M., pseud. Confession. (Jl '16)
 Gorky, M., pseud. Twenty-six men and a girl. (My '16)
 Korolenko, V. G. Makar's dream. (My '16)
 Kuprin, A. I. Duel. (My '16)
 Kuprin, A. I. River of life. (My '16)
 Kuprin, A. I. Slav soul. (O '16)
 Lermontov, M. Y. Hero of our time. (N '16)
 Potapenko, J. N. Russian priest. (D '16)
 Sologub, F., pseud. Little demon. (O '16)
 Sologub, F., pseud. Old house. (O '16)
 Tchekhov, A. P. Darling. (D '16)
 Tchekhov, A. P. Duel. (F '17)

Satire

Sherman, C. Only relatives invited. (Jl '16)

School and college life

Benson, E. F. David Blaize. (Ag '16)
 Brown, I. Years of plenty. (Mr '16)
 Colter, A. M. Tumbleweed. (O '16)
 Fitch, G. Petey Simmons at Siwash. (N '16)
 Gilman, D. F. Bloom of youth. (Mr '16)
 Phillips, E. Human boy and the war. (S '16)
 Sheldon, C. M. Of one blood. (Ag '16)
 Vaizey, J. College girl. (N '16)
 Williams, W. W. Whirligig of time. (Je '16)

Sea stories

Bartimeus, pseud. Naval occasions and some traits of the sailor-man. (Ap '16)
 Bartimeus, pseud. Tall ship on other naval occasions. (Ap '16)
 Connolly, J. B. Head winds. (N '16)
 Day, H. F. Blow the man down. (S '16)
 Kendall, O. Romance of the Martin Connor. (N '16)
 Masefield, J. Captain Margaret. (My '16)
 Niven, F. S. S. Glory. (Ap '16)
 Noble, E. Bottle-fillers. (Mr '16)
 Paine, R. D. Long road home. (Je '16)
 Snaith, J. C. Sailor. (O '16)

Secret service

Chambers, R. W. Girl Philippa. (S '16)
 Du Puy, W. A. Uncle Sam, detective. (D '16)
 Oppenheim, E. P. Kingdom of the blind. (D '16)
 Scott, J. R. Cab of the sleeping horse. (D '16)
 Stringer, A. J. A. Door of dread. (Je '16)

Sex problems

Hamilton, C. Sins of the children. (N '16)
 Machar, J. S. Magdalen. (D '16)

Short stories

Aldrich, M. Told in a French garden, August, 1914. (N '16)
 Andreieff, L. N. Crushed flower. (F '17)
 Andrews, M. R. S. Eternal feminine. (D '16)

Andrews, M. R. S. Old Glory. (S '16)
 Bartimeus, pseud. Naval occasions and some traits of the sailor-man. (Ap '16)
 Bartimeus, pseud. Tall ship on other naval occasions. (Ap '16)
 Bates, S. C. Vintage. (F '17)
 Beach, R. E. Crimson gardenia. (My '16)
 Beucke, E. C. M., tr. Tales by Polish authors. (Ap '16)
 Bowen, M., pseud. Shadows of yesterday. (N '16)
 Bunner, H. C. Stories. (Jl '16)
 Cabell, J. B. Certain hour. (F '17)
 Chambers, R. W. Better man. (My '16)
 Child, R. W. Bodbank. (N '16)
 Clifford, Sir H. C. Further side of silence. (D '16)
 Cobb, I. S. Local color. (D '16)
 Cobb, I. S. Old Judge Priest. (Je '16)
 Connolly, J. B. Head winds. (N '16)
 Conrad, J. Within the tides. (Mr '16)
 Dunsany, E. J. M. D. P. 18th baron. Last book of wonder. (F '17)
 Dwight, H. G. Stamboul nights. (My '16)
 Fisher, D. F. Real motive. (Jl '16)
 Fleming, G. Half lights. (D '16)
 Garland, H. They of the high trails. (Je '16)
 Gordon, S. God's remnants. (Ag '16)
 Gorky, M., pseud. Twenty-six men and a girl. (My '16)
 Graves, C. I. M. Earth to earth. (N '16)
 Grenfell, W. T. Tales of the Labrador. (D '16)
 Howells, W. D. Daughter of the storage. (My '16)
 Hudson, W. H. Tales of the pampas. (Ja '17)
 Hunt, V., and Hueffer, F. M. Zeppelin nights. (Mr '16)
 Hurst, F. Every soul hath its song. (D '16)
 Jacks, L. P. Philosophers in trouble. (N '16)
 Jesse, F. T. Beggars on horseback. (My '16)
 Jordan, E. G. Lovers' knots. (Ja '17)
 Joyce, J. Dubliners. (F '17)
 Kipling, R. Boy stories. (Jl '16)
 Korolenko, V. G. Makar's dream. (My '16)
 Kuprin, A. I. River of life. (My '16)
 Kuprin, A. I. Slav soul. (O '16)
 Lait, J. Beef, iron and wine. (D '16)
 Lawrence, D. H. Prussian officer. (Ja '17)
 Lefevre, E. Plunderers. (Ag '16)
 Lefevre, E. Wall street stories. (Mr '16)
 Lincoln, J. Turtles of Tasman. (N '16)
 Lyons, A. N. Moby lane and thereabouts. (Mr '16)
 Maupassant, H. R. A. G. de. Yvette. (Je '16)
 Mikels, R. M. R., ed. Short stories for high schools. (Je '16)
 Mille, P. Louise and Barnavaux. (Ag '16)
 Morgan, A. Imprisoned splendor. (Jl '16)
 Oberchain, E. C. Clover and blue grass. (N '16)
 O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. Best short stories of 1915. (Jl '16)
 O'Brien, S. Whale and the grasshopper. (F '17)
 Pain, B. E. O. Collected tales. (Mr '16)
 Potter, M. K. Ten beautiful years. (D '16)
 Ridge, W. P. On toast. (S '16)
 Rinehart, M. Tish. (S '16)
 Short stories from Life. (O '16)
 Sologub, F., pseud. Old house. (O '16)
 Tagore, Sir R. Hungry stones and other stories. (N '16)
 Thompson, V. Carnival of destiny. (Je '16)
 Warwick, A., pseud. Unpretenders. (My '16)
 Webster, H. K. Painted scene. (O '16)
 Wharton, E. N. Xingu and other stories. (N '16)
 White, W. A. God's puppets. (Ap '16)
 Wilson, H. L. Somewhere in Red Gap. (N '16)
 Wood, M. Willow weaver. (Ja '17)

Stories about children

Burnet, D. Shining adventure. (Ja '17)
 Dodge, L. Bonnie May. (O '16)
 Fillmore, P. H. Little question in ladies' rights. (F '17)
 Hopkins, W. J. Those Gillespies. (Jl '16)
 Malot, H. H. Nobody's boy. (Ja '17)
 Martin, G. M. Emmy Lou's road to grace. (N '16)
 Peacocke, I. M. My friend Phil. (Ap '16)
 Porter, E. H. Just David. (Ap '16)

Fiction—Stories about children —Continued
 Sterrett, F. R. Mary Rose of Mifflin. (Ag '16)
 Tarkington, B. Penrod and Sam. (N '16)
 Van Dresser, J. S. Gibby of Clamshell alley. (My '16)

Stories for boys and girls

Altsheler, J. A. Shades of the Wilderness. (Jl '16)
 Ashmun, M. E. Isabel Carleton's year. (N '16)
 Bassett, S. W. Story of glass. (F '17)
 Brown, E. A. Archer and the "Prophet." (N '16)
 Browne, B. Quest of the Golden Valley. (D '16)
 Burritt, E. C., pseud. Boy scout Crusoes. (F '17)
 Camp, W. C. Danny, the freshman. (Je '16)
 Case, C. M. Banner of the white horse. (N '16)
 Chase, M. E. Girl from the Big Horn country. (Je '16)
 Clark, H. H. Midshipman Stanford. (S '16)
 Darling, E. B. Baldy of Nome. (D '16)
 Delano, E. B. June. (N '16)
 Dix, B. M. Blithe McBride. (D '16)
 Duncan, N. Billy Topsail. (N '16)
 Eaton, W. P. Peanut—cub reporter. (F '17)
 Finn, F. J. Cupid of Campion. (F '17)
 Gaines, R. L. Treasure Flower. (Ja '17)
 Garland, J., pseud. Ross Grant, gold hunter. (N '16)
 Goodrich, A. F. Sign of freedom. (S '16)
 Gregor, E. R. War path and hunting trail. (S '16)
 Harris, G. Trail of the pearl. (N '16)
 Hendryx, J. B. Connie Morgan in Alaska. (D '16)
 Hueston, E. Prudence says so. (S '16)
 Ives, S. N. Key to Betsy's heart. (D '16)
 Johnston, C. H. L. Our little Viking cousin of long ago. (F '17)
 Knipe, E. and A. A. Polly Trotter, patriot. (D '16)
 Lloyd, E. M. Tom Anderson, dare-devil. (F '17)
 Malot, H. H. Nobody's boy. (Ja '17)
 Martin, G. M. Warwickshire lad. (Je '16)
 Marvin, E. Mary Allen. (Je '16)
 Mathewson, C. First base Faulkner. (Je '16)
 Meigs, C. Master Simon's garden. (D '16)
 Molesworth, M. L. Edmée. (F '17)
 Munn, C. C. Camp Castaway. (Ag '16)
 Paine, A. B. Hollow tree nights and days. (Ja '17)
 Peattie, E. Sarah Brewster's relatives. (N '16)
 Perkins, L. F. Cave twins. (F '17)
 Perry, L. Fullback. (F '17)
 Porter, E. H. Six Star ranch. (N '16)
 Poulsson, E. and L. E., trs. Top-of-the-world stories for boys and girls. (Ja '17)
 Quirk, L. W. Ice-boat Number one. (Ag '16)
 Rhoades, C. H. Independence of Nan. (N '16)
 Rolt-Wheeler, F. W. Monster-hunters. (Ag '16)
 Roy, L. E. Woodcraft girls at camp. (F '17)
 Seaman, A. H. Sapphire signet. (N '16)
 Seton, E. T. Wild animal ways. (Jl '16)
 Smith, M. P. Three in a camp. (F '17)
 Stoddard, W. O., jr. Farm that Jack built. (Je '16)
 Stoddard, W. O., jr. Making good in the village. (D '16)
 Taggart, M. A. Hollyhock house. (Je '16)
 Tomlinson, E. T. Scouting with Kit Carson. (D '16)
 Valzey, J. College girl. (N '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Golden city. (N '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Jungle chums. (D '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Marooned in the forest. (Ag '16)
 Wallace, D. Bobby of the Labrador. (F '17)
 Wilson, R. Russian story book. (F '17)
 Winterburn, F. M. Liberty Hall. (N '16)

Studies of social conditions

Bosher, K. L. People like that. (Je '16)
 Gorky, M., pseud. Confession. (Jl '16)
 Hallet, R. M. Trial by fire. (Ag '16)
 Kussy, N. Abyss. (Mr '16)
 McFee, W. Casuals of the sea. (N '16)
 Marshall, A. Watermeads. (N '16)

Miniter, E. M. Our Natupski neighbors. (Ja '17)
 Nexé, M. A. Pelle the conqueror: daybreak. (F '17)

Suffrage

Bennett, A. Lion's share. (D '16)

Theater and stage life

Barcyńska, H. Honey-pot. (Je '16)
 Hughes, R. Clipped wings. (Mr '16)
 McLaurin, K. L. Least resistance. (Je '16)
 Parrish, G. Carfrae's comedy. (Mr '16)
 Webster, H. K. Painted scene. (O '16)

Translated stories

Andreieff, L. N. Crushed flower. (F '17)
 Benecke, E. C. M., tr. Tales by Polish authors. (Ap '16)
 Bourget, F. C. J. Night cometh. (Jl '16)
 Boylevč, R. Gentlewoman of France. (F '17)
 Dostoevskii, F. M. Raw youth. (Je '16)
 Dostoevskaya, L. F. Emigrant. (Ja '17)
 Gogol, N. V. Mantle. (S '16)
 Gorky, M., pseud. Confession. (Jl '16)
 Gorky, M., pseud. Twenty-six men and a girl. (My '16)
 Korolenko, V. G. Makar's dream. (My '16)
 Kuprin, A. I. Duel. (My '16)
 Kuprin, A. I. River of life. (My '16)
 Lermontov, M. Y. Hero of our time. (N '16)
 Machar, J. S. Magdalen. (D '16)
 Maupassant, H. R. A. G. de. Yvette. (Je '16)
 Mille, P. Louise and Barnavaux. (Ag '16)
 Nexé, M. A. Pelle the conqueror: daybreak. (F '17)
 Potapenko, J. N. Russian priest. (D '16)
 Sologub, F., pseud. Little demon. (O '16)
 Sologub, F., pseud. Old house. (O '16)
 Stinde, J. E. W. Hausfrau rampant. (O '16)
 Tchekhov, A. P. Darling. (D '16)
 Tchekhov, A. P. Duel. (F '17)

Unclassified

Allen, R., pseud. Captain Gardiner of the International police. (Je '16)
 Benediall, B. Y. Blind sight. (Mr '16)
 Bennett, A. Gates of wrath. (Mr '16)
 Benson, S. I. pose. (Mr '16)
 Bryant, M. Felicity Crofton. (Mr '16)
 Cher, M. Immortal gymnasts. (Ap '16)
 Clemens, S. L. Mysterious stranger. (D '16)
 Cullum, R. Men who wrought. (Ja '17)
 Daviess, M. T. Daredevil. (Je '16)
 Dawson, C. Slaves of freedom. (D '16)
 Dell, E. M. Bars of iron. (Je '16)
 Dixon, T. Fall of a nation. (Ag '16)
 Dutton, L. E. Wishing moon. (F '17)
 Field, L. M. Woman of feeling. (Mr '16)
 Firth, A. Furnace of iron. (Jl '16)
 Foster, M. Rich man, poor man. (Mr '16)
 Grand, S., pseud. Winged Victory. (N '16)
 Gray, P. Golden lamp. (My '16)
 Kelly, R. J. Jim—unclassified. (D '16)
 King, B. Side of the angels. (Mr '16)
 Locke, W. J. Viviette. (Je '16)
 Lutz, G. H. Finding of Jasper Holt. (Ag '16)
 Lynd, S. Chorus. (N '16)
 Lynde, F. After the manner of men. (N '16)
 McCutcheon, G. B. From the housetops. (N '16)
 Macfarlane, P. C. Held to answer. (Mr '16)
 Meacham, A. Belle Jones. (F '17)
 Mears, M. Sheltered sex. (N '16)
 Moore, G. Muslim. (Je '16)
 Nicholson, M. Proof of the pudding. (Jl '16)
 Oppenheim, E. P. Amiable charlatan. (My '16)
 Pahlow, G. C. B. Cross of heart's desire. (D '16)
 Reynolds, G. M. Daughter pays. (Ja '17)
 Rhodes, K. Afterwards. (F '17)
 Sullivan, F. W. Star of the North. (Ag '16)
 Syrett, N. Rose Cottingham. (Mr '16)
 Thornton, M. T. When Pan pipes. (N '16)
 Tompkins, J. W. Seed of the righteous. (My '16)
 Trevena, J., pseud. A Drake, by George! (F '17)
 Vachell, H. A. Triumph of Tim. (N '16)
 Wilkinson, L. U. Buffoon. (Ja '17)
 Williamson, C. N. and A. M. Where the path breaks. (My '16)

Woman movement

- Deland, M. W. Rising tide. (S '16)
 Fifth wheel. Prouty, O. H. (Ap '16)
 Fifty million strong. Antrim, E. I. (Je '16)
 Fifty years of a civilizing force. Brearley, H. C. (O '16)
 Fifty years of a Londoner's life. Hibbert, H. G. (N '16)
 Fifty years of association work among young women, 1866-1916. Wilson, E. (Ap '16)
 Fight for food. Congdon, L. A. (F '17)
 Fighting man. Brady, W. A. (D '16)
Files and filing (documents)
 Hudders, E. R. Indexing and filing. (Ap '16)
Fillbusters
 Scroggs, W. O. Fillbusters and financiers. (Ag '16)
 Filling his own shoes. Rowland, H. C. (F '17)
Finance
 Bradbeer, W. W. Confederate and southern state currency. (Ap '16)
 Withers, H. International finance. (O '16)
Financial chapters of the war. Noyes, A. D. (F '17)
Financing the public schools. Clark, E. (My '16)
Finding of Jasper Holt. Lutz, G. H. (Ag '16)
Finding the worth while in California. Saunders, C. F. (F '17)
Finland
 Steffansson, J. Denmark and Sweden, with Iceland and Finland. (F '17)
Fire protection
 Brearley, H. C. Fifty years of a civilizing force. (O '16)
 Weeks, A. D. Avoidance of fires. (O '16)
Firemen
 Crump, I. Boys' book of firemen. (N '16)
First aid in illness and injury
 Eliason, E. L. First aid in emergencies. (Ag '16)
First base Faulkner. Mathewson, C. (Je '16)
First hundred thousand. Beith, J. H. (Mr '16)
First principles of electricity. Homans, J. E. (Ja '17)
First Russian book. Forbes, N. (O '16)
First seven divisions. Hamilton, E. W. (Jl '16)
Fishing
 Hough, E. Let us go afield. (Jl '16)
 Miller, W. H. Boys' book of hunting and fishing. (Ag '16)
 Perry, B. Fishing with a worm. (Je '16)
 Rhead, L. American trout stream insects. (Jl '16)
Five-barred gate. Thurston, E. T. (Ja '17)
Five Russian plays. Bechhofer, C. E., tr. (Ag '16)
Flashlights. Aldis, M. (Ag '16)
Flebbe, Mrs. Georg H. See Dix, B. M.
Fleming, Sandford, 1827-1915
 Burpee, L. J. Sandford Fleming, empire builder. (Jl '16)
Flies, Artificial
 Rhead, L. American trout stream insects. (Jl '16)
Flora of the northwest coast. Piper, C. V. and Beattie, R. K. (Ag '16)
Floriculture. See Gardening
Flotation process. Megraw, H. A. (F '17)
Flowers
 Keeler, H. L. Our early wild flowers. (Ap '16)
 Trevena, J., pseud. Adventures among wild flowers. (My '16)
Folk lore
 Afanasiev, A. N. Russian folk tales. (Ag '16)
 Cole, M. comp. Philippine folk tales. (F '17)
 Colum, P. King of Ireland's son. (Ja '17)
 Hamel, F. Human animals. (Ja '17)
 Neogi, D. N. Sacred tales of India. (D '16)
 Schoolcraft, H. R. Indian fairy book. (Ja '17)
 Schultz, J. W. Blackfeet tales of Glacier national park. (Jl '16)
 Westervelt, W. D., comp. and tr. Legends of gods and ghosts. (Mr '16)
 Wilson R. Russian story book. (F '17)

Folk songs

- Kidson, F., and Neal, M. C. S. English folk-song and dance. (My '16)
 Fondie. Booth, E. C. (S '16)
Food
 Birge, W. S. True food values and their low costs. (D '16)
 Duff, L. B. Course in household arts. (F '17)
 Kinne, H., and Cooley, A. M. Food and health. (F '17)
 Rose, M. S. Feeding the family. (Ja '17)
Food adulteration and inspection
 Congdon, L. A. Fight for food. (F '17)
 Wiley, H. W. 1001 tests of foods, beverages and toilet accessories. (F '17)
 Winton, A. L., and others. Microscopy of vegetable foods. (N '16)
Food supply
 Mendel, L. B. Changes in the food supply and their relation to nutrition. (My '16)
Football
 Edwards, W. H. Football days. (F '17)
 For England. Fielding-Hall, H. (D '16)
Ford methods and the Ford shops. Arnold, H. L., and Faurate, F. L. (Ap '16)
Fore-armed. Fortescue, G. R. (O '16)
Foreign policy of Sir Edward Grey, 1906-1915. Murray, G. (Jl '16)
Forerunners and rivals of Christianity. Legge, F. (N '16)
Forest princess. Mackay, C. D. (F '17)
Forests and forestry
 Moon, F. F. Book of forestry. (F '17)
Forked lightning. Bell, J. K. (Je '16)
Forks of the road. Gladden, W. (Je '16)
Form and colour. Philipps, L. M. (My '16)
Forty-five years in China. Richard, T. (Ja '17)
Foundation of the Ottoman empire. Gibbons, H. A. (Ap '16)
Foundations of Christian belief. Strickland, F. L. (Mr '16)
Foundations of Germany. Barker, J. E. (D '16)
Founding of Spanish California. Chapman, C. E. (D '16)
Four-dimensional vistas. Bragdon, C. F. (N '16)
Four in Crete. Beggs, G. H. (My '16)
Four Irish plays. Irvine, S. G. (Ag '16)
Four short plays. Nirdlinger, C. F. (F '17)
France
 Jerrold, L. France. (D '16)
 Sergeant, E. S. French perspectives. (D '16)
 Wergeland, A. M. History of the working classes in France. (F '17)
Description and travel
 Chase, Mrs. L. Vagabond voyage through Brittany. (Mr '16)
History
 Batiffol, L. Century of the renaissance. (My '16)
 Gregory, Saint. History of the Franks. (F '17)
 Macdonald, J. R. M. History of France. (Ap '16)
 Strylenski, C. Eighteenth century. (Ja '17)
 Wright, C. H. History of the third French republic. (S '16)
Revolution
 Bradby, E. D. Life of Barnave. (My '16)
 Madelin, L. French revolution. (D '16)
Military history
 Wilkinson, S. French army before Napoleon. (S '16)
 France and the war. Baldwin, J. M. (Jl '16)
Francis of Assisi, Saint (Giovanni Francisco Bernardone Assisi), 1182-1226
 Cuthbert, Father. Romanticism of St. Francis. (Je '16)
Franciscans
 Cuthbert, Father. Romanticism of St. Francis. (Je '16)
 Free man and the soldier. Perry, R. B. (O '16)
Free trade and protection
 Hobson, J. A. New protectionism. (F '17)
 Taussig, F. W. Some aspects of the tariff question. (Mr '16)
 French army before Napoleon. Wilkinson, S. (S '16)

- French etchers of the second empire. Bradley, W: A. (F '17)
- French literature
 Gosse, E: W: Inter arma. (Ag '16)
 Powys, J: C. Suspended judgments. (F '17)
 French mother in war time. Drumont, Mme. É. A. (D '16)
 French perspectives. Sergeant, E. S. (D '16)
- French poetry
 Lowell, A. Six French poets. (F, Ap '16)
 French policy and the American alliance of 1778. Corwin, E: S: (O '16)
 French revolution. Madelin, L: (D '16)
 Frenchman's thoughts on the war. Sabatier, P. (Ap '16)
 Frenchwoman's notes on the war. Pratz, C. de (D '16)
 Frey and his wife. Hewlett, M. H: (My '16)
 Friends of France. (N '16)
- Friendship
 Condé, B. Business of being a friend. (S '16)
- Frohman, Charles, 1860-1915
 Marcosson, I: F:, and Frohman, D. Charles Frohman: manager and man. (Ja '17)
 From doomsday to kingdom come. Deming, S. (N '16)
 From house to house. Furgerson, A. M., and Johnson, C. F. W. (Je '16)
 From Mons to Ypres with General French. Coleman, F: (S '16)
 From pillar to post. Bangs, J: K. (Ap '16)
 From the deep woods to civilization. Eastman, C: A. (N '16)
 From the Gulf to Ararat. Hubbard, G. E. (F '17)
 From the heart of the veld. Alston, M. (Ja '17)
 From the housetops. McCutcheon, G: B. (N '16)
 From the human end. Jacks, L. P. (N '16)
 From the triple to the quadruple alliance. Dillon, E. J. (Jl '16)
- Fruit culture
 Wilkinson, A. E. Apple. (Je '16)
 Fruit-gathering. Tagore, Sir R. (D '16)
 Fulfillment. Wolf, E. (Je '16)
 Fullback. Perry, L. (F '17)
 Function of socialization in social evolution. Burgess, E. W. (N '16)
 Fundamentals of military service. Andrews, L. C. (Je '16)
 Fundamentals of salesmanship. Brisco, N. A. (N '16)
 Fundamentals of sociology. Kirkpatrick, E. A. (S '16)
 Furnace of iron. Firth, A. (Jl '16)
- Furniture
 Candee, H. C. Jacobean furniture. (Ja '17)
 Robie, V. H. Historic styles of furniture. (S '16)
 Further foolishness. Leacock, S. B. (F '17)
 Further side of silence. Clifford, Sir H. C: (D '16)
- Future life
 Lodge, Sir O. J. Raymond. (F '17)
 Slater, J: R. Living for the future. (F '17)
 What happens after death. (Ag '16)
 Future of democracy. Hyndman, H: M. (Mr '16)
- Gai Saber. Hewlett, M. H: (O '16)
- Gallipoli
 Anzac, pseud. On the Anzac trail. (N '16)
 Gallishaw, J: Trenching at Gallipoli. (D '16)
 Masfield, J: Gallipoli. (N '16)
- Galvanizing
 Flanders, W: T:, and others. Galvanizing and tinning. (O '16)
- Games
 Bancroft, J. H., and Pulvermacher, W: D. Handbook of athletic games for players, instructors, and spectators. (Mr '16)
 Beard, E. P. Jolly book of playcraft. (D '16)
 Davison, G. L. Games and parties for children. (N '16)
 Dawson, M. Mary Dawson game book. (D '16)
 Sperling, H. Playground book. (O '16)
 Garden ornaments. Northend, M. H. (F '17)
- Gardening
 Bailey, L. H. Standard cyclopedia of horticulture. (Ap, D '16)
- Clutton-Brock, A. Studies in gardening. (Ja '17)
 Dyer, W. A. Humble annals of a back yard. (Ja '17)
 Fryer, J. Mary Frances garden book. (My '16)
 Hampden, M. Every woman's flower garden. (Je '16)
 Hood, G: W: Practical school and home gardens. (F '17)
 Rexford, E. E. A-B-C of vegetable gardening. (Mr '16)
 Rexford, E. E. Making of a home. (My '16)
 Watson, W: Climbing plants. (S '16)
 Watts, R. L. Vegetable garden. (Je '16)
 Wilder, L. My garden. (Ja '17)
 See also Landscape gardening; Vegetable gardening
 Garment trades. Bryner, E. (D '16)
 Garside's career. Brighthouse, H. (Mr '16)
- Gary plan
 Bourne, R. S. Gary schools. (My '16)
- Gas, Natural
 Johnson, R. H., and Huntley, L: G. Principles of oil and gas production. (F '17)
- Gas and oil engines
 Norris, E. B., and others. Gas engine ignition. (F '17)
- Gate of Asia. Warfield, W: (Ag '16)
 Gates of wrath. Bennett, A. (Mr '16)
- Gaudier-Brzeska, Henri, 1891-1915
 Pound, E. L. Gaudier-Brzeska. (S '16)
- General education board; an account of its activities, 1902-1914. General education board. (My '16)
- Generation between. Matheson, C. M. (My '16)
- Genetics
 Pearl, R. Modes of research in genetics. (My '16)
 Gentlewoman of France. Boylesve, R. (F '17)
 Geodetic surveying. Cary, E: R: (Jl '16)
 Geographical and industrial studies; Asia. Allen, N. B. (Jl '16)
- Geography, Commercial
 Allen, N. B. Geographical and industrial studies; Asia. (Jl '16)
 Smith, J. R. Commerce and industry. (Mr '16)
- Geology
 Chamberlin, T: C. Origin of the earth. (O '16)
 Cleland, H. F. Geology, physical and historical. (Ja '17)
 Pirsson, L: V., and Schuchert, C: Text-book of geology. (Je '16)
- Panama
 MacDonald, D. F. Some engineering problems of the Panama canal in their relation to geology and topography. (Je '16)
- Georgia of the rainbows. Johnston, A. (Ja '17)
 Geranium lady. Bates, S. C. (My '16)
 German atrocities. Morgan, J: H. (Je '16)
 German barbarism. Magcas, L. (N '16)
 German classics of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Francke, K., and Howard, W: G., eds. (My '16)
 German conspiracies in America. Skaggs, W: H: (Je '16)
- German literature
 Francke, K. Personality in German literature before Luther. (F '17)
 Francke, K., and Howard, W: G., eds. German classics of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. (My '16)
 Lewisohn, L. Spirit of modern German literature. (F '17)
 German philosophy in relation to the war. Muirhead, J: H: (Je '16)
- German poetry
 Collections
 Münsterberg, M. A. A., comp. and tr. Harvest of German verse. (S '16)
 German republic. Wellman, W. (S '16)
 German, Slav, and Magyar. Seton-Watson, R. W: (O '16)
- Germanic tribes
 Wergeland, A. M. Slavery in Germanic society during the middle ages. (F '17)
- Germans. Robertson, J: M. (N '16)

Germans in Belgium. Grondys, L. H. (Je '16)

Germans in the United States

Ohlinger, G. Their true faith and allegiance. (S '16)

Skaggs, W. H. German conspiracies in America. (Je '16)

Witte, E. Revelations of a German attaché. (O '16)

Germany

Barker, J. E. Foundations of Germany. (D '16)

Chesterton, G. K. Crimes of England. (Mr '16)

Holmes, E. G. A. Nemesis of docility. (N '16)

Smith, T. F. A. What Germany thinks. (Ap '16)

Wellman, W. German republic. (S '16)

Civilization

Francke, K. German spirit. (Jl '16)

Hügel, F. German soul in its attitude towards ethics and Christianity, the state and war. (O '16)

Modern Germany. (Jl '16)

Patten, S. N. Culture and war. (O '16)

Peake, A. S., and others. Germany in the nineteenth century; second series. (Mr '16)

Robertson, J. M. Germans. (N '16)

Robertson, J. M. War and civilization. (S '16)

Thayer, W. R. Germany vs. civilization. (Ap '16)

Court and courtiers

Howard, E. Potsdam princes. (O '16)

Economic conditions

Millioud, M. Ruling caste and frenzied trade in Germany. (Je '16)

Economic policy

Knoeppel, C. E. Industrial preparedness. (Ja '17)

Foreign relations

Chesterton, G. K. Crimes of England. (Mr '16)

Dillon, E. J. England and Germany. (O '16)

Fife, R. H., jr. German empire between two wars. (Jl '16)

Schmitt, B. E. England and Germany, 1740-1914. (Je '16)

Witte, E. Revelations of a German attaché. (O '16)

History

Henderson, E. F. Short history of Germany. (O '16)

Marriott, J. A. R., and Robertson, C. G. Evolution of Prussia. (Je '16)

Robertson, J. M. Germans. (N '16)

Schevill, F. Making of modern Germany. (Ap '16)

Politics and government

Beyens, E., baron. Germany before the war. (F '17)

Fife, R. H., jr. German empire between two wars. (Jl '16)

Howe, F. C. Socialized Germany. (F, Ap '16)

Social life and customs

Topham, A. Memories of the Fatherland. (D '16)

Germany in defeat; second phase. Souza, C. de. (N '16)

Germany misjudged. Hugins, R. (Jl '16)

Germany vs. civilization. Thayer, W. R. (Ap '16)

Ghenko, Yamada, N. (S '16)

Gibby of Clamshell alley. Van Dresser, J. S. (My '16)

Gift of immortality. Slattery, C. L. (Ag '16)

Gilded vanity. Graves, C. I. M. (Ja '17)

Gilder, Richard Watson, 1844-1909

Gilder, R. W. Letters. (Ja '17)

Giles, William Branch, 1762-1830

Anderson, D. R. William Branch Giles. (Ap '16)

Gipsies

Cuttriss, F. Romany life. (Jl '16)

Girl at Big Loon post. Van Schaick, G. G. (O '16)

Girl from the Big Horn country. Chase, M. E. (Je '16)

Girl Philippa. Chambers, R. W. (S '16)

Girls

Espey, C. E. Leaders of girls. (Ag '16)

King, B. P. Worth of a girl. (F '17)

Knott, L. A. Vesper talks to girls. (Je '16)

Glacier national park

Rinehart, M. Through Glacier park. (Jl '16)

Schultz, J. W. Blackfeet tales of Glacier national park. (Jl '16)

Glass

Bassett, S. W. Story of glass. (F '17)

Gleanings from old Shaker journals. Sears, C. E., comp. (F '17)

Glory of toil. Proctor, E. D. (F '17)

Gluck, Christopher Willibald, 1714-1787

Berlioz, H. Gluck and his operas. (Mr '16)

Goblins and pagodas. Fletcher, J. G. (S '16)

God's carnival. Lorimer, N. O. (Ja '17)

God's puppets. White, W. A. (Ap '16)

God's remnants. Gordon, S. (Ag '16)

Gold

Rose, T. K. Metallurgy of gold. (O '16)

Gold trail. Stacpoole, H. D. (Ag '16)

Golden age of Vassar. Norris, M. H. (Je '16)

Golden apple. Gregory, I. A., lady. (D '16)

Golden book of the Dutch navigators. Loon, H. W. van. (D '16)

Golden city. Verrill, A. H. (N '16)

Golden glory. Rose, F. H. (S '16)

Golden hope. Mason, G. S., and Hilliard, J. N. (O '16)

Golden lads. Gleason, A. H. and H. H. (My '16)

Golden lamp. Gray, P. (My '16)

Golden threshold. Naidu, S. (D '16)

Golden woman. Cullum, R. (My '16)

Golf

Dunn, J. D. A-B-C of golf. (Je '16)

Good English in good form. Ranous, D. K. (D '16)

Good Friday, and other poems. Masfield, J. (Mr '16)

Good old Anna. Lowndes, M. A. (Belloc) (Ag '16)

Good roads year book, 1916. Am. highway assn. (Jl '16)

Gospel in art. Bailey, A. E. (F '17)

Gospel of good will as revealed in the contemporary scriptures. Hyde, W. D. (Je '16)

Gossamer. Hannay, J. O. (Mr '16)

Gothic architecture in France, England, and Italy. Jackson, T. G. (Je '16)

Gothic quest. Cram, R. A. (S '16)

Government ownership

P Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on government ownership of railroads. (F '17)

Grabau, Mrs. Mary Antin. See Antin, M.

Graham, Ennis, pseud. See Molesworth, M. L.

Grain

Carleton, M. A. Small grains. (Ag '16)

Grain trade

Gras, N. S. B. Evolution of the English corn market from the twelfth to the eighteenth century. (Je '16)

Grand adventure. Law, R. (F '17)

Grant, Ulysses Simpson, 1822-1885

Coombs, L. U. S. Grant. (My '16)

Granville, Granville Leveson-Gower, 1st earl, 1773-1846

Granville, 1st earl. Private correspondence, 1781-1821. (S '16)

Grasp of the sultan. (Ag '16)

Gray, Thomas, 1716-1771

Correspondence. See Toynbee, P. J., ed.

Great Britain. Prisoners of war information bureau

Roxburgh, R. F. Prisoners of war information bureau in London. (Je '16)

Great Britain

Army

Cable, B. Doing their bit. (S '16)

Kerr, S. P. What the Irish regiments have done. (My '16)

MacGill, P. Amateur army. (My '16)

O'Toole, T. Way they have in the army. (Je '16)

Biography

Escott, T. H. S. Great Victorians. (F '17)

Gardiner, A. G. Pillars of society. (F '17)

Great Britain—Biography—Continued

- Russell, G. W: E. Portraits of the 'seventies. (Ja '17)
 Stimpson, M. S. Child's book of English biography. (N '16)
 Stirling, A. M. D. W. Painter of dreams. (Ap '16)

Colonies

- Curtis, L. Problem of the commonwealth. (D '16)
 Keith, A. B. Imperial unity and the dominions. (F '17)

Description and travel

- Ditchfield, P. H. Cathedrals of Great Britain. (Ag '16)

Economic conditions

- Cressy, E: Outline of industrial history. (S '16)
 Fordham, M. Short history of English rural life. (S '16)
 Hall, A. D. Agriculture after the war. (O '16)

Foreign relations

- Chesterton, G. K. Crimes of England. (Mr '16)
 Dillon, E. J. England and Germany. (O '16)
 Granger, A. H. England's world empire. (F '17)
 Murray, G. Foreign policy of Sir Edward Grey, 1906-1915. (Jl '16)
 Ponsonby, A. A: W: H. Democracy and diplomacy. (Jl '16)
 Russell, B. A. W: Justice in war-time. (Mr '16)
 Schmitt, B. E. England and Germany, 1740-1914. (Je '16)

History

- Lingard, J., and Belloc, H. History of England. (My '16)
 Roberts, S. C., comp. Picture book of British history. (Je '16)

Sources

- Gross, C: Sources and literature of English history, from the earliest times to about 1485. (My '16)

Politics and government

- Baumann, A. A. Persons and politics of the transition. (O '16)
 Cook, E: T. Delane of The Times. (Ap '16)
 Curtis, L., ed. Commonwealth of nations. (D '16)
 Curtis, L. Problem of the commonwealth. (D '16)
 Lucy, Sir H: W: Nearing Jordan. (N '16)
 Meyer, E. England; its political organization and development and the war against Germany. (F '17)
 Seymour, C: Electoral reform in England and Wales. (F, Ap '16)

Sanitary affairs

- Bannington, B. G. English public health administration. (D '16)

Social life and customs

- Knightley, L. M. Journals of Lady Knightley of Fawsley. (N '16)
 Great maze. Hagedorn, H. (My '16)
 Great news. Ferguson, C: (Mr '16)
 Great push. MacGill, P. (O '16)
 Great revival in the West, 1797-1805. Cleveland, C. C. (Jl '16)
 Great Russia. Sarolea, C: (Ap '16)
 Great schools of painting. Turner, W. (Je '16)
 Great-snakes. Caine, W: (N '16)
 Great solution, magnissima charta. La Fontaine, H. (N '16)
 Great spiritual writers of America. Fitch, G: H. (N '16)
 Great success. Ward, M. A. (My '16)
 Great unmarried. Gallichan, W. M. (N '16)
 Great valley. Masters, E. L. (Ja '17)
 Great Victorians. Escott, T: H. S. (F '17)
 Greater tragedy. Gould, B: A. (Jl '16)

GreeceAntiquities

- Whibley, L., ed. Companion to Greek studies. (F '17)

History

- Keroflas, C. Eleftherios Venizelos, his life and work. (Ap '16)
 Greek and Roman [mythology]. Fox, W: S. (O '16)
 Greek tradition. Thomson, J. A. K. (Ap '16)
 Green, Olive, pseud. See Reed, M.
 Green alleys. Philippotts, E. (O '16)
 Green mansions. Hudson, W: H. (Je '16)
 Grey of Falloden, Edward Grey, 1st viscount, 1862-
 Murray, G. Foreign policy of Sir Edward Grey, 1906-1915. (Jl '16)
 Grizzly king. Curwood, J. O. (N '16)
 Group theories of religion and the individual. Webb, C. C: J. (F '17)

GuatemalaDescription and travel

- Franck, H. A. Tramping through Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras. (S '16)
 Guide-book to childhood. Forbush, W: B. (Je '16)
 Guide to the works of art in New York city. Levy, F. N., ed. (Ja '17)
 Guiding thread. Harraden, B. (N '16)
 Gulliver the Great. Dyer, W. A. (N '16)
 Gunpowder
 Hime, H: W: L. Origin of artillery. (Je '16)
 Guthrie, Thomas Anstey. See Anstey, F., pseud.

H. D., pseud. See Aldington, Mrs. R:

- Hague. International peace conferences, 1899-1907

- Wilson, G: G., ed. Hague arbitration cases. (My '16)

- Half lights. Fleming, G. (D '16)

- Hall, Eliza Calvert, pseud. See Obenchain, E. C. Hall marks

- Hayden, A. Chats on old silver. (S '16)

- Halt! Who's there? Meynell, W. (Jl '16)

- Hamilton, Allan McLane, 1848-

- Hamilton, A. M. Recollections of an alienist. (Ja '17)

- Hamon, Louis. See Cheiro, pseud.

- Hampstead mystery. Watson, J: R., and Rees, A. J. (F '17)

- Handbook for highway engineers. Harger, W. G., and Bonney, E. A. (D '16)

- Handbook of American pageantry. Davol, R. (Je '16)

- Handbook of American private schools. Sargent, P. E: (O '16)

- Handbook of American speech. Lewis, C. L. (O '16)

- Handbook of athletic games for players, instructors, and spectators. Bancroft, J. H., and Pulvermacher, W: D. (Mr '16)

- Handbook of carburetion. Browne, A. B: (Jl '16)

- Handbook of colloid-chemistry. Ostwald, C. W. W. (Je '16)

- Handbook of machine shop electricity. Clewell, C. E: (F '17)

- Handbook of New England. Sargent, P. E: (O '16)

- Handbook of the European war, v. 2. Bingham, A., ed. (Mr '16)

- Handel, Georg Friedrich, 1685-1759

- Rolland, R. Handel. (N '16)

Handicraft

- Adams, J: D. When mother lets us carpenter. (O '16)

- Beard, E. P. Jolly book of playcraft. (D '16)

- Foster, E. A., ed. Something to do,—boys! (D '16)

- Goldsmith, M. Practical things with simple tools. (D '16)

- Hall, A. N., and Perkins, D. Handicraft for handy girls. (F '17)

- Hall, H. J., and Buck, M. M. Handicrafts for the handicapped. (F '17)

- Hutton, J. G. Things to make. (D '16)

- Sorensen, H: R., and Vaughn, S: J. Hand-wrought jewelry. (N '16)

- Stout, W: B. Boy's book of mechanical models. (N '16)
- Wardle, A. G. Handwork in religious education. (D '16)
- Handle with care. Turnbull, M. (Mr '16)
- Handwork in religious education. Wardle, A. G. (D '16)
- Hand-wrought jewelry. Sorensen, H: R., and Vaughn, S: J. (N '16)
- Handy guide for beggars. Lindsay, N. V. (Ja '17)
- Hänsel and Gretel. McLaren, J. M., and Harvey, E. M. (Jl '16)
- Happy Valley. Monroe, A. S. (Ag '16)
- Hardy, Thomas, 1840-
Child, H. H. Thomas Hardy. (O '16)
- Harim and the purdah. Cooper, E. (Mr '16)
- Harvest moon. Peabody, J. P. (Ja '17)
- Harvest of German verse. Münsterberg, M. A. A., comp. and tr. (S '16)
- Harvey's views on the use of the circulation of the blood. Curtis, J: G. (O '16)
- Hatchways. Sidgwick, E. (D '16)
- Hate breeders. Aiken, E. (Jl '16)
- Hausfrau rampant. Stinde, J. E. W. (O '16)
- Hawaiian Islands
Bryan, W: A. Natural history of Hawaii. (Je '16)
- Description and travel
Gerould, K. F. Hawaii. (D '16)
- Hay, Ian, pseud. See Beith, J: H.
- Hay fever
Hollopeter, W: C. Hay-fever. (Ja '17)
- Hayes, Rutherford Birchard, 1822-1893
Burgess, J: W: Administration of President Hayes. (Jl '16)
- Haywood, Mrs. Eliza (Fowler), 1693?-1756
Whicher, G: F. Life and romances of Mrs. Eliza Haywood. (Ap '16)
- Head winds. Connolly, J. B. (N '16)
- Healing of nations and the hidden sources of their strife. Carpenter, E: (Mr '16)
- Heart of Rachael. Norris, K. (S '16)
- Heart of Thunder mountain. Bingham, E. A. (My '16)
- Heart of youth. See Hagedorn, H. Great maze. (My '16)
- Heart songs and home songs. McCarthy, D. A. (D '16)
- Hearts and faces. Gibbon, J. M. (Jl '16)
- Heart's content. Barbour, R. H: (Mr '16)
- Heaton, Sir John Henniker, 1848-1914
Porter, R. H. Life and letters of Sir John Henniker Heaton. (N '16)
- Hebrew literature
Waldstein, A. S. Evolution of modern Hebrew literature, 1850-1912. (Ja '17)
- Heel of war. McClellan, G: B. (Mr '16)
- Heir of Duncarron. McLaren, A. (My '16)
- Held to answer. Macfarlane, P: C. (Mr '16)
- Helen. Hardy, A. S. (Ja '17)
- Helper and American trade unions. Ashworth, J: H. (Ag '16)
- Henderson-Smith, Mrs. E. See Klickmann, F.
- Henham, Ernest George. See Trevena, J:, pseud.
- Henry, O., pseud. (William Sydney Porter), 1862-1910
Smith, C: A. O. Henry biography. (D '16)
- Her husband's purse. Martin, H. R. (Ap '16)
- Heraldry
Fox-Davies, A. C: Book of public arms. (Ag '16)
- Herder, Johann Gottfried von, 1744-1803
Andress, J. M. Johann Gottfried Herder as an educator. (F '17)
- Heredity
Clarke, E: L. American men of letters. (O '16)
- Guyer, M. F: Being well-born. (My '16)
- Morgan, T: H., and others. Mechanism of Mendelian heredity. (My '16)
- Pearl, R. Modes of research in genetics. (My '16)
- Heritage of the Sioux. Bower, B. M., pseud. (D '16)
- Heritage of Tyre. Meloney, W: B. (Ag '16)
- Hermione and her little group of serious thinkers. Marquis, D. (D '16)
- Herm't doctor of Gaya. Wylie, I. A. R. (Ag '16)
- Hero of our time. Lermontov, M. Y. (N '16)
- Heroes of the great war. Leask, G: A. (F '17)
- Hesitations. Fullerton, W: M. (D '16)
- Hidden spring. Kelland, C. B. (Jl '16)
- High-explosive shell manufacture. Hamilton, D. T. (S '16)
- High tide. Richards, G. M., ed. (Je '16)
- Highways and byways in Galloway and Carrick. Dick, C. H. (D '16)
- Hills of Hingham. Sharp, D. L. (Jl '16)
- Hinduism
Maitra, H. Hinduism: the world-ideal. (Ja '17)
- Noble, M. E. Religion and dharma. (Je '16)
- Hine, Muriel, pseud. See Coxon, M.
- His unknown wife. Tracy, L: (F '17)
- Historic events of colonial days. Holland, R. S. (D '16)
- Historic Indiana. Levering, J. H. (S '16)
- Historic styles of furniture. Robie, V. H. (S '16)
- Historical atlases
Robertson, C: G., and Bartholomew, J: G: Historical atlas of modern Europe from 1789 to 1914. (Je '16)
- Historical introduction to mathematical literature. Miller, G: A. (Jl '16)
- History
- Philosophy
Woodbridge, F: J. E. Purpose of history. (Ja '17)
- History, Ancient
Breasted, J: H: Ancient times. (D '16)
- History, Universal
Putnam, G. P., comp. Tabular views of universal history. (Jl '16)
- History and economics of transport. Kirkaldy, A. W., and Evans, A. D. (Ag '16)
- History and procedure of the House of representatives. Alexander, D. S. (Jl '16)
- History of American music. Elson, L: C: (Ap '16)
- History of continental criminal law. Bar, L., and others. (N '16)
- History of domestic and foreign commerce of the United States. Johnson, E. R., and others. (F '17)
- History of education in Iowa. Aurner, C. R. (Ag '16)
- History of England. Lingard, J:, and Belloc, H. (My '16)
- History of France. Macdonald, J: R. M. (Ap '16)
- History of mediæval political theory in the West. Carlyle, R. W. and A. J. (S '16)
- History of music. Stanford, Sir C: V., and Forsyth, C. (F '17)
- History of ornament. Hamlin, A. D. F. (F '17)
- History of political economy. Ingram, J: K. (O '16)
- History of sculpture. Fowler, H. N. (Jl '16)
- History of South Africa. Scully, W: C: (Je '16)
- History of the American Episcopal church. McConnell, S: D. (Ja '17)
- History of the Fabian society. Pease, E: R. (Jl '16)
- History of the family as a social and educational institution. Goodsell, W. (Je '16)
- History of the Franks. Gregory, Saint. (F '17)
- History of the great war, 1914-. Davenport, B. (Ap '16)
- History of the great war. Doyle, Sir A. C. (F '17)
- History of the national capital. Bryan, W. B. (Jl '16)
- History of the presidency. Stanwood, E: (Ja '17)
- History of the state of New York. Horne, C: F. (N '16)
- History of the study of theology. Briggs, C: A. (F '17)
- History of the third French republic. Wright, C: H: C. (S '16)
- History of the University of Chicago. Goodspeed, T: W. (N '16)
- History of the working classes in France. Wergeland, A. M. (F '17)
- Hobson's choice. Brighouse, H. (Je '16)
- Holders of railroad bonds and notes. Heft, L: (Jl '16)
- Hollow tree nights and days. Paine, A. B. (Ja '17)
- Hollyhock house. Taggart, M. A. (Je '16)

Home

- Tryon, L. H. Speaking of home. (Ja '17)
 Home care of consumptives. French, R. L. (Ja '17)
 Home care of sick children. Coolidge, E. L. (D '16)
 Home coming. Holme, C. (Jl '16)
 Homer and history. Leaf, W. (Je '16)
 Honduras

Description and travel

- Franck, H. A. Tramping through Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras. (S '16)

Honesty

- Healy, W. Honesty. (My '16)

Honey

- Pellet, F. C. Productive bee-keeping. (Ag '16)
 Honeymoon experiment. Chase, M. H. and S. (Jl '16)
 Honey-pot. Barcynska, H. (Je '16)
 Hoosier holiday. Dreiser, T. (D '16)

Hope

- Ladd, G. T. What may I hope? (Je '16)
 Hope of glory. Schuyler, W. (O '16)
 Hope of the great community. Royce, J. (F '17)

Horse breeding

- Anderson, J. D. Making the American thoroughbred. (F '17)

Horticulture

- Bailey, L. H. Standard cyclopedia of horticulture. (Ap. D '16)
 Kains, M. G. Plant propagation, greenhouse and nursery practice. (F '17)

See also Gardening

Hospitals

- Mitchell, E. V. Hospitals and the law. (Ag '16)

Hours of labor

- Frankfurter, F., and Goldmark, J. C. Case for the shorter work day. (D '16)

House decoration

- Adler, H. H. New interior. (D '16)
 Bolmar, L., and McNutt, K. Art in dress, with notes on home decoration. (F '17)
 Wood, G., and Burbank, E. Art of interior decoration. (Ja '17)
 House of fear. Camp, W. (D '16)
 House of luck. Dickson, H. (F '17)
 House of war. Pickthall, M. W. (Jl '16)
 House plants. Findlay, H. (O '16)
 Household arts and school lunches. Boughton, A. C. (D '16)
 How boys and girls can earn money. Bowsfield, C. C. (D '16)
 How children learn to draw. Sargent, W., and Miller, E. E. (O '16)
 How one church went through a war. Smith, W. S. (F '17)
 How the French boy learns to write. Brown, R. W. (Je '16)
 How the world makes its living. McPherson, L. G. (F '17)

How to add ten years to your life and to double its satisfactions.

- Curry, S. S. (Ag '16)
 How to conduct the real estate, insurance and general brokerage business. Gahagen, W. R. (Ag '16)

How to know the mosses.

- Dunham, E. M. (Jl '16)

How to learn easily.

- Dearborn, G. V. (Ja '17)

How to live long.

- Howard, W. L. (Ja '17)

How to make friends with birds.

- Ladd, N. M. (F '17)

How to read.

- Kerfoot, J. B. (F '17)

How to sell real estate.

- Melberg, P. L. (Ag '16)

How to teach the fundamental subjects.

- Kendall, C. N., and Mirick, G. A. (Ag '16)

How to use reference books.

- Wiswell, L. O. (F '17)

How to use your mind.

- Kitson, H. D. (F '17)

How to write business letters.

- Smart, W. K., ed. (Jl '16)

How we elected Lincoln.

- Dittenhoefer, A. J. (F '17)

Howard, Keble, pseud. See Bell, J. K.Howe, Julia (Ward), 1819-1910

- Hall, F. M. Story of the Battle hymn of the republic. (Ja '17)

Richards, L. E., and Elliott, M. Julia Ward Howe, 1819-1910.

- (My '16)

Howells, William Dean, 1837-

- Howells, W. D. Years of my youth. (D '16)
 Hudson Bay road (1498-1915). Trémaudan, A. H. de. (F '17)
 Hugh Graham. Townsend, F. S. (O '16)

Hughes, Charles Evans, 1862-

- Hughes, C. E. Addresses of Charles Evans Hughes, 1906-1916. (O '16)
 Ransom, W. L. Charles E. Hughes. (O '16)

Human animals.

- Hamel, F. (Ja '17)

Human boy and the war.

- Phillipotts, E. (S '16)

Human worth of rigorous thinking.

- Keyser, C. J. (O '16)

Humble annals of a back yard.

- Dyer, W. A. (Ja '17)

Hunger

- Carlson, A. J. Control of hunger. (F '17)

Hungry stones and other stories.

- Tagore, Sir R. (N '16)

Hunted woman.

- Curwood, J. O. (Ap '16)

Hunting

- Auer, H. A. Camp fires in the Yukon. (My '16)

Gouldsbury, C. E. Tiger slayer by order.

- (Ag '16)

Hough, E. Let us go afield.

- (Jl '16)

Lewis, A. G., ed. Sport, travel and adventure.

- (F '17)

Miller, W. H. Boys' book of hunting and fishing.

- (Ag '16)

Roosevelt, T. Book-lover's holidays in the open.

- (Ap '16)

Huntley, Joseph. See Hayes, C.Hydraulics

- Barnes, A. A. Hydraulic flow reviewed. (D '16)

Dougherty, R. L. Hydraulics.

- (O '16)

Harper, J. H. Hydraulic tables for the flow of water in circular pipes under pressure, timber flumes, open channels, and egg-shaped conduits.

- (N '16)

Hygiene

- Ashburn, P. M. Elements of military hygiene. (Jl '16)

Bowers, E. F. Side-stepping ill health.

- (Ap '16)

Brady, W. Personal health.

- (D '16)

Cabot, R. C. Layman's handbook of medicine.

- (F '17)

Cornaro, L. Art of living long.

- (S '16)

Cromie, W. J. Keeping physically fit.

- (Mr '16)

Curry, S. S. How to add ten years to your life and to double its satisfactions.

- (Ag '16)

Dresslar, F. B. School hygiene.

- (Ag '16)

Howard, W. L. Breathe and be well.

- (S '16)

Howard, W. L. How to live long.

- (Ja '17)

Walters, F. M. Principles of health control.

- (N '16)

Williamson, O. K. Prevention of the common cold.

- (D '16)

Hygiene, Public. See Public health"—I conquered." Titus, H. (Ag '16)*I pose. Benson, S. (Mr '16)*I spy. Lincoln, N. S. (N '16)*Ice-boat Number one. Quirk, L. W. (Ag '16)*Iceland

- Steffánsson, J. Denmark and Sweden, with Iceland and Finland. (F '17)

Ideal homes in garden communities. Garden City company of California, Los Angeles.

- (Ag '16)

Idols. Arensberg, W. C. (Jl '16)Idyls and sketches. Mary Blanche, Sister. (N '16)*Illinois*History

- Alvord, C. W., and Carter, C. E., eds. Critical period, 1763-1765. (My '16)

Illustrations of positivism. Bridges, J. H. (Jl '16)Images—old and new. Aldington, R. (Ag '16)*Imaginations and reveries. Russell, G. W. (My '16)*Immigrants

- Crawford, R. Immigrant in St. Louis. (F '17)

Dixon, R. Americanization. (S '16)McClure, A. Leadership of the new America. (F '17)*Miller, H. A. School and the immigrant. (S '16)

Immigration

Warne, F. J. Tide of immigration. (D '16)
 Immortal gymnasts. Cher, M. (Ap '16)

Immortality

Carmichael, O. H. Shadow on the dial. (Je '16)
 Slater, J. R. Living for the future. (F '17)
 Slattery, C. L. Gift of immortality. (Ag '16)
 What happens after death? (Ag '16)

See also Future life

Imperial federation

Curtis, L. Problem of the commonwealth. (D '16)
 Keith, A. B. Imperial unity and the dominions. (F '17)
 Imperial impulse. Orth, S. P. (Ap '16)
 Imperial Japanese poems of the Meiji era. Lombard, F. A., tr. (O '16)
 Imperial unity and the dominions. Keith, A. B. (F '17)

Imperiled America. O'Laughlin, J. C. (Ag '16)
 Impressions and experiences of a French trooper, 1914-1915. Mallet, C. (Ag '16)
 Impressions of the art at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Brinton, C. (Ap '16)
 Imprisoned splendor. Morgan, A. (Jl '16)
 In a French military hospital. Cator, D. (Ap '16)

In another girl's shoes. Onions, B. R. (O '16)
 In brief authority. Anstey, F., pseud. (My '16)
 In pastures green. McArthur, P. (Je '16)
 In seven lands. Vizetelly, E. A. (Ja '17)
 In slums and society. Adderley, J. (N '16)
 In spacious times. McCarthy, J. H. (F '17)
 In spite of the handicap. Corrothers, J. D. (Ja '17)

In the field (1914-1915). Dupont, M. (O '16)
 In the garden of delight. Hammond, L. (F '17)
 In the hands of the enemy. O'Rourke, B. G. (Mr '16)

In the line of battle. Wood, W. (Ja '17)
 In the royal naval air service. Eng title of With the flying squadron. Rosher, H. (Ja '17)
 In the Russian ranks. Morse, J. (Je '16)
 In the wake of the war canoe. Collison, W. H. (Ag '16)

Including you and me. Gillilan, S. W. (O '16)
 Incredible honeymoon. Bland, E. (Ja '17)
 Independence of Nan. Rhoades, C. H. (N '16)

Indexes

Athenaeum subject index to periodicals, 1915. (F '17)
 Faxon, F. W., ed. Annual magazine subject index for 1915. (Je '16)
 Faxon, F. W., ed. Dramatic index. (Je '16)
 International military digest annual. (Je '16)
 Readers' guide to periodical literature [cumulated]; v 3, 1910-14. (Je '16)

Indexing

Hudders, E. R. Indexing and filing. (Ap '17)

IndiaHistory

Muir, R., ed. Making of British India 1756-1858. (My '16)

Politics and government

Rai, L. Young India. (O '16)

Religion

Frazer, R. W. Indian thought past and present. (Je '16)
 Neogi, D. N. Sacred tales of India. (D '16)
 Pratt, J. B. India and its faiths. (Ap '16)
 Indian fairy book. Schoolcraft, H. R. (Ja '17)
 Indian fairy stories. Mackenzie, D. A. (Ag '16)
 Indian games and dances with native songs. Fletcher, A. C. (Ag '16)
 Indian names, facts and games for Camp fire girls. Poast, F. M. (F '17)
 Indian thought past and present. Frazer, R. W. (Je '16)

Indiana

Dye, C., ed. Once upon a time in Indiana. (N '16)
 Streightoff, F. D. and F. H. Indiana. (O '16)

Description and travel

Dreiser, T. Hoosier holiday. (D '16)

History

Hall, B. R. New purchase. (Ja '17)
 Levering, J. H. Historic Indiana. (S '16)
 Stevenson, A. Romantic Indiana. (N '16)

Indians of North America

Bandelier, A. F. A. Delight makers. (F '17)
 Collison, W. H. In the wake of the war canoe. (Ag '16)
 Eastman, C. A. From the deep woods to civilization. (N '16)
 Poast, F. M. Indian names, facts and games for Camp fire girls. (F '17)
 Sams, C. W. Conquest of Virginia: the forest primeval. (Ag '16)

Biography

Eastman, C. A. From the deep woods to civilization. (N '16)
 Schultz, J. W. Apauk, caller of buffalo. (N '16)

Legends

Schoolcraft, H. R. Indian fairy book. (Ja '17)
 Schultz, J. W. Blackfeet tales of Glacier national park. (Jl '16)

Religion

Alexander, H. B. North American [mythology]. (O '16)

Social life and customs

Fletcher, A. C. Indian games and dances with native songs. (Ag '16)

Indians of South America

Whiffen, T. North-west Amazons. (Mr '16)
 Individual. Coxon, M. (Ap '16)
 Industrial accident prevention. Beyer, D. S. (O '16)
 Industrial arbitration. Mote, C. H. (My '16)
 Industrial arts design. Varnum, W. H. (F '17)
 Industrial development and commercial policies of the three Scandinavian countries. Drachmann, P. (Ag '16)

Industrial education

Fleming, A. P. M., and Pearce, J. G. Principles of apprentice training. (N '16)
 National society for the promotion of industrial education. Bulletin no. 21. (Jl '16)
 U. S. Labor statistics, Bureau of. Vocational education survey of Richmond, Va. (Jl '16)
 Industrial leadership. Gantt, H. L. (Je '16)
 Industrial preparedness. Knoeppel, C. E. (Ja '17)

Industrial uses of fuel oil. Dunn, F. B. (O '16)

Industrial workers of the world

Macy, J. A. Socialism in America. (My '16)

Industry

Smith, J. R. Commerce and industry. (Mr '16)

Industry and state

Am. acad. of political and social science. National industries and the federal government. (My '16)

Ferguson, C. Great news. (Mr '16)

Infancy and childhood. Ramsey, W. R. (My '16)

Infantile paralysis

Lovett, R. W. Treatment of infantile paralysis. (F '17)

InfantsCare and hygiene

Ramsey, W. R. Care and feeding of infants and children. (F '17)
 Ramsey, W. R. Infancy and childhood. (My '16)
 Sadler, W. S. and L. Mother and her child. (Ja '17)
 Influence of joy. Dearborn, G. V. (Jl '16)

Insane, Criminal and dangerous

Glueck, B. Studies in forensic psychiatry. (Ja '17)

Insane hospitals

Hurd, H. M., and others. Institutional care of the insane in the United States and Canada. (O '16)

Insanity

Smith, S. Who is insane? (Ap '16)

Insects

Rhead, L. American trout stream insects. (Jl '16)

Insects as carriers of contagion

Hermes, W. B. Medical and veterinary entomology. (Ag '16)
 Instead of the thorn. Burnham, C. L. (Je '16)
 Institutional care of the insane in the United States and Canada. Hurd, H. M., and others. (O '16)

Insurance

Gahagen, W: R. How to conduct the real estate, insurance and general brokerage business. (Ag '16)

Insurance, Accident

Rubinow, I: M. Standard accident table as a basis for compensation rates. (My '16)

Insurance, Fire

Brearley, H. C. Fifty years of a civilizing force. (O '16)

Insurance, Health

Rubinow, I: M. Standards of health insurance. (D '16)

Insurance, Life

Henderson, R. Mortality laws and statistics. (O '16)

Insurrection of Dublin. Stephens, J. (D '16)

Intelligence of woman. George, W. L. (Ja '17)

Inter arma. Gosse, E. W: (Ag '16)

Intercollegiate debates, v. 6. Nichols, E. R., ed. (Ja '17)

Interflow. Faber, G. C. (Ap '16)

Interior decoration. See House decoration

International cartoons of the war. Adam, H. P., ed. (Ja '17)

International cases. Stowell, E. C., and Munro, H: F. (F '17)

International cooperation

Fried, A. H. Restoration of Europe. (Ag '16)

La Fontaine, H. Great solution, magnissima charta. (N '16)

Woolf, L. S. International government. (D '16)

International crisis in its ethical and psychological aspects. (Je '16)

International finance. Withers, H. (O '16)

International government. Woolf, L. S. (D '16)

International law and relations

Burns, C. D. Morality of nations. (Ap '16)

Grant, A. J., and others. Introduction to the study of international relations. (N '16)

Hall, A. B. Outline of international law. (Ap '16)

Krehbiel, E: B. Nationalism, war and society. (S '16)

Mowat, R. B., ed. Select treaties and documents to illustrate the development of the modern European states-system. (Ag '16)

Münsterberg, H. Tomorrow. (D '16)

Phillipson, C. Termination of war and treaties of peace. (Ja '17)

Plater, C., ed. Primer of peace and war. (Je '16)

Root, E. Addresses on international subjects. (Je '16)

Stowell, E. C., and Munro, H: F. International cases. (F '17)

International law and the great war. Phillipson, C. (O '16)

International socialism and the war. Humphrey, A. W. (Ag '16)

Interstate commerce

Kibler, T: L. Commodities' clause. (N '16)

Introduction to ethics. Johnston, G: A. (My '16)

Introduction to neurology. Herrick, C: J. (My '16)

Introduction to the principles of physical chemistry from the standpoint of modern atomistics and thermodynamics. Washburn, E: W. (S '16)

Introduction to the study of international relations. Grant, A. J., and others. (N '16)

Introduction to the study of organized labor in America. Groat, G: G. (S '16)

Introduction to the study of prehistoric art. Parkyn, E. A. (Mr '16)

Introduction to the study of variable stars. Furness, C. E. (Je '16)

InvalidsOccupations

Hall, H. J., and Buck, M. M. Handicrafts for the handicapped. (F '17)

Hall, H. J., and Buck, M. M. Work of our hands. (M '16)

Invasion of America. Muller, J. W. (Mr '16)

Inventions

Edelman, P. E. Inventions and patents. (O '16)

Investments

Clay, P. Sound investing. (Jl '16)

Guenther, L: Investment and speculation. (S '16)

Raymond, W: L. American and foreign investment bonds. (Ag '16)

Invisible balance sheet. Trask, K. (Ja '17)

Inviting war to America. Benson, A. L: (Jl '16)

IowaEducation

Aurner, C. R. History of education in Iowa. (Ag '16)

Politics and government

Haynes, F: E. Third party movements since the civil war. (Jl '16)

Ireland

Ervine, S. G. Sir Edward Carson and the Ulster movement. (D '16)

McGuire, J. K. What could Germany do for Ireland? (Je '16)

Biography

Bowers, C. G. Irish orators. (Je '16)

HistoryRevolt of 1916

Joy, M., ed. Irish rebellion of 1916 and its martyrs. (F '17)

Redmond-Howard, L: G. Six days of the Irish republic. (F '17)

Stephens, J. Insurrection in Dublin. (D '16)

Ireland in fiction. Brown, S. J. (Ap '16)

Ireland's literary renaissance. Boyd, E. A. (D '16)

Irish at the front. MacDonagh, M. (Ag '16)

Irish literature

Boyd, E. A. Ireland's literary renaissance. (D '16)

MacDonagh, T: Literature in Ireland. (N '16)

Irish orators. Bowers, C. G. (Je '16)

Irish question

Chesterton, G. K. Crimes of England. (Mr '16)

Irish rebellion of 1916 and its martyrs. Joy, M., ed. (F '17)

Irishwoman in China. Daly, Mrs. de B. (N '16)

Iron

Howe, H: M. Metallography of steel and cast iron. (O '16)

Sauveur, A. Metallography and heat treatment of iron and steel. (O '16)

Iron stair. Humphreys, E. M. J. (Mr '16)

Iron works

American iron and steel institute. Directory of the iron and steel works of the United States and Canada. (D '16)

Irrigation

Etcheverry, B. A. Irrigation practice and engineering. (Je '16)

Newell, F: H. Irrigation management. (O '16)

Teele, R. P. Irrigation in the United States. (My '16)

Is war diminishing? Woods, F: A., and Baltzly, A. (Ap '16)

Isabel Carleton's year. Ashmun, M. E. (N '16)

Israel's account of the beginnings. Patton, W. M. (D '16)

Issues of life. Worcester, E. (My '16)

Italian poetry

Carducci, G. Rime nuove. (Ja '17)

Italy

Lawrence, D: H. Twilight in Italy. (F '17)

Piccoli, R., ed. Book of Italy. (F '17)

Foreign relations

Dillon, E. J. From the triple to the quadruple alliance. (Jl '16)

Herrick, R. World decision. (Mr '16)

Ivory

Kunz, G: F. Ivory and the elephant in art, in archaeology, and in science. (Ja '17)

Ivory child. Haggard, H: R. (My '16)

Jackson, Andrew, 1767-1845

Bassett, J: S. Life of Andrew Jackson. (Je '16)

Jacobean furniture. Candee, H. C. (Ja '17)

James, Henry, 1843-1916

Hueffer, F: M. Henry James. (N '16)

West, R. Henry James. (D '16)

Jameson, Mrs. Anna Brownell (Murphy) 1794-1860

Jameson, A. B. Anna Jameson: letters and friendships (1812-1860); ed. by Mrs. Stuart Erskine. (Jl '16)

Jameson, Mrs. Annie Edith (Foster). See Buckrose, J. E., pseud.

Japan

Crow, C. Japan and America. (Ap '16)

Description and travel

Official guide to eastern Asia. (N '16)

Education

Lombard, F. A. Pre-Meiji education in Japan. (S '16)

Foreign relations

Abbott, J. F. Japanese expansion and American policies. (Mr '16)

Iyenaga, T., ed. Japan's real attitude toward America. (O '16)

Millard, T. F. F. Our Eastern question. (O '16)

Scherer, J. A. B. Japanese crisis. (My '16)

History

Porter, R. P. Japan, the new world-power. (My '16)

Politics and government

Hornbeck, S. K. Contemporary politics in the Far East. (N '16)

McLaren, W. W. Political history of Japan during the Meiji era, 1867-1912. (O '16)

Religion

Armstrong, R. C. Light from the East. (My '16)

Dearing, J. L., ed. Christian movement in the Japanese empire. (S '16)

Japanese crisis. Scherer, J. A. B. (My '16)

Japanese expansion and American policies. Abbott, J. F. (Mr '16)

Japanese in California

Scherer, J. A. B. Japanese crisis. (My '16)

Japanese poetry

Lombard, F. A., tr. Imperial Japanese poems of the Meiji era. (O '16)

Japan's real attitude toward America. Iyenaga, T., ed. (O '16)

Jaunty in charge. Wemyss, M. C. E. (O '16)

Jeanne d'Arc, 1412-1431

Horsfall, M. Maid marvellous: Jeanne d'Arc. (F '17)

Jeffersonian democracy in New England. Robinson, W. A. (F '17)

Jerusalem

Loti, P., pseud. Jerusalem. (Ap '16)

Jerusalem to Rome. Sitterly, C. F. (Mr '16)

Jesus Christ

Box, G. H. Virgin birth of Jesus. (F '17)

Husband, R. W. Prosecution of Jesus. (F '17)

Rihbany, A. M. Syrian Christ. (D '16)

Stokes, A. P. What Jesus Christ thought of himself. (Je '16)

Art

Bailey, A. E. Gospel in art. (F '17)

Jewelry

Sorensen, H. R., and Vaughn, S. J. Hand-wrought jewelry. (N '16)

Jews

American Jewish committee. Jews in the eastern war zone. (Ja '17)

History

Kent, C. F., and Jenks, J. W. Testing of a nation's ideals. (Ap '16)

Radin, M. Jews among the Greeks and Romans. (Jl '16)

Jews in Palestine

American Jewish year book, 5676. (N '16)

Jim—unclassified. Kelly, R. J. (D '16)

Jitney and the boys. Copplestone, B. (D '16)

Joffre, Joseph Jacques Césaire, 1852-

Recouly, R. General Joffre and his battles. (D '16)

John Bogardus. Chamberlain, G. A. (Mr '16)

Johnson, Andrew, 1808-1875

Hall, C. R. Andrew Johnson, military governor of Tennessee. (F '17)

Johnstone of the border. Bindloss, H. (O '16)

Jolly book of playcraft. Beard, E. P. (D '16)

Jones, John Paul, 1747-1792

Tooker, L. F. John Paul Jones. (Ja '17)

Jordan farms. Pierce, F. E. (F '17)

Journalism

Bleyer, W. G. Types of news writing. (Ja '17)

Seitz, D. C. Training for the newspaper trade. (Ja '17)

Young, J. P. Journalism in California. (Jl '16)

Bibliography

Stephens, E., comp. American popular magazines. (Jl '16)

Journalists

Lucy, Sir H. W. Nearing Jordan. (N '16)

Journals of Lady Knightley of Fawsley. Knightley, L. M. (N '16)

Journeys to Bagdad. Brooks, C. S. (Mr '16)

Journeys with Jerry the Jarvey. Roche, A. (Ap '16)

Julius LeVallon. Blackwood, A. (N '16)

June, Delano, E. B. (N '16)

Jungle chums. Verrill, A. H. (D '16)

Just David. Porter, E. H. (Ap '16)

Justice in war-time. Russell, B. A. W. (Mr '16)

Juvenile books. See Books for boys and girls

Juvenile delinquency

Healy, W. Honesty. (My '16)

Kamerun

Description and travel

Mackenzie, J. K. Black sheep. (Ag '16)

Kashmir

Description and travel

Denys, F. W. Our summer in the vale of Kashmir. (Je '16)

Keeping a dollar at work. De Weese, T. A. (Mr '16)

Keeping physically fit. Cromie, W. J. (Mr '16)

Kennedy people. Ridge, W. P. (Ag '16)

Key to Betsy's heart. Ives, S. N. (D '16)

Keys of the city. Graeve, O. (N '16)

Kildares of Storm. Kelly, E. M. (D '16)

Kindergarten

Atwood, N. Theory and practice of the kindergarten. (N '16)

King of Ireland's son. Colum, P. (Ja '17)

King—of the Khyber rifles. Mundy, T. (F '17)

Kingdom of the blind. Oppenheim, E. P. (D '16)

Kingdom of the mind. Keniston, J. M. (F '17)

King's highway series. Sneath, E. H., and others. (F '17)

King's men. Palmer, J. L. (Jl '16)

Kinsmen. Cooney, P. J. (Ja '17)

Kipling, Rudyard, 1865-

Hopkins, R. T. Rudyard Kipling. (Je '16)

Kirghiz

Fell, E. N. Russian and nomad. (Ag '16)

Graham, S. Through Russian Central Asia. (S '16)

Kitchener of Khartum, Horatio Herbert Kitchener, 1st earl, 1850-1916

Daiches, S. Lord Kitchener and his work in Palestine. (S '16)

Wheeler, H. F. B. Boys' life of Lord Kitchener. (D '16)

Kitchener's mob. Hall, J. N. (Jl '16)

Knitting

Klickmann, F., ed. Little girl's knitting and crochet book. (O '16)

Klickmann, F., ed. Modern knitting book. (O '16)

Korea

Dearing, J. L., ed. Christian movement in the Japanese empire. (S '16)

Description and travel

Official guide to eastern Asia. (N '16)

Labor and laboring classes

- Commons, J. R., and Andrews, J. B. Principles of labor legislation. (Ap '16)
 Hutchins, B. L. Women in modern industry. (Jl '16)

France

- Wergeland, A. M. History of the working classes in France. (F '17)

Great Britain

- Bowley, A. L., and Burnett-Hurst, A. R. Livelihood and poverty. (My '16)
 Cole, G. D. H. Labor in war time. (Ap '16)
 Labour year book, 1916. (My '16)

United States

- American labor year book, 1916. (Ja '17)
 Barnes, C. B. Longshoremen. (Ap '16)
 Chase, M. H. and S. Honeymoon experiment. (Jl '16)
 Groat, G. G. Introduction to the study of organized labor in America. (S '16)
 Jones, G. M. Control of strikes in American trade unions. (F '17)
 Nearing, S. Anthracite. (Mr '16)
 Nearing, S. Poverty and riches. (D '16)
 O'Leary, I. P. Department store occupations. (My '16)

Labor laws and legislation

- Commons, J. R., and Andrews, J. B. Principles of labor legislation. (Ap '16)
 Frankfurter, F., and Goldmark, J. C. Case for the shorter work day. (D '16)
 Sumner, H. L., and Merritt, E. A. Child labor legislation in the United States. (S '16)
 Laboratory manual of foods and cookery. Matteson, E. B., and Newlands, E. M. (D '16)
 Lady Bridget of the never-never land. Praed, R. C. (Je '16)
 Lady Connie. Ward, M. A. (D '16)
 Lafayette, Marie Jean Paul Roch Yves Gilbert Motier, marquis de, 1757-1834
 Crow, M. Lafayette. (N '16)
 Lamp of poor souls. Pickthall, M. L. C. (F '17)

Land tenure

- Fels, M. Life of Joseph Fels. (O '16)
 Hall, A. D. Agriculture after the war. (O '16)

Landscape gardening

- Burnap, G. Parks. (F '17)
 Cridland, R. B. Practical landscape gardening. (D '16)
 Hamblin, S. F. Book of garden plans. (Ja '17)
 Northend, M. H. Garden ornaments. (F '17)
 Taylor, A. D., comp. Partial list of plants available for various uses in general landscape planting. (S '16)
 Language work in elementary schools. Leiper, M. A. (S '16)

Languages, ModernStudy and teaching

- Brown, R. W. How the French boy learns to write. (Je '16)
 La Salle, Robert Cavalier, sieur de, 1643-1687
 Hasbrouck, L. S. La Salle. (N '16)
 Last book of wonder. Dunsany, E. J. M. D. P., 18th baron. (F '17)
 Last days of the Archduke Rudolph. Grant, H., ed. (D '16)
 Last ditch. Comfort, W. L. (D '16)
 Last memory of Robert Louis Stevenson. Eaton, C. (O '16)
 Last voyage of the Karluk. Bartlett, R. A., and Hale, R. T. (Ja '17)
 Latchstring to Maine woods and waters. Emerson, W. C. (Jl '16)

Latin America

- Coester, A. L. Literary history of Spanish America. (Ja '17)
 Jones, C. L. Caribbean interests of the United States. (O '16)
 Speer, R. E. Unity of the Americas. (F '17)

Bibliography

- Goldsmith, P. H. Brief bibliography of books in English, Spanish and Portuguese, relating to the republics commonly called Latin American. (My '16)

- Griffin, G. G., comp. Writings on American history, 1914. (O '16)

Commerce

- Filsinger, E. B. Exporting to Latin America. (D '16)

Railroads

- Halsey, F. M. Railway expansion in Latin America. (O '16)

LawHistory and criticism

- Bar, L., and others. History of continental criminal law. (N '16)

Reports and digests

- Lincoln, C. Z. Civil law and the church. (Ja '17)

Law, Primitive

- Kocourek, A., and Wigmore, J. H., comps. Primitive and ancient legal institutions. (Jl '16)

- Law and order in industry. Cohen, J. H.: (Ap '16)

- Law and the practice of municipal home rule. McBain, H. L. (O '16)

- Law of architecture and building. Blake, C. H., jr. (S '16)

- Law of contraband of war. Pyke, H. R. (Jl '16)

- Law of human life. Brookshire, E. V. (S '16)

- Lawn tennis lessons for beginners. Paret, J. P. (Jl '16)

- Layman's handbook of medicine. Cabot, R. C. (F '17)

- Leaders of girls. Espey, C. E. (Ag '16)

- Leadership of the new America. McClure, A. (F '17)

- Leading English poets from Chaucer to Browning. Holt, L. H., ed. (My '16)

- Leading opinions both for and against national defense. Maxim, H., ed. (N '16)

- Learning to earn. Lapp, J. A., and Mote, C. H.: (F, Ap '16)

- Learning to fly. Grahame-White, C., and Harper, H. (F '17)

- Least resistance. McLaurin, K. L. (Je '16)

- Leatherface. Orczy, E. (D '16)

- Leatherwood god. Howells, W. D. (D '16)

- Leavening the Levant. Greene, J. K. (Ja '17)

- Leaves from a field note-book. Morgan, J. H. (My '16)

Lectures and lecturing

- Bangs, J. K. From pillar to post. (Ap '16)

Legends

- Gerould, G. H. Saints' legends. (Ja '17)

- Westervelt, W. D., comp. and tr. Legends of gods and ghosts. (Mr '16)

Leonardo da Vinci, 1452-1519

- Sirén, O. Leonardo da Vinci. (Jl '16)

- Leopard woman. White, S. E.: (D '16)

- Let us go afield. Hough, E. (Jl '16)

Lettering

- Stevens, T. W. Lettering. (F '17)

Letters

- Greenlaw, E. A., ed. Familiar letters, English and American. (Ap '16)

- Jameson, A. B. Anna Jameson: letters and friendships (1812-1860). (Jl '16)

- Marchant, J. Alfred Russel Wallace. (Jl '16)

- Shelley, P. B. Letters. (My '16)

- Toynbee, P. J., ed. Correspondence of Gray, Walpole, West and Ashton. (Jl '16)

- Wesley, J. Letters. (F '17)

- Letters from a field hospital. Dearmer, M. (Ap '16)

- Letters from America. Brooke, R. (Mr '16)

- Letters from France. Le Guiner, J. (Ja '17)

- Letters of Captain Engelbert Lutyens. Lutyens, E. (Mr '16)

- Lewars, Mrs. Harold. See Singmaster, E.

- Liberty

- McCall, S. W. Liberty of citizenship. (Mr '16)

- Liberty Hall. Winterburn, F. M. (N '16)

- Libraries

- American library annual, 1915-1916. (Jl '16)

- Dana, J. C. Libraries. (Jl '16)

History

- Boyd, C. E. Public libraries and literary culture in ancient Rome. (Ag '16)

- Library bookbinding. Bailey, A. L. (Je '16)

Library catalogs

Ball, S. B., comp. 1600 business books. (Jl '16)

Library fittings and supplies

McVety, M. A., and Colgrove, M. E. Vertical file. See Dana, J. C., ed. Modern American library economy. (Je '16)

Library science

Ball, S. B., comp. Maps, atlases and geographical publications. See Dana, J. C., ed. Modern American library economy. (Je '16)
Dana, J. C. Libraries. (Jl '16)
Lowe, J. A. Books and libraries. (F '17)

Life

Smyth, N. Meaning of personal life. (Je '16)
Life and Gabriella. Glasgow, E. A. (Mr '16)
Life and letters of Sir John Henniker Heaton. Porter, R. H. (N '16)
Life and living. Burr, A. J. (O '16)
Life of man. Andreieff, L. N. (Mr '16)
Life of Saint Boniface. Willibald. (Ag '16)
Life of the caterpillar. Fabre, J. H. C. (Ja '17)

Life saving

Goss, G. E. Life saving. (O '16)

Light

Houstoun, R. A. Treatise on light. (Je '16)
Light from the East. Armstrong, R. C. (My '16)
Light that lies. McCutcheon, G. B. (My '16)
Lightning conductor discovers America. Williamson, C. N. and A. M. (Jl '16)

Lime

Dancaster, E. A. Limes and cements. (Jl '16)

Lincoln, Abraham, 1809-1865

Charnwood, G. R. B., 1st baron. Abraham Lincoln. (N '16)
Dittenhoefer, A. J. How we elected Lincoln. (F '17)
Oldroyd, O. H., comp. and ed. Poets' Lincoln. (Mr '16)
Rankin, H. B. Personal recollections of Abraham Lincoln. (Jl '16)
Richards, J. T. Abraham Lincoln, the lawyer-statesman. (Je '16)
Wheeler, D. E. Abraham Lincoln. (My '16)
Whipple, W. Story of young Abraham Lincoln. (My '16)

Lincoln highway

Gladding, E. P. Across the continent by the Lincoln highway. (My '16)
Lion's share. Bennett, A. (D '16)

Lip reading

Bruhn, M. E. Müller-Walle method of lip-reading for the deaf. (S '16)

Liquor problem

Kelynack, T. N. Drink problem of today. (O '16)
Koren, J. Alcohol and society. (S '16)

Liquor traffic

Beman, L. T., comp. Selected articles on prohibition of the liquor traffic. (F, My '16)
List of books for prison libraries. New York. State library, Albany. (Jl '16)
List of newspapers in the Yale university library. Yale university library. (S '16)

Listeners. De la Mare, W. J. (My '16)

Literary history of Spanish America. Coester, A. L. (Ja '17)
Literary man's New Testament. Courtney, W. L. (O '16)

Literary primacy of the Bible. Eckman, G. P. (Je '16)

LiteratureStudy and teaching

Cooper, L. Methods and aims in the study of literature. (Je '16)
Literature in Ireland. MacDonagh, T. (N '16)

Lithographs

Pennell, J. Wonder of work. (D '16)
Little book of friends. Spofford, H. E. (D '16)
Little demon. Sologub, F., pseud. (O '16)
Little girl's knitting and crochet book. Klickmann, F., ed. (O '16)
Little house in war time. Castle, A. and E. (D '16)
Little hunchback Zia. Burnett, F. (N '16)
Little lady of the big house. London, J. (My '16)
Little question in ladies' rights. Fillmore, P. H. (F '17)

Little white fox and his Arctic friends. Snell, R. J. (N '16)

Live stock

Gay, C. W., ed. Breeds of live-stock. (N '16)
Livelihood and poverty. Bowley, A. L., and Burnett-Hurst, A. R. (My '16)
Lives of the most eminent painters, sculptors and architects. Vasari, G. (Jl '16)
Living church annual and Churchman's almanac. (My '16)
Living for the future. Slater, J. R. (F '17)
Living from eggs and poultry. Brown, H. W. (N '16)
Living the radiant life. James, G. W. (O '16)
Local color. Cobb, I. S. (D '16)
Lodges in the wilderness. Scully, W. C. (Ap '16)

Logic

Dewey, J. Essays in experimental logic. (S '16)

London

Burke, T. Nights in London. (Jl '16)

Description

Lucas, E. V. More wanderings in London. (Ja '17)
Salaman, M. C. London, past and present. (Jl '16)

Theaters

Hibbert, H. G. Fifty years of a Londoner's life. (N '16)
London, one November. Mackay, H. G. (Ap '16)
Long arm of Lee. Wise, J. C. (F '17)
Long divorce. Eng title of John Bogardus. Chamberlain, G. A. (Mr '16)
Long road home. Paine, R. D. (Je '16)
Long road of woman's memory. Addams, J. (D '16)

Longevity

Cornaro, L. Art of living long. (S '16)

Longshoremen

Barnes, C. B. Longshoremen. (Ap '16)
Loot. Roche, A. S. (S '16)
Lore of the wanderer. Goodchild, G., comp. (Je '16)

Los Angeles

Newmark, H. Sixty years in Southern California. (F '17)

Louis Napoleon, prince imperial of the French, 1856-1879

Legge, E. Empress Eugénie and her son. (Ja '17)

Louise and Barnavaux. Mille, P. (Ag '16)

Louvain

Chambry, R. Truth about Louvain. (My '16)

Love (theology)

Bernard, St. Book of St. Bernard on the love of God. (O '16)

Love and Lucy. Hewlett, M. H. (N '16)

Love at large. Kerr, S. (Ap '16)

Love in youth. Harris, F. (Je '16)

Lovers' knots. Jordan, E. G. (Ja '17)

Love's inferno. Stilgebauer, E. (N '16)

Low cost cooking. Nesbitt, F. (Je '16)

Low cost suburban homes. Wright, R. L., ed. (O '16)

Lower living costs in cities. King, C. L. (F, Ap '16)

Luck of thirteen. Gordon, J. and C. J. (Ag '16)

Lyric poetry

Drinkwater, J. Lyric. (D '16)

Lyrics of war and peace. Foulke, W. D. (Ag '16)

McCall, Samuel Walker, 1851-

Evans, L. B. Samuel W. McCall, governor of Massachusetts. (Je '16)

McClellan, George Brinton, 1826-1885

Campbell, J. H. McClellan. (D '16)

McCullough, Mrs. James Sydney. See Reed, M.

Macfall, Mrs. Haldane. See Grand, S., pseud.

Machine design. Smith, A. W., and Marx, G. H. (Je '16)

Machine shops

Clewell, C. E. Handbook of machine shop electricity. (F '17)

Machine-tools

Roe, J. W. English and American tool builders. (O '16)

MachineryDesign

Smith, A. W., and Marx, G. H. Machine design. (Je '16)

McKinley, William, 1843-1901

Olcott, C. S. Life of William McKinley. (Jl '16)

Madeleine. French title of Gentlewoman of France. Boylesve, R. (F '17)

"Mademoiselle Miss." (O '16)

Madonna Dianora. Hofmannsthal, H. H. (O '16)

Maelstrom. Froest, F. (F '17)

Maeterlinck, Maurice, 1862-

Clark M. Maurice Maeterlinck. (S '16)

Griggs, E. H. Maeterlinck: poet and mystic (F '17)

Magazine in America. Tassin, A. de V. (Jl '16)

Magdalen. Machar, J. S. (D '16)

Magic of Malay. Harrison, C. W. (F '17)

Magnetism

Thompson, S. P. Elementary lessons in electricity and magnetism. (O '16)

Magnificent adventure. Hough, E. (N '16)

Mahomet, founder of Islam. Draycott, G. M. (D '16)

Maid marvellous: Jeanne d'Arc. Horsfall, M. (F '17)

Main, John, pseud. See Parsons, E. W.

Main illusions of pacificism. Coulton, G. G. (S '16)

Maine

Emerson, W. C. Latchstring to Maine woods and waters. (Jl '16)

Haynes, W. Casco Bay yarns. (N '16)

Richards, R. Northern countryside. (Jl '16)

Thoreau, H. D. Canoeing in the wilderness. (Jl '16)

Maintenance of way and structures. Willard, W. C. (Ag '16)

Makar's dream and other stories. Korolenko, V. G. (My '16)

Making and breaking of Almansur. Cresswell, C. M. (Mr '16)

Making good in the village. Stoddard, W. O., jr. (D '16)

Making happiness epidemic. Backus, W. V. (Ag '16)

Making life a masterpiece. Marden, O. S. (O '16)

Making of a home. Rexford, E. E. (My '16)

Making of British India, 1756-1858. Muir, R., ed. (My '16)

Making of modern Germany. Schevill, F. (Ap '16)

Making the American thoroughbred. Anderson, J. D. (F '17)

Making type work. Sherbow, B. (Ag '16)

Malarial fever

Le Prince, J. A. A., and Orenstein, A. J. Mosquito control in Panama. (Mr '16)

Malay peninsulaDescription and travel

Clifford, Sir H. C. Further side of silence. (D '16)

Harrison, C. W. Magic of Malay. (F '17)

Malet, Lucas, pseud. See Harrison, M. S.

Malvaloca. Quintero, S. A., and J. A. (F '17)

Man against the sky. Robinson, E. A. (Ap '16)

Man—an adaptive mechanism. Crile, G. W. (My '16)

Man from the Bitter Roots. Lockhart, C. (F, Ap '16)

Man of Athens. Dragoumis, J. D. (F '17)

Man of promise. Wright, W. H. (Ap '16)

Man who dined with the Kaiser

My secret service. (Ag '16)

Manning, Mrs. John Leroy. See Duncan, F.

Man's reach. Robins, S. N. (My '16)

Mansergh, Jessie. See Valzey, J.

Mantle. Gogol, N. V. (S '16)

Manual of military training. Moss, J. A. (My '16)

Manual of the Federal trade commission. Harvey, R. S., and Bradford, E. W. (N '16)

Manual of the Sherman law. Curtis, E. N. (Ap '16)

Manual of the writings in Middle English, 1050-1400. Wells, J. E. (O '16)

Manual on explosives. Ramsey, A. R. J., and Weston, H. C. (O '16)

Market gardening. Yeaw, F. L. (My '16)

Marketing

Richardson, A. S. Adventures in thrift. (Je '16)

Marketing of farm products. Weld, L. D. H. (My '16)

Marketing perishable farm products. Adams, A. B. (D '16)

Marks, Mrs. Lionel Simeon. See Peabody, J. P. Marooned in the forest. Verrill, A. H. (Ag '16)

Marriages of royalty and nobility

Radziwill, C., princess. Royal marriage market of Europe. (S '16)

Married women's work. Black, C. ed. (O '16)

Marrying of Ann Leete. Barker, G. (S '16)

Marshall, John, 1755-1835

Beveridge, A. J. Life of John Marshall. (F '17)

Marxian socialism and religion. Spargo, J. (Mr '16)

Mary Allen. Marvin, E. (Je '16)

Mary Dawson game book. Dawson, M. (D '16)

Mary Frances garden book. Fryer, J. (My '16)

Mary-Gusta. Lincoln, J. C. (D '16)

Mary Rose of Mifflin. Sterrett, F. R. (Ag '16)

Masks

Mackay, C. D. Forest princess. (F '17)

MacKaye, P. Caliban by the yellow sands. (Je '16)

Masonry dam design. Morrison, C. E., and Brodie, O. L. (Ag '16)

Masoud the Bedouin. Carhart, A. P. (Je '16)

Master builder. Brent, C. H. (Jl '16)

Master detective. Brebner, P. J. (Je '16)

Master Simon's garden. Meigs, C. (D '16)

Master Skylark. Burrill, E. W. (Ap '16)

Master Will of Stratford. Garnett, L. A. (Ap '16)

Mastering of Mexico. Stephens, K. (Ap '16)

Material culture and social institutions of the simpler peoples. Hobhouse, L. T., and others. (My '16)

Maternity; letters from working women. Women's co-operative guild. (F '17)

Mathematical theory of probabilities and its application to frequency curves and statistical methods. Fisher, A. (Jl '16)

Mathematics

Cajori, F. Works of William Oughtred. (F '17)

Keyser, C. J. Human worth of rigorous thinking. (O '16)

Miller, G. A. Historical introduction to mathematical literature. (Jl '16)

Matter, Constitution of

Erwin, M. Universe and the atom. (S '16)

Mavourneen. Parker, L. N. (F '17)

Meaning of personal life. Smyth, N. (Je '16)

Meaning of the war, life and matter in conflict. Bergson, H. L. (My '16)

Meanwhile—a packet of war letters. G., H. L. (F '17)

Measurement of intelligence. Terman, L. M. (D '16)

Measuring the work of the public schools. Judd, C. H. (Je '16)

Mechanical drawing

Howe, C. B. Mechanical drafting. (D '16)

Mechanical engineers' handbook. Marks, L. S., ed. (N '16)

Mechanical engineers' pocket-book. Kent, W. (Mr '16)

Mechanical models

Stout, W. B. Boy's book of mechanical models. (N '16)

Mechanics, Applied

Hale, J. W. L. Practical mechanics and allied subjects. (Je '16)

Mechanism of Mendelian heredity. Morgan, T. H., and others. (My '16)

Mechanisms of character formation. White, W. A. (Ja '17)

Mediaeval church vaulting. Ward, C. (My '16)

Medical and veterinary entomology. Herms, W. B. (Ag '16)

Medical ethics

- Parsons, S. E. Nursing problems and obligations. (Ja '17)
 Smidovich, V. V. Memoirs of a physician. (D '16)

Medicine

- Cabot, R. C. Layman's handbook of medicine. (F '17)

Dictionaries

- Gould, G. M. Practitioner's medical dictionary. (Ag '16)
 Medieval and modern times. Robinson, J. H. (O '16)
 Medieval civilization. Ashley, R. L. (S '16)
 Melancholy tale of "Me." Sothorn, E. H. (N '16)
 Memoirs of a physician. Smidovich, V. V. (D '16)
 Memoirs of M. Thiers, 1870-1873. Thiers, L. A. (F '17)
 Memorandum. Rotch, W. (O '16)

Memorial day

- Mackay, C. D. Memorial day pageant. (Ag '16)

Memories

- Clodd, E. (D '16)
 Memories. Redesdale, A. B. F.-M., baron. (My '16)
 Memories of the Fatherland. Topham, A. (D '16)
 Men of letters. Scott, D. (F '17)
 Men who wrought. Cullum, R. (Ja '17)
 Men, women and ghosts. Lowell, A. (D '16)
 Men, women and guns. Sapper, pseud. (Ja '17)

Mendel's law

- Morgan, T. H., and others. Mechanism of Mendelian heredity. (My '16)

Meningitis, Cerebrospinal

- Foster, M., and Gaskell, J. F. Cerebro-spinal fever. (O '16)

Mental hygiene

- Cleghorn, S. N., and Fisher, D. F. Fellow captains. (Ja '17)
 Dunton, W. R. Occupation therapy. (Je '16)
 Keniston, J. M. Kingdom of the mind (F '17)

Metallography

- Howe, H. M. Metallography of steel and cast iron. (O '16)
 Sauveur, A. Metallography and heat treatment of iron and steel. (O '16)

Metallurgy

- Liddell, D. M., comp. Metallurgists and chemists' handbook. (O '16)
 Metallurgy of gold. Rose, T. K. (O '16)

Meteorites

- Farrington, O. C. Meteorites. (D '16)
 Methods and aims in the study of literature. Cooper, L. (Je '16)

Mexico

- Hagar, G. J. Plain facts about Mexico. (S '16)
 Whitney, C. What's the matter with Mexico? (D '16)

Description and travel

- Franck, H. A. Tramping through Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras. (S '16)
 Ruxton, G. F. A. Adventures in Mexico. (Je '16)

Foreign relations

- Manning, W. R. Early diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico. (Je '16)

History

- Banks, H. W. Boys' Prescott. (N '16)
 Bishop, F. Our first war in Mexico. (O '16)
 Stephens, K. Mastering of Mexico. (Ap '16)

Revolution, 1910

- O'Shaughnessy, E. L. Diplomat's wife in Mexico. (Jl '16)
 Smith, R. W. Benighted Mexico. (O '16)
 Michael, Benson, E. F. (F '17)
 Michael Cassidy, sergeant. Sapper, pseud. (O '16)
 Microscopy of vegetable foods. Winton, A. L., and others. (N '16)
 Midshipman Stanford. Clark, H. H. (S '16)
 Midsummer motoring in Europe. Thom, D. W. (D '16)

- Mike. Eng title of Michael. Benson, E. F. (F '17)

- Mildew manse. Manlates, B. K. (Mr '16)

Militarism

- Am. sociological society. War and militarism in their sociological aspects. (Ap '16)
 Military and naval America. Kerrick, H. S. (F '17)

Military art and science

- Andrews, L. C. Fundamentals of military service. (Je '16)
 International military digest annual. (Je '16)
 Moss, J. A., and Stewart, M. B. Self-helps for the citizen soldier. (Je '16)
 Robinson, E. F. Military preparedness and the engineer. (S '16)

Military engineering

- Bond, P. S. Engineer in war. (Ag '16)
 Robinson, E. F. Military preparedness and the engineer. (S '16)

Military hygiene

- Ashburn, P. M. Elements of military hygiene. (Jl '16)

Military systems

- Fortescue, G. R. Fore-armed; how to build a citizen army. (O '16)
 Grande, J. Citizens' army. (O '16)

Military training

- Bacon, C., comp. Selected articles on military training. (Je '16)
 Gignilliat, L. R. Arms and the boy. (N '16)
 Moss, J. A. Manual of military training. (My '16)
 Perry, R. B. Free man and the soldier. (O '16)
 Scott, J. F. Patriots in the making. (F '17)
 Military unpreparedness of the United States. Huidekoper, F. I. (F, My '16)

Milk

- Lane-Clayton, J. E. Milk and its hygienic relations. (N '16)

Millinery

- Perry, L. Millinery as a trade for women. (F '17)

Milton, John, 1608-1674Bibliography

- Thompson, E. N. S. John Milton. (Ja '17)
Mind and body
 Dearborn, G. V. Influence of joy. (Jl '16)
Minimum wage
 Collier, P. S. Minimum wage legislation in Australasia. (O '16)
Mining engineering
 Young, G. J. Elements of mining. (F '17)
 Miss Theodosia's heartstrings. Donnell, A. (D '16)
Missions
 Collison, W. H. In the wake of the war canoe. (Ag '16)
 Dearing, J. L., ed. Christian movement in the Japanese empire. (S '16)
 Eddy, G. S. Students of Asia. (My '16)
 Greene, J. K. Leavening the Levant. (Ja '17)
 Keable, R. City of the dawn. (Je '16)
 Mackenzie, J. K. Black sheep. (Ag '16)
 McLean, R., and Williams, G. F. Old Spain in new America. (F '17)
 Richard, T. Forty-five years in China. (Ja '17)
 Zwemer, S. M. Disintegration of Islam. (F '17)
 Mr. and Mrs. Pierce. Mackenzie, C. (My '16)
 Mr. Britling sees it through. Wells, H. G. (O '16)
 Mr. Wildridge of the bank. Doyle, L., pseud. (D '16)
 Mrs. Balfame. Atherton, G. F. (Mr '16)
 Mrs. Jones (A). Peel, D. C. (D '16)
 Moby lane and therabouts. Lyons, A. N. (Mr '16)
 Model aeroplanes and their motors. Cavanagh, G. A. (D '16)
 Model city charter and municipal home rule. National Municipal League. (N '16)
Modeling
 Adams, H. M. When mother lets us model. (Ag '16)
 Modern American library economy. Dana, J. C., ed. (Je '16)

Modern auction in ten lessons. Montgomery, G. G. C. (Je '16)
Modern chemistry and its wonders. Martin, G. (O '16)
Modern Europe, 1789-1914. Herbert, S. (O '16)
Modern Job. Giran, E. (Ja '17)
Modern knitting book. Klickmann, F., ed. (O '16)
Modern movements among Moslems. Wilson, S. G. (Ag '16)
Modern swimming. Brown, J. H. P. (Je '16)
Modernizing the Monroe doctrine. Sherrill, C. H. (Ap '16)
Modes of research in genetics. Pearl, R. (My '16)
Mohammed, 570?-632
 Draycott, G. M. Mahomet, founder of Islam. (D '16)
Mohammedanism
 Hitti, P. K., ed. Origins of the Islamic state. (N '16)
 Hurgronje, C. S. Mohammedanism. (Ag '16)
 Wilson, S. G. Modern movements among Moslems. (Ag '16)
 Zwemer, S. M. Disintegration of Islam. (F '17)
Money
 Bradbeer, W. W. Confederate and southern state currency. (Ap '16)
 Moulton, H. G. Principles of money and banking. (D '16)
 Scott, W. A. Money and banking. (D '16)
Monopolies
 Nearing, S. Anthracite. (Mr '16)
Monroe doctrine
 Hart, A. B. Monroe doctrine. (Mr '16)
 O'Laughlin, J. C. Imperiled America. (Ag '16)
 Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on the Monroe doctrine. (My '16)
 Sherrill, C. H. Modernizing the Monroe doctrine. (Ap '16)
Monster-hunters. Rolt-Wheeler, F. W. (Ag '16)
Montgomery, Leslie Alexander. See Doyle, L., pseud.
Month in Rome. Maurel, A. (Ag '16)
Moore, George, 1853-
 Mitchell, S. L. George Moore. (Ja '17)
Moral education
 Sneath, F. H., and others. King's highway series. (F '17)
 Whitney, W. T. Moral education. (My '16)
Moral sanitation. Groves, E. R. (F '17)
Morality of nations. Burns, C. D. (Ap '16)
Morals and manners among negro Americans.
 Du Bois, W. E. B., and Dill, A. G., eds. (S '16)
More wanderings in London. Lucas, E. V. (Ja '17)
Moreton-Macdonald, John Ronald. See Macdonald, J. R. M.
Morgan memorial, Boston
 Dorion, E. C. E. Redemption of the South End. (Mr '16)
Mormons and Mormonism
 Webb, R. C. Real Mormonism. (S '16)
Morning Face. Porter, G. (Ja '17)
Morphology
 Duckworth, W. L. H. Morphology and anthropology. (Je '16)
Morphy's games of chess. Sergeant, P. W., ed. (Jl '16)
Mortality
 Henderson, R. Mortality laws and statistics. (O '16)
Mortality from cancer throughout the world.
 Hoffman, F. L. (N '16)
Mortgages
 Robins, K. N. Farm mortgage handbook. (O '16)
Mosquitoes
 Le Prince, J. A. A., and Orenstein, A. J. Mosquito control in Panama. (Mr '16)
Mosses
 Dunham, E. M. How to know the mosses. (Jl '16)
Mother and her child. Sadler, W. S. and L. (Ja '17)
Mothercraft manual. Read, M. L. (Ja '17)

Mothers

Poetry
 Ayer, M. A., comp. Our mothers. (Jl '16)
 Mothers. Hirschfeld, G. (Jl '16)
 Mothers and men. Pulsifer, H. T. (Ja '17)
 Motivation of school work. Wilson, H. B. and G. M. (D '16)

Motor boats

Verrill, A. H. Book of the motor boat. (O '16)

Mount Vernon

Wilstach, P. Mount Vernon, Washington's home and the nation's shrine. (D '16)
 Mountain interval. Frost, R. (Ja '17)

Mountaineering

Abraham, G. D. On Alpine heights and British crags. (Je '16)
 Salisbury, F. S. Rambles in the Vaudese Alps. (F '17)

Mountains

Van Dyke, J. C. Mountain. (Jl '16)

Moving pictures

Münsterberg, H. Photoplay. (Je '16)
 Welsh, R. E. A-B-C of motion pictures. (Jl '16)

Muir, John, 1833-1914

Muir, J. Boyhood of a naturalist. (N '16)
 Müller-Walle method of lip-reading for the deaf. Bruhn, M. E. (S '16)

Municipal engineering

Folwell, A. P. Municipal engineering practice. (F '17)

Municipal government

Hebble, C. R., and Goodwin, F. P., eds. Citizens book. (Ag '16)
 Hill, M., and Davis, P. Civics for new Americans. (My '16)
 Munro, W. B. Principles and methods of municipal administration. (My '16)
 National Municipal League. Model city charter and municipal home rule. (N '16)
 Sparks, F. M. Business of government. (Je '16)
 Wright, H. C. American city. (Je '16)

Municipal home rule

McBain, H. L. Law and the practice of municipal home rule. (O '16)

Municipal improvement

Zueblin, C. American municipal progress. (Mr '16)

Munn, Mrs. Philip. See Bryant, M.
Mushrooms. Kreymborg, A. (O '16)

Music

Berlioz, H. Gluck and his operas. (Mr '16)
 Elson, L. C. History of American music. (Ap '16)
 Lee, E. M. Story of symphony. (Ja '17)
 Macpherson, S. Musical education of the child. (S '16)
 Mason, D. G., and M. L. Appreciation of music. (S '16)
 Miller, D. C. Science of musical sounds. (Ag '16)
 Pougin, A. Short history of Russian music. (My '16)
 Stanford, Sir C. V., and Forsyth, C. History of music. (F '17)
 Musical education of the child. Macpherson, S. (S '16)

Musicians

Mason, D. G., and M. L. Appreciation of music. (S '16)

Fiction

Lee, J. Unfinished portraits. (D '16)
 Muslin. Moore, G. (Je '16)
 My days and dreams. Carpenter, E. (O '16)
 My fourteen months at the front. Robinson, W. J. (My '16)
 My friend Phil. Peacocke, I. M. (Ap '16)
 My garden. Wilder, L. (Ja '17)
 My harvest. Whiteing, R. (Ap '16)
 My home in the field of honour. Huard, F. (Jl '16)
 My lady of the island. Grimshaw, B. E. (My '16)
 My lady of the moor. Oxenham, J. (Jl '16)
 My lady's dress. Knoblauch, E. (Ap '16)
 My Siberian year. Czaplicka, M. A. (D '16)
 My Slav friends. Reynolds, R. (N '16)

My years at the Austrian court. Ryan, N. (Mr '16)

Myrtle Reed cook book. Reed, M. (F '17)

Mysterious stranger. Clemens, S. L. (D '16)

Mysticism

Buckham, J. W. Mysticism and the modern life. (O '16)

Mythology

Alexander, H. B. North American [mythology]. (O '16)

Dixon, R. B. Oceanic [mythology]. (Ja '17)

Fox, W. S. Greek and Roman [mythology]. (O '16)

Morris, W. Stories from The earthly paradise. (Je '16)

N. N., pseud. See Pennell, E.

Nameless one. Cheney, A. C. (My '16)

Nah of Music mountain. Spearman, F. H. (My '16)

Nantucket, Mass.

History

Rotch, W. Memorandum. (O '16)

Napoleon I, emperor of the French, 1769-1821

Bertaut, J. Napoleon in his own words. (O '16)

Lutyens, E. Letters of Captain Engelbert Lutyens. (Mr '16)

Narcissus. Meynell, V. (S '16)

National board of fire underwriters

Brearley, H. C. Fifty years of a civilizing force. (O '16)

National characteristics

Orth, S. P. Imperial impulse. (Ap '16)

National characteristics, French

Baldwin, J. M. France and the war. (Jl '16)

Jerrold, L. France. (D '16)

Sergeant, E. S. French perspectives. (D '16)

National characteristics, German

Fräncke, K. German spirit. (Jl '16)

Holmes, E. G. A. Nemesis of docility. (N '16)

National characteristics, Russian

Lethbridge, M. and A. Soul of the Russian. (N '16)

National defense. See United States—Defenses

National industries and the federal government. Am. acad. of political and social science. (My '16)

National issues of 1916. Fowler, C. N. (My '16)

National parks and reserves

United States. Interior, Dept. of. National parks portfolio. (N '16)

Nationalism, war and society. Krehbiel, E. B. (S '16)

Nationalism and war in the Near East. Courtney, L. H. C., baron, ed. (Ap '16)

Nationality

Hannah, I. C. Arms and the map. (Ap '16)

Rose, J. H. Nationality in modern history. (Jl '16)

Toynbee, A. J. New Europe. (O '16)

Nationalizing America. Steiner, E. A. (D '16)

Natural gas. See Gas, Natural.

Natural history

Bryan, W. A. Natural history of Hawaii. (Je '16)

Burroughs, J. Under the apple-trees. (Jl '16)

Henderson, J. B. Cruise of the Thomas Barrera. (Jl '16)

Hudson, W. H. Birds and man. (Ag '16)

Scully, W. C. Lodges in the wilderness. (Ap '16)

Wood, S. T. Rambles of a Canadian naturalist. (O '16)

Natural method of voice production in speech and song. Muckey, F. S. (Ag '16)

Natural theology

Webb, C. C. J. Studies in the history of natural theology. (O '16)

Nature

Goodchild, G., comp. Lore of the wanderer. (Je '16)

Muir, J. Boyhood of a naturalist. (N '16)

Nature and purpose of social phenomena. Bowley, A. L. (Ap '16)

Naval occasions and some traits of the sailor-man. Bartimeus, pseud. (Ap '16)

Navies

Fiske, B. A. Navy as a fighting machine. (Ja '17)

Navigation

Sterling, F. W. Small boat navigation. (Ag '16)

Navy as a fighting machine. Fiske, B. A. (Ja '17)

Nearing Jordan. Lucy, Sir H. W. (N '16)

Neglected points of auction bridge. Ehlermann, C., jr. (Jl '16)

Negroes

Corrothers, J. D. In spite of the handicap. (Ja '17)

Du Bois, W. E. B., and Dill, A. G., eds. Morals and manners among negro Americans. (S '16)

Evans, M. S. Black and white in the southern states. (Ap '16)

Negro year book. (S '16)

Roman, C. V. American civilization and the negro. (Ag '16)

Nelson's History of the war. Buchan, J. (My '16)

Nemesis of docility. Holmes, E. G. A. (N '16)

Nervous children. Tucker, B. R. (F '17)

Nervous system

Herrick, C. J. Introduction to neurology. (My '16)

Diseases

Tucker, B. R. Nervous children. (F '17)

Nesbit, Edith. See Bland, E.

Nest-builder. Hale, B. F. (O '16)

Netherleign, Riley, W. (Ap '16)

Neutrality

Baldwin, J. M. American neutrality. (Je '16)

Brewer, L. C. Rights and duties of neutrals. (Ap '16)

New Belgian poems. Cammaerts, É. (D '16)

New chivalry—health. McCulloch, J. E., ed. (S '16)

New England

Description and travel

Baker, L. H. Favorite motor ways of New England. (Je '16)

Hawthorne, H. Old seaport towns of New England. (F '17)

Prime, W. C. Along New England roads. (Jl '16)

Sargent, P. E. Handbook of New England. (O '16)

Economic conditions

Bidwell, P. W. Rural economy in New England at the beginning of the nineteenth century. (F '17)

New England childhood. Fuller, M. (D '16)

New England primer printed in America prior to 1830. Heartman, C. F. (F '17)

New Europe. Toynbee, A. J. (O '16)

New homes under old roofs. Seabury, J. S. (O '16)

New ideals in business. Tarbell, I. M. (Ja '17)

New interior. Adler, H. (D '16)

New map of Africa (1900-1916). Gibbons, H. A. (Ja '17)

New protectionism. Hobson, J. A. (F '17)

New public health. Hill, H. W. (Mr '16)

New purchase. Hall, B. R. (Ja '17)

New reservation of time. Tucker, W. J. (F '17)

New slavery. Scott, H. P. (O '16)

New wars for old. Holmes, J. H. (Jl '16)

New York (city)

Am. scenic and historic preservation soc. Twentieth annual report. (Je '16)

Bayles, W. H. Old taverns of New York. (My '16)

Maurice, A. B. New York of the novelists. (Ja '17)

Rider, F., comp. and ed. New York city and vicinity. (F '17)

New York (state)

Am. scenic and historic preservation soc. Twentieth annual report. (Je '16)

History

Horne, C. F. History of the state of New York. (N '16)

Newlin, Mrs. Ruth (Cranston). See Warwick, A., pseud.

Newman, John Henry, cardinal, 1801-1890
 Cadman, S. P. Three religious leaders of Oxford and their movements. (Je '16)
 News from "Somewhere." Milne, J. (My '16)
Newspapers
 Seitz, D. C. Training for the newspaper trade. (Ja '17)

Bibliography

Yale university. Library. List of newspapers in the Yale university library. (S '16)
 Next step in democracy. Sellars, R. W. (Jl '16)
 Nicaragua

History

Scroggs, W. O. Filibusters and financiers. (Ag '16)
 Nietzsche, Friedrich Wilhelm, 1844-1900
 Wolf, A. Philosophy of Nietzsche. (Je '16)
 Night cometh. Bourget, P. C. J. (Jl '16)
 Night court and other verse. Mitchell, R. C. (D '16)
 Nights. Pennell, E. (My '16)
 Nights in London. Burke, T. (Jl '16)
 Nivedita, Sister. See Noble, M. E.
 Noble woman [Edith Cavell]. Frotheroe, E. (My '16)
 Nobody's boy. Malot, H. H. (Ja '17)
 Non-resistance
 Holmes, J. H. New wars for old. (Jl '16)
 Norrie, H. S., pseud. See Schneider, N. H.
 North American [mythology]. Alexander, H. B. (O '16)

North Carolina

Haynes, W. Sandhills sketches. (N '16)
 North Sea. Heine, H. (Ja '17)

Northeast passage

Alexander, P. F., ed. North-west and North-east passages, 1576-1611. (O '16)

Northern Bantu. Roscoe, J. (Ap '16)

Northern confederacy according to the plans of the "Essex junto," 1796-1814. Brown, C. R. (Je '16)

Northern countryside. Richards, R. (Jl '16)

North-west Amazons. Whiffen, T. (Mr '16)

Northwest passage

Alexander, P. F., ed. North-west and North-east passages, 1576-1611. (O '16)

Note book of a neutral. Patterson, J. M. (Mr '16)

Notes of a busy life. Foraker, J. B. (My '16)
 Nothing a year. Davis, C. B. (Ap '16)

Nullification

Boucher, C. S. Nullification controversy in South Carolina. (F '17)

Nurses and nursing

Drummond, W. B. Physiology for nurses. (F '17)

Dunton, W. R. Occupation therapy. (Je '16)

Gardner, M. S. Public health nursing. (F '17)

Parsons, S. E. Nursing problems and obligations. (Ja '17)

Pope, A. E. Physics and chemistry for nurses. (F '17)

Nutrition

Mendel, L. B. Changes in the food supply and their relation to nutrition. (My '16)

Stiles, P. G. Nutritional physiology. (Je '16)

Oakleyites. Benson, E. F. (Mr '16)

Observations of Professor Maturin. Furst, C. (Ag '16)

Obstetrics

Bandler, S. W. Expectant mother. (F '17)

Davis, C. H. Painless childbirth. (Ap '16)

Obvious Adams. Updegraff, R. R. (Ja '17)

Occupation therapy. Dunton, W. R. (Je '16)

Occupations

Bowsfield, C. C. How boys and girls can earn money. (D '16)

Johnston, W. A. Deeds of doing and daring. (N '16)

See also Woman—Employment

Diseases and hygiene

N. Y. (state). Labor. Dept. of. European regulations for prevention of occupational diseases. (Jl '16)

Occupations, Choice of

Gowin, E. B., and Wheatley, W. A. Occupations. (Jl '16)

Ocean

Verrill, A. H. Ocean and its mysteries. (Jl '16)

Ocean sleuth. Drake, M. (Ap '16)

Oceanic [mythology]. Dixon, R. B. (Ja '17)

Oceanica

Description and travel

Stock, R. Chequered cruise. (Ja '17)

Of one blood. Sheldon, C. M. (Ag '16)

Official good roads year book of the United States. Am. highway assn. (Ap '16)

Official guide to eastern Asia. (N '16)

Ohiyesa, the Sioux Indian. See Eastman, C. A.

Oil fuel. See Petroleum as fuel

Old age

Child, C. M. Senescence and rejuvenescence. (F, Ap '16)

See also Longevity

Old age pensions

Hoare, H. J. Old age pensions. (My '16)

Old blood. Palmer, F. (Ja '17)

Old familiar faces. Watts-Dunton, T. (Ap '16)

Old glass and how to collect it. Lewis, J. S. (F '17)

Old glory. Andrews, M. R. S. (S '16)

Old house. Sologub, F., pseud. (O '16)

Old Judge Priest. Cobb, I. S. (Je '16)

Old, old tales from the old, old Book. Smith, N. A. (F '17)

Old pottery and porcelain. Burgess, F. W. (Ja '17)

Old seaport towns of New England. Hawthorne, H. (F '17)

Old Spain in new America. McLean, R., and Williams, G. P. (F '17)

Old taverns of New York. Bayles, W. H. (My '16)

Old Testament history. Peritz, I. J. (Mr '16)

Olga Bardel. Aumonier, S. (N '16)

Omniana. Fuller, J. F. (F '17)

On Alpine heights and British crags. Abraham, G. D. (Je '16)

On being human. Wilson, W. (My '16)

On the Anzac trail. Anzac, pseud. (N '16)

On the art of writing. Quiller-Couch, Sir A. T. (Je '16)

On the battle front of engineering. Bond, A. R. (D '16)

On the campus. Macbride, T. H. (D '16)

On toast. Kidge, W. F. (S '16)

Once upon a time in Indiana. Dye, C., ed. (N '16)

One hundred best books. Powys, J. C. (Ag '16)

One hundred cartoons. Cesare, O. E. (Ja '17)

One maid cookery book. Congreve, A. E. (D '16)

One more chance. MacBrayne, L. E., and Ramsay, J. F. (S '16)

"1001 places to sell manuscripts." Kane, W. R., comp. (Ap '16)

1001 tests of foods, beverages and toilet accessories. Wiley, H. W. (F '17)

1000 shorter ways around the house. Croy, M. S. (D '16)

1600 business books. Ball, S. B., comp. (Jl '16)

Only relatives invited. Sherman, C. (Jl '16)

Open that door! Ingersoll, R. S. (D '16)

Operas

Berlioz, H. Gluck and his operas. (Mr '16)

Operettas

Richards, L. E. Fairy operettas. (Ja '17)

St. Nicholas book of plays and operettas; second series. (N '16)

Optics

Parker, G. W. Elements of optics. (O '16)

Oral English. Brewer, J. M. (Jl '16)

Orators

Bowers, C. G. Irish orators. (Je '16)

Oratory

Houghton, H. G. Elements of public speaking. (F '17)

Mosher, J. A. Essentials of effective gesture. (S '16)

Winans, J. A. Public speaking. (Jl '16)

Orbis Catholicus. Glancey, M. F., ed. (D '16)

Ore treatment

Megraw, H. A. Flotation process. (F '17)

Oregon

Description and travel

Lancaster, S: C. Columbia, America's great highway through the Cascade mountains to the sea. (My '16)

History

Judson, K. B. Early days in old Oregon. (S '16)
Organic agricultural chemistry. Chamberlain, J. S. (S '16)

Oriental women

Cooper, E. Harim and the purdah. (Mr '16)
Origin of artillery. Hime, H: W: L. (Je '16)
Origin of the earth. Chamberlin, T: C. (O '16)
Origins of the Islamic state. Hittl, P. K., ed. (N '16)

Other people's business. Smith, H. L. (D '16)
Others. Kreymborg, A., ed. (Ag '16)

Oughtred, William, 1574?-1660

Cajori, F. William Oughtred. (F '17)
Our America. Lapp, J: A. (Ja '17)
Our chief magistrate and his powers. Taft, W: H. (Je '16)

Our early wild flowers. Keeler, H. L. (Ap '16)
Our Eastern question. Millard, T: F. F. (O '16)

Our fighting services. Wood, Sir E. (S '16)
Our first war in Mexico. Bishop, F. (O '16)

Our Hispanic Southwest. Peixotto, E. C. (Ja '17)

Our little Viking cousin of long ago. Johnston, C: H. L. (F '17)

Our military history. Wood, L. (Je '16)
Our Miss York. Morris, E. B. (My '16)

Our mothers. Ayer, M. A., comp. (Jl '16)
Our nation in the building. Nicolay, H. (Ja '17)

Our Natupski neighbors. Minitier, E. M. (Ja '17)

Our summer in the vale of Kashmir. Denys, F: W. (Je '16)

Ourselves and Germany. Eng title of England and Germany. Dillon, E. J. (O '16)

Outdoor life

Emerson, W. C. Latchstring to Maine woods and waters. (Jl '16)

Hough, E. Let us go afield. (Jl '16)
Miller, W. H. Boy's book of hunting and fishing. (Ag '16)

Roosevelt, T. Book-lover's holidays in the open. (Ap '16)

Outlaw. Gregory, J. (Mr '16)
Outline of applied sociology. Fairchild, H: P. (F '17)

Outline of industrial history. Cressy, E: (S '16)

Outline of international law. Hall, A. B. (Ap '16)

Outlines of industrial chemistry. Thorp, F. H. (O '16)

Overcrowded schools and the platoon plan. Hartwell, S. O. (My '16)

Overruled. See Shaw, G: B. Androcles and the lion. (Je '16)

Oxford movement

Cadman, S: P. Three religious leaders of Oxford and their movements. (Je '16)

Ollard, S. L. Short history of the Oxford movement. (My '16)

Oxy-acetylene welding and cutting. Manly, H. P. (S '16)

Pacifism. See Peace

Pageant of Dickens. Crotch, W. W. (S '16)

Pageants

Beegle, M. P., and Crawford, J. R. Community drama and pageantry. (Ag '16)

Davol, R. Handbook of American pageantry. (Je '16)

Mackay, C. D. Memorial day pageant. (Ag '16)

Nettleton, G: H., ed. Book of the Yale pageant. (D '16)

Stevenson, A. Romantic Indiana. (N '16)

See also Masks

Painless childbirth. Davis, C. H. (Ap '16)

Painted scene. Webster, H: K. (O '16)

Painter of dreams. Stirling, A. M. D. W. (Ap '16)

Painters

McSpadden, J. W. Famous painters of America. (F '17)

Sirén, O. Leonardo da Vinci. (Jl '16)

Vasari, G. Lives of the most eminent painters, sculptors and architects. (Jl '16)

Painting

Bell, R. H. Philosophy of painting. (My '16)

Benois, A. N. Russian school of painting. (F '17)

Davies, R. Six centuries of painting. (Ap '16)

Mather, F. J., jr. Estimates in art. (Je '16)

Tilney, F: C. Appeal of the picture. (Je '16)

Turner, W. Great schools of painting. (Je '16)

Pair of silk stockings. Harcourt, C. (My '16)

Palestine

Aaronsohn, A. With the Turks in Palestine. (Ja '17)

Smith, G: A., ed. Atlas of the historical geography of the Holy Land. (Ag '16)

Antiquities

Handcock, P. S. P. Archaeology of the Holy Land. (Jl '16)

Palmistry

Chelro, pseud. Palmistry for all. (Ag '16)

Panama

James, W. L. Woman in the wilderness. (S '16)

Panama canal

Freehoff, J. C. America and the canal title. (Mr '16)

Goethals, G: W., ed. Panama canal. (O '16)

Johnson, E. R.: Panama canal and commerce. (F '17)

MacDonald, D. F. Some engineering problems of the Panama canal in their relation to geology and topography. (Je '16)

Talley, G: A. Panama canal. (Ag '16)

Panama Canal Zone

Sanitary affairs

Le Prince, J. A. A., and Orenstein, A. J. Mosquito control in Panama. (Mr '16)

Papers and proceedings of the twenty-eighth annual meeting. Am. economic assn. (Ap '16)

Paradise of Dante Alighieri. Dante. (Jl '16)

Paris

Taylor, E. A. Paris, past and present. (Je '16)

Parks

Burnap, G: Parks. (F '17)

Lyle, W: T. Parks and park engineering. (D '16)

Parlement of the three ages. Gollancz, I., ed. (Mr '16)

Partial list of plants available for various uses in general landscape planting. Taylor, A. D., comp. (S '16)

Passed by the censor. Williams, W. (Jl '16)

Passenger terminals and trains. Droege, J: A. (F '17)

Passing of the great race. Grant, M. (Ja '17)

Past and present at the English lakes. Rawnsley, H. D. (F '17)

Patents

Edelman, P. E. Inventions and patents. (O '16)

Path of dreams. McClellan, G: M. (Ag '16)

Path of glory. France, A., pseud. (Mr '16)

Pathology

Crile, G: W. Man—an adaptive mechanism. (My '16)

Patience Worth. Yost, C. S. (Mr '16)

Patriots in the making. Scott, J. F. (F '17)

Pavements

Agg, T. R. Construction of roads and pavements. (D '16)

Peace

American Academy of Political and Social Science. Preparedness and America's international program. (D '16)

Bigelow, J: W. World peace. (My '16)

Blakeslee, G: H., ed. Problems and lessons of the war. (Je '16)

Bourne, R. S., comp. Towards an enduring peace. (Ja '17)

Peace—Continued

- Brailsford, H.: N. War of steel and gold. (Jl '16)
 Buxton, C. R., ed. Towards a lasting settlement. (Je '16)
 Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Year book for 1916. (N '16)
 Coulton, G. G. Main illusions of pacifism. (S '16)
 Federal council of the churches of Christ in America. Commission on Christian education, comp. Selected quotations on peace and war. (S '16)
 Fried, A. H. Restoration of Europe. (Ag '16)
 Gladden, W. Forks of the road. (Je '16)
 Holmes, J.: H. New wars for old. (Jl '16)
 Jordan, D.: S. Ways to lasting peace. (Mr '16)
 Jordan, D.: S. World peace and the college man. (Je '16)
 Krehbiel, E.: B. Nationalism, war and society. (S '16)
 La Fontaine, H. Great solution, magnissima charta. (N '16)
 London, J. Acorn-planter. (Ap '16)
 Plater, C., ed. Primer of peace and war. (Je '16)
 Reely, M. K., comp. Selected articles on world peace. (Mr '16)

Bibliography

- Mez, J.: R. comp. Peace literature of the war. (Jl '16)
 Peace and quiet. Royle, E. M. (F '17)
 Peace of the Augustans. Saintsbury, G.: E. B. (Je '16)
 Peanut-cub reporter. Eaton, W. P. (F '17)
 Pelle the conqueror: daybreak. Nexö, M. A. (F '17)
 Pencraft. Watson, W.: (Ja '17)
 Penn, William, 1644-1718
 Huckel, O. Dreamer of dreams. (Ja '17)
 Penny piper of Saranac. Chalmers, S. (N '16)
 Pennybacker, Anna J. (Hardwicke) (Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker), 1861-
 Knox, H. Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker. (Jl '16)
 Penrod and Sam. Tarkington, B. (N '16)
 People like that. Bosher, K. L. (Je '16)
 People who run. Thurstan, V. (O '16)

Periodicals

- Tassin, A. de V. Magazine in America. (Jl '16)

Bibliography

- Gates, A. J., comp. Catalogue of technical periodicals. (Je '16)
 Stephens, E., comp. American popular magazines. (Jl '16)

Indexes

- Athenæum subject index to periodicals, 1915. (F '17)
 Readers' guide to periodical literature [cumulated]; 1910-14 (Je '16)

PersiaDescription and travel

- Fowle, T. C. W.: Travels in the Middle East. (N '16)
 Persistent public problems. Taylor, A. O., ed. (O '16)
 Personal efficiency, applied salesmanship, and sales administration. Allen, I. R. (My '16)
 Personal health. Brady, W.: (D '16)
 Personal recollections of Abraham Lincoln. Rankin, H.: B. (Jl '16)

Personality

- Smyth, N. Meaning of personal life. (Je '16)
 Personality in German literature before Luther. Francke, K. (F '17)
 Persons and politics of the transition. Baumann, A. A. (O '16)
 Petey Simmons at Siwash. Fitch, G.: (N '16)

Petrograd

- Stevenl, W.: B. Petrograd, past and present. (My '16)

Petroleum

- Bacon, R. F., and Hamor, W.: A. American petroleum industry. (F '17)
 Johnson, R. H., and Huntley, L.: G. Principles of oil and gas production. (F '17)

Petroleum as fuel

- Dunn, F. B. Industrial uses of fuel oil. (O '16)
 Phantom herd. Bower, B. M., pseud. (Ap '16)
 Phases of early Christianity. Carpenter, J. E. (S '16)
 Philippine folk tales. Cole, M., comp. (F '17)
 Philippine Islands
 Kalaw, M. M. Case for the Filipinos. (Jl '16)
 Philosophers in trouble. Jacks, L. P. (N '16)
 Philosophy
 Boutroux, É. Philosophy and war. (D '16)
 Bridges, J.: H. Illustrations of positivism. (Jl '16)
 Burroughs, J.: Under the apple-trees. (Jl '16)
 Cunningham, G. W. Study in the philosophy of Bergson. (D '16)

Philosophy, Chinese

- Wang Yang-ming. Philosophy of Wang Yang-ming. (N '16)

Philosophy, German

- Muirhead, J.: H. German philosophy in relation to war. (Je '16)
 Santayana, G.: Egotism in German philosophy. (Ja '17)
 Wolf, A. Philosophy of Nietzsche. (Je '16)

Philosophy, Hindu

- Frazer, R. W. Indian thought past and present. (Je '16)
 Philosophy of painting. Bell, R. H. (My '16)

Photography

- Collins, F.: A. Camera man. (D '16)
 Photoplay. Münsterberg, H. (Je '16)

Phototelegraphy

- Martin, M. J. Wireless transmission of photographs. (S '16)
 Physical basis of society. Kelsey, C. (F '17)

Physical education

- Balch, E. B. Amateur circus life. (F '17)
 Brink, B.: D. Body builder: Robert J. Roberts. (F '17)
 Bunker, M. N. Physical training for boys. (N '16)
 Curry, S.: S. How to add ten years to your life and to double its satisfactions. (Ag '16)

Physical exercise

- Cromie, W.: J. Keeping physically fit. (Mr '16)
 Physical properties of colloidal solutions. Burton, E. F. (O '16)

Physicians

- Smidovich, V. V. Memoirs of a physician. D '16)

- Physico-chemical properties of steel. Edwards, C.: A. (F '17)

Physics

- Pope, A. E. Physics and chemistry for nurses. (F '17)

Physiology

- Crile, G.: W. Man—an adaptive mechanism. (My '16)
 Drummond, W.: B. Physiology for nurses. (F '17)

Pichegru, Charles, 1761-1804

- Hall, Sir J.: R. General Pichegru's treason. (S '16)
 Picture book of British history. Roberts, S. C., comp. (Je '16)

Pictures

- Thurston, C. H. P. Art of looking at pictures. (Ja '17)

- Pierre Nozière. France, A., pseud. (Ag '16)

- Pilgrimage: pointed roofs. Richardson, D. M. (F '17)

- Pillars of society. Gardiner, A. G. (F '17)

- Pineus Hood. Hodges, A. (N '16)

- Pioneer laymen of North America. Campbell, T.: J. (Je '16)

Pioneers

- Campbell, T.: J. Pioneer laymen of North America. (Je '16)

Pirates

- Chatterton, E.: K. Daring deeds of famous pirates. (F '17)

- Gilbert, H.: Boys' book of pirates. (F '17)

Pitt, Thomas, 1653-1726

- Dalton, C. N. Life of Thomas Pitt. (Ap '16)

Pittsburgh

Dahlinger, C. W: Pittsburgh; a sketch of its early social life. (Jl '16)

Places young Americans want to know. Tomlinson, E. T. (Mr '16)

Plain facts about Mexico. Hagar, G. J. (S '16)

Planning of the modern city. Lewis, N. P. (N '16)

Plant propagation, greenhouse and nursery practice. Kains, M. G. (F '17)

Plantation songs. Stuart, R. (F '17)

Plants, Cultivated

Findlay, H. House plants. (O '16)

See also Gardening

Plants in art

Cole, R. V. Artistic anatomy of trees. (Ap '16)

Plato, 430?-347? B. C.

Temple, W: Plato and Christianity. (F '17)

Play

Johnson, G. E. Education through recreation. (My '16)

Play-acting woman. Fleming, G. (S '16)

Play production in America. Krows, A. E. (Ja '17)

Playgrounds

Sperling, H. Playground book. (O '16)

Plays and players. Eaton, W. P. (F '17)

Plays for boys and girls. See Children's plays

Plays for home, school and settlement. Olcott, V. (F '17)

Plays of the natural and the supernatural. Dreiser, T. (My '16)

Plays; second series. Tchekhov, A. P. (Je '16)

Pleasant ways of St. Médard. King, G. E. (O '16)

Pleasures of an absentee landlord. Crothers, S. M. (Ja '17)

Plots

Phillips, H: A. Universal plot catalogue. (Je '16)

Plumbing

Gray, W: B. Plumbing design and installation. (F '17)

Gray, W: B., and Ball, C: B. Plumbing. (F '17)

Plunderers. Lefevre, E. (Ag '16)

Pocahontas, 1595?-1617

Watson, V. C. Princess Pocahontas. (F '17)

Poe, Edgar Allan, 1809-1849

Ticknor, C. Poe's Helen. (D '16)

Poems, Books of

Aiken, C. Turns and movies. (My '16)

Aldington, R: Images—old and new. (Ag '16)

Aldington, Mrs. R: (H. D., pseud.). Sea garden. (Ja '17)

Aldis, M. Flashlights. (Ag '16)

Arensberg, W. C. Idols. (Jl '16)

Asquith, H. Volunteer. (Jl '16)

Bailey, L. H. Wind and weather. (Jl '16)

Bates, K. L. Fairy gold. (Ja '17)

Belloc, H. Verses. (F '17)

Björnson, B. Poems and songs. (My '16)

Blackall, C: W. Songs from the trenches. (Mr '16)

Blackwell, A. S., tr. Armenian poems. (F '17)

Braithwaite, W: S., comp. Anthology of magazine verse for 1916. (F '17)

Bridges, R., comp. Spirit of man. (Ap '16)

Burr, A. J. Life and living. (O '16)

Cammaerts, E. New Belgian poems. (D '16)

Carducci, G. Rime nuove. (Ja '17)

Carman, B. April airs. (Jl '16)

Clauson, J. E., comp. Dog's book of verse. (F '17)

Coates, F. Poems. (F '17)

Colum, P. Wild earth. (D '16)

Cone, H. G. Chant of love for England. (Je '16)

Cox, E. R. Singing fires of Erin. (Jl '16)

Crapsey, A. Verse. (Mr '16)

Cunliffe, J. W., comp. Poems of the great war. (Ja '17)

Daly, T: A. Songs of wedlock. (F '17)

Dante Alighieri. Divine comedy. (Ap '16)

Dargan, O. T. Cycle's rim. (F '17)

De la Mare, W. J: Listeners. (My '16)

Euwer, A. H. Rhymes of our valley. (O '16)

Faber, G. C. Interflow. (Ap '16)

Fielding-Hall, H. For England. (D '16)

Firkins, C. Poems. (Ag '16)

Firth, C: H., ed. American garland. (My '16)

Fletcher, J: G. Goblins and pagodas. (S '16)

Foster, J. R. Wild apples. (Ag '16)

Foulke, W: D. Lyrics of war and peace. (Ag '16)

Frankau, G. Song of the guns. (O '16)

Fröding, G. Selected poems. (Jl '16)

Frost, R. Mountain interval. (Ja '17)

Garrett, E. C. Army ballads. (S '16)

Georgian poetry, 1913-1915. (Ap '16)

Gibson, W. W. Battle. (My '16)

Gillian, S. W. Including you and me. (O '16)

Gollancz, I., ed. Parlement of the three ages. (Mr '16)

Graham, K., ed. Cambridge book of poetry for children. (S '16)

Hagedorn, H. Great maze. (My '16)

Hardy, T: Selected poems. (F '17)

Hay, J: Complete poetical works. (F '17)

Heine, H. North Sea. (Ja '17)

Helps, E. A., comp. Songs and ballads from over the sea. (D '16)

Herbert, G: English poems. (My '16)

Hewlett, M. H: Gai Saber. (O '16)

Hewlett, M. H: Song of the plow. (F '17)

Holborn, I. B. S. Children of fancy. (Mr '16)

Holt, L. H., ed. Leading English poets from Chaucer to Browning. (My '16)

Jeffers, J: R. Californians. (F '17)

Johnson, R. U. Poems of war and peace. (S '16)

Knibbs, H: H. Riders of the stars. (F '17)

Kreymborg, A. Mushrooms. (O '16)

Kreymborg, A., ed. Others. (Ag '16)

Lanier, S. Selections, prose and verse. (Jl '16)

Lawrence, D: H. Amores. (Ja '17)

Ledwidge, F. Songs of the fields. (Mr '16)

Lee, J. Ballads of battle. (F '17)

Lockwood, L. E., ed. Sonnets. (Ag '16)

Lombard, F. A., tr. Imperial Japanese poems of the Meiji era. (O '16)

Lowell, A. Men, women and ghosts. (D '16)

McCarthy, D. A. Heart songs and home songs. (D '16)

McClellan, G: M. Path of dreams. (Ag '16)

MacDonagh, T: Poetical works. (F '17)

MacDonagh, T., and others. Poems of the Irish revolutionary brotherhood. (Ag '16)

McKay, H. G. London, one November. (Ap '16)

MacKaye, P. Poems and plays. (S '16)

McLeod, I. R. Swords for life. (F '17)

Masefield, J: Good Friday, and other poems. (Mr '16)

Masefield, J: Salt-water poems and ballads. (N '16)

Masters, E. L. Great valley. (Ja '17)

Masters, E. L. Songs and satires. (My '16)

Maynard, W., pseud. Book of Winifred Maynard. (F '17)

Mitchell, R. C. Night court and other verse. (D '16)

Mukerji, D. G. Rajani. (S '16)

Münsterberg, M. A. A., tr. Harvest of German verse. (S '16)

Naidu, S. Bird of time. (O '16)

Naidu, S. Golden threshold. (D '16)

Neihardt, J: G. Quest. (F '17)

Neilson, W: A., and Webster, K. G. T., eds. Chief British poets of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. (S '16)

Newman, J: H. Dream of Gerontius. (Mr '16)

Norton, G. F. Roads. (S '16)

Norton, G. F. What is your legion? (S '16)

Noves, A., ed. Book of Princeton verse, 1916. (S '16)

O'Donnell, C: L. Dead musician. (D '16)

Oldroyd, O. H., comp. and ed. Poets' Lincoln. (Mr '16)

Oppenheim, J. War and laughter. (Ja '17)

Peabody, J. P. Harvest moon. (Ja '17)

Percy, W: A. Sappho in Levkas. (Ap '16)

Pickthall, M. L. C. Lamp of poor souls. (F '17)

Pierce, F: E. Jordan farms. (F '17)

Plunkett, J. M. Poems. (F '17)

Powys, J. C. Wolf's-bane rhymes. (Jl '16)

Proctor, E. D. Glory of toil. (F '17)

Pulsifer, H. T. Mothers and men. (Ja '17)

Redpath, B. Drawn shutters. (Mr '16)

Rice, C. Y. Earth and new earth. (O '16)

Richards, G. M., ed. High tide. (Je '16)

Poems, Books of—Continued

- Robinson, E. A. Man against the sky. (Ap '16)
 Sandburg, C. Chicago poems. (Je '16)
 Scollard, C. Ballads. (F '17)
 Seaman, O. War-time verses. (My '16)
 Seeger, A. Poems. (F '17)
 Service, R. W. Rhymes of a Red cross man. (F '17)
 Shakespeare, W. Sonnets. (F '17)
 Some imagist poets, 1916. (S '16)
 Sterling, G. Caged eagle. (N '16)
 Sterling, G. Evanescence city. (Jl '16)
 Stork, C. W. Sea and bay. (Jl '16)
 Stuart, R. Plantation songs. (F '17)
 Tagore, Sir R. Fruit-gathering. (D '16)
 Towne, C. H. Today and tomorrow. (Je '16)
 Untermeyer, L. "—and other poets." (Mr '16)
 Vaughan, H. Works. (My '16)
 Verhaeren, E. Sunlit hours. (F '17)
 Viereck, G. S. Songs of Armageddon and other poems. (Ag '16)
 Wood, C. E. S. Poet in the desert. (Mr '16)
 Yeats, W. B. Responsibilities. (F '17)
 Young, G., ed. Portugal. (Jl '16)
 Poet in the desert. Wood, C. E. S. (Mr '16)

Poetry

- Watson, W. Pencraft. (Ja '17)

Poets

- Sturgeon, M. C. Studies of contemporary poets. (N '16)
 Pointed roofs. See Pilgrimage. Richardson, D. M. (F '17)

Poland

- Gardner, M. M. Poland. (S '16)
 Orvis, J. S. Brief history of Poland. (F '17)
 Phillips, W. A. Poland. (Jl '16)
 Poland's case for independence. (Ja '17)
 Reynolds, R. My Slav friends. (N '16)
 Turczynowicz, L. de G. When the Prussians came to Poland. (F '17)
 Pole and tower lines for electric power transmission. Coombs, R. D. (O '16)

Polish literature

- Gardner, M. M. Poland. (S '16)
 Political and literary essays. Cromer, E. B., ed. (Ag '16)
 Political and social history of modern Europe. Hayes, C. (Ja '17)

Political conventions

- Bishop, J. B. Presidential nominations and elections. (Ag '16)
 Political history of Japan during the Meiji era, 1867-1912. McLaren, W. W. (O '16)

Political parties

- Haynes, F. E. Third party movements since the civil war. (Jl '16)
 Michels, R. Political parties. (My '16)
 Robinson, W. A. Jeffersonian democracy in New England. (F '17)

Political science

- Carlyle, R. W. and A. J. History of mediæval political theory in the West. (S '16)
 Davidson, W. L. Political thought in England. (Jl '16)
 Goodnow, F. J. Principles of constitutional government. (S '16)
 Root, E. Addresses on government and citizenship. (F '17)
 Rousseau, J. J. Political writings. (N '16)
 Treitschke, H. G. von. Politics. (O '16)
 Political thought in England. Davidson, W. L. (Jl '16)
 Politics. Treitschke, H. G. von. (O '16)
 Polly Trotter, patriot. Knipe, E. and A. A. (D '16)

Poor

- Hoare, H. J. Old age pensions. (My '16)

Popes

- McCabe, J. Crises in the history of the papacy. (My '16)
 Port of Boston. Clapp, E. J. (S '16)
 Portion of a champion. Sullivan, F. P. (Je '16)
 Portraits of the 'seventies. Russell, G. W. E. (Ja '17)
 Portraits of women. Bradford, G., jr. (D '16)
 Portugal
 Bell, A. F. G. Portugal of the Portuguese. (Je '16)

Portuguese literatureCollections

- Young, G., ed. Portugal. (Jl '16)

Positivism

- Bridges, J. H. Illustrations of positivism. (Jl '16)

- Possible peace. Hugins, R. (F '17)

Postal serviceGreat Britain

- Porter, R. H. Life and letters of Sir John Henniker Heaton. (N '16)

United States

- Rolt-Wheeler, F. W. Boy with the U. S. mail. (Ja '17)
 Potential Russia. Child, R. W. (S '16)
 Potsdam princes. Howard, E. (O '16)

Pottery

- Burgess, F. W. Old pottery and porcelain. (Ja '17)

- Camel, A. W. Blue-china book. (F '17)

- Pottle, Mrs. Juliet Wilbor Tompkins. See Tompkins, J. W.

Poultry

- Brown, H. W. Living from eggs and poultry. (N '16)
 Hubbard, C. H. Poultry secrets on mating, feeding and conditioning fancy poultry for the show room. (Je '16)
 Patterson, C. T. Twenty lessons on poultry keeping. (S '16)
 Pearl, R., and others. Diseases of poultry. (Jl '16)

Poverty

- Nearing, S. Poverty and riches. (D '16)
 Parmelee, M. F. Poverty and social progress. (S '16)

Power (mechanics)

- Bolton, R. P. Power for profit. (Ag '16)
 Power-house. Buchan, J. (N '16)

Power transmission

- Kent, R. T. Power transmission by leather belting. (F '17)
 Practicable socialism. Barnett, S. A. and H. O. (Mr '16)

- Practical basketry. Gill, A. A. (F '17)

- Practical book of early American arts and crafts. Eberlein, H. D., and McClure, A. (F '17)

- Practical electric wiring. Sharp, J. M. (N '16)
 Practical English composition. Miller, E. L. (S '16)

- Practical exporting. Hough, B. O. (Je '16)
 Practical landscape gardening. Cridland, R. B. (D '16)

- Practical mechanics and allied subjects. Hale, J. W. L. (Je '16)

- Practical safety methods and devices. Cowee, G. A. (D '16)
 Practical school and home gardens. Hood, G. W. (F '17)

- Practical stage directions for amateurs. Taylor, E. G. (Jl '16)
 Practical surveying. McCullough, E. (Je '16)

- Practical things with simple tools. Goldsmith, M. (D '16)

- Practitioner's medical dictionary. Gould, G. M. (Ag '16)

Prayer

- Hastings, J., ed. Christian doctrine of prayer. (Je '16)

- Slattery, C. L. Why men pray. (Ap '16)
 Streeter, B. H., ed. Concerning prayer. (D '16)

Precious stones

- Kunz, G. F. Shakespeare and precious stones. (O '16)

Pregnancy

- Bandler, S. W. Expectant mother. (F '17)
 Sadler, W. S. and L. Mother and her child. (Ja '17)

- Pre-Meiji education in Japan. Lombard, F. A. (S '16)

- Preparedness. Hull, W. I. (Jl '16)

- Preparedness, Military. See United States—Defenses

- Preparedness and America's international program. American Academy of Political and Social Science. (D '16)

Present-day China. Harding, G. L. (Jl '16)
 Presidency. Taft, W. H. (Ag '16)
 Presidential nominations and elections. Bishop, J. B. (Ag '16)

Presidents (United States)

Bishop, J. B. Presidential nominations and elections. (Ag '16)
 Stanwood, E. History of the presidency. (Ja '17)
 Taft, W. H. Our chief magistrate and his powers. (Je '16)
 Taft, W. H. Presidency. (Ag '16)
 Wilson, W. President of the United States. (O '16)

Press

United States Bibliography

Stephens, E., comp. American popular magazines. (Jl '16)
 Prevention of the common cold. Williamson, O. K. (D '16)
 Priests in the firing line. Gaëll, R. (D '16)
 Primer of peace and war. Plater, C., ed. (Je '16)
 Primitive and ancient legal institutions. Kocourek, A., and Wigmore, J. H., comps. (Jl '16)
 Princess Pocahontas. Watson, V. C. (F '17)
 Principle of suffrage. Fowler, N. C., jr. (Ag '16)
 Principles and methods of municipal administration. Munro, W. B. (My '16)
 Principles of agronomy. Harris, F. S., and Stewart, G. (Jl '16)
 Principles of alternating current machinery. Lawrence, R. R. (F '17)
 Principles of apprentice training. Fleming, A. P. M., and Pearce, J. G. (N '16)
 Principles of commerce. Brown, H. G. (D '16)
 Principles of composition. Boynton, P. H. (My '16)
 Principles of constitutional government. Goodnow, F. J. (S '16)
 Principles of depreciation. Sallers, E. A. (O '16)
 Principles of dynamo electric machinery. Bailey, B. F. (Jl '16)
 Principles of electrical design. Still, A. (F '17)
 Principles of health control. Walters, F. M. (N '16)
 Principles of labor legislation. Commons, J. R., and Andrews, J. B. (Ap '16)
 Principles of money and banking. Moulton, H. G., ed. (D '16)
 Principles of oil and gas production. Johnson, R. H., and Huntley, L. G. (F '17)
 Principles of plant culture. Goff, E. S. (Jl '16)
 Principles of railroad transportation. Johnson, E. R., and Van Metre, T. W. (F '17)
 Principles of the telephone. Jansky, C. M., and Faber, D. C. (F '17)

Printing

Shaw, F. L. Printing trades. (N '16)
 Sherbow, B. Making type work. (Ag '16)

History

Plomer, H. R. Short history of English printing, 1476-1900. (Ja '17)
 Prisoner. Brown, A. (Ag '16)
 Prisoner of war. Warnod, A. (Ag '16)
 Prisoners of war information bureau in London. Roxburgh, R. F. (Je '16)

Prisons

American Prison Association. Proceedings of the annual congress, 1915. (D '16)
 Doty, M. Z. Society's misfits. (O '16)
 New York. State library, Albany. List of books for prison libraries. (Jl '16)
 Osborne, T. M. Society and prisons. (S '16)
 Pyke, G. To Ruhlben—and back. (My '16)
 Scott, W., pseud. Seventeen years in the underworld. (O '16)

Dramas

Burleigh, L., and Bierstadt, E. H. Punishment. (Jl '16)
 Private Gaspard. Benjamin, R. (S '16)
 Private schools
 Sargent, P. E. Handbook of American private schools. (O '16)
 Private secretary. Kilduff, E. J. (O '16)

Probabilities

Fisher, A. Mathematical theory of probabilities and its application to frequency curves and statistical methods. (Jl '16)

Probation system

MacBrayne, L. E., and Ramsay, J. P. One more chance. (S '16)
 Problem of the commonwealth. Curtis, L. (D '16)
 Problems and lessons of the war. Blakeslee, G. H., ed. (Je '16)
 Problems of religion. Drake, D. (Ja '17)
 Problems of the coming peace. Mlynarski, F. J. (D '16)
 Productive advertising. Hess, H. W. (Ap '16)
 Productive bee-keeping. Pellett, F. C. (Ag '16)
 Productive farm crops. Montgomery, E. G. (F '17)

Profession, Choice of

Allen, F. J. Business employments. (Jl '16)
 Stevens, B. M. Boys and girls in commercial work. (My '16)

Prohibition

Beman, L. T., comp. Selected articles on prohibition of the liquor traffic. (F, My '16)
 Koren, J. Alcohol and society. (S '16)

Projectiles

Hamilton, D. T. High-explosive shell manufacture. (S '16)

Projective ornament. Bragdon, C. F. (My '16)
 Proof of the pudding. Nicholson, M. (Jl '16)

Property

Bruce, A. A. Property and society. (F '17)
 Prosecution of Jesus. Husband, R. W. (F '17)

Protestant Episcopal church

Living church annual and Churchman's almanac. (My '16)
 McConnell, S. D. History of the American Episcopal church. (Ja '17)
 Proud Peter. Norris, W. E. (F '17)

Proverbs

Marvin, D. E., comp. Curiosities in proverbs. (Ap '16)
 Prudence says so. Hueston, E. (S '16)

Prussia

History

Marriott, J. A. R., and Robertson, C. G. Evolution of Prussia. (Je '16)
 Prussian officer. Lawrence, D. H. (Ja '17)
 Psmith, journalist. Wodehouse, P. G. (Je '16)
 Psychological effects of alcohol. Dodge, R., and Benedict, F. G. (O '16)

Psychology

Adams, H. F. Advertising and its mental laws. (F '17)
 Freud, S. Wit and its relation to the unconscious. (F '17)
 Hollingworth, H. L. Vocational psychology. (D '16)
 Jung, C. G. Psychology of the unconscious. (S '16)
 Münsterberg, H. Business psychology. (My '16)
 Patrick, G. T. W. Psychology of relaxation. (Mr '16)
 Terman, L. M. Measurement of intelligence. (D '16)
 Titchener, E. B. Beginner's psychology. (Je '16)
 White, W. A. Mechanisms of character formation. (Ja '17)

Psychology, Educational

Freeman, F. N. Experimental education. (S '16)
 Freeman, F. N. Psychology of the common branches. (S '16)

Psychology, Pathological

Glueck, B. Studies in forensic psychiatry. (Ja '17)
 Psychology of religion. Coe, G. A. (F '17)
 Psychology of the great war. Le Bon, G. (F '17)

Public and its school. McAndrew, W. (F '17)
 Public education in Maryland. Flexner, A., and Bachman, F. P. (D '16)

Public health

Bannington, B. G. English public health administration. (D '16)
 Hemenway, H. B. American public health protection. (My '16)
 Hill, H. W. New public health. (Mr '16)

Public health—Continued

- Hutchinson, W. Community hygiene. (My '16)
 McCulloch, J. E.; ed. New chivalry—health. (S '16)
 Public health nursing. Gardiner, M. S. (F '17)
 Public libraries and literary culture in ancient Rome. Boyd, C. E. (Ag '16)
 Public school administration. Cubberley, E. P. (My '16)
 Public school education in North Carolina. Knight, E. W. (F '17)

Public schoolsDenmark

- Foght, H. W. Rural Denmark and its schools. (Jl '16)

United States

- Clark, E. Financing the public schools. (My '16)
 Pickard, A. E. Rural education. (F '17)

Public speaking

- Houghton, H. G. Elements of public speaking. (F '17)
 Winans, J. A. Public speaking. (Jl '16)

Public utilitiesRegulation

- Holmes, F. L. Regulation of railroads and public utilities in Wisconsin. (Je '16)

Valuation

- Floy, H. Value for rate-making. (N '16)

Publishers

- Kane, W. R.; comp. "1001 places to sell manuscripts." (Ap '16)

Pumping machinery

- Sargeant, E. W. Centrifugal pumps and suction dredgers. (F '17)

Punctuation

- Klein, W. L. Why we punctuate. (Ap '16)

Punishment

- Burleigh, L., and Bierstadt, E. H. (Jl '16)

Purple land

- Hudson, W. H. (O '16)

Purpose of history

- Woodbridge, F. J. E. (Ja '17)

Pyeshkoff, Alexei Maximovitch

- See Gorky, M., pseud.

Pygmalion

- See Shaw, G. B. Androcles and the lion. (Je '16)

"Q" pseud

- See Quiller-Couch, Sir A. T.

Quaker-born

- Hannah, I. C. (F '17)

Quest

- Neihardt, J. G. (F '17)

Quest of the Golden Valley

- Browne, B. (D '16)

Quest of the quaint

- Robie, V. H. (Ja '17)

Question as a factor in teaching

- Hall, J. W. (Ja '17)

Quinneys'

- Vachell, H. A. (Jl '16)

Quit your worrying!

- James, G. W. (O '16)

Quotations

- Bertaut, J. Napoleon in his own words. (O '16)

Federal council of the churches of Christ in America

- Commission on Christian education, comp. Selected quotations on peace and war. (S '16)

Radium

- Colwell, H. A., and Russ, S. Radium, X rays and the living cell. (S '16)

Railroad and street transportation

- Fleming, R. D. (My '16)

Railroads

- Burpee, L. J. Sandford Fleming, empire builder. (Jl '16)

Fleming, R. D. Railroad and street transportation

- (My '16)

Halsey, F. M. Railway expansion in Latin America

- (O '16)

Holmes, F. L. Regulation of railroads and public utilities in Wisconsin

- (Je '16)

Hsu, M. C. Railway problems in China

- (My '16)

Johnson, E. R., and Van Metre, T. W. Principles of railroad transportation

- (F '17)

Kirkaldy, A. W., and Evans, A. D. History and economics of transport

- (Ag '16)

Pratt, E. A. Rise of rail-power in war and conquest, 1833-1914

- (S '16)

Sharfman, I. L. Railway regulation

- (My '16)

Trémaudan, A. H. de. Hudson Bay road (1498-1915). (F '17)

Willard, W. C. Maintenance of way and structures. (Ag '16)

Finance

Kennan, G. Chicago and Alton case. (O '16)

Passenger traffic

Droege, J. A. Passenger terminals and trains. (F '17)

Rates

Brown, H. G. Transportation rates and their regulation. (Jl '16)

McFall, R. J. Railway monopoly and rate regulation. (S '16)

Wymond, M. Railroad valuation and rates. (Ag '16)

Securities

Heft, L. Holders of railroad bonds and notes. (Jl '16)

Railroads and state

Ferguson, M. State regulation of railroads in the South. (Ja '17)

Kibler, T. L. Commodities' clause. (N '16)

Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on government ownership of railroads. (F '17)

Railway expansion in Latin America. Halsey, F. M. (O '16)

Railway monopoly and rate regulation. McFall, R. J. (S '16)

Railway problems in China. Hsu, M. C. (My '16)

Railway regulation. Sharfman, I. L. (My '16)

Rainbow's end. Beach, R. E. (D '16)

Rajan, Mukerji, D. G. (S '16)

Rambles in the Vaudese Alps. Salisbury, F. S. (F '17)

Rambles of a Canadian naturalist. Wood, S. T. (O '16)

Range boss. Seltzer, C. A. (Ja '17)

Raw youth. Dostoevskii, F. M. (Je '16)

Rawlins, John Aaron, 1831-1869

Wilson, J. H. Life of John A. Rawlins. (Ja '17)

Raymond, Lodge, Sir O. J. (F '17)

Read-aloud plays. Holley, H. (Ja '17)

Readers' guide to periodical literature [cumulated]; 1910-14. (Je '16)

Readings in the economic history of the United States. Bogart, E. L. and Thompson, C. M., eds. (D '16)

Real adventure. Webster, H. K. (Mr '16)

Real estate business

Gahagen, W. R. How to conduct the real estate, insurance and general brokerage business. (Ag '16)

Melberg, P. L. How to sell real estate. (Ag '16)

Real Mormonism. Webb, R. C. (S '16)

Real motive. Fisher, D. F. (Jl '16)

Real stories from our history. Faris, J. T. (N '16)

Real story of the whaler. Verrill, A. H. (My '16)

Receivers

Heft, L. Holders of railroad bonds and notes. (Jl '16)

Reclaiming the ballot. Macauley, W. (S '16)

Recognition (International law)

Goebel, J. Recognition policy of the United States. (My '16)

Recollections of a happy life. Hobson, E. C. (Ja '17)

Recollections of a royal governess. (O '16)

Recollections of an admiral's wife. Poore, I. M., lady. (Jl '16)

Recollections of an alienist. Hamilton, A. M. (Ja '17)

Recreation centers. See Schools as social centers

Red Bob of the Bismarcks. Eng title of My lady of the island. Grimshaw, B. E. (My '16)

Red cross

Barker, G. Red cross in France. (F '17)

Toland, E. D. Aftermath of battle. (Mr '16)

Red cross and iron cross, by a doctor in France. (F '17)

Red debt. MacDonald, E. (Ag '16)

Red horizon. MacGill, P. (My '16)

Red robe. See Brieux, E. Woman on her own

- Redemption of the South End. Dorion, E. C: E. (Mr '16)
- Reef of stars. Eng title of Gold trail. Stacpoole, H: D. (Ag '16)
- Reference books
- Hopkins, F. M. Reference guides that should be known and how to use them. (Jl '16)
- Lowe, J: A. Books and libraries. (F '17)
- Wiswell, L. O. How to use reference books. (F '17)
- Reformatories
- Doty, M. Z. Society's misfits. (O '16)
- Regulation of railroads and public utilities in Wisconsin. Holmes, F: L. (Je '16)
- Reinforced concrete construction. Hool, G: A. (Je '16)
- Rejuvenescence
- Child, C: M. Senescence and rejuvenescence. (F, Ap '16)
- Relation of sculpture to architecture. Bennett, T: P. (O '16)
- Relativity (physics)
- Cunningham, E. Relativity and the electron theory. (S '16)
- Religion
- Bridges, H. J. Some outlines of the religion of experience. (F '17)
- Coe, G: A. Psychology of religion. (F '17)
- Drake, D. Problems of religion. (Ja '17)
- Durkheim, E. Elementary forms of the religious life. (Je '16)
- Hastings, J., and others. Encyclopædia of religion and ethics. (S '16)
- Jordan, L: H. Comparative religion. (Jl '16)
- Kirk, H. E. Religion of power. (F '17)
- Mumford, E. E. R. Dawn of religion in the mind of the child. (Ag '16)
- Spargo, J: Marxian socialism and religion. (Mr '16)
- Strickland, F. L. Foundations of Christian belief. (Mr '16)
- Ward, W: H. What I believe and why. (Ap '16)
- Webb, C: C. J. Group theories of religion and the individual. (F '17)
- Religion and Dharma. Noble, M. E. (Je '16)
- Religion in Europe and the world crisis. Osborne, C: E. (O '16)
- Religions
- Legge, F. Forerunners and rivals of Christianity. (N '16)
- Religious education
- National education association. Essential place of religion in education. (O '16)
- Wardle, A. G. Handwork in religious education. (D '16)
- Reminiscences
- Clodd, E: Memories. (D '16)
- Fuller, J. F. Omniana. (F '17)
- Hamilton, A. M. Recollections of an alienist. (Ja '17)
- Hobson, E. C. Recollections of a happy life. (Ja '17)
- Howells, W: D. Years of my youth. (D '16)
- Lucy, Sir H: W. Nearing Jordan. (N '16)
- Poore, I. M. lady. Recollections of an admiral's wife. (Jl '16)
- Redesdale, A. B. F. baron. Memories. (My '16)
- Seward, F: W. Reminiscences of a war-time statesman and diplomat, 1830-1915. (D '16)
- Towse, J: R. Sixty years of the theater. (D '16)
- Whiteing, R: My harvest. (Ap '16)
- Yeats, W: B. Reveries over childhood and youth. (Jl '16)
- Renaissance
- Batiffol, L: Century of the renaissance. (My '16)
- Reorganization of our schools. Sanders, F: W. (O '16)
- Representative English plays. Tatlock, J: S. P., and Martin, R. G., eds. (N '16)
- Representative procedures in quantitative chemical analysis. Gooch, F. A. (Jl '16)
- Reproduction
- Galloway, T: W. Reproduction. (D '16)
- Responsibilities. Yeats, W: B. (F '17)
- Rest days
- Webster, H. Rest days. (O '16)
- Restoration of Europe. Fried, A. H. (Ag '16)
- Restoration stage. Pepys, S: (F '17)
- Retail selling. Fisk, J. W. (O '16)
- Retail trade
- Fisk, J. W. Retail selling. (O '16)
- Nystrom, P. H. Economics of retailing. (Ag '16)
- Retaining walls
- Cain, W: Earth pressure, retaining walls and bins. (D '16)
- Return of Dr. Fu-Manchu. Rohmer, S., pseud. (S '16)
- Revelations of an international spy. Lincoln, I. T. T. (Mr '16)
- Revere, Paul, 1735-1818
- Moses, B. Paul Revere. (F '17)
- Reveries over childhood and youth. Yeats, W: B. (Jl '16)
- Revivals
- Cleveland, C. C. Great revival in the West, 1797-1805. (Jl '16)
- Revolution in Virginia. Eckenrode, H. J. (Ag '16)
- Rhoades, Nina. See Rhoades, C. H.
- Rhymes of a Red cross man. Service, R. W: (F '17)
- Rhymes of our valley. Euwer, A. H. (O '16)
- Rich man, poor man. Foster, M. (Mr '16)
- Richard Richard. Mearns, H. (D '16)
- Richards, Mrs. Waldo. See Richards, G. M.
- Riders of the stars. Knibbs, H: H. (F '17)
- Rights and duties of neutrals. Brewer, D. C. (Ap '16)
- Riley, James Whitcomb, 1853-1916
- Laughlin, C. E. Reminiscences of James Whitcomb Riley. (N '16)
- Rime nuove. Carducci, G. (Ja '17)
- Rise of English literary prose. Krapp, G: P. (O '16)
- Rise of rail-power in war and conquest, 1833-1914. Pratt, E. A. (S '16)
- Rising tide. Deland, M. W. (S '16)
- Risky game. Eng title of Coast of adventure. Bindloss, H. (Mr '16)
- Rita, pseud. See Humphreys, E. M. J.
- Rivals for America. Parkman, F. (Je '16)
- River of life. Kuprin, A. I. (My '16)
- Road to Liège. Somville, G. (Ja '17)
- Road to Mecca. Irwin, F. (S '16)
- Road together. Middleton, G: (N '16)
- Roads
- Agg, T. R. Construction of roads and pavements. (D '16)
- Am. highway assn. Good roads year book, 1916. (Jl '16)
- Harger, W. G., and Bonney, E. A. Handbook for highway engineers. (D '16)
- Lancaster, S: C. Columbia, America's great highway through the Cascade mountains to the sea. (My '16)
- Tucker, J. I. American road. (Ja '17)
- Roads. Norton, G. F. (S '16)
- Roadside glimpses of the great war. Sweetser, A. (Mr '16)
- Roberta of Roseberry Gardens. Duncan, F. (Jl '16)
- Roberts, Robert J., 1850-
- Brink, B: D. Body builder: Robert J. Roberts. (F '17)
- Robertson, Frederick William, 1816-1853
- Henson, H. H. Robertson of Brighton, 1816-1853. (O '16)
- Rocky mountains
- Ruxton, G: F: A. Wild life in the Rocky mountains. (Ag '16)
- Rodmoor. Powys, J: C. (D '16)
- Rohifs, Mrs. Charles. See Green, A. K.
- Roman Catholic church
- McCabe, J. Crises in the history of the papacy. (My '16)
- O'Hagan, T: Essays on Catholic life. (D '16)
- Ward, B. N. Sequel to Catholic emancipation. (Ap '16)
- Romance. Raleigh, Sir W. A. (Ja '17)
- Romance of a Christmas card. Wiggin, K. D. (N '16)
- Romance of the commonplace. Burgess, G. (My '16)
- Romance of the Martin Connor. Kendall, O. (N '16)
- Romantic Indiana. Stevenson, A. (N '16)

Romanticism of St. Francis. Cuthbert, Father. (Je '16)

Romany life. Cuttriss, F. (Jl '16)

Rome

Boyd, C. E. Public libraries and literary culture in ancient Rome. (Ag '16)

Civilization

Radin, M. Jews among the Greeks and Romans. (Jl '16)

History

Young, G. F. East and West through fifteen centuries. (O '16)

Rome (city)

Kuhn, A. Roma. (Ja '17)

Description

Maurel, A. Month in Rome. (Ag '16)

Roosevelt, Theodore, 1858-

Washburn, C. G. Theodore Roosevelt. (Mr '16)

Rosalba's journal. Dobson, A. (My '16)

Rosary of mystery plays. Mooney, M. S., tr. (O '16)

Rose Cottingham. Syrett, N. (Mr '16)

Rosenblatt, Ann. See Gilbert, E., pseud.

Ross Grant, gold hunter. Garland, J., pseud. (N '16)

Round-about. Buckrose, J. E., pseud. (Jl '16)

Royal auction bridge. Williams, T. (My '16)

Royal houses

Howard, E. Potsdam princes. (O '16)

Radziwill, C., princess. Royal marriage market of Europe. (S '16)

Recollections of a royal governess. (O '16)

Ruby story book. Coussens, P. W. (D '16)

Rudder. Watts, M. S. (Ap '16)

Rudolph, Archduke, 1858-1889

Grant, H., ed. Last days of Archduke Rudolph. (D '16)

Ruling caste and frenzied trade in Germany. Millioud, M. (Je '16)

Rumania

Kirke, D. Domestic life in Rumania. (Jl '16)

Rural Denmark and its schools. Foght, H. W. (Jl '16)

Rural economics, Selected readings in. Carver, T. N., comp. (My '16)

Rural economy in New England at the beginning of the nineteenth century. Bidwell, P. W. (F '17)

Rural education. Pickard, A. E. (F '17)

Russell, George William (A. E., pseud.), 1867-

Figgis, D. Æ (George W. Russell.) (Ag '16)

Russia

Bechofer, C. E. Russia at the cross-roads. (O '16)

Child, R. W. Potential Russia. (S '16)

Fraser, J. F. Russia of to-day. (Jl '16)

Lethbridge, M. C. and A. B. Soul of the Russian. (N '16)

Sarolea, C. Great Russia. (Ap '16)

Simpson, J. Y. Self-discovery of Russia. (O '16)

Steveni, W. B. Petrograd, past and present. (My '16)

Aeronautics, Military

Roustam-Bek, B. Aerial Russia. (F '17)

Army

Parès, B. Day by day with the Russian army, 1914-1915. (My '16)

History

Howe, S. E. Thousand years of Russian history. (Mr '16)

Wesseltitsky, G. de. Russia and democracy. (Je '16)

Politics and government

Vinogradov, P. G. Self-government in Russia. (S '16)

Social life and customs

Aksakoff, S. Years of childhood. (My '16)

De Bogory Mokrievitch, V. K. When I was a boy in Russia. (Je '16)

Reynolds, R. My Slav friends. (N '16)

Russia, the Balkans and the Dardanelles. Fortescue, G. R. (My '16)

Russian and nomad. Fell, E. N. (Ag '16)

Russian arts. Newmarch, R. H. (D '16)

Russian folk tales. Afanasiev, A. N. (Ag '16)

Russian garland of fairy tales. Steele, R., ed. (D '16)

Russian language

Forbes, N. First Russian book. (O '16)

Russian novels and stories. See Fiction—Russian novels and stories

Russian poetry

Happgood, I. F., tr. Epic songs of Russia. (My '16)

Russian priest. Potapenko, J. N. (D '16)

Russian school of painting. Benois, A. N. (F '17)

Russian sociology. Hecker, J. F. (Je '16)

Russian story book. Wilson, R. (F '17)

S. S. Glory. Niven, F. (Ap '16)

Sabbath

Webster, H. Rest days. (O '16)

Sacred tales of India. Neogi, D. N. (D '16)

Safety devices and measures

Beyer, D. S. Industrial accident prevention. (O '16)

Cowee, G. A. Practical safety methods and devices. (D '16)

Sallor. Snaith, J. C. (O '16)

St. Louis

Crawford, R. Immigrant in St. Louis. (F '17)

St. Nicholas book of plays and operettas; second series. (N '16)

Saints

Drake, M. and W. Saints and their emblems. (O '16)

Gerould, G. H. Saints' legends. (Ja '17)

Salads

Neil, M. H. Salads, sandwiches and chafing dish recipes. (D '16)

Salesmen and salesmanship

Allen, I. R. Personal efficiency, applied salesmanship, and sales administration. (My '16)

Brisco, N. A. Fundamentals of salesmanship. (N '16)

Fisk, J. W. Retail selling. (O '16)

Marden, O. S., and MacGrail, J. F. Selling things. (D '16)

Sales promotion by mail. (F '17)

Salisbury, Robert Cecil, 1st earl of, 1563-1612

Cecil, A. Life of Robert Cecil, first earl of Salisbury. (My '16)

Salt-water poems and ballads. Masefield, J. (N '16)

Samaritan Mary. Locke, S. (Je '16)

Sandhills sketches. Haynes, W. (N '16)

San Diego, Cal. Panama-California Exposition, 1915

Architecture and the gardens of the San Diego exposition. (D '16)

Neuhaus, E. San Diego garden fair. (Je '16)

Sandwiches

Neil, M. H. Salads, sandwiches and chafing dish recipes. (D '16)

San Francisco

Panama-Pacific International exposition, 1915

Brinton, C. Impressions of the art at the Panama-Pacific exposition. (Ap '16)

Sterling, G. Evanescent city. (Jl '16)

Sanudo, Marco, fl. 1177-1230

Fotheringham, J. K., and Williams, L. F. R. Marco Sanudo, conqueror of the Archipelago. (S '16)

Sapphire signet. Seaman, A. H. (N '16)

Sappho in Levkas. Percy, W. A. (Ap '16)

Sarah Brewster. Peattie, E. (N '16)

Satterlee, Rt. Rev. Henry Yates, 1843-1908

Brent, C. H. Master builder. (Jl '16)

Savage man in Central Africa. Cureau, A. L. (Ap '16)

Saving

Bowsfield, C. C. How boys and girls can earn money. (D '16)

Farmer, L. C. A-B-C of home saving. (Ja '17)

Kirkpatrick, E. A. Use of money. (Je '16)

Pritchard, M. T., and Turkington, G. A. Stories of thrift for young Americans. (Mr '16)

Richardson, A. S. Adventures in thrift. (Je '16)

Scandinavia

- Drachmann, P. Industrial development and commercial policies of the three Scandinavian countries. (Ag '16)
 Stefánsson, J. Denmark and Sweden, with Iceland and Finland. (F '17)
 Scandinavian immigrants in New York, 1630-1674. Evjen, J. O. (O '16)

Scandinavians in America

- Evjen, J. O. Scandinavian immigrants in New York, 1630-1674. (O '16)
 Scarlet and black. See Green, A. K. To the minute

School administration and organization

- Cubberley, E. P. Public school administration. (My '16)
 Hartwell, S. O. Overcrowded schools and the platoon plan. (My '16)
 Hollister, H. A. High school and class management. (Ag '16)
 McAndrew, W. Public and its school. (F '17)
 Sanders, F. W. Reorganization of our schools. (O '16)
 Strayer, G. D. Some problems in city school administration. (F '17)
 School and the immigrant. Miller, H. A. (S '16)
 School buildings and equipment. Ayres, L. P. and M. (My '16)

School gardens

- Hood, G. W. Practical school and home gardens. (F '17)

School hygiene. Dresslar, F. B. (Ag '16)School lunches

- Boughton, A. C. Household arts and school lunches. (D '16)

Schoolhouses

- Ayres, L. P. and M. School buildings and equipment. (My '16)

Schools

- Bourne, R. S. Gary schools. (My '16)
 Hinchman, W. S. American school. (Mr '16)
 Mitchell, D. Schools and classes for exceptional children. (My '16)
 Sargent, P. E. Handbook of American private schools. (O '16)

Schools as social centers

- Perry, C. A. Educational extension. (My '16)
 Science of musical sounds. Miller, D. C. (Ag '16)

Scientific expeditions

- Henderson, J. B., jr. Cruise of the Tomas Barrera. (Jl '16)
 Taylor, G. With Scott. (N '16)

Scotland

- Dick, C. H. Highways and byways in Galloway and Carrick. (D '16)
 Griffiths, W. E. Bonnie Scotland and what we owe her. (F '17)
 Mackie, R. L. Scotland. (F '17)

Scott, Robert Falcon, 1868-1912

- Taylor, G. With Scott. (N '16)
 Scouting and patrolling. Waldron, W. H. (F '17)

- Scouting with Kit Carson. Tomlinson, E. T. (D '16)

Sculptors

- Vasari, G. Lives of the most eminent painters, sculptors and architects. (Jl '16)

Sculpture

- Barstow, C. L. Famous sculpture. (F '17)
 Bennett, T. P. Relation of sculpture to architecture. (O '16)
 Fowler, H. N. History of sculpture. (Jl '16)
 Pound, E. L. Gaudier-Brzeska. (S '16)
 Sea and bay. Stork, C. W. (Jl '16)
 Sea garden. Aldington, Mrs. R. (H. D., pseud.) (Ja '17)

Second choice. Harben, W. N. (N '16)

- Second coming. Kummer, F. A., and Janes, H. P. (Je '16)

- Second folk dance book. Crampton, C. W., comp. (Ja '17)

Secret trails. Roberts, C. G. D. (Ja '17)Secretaries

- Kilduff, E. J. Private secretary. (O '16)
 Spencer, E. L. Efficient secretary. (My '16)
 Seed of the righteous. Tompkins, J. W. (My '16)

- Select treaties and documents to illustrate the development of the modern European states-system. Mowat, R. B., ed. (Ag '16)

- Selected articles on government ownership of railroads. Phelps, E. M., comp. (F '17)

- Selected articles on military training. Bacon, C., comp. (Je '16)

- Selected articles on national defense. Bacon, C., comp. (Jl '16)

- Selected articles on prohibition of the liquor traffic. Beman, L. T., comp. (F, My '16)

- Selected articles on the American merchant marine. Phelps, E. M., comp. (N '16)

- Selected articles on the Monroe doctrine. Phelps, E. M., comp. (My '16)

- Selected articles on trade unions. Bullock, E. D., comp. (F '17)

- Selected articles on woman suffrage. Phelps, E. M., comp. (My '16)

- Selected articles on world peace. Reely, M. K., comp. (Mr '16)

- Selected quotations on peace and war. Federal council of the churches of Christ in America. Commission on Christian education, comp. (S '16)

- Selected readings in rural economics. Carver, T. N., comp. (My '16)

- Self-discovery of Russia. Simpson, J. Y. (O '16)

- Self-government in Russia. Vinogradov, P. G. (S '16)

- Self-helps for the citizen soldier. Moss, J. A., and Stewart, M. B. (Je '16)

- Self-reliance. Fisher, D. F. (Ag '16)

- Selling things. Marden, O. S., and MacGrail, J. F. (D '16)

- Senescence and rejuvenescence. Child, C. M. (F, Ap '16)

- Sentimental dragon. Duryea, N. L. (Ag '16)

- Sequel to Catholic emancipation. Ward, B. N. (Ap '16)

Sermons

- Booth, H. Toys and things. (N '16)
 Henson, H. H. War-time sermons. (Je '16)
 Jowett, J. H. Whole armour of God. (F '17)

- Law, R. Grand adventure. (F '17)

Servia

- Jones, F. With Serbia into exile. (O '16)

- Velimirovic, N. Serbia in light and darkness. (N '16)

Servian language

- English-Serbian phrase book. (Ag '16)

- Seven miles to Arden. Sawyer, R. (Je '16)

- Seven secrets of success. Peters, M. C. (F '17)

Seven wonders of the world

- Banks, E. J. Seven wonders of the ancient world. (D '16)

- Seventeen. Tarkington, B. (Ap '16)

- Seventeen years in the underworld. Scott, W., pseud. (O '16)

Sewerage

- Folwell, A. P. Sewerage. (Jl '16)

Sex

- Galloway, T. W. Reproduction. (D '16)

- Gamble, E. B. Sexes in science and history. (F '17)

- Jung, C. G. Psychology of the unconscious. (S '16)

- Sex-education. Bigelow, M. A. (O '16)

Sex instruction

- Bigelow, M. A. Sex-education. (O '16)

- Sexes in science and history. Gamble, E. B. (F '17)

- Shades of the Wilderness. Altscheler, J. A. (Jl '16)

- Shadow on the dial. Carmichael, O. H. (Je '16)

- Shadow riders. Paterson, I. (Ap '16)

- Shadows of yesterday. Bowen, M., pseud. (N '16)

Shakers

- Sears, C. E., comp. Gleanings from old Shaker journals. (F '17)

Shakespeare, William, 1564-1616

- Burrill, E. W. Master Skylark. (Ap '16)

- Colmer, F. Shakespeare in time of war. Gollancz, I., ed. Book of homage to Shakespeare. (S '16)

- Kittredge, G. L. Shakspeare. (O '16)

- Kunz, G. F. Shakespeare and precious stones. (O '16)

- Lee, S. Life of William Shakespeare. (Mr '16)

Shakespeare, William—Continued

- Macbride, T. H. Botany of Shakespeare. (In On the campus) (D '16)
 Madden, D. H. Shakespeare and his fellows. (S '16)
 Matthews, B. Shakspeare as a playwright. (Jl '16)
 Matthews, B., and Thorndike, A. H., eds. Shaksperian studies. (Je '16)
 Salaman, M. C. Shakespeare in pictorial art. (O '16)
 Shakespeare's England. (O '16)
 Shepard, O. Shakespeare questions. (Ag '16)
 Sprague, H. B. Studies in Shakespeare (first series). (S '16)
 Stopes, C. C. Shakespeare's industry. (Jl '16)
 Thorndike, A. H. Shakespeare's theater. (Je '16)
 Winter, W. Shakespeare on the stage. (F '17)

Bibliography

- Bartlett, H. C., and Pollard, A. W., eds. Census of Shakespeare's plays in quarto, 1594-1709. (Ag '16)
 Meyer, H. H. B. Brief guide to the literature of Shakespeare. (My '16)

Centennial celebrations, etc.

- Hatcher, O. L. Book for Shakespeare plays and pageants. (Jl '16)
 MacKaye, P. Caliban by the yellow sands. (Je '16)

Fiction

- Martin, G. M. Warwickshire lad. (Je '16)
Shantiniketan, Bolpur, India
 Pearson, W. W. Shantiniketan. (F '17)
Shaw, George Bernard, 1856-
 Burton, R. E. Bernard Shaw: the man and mask. (Ja '17)
 Hamon, A. F. Twentieth century Molière: Bernard Shaw. (Je '16)
 Sheaf, Galsworthy, J. (D '16)
Shelley, Percy Bysshe, 1792-1822
 Letters, ed. by Roger Ingpen. (My '16)
 Sheltered sex. Mears, M. (N '16)
 Shepherd of the North. Maher, R. A. (Ap '16)
 Shepherd who watched by night. Page, T. N. (D '16)

Sherman anti-trust law

- Curtis, E. N. Manual of the Sherman law. (Ap '16)

- Shining adventure. Burnet, D. (Ja '17)

Shipping

- Clapp, E. J. Port of Boston. (S '16)
 Kirkaldy, A. W., and Evans, A. D. History and economics of transport. (Ag '16)
 Meloney, W. B. Heritage of Tyre. (Ag '16)

Shoe industry

- Allen, F. J. Shoe industry. (Ja '17)
 Short apology for being a Christian in the XXth century. Smith, G. W. (Je '16)
 Short cut. Gregory, J. (F '17)
 Short cuts in figures. Collins, A. F. (F '17)
 Short history of classical scholarship. Sandys, J. E. (S '16)
 Short history of English printing, 1476-1900. Plover, H. R. (Ja '17)
 Short history of English rural life. Fordham, M. (S '16)
 Short history of Europe. Terry, C. S. (Je '16)
 Short history of Germany. Henderson, E. F. (O '16)
 Short history of Russian music. Pougin, A. (My '16)
 Short history of the Oxford movement. Ollard, S. L. (My '16)

Short stories

- Mikels, R. M. R., ed. Short stories for high schools. (Je '16)
 O'Brien, E. J. H., ed. Best short stories of 1915. (Jl '16)
 Short stories from Life. (O '16)
 Short story. Pain, B. E. O. (D '16)

Siberia

- Czaplicka, M. A. My Siberian year. (D '16)

Sicily

- Hood, A. N. Sicilian studies. (N '16)
 Side of the angels. King, B. (Mr '16)
 Side-stepping ill health. Bowers, E. F. (Ap '16)

Sidney, Sir Philip, 1554-1586

- Wallace, M. W. Life of Sir Philip Sidney. (My '16)

- Sign of freedom. Goodrich, A. (S '16)

- Silurist, The, pseud. See Vaughan, H.

Silversmithing

- Hayden, A. Chats on old silver. (S '16)

Similes

- Wilstach, F. J. Dictionary of similes. (Ja '17)

- Sinclair, Bertha Muzzy. See Bower, B. M., pseud.

Singing

- Kirkland, H. S. Expression in singing. (O '16)

- Muckey, F. S. Natural method of voice production in speech and song. (Ag '16)

- Singing fires of Erin. Cox, E. R. (Jl '16)

Single tax

- Fels, M. Joseph Fels. (O '16)

- Haig, R. M. Exemption of improvements from taxation in Canada and the United States. (Je '16)

- Post, L. F. Taxation of land values. (Je '16)

- Scheffel, Y. Taxation of land value. (F '17)

- Young, A. N. Single tax movement in the United States. (Ag '16)

- Sins of the children. Hamilton, C. (N '16)

- Site of Saint Paul's cathedral, Boston, and its neighborhood. Lawrence, R. M. (Ja '17)

- Six centuries of painting. Davies, R. (Ap '16)

- Six days of the Irish republic. Redmond-Howard, L. G. (F '17)

- Six French poets. Lowell, A. (F, Ap '16)

- Six plays of the Yiddish theatre. Goldberg, I. ed. and tr. (Ja '17)

- Six-pointed cross in the dust. Roland, J., pseud. (D '16)

- Six Star ranch. Porter, E. H. (N '16)

- Sixty years, in southern California. Newmark, H. (F '17)

- Sixty years of the theater. Towse, J. R. (D '16)

- Skinner's dress suit. Dodge, H. I. (Ja '17)

- Slav soul. Kuprin, A. I. (O '16)

- Slavery in Germanic society during the middle ages. Vergeland, A. M. (F '17)

- Slaves of freedom. Dawson, C. (D '16)

- Slavs of the war zone. Bailey, W. F. (O '16)

- Small boat building. Patterson, H. W. (S '16)

- Small boat navigation. Sterling, F. W. (Ag '16)

- Small grains. Carleton, M. A. (Ag '16)

- Smet, Pierre Jean de, 1801-1873

- Laveille, E. Life of Father de Smet. (My '16)

Smoking

- Apperson, G. L. Social history of smoking. (Je '16)

- Snow-burner. Oyen, H. (Ja '17)

- So as by fire. Holland, H. S. (Ap '16)

- Social adaptation. Bristol, L. M. (Ap '16)

Social conditions

- Barnett, S. A. and H. O. Practicable socialism. (Mr '16)

- Cox, M. Ventures in worlds. (Je '16)

- Steinmetz, C. P. America and the new epoch. (D '16)

- Social criticism of literature. Buck, G. (Ja '17)

Social ethics

- Parsons, E. W. Social rule. (F '17)

- Social history of smoking. Apperson, G. L. (Je '16)

- Social life in England, 1750-1850. Foakes-Jackson, F. J. (F '17)

- Social messages. Barnes, C. W. (Mr '16)

Social problems

- Deming, S. From doomsday to kingdom come. (N '16)

- Eisenman, C. Everybody's business. (F '17)

- Ferguson, C. Great news. (Mr '16)

- Jacks, L. P. From the human end. (N '16)

- Lee, G. S. We. (Je '16)

- McCabe, J. Tyranny of shams. (F '17)

- Stephens, K. Workfellows in social progression. (F '17)

- Taylor, A. O., ed. Persistent public problems. (O '16)

- Towne, E. T. Social problems. (O '16)

- Tucker, W. J. New reservation of time. (F '17)

Social progress

- Morgan, A. Education and social progress. (O '16)
 Nasmyth, G. W.: Social progress and the Darwinian theory. (Ap '16)

Social psychology

- Conway, M. Crowd in peace and war. (Mr '16)
 Jastrow, J. Character and temperament. (Ap '16)
 Trotter, W. Instincts of the herd in peace and war. (N '16)
 Social rule. Parsons, E. W. (F '17)

Social settlements

- Dorion, E. C.: E. Redemption of the South End. (Mr '16)
 Social studies in English literature. Wylie, L. J. (Je '16)

Socialism

- American labor year book, 1916. (Ja '17)
 Boudin, L. B. Socialism and war. (My '16)
 Elder, B. Study in socialism. (Jl '16)
 Hughes, T. J. State socialism after the war. (F '17)
 Humphrey, A. W. International socialism and the war. (Ag '16)
 Hyndman, H. M. Future of democracy. (Mr '16)
 Macy, J. A. Socialism in America. (My '16)
 Pease, E. R. History of the Fabian society. (Jl '16)
 Sellars, R. W. Next step in democracy. (Jl '16)
 Spargo, J. Marxian socialism and religion. (Mr '16)
 Walling, W. E., and others, eds. Socialism of to-day. (Jl '16)
 Socialized Germany. Howe, F. C. (F, Ap '16)

Society, Primitive

- Hobhouse, L. T., and others. Material culture and social institutions of the simpler peoples. (My '16)
 Society and prisons. Osborne, T. M. (S '16)
 Society, its origin and development. Rowe, H. K. (N '16)
 Society's misfits. Doty, M. Z. (O '16)

Sociology

- Bristol, L. M. Social adaptation. (Ap '16)
 Burgess, E. W. Function of socialization in social evolution. (N '16)
 Fairchild, H. P. Outline of applied sociology. (F '17)
 Gehlke, C. E. Émile Durkheim's sociological theory. (Je '16)
 Gillette, J. M. Constructive rural sociology. (Je '16)
 Gillette, J. M. Sociology. (S '16)
 Kelsey, C. Physical basis of society. (F '17)
 Kirkpatrick, E. A. Fundamentals of sociology. (S '16)
 Nasmyth, G. W.: Social progress and the Darwinian theory. (Ap '16)
 Rowe, H. K. Society, its origin and development. (N '16)
 Sumner, W. G. Challenge of facts. (F, Ap '16)
 Wallis, L. Struggle for justice. (O '16)

History

- Hecker, J. F. Russian sociology. (Je '16)
Sociology, Christian
 Barnes, C. W. Social messages. (Mr '16)
 Soldier and dramatist. Chapin, H. (D '16)
 Soldier-boy. Hind, C. L. (O '16)
 Soldier of the Legion. Morlae, E. (Ag '16)
 Soldier's catechism. Bolles, F. C., and others. (D '16)
 Soliloquy of a hermit. Powys, T. F. (Ap '16)
 Some American college bookplates. Ward, H. P. (Ap '16)
 Some aspects of the tariff question. Taussig, F. W. (Mr '16)
 Some aspects of the war. Triana, S. P. (My '16)
 Some elderly people and their young friends. Macnaughtan, S. (Je '16)
 Some engineering problems of the Panama canal in their relation to geology and topography. MacDonald, D. F. (Je '16)
 Some experiences in Hungary, August 1914 to January 1915. Macdonald, M. (N '16)
 Some imagist poets, 1916. (S '16)

Some outlines of the religion of experience.

- Bridges, H. J. (F '17)
 Some principles of teaching as applied to the Sunday-school. Knight, E. W. (Ap '16)
 Some problems in city school administration. Strayer, G. D., and others. (F '17)
 Something to do,—boys! Foster, E. A., ed. (D '16)
 Somewhere in Red Gap. Wilson, H. L. (N '16)
 Song of the guns. Frankau, G. (O '16)
 Song of the plow. Hewlett, M. H. (F '17)
 Songs and ballads from over the sea. Helps, E. A., comp. (D '16)
 Songs and satires. Masters, E. L. (My '16)
 Songs from the trenches. Blackall, C. W. (Mr '16)
 Songs of Armageddon and other poems. Vlereck, G. S. (Ag '16)
 Songs of the fields. Ledwidge, F. (Mr '16)
 Songs of wedlock. Daly, T. A. (F '17)

Sonnets

- Lockwood, L. E., ed. Sonnets. (Ag '16)
 Shakespeare, W.: Sonnets. (F '17)
 Sons and daughters. Gruenberg, S. M. (Jl '16)
 Soul of the Russian. Lethbridge, M. C. and A. B. (N '16)
 Souls on Fifth. Barker, G. (My '16)
 Souls resurgent. Carter, M. H. (N '16)

Sound

- Miller, D. C. Science of musical sounds. (Ag '16)
 Sound investing. Clay, P. (Jl '16)
 Sources and literature of English history, from the earliest times to about 1485. Gross, C. (My '16)
 Sources of the synoptic Gospels. Patton, C. S. (Je '16)

South Africa

- Scully, W. C.: Lodges in the wilderness. (Ap '16)

History

- Scully, W. C.: History of South Africa. (Je '16)

Rebellion, 1914

- Ritchie, M. With Botha in the field. (My '16)
 Robinson, J. P. K. With Botha's army. (Ag '16)
 Sampson, P. J. Capture of De Wet. (Je '16)

Social life and customs

- Alston, M. From the heart of the veld. (Ja '17)

South AmericaBibliography

- Goldsmith, P. H. Brief bibliography of books in English, Spanish and Portuguese, relating to the republics commonly called Latin American. (My '16)

Description and travel

- Whiffen, T. North-west Amazons. (Mr '16)
 Zahm, J. A. Through South America's southland. (Ap '16)

Railroads

- Halsey, F. M. Railway expansion in Latin America. (O '16)

South CarolinaHistory

- Boucher, C. S.: Nullification controversy in South Carolina. (F '17)
 Sovereigns and statesmen of Europe. Radziwill, C., princess. (S '16)

Spanish America. See Latin AmericaSpanish-American literature

- Coester, A. L. Literary history of Spanish America. (Ja '17)
 Spanish exploration in the Southwest, 1542-1706. Bolton, H. E., ed. (My '16)
 Speaking of home. Tryon, L. H. (Ja '17)

Speculation

- Guenther, L.: Investment and speculation. (S '16)

Speech

- Lewis, C. L. Handbook of American speech. (O '16)

Spell of Egypt. Bell, A. (Ag '16)Spies

- Lincoln, I. T. T. Revelations of an international spy. (Mr '16)

- Spinster. Cleghorn, S. N. (My '16)
 Spirit of France. Johnson, O. M. (Mr '16)
 Spirit of man. Bridges, R. S., ed. (Ap '16)
 Spirit of modern German literature. Lewisohn, L. (F '17)
 Spiritual pilgrimage. Campbell, R. J. (F '17)
Spiritualism
 Yost, C. S. Patience Worth. (Mr '16)
Sport, travel and adventure. Lewis, A. G., ed. (F '17)
 Stamboul nights. Dwight, H. G. (My '16)
 Standard accident table as a basis for compensation rates. Rubinow, I. M. (My '16)
 Standard cloths. Beaumont, R. (F '17)
 Standard cyclopedia of horticulture. Bailey, L. H. (Ap, D '16)
 Standard handbook for electrical engineers. Fowle, F. F., ed. (Je '16)
 Standards of health insurance. Rubinow, I. M. (D '16)
 Star of the North. Sullivan, F. W. (Ag '16)
Stars
 Furness, C. E. Introduction to the study of variable stars. (Je '16)
 Stars of destiny. Craig, K. T. (Jl '16)
 Starting, lighting, and ignition systems. Pagé, V. W. (Ag '16)
 Starvation treatment of diabetes. Hill, L. W., and Eckman, R. S. (Je '16)
State, The
 Burns, C. D. Morality of nations. (Ap '16)
 Treitschke, H. G. von. Politics. (O '16)
 State and county school administration. Cumberley, E. P., and Elliott, E. C. (Ap '16)
 State government in the United States. Holcombe, A. N. (F '17)
 State regulation of railroads in the South. Ferguson, M. (Ja '17)
State rights
 Tucker, H. S. Woman's suffrage by constitutional amendment. (D '16)
 State socialism after the war. Hughes, T. J. (F '17)
 Statesman's year-book, 1916. (O '16)
Statesmen
 Radziwill, C., princess. Sovereigns and statesmen of Europe. (S '16)
 Status of the international court of justice. Scott, J. B. (N '16)
 Steadfast princess. Meigs, C. (Ap '16)
Steam
 Callendar, H. L. Callendar steam tables. (My '16)
 Steam power. Dalby, W. E. (Je '16)
 Steam traction engineering. Eighinger, S. R., and Hutton, M. S. (F '17)
Stedman, Edmund Clarence, 1833-1908
 Fuller, M. New England childhood. (D '16)
Steel
 Bullens, D. K. Steel and its heat treatment. (Ag '16)
 Edwards, C. A. Physico-chemical properties of steel. (F '17)
 Howe, H. M. Metallography of steel and cast iron. (O '16)
 Sauveur, A. Metallography and heat treatment of iron and steel. (O '16)
Steel works
 American iron and steel institute. Directory of the iron and steel works of the United States and Canada. (D '16)
Stefansson, Vilhjalmr, 1879-
 Bartlett, R. A., and Hale, R. T. Last voyage of the Karluk. (Ja '17)
Stencil work
 Audsley, G. A., and B. Artistic and decorative stencilling. (F '17)
Stevenson, Robert Louis Balfour, 1850-1894
 Chalmers, S. Penny piper of Saranac. (N '16)
 Eaton, C. Last memory of Robert Louis Stevenson. (O '16)
 Rice, R. A. Robert Louis Stevenson. (Ja '17)
 Stories. Bunner, H. C. (Jl '16)
 Stories for Sunday telling. Bailey, C. S. (D '16)
 Stories for the story hour from January to December. Marzials, A. M. (N '16)
 Stories from The earthly paradise. Morris, W. (Je '16)
 Stories of thrift for young Americans. Pritchard, M. T., and Turkington, G. A. (Mr '16)
 Stories to tell the littlest ones. Bryant, S. C. (Ja '17)
 Story of agriculture in the United States. Sanford, A. H. (O '16)
 Story of Eleusis. Ledoux, L. V. (Ja '17)
 Story of glass. Bassett, S. W. (F '17)
 Story of Scotch. Mills, E. A. (D '16)
 Story of symphony. Lee, E. M. (Ja '17)
 Story of the Battie hymn of the republic. Hall, F. M. (Ja '17)
 Story of the Bible. Stock, E. (Je '16)
 Story of the great war. Reynolds, F. J., and others. (F '17)
 Story of the map of Europe. Bénézet, L. P. (Je '16)
 Story of the New Testament. Goodspeed, E. J. (F '17)
 Story of the submarine. Bishop, F. (Ap '16)
 Story of the trust companies. Perine, E. T. (F '17)
 Story of the United States. Herdman, M. L. (Ja '17)
 Story of young Abraham Lincoln. Whipple, W. (My '16)
 Story of young George Washington. Whipple, W. (My '16)
Story-telling
 Bailey, C. S. Stories for Sunday telling. (D '16)
 Marzials, A. M. Stories for the story hour from January to December. (N '16)
 Straight America. Kellor, F. A. (S '16)
Strains and stresses
 Heller, A. H., and Morris, C. T. Stresses in structures. (F '17)
 Strange cases of Mason Brant. Hopkins, N. M. (Ag '16)
 Strange story of William Hyde. Casey, P. and T. (Ag '16)
 Stranger at the hearth. Roof, K. M. (F '17)
 Strangers' wedding. George, W. L. (Mr '16)
 Strasbourg. Margueritte, P. and V. (My '16)
 Stray birds. Tagore, R. (F '17)
Street railroads
Cost of operation
 Doolittle, F. W. Studies in the cost of urban transportation service. (F '17)
Strength of materials
 Andrews, E. S. Strength of materials. (Jl '16)
 Burr, W. H. Elasticity and resistance of the materials of engineering. (Ap '16)
 Upton, G. B. Structure and properties of the more common materials of construction. (Je '16)
 Stresses in structures. Heller, A. H., and Morris, C. T. (F '17)
 Stricken land: Serbia as we saw it. Askew, A. J. de C. and C. A. C. (F '17)
Strikes
 Jones, G. M. Control of strikes in American trade unions. (F '17)
 Strong man's house. Neilson, F. (D '16)
 Struck by lightning. Kline, B. (Jl '16)
 Structure and properties of the more common materials of construction. Upton, G. B. (Je '16)
 Struggle for justice. Wallis, L. (O '16)
 Stuart, Eleanor, pseud. See Porter, E. H.
 Students of Asia. Eddy, G. S. (My '16)
 Studies in forensic psychiatry. Glueck, B. (Ja '17)
 Studies in gardening. Clutton-Brock, A. (Ja '17)
 Studies in Shakespeare (first series). Sprague, H. B. (S '16)
 Studies in the cost of urban transportation service. Doolittle, F. W. (F '17)
 Studies in the history of natural theology. Webb, C. C. J. (O '16)
 Studies in the marketing of farm products. Weld, L. D. H. (My '16)
 Studies of contemporary poets. Sturgeon, M. C. (N '16)
Study
 Dearborn, G. V. How to learn easily. (Ja '17)
 Hazlitt, H. Thinking as a science. (Ag '16)
 Kitson, H. D. How to use your mind. (F '17)
 Study in socialism. Elder, B. (Jl '16)

- Study in the philosophy of Bergson. Cunningham, G. W. (D '16)
- Study of fairy tales. Kready, L. F. (F '17)
- Style, Literary
- Quiller-Couch, Sir A. T.: On the art of writing. (Je '16)
- Rannie, D.: W. Elements of style. (D '16)
- Watson, W.: Pencilcraft. (Ja '17)
- Style-book of business English. Hammond, H. W., and Herzberg, M. J. (Je '16)
- Subconsciousness
- Jung, C. G.: Psychology of the unconscious. (S '16)
- Quackenbos, J. D.: Body and spirit. (Ag '16)
- Subject headings
- Mann, M.: Subject headings for use in dictionary catalogs of juvenile books. (Mr '16)
- Submarines
- Bishop, F.: Story of the submarine. (Ap '16)
- Hoar, A.: Submarine torpedo boat. (F '17)
- Subtropical vegetable-gardening. Rolfs, P.: H. (N '16)
- Success
- Allen, I. R.: Personal efficiency, applied salesmanship, and sales administration. (My '16)
- Fowler, N. C., Jr.: Beginning right. (Je '16)
- Marden, O. S.: Making life a masterpiece. (O '16)
- Peters, M. C.: Seven secrets of success. (F '17)
- Purinton, E.: E. Triumph of the man who acts. (F '17)
- Successful farming. Gardner, F. D. (F '17)
- Suffrage
- Benton, J. H.: Voting in the field. (Ap '16)
- . See also Woman suffrage
- Sugar
- Wiles, R.: Cuban cane sugar. (S '16)
- Summary of the Report on condition of woman and child wage earners in the United States. U. S. Labor statistics, Bureau of. (Je '16)
- Sunday, Rev. William Ashley, 1863-
- Betts, F.: W.: Billy Sunday, the man and method. (F '17)
- Sunday schools
- Teaching
- Knight, E. W.: Some principles of teaching as applied to the Sunday school. (Ap '16)
- Sunlit hours. Verhaeren, E. (F '17)
- Supernatural in tragedy. Whitmore, C. E.: (Je '16)
- Surgeon in khaki. Martin, A. A. (Ap '16)
- Surgery, Military
- Delorme, E.: War surgery. (Ap '16)
- Surrey hills. Green, F.: E. (My '16)
- Surveying
- McCullough, E.: Practical surveying. (Je '16)
- Susan Clegg and her love affairs. French, A. (Je '16)
- Suspended judgments. Powys, J. C. (F '17)
- Sussex gorse. Kaye-Smith, S. (Ja '17)
- Sweden
- Guinchard, A. J. J., ed. Sweden. (Ja '17)
- Stefánsson, J.: Denmark and Sweden, with Iceland and Finland. (F '17)
- History
- Gade, J.: A. Charles the Twelfth, king of Sweden. (F '17)
- Swimming
- Brown, J. H. P.: Modern swimming. (Je '16)
- Goss, G.: E. Life saving. (O '16)
- Switzerland
- Army
- Grande, J.: Citizens' army. (O '16)
- Swords for life. McLeod, I. R. (F '17)
- Symphonies
- Lee, E. M.: Story of symphony. (Ja '17)
- Symphony play. Lee, J. (My '16)
- Syphilis
- Pusey, W.: A. Syphilis as a modern problem. (Jl '16)
- Syria
- Description and travel
- Fowle, T. C. W.: Travels in the Middle East. (N '16)
- Syrian Christ. Rihbany, A. M. (D '16)
- System of physical chemistry. Lewis, W. C. M. (D '16)
- Tabular views of universal history. Putnam, G.: P. (Jl '16)
- Tagore, Rabindranath (Ravindranatha Thakura) 1861-
- Pearson, W.: W. Shantiniketan. (F '17)
- Tales by Polish authors. Benecke, E. C. M., tr. (Ap '16)
- Tales from the Old world and the New. Collmann, S. M. (F '17)
- Tales of the great war. Newbolt, Sir H.: J. (F '17)
- Tales of the Labrador. Grenfell, W. T. (D '16)
- Tales of the pampas. Hudson, W.: H. (Ja '17)
- Tales of wonder. Eng title of Last book of wonder. Dunsany, E.: J. M. D. P., 18th baron. (F '17)
- Talks on business correspondence. Bamburgh, W.: C. (O '16)
- Tall ship on other naval occasions. Bartimeus, pseud. (Ap '16)
- Taming of Calinga. Carlsen, C. L. (F '17)
- Taormina, Sicily
- Bell, R. H.: Taormina. (Je '16)
- Tariff
- China
- Chu, C.: Tariff problem in China. (F '17)
- Great Britain
- Hobson, J.: A. New protectionism. (F '17)
- United States
- Boucher, C. S.: Nullification controversy in South Carolina. (F '17)
- Fowler, C. N.: National issues of 1916. (My '16)
- Tasker Jevons. Eng title of Belfry. Sinclair, M. (Mr '16)
- Taxation
- Haig, R. M.: Exemption of improvements from taxation in Canada and the United States. (Je '16)
- New York (state). Joint legislature committee on taxation. Report. (Je '16)
- Post, L.: F. Taxation of land values. (Je '16)
- Scheffel, Y.: Taxation of land value. (F '17)
- Teachers
- Jessup, W. A.: Teaching staff. (S '16)
- Teaching
- Hall, J.: W. and A. C. Question as a factor in teaching. (F '17)
- Hollister, H. A.: High school and class management. (Ag '16)
- Kendall, C. N., and Mirick, G.: A. How to teach the fundamental subjects. (Ag '16)
- Wilson, H. B. and G. M.: Motivation of school work. (D '16)
- Teaching literature in the grammar grades and high school. Bolenius, E. M. (Je '16)
- Teaching of English. Klapper, P. (O '16)
- Teaching staff. Jessup, W. A. (S '16)
- Technical education
- Bryner, E.: Garment trades. (D '16)
- Hedges, A. C.: Wage worth of school training. (Je '16)
- Shaw, F. L.: Building trades. (My '16)
- Technique of play writing. Andrews, C. (My '16)
- Telegraphy, Wireless. See Wireless telegraphy
- Telephone
- Jansky, C. M., and Faber, D. C.: Principles of the telephone. (F '17)
- Kingsbury, J.: E. Telephone and telephone exchanges. (Je '16)
- Slippy, J.: C. Telephone appraisal practice. (My '16)
- Telephony, Wireless. See Wireless telephony
- Tell me a hero story. Stewart, M. (Ja '17)
- Tellegen, Mrs. Lou. See Farrar, G.
- Temperament
- Jastrow, J.: Character and temperament. (Ap '16)
- Ten beautiful years. Potter, M. K. (D '16)
- Tennis
- Bjurstedt, M., and Crowther, S.: Tennis for women. (Jl '16)
- Paret, J. P.: Lawn tennis lessons for beginners. (Jl '16)

- Tennyson, Alfred Tennyson, 1st baron, 1809-1892
 Baker, A. E. Tennyson dictionary. (O '16)
 Termination of war and treaties of peace. Phillipson, C. (Ja '17)
 Testing of a nation's ideals. Kent, C. F., and Jenks, J. W. (Ap '16)
 Testore. Candler, P. (N '16)
Teternikov, Fedor Kuzmich. See Sologub, F., pseud.
- Texas
 Winter, N. O. Texas, the marvellous. (F
 '17)
- History
 Bolton, H. E. Texas in the middle eighteenth century. (Ag '16)
 Text-book of geology. Pirsson, L. V., and Schuchert, C. (Je '16)
 Text-book of land drainage. Jeffery, J. A. (Ja
 '17)
- Textile industry and fabrics
 Beaumont, R. Standard cloths. (F '17)
 Nystrom, P. H. Textiles. (Ap '16)
- Theater
 Eaton, W. P. Plays and players. (F '17)
 Hibbert, H. G. Fifty years of a Londoner's life. (N '16)
 Hornblow, A. Training for the stage. (Ja '17)
 Krows, A. E. Play production in America.
 (Ja '17)
 Marcossion, I. F., and Frohman, D. Charles
 Frohman: manager and man. (Ja '17)
 Matthews, B. Book about the theater. (N
 '16)
 Pepys, S. On the restoration stage. (F '17)
 Sothorn, E. H. Melancholy tale of "Me." (N
 '16)
 Thorndike, A. H. Shakespeare's theater. (Je
 '16)
 Towse, J. R. Sixty years of the theater. (D
 '16)
 Truth about the theater. (D '16)
 Their spirit. Grant, R. (F '17)
 Their true faith and allegiance. Ohlinger, G.
 (S '16)
- Theology
 Briggs, C. A. History of the study of theology. (F '17)
 *Theology in church and state. Forsyth, P. T.
 (Ap '16)
 *Theoretical elements of electrical engineering.
 Steinmetz, C. P. (Je '16)
 *Theory and practice of the kindergarten. Atwood, N. (N '16)
- Therapeutics, Suggestive
 Quackenbos, J. D. Body and spirit. (Ag '16)
 These Lynnekers. Beresford, J. D. (Ag '16)
 They of the high trails. Garland, H. (Je '16)
 Thibault, Jacques Anatole. See France, A.,
 pseud.
- Thiers, Louis Adolphe, 1797-1877
 Thiers, L. A. Memoirs, 1870-1873. (F '17)
 Things men fight for. Powers, H. H. (Ag '16)
 Things to make. Hutton, J. G. (D '16)
 Thinking as a science. Hazlitt, H. (Ag '16)
 Third party movements since the civil war.
 Haynes, F. E. (Jl '16)
 Thirteenth commandment. Hughes, R. (S '16)
 This way to Christmas. Sawyer, R. (F '17)
- Thoreau, Henry David, 1817-1862
 Van Doren, M. Henry David Thoreau. (D
 '16)
 Those about Trench. Lewis, E. H. (Mr '16)
 Those Gillespies. Hopkins, W. J. (Jl '16)
- Thought and thinking
 Dewey, J. Essays in experimental logic. (S
 '16)
 Hazlitt, H. Thinking as a science. (Ag '16)
 Keyser, C. J. Human worth of rigorous thinking. (O '16)
 Thousand mile walk to the Gulf. Muir, J. (Ja
 '17)
 Thousand years of Russian history. Howe,
 S. E. (Mr '16)
- Three in a camp. Smith, M. P. (F '17)
 Three plays. Colum, P. (D '16)
 Three pretty men. Eng title of Three sons and a mother. Cannan, G. (S '16)
 Three religious leaders of Oxford and their movements. Cadman, S. P. (Je '16)
 Three sons and a mother. Cannan, G. (S '16)
- Thrift. See Saving
 Through Glacier park. Rinehart, M. (Jl '16)
 Through Russian Central Asia. Graham, S. (S
 '16)
 Through South America's southland. Zahm,
 J. A. (Ap '16)
 Through the Chinese revolution. Farjanel, F.
 (Ap '16)
 Tide of immigration. Warne, F. J. (D '16)
 Tidings brought to Mary. Claudel, P. (D '16)
 Tiger slayer by order. Gouldsbury, C. E. (Ag
 '16)
 Tigress. French, A. W. (Ag '16)
- Times, London
 Cook, E. T. Delane of the Times. (Ap '16)
- Tinning
 Flanders, W. T., and others. Galvanizing and tinning. (O '16)
 Tippecanoe. McCoy, S. (My '16)
 Tish. Rinehart, M. (S '16)
 To Ruhleben—and back. Pyke, G. (My '16)
 To the minute. Green, A. K. (N '16)
- Tobacco, Physiological effects of Fink, B. Tobacco. (Mr '16)
- Tobacco habit
 MacLevy, M. Tobacco habit easily conquered.
 (N '16)
- Today and tomorrow. Towne, C. H. (Je '16)
- Toilet accessories
 Wiley, H. W. 1001 tests of foods, beverages and toilet accessories. (F '17)
- Told in a French garden Aldrich, M. (N '16)
- Tom Anderson, dare-devil. Lloyd, E. M. (F
 '17)
- Tomorrow. Münsterberg, H. (D '16)
- Top-of-the-world stories for boys and girls.
 Poulsson, E. and L. E., trs. (Ja '17)
- Tourist's Northwest. Wood, R. K. (Jl '16)
- Towards a lasting settlement. Buxton, C. R., ed. (Je '16)
- Towards an enduring peace. Bourne, R. S., comp. (Ja '17)
- Towers of Ilium. Huston, E. L. (Ja '17)
- Townesend, Mrs. Stephen. See Burnett, F.
- Toys and things Booth, H. (N '16)
- Tractors
 Eighinger, S. R., and Hutton, M. S. Steam traction engineering. (F '17)
- Trade unions
 Ashworth, J. H. Helper and American trade unions. (Ag '16)
 Bullock, E. D., comp. Selected articles on trade unions. (F '17)
 Cohen, J. H. Law and order in industry. (Ap
 '16)
 Groat, G. G. Introduction to the study of organized labor in America. (S '16)
 Janes, G. M. Control of strikes in American trade unions. (F '17)
 Labour year book, 1916. (My '16)
 Wolman, L. Boycott in American trade unions. (Jl '16)
- Tragedies. Symons, A. (N '16)
- Tragedy
 Whitmore, C. E. Supernatural in tragedy.
 (Je '16)
- Tragedy of an indiscretion. Brodie-Innes, J. W.:
 (Ag '16)
- Trail of the pearl. Harris, G. (N '16)
- Training for the newspaper trade. Seitz, D. C.
 (Ja '17)
- Training for the stage. Hornblow, A. (Ja '17)
- Tramping through Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras. Franck, H. A. (S '16)
- Transportation
 Brown, H. G. Principles of commerce. (D
 '16)
 Brown, H. G. Transportation rates and their regulation. (Jl '16)
 Kirkaldy, A. W., and Evans, A. D. History and economics of transport. (Ag '16)
- Transportation, Military
 Pratt, E. A. Rise of rail-power in war and conquest, 1833-1914. (S '16)
- Travels
 Czaplicka, M. A. My Siberian year. (D '16)
 Fowle, T. C. W. Travels in the Middle East.
 (N '16)
 Franck, H. A. Tramping through Mexico.
 Guatemala and Honduras. (S '16)

- Graham, S. Through Russian Central Asia. (S '16)
 Lewis, A. G., ed. Sport, travel and adventure. (F '17)
 Loon, H. W. van. Golden book of the Dutch navigators. (D '16)
 Sykes, Sir M. Caliphs' last heritage. (Je '16)
 Travels in the American colonies, 1690-1783. Mereness, N. D., ed. (Ag '16)
 Travels in the Middle East. Fowle, T. C. W. (N '16)
 Travels of birds. Chapman, F. M. (S '16)
 Treasure Flower. Gaines, R. L. (Ja '17)
- Treaties
 Crandall, S. B. Treaties. (N '16)
 Mowat, R. B., ed. Select treaties and documents to illustrate the development of the modern European states-system. (Ag '16)
 Phillipson, C. L. Termination of war and treaties of peace. (Ja '17)
 Treatise on electricity. Pidduck, F. B. (N '16)
 Treatise on light. Houstoun, R. A. (Je '16)
 Treatment of infantile paralysis. Lovett, R. W. (F '17)
- Trees
 Cole, R. V. Artistic anatomy of trees. (Ap '16)
 Webster, A. D. Tree wounds and diseases. (F '17)
- Trenching at Gallipoli. Gallishaw, J. (D '16)
 Trial by fire. Hallet, R. M. (Ag '16)
 Tristram sahib. Eng title of Hermit doctor of Gaya. Wylie, I. A. R. (Ag '16)
 Triumph of the man who acts. Purinton, E. E. (F '17)
 Triumph of Tim. Vachell, H. A. (N '16)
- Tropics
 Enoch, C. R. Tropics. (Mr '16)
 Troubled Tranton. Norris, W. E. (My '16)
- Trout fishing
 Bradford, C. B. Determined angler and the brook trout. (Ag '16)
 Rhead, L. J. American trout-stream insects. (Jl '16)
- Trudeau, Edward Livingston, 1848-1915
 Autobiography. (Mr '16)
 Chalmers, S. Beloved physician: Edward Livingston Trudeau. (Mr '16)
- True food values and their low costs. Birge, W. S. (D '16)
 Trufflers. Merwin, S. (D '16)
 "Truly stories from the surely Bible." Howard, M., comp. (S '16)
- Trusts, Industrial
 Curtis, E. N. Manual of the Sherman law. (Ap '16)
 Dos Passos, J. R. Commercial mortmain. (S '16)
 Durand, E. D. Trust problem. (Ap '16)
 Harvey, R. S., and Bradford, E. W. Manual of the Federal trade commission. (N '16)
 Nearing, S. Anthracite. (Mr '16)
 Perine, E. T. Story of the trust companies. (F '17)
 Ripley, W. Z., ed. Trusts, pools and corporations. (Je '16)
 Scott, H. P. New slavery. (O '16)
 Truth about Christian science. Searle, G. M. (F '17)
 Truth about Louvain. Chambry, R. (My '16)
 Truth about the theater. (D '16)
- Tuberculosis
 French, R. L. Home care of consumptives. (Ja '17)
 Tumbleweed. Colter, A. M. (O '16)
- Turkey
 Gibbons, H. A. Foundation of the Ottoman empire. (Ap '16)
 Greenc, J. K. Leavening the Levant. (Ja '17)
- History
 Sykes, Sir M. Caliphs' last heritage. (Je '16)
- Turkey in Asia
 Fowle, T. C. W. Travels in the Middle East. (N '16)
 Sykes, Sir M. Caliphs' last heritage. (Je '16)
- Turning
 Audsley, G. A. and B. Art of polychromatic and decorative turning. (F '17)
 Turns and movies. Aiken, C. P. (My '16)
 Turtles of Tasman. London, J. (N '16)
 Tutor's story. Kingsley, C. (D '16)
- Tuttieltt, Mary Glead. See Gray, M., pseud.
 Twain, Mark, pseud. See Clemens, S. L.
 Twentieth century Molière: Bernard Shaw. Hamon, A. F. (Je '16)
 Twenty lessons on poultry keeping. Patterson, C. T. (S '16)
 Twenty-six men and a girl. Gorky, M., pseud. (My '16)
 Twilight. Frankau, J. (Mr '16)
 Twilight in Italy. Lawrence, D. H. (F '17)
 Twin sisters. Forman, J. M. (Ap '16)
 Types of news writing. Bleyer, W. G. (Ja '17)
 Typography. See Printing
 Tyranny of shams. McCabe, J. (F '17)
- Ultimate belief. Clutton-Brock, A. (O '16)
 Unchastened woman. Anspacher, L. K. (Mr '16)
 Uncle Sam, detective. Du Puy, W. A. (D '16)
 Under the apple-trees. Burroughs, J. (Jl '16)
 Under the country sky. Richmond, G. L. (Jl '16)
 Under three flags. Livingston, S., and Steen-Hansen, I. (O '16)
 Understanding Germany. Eastman, M. (D '16)
 Undying story. Newton, W. D. (My '16)
- Unemployed
 Chase, M. H. and S. Honeymoon experiment. (Jl '16)
 Taylor, A. O., ed. Persistent public problems. (O '16)
 Unfinished portraits. Lee, J. (D '16)
 Unhappy in thy daring. Lyle, M. (S '16)
- Union of democratic control
 Coulton, G. G. Main illusions of pacifism. (S '16)
 Union portraits. Bradford, G., jr. (Jl '16)
- United States. Federal reserve board
 Am. acad. of political and social science. National industries and the federal government. (My '16)
- United States. Federal trade commission
 Harvey, R. S., and Bradford, E. W. Manual of the Federal trade commission. (N '16)
- United States
 Steiner, E. A. Nationalizing America. (D '16)
- Army
 Andrews, L. C. Fundamentals of military service. (Je '16)
 Bolles, F. C., and others. Soldier's catechism. (D '16)
 Kerrick, H. S. Military and naval America. (F '17)
 See also United States—Defenses
- Biography
 Bradford, G., jr. Union portraits. (Jl '16)
 Jusserand, J. A. A. J. With Americans of the past and present days. (Jl '16)
 Wade, M. H. Pilgrims of to-day. (N '16)
 Young, J. P. Journalism in California. (Jl '16)
- Commerce and Industry
 Am. economic assn. Papers and proceedings of the twenty-eighth annual meeting. (Ap '16)
 Am. soc. of international law. Diplomatic correspondence. (Je '16)
 Austin, O. P. Economics of world trade. (Ja '17)
 Filsinger, E. B. Exporting to Latin America. (D '16)
 Hough, B. O. Practical exporting. (Je '16)
 Hurley, E. N. Awakening of business. (F '17)
 Johnson, E. R., and others. History of domestic and foreign commerce of the United States. (F '17)
 Jones, C. L. Caribbean interests of the United States. (O '16)
 National foreign trade council. Commercial preparedness. (Ag '16)
 Smith, J. R. Commerce and industry. (Mr '16)
- Congress
 Alexander, D. S. History and procedure of the House of representatives. (Jl '16)
 Haines, L. Your Congress. (Je '16)

United States—Continued

Constitutional history

Elliott, E: American government and majority rule. (Ag '16)

Constitutional law

Bacon, C. W., and Morse, F. S. American plan of government. (Jl '16)

Defenses

American Academy of Political and Social Science. Preparedness and America's international program. (D '16)

Bacon, C., comp. Selected articles on national defense. (Jl '16)

Benson, A. L.: Inviting war to America. (Jl '16)

Blakeslee, G. H. Problems and lessons of the war. (Je '16)

Fortescue, G. R. Fore-armed. (O '16)

Freeman, W., pseud. Awake! U. S. A. (Jl '16)

Huidekoper, F. L.: Military unpreparedness of the United States. (F, My '16)

Hull, W. I.: Preparedness. (Jl '16)

Kellor, F. A. Straight America. (S '16)

Kerrick, H. S. Military and naval America. (F '17)

Lane, R. N. A. Dangers of half-preparedness. (Jl '16)

Lee, G. S. We. (Je '16)

Maxim, H., ed. Leading opinions both for and against national defense. (N '16)

Palmer, J. M. Army of the people. (Mr '16)

Reilly, H. J. Why preparedness. (O '16)

Roosevelt, T. Fear God and take your own part. (Mr '16)

Usher, R. G. Challenge of the future. (Mr '16)

Wood, E. F. Writing on the wall. (Mr '16)

Wood, L. Our military history. (Je '16)

Fiction

Moffett, C. Conquest of America. (Je '16)

Muller, J. W. Invasion of America. (Mr '16)

Description and travel

Baker, L. H. Favorite motor ways of New England. (Je '16)

Brooke, R. Letters from America. (Mr '16)

Dreiser, T. Hoosier holiday. (D '16)

Gladding, E. P. Across the continent by the Lincoln highway. (My '16)

Hale, L. C. We discover the Old Dominion. (Ja '17)

Hammond, J. M. Winter journeys in the South. (D '16)

Hawthorne, H. Old seaport towns of New England. (F '17)

Kilbourne, F. W. Chronicles of the White mountains. (Jl '16)

Lancaster, S. C. Columbia, America's greatest highway through the Cascade mountains to the sea. (My '16)

Mereness, N. D., ed. Travels in the American colonies. (Ag '16)

Muir, J. Thousand-mile walk to the Gulf. (Ja '17)

Pelxotto, E. C. Our Hispanic Southwest. (Ja '17)

Post, E. By motor to the Golden Gate. (Ag '16)

Prime, W. C. Along New England roads. (Jl '16)

Rinehart, M. Through Glacier park. (Jl '16)

Ruxton, G. F. A.: Wild life in the Rocky mountains. (Ag '16)

Sargent, P. E. Handbook of New England. (O '16)

Saunders, G. F. Finding the worth while in California. (F '17)

Tomlinson, E. T. Places young Americans want to know. (Mr '16)

Wood, R. K. Tourist's northwest. (Jl '16)

Economic conditions

Bogart, E. L., and Thompson, C. M., ed. Readings in the economic history of the United States. (D '16)

Steinmetz, C. P. America and the new epoch. (D '16)

Economic policy

Knoeppel, C. E. Industrial preparedness. (Ja '17)

Executive departments

Hill, J. P. Federal executive. (Jl '16)

Foreign population

Dixon, R. Americanization. (S '16)

Kellor, F. A. Straight America. (S '16)

McClure, A. Leadership of the new America. (F '17)

Miller, H. A. School and the immigrant. (S '16)

Ohlinger, G. Their true faith and allegiance. (S '16)

Steiner, E. A. Confession of a hyphenated American. (My '16)

Warne, F. J. Tide of immigration. (D '16)

Foreign relations

Abbott, J. F. Japanese expansion and American policies. (Mr '16)

Adams, J. Q. Writings of John Quincy Adams. (My '16)

American Academy of Political and Social Science. Preparedness and America's international program. (D '16)

Am. soc. of international law. Diplomatic correspondence. (Je '16)

Blakeslee, G. H., ed. Problems and lessons of the war. (Je '16)

Corwin, E. S. French policy and the American alliance of 1778. (O '16)

Crandall, S. B. Treaties. (N '16)

Crow, C. Japan and America. (Ap '16)

Freehoff, J. C. America and the canal title. (Mr '16)

Goebel, J. Recognition policy of the United States. (My '16)

Gulick, S. L. America and the Orient. (D '16)

Iyemaga, T., ed. Japan's real attitude toward America. (O '16)

Johnson, W. F. America's foreign relations. (Jl '16)

Jones, C. L. Caribbean interests of the United States. (O '16)

Lane, R. N. A. Dangers of half-preparedness. (Jl '16)

Manning, W. R. Early diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico. (Je '16)

Millard, T. F. F. Our Eastern question. (O '16)

O'Laughlin, J. C. Imperiled America. (Ag '16)

Patterson, J. M. Note book of a neutral. (Mr '16)

Roosevelt, T. Fear God and take your own part. (Mr '16)

Root, E. Address as temporary chairman of the New York Republican convention, February 15, 1916. (O '16)

Root, E. Addresses on international subjects. (Je '16)

Scherer, J. A. B. Japanese crisis. (My '16)

Sherrill, C. H. Modernizing the Monroe doctrine. (Ap '16)

Usher, R. G. Challenge of the future. (Mr '16)

Williams, M. W. Anglo-American Isthmian diplomacy, 1815-1915. (Ag '16)

Witte, E. Revelations of a German attaché. (O '16)

Mexico

Manning, W. R. Early diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico. (Je '16)

O'Shaughnessy, E. C. Diplomat's wife in Mexico. (Jl '16)

History

Faris, J. T. Real stories from our history. (N '16)

Hart, A. B., ed. American patriots and statesmen from Washington to Lincoln. (Ja '17)

Herdman, M. L. Story of the United States. (Ja '17)

Nicolay, H. Our nation in the building. (Ja '17)

Scherer, J. A. B. Cotton as a world power. (F '17)

Bibliography

Griffin, G. G., comp. Writings on American history, 1914. (O '16)

Sources

Bolton, H. E., ed. Spanish exploration in the Southwest, 1542-1706. (My '16)

Colonial period

Holland, R. S. Historic events of colonial days. (D '16)

Colonial period—Poetry

Firth, C. H., ed. American garland. (My '16)

Revolution

Corwin, E. S. French policy and the American alliance of 1778. (O '16)

Eckenrode, H. J. Revolution in Virginia. (Ag '16)

Jusserand, J. A. A. J. With Americans of past and present days. (Jl '16)

Revolution—Sources

Rotch, W. Memorandum. (O '16)

War with Mexico, 1845-1848

Bishop, F. Our first war in Mexico. (O '16)

Civil war

Bradford, G., jr. Union portraits. (Jl '16)

Seward, F. W. Reminiscences of a war-time statesman and diplomat, 1830-1915. (D '16)

Civil war—Campaigns and battles

Wise, G. Campaigns and battles of the Army of northern Virginia. (Ja '17)

Civil war—Regimental histories

Wise, J. C. Long arm of Lee. (F '17)

History. Military

Huidekoper, F. L. Military unpreparedness of the United States. (F, My '16)

Merchant marine

Fowler, C. N. National issues of 1916. (My '16)

Meloney, W. B. Heritage of Tyre. (Ag '16)

Phelps, E. M., comp. Selected articles on the American merchant marine. (N '16)

Militia

Moss, J. A., and Stewart, M. B. Self-helps for the citizen soldier. (Je '16)

Navy

Kerrick, H. S. Military and naval America. (F '17)

Reynolds, F. J. United States navy from the revolution to date. (Ag '16)

Neutrality

Baldwin, J. M. American neutrality. (Je '16)

Beck, J. M. War and humanity. (Ja '17)

Fullerton, W. M. Hesitations. (D '16)

Gould, B. A. Greater tragedy. (Jl '16)

Politics and government

Alexander, D. S. History and procedure of the House of representatives. (Jl '16)

Bacon, C. W., and Morse, F. S. American plan of government. (Jl '16)

Bishop, J. B. Presidential nominations and elections. (Ag '16)

Brown, C. R. Northern confederacy according to the plans of the "Essex Junto," 1796-1814. (Je '16)

Burgess, J. W. Administration of President Hayes. (Jl '16)

Castle, W. R., jr. Wake up, America. (My '16)

Creel, G.: Wilson and the issues. (O '16)

Cunningham, W. English influence on the United States. (D '16)

Dittenhoefer, A. J. How we elected Lincoln. (F '17)

Elliott, E. American government and majority rule. (Ag '16)

Foraker, J. B. Notes of a busy life. (My '16)

Fowler, C. N. National issues of 1916. (My '16)

Hart, A. B., ed. American patriots and statesmen from Washington to Lincoln. (Ja '17)

Haynes, F. E. Third party movements since the civil war. (Jl '16)

Hill, D. J. Americanism. (S '16)

Hill, M., and Davis, P. Civics for new Americans. (My '16)

Holcombe, A. N. State government in the United States. (F '17)

Lapp, J. A. Our America. (Ja '17)

McCall, S. W. Liberty of citizenship. (Mr '16)

McCarthy, C., and others. Elementary civics. (N '16)

Miller, M. M. American debate. (D '16)

Olcott, C. S. Life of William McKinley. (Jl '16)

Root, E. Address as temporary chairman of New York Republican convention, February 15th, 1916. (O '16)

Root, E. Addresses on government and citizenship. (F '17)

Seward, F. W. Reminiscences of a war-time statesman and diplomat, 1830-1915. (D '16)

Stanwood, E. History of the presidency. (Ja '17)

Taft, W. H. Our chief magistrate and his powers. (Je '16)

Social conditions

Cunningham, W. English influence on the United States. (D '16)

Deming, S. From doomsday to kingdom come. (N '16)

Gillette, J. M. Constructive rural sociology. (Je '16)

Nearing, S. Poverty and riches. (D '16)

Towne, E. T. Social problems. (O '16)

Statistics

American Whitaker almanac and encyclopedia for 1916. (Mr '16)

United States steel corporation

Cotter, A. Authentic history of the United States steel corporation. (Jl '16)

Unity of the Americas. Speer, R. E. (F '17)

Universal plot catalog. Phillips, H. A. (Je '16)

Universe and the atom. Erwin, M. (S '16)

University debaters' annual. Mabie, E. C., ed. (N '16)

Unknown Mr. Kent. Norton, R. (Ja '17)

Unpretenders. Warwick, A., pseud. (My '16)

Unspeakable Perk. Adams, S. H. (S '16)

Uruguay

Ross, G. Argentina, and Uruguay. (Ja '17)

Use of money. Kirkpatrick, E. A. (Je '16)

Utilitarianism

Davidson, W. L. Political thought in England. (Jl '16)

Vagabond voyage through Brittany. Chase, Mrs. L. (Mr '16)

Valley of gold. Eng title of Hunted woman. Curwood, J. O. (Ap '16)

Value for rate-making. Floy, H. (N '16)

Van Dyck, Sir Anthony, 1599-1641

Hind, A. M. Van Dyck; his original etchings and his iconography. (O '16)

Van Haavens. Hilton-Turvey, C. B. (N '16)

Vanished towers and chimneys of Flanders. Edwards, G. W., jr. (F '17)

Vassar, Matthew, 1792-1868

Vassar, M. Autobiography and letters. (O '16)

Vassar college

Fiftieth anniversary of the opening of Vassar college, October 10 to 13, 1915. (N '16)

Letters from old-time Vassar. (Je '16)

Norris, M. H. Golden age of Vassar. (Je '16)

Taylor, J. M., and Haight, E. H. Vassar. (Je '16)

Vaudeville

Page, B. Writing for vaudeville. (Je '16)

Vegetable gardening

Rexford, E. E. A-B-C of vegetable gardening. (Mr '16)

Rolfs, P. H. Subtropical vegetable-gardening. (N '16)

Watts, R. L. Vegetable garden. (Je '16)

Yeaw, F. L. Market gardening. (My '16)

See also Gardening

Venice

Fotheringham, J. K., and Williams, T. F. Marco Sanudo, conqueror of the Archipelago. (S '16)

Venizelos, Eleutherios, 1864-

Kerofilas, C. Eleftherios Venizelos, his life and work. (Ap '16)

Ventilation

Hubbard, C. L. Ventilation hand book. (F '17)

- Ventures in worlds. Cox, M. (Je '16)
 Venus of Milo. Carus, P. (Ag '16)
 Verdun to the Vosges. Campbell, G. F. (O '16)
 Veressayev, Vikenty, pseud. See Smidovich, V. V.
 Vermilion box. Lucas, E. V. (D '16)
 Verse. Crapsey, A. (Mr '16)
 Verses. Belloc, H. (F '17)
 Vesper talks to girls. Knott, L. A. (Je '16)
 Vlaud, Louis Maria Julien. See Loti, P., pseud.
 Victoria, queen of England, 1819-1901
 Jerrold, C. Widowhood of Queen Victoria. (Je '16)
 Victorians. Eng title of Rose Cottingham. Syrett, N. (Mr '16)
 Victorious attitude. Marden, O. S. (Jl '16)
 Victory in defeat. Washburn, S. (Jl '16)
Vikings
 Johnston, C. H. L. Our little Viking cousin of long ago. (F '17)
 Vindication. Comstock, H. T. (Ap '16)
 Vintage. Bates, S. C. (F '17)
 Virgin birth of Jesus. Box, G. H. (F '17)
 Virginia
 Description and travel
 Hale, L. C. We discover the Old Dominion. (Ja '17)
 History
 Eckenrode, H. J. Revolution in Virginia. (Ag '16)
 Sams, C. W. Conquest of Virginia; the forest primeval. (Ag '16)
 Vision and vesture. Gardner, C. (S '16)
 Visit to three fronts. Doyle, Sir A. C. (D '16)
 Viviette. Locke, W. J. (Je '16)
Vivisection
 Coleridge, S. Vivisection. (F '17)
Vocational education
 Lapp, J. A., and Mote, C. H. Learning to earn. (F, Ap '16)
 National society for the promotion of industrial education. Bulletin no. 21. (Jl '16)
 N. Y. (state). University. Vocational training of girls in the state of New York. (Jl '16)
 U. S. Labor statistics, Bureau of. Vocational education survey of Richmond, Va. (Jl '16)
Vocational guidance
 Gowin, E. B., and Wheatley, W. A. Occupations. (Jl '16)
 Vocational psychology. Hollingworth, H. L. (D '16)
 Vocational training of girls in the state of New York. N. Y. (state). University. (Jl '16)
Voice
 Muckey, F. S. Natural method of voice production in speech and song. (Ag '16)
 Voice in the wilderness. Lutz, G. H. (F '17)
 Volunteer. Asquith, H. (Jl '16)
 Voting in the field. Benton, J. H. (Ap '16)
 Voting trusts. Cushing, H. A. (F, Ap '16)
 Voyages and travels. See Travels
 Voyages of the "Morning." Doorly, J. G. S. (O '16)
 Voyage inheritance. Barker, G. (S '16)
 Wage worth of school training. Hedges, A. C. (Je '16)
 Waitful watching. Ford, J. L. (N '16)
 Wake up, America. Castle, W. R., Jr. (My '16)
 Walker, William, 1824-1860
 Scroggs, W. O. Filibusters and financiers. (Ag '16)
 Wall street girl. Bartlett, F. O. (N '16)
 Wall street stories. Lefevre, E. (Mr '16)
 Wallace, Alfred Russel, 1822-1913
 Marchant, J. Alfred Russel Wallace: letters and reminiscences. (Jl '16)
 Walpole, Horace, 1717-1797
 Correspondence. See Toynbee, P. J., ed.
 Wandering dog. Saunders, M. (F '17)
War
 Am. sociological society. War and militarism in their sociological aspects. (Ap '16)
 Artsybashef, M. P. War. (F '17)
 Blakeslee, G. H., ed. Problems and lessons of the war. (Je '16)
 Brailsford, H. N. War of steel and gold. (Jl '16)
 Campbell, R. J. War and the soul. (O '16)
 Federal council of the churches of Christ in America. Commission on Christian education comp. Selected quotations on peace and war. (S '16)
 Holmes, J. H. New wars for old. (Jl '16)
 Howe, F. C. Why war. (Jl '16)
 Hügel, F. German soul in its attitude towards ethics and Christianity, the state and war. (O '16)
 Jacks, L. P. From the human end. (N '16)
 Jefferson, C. E. What the war is teaching. (S '16)
 Key, E. K. S. War, peace, and the future. (N '16)
 Krehbiel, E. B. Nationalism, war and society. (S '16)
 Le Bon, G. Psychology of the great war. (F '17)
 Nasmyth, G. W. Social progress and the Darwinian theory. (Ap '16)
 Perry, R. B. Free man and the soldier. (O '16)
 Phillipson, C. International law and the great war. (O '16)
 Phillipson, C. Termination of war and treaties of peace. (Ja '17)
 Plater, C., ed. Primer of peace and war. (Je '16)
 Powers, H. H. Things men fight for. (Ag '16)
 Prinzing, F. Epidemics resulting from wars. (F '17)
 Roosevelt, T. Fear God and take your own part. (Mr '16)
 Russell, B. A. W. Justice in war-time. (Mr '16)
 Waldstein, Sir C. Aristodemocracy. (S '16)
 Woods, F. A., and Baltzy, A. Is war diminishing? (Ap '16)
 War. Artsybashef, M. P. (F '17)
War, Cost of
 Am. economic assn. Papers and proceedings of the twenty-eighth annual meeting. (Ap '16)
 Jones, J. H. Economics of war and conquest. (Jl '16)
War, Maritime (international law)
 Brewer, D. C. Rights and duties of neutrals. (Ap '16)
 War and after. Lodge, O. J. (My '16)
 War and civilization. Robertson, J. M. (S '16)
 War and humanity. Beck, J. M. (Ja '17)
 War and laughter. Oppenheim, J. (Ja '17)
 War and religion. Loisy, A. F. (Je '16)
 War and the soul. Campbell, R. J. (O '16)
 War bread. Hunt, E. E. (Ja '17)
 War for the world. Zangwill, I. (S '16)
 War in eastern Europe. Reed, J. (Je '16)
 War letters from France. Lapradelle, A. G. de and Coudert, F. R., comps. (Ag '16)
 War letters of an American woman. Van Vorst, M. (Ap '16)
 War path and hunting trail. Gregor, E. R. (S '16)
 War, peace and the future. Key, E. (N '16)
 War surgery. Delorme, E. (Ap '16)
 War—the creator. Burgess, G. (O '16)
 War wedding. Eng title of Where the path breaks. Williamson, C. N. and A. M. (My '16)
 Ward, Arthur Sarsfield. See Rohmer, S., pseud.
 Warfare of a nation. Meinecke, F. (Jl '16)
 War-time sermons. Henson, H. H. (Je '16)
 War-time verses. Seaman, O. (My '16)
 Warner, Anne, pseud. See French, A.
 Warwickshire lad. Martin, G. M. (Je '16)
 Washington, Booker Tallaferro, 1859?-1915
 Riley, B. F. Life and times of Booker T. Washington. (N '16)
 Scott, E. J., and Stowe, L. B. Booker T. Washington. (F '17)
 Washington, George, 1732-1799
 Mace, W. H. Washington, a Virginia cavalier. (Jl '16)
 Rideing, W. H. George Washington. (F '17)
 Whipple, W. Story of young George Washington. (My '16)
 Wiltach, P. Mount Vernon, Washington's home and the nation's shrine. (D '16)
 Washington, D. C.
 Bryan, W. B. History of the national capital. (Jl '16)
 Washington Square plays. (F '17)

- Waste. Barker, G. (S '16)
 Water power engineering. Mead, D. W. (Je '16)
 Watermeads. Marshall, A. (N '16)
Waterworks
 Flinn, A. D., and others. Waterworks handbook. (F '17)
Watts-Dunton, Theodore, 1832-1914
 Hake, T., and Compton-Rickett, A. Life and letters of Theodore Watts-Dunton. (F '17)
Wave motion, Theory of
 Erwin, M. Universe and the atom. (S '16)
 Way of all flesh. Butler, S. (Ag '16)
Way of the cross. Doroshevich, V. M. (My '16)
 Way they have in the army. O'Toole, T. (Je '16)
 Ways to lasting peace. Jordan, D. S. Mr '16)
 We. Lee, G. S. (Je '16)
 We discover the Old Dominion. Hale, L. C. (Ja '17)
We three. Morris, G. (My '16)
Web of steel. Brady, C. T. and C. T., jr. (My '16)
Webster, John, 1580?-1625
 Brooke, R. John Webster and the Elizabethan drama. (F '17)
Wedgwood, Josiah, 1730-1795
 Wedgwood, J. Personal life of Josiah Wedgwood, the potter. (Jl '16)
Welding
 Manly, H. P. Oxy-acetylene welding and cutting. (S '16)
Welfare work in industry
 Henderson, C. R. Citizens in industry. (F, Ap '16)
 Tarbell, I. M. New ideals in business. (Ja '17)
Wesley, John, 1703-1791
 Cadman, S. P. Three religious leaders of Oxford and their movements. (Je '16)
 Wesley, J. Letters. (F '17)
 Wilson, W. John Wesley's place in history. (My '16)
West, Richard, 1716-1742
 Correspondence. See Toynbee, P. J., ed.
West Indies
 Jones, C. L. Caribbean interests of the United States. (O '16)
Western Warwick. Blythe, S. G. (Jl '16)
Wet, Christiaan Rudolf de, 1854-
 Sampson, P. J. Capture of De Wet. (Je '16)
Wetmore, Mrs. Charles W. See Bisland, E.
Whale and the grasshopper. O'Brien, S. (F '17)
Whaling
 Andrews, R. C. Whale hunting with gun and camera. (N '16)
 Verrill, A. H. Real story of the whaler. (My '16)
 What could Germany do for Ireland? McGuire, J. K. (Je '16)
 What every business man should know. Kearney, L. C. (F '17)
 What every business woman should know. Kearney, L. C. (S '16)
 What Germany thinks. Smith, T. F. A. (Ap '16)
 What happens after death? (Ag '16)
 What I believe and why. Ward, W. H. (Ap '16)
 What is a Christian? Powell, J. W. (My '16)
 What is coming? Wells, H. G. (Jl '16)
 What is your legion? Norton, G. F. (S '16)
 What Jesus Christ thought of himself. Stokes, A. P. (Je '16)
 What may I hope? Ladd, G. T. (Je '16)
 What the Irish regiments have done. Kerr, S. P. (My '16)
 What the war is teaching. Jefferson, C. E. (S '16)
 What's the matter with Mexico? Whitney, C. (D '16)
Wheat
 Bengston, N. A., and Griffith, D. Wheat industry. (My '16)
 When a man's a man. Wright, H. B. (O '16)
 When Carey came to town. Delano, E. B. (Je '16)
 When I was a boy in Russia. De Bogory Mokrievitch, V. K. (Jl '16)
 When mother lets us carpenter. Adams, J. D. (O '16)
 When mother lets us draw. Thayer, E. R. L. (F '17)
 When mother lets us model. Adams, H. M. (Ag '16)
 When Pan pipes. Thornton, M. T. (N '16)
 When the Prussians came to Poland. Turczynowicz, L. de G. (F '17)
 Where the path breaks. Williamson, C. N. and A. M. (My '16)
 Whirligig of time. Williams, W. W. (Je '16)
White mountains
 Kilbourne, F. W. Chronicles of the White mountains. (Jl '16)
 White road to Verdun. Burke, K. (F '17)
Whitman, Mrs. Sarah Helen (Power), 1803-1878
 Ticknor, C. Poe's Helen. (D '16)
 Who goes there? Eng title of Halt! Who's there? Meynell, W. (Jl '16)
 Who is insane? Smith, S. (Ap '16)
 Whole armour of God. Jowett, J. H. (F '17)
 Why be fat? Summerville, A. S. (My '16)
 Why men pray. Slattery, C. L. (Ap '16)
 Why preparedness. Reilly, H. J. (O '16)
 Why war. Howe, F. C. (Jl '16)
 Why we punctuate. Klein, W. L. (Ap '16)
Widowhood of Queen Victoria. Jerrold, C. (Je '16)
Wiehe, Mrs. Evelyn M. (Clowes). See Mor-daunt, E., pseud.
 Wild animal ways. Seton, E. T. (Jl '16)
 Wild apples. Foster J. R. (Ag '16)
 Wild earth. Colum, P. (D '16)
 Wild life in the Rocky mountains. Ruxton, G. F. A. (Ag '16)
Wilding, Anthony Frederick, 1833-1915
 Myers, A. W. Captain Anthony Wilding. (Ag '16)
Willow weaver. Wood, M. (Ja '17)
Wilson, Woodrow, 1856-
 Brooks, E. C. Woodrow Wilson as president. (D '16)
 Creel, G. Wilson and the issues. (O '16)
 Ford, H. J. Woodrow Wilson. (Je '16)
 Wind and weather. Bailey, L. H. (Jl '16)
 Window in the fence. Brunkhurst, H. (Jl '16)
 Wind's will. Castle, A. and E. (O '16)
 Windy McPherson's son. Anderson, S. (N '16)
 Winged Victory. Grand, S., pseud. (N '16)
 Winter journeys in the South. Hammond, J. M. (D '16)
Wireless telegraphy
 Edelman, P. E. Experimental wireless stations. (O '16)
 Fleming, J. A. Elementary manual of radio-telegraphy and radiotelephony. (O '16)
 Zenneck, J. A. W. Wireless telegraphy. (Jl '16)
Wireless telephony
 Fleming, J. A. Elementary manual of radio-telegraphy and radiotelephony. (O '16)
 Wireless transmission of photographs. Martin, M. J. (S '16)
 Wiring houses for the electric light. Schneider, N. H. (F '17)
Wiser folly. Moore, L. (My '16)
Wishing moon. Dutton, L. E. (F '17)
Wit and humor
 Bangs, J. K. From pillar to post. (Ap '16)
 Leacock, S. B. Further foolishness. (F '17)
 Some stories by famous men. (Ap '16)
 Wit and its relation to the unconscious. Freud, S. (F '17)
 With a field ambulance at Ypres. Boyd, W. (Ja '17)
 With Americans of past and present days. Jusserand, J. A. A. J. (Jl '16)
 With Botha in the field. Ritchie, M. (My '16)
 With Botha's army. Robinson, J. P. K. (Ag '16)
 With my regiment from the Aisne to La Bassée. (O '16)
 With Scott. Taylor, G. (N '16)
 With Serbia into exile. Jones, F. (O '16)
 With the flying squadron. Rosher, H. (Ja '17)
 With the French in France and Salonika. Davis, R. H. (Je '16)
 With the Turks in Palestine. Aaronsohn, A. (Ja '17)
 With the twenty-ninth division in Gallipoli. Creighton, O. (D '16)

With the Zionists in Gallipoli. Patterson, J. H. (Ag '16)

Within the tides. Conrad, J. (Mr '16)
Witte arrives. Tobenkin, E. (S '16)
Wolf's-bane rhymes. Powys, J. C. (Jl '16)

Woman

Addams, J. Long road of woman's memory. (D '16)
Gamble, E. B. Sexes in science and history. (F '17)

Biography

Bradford, G., jr. Portraits of women. (D '16)

Employment

Black, C., ed. Married women's work. (O '16)
Chase, M. H. and S. Honeymoon experiment. (Jl '16)
Gilbert, E., pseud. Ambitious woman in business. (F '17)
Hedges, A. C. Wage worth of school training. (Je '16)
Hutchins, B. L. Women in modern industry. (Jl '16)
MacLean, A. M. Women workers and society. (F '17)
Perry, L. Millinery as a trade for women. (F '17)
U. S. Labor statistics, Bureau of. Summary of the Report on condition of woman and child wage earners in the United States. (Je '16)
Wolseley, F. G. W., viscountess. Women and the land. (S '16)
Women's co-operative guild. Maternity; letters from working women. (F '17)

Social and moral questions

Cox, M. Ventures in worlds. (Je '16)
George, W. L. Intelligence of woman. (Ja '17)
Hale, A. R. Eden sphinx. (S '16)
Key, E. K. S. War, peace, and the future. (N '16)
Martin, J. and P. M. Feminism. (My '16)
Smith, F. M. Mary Astell. (Ja '17)

Social conditions

Cooper, E. Harim and the purdah. (Mr '16)
A woman and the war. Warwick, F. E. G., countess of. (F '17)
Woman gives. Johnson, O. M. (S '16)
Woman in the Balkans. Gordon, W. (N '16)
Woman in the wilderness. James, W. L. (S '16)
Woman of feeling. Field, L. M. (Mr '16)
Woman of mystery. Leblanc, M. (F '17)
Woman on her own. Brieux, E. (N '16)

Woman suffrage

Fowler, N. C., jr. Principle of suffrage. (Ag '16)
Hale, A. R. Eden sphinx. (S '16)
Pheips, E. M., comp. Selected articles on woman suffrage. (My '16)
Tucker, H. S. Woman's suffrage by constitutional amendment. (D '16)
Woman who wouldn't. Stokes, R. P. (D '16)
Woman's diary of the war. Macnaughtan, S. (D '16)
Women and the land. Wolseley, F. G. W., viscountess. (S '16)
Women in modern industry. Hutchins, B. L. (Jl '16)
Women workers and society. MacLean, A. M. (F '17)
Wonder of work. Pennell, J. (D '16)
Wonder tales retold. Pyle, K. (D '16)
Wonderful year. Locke, W. J. (N '16)
Wonders of animal life. Berridge, W. S. (F '17)
Woodcraft girls at camp. Roy, L. E. (F '17)

Woodlots

Ferguson, J. A. Farm forestry. (Ja '17)

Woodwork

Griffith, I. S. Woodwork for secondary schools. (Ja '17)

Wordsworth, William, 1770-1850

Harper, G. M. William Wordsworth. (My '16)
Winchester, C. T. William Wordsworth. (Jl '16)

Work, Therapeutic effects of

Hall, H. J., and Buck, M. M. Work of our hands. (Mr '16)

Work and teachings of the Apostles. Kent, C. F. (Je '16)

Workfellows in social progression. Stephens, K. (F '17)

Workmanship in words. Kelley, J. P. (D '16)

World decision. Herrick, R. (Mr, Ap '16)

World for sale. Parker, Sir G. (O '16)

World-mender. Gray, M., pseud. (S '16)

World peace. Bigelow, J. (My '16)

World peace, Selected articles on. Reely, M. K., comp. (Mr '16)

World peace and the college man. Jordan, D. S. (Je '16)

World politics

Powers, H. H. Things men fight for. (Ag '16)

World's cotton crops. Todd, J. A. (Je '16)

Worn doorsteps. Sherwood, M. P. (D '16)

Worry

James, G. W. Quit your worrying! (O '16)

Worth of a girl. King, B. P. (F '17)

Worth while people. Gould, F. G. (N '16)

Wrack of the storm. Maeterlinck, M. (N '16)

Wreckage. Manners, J. H. (Je '16)

Writing for vaudeville. Page, B. (Je '16)

Writing on the wall. Wood, E. F. (Mr '16)

Writings on American history, 1914. Griffin, G. G., comp. (O '16)

Wycliffe, John, 1320-1384

Cladman, S. P. Three religious leaders of Oxford and their movements. (Je '16)

X-rays

Colwell, H. A., and Russ, S. Radium, X rays and the living cell. (S '16)

Xingu and other stories. Wharton, E. N. (N '16)

Yale university

Nettleton, G. H., ed. Book of the Yale pageant. (D '16)

Oviatt, E. Beginnings of Yale (1701-1726). (F '17)

Year with the birds. Ball, A. E. (S '16)

Yearbooks (statistical, historical, etc.)

American art annual. (My '16)
Am. assn. of public accountants. Year book, 1915. (Ap '16)

American Jewish year book, 5676. (N '16)

American labor year book, 1916. (Ja '17)

American Whitaker almanac and encyclopedia for 1916. (Mr '16)

American year book, 1915. (Je '16)

Annual register, 1915. (Jl '16)

Attack, F. W., ed. Chemist's year-book, 1916. (Ag '16)

Brassey's naval annual, 1916. (Ag '16)

Canadian almanac and miscellaneous directory for the year 1916. (Je '16)

Canadian annual review of public affairs, 1915. (D '16)

Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Year book for 1916. (N '16)

China year book for 1916. (F '17)

Information annual 1915. (Je '16)

Living church annual and Churchman's almanac. (My '16)

Navy league annual (corrected to January 31, 1916). (Jl '16)

Negro year book. (S '16)

New international year book. (S '16)

Statesman's year-book, 1916. (O '16)

Years of childhood. Aksakov, S. T. (My '16)

Years of my youth. Howells, W. D. (D '16)

Years of plenty. Brown, I. (Mr '16)

Yeats, William Butler, 1865-

Boyd, E. A. Ireland's literary renaissance. (D '16)

Hone, J. M. William Butler Yeats. (O '16)

Yeats, W. B. Reveries over childhood and youth. (Jl '16)

Yellow fever

Le Prince, J. A. A., and Orenstein, A. J. Mosquito control in Panama. (Mr '16)

Yiddish drama

Goldberg, I., ed. and tr. Six plays of the Yiddish theatre. (Ja '17)

Yiddish language

Dictionaries

Abelson, P., ed. English-Yiddish encyclopedic dictionary. (Jl '16)

Young, Ella Flagg, 1845-

McManis, J. T. Ella Flagg Young and a half-century of the Chicago public schools. (Ja '17)

Young, Mrs. William Sanborn. See Mitchell, Ruth Comfort

Young America. Ballard, F.: (My '16)

Young folks' book of ideals. Forbush, W. B. (Ja '17)

Young India. Rai, L. (O '16)

Young women's Christian associations

Wilson, E. Fifty years of association work among young women, 1866-1916. (Ap '16)

Your boy and his training. Fuller, E. S. (O '16)

Your Congress. Haines, L. (Je '16)

Youth. Halbe, M. (Jl '16)

Yukon territory

Auer, H. A. Camp fires in the Yukon. (My '16)

Yule-tide in many lands. Pringle, M. P., and Urann, C. A. (N '16)

Yvette. Maupassant, H. R. A. G. de. (Je '16)

Zeppelin nights. Hunt, V., and Hueffer, F. M. (Mr '16)

Zeppelins and super-Zeppelins. Hearne, R. P. (Jl '16)

Directory of Publishers

A. L. A. American Library Association, 78 E. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

Abingdon Press, 150 5th Av., N. Y.

Imprint adopted by the Methodist Book Concern for books of general interest.

Allaben. Frank Allaben Genealogical Co., 30 E. 42d St., N. Y.

Altemus. Henry Altemus Co., 1326 Vine St., Philadelphia.

America Press, 59 E. 83d St., N. Y.

Am. Acad. American Academy of Political and Social Science, Station B, Philadelphia.

Am. Assn. for International Conciliation, Substation 84, 501 W. 116th St., N. Y.

Am. Bk. American Book Co., 100 Washington Square, N. Y.; 330 E. 22d St., Chicago.

Am. Economic Assn., Ithaca, N. Y.

Am. Electric Railway Assn., 8 W. 40th St., N. Y.

Am. Federation of Arts, Leila Mechlin, sec., 1741 New York Av., Washington, D. C.

Am. Highway Assn., 708 Colorado Bldg., Washington, D. C.

Am. Hist. Assn., 1140 Woodward Bldg., Washington, D. C.

Am. Iron Steel Inst., 61 Broadway, N. Y.

Am. Medical Assn., 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago.

Am. Physical Educ. Assn., 93 Westford Av., Springfield, Mass.

Am.-Scandinavian Foundation, H: G. Leach, sec., 25 W. 45th St., N. Y.

Am. School of Home Economics, 506 W. 69th St., Chicago.

Am. Soc. of International Law, Washington, D. C.

Am. S. S. Union. Am. Sunday School Union (Union Press), 1816 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

Am. Technical Soc., Drexel & 58th St., Chicago.

Appleton. Daniel Appleton & Co., 29-35 W. 32d St., N. Y.; 533 S. Wabash Av., Chicago.

Selling agents for the University of Pennsylvania Publications.

Assn. Press, 124 E. 28th St., N. Y.

Badger, R: G. Richard G. Badger (The Gorham Press), 194-200 Boylston St., Boston.

Baker. Baker & Taylor Co., 354 4th Av., at 26th St., N. Y.

Baker, Voorhis. Baker, Voorhis & Co., 45 John St., N. Y.

Banks. Banks Law Pub. Co., 23 Park Place, N. Y.

Banta Pub. G: Banta Pub. Co., Menasha, Wis.

Barnes. A. S. Barnes & Co., 381 4th Av., cor. 27th St., N. Y.

Purchased the business of the United Education Co., E. L. Kellogg & Co., and E. O. Valle.

Barse & Hopkins, 28 W. 23d St., N. Y.

Bell. J. P. Bell Co., 816 Main St., Lynchburg, Va.

Bench & Bar Co., 27 Cedar St., N. Y.

Benziger. Benziger Bros., 36-38 Barclay St., N. Y.; 214 W. Monroe St., Chicago.

Birchard, C. C. Birchard & Co., 221 Columbus Av., Boston.

Blackie & Son., 50 Old Bailey, London, E. C.

Blackwell, B. H., 50 and 51 Broad St., Oxford, England.

Blackwood, W: Blackwood & Sons, 45 George St., Edinburgh.

Blakiston. P. Blakiston's Son & Co., 1012 Walnut St., Philadelphia.

Bobbs. Bobbs-Merrill Co., University Square, Indianapolis, Ind.

Bonnier. Albert Bonnier Pub. House, 561 3d Av., N. Y.

Book Supply Co., 231 W. Monroe St., Chicago.

Boston Bk. Boston Book Co., 83-91 Francis St., Boston.

Boston Music Co., 26 West St., Boston.

Bowker. R. R. Bowker Co., 241 W. 37th St., N. Y.

Brentano's, 5th Av. & 27th St., N. Y.

Briggs. W: Briggs, Queen & John Sts., Toronto, Canada.

Britton Pub. Co., 354 4th Av., N. Y.

Burrows. Burrows Bros. Co., 633 Euclid Av., Cleveland, O.

Business Training Corporation, 185 Madison Av., N. Y.

Butterfield. W. A. Butterfield, 59 Bromfield St., Boston.

Byrne. John Byrne & Co., 715 14th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Carnegie Institution of Washington, Washington, D. C.

Catholic Publication Soc. of America, 31 E. 27th St., N. Y.

Century. Century Co., 353 4th Av., N. Y.

Chapman & Hall, Henrietta St., Covent Garden, London, W. C.

Chatto & Windus, 111 St. Martin's Lane, Charing Cross, London, W. C.

Clark Bk. Co., Inc., 27 William St., N. Y.

Purchased the book business of the Myron C. Clark Pub. Co.

Clarke. W. B. Clarke Co., 26-28 Tremont St., Boston.

Cleveland Foundation. Survey Committee, Cleveland, O.

Clode, E. J., 156 5th Av., N. Y.

Clowes, William & Sons, 31 Haymarket, London, S. W.

Collier. P. F. Collier & Son, 416-430 W. 13th St., N. Y.

Columbia University Press, Lemcke & Buechner, agents, 30-32 W. 27th St., N. Y.
 Comstock. William T. Comstock Co., 23 Warren St., N. Y.
 Constable, Archibald, & Co., 10 Orange St., Leicester Sq., London.
 Copp, Clark Co., Ltd., 495-517 Wellington St., W., Toronto, Canada.
 Crowell. T. Y. Crowell Co., 426-428 W. Broadway, N. Y.
 Cupples & L. Cupples & Leon Co., 443-449 4th Av., cor 30th St., N. Y.

Daughaday. Daughaday & Co., 610 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.
 Davis. F. A. Davis Co., 1914-16 Cherry St., Philadelphia.
 De La Mare. A. T. De La Mare Ptg & Pub. Co., 438-448 W. 37th St., N. Y.
 Denison. T. S. Denison & Co., 154 W. Randolph St., Chicago.
 Devin-Adair Co., 437 5th Av., N. Y.
 Dillingham. G. W. Dillingham Co., 12-16 E. 22d St., N. Y.
 Dodd. Dodd, Mead & Co., 4th Av. & 30th St., N. Y.
 Dodge. Dodge Pub. Co., 214-220 E. 23d St., N. Y.
 Doran. George H. Doran Co., 38 W. 32d St., N. Y.
 Doubleday. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.
 Drake, F. J. Frederick J. Drake & Co., 1006 S. Michigan Av., Chicago.
 Duckworth. Duckworth & Co., 3 Henrietta St., Covent Garden, London, W. C.
 Duffield. Duffield & Co., 211 W. 33d St., N. Y. (Formerly Fox, Duffield & Co.)
 Dutton. E. P. Dutton & Co., 681 5th Av., N. Y.

Elder. Paul Elder & Co., 239 Grant Av., San Francisco.
 Ellis. G. H. Ellis Co., 272 Congress St., Boston.
 Eng. Mag. Engineering Magazine, 140-142 Nassau St., N. Y.

Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in Am., 105 E. 22d St., N. Y.
 Forbes. Forbes & Co., 443 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.
 Four Seas Co., 68 Pemberton Square, Boston.
 Funk. Funk & Wagnalls Co., 354-360 4th Av., N. Y.
 Acquired the publications of Cassell & Co.

German Pub. Soc., 597 5th Av., N. Y.
 Ginn. Ginn & Co., (Educational text-bks.) 29 Beacon St., Boston; 2301-2311 Prairie Av., Chicago.
 Gomme. Laurence J. Gomme, 2 E. 29th St., N. Y.
 Grafton & Co., 8 Coptic St., Bloomsbury, London, W. C.
 (Library publications for sale by the H. W. Wilson Co.)
 Gray, H. W., Co., 2 W. 45th St., N. Y. (Sole agents for Novello.)

Harper. Harper & Brothers, Franklin Square, N. Y.
 Harvard Univ. Press, 2 University Hall, Cambridge, Mass.
 Haynes. D. O. Haynes & Co., 3 Park Pl., N. Y.
 Hearst's International Lib. Co., 119 W. 40th St., N. Y.
 Heartman. C. F. Heartman, 36 Lexington Av., N. Y.
 Heath. D. C. Heath & Co., 50 Beacon St., Boston; 231 W. 39th St., N. Y.; 623 S. Wabash Av., Chicago.
 Henley. Norman W. Henley Pub. Co., 132 Nassau St., N. Y.
 Herder. B. Herder, 17 S. Broadway, St. Louis.
 Hinds. Hinds, Hayden & Eldredge, inc., 11-15 Union Square, W., N. Y.
 Hodder and Stoughton, St. Paul's House, Warwick Sq., London, E. C.
 Hoeber. Paul B. Hoeber, 69 E. 59th St., N. Y.
 Holt. Henry Holt & Co., 34 W. 33d St., N. Y.
 Holter. K. C. Holter Pub. Co., 416 8th Av., S., Minneapolis, Minn.

Home Correspondence School, 368 Main St., Springfield, Mass.
 Houghton. Houghton, Mifflin Co., 4 Park St., Boston; 16 E. 40th St., N. Y.; 623 S. Wabash Av., Chicago.
 Entire list of publications are placed on a net basis.

Huebsch. B. W. Huebsch, 225 5th Av., N. Y.
 Industrial Press, 140 Lafayette St., N. Y.
 International Reform Bureau, Inc., 206 Pennsylvania Av., S. E., Washington, D. C.
 Iowa State Hist. Soc., Iowa City, Ia.

Jacobs. G. W. Jacobs & Co., 1628 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
 Jack, T. C. & E. C., Causewayside, Edinburgh; 67 Long Acre, London, W. C.
 Jenkins, Herbert, 12 Arundel Place, Haymarket, London, S. W.
 Jewish. Pub. Jewish Publication Society of America, 608 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.
 Johns Hopkins Press, Baltimore, Md.
 Johnston Export Pub. Co., 17 Battery Pl., N. Y.
 Jones, Marshall. Marshall Jones Co., 212 Summer St., Boston.
 Judd. Orange Judd Co., 315 4th Av., N. Y.

Kenedy. P. J. Kenedy & Sons, 44 Barclay St., N. Y.
 Kennerley. Mitchell Kennerley, 32 W. 58th St., N. Y.
 King. P. S., & Son, 2 and 4 Great Smith St., London, S. W.
 Knopf, Alfred A. Knopf, 220 W. 42d St., N. Y.

Lane. John Lane Co., 116-120 W. 32d St., N. Y.
 LaSalle Extension University, 2550 Michigan Av., Chicago.
 Leonard. W. M. Leonard, 101 Tremont St., Boston.
 Lippincott. J. B. Lippincott Co., East Washington Square, Philadelphia.
 Little. Little, Brown & Co., 34 Beacon St., Boston.
 Longmans. Longmans, Green & Co., 443-449 4th Av., cor. 30th St., N. Y.
 Publish the Columbia university studies in history, economics and public law, formerly published by Macmillan.

Sole Am. agents for Edward Arnold, London.
 Lothrop. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., 93 Federal St., Boston.
 A consolidation of The Lee & Shepard Co. and The Lothrop Co.
 Luce, J. W. John W. Luce & Co., 212 Summer St., Boston, Mass.
 Luzac & Co., 46 Great Russell St., London, W. C.
 Lyon. James B. Lyon, 36 Beaver St., Albany, N. Y.

McBride. Robert M. McBride, 31 Union Square, N. Y.
 Formerly McBride, Nast & Co.
 Macaulay Co., 15 W. 38th St., N. Y.
 McClurg. A. C. McClurg & Co., 330-352 E. Ohio St., Chicago.
 McGraw. McGraw-Hill Bk. Co., 239 W. 39th St., N. Y.
 McKay. David McKay, 604-608 S. Washington Square, Philadelphia.
 Macmillan. The Macmillan Co., 66 5th Av., N. Y.
 MacNair. Henry MacNair, 334 5th Av., N. Y.
 Manas Press, 3 Castle Park, Mt. Hope Av., Rochester, N. Y.
 Manual Arts Press, 105 4th Av., Peoria, Ill.
 Marconi Pub. Corporation, 450 4th Av., N. Y.
 Mathews, Elkin, 4A Cork St., London, W.
 Maunsel & Co., 96 Middle Abbey St., Dublin
 Meth. Bk. Methodist Bk. Concern, 150 5th Av., N. Y.

See also Abingdon Press.
 Methuen & Co., 36 Essex St., Strand, London, W. C.
 Missionary Education Movement, 156 5th Av., N. Y. (Formerly Young People's Missionary Movement).
 Moffat. Moffat, Yard & Co., 116-120 W. 32d St., N. Y.
 Moody Magazine & Bk. Co., 35 Nassau St., N. Y.

- Morton, John P. Morton & Co., 422-426 W. Main St., Louisville, Ky.
- Murphy, J.: John Murphy Co., 200 W. Lombard St., Baltimore, Md.
- Murray, John, 50A Albemarle St., London, W.
- National Consumers League, 105 E. 22d St., N. Y.
- National Educ. (N. E. A.) National Educational Assn., Durand W. Springer, Ann Arbor, Mich.
- National Foreign Trade Council, 64 Stone St., N. Y.
- National Municipal League, 703 North American Bldg., Philadelphia.
- National Soc. for the Promotion of Industrial Education, 140 W. 42d St., N. Y.
- National Voters' League, 833 Woodward Bldg., Washington, D. C.
- Neale. Neale Pub. Co., 440 4th Av., N. Y.
- Nelson. Thomas Nelson & Sons, 381 4th Av., N. Y.
- New Review Pub. Assn., 256 Broadway, N. Y.
- N. Y. Evening Post, 20 Vesey St., N. Y.
- N. Y. State Dept. of Labor, Albany.
- Newson. Newson & Co., 73 5th Av., N. Y.
- Nichols, H. S. 435 E. 24th St., N. Y.
- Open Ct. Open Court Pub. Co., 122 S. Michigan Av., Chicago.
- Outing Pub. Co., 141 W. 36th St., N. Y.
- Oxford. Oxford University Press (American branch), 35 W. 32d St., N. Y. (Agent for the publications of Henry Frowde.)
- Page. Page Co., 53 Beacon St., Boston.
- Acquired the business of Dana Estes & Co., for which Sully & Kleinteich are the selling agents.
- Palmer Co., 120 Boylston St., Boston.
- Paulist Press, 120 W. 60th St., N. Y.
- Penn. Penn Pub. Co., 925 Filbert St., Philadelphia.
- Prices of their juvenile books have been put on a net basis.
- Phillips, LeRoy, 29A Beacon St., Boston.
- Pilgrim Press, 14 Beacon St., Boston; 120 S. Wabash Av., Chicago.
- Pitman. Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons, 2-6 W. 45th St., N. Y.
- Pond. James B. Pond, 1 Madison Av., N. Y.
- Pott. James Pott & Co., 214-220 E. 23d St., N. Y.
- Some of James Pott's publications sold to E. S. Gorham.
- Prang. Prang Educational Co., 30 Irving Place, N. Y.
- Princeton Univ. Press, Princeton, N. J.
- Putnam. G. P. Putnam's Sons, Putnam Bldg., 2-6 W. 45th St., N. Y.
- Sole Am. agents for University Press, Cambridge.
- Rand. Rand-McNally & Co., Rand McNally Bldg., Chicago; 40 E. 22d St., N. Y.; 455 S. Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.
- Rand School of Social Science, 140 E. 19th St., N. Y.
- Rebman Co., 141 W. 36th St., N. Y.
- Reilly & B. Reilly & Britton Co., 1006-12 S. Michigan Av., Chicago.
- Revell. Fleming H. Revell & Co., 158 5th Av., N. Y.; 17 N. Wabash Av., Chicago.
- Ritter & Co., 120 Boylston St., Boston. (Formerly Ritter & Flebbe.)
- Robertson. A. M. Robertson, 222 Stockton St., Union Square, San Francisco.
- Ronald. Ronald Press Co., Evening Post Bldg., 20 Vesey St., N. Y.
- Routledge. G. Routledge & Sons, 68-74 Carter Lane, Ludgate Hill, London, E. C.
- Row. Peterson & Co., 623 S. Wabash Av., Chicago.
- Russell Sage Foundation, 130 E. 22d St., cor. Lexington Av., N. Y.
- S. V. M. See Student Volunteer Movement.
- Saunders. W. B. Saunders Co., West Washington Square, Philadelphia.
- Scarborough Motor Guide Co., 222 E. Ohio St., Indianapolis, Ind.
- Scott. Scott, Foresman & Co., 623 S. Wabash Av., Chicago; 8 E. 34th St., N. Y.
- Scribner. Charles Scribner's Sons, 597 5th Av., N. Y.; 608 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.
- Secker. Martin Secker, 5 John St., Adelphi, London, W. C.
- Sewell Pub. Co., Cornell Heights, Ithaca, N. Y.
- Shaw, A. W. A. W. Shaw Co., Wabash Av. & Madison St., Chicago; 44-60 E. 23d St., N. Y. (Successors to Success Co.)
- Shaw, G. Arnold, 1735 Grand Central Terminal, N. Y.
- Sherman, French & Co., 6 Beacon St., Boston.
- Sherratt & Hughes, 33 Soho Sq., London, W.
- Sidgwick & Jackson, 3 Adam St., Adelphi, London, W. C.
- Small. Small Maynard & Co., 15 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.
- Smith, Elder & Co., 15 Waterloo Place, London, S. W.
- Southern Sociological Congress, 508 McLachlen Bldg., Washington, D. C.
- Spectator Co., 135 William St., N. Y.; 29 S. La Salle St., Chicago.
- Spon. Spon & Chamberlain, 123 Liberty St., N. Y.
- Stanhope-Dodge Pub. Co., Larchmont, N. Y.
- Stechert. G. E. Stechert & Co., 151-155 W. 25th St., N. Y.
- Selling agents for Harvard University Publications and Am. Folklore Soc.
- Stechert, F. C. F. C. Stechert Co., 29-35 W. 32d St., N. Y.
- Stewart & Kidd Co., Cincinnati, O.
- Stokes. F. A. Stokes Co., 443-449 4th Av., N. Y.
- Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions, 25 Madison Av., N. Y.
- Sturgis & Walton, 31-32 E. 27th St., N. Y.
- Sully & Kleinteich, 373 4th Av., N. Y.
- Selling agents of the Dana Estes & Co. publications of which the Page Co., are the proprietors.
- U. S. Infantry Assn., Union Trust Bldg., Washington, D. C.
- U. S. Labor. U. S. Bureau of Labor, Washington, D. C.
- Universalist. Universalist Pub. House, 359 Boylston St., Boston.
- Univ. of Cal. Univ. of California, Berkeley, Cal.
- Address University Press, California Hall, Berkeley.
- Univ. of Chicago Press, 58th St., & Ellis Av. Chicago.
- Univ. of Minn., Minneapolis, Minn.
- Univ. of Pa., Philadelphia.
- Univ. of the State of N. Y. Albany.
- Univ. of Toronto, Toronto, Ont.
- Unwin, T. Fisher, 1 Adelphi Terrace, Strand, London, W. C.
- Van Nostrand. D. Van Nostrand Co., 25 Park Pl., N. Y.
- Warne. Frederick Warne & Co., 12 E. 33d St., N. Y.
- Warwick & York, Inc., 19 W. Saratoga St., Baltimore, Md.
- Watt. W. J. Watt & Co., 43 W. 27th St., N. Y.
- Webb Pub. Webb Pub. Co., 55-79 E. 10th St., St. Paul, Minn.
- Whitcomb & B. Whitcomb & Barrows, 30 Huntington Av., Boston.
- Wilde. W. A. Wilde Co., 120 Boylston St., Boston; Rand-McNally Bldg., Chicago.
- Wiley. John Wiley & Sons, 432 4th Av., N. Y.
- Williams. David Williams Co., 239 W. 39th St., N. Y.
- Williams & Norgate, 14 Henrietta St., Covent Garden, London, W. C.

Wilson, H. W. H. W. Wilson Co., White Plains,
N. Y. (Formerly of Minneapolis, Minn.) (N.
Y. agent, W. C. Rowell, 10 E. 43d St., N. Y.)
Winston, John C. Winston Co., 1006-1016 Arch
St., Philadelphia.

Wolfe Tone Co., 220 W. 42d St., N. Y.
Workmen's Compensation Publicity Bureau, 80
Maiden Lane, N. Y.

World Book Co., Park Hill, Yonkers-on-Hudson,
N. Y.; 2126 Prairie Av., Chicago.

World Peace Foundation, 40 Mt. Vernon St.,
Boston.

Publications for sale by Ginn.

Wymond & Clark, Rand-McNally Bldg., Chicago.

Y. W. C. A. National Bd. of the Young Women's Christian Associations of the U. S. of Am., 600 Lexington Av., N. Y.

Yale University Press, 209 Elm St., New Haven,
Conn.; 225 5th Av., N. Y.

Young Ch. Young Churchman Co., (Episcopal Pub.) 484 Milwaukee St., Milwaukee, Wis.
Sunday School Commission, N. Y. agent.

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

3 9999 04834 749 4

